Galway Steamers.

Between the inception of an idea and its fruition it often occurs that such delays and impediments intervens that the majority of men treat the practical result as inexpedient or unattainable, and turns from a reconsideration of the subject as a tedious and profiless waste of time. Such has been the history and fate of the project of the Halifax & Quebice Railread; and Colonists and Metropolitans might have centinued to blunder over it in dreamy indifference, were it not for the lucky thought of an Irish Steamboat Company, that, casting about for fresh channels of traffic, determined to test the long vaunted superiority of Galway as the safest seaport on the extreme Western coast of Europe. Having a spare vessel unemployed, they selected the Viceroy as the pioneer, and the passage of that small-sized steamer developed exactly the rosults which might have been expected. In the Lower Hduse, last night, the Bill for suthorizing the Government to dispose of Public Works is Private Companies was read a second time. Messrs. Sherwood, (of Toronto), Robinson, and Boullon, (of Nortolk.) objected to the ptoposal to alienate Public Works to Private Companies; and Cameran, (of Kent.) objected to the whole scheme of celling them.

Mr. Merritt made a circus admission; Go-vernment, he said, c. uld not manage them, and for that reason he was in favour of getting rid of them. The House then went into Committee on Mr. Lafontaine's Resolutions on the Saigniorial Tenure of Lower Canada. I was absent from the House when the continuous of Lower Cauada. I was absent from the House when the question came on, and dd not heir Mr. Lafontsine's speech, except a few words at the close. He said, he felt it would be a difficult question to indemnify the Segneurs i.r the repeal of their dues. They had vested rights which must be protected. It would be for the interect of all to have this question settled; it would be for the advantage of Seig curs and Ce-sitaires. If it were not settled, he feered that scenes would occur in his Courty that would give cause for regret; that the time would come when the Censitaires would act towards the Seigneurs in the same manner as act towards the Seigneurs in the same manner as the Extinguishers (ctoignoirs) were now acti g with regard to the Schoul Act.

Mr. Badgl- y thought there was no desire for the abolition of the cipas et reales, but only for the lods et ventes. At this Convention held at Montreal by the delegates from various parts of Lower Canada, to discuss a plan for the abolition of the Seig-torial to the convention of the Seig-torial to the season of the Seig-torial three proposed that the Seigneurs about to discuss a pien for the abolition of the Seigi iorial Tenure, it was proposed that the Seigneurs should be partly ind-minified by the C-natianes, and that the other part should be paid by the r'rovince, but the adoption of that plan would entail a debt of £17,500 upon the Province, a proposition which he, for one, would not support. He hoped that no course would be taken in the settlement of the question that would i flirt injustice upon the Seigneurs.

In a former letter I mentioned that Dublin was without a Lord Mayor.
