BELLVIEW CITIZENS OPENED FINE NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Residents Are Proud of Their New Structure, and Have a Right to be--An Inspection of Building--Opening Ceremony Last Night Proved a Very Pleasing Event.

The Assembly Hall of the new Bellview Schoolhouse, was crowded last evening at the concert and ceremonies that officially opened the beautiful new building. It was with a look of just pride that parents, children and friends gathered at the splendidly equipped building for Bellview residents are proud of their new school and rightly so for it is perhaps the most modern school building of its size in Western Ontario.

The official opening speech was then delivered by T. W. Standing, County Schools Inspector. He considered the building a most modern one throughout and especially as regards ventilation. He was particularly glad to hear the broad note sounded by the speakers in their addresses. A broad outlook was just what was needed in educational matters. He then declared the school officially open.

After short addresses from School Trustees R. W. Henry and H. Atwell and from Principal Burt of the Collegiate, the gathering adjourned to the lunch room in the basement, where luncheon was served by the staff and a pleasant social time spent by all.

Mr. E. C. Kilmer, Inspector of public schools, said he was glad to be present and witness the upward step in education in Brant County. Only yesterday, he had attended the corner stone laying of the new King George school and he challenged if there was another County in Ontario with as fine school buildings. Dr. John Fisher was the next speaker and he said that he was glad to be on the same platform with Dr. Linscott and to be able to agree with the doctor for once. He congratulated the school board and the people of Bellview on the erection of such a splendid building. No township in Ontario had better schools than Brantford. The building was a credit to the citizens who had undertaken the erection of it. More attention should be paid to the public schools as fully 90 per cent. of the children finish their education in the public schools. Mr. Fisher concluded his address by offering, as he had done

GRIT APPEALS TO NUMBER OF 290, ALL REJECTED BY COURT

That the Grit machine of Brantford, during the four days of registration which were closed last week, spent most of their time in an endeavor to keep voters off the list, rather than put them on, was fully exemplified at the Appeal Board of Registration yesterday afternoon. The Liberals hurried and scurried around during the four days of registration and served 290 notices of appeals against Conservative registrations, and practically every appeal made was rejected yesterday by Judge Hardy, Magistrate Livingston and Registrar Graham. About eight doubtful names only were left, and these will be settled to-day.

Rally To-Night At The Borden Club Rooms

To-night there will be a big rally in the Borden Club rooms on behalf of Good Government and the Conservative candidate, Mr. W. S. Brewster. The fact that Mr. Brewster is putting up a winning campaign in the face of iniquitous misrepresentations has aroused Conservatives and scores of Liberals to a sense of their duty, not only at the ballot box, but wherever their influence can be extended. To-night the speakers of the evening will deal with the issues of the campaign. Mr. Brewster, Mr. Cockshutt, Mayor Spence and others will speak.

Nine Airmen Killed Today

VIENNA, June 20.—Nine aviators lost their lives to-day when a mimic war in the air was suddenly turned into tragic reality by the accidental ripping of a dirigible airship by a biplane, while both were flying at a great height during the Austrian army manoeuvres. Both craft were destroyed and their occupants, nine military and naval officers and non-commissioned officers, were burned and mutilated beyond recognition.

Why All The Money Needed

At Mt. Pleasant last evening Mr. Cockshutt, M.P., asked the Rowellites a pertinent question on the present campaign. Since when, Mr. Cockshutt asked, has it become a virtue for a millionaire to subscribe a large part of his fortune to advance the purposes of a political party in Ontario, such as had been announced from J. W. Flavell in the Expositor?

Some Rally This!

The Hamites had a "grand" rally in Newport last night, with the accent most emphatically not on the quoted word. There were only half a dozen present and no chairman. Later on some young fellows who had been playing football came in. The candidate was among the speakers, but the enthusiasm did not exactly cause any rise in the temperature of the neighborhood.

Was Not Serious

Albert Gould and Alton Liscombe, two Mt. Pleasant men, who are charged with inflicting serious injury on Ernest Gould gave their side of the case to-day. Both gentlemen, by first assaulting Liscombe and retaliating in kind. The injuries inflicted by Gould were not serious enough to prevent Ernest Gould from getting around next day. The affair was simply a quarrel and the defendants who have a good reputation at Mt. Pleasant have no fear of the outcome of the case. They both claim that they were falsely arrested.

NOT ONE LIVING PERSON COULD ESCAPE FROM MINE

All Hope Has Been Abandoned of Safety of Great Majority of Those Caught by Explosion in Alberta Coal Mine--Rescue Party Organized.

HILLCREST, Alberta, June 20.—All hope has been abandoned for the safety of the Hillcrest Collieries Limited, which was wrecked by an explosion of fire damp Friday morning. Out of 236 men who went down in the morning shift, only 40 have been taken out alive, thirteen of these being injured. Quigley, the mine superintendent, is among the missing, and the condition of the ruined mine, 1200 feet below the surface, indicates a holocaust from which no living thing could escape.

Rescue parties worked strenuously throughout the whole of the day, and the rescuers declare the conditions below to be indescribable. The passages and workings are choked with debris, under which are the bodies of men and horses. In many cases the cause of death was suffocation. Most of the miners are English and Canadian and about 30 per cent foreigners.

Nothing is known as to the cause of the explosion which was of terrific force, even forcing smoke and dirt from the mine entrance and blowing the roof off a concrete building nearby. Immediately after the explosion rescue forces were organized and the dangerous labor commenced. Rescue cars were rushed from Lethbridge, Macleod, Cardston and Fernie, while from Blainmore came a government rescue car with a crew of trained mine experts.

No connected story of the disaster has yet been obtained, the surface being so wrecked by their experience that they are unable to tell coherently the ghastly experiences of their short stay underground. The main facts are that two hours after the men had gone to work a terrific explosion occurred and some thirty men who were in the outer workings ran quickly to the open air, their faces begrimed with dust raised by the explosion. Men who heard the dread sound quickly formed themselves into rescue parties, and the work of bringing bodies to the surface was almost instantly under way.

Shortly afterwards those who had been left in town 700 feet away, rushed to the mouth of the mine horror-stricken at the fate their loved ones were facing in the depths below, but even in their grief, wives and mothers did not hamper in any way the work of the rescuers.

As the first bodies were brought to the surface their grief became more demonstrative, but later on in the mine wash house, where the bodies were laid out, all was orderly. Women walked between aisles of the dead and identification were made quickly until 42 inanimate forms had been claimed by relatives. Some bodies were mangled and torn, but in the majority of cases death was due to suffocation.

Ship's Course Was Changed Without Orders

Enquiry at Quebec Into Big Disaster Was Continued This Morning.

QUEBEC, June 20.—The announcement by Jakob Saxe, third officer of the collier Storstad, that though he knew it was wrong to change a ship's course in a fog without orders, he put the helm of the vessel hard apart just before the collision with the Empress of Ireland, roused intense interest at this morning's session of the Dominion commission's investigation into the wreck being held at the court house here. Witness followed his surprising statement by saying that he did not think his action had caused the collision, and by explaining the helm was put hard apart by him to try and offset the effects of the current on his vessel. He also contended that the ship did not change her course because she had lost steerage-way, and he put the wheel hard apart when the order of the first mate to port the helm a little had no effect.

Saxe's statement drew a number of searching questions from Lord Mersey and Butler Aspinall, K.C., while C. S. Haight, New York, acting in behalf of the Storstad's owners, immediately they had finished their probe, jumped up and got a clear-cut explanation from the witness.

Difficult Task In Raising Sunken Impress of Ireland

Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M. P. is Advised By Marine and Fisheries Department of Work Underway.

In reply to a letter written to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa by Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M. P., on behalf of local families who suffered bereavement in the disaster to the Empress of Ireland, the following communication has been received by Mr. Cockshutt: Quebec, June 17, 1914. Dear Sir.—The Chief Engineer of the Department has forwarded to me your letter of the 13th inst., addressed to the Minister.

In reply thereto I beg to advise that every possible effort is being made to find bodies of those who have gone down with the "Empress of Ireland," but as the result of the very great depth of water, diving operations have been altogether unsuccessful up to the present.

BECK AND HANNA
Magnificent Work For Hydro-Electric Cause and Prison Reform Awaits Electors' Encouragement

The people of Ontario will be called upon on June 29th to express approval along with other matters, of the admittedly great work accomplished by Hon. Adam Beck for Hydro-Electric development and by Hon. W. J. Hanna for Prison Reform. That either man could be spared from the public's service may well seem inconceivable, and yet the summary dismissal of both from tasks which even Mr. Bowel admits have been magnificently managed is one of the grave consequences which Mr. Rowell asks the people to permit.

Hon. Mr. Hanna has, by his personal enthusiasm for prison reform, upset the old regime of state workshops, armed guards and shackles, at the Gaol Prison Farm and the various industrial farms now dotting the province the reclamation of unproductive areas has attracted attention from all over the world, and the public purse has been relieved by making the institutions self-sustaining. Mr. Hanna's reforms in the method of treating the inmates in the asylums and in managing the hospitals have been as radical and quite as successful, gaining the heartfelt approval of the medical profession.

Hon. Adam Beck's whole public career is written in the success of the Hydro-Electric movement, which though now of mammoth proportions is only at the commencement of its usefulness. In 1913 there were over 63,000 customers for light and over $500 for power, enjoying rates much below the old monopoly standard. The demand for public-owned power has become universal in the province and estimates are prepared and surveys made in new sections as quickly as the engineering department can take the different sections up. Hon. Mr. Beck capped the climax of his endeavors so far when at the last session the Government unanimously endorsed his measure to construct hydro-electric plants.

The Courage of the Miner
The new Bishop of Sheffield, Dr. Burrows, addressing a large gathering at the Doncaster Parish Church on Tuesday, paid a glowing tribute to the gallantry and bravery of Yorkshire miners.

He had, he said, spent Whitsuntide among the miners, and he had seen the explosion at the Wharfedale Silstone Colliery. What impressed him most was the gallantry of the men. The head of the rescue men told him he had to crawl on hands and knees to perform his task. He came to one man burned from head to heels.

"Go forward, friend, and see if you can help my mate," said this poor fellow. This was the courage we wanted. Such courage and no braver deeds had won the V.C. on the field of battle.

WORKMEN AWAIT COMPENSATION ACT

Great Measure Int. Induced by Whitney Government Comes Into Effect on Return to Power

On May 1st, 1911, there was placed on the Statute Books of Ontario the Workmen's Compensation Act. It is admitted on all hands that the Act is the most advanced piece of legislation that has yet been enacted in any province of the Dominion, or in any State of the Union, or any of the countries of the Old World.

Some of the salient features of the Act are as follows:—
(1) If a workman is injured he is entitled in every case to compensation, unless the injury was caused solely by his serious and wilful misconduct, and even where the injury was caused solely by his serious and wilful misconduct, compensation must still be paid if the injury results in death or serious disability.

(2) There is no waiting period during which no compensation is payable. It is true that the injury must last more than seven days, but if it does not, the compensation does not back to the date of the injury.

In most states and countries a definite period, generally of at least two weeks, is fixed during which no compensation is payable.

(3) All law suits are done away with. The workman simply sends his claim to the Board. The Board receives a report from its local officials, and awards the compensation without requiring the payment of his own lawyer. Nothing is deducted from the compensation for legal costs.

(4) The compensation cannot be garnished or attached by a creditor.

(5) The scale of compensation is generous.

(6) Payment of compensation out of the Accident Fund is practically guaranteed to the workman as the provision being made for payment out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Ontario wherever the Accident Fund runs short, and the Board is also required to raise by assessment on the employers, reserve funds sufficient to meet all future payments for compensation. The province contributes annually $100,000 towards the cost of administering the Act, and further $25,000 to pay the salaries of the members of the Board.

(7) Under most laws there is a limit to the total amount which a workman may receive, but under the Ontario Act there is no limit fixed, because he receives 55 per cent. of his wages as long as he lives. If his wages run as high as $2,000, and he lives forty years after his injury, he will have received a total of $44,000.

(8) Payment of compensation out of the Accident Fund is practically guaranteed to the workman as the provision being made for payment out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Ontario wherever the Accident Fund runs short, and the Board is also required to raise by assessment on the employers, reserve funds sufficient to meet all future payments for compensation. WORKMEN AWAIT COMPENSATION ACT

On May 1st, 1911, there was placed on the Statute Books of Ontario the Workmen's Compensation Act. It is admitted on all hands that the Act is the most advanced piece of legislation that has yet been enacted in any province of the Dominion, or in any State of the Union, or any of the countries of the Old World.

Some of the salient features of the Act are as follows:—
(1) If a workman is injured he is entitled in every case to compensation, unless the injury was caused solely by his serious and wilful misconduct, and even where the injury was caused solely by his serious and wilful misconduct, compensation must still be paid if the injury results in death or serious disability.

(2) There is no waiting period during which no compensation is payable. It is true that the injury must last more than seven days, but if it does not, the compensation does not back to the date of the injury.

In most states and countries a definite period, generally of at least two weeks, is fixed during which no compensation is payable.

(3) All law suits are done away with. The workman simply sends his claim to the Board. The Board receives a report from its local officials, and awards the compensation without requiring the payment of his own lawyer. Nothing is deducted from the compensation for legal costs.

(4) The compensation cannot be garnished or attached by a creditor.

(5) The scale of compensation is generous.

(6) Payment of compensation out of the Accident Fund is practically guaranteed to the workman as the provision being made for payment out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Ontario wherever the Accident Fund runs short, and the Board is also required to raise by assessment on the employers, reserve funds sufficient to meet all future payments for compensation. The province contributes annually $100,000 towards the cost of administering the Act, and further $25,000 to pay the salaries of the members of the Board.

(7) Under most laws there is a limit to the total amount which a workman may receive, but under the Ontario Act there is no limit fixed, because he receives 55 per cent. of his wages as long as he lives. If his wages run as high as $2,000, and he lives forty years after his injury, he will have received a total of $44,000.

Curious Law Breaking

"You broke the law yourself," said Lord Hatherton at Cannock, Staffordshire, on Tuesday, when Police-Superintendent Crook pointed out that he had been driving a motor-car at a high speed along Walsingham street, he put up the speed of his own motor-car to twenty-five miles an hour to test the speedometer. The Rev. William Brown, a Roman Catholic priest, of Bradford, was fined £1 for catching a dog both on a speed of thirty-three miles an hour, and he said to the police officer, "You ought to have been in the dog and not I."

A MEETING OF MINISTERS

Held Last Evening—Mr. A. L. Baird, K.C., Tells Why He Left Liberal Party.

The ministers of the city who had been from their pulpits on the political issue gathered at the Victoria hall last night to defend their action in an assembly mostly of Liberals. Three ministers spoke and their defence in each instance was that this great question of abolishing the hat was a moral issue, and that they were therefore entitled to speak upon it publicly as such. As Rev. T. E. Holling said, they allied their forces in a great cause—the paramount issue of the coming election. The three ministers spoke lengthily, they discussed well and all the time allowed a Conservative representative to reply was fifteen minutes. Those minutes were filled and right worthily by A. L. Baird, K.C., who gave his reasons as an old war-horse for voting Conservative. He felt that he was serving the best interests of the city by so doing and he knew what he was talking about. The Conservative party had done many things of which they had good reason to be proud and he intended to say why his vote was to be cast for Whitney and Brewster. Then he looked upon the platform he saw thereon an number of young looking clerics, who possibly had not seen so many temperance meetings and did not know so much of local conditions as what he did. Many of the Conservatives had as many temperance men on their side as the Liberals and they were as anxious as the Liberals. They had the people temperance measures in their local option. Why had local option been so neglected for far longer issues? It was law and was for the interests of the temperance cause.

Dealing with the past records of the Liberal party, Mr. Baird desired to know why when under the Ross administration the prohibition had been taken and a large majority of 65 per cent prohibition in Ontario, the Liberals had not made total prohibition

APPEAL MADE TO RATEPAYERS FOR THE BY-LAW

Vote on June 25 for Guarantee of Bonds of Brantford Industrial Company.

To the Ratepayers of the City of Brantford:

Ladies and Gentlemen—As it is possible some property owners may not understand the reasons for the submission of the By-law to be voted on by the ratepayers on the 25th instant, the Greater Brantford Board has asked me to address an explanation thereof to the entire body of ratepayers. The Board asks for your co-operation and support by vote and influence. It will greatly facilitate the work of the Board if you will sign and mail to me the enclosed post card.

First—The Greater Brantford Board was organized in 1912 for the purpose of promoting the best interests of the city, and especially its industrial development along the most improved lines. To enable it to carry on its work for three (at least) or more years, the Merchants, Manufacturers and Public spirited citizens raised, by private subscription, a fund of about Ten Thousand Dollars, supplemented by an annual grant for three years of One Thousand Dollars by the City Council. The personal of the board is: One member appointed by the City Council, one member appointed by the Board of Trade, and five members elected annually by the subscribers, all of whom give their valuable time freely and ungrudgingly, and at the present time are Ald. Broadbent, Rec. Scarie (President of the Board of Trade), Jos. H. Ham, (chairman); Geo. S. Matthews, (deputy chairman); A. K. Bannell, Jos. Ruddy and W. D. Schultz.

Second—To provide against the constantly recurring difficulty of providing sites and factory buildings for concerns seeking locations in Canada the Greater Brantford Board promoted the formation of the Brantford Industrial Realty Company, Limited, with an authorized capital of $100,000, of which it secured subscriptions amounting to $50,000; this being the present working capital of the company.

Third—This company undertakes to erect buildings for such new manufacturing concerns as may prefer to rent rather than build.

Fourth—In all cases it is and it will be, provided in agreements and leases, that any manufacturing firm will be given an option to purchase the factory at any time at actual cost.

Fifth—The annual rent of such factories is to be eight per cent. of the actual cost.

Sixth—The shareholders will be entitled to receive annual dividends not exceeding six per cent, to be paid leaving two per cent, to provide for contingent and unforeseen expenses for wear and tear, etc., etc.

Seventh—It will be seen that the present capital of $50,000 will soon be exhausted when it is realized that the first factory built, the Brantford Piano Case Factory, has eaten into the fund to the extent of $35,000, leaving only $15,000 now available for further operations.

Eighth—The Realty Company requires immediately about $30,000 for the Niagara Silk Company Building, which will be commenced immediately upon the enactment of this by-law, and also a similar or larger amount, if present negotiations for a factory, requiring about one hundred highly paid workmen, are successful.

Ninth—This By-law is an enabling one, to enable the City Council to enter into an agreement with the Realty Company, and if such agreement is made, to guarantee the bonds of the Realty Company to an amount not exceeding 75 per cent. of the cost of any factory previously built by the company, taking a mortgage on such property as security.

Tenth—The immediate effect of such an agreement with the city will be to give the company the means of raising $225,000 (being 75 per cent of $300,000, the cost of the factory already erected), which, with the $15,000 left of their present subscribed capital, will enable the company to erect the Silk Factory.

Eleventh—The Piano Case Company will give employment to many highly paid men. The Silk Company will provide employment of a highly interesting character to many of the daughters of the employers of many large factories and tend to keep the girls at home. One third of the employees of the Silk Company will be expert men on the looms, which are operated for twenty-three hours a day.

Twelfth—The Greater Brantford Board believes the passing of this by-law to be in the best interests of the city, and again asks for your co-operation, support, and influence in securing its adoption. Yours truly,

GEORGE HATELY, Secretary.

In the World of Labor

WHAT THE WHITNEY GOVERNMENT AND BREWSTER HAS DONE FOR WORKINGMEN

Has the Whitney Government and W. S. Brewster done anything to organize labor and the general betterment of all classes, both in our city and county? The answer is that they most assuredly have. To cite a few instances of what has been done to benefit this Riding and the working classes, it will be only necessary to say that among other things secured were:

A free Employment Bureau in the City of Brantford.
Two large additions to the School for the Blind, and thereby giving work to our citizens.

A hatchery for bass and trout in the vicinity of the Village of Mount Pleasant, and which is generally conceded by experts to-day to be without a rival on the continent.

Then look at the bills put through the Legislature by Mr. W. S. Brewster, among which might be mentioned the Brantford Hospital Bill, under which ORGANIZED LABOR WAS FOR THE FIRST TIME given a representative on the Board.

Then there is the Bill, which in spite of strenuous opposition from the Gas Trust, as they might be called, which will compel the Brantford Gas Company as well as other kindred interests, to give pure gas to consumers, or else make way for some other company who would be willing to give the consumer a satisfactory service, and not one that is both dangerous to our health and comfort. The working people of this city have not forgotten the trying times that they went through when the sulphuretted article was first introduced in this city, and it is to the everlasting credit of Mr. Brewster that he took this matter up for the people and carried it through to completion.

Then we come to the

and in looking over the past record of the Whitney Government we find that it has enjoyed a memorable record during its term of office, a record of which any Government might feel justified in being proud of. Look for instance at that splendid piece of legislation passed at the last session of Parliament in the interests of the workingman, the Workmen's Compensation Act. Under this Act what do we find that is so beneficial to all classes?

Under this Act, every workman who becomes injured in any way will receive fifty-five per cent of his wages during the time that he is disabled.

Again, under this Act, in case of death, his widow and children will receive as high as forty dollars per month. There are other equally as favorable clauses and conditions in this Bill which make it without a single exception, one of the best pieces of legislation ever enacted for the benefit of the laboring classes in this or any other part of the world.

Coming still closer home in a matter affecting the ever needed curtailing of expenses so essential to-day in every workman's home, owing to the present high cost of living, we find that to-day in Brantford is due in no small measure to the energetic efforts of the Hon. Adam Beck and the Conservative party of Brantford. You workingmen all remember the fierce fight that was put up against an existing and grasping monopoly versus Municipal Ownership. And you also remember that after a strenuous struggle, into which W. S. Brewster threw all of his efforts on behalf of Hydro Electric, that we won out. What has been the result of that fight, and how does it measure up in dollars and cents to your pocketbook. This has been the result and you know it, your electric light bills have been cut in two and in some cases less than that, and the City of Brantford to-day is acknowledged to be the best lighted city in all Canada. The advantages we now enjoy are the same advantages that the surrounding country districts will have in the very near future, and even its most bitter opponents now concede that the Hydro Electric, which has been put into operation despite the most strenuous opposition imaginable, both financially and politically, is to-day one of Ontario's most valuable assets, and we workingmen have to thank the Hon. Adam Beck who was backed up by the Whitney Government, absolutely for this notable victory upon behalf of the people of this Province.

WHITNEY HAS KEPT HIS PLEDGES TO THE WORKINGMAN.

In regard to the pledges of the Whitney Government to organized labor. Have they been kept? Again the answer is an emphatic yes. Take for instance the Workmen's Compensation Act. Sir James Whitney gave his promise to a labor delegation that he would appoint a Commissioner to collect facts and present a report on the same. That was promise Number One.

Only last Labor Day, in the city of Toronto, a deputation from organized labor waited on Sir James and asked him to see that the Act should be passed during the then coming session of the Legislature, and Sir James promised that the Act would most certainly be passed at that session. This is promise Number Two.

Later on, after Sir William Meredith had presented his first brief of the Bill, and when the Manufacturers' Association were up in arms over the measure, and doing all in their power to prevent the passing of this equitable and just piece of legislation, another delegation of organized workers waited on Sir James and asked that the Bill be passed exactly as recommended by the Commissioner, and telling the Premier that it had been reported that the Manufacturers' Association had said that he and his government would not dare to pass the Bill through the House as it then stood. What was the answer and promise given by that grand, grim, yet honest, courageous old warrior to that labor deputation? Turning to the deputation, he gave them his solemn promise that the Act would be passed in all its essentials just as it was recommended by Sir William Meredith, despite the Manufacturers' Association. And go through it did. This was promise Number Three. Each and every promise made by Sir James Whitney to the laboring men of this Province has been faithfully lived up to, and for each and all of the many things enacted in their favor, the working men of this city should, and will, give the Whitney Government credit for, and the best way to do this is to cast your ballot in favor of and elect W. S. Brewster as the representative of this Riding. Mr. Brewster has always shown a willingness to do anything in his power to further the interests of the laboring classes, and no petitions, asking him to use his influence or vote on certain measures, has ever been turned down by him. This is something which cannot be denied. He has never yet failed the workmen of this city in anything they have asked him to do. Is not a man of that calibre worthy of your undivided support? See to it, then, that your vote is cast in his favor, and in the favor of a Government which "has done things" for the betterment of all mankind.

Playgrounds

Never was a child born that wasn't born to play. As sparks fly upward, boys and girls must romp and run. It's in their blood. The Creator mixed the instinct with the stuff of which they're made. It is as useless as to attempt to thwart that impulse as to endeavor, like the mad old king, to sweep back the tides with a broom.

But the majority of our cities have grown up with never a thought for the child. Women say these are man-made cities, but children have a greater right to say these are growing-up folks' cities. As Li Hung Chang said of New York they say of their home town, "I was left out when this place was planned."

Play strengthens the lungs, stimulates the flow of blood, toughens muscles, sharpens the wits, and breeds self-reliance. It is as impossible for a playless child to remain normal as for a workless man to escape degeneracy. Without play there can be no growth and the fresh start which nature gives every generation is lost when children cannot play. Because of this an eminent sociologist has declared "the lack of healthful play works as much harm as child labor, while another remarks, "the boy without play is father to the man without a job."

The urge to childhood action is irresistible, and where it cannot vent itself normally it will find a way out through abnormal channels. It is because facilities for healthful exercises is denied them that so many boys go to the bad and wind up in the reformatory. If they cannot play right, they will play wrong.

Recreation facilities cost little in comparison with other forms of public effort, but they bring back the largest of returns. Who can tell what might eventuate if Brantford were to furnish enough play grounds to keep her children off the street? The child generation contains all the materials of future citizenship. No people can raise and short skirts the world's future. Edisons, Wrights, Florence Nightingales, and Mme. Curies, are now romping around.

May it not be possible that there are many such hidden away behind bashful exteriors who will some day prove to be Brantford's future leaders? You never can tell. John Trebonius always lifted his hat in the presence of a group of children. Who knows, he might in explanation of this peculiarity, but that in this class here,"—he pointed to a class in school,— "there may be hereafter learned doctors, sage legislators—nay! princes of the empire."—The Richmond (Ind.) Palladium and Sun-Telegram.

A Labor Representative

The sentiment is growing stronger throughout the province that in justice to the workers of Ontario the Government should see to it that one of the members appointed to act on the Board of Commissioners to administer the Workmen's Compensation Act should be a representative of the workers who are directly interested in its operation.

The Labor Educational Association of Ontario which meets in St Thomas on May 25th, with 147 delegates, representing the organized workers from all sections of the province, voiced that sentiment in a strong resolution asking that the Government take such action.

We believe that the proposition is a fair one, and what is more, we trust the Government will see it in the same light.

Labor certainly has a right to expect that out of three members on the board one should directly represent the great working class, and there isn't any doubt but what Mr. W. S. Brewster will heartily support such a measure. Vote for Brewster.

Labor Unrest Is Due to Low Wages

Speaking to the Canadian Club at Kingston, Ontario, recently, Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor, made an appeal to the employers to pay the working men better wages which would be sufficient for them to provide for their families and have something for old age. The labor unrest, he said, was due to low wages and failure to recognize the fact that the workingman had a heart as well as a mind, and that he had emotions as well as muscle. The speaker declared labor unions had accomplished a great deal toward remedying this unrest, and had a great deal more to do. "I feel strongly on this point," added the speaker, "see to it that men get a fair wage. From my own knowledge and reports given to me, I know there are thousands of men re-veling in the pride of wealth withholding from the workmen sufficient to provide them with a decent livelihood. Such employers should be ashamed of themselves."

Victory At Last

Once more the utility of persistent agitation has been amply illustrated by the decision handed down last Tuesday by the Ontario Railway Municipal Board giving the Toronto Street Railway Company until Sept. 21st in which to submit plans which would do away with side steps or running boards upon the open cars.

For years the Street Railway Employees' Union, backed by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Toronto District Labor Council, has petitioned and agitated for the abolition of the deadly running board.

Too much credit cannot be given to Joe Gibbons the business agent of Division No. 113, for his persistence in this matter. Year after year he has presented the case of the railwaymen for the consideration of the Ontario government and when the question came before the present board his presentation of the case and list of casualties and accidents was of such a character as to completely refute the arguments of the company's representatives and convince the members of the board that drastic action was necessary.

He was ably assisted by Secretary Ald. W. D. Robbins whose testimony served to corroborate his statements.

This decision of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board will set a precedent for every street and electric railway corporation in Ontario. It means that after many rebuffs and years of ceaseless effort victory has finally been achieved and the agitation so persistently maintained has been crowned with complete success.

To a Fellow I'll Never Know

Here is a toast to drink to a fellow I'll never know—
To the fellow who's going to take my place when it's time for me to go
I've wondered what kind of a chap he'll be and I've wished his hand.

Just to whisper, "I wish you well, old man," in a way that he'd I'd like to give him the cheering word that I've longed at times
I'd like to give him the warm hand-lasp when never a friend
I've learned my knowledge by their hard work, and I wish on

To the fellow who'll come to take my place some day when I
Will he see all the sad mistakes I've made and note all the Will he ever guess of the tears they caused or the headaches cost

Will he gaze through the failures and fruitless toil of the
And catch a glimpse of the real intent and the heart of the
I dare to hope he may pause some day as he toils as I have
And gain some strength for his weary task from the battles I fought

But I've only the task itself to leave with the cares for him
And never a cheering word may speak to the fellow who'll take on

Then here's to your health, old chap; I drink as a bridegroom
I leave an unfinished task for you, but God knows how I
I've dreamed my dreams as all men do but never a one came
And my prayer to-day is that all the dreams may be realized
And we'll meet some day in the great unknown—in the You'll know my clasp as I take your hand and gaze in your

BLACK HAND SECRETS REVEALED BY CHIEF OF SECRET SERVICE.

The Black Hand's Covenant with Death

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN,
Chief of the United States Secret Service

TERROR is the weapon of the Black Hand. Through terror the society wrings gold from its victims. Through terror it holds its members to the horrible purposes for which it is organized and squeezes from them the last ounce of energy in its service. Men like Comito the Sheep and De Salvatore Romano have sought to break the fetters, to rise above the life of crime they must lead as members of the Black Hand, but terror, inspired by the vengeance they themselves have helped to wreak on others, chills their hearts and kills the good purpose in them. They are like birds struggling with their feet in the lime.

To so hopelessly baffle men with fear the society must have an intricate and harmonious organization, and this it has. Many persons will be convinced of the grim purposes of the Black Hand when they know that the society has its own physicians.

This is to maintain secrecy. Naturally enough, many disputes arise. There are fights, and Sicilians do not fight with their fists. Knife wounds or bullet wounds result from these quarrels. Should an ambulance be called, or even a physician who is not a member of the Black Hand, a report would of necessity be made to the police. This is the last thing desired.

It is for this reason that the Black Hand society has a corps of physicians. It is not only to attend those injured in petty quarrels that the physicians are needed. The code of the Black Hand prescribes certain offenses for which a man must fight to preserve his honor. These affairs of honor call merely for the drawing of blood by one of the principals.

Then there are fights between members of the Black Hand and other criminals, between Black Handers and the police, and sometimes even the victim of a vendetta has an opportunity to put up a fight and those who carry out the decrees of the society need medical attention.

Dr. Salvatore Romano was one of the physicians of the Black Hand society. How he was drawn into the net and what he was forced to do, though not actually a member of the society, is a remarkable story and throws a great deal of light on the methods and organization of the system of which Lupu and Morello were the heads.

Dr. Romano lived in New York with his mother, who was from Corleone, Sicily, where she and her mother had been very friendly with the family of Morello.

While young Romano was a student in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, a branch of Columbia University in the city of New York, his mother received a letter demanding a certain amount of money under penalty of Salvatore's death. The young man's mother and grandmother were very much frightened. Because they feared to excite him and cause him to fall in his examinations they told the boy nothing of the letter, but the grandmother went to Morello and showed it to him. She knew that he had dealings with men of questionable character, and thought that possibly he might be able to use his acquaintance to help them.

"Don't worry," said Morello to the aged woman, who had been a friend of his mother. "These men will not act too outsize. They want rather get the money than take the life of the boy. I will above all do not let this matter get to the ears of the police. That would mean his certain death—death in its worst form."

"Do not send the money either. Wait for a second offer, which will certainly come, and we can decide upon the best course of action."

Two more letters were received by the Romanos and each time the grandmother went to Morello, who took the letters from her because she said he wished to study them. Morello never gave the letters back. When the fourth letter was received Morello took it as he had the others and after a few days in which he said he was studying the handwriting, announced that he had discovered the origin of the letter.

This he never divulged to the Romanos, merely telling them that he found the blackmailers were willing to settle for $1,000, but that he would offer them $100. "The family would have been glad to pay the money in order to safeguard Salvatore, but Morello would not hear of this."

"I will pay the $100," he told Mrs. Romano, "and later I will recover it. Circumstances will not permit of my refusing to try at all, but he assured that when I have had time to reach the blackmailers through certain channels, the money will be returned to me."

The mother and grandmother of the young physician were deeply touched by what they considered Morello's unselfish friendship for them. The whole affair seemed settled to the satisfaction of all, and young Romano was told about it. His mother and grandmother impressed upon him the gratitude that he should entertain toward Morello for possibly saving his life, and certainly saving the family from great suffering.

Shortly after Salvatore Romano graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons he was called to attend Morello. Glad of an opportunity to repay in a measure the kindness which the Sicilian had shown his family, when Morello did not offer to pay for Dr. Romano's professional services the young physician felt that he was only discharging a debt.

Later Salvatore was called upon to attend Morello's brothers-in-law—Lima, Salina and Lupu. It was then but a short step to having him treat members of their families, and before long Dr. Romano was the regular physician for a number of men, all of whom were members of the Black Hand Society. Never a penny did he receive for his services, and at last he arrived in Buffalo, where he established a practice, because he could not make money in New York.

The feeling of gratitude which Dr. Romano felt wore off after a time, but he forbore to break entirely with Morello, for he feared vengeance. Shortly after he went to Buffalo Lupu, Morello and other counterfeiters were arrested and put on trial in New York city. Knowing that Morello's only hope lay in establishing an alibi, the counterfeiters' mother and wife went to Mrs. Romano and urged her to beg her son to testify to clear Morello.

Mrs. Romano was still grateful for what she considered an act of friendship on the part of Morello and though she feared her son would get into trouble if he testified, she wrote to him advising him to go to New York and for the last time do a favor for Morello.

Dr. Romano knew that to save Morello he must commit perjury. He did not wish to do so, and he felt that he had more than settled accounts with the Black Hand and his friends. Yet he knew the type of men with whom he was dealing. There was no longer any doubt in his mind that Morello was one of the Black Hand members. If the society had been ready to take his life for $1,000, would they hesitate to kill his mother if he refused to testify for them?

There was no sleep for the physician. In his dreams he saw his mother leaving her home on her daily missions while black-browed Sicilians trailed her, ready to strike at the word of the chief. This mother, whom he loved above all other women, was in danger of death, perhaps worse than death, every minute that he delayed.

It was a telegram sent by "Nick," Terzanova that shook him. There was no threat in the telegram. It was simply worded:—

"Be in New York to-morrow to appear in court."

As he read the message he seemed to hear the voice of his mother, crying out in fear and anguish.

THE BLACK HAND HAD TORTURED WOMEN BEFORE THIS.

The telegram slipped from Dr. Romano's nervous fingers.

The next train from Buffalo bore him to New York.

According to his testimony when brought to trial for perjury, he went first to his mother's, where he met Nick Terzanova, who explained that it was desired that he testify that Morello was not out of the house from the last of December to the first of March.

"How often are you going to say you saw him?" asked Terzanova.

"Once a week," replied the physician.

"I want to go as lightly as possible, so that I will not get into trouble."

"You cannot get into trouble—not by sticking to us," Terzanova told him very pointedly. "But once a week is not enough to say you saw him. You must say, 'Twice a week.' There will be no trouble. He was so pale and so well disguised that no one seeing him would have known him during the time regarding him to go to New York and for the last time do a favor for Morello."

Eight men had been watching Morello continually throughout January and February and I know positively that Dr. Romano's testimony was not correct. When I brought him to New York and questioned him he told me the whole story substantially as I have presented it to you.

Dr. Brancato also attended Lupu, Morello and other Black Handers on several occasions. Romano was a disciple of the society. He told me that he loved Dr. Brancato was also a disciple. I had my opinion as to that, but at any rate he was not convicted of perjury, though he was brought to trial.

Although Dr. Romano was never initiated into the Black Hand Society, other physicians were, and they were utilized for the purposes I have described. I said that the rules of the society called for a certain line of conduct under certain circumstances and that as a result the offices of a physician were frequently in demand.

The rules of the Black Hand were actually codified. The society is not governed merely by unwritten law. In the possession of Rudolph Palermo, one of the men arrested for counterfeiting, I found a note book in which were inscribed in Sicilian the laws of the society. As nearly as possible they are translated word for word as they were written in the note book.

FIRST—Whoever confides to a person not belonging to the society the operations of his companions, or by word or deed, seriously or in fooling, offends a companion, or who is not dignified or does not respect the recruits (who must be commanded in nothing save the affairs of the society) or who refuses to mount guard on his duty, gets drunk or quarrels with a companion, or when called by a companion on business of the society refuses to comply, or who leaves town for more than one day without letting it be known, shall be punished by a fine of $20 and can not come to his place.

But the companions who judge him must be all of one accord, pro or con. When any companion draws another of the same dimension, also, with the point understood, if it is a knife, or who fights a duel with a companion on business of the society, shall be understood (summarily deprived of his rights).

THIRD—The companion who knows the fault of another and does not inform the society at large is liable to the same penalty.

FOURTH—He that does not attend at the society without the permission of the BLACKMAILERS OF THE DAY to do his duty without any orders, shall be punished. If he explains his lateness in a manner satisfactory to the society he will be pardoned and may take his place. Otherwise he may not be admitted at the next division.

FIFTH—A recruit who produces gain to the society is entitled to one-fifth of it as his own share.

SIXTH—The society cannot act without the consent of all the companions. Even the opposition of one mouth is enough to overrule the opinion of all the others, always providing the person objecting gives a reasonable explanation for his views.

SEVENTH—No companion who becomes a member of the society may in any way alter its rules.

EIGHTH—Every meeting of the society must be announced to those on duty on the day of the meeting at least twenty-four hours before it takes place, except in cases of emergency.

NINTH—The date and place of meetings is absolutely in the hands of the head of the society, and none may oppose him.

These are the rules which bind the men who thrive on blackmail, murder, counterfeiting and the kidnaping of children.

I know men who worked their way into the very inner councils of the Black Hand. Men who advise with the leaders, who know what is afoot before the rank and file of the society so much as guess at it. To mention the name of one of these men would be to pronounce his death sentence. To tell how they worked their way into the society would be to disclose their identity to those who hate them. When it became known that certain members of the society were furnishing the secret service of the workings of the gang, there occurred a series of murders which astounded New York and baffled the police.

I may safely say that some of these murders were committed in the light of facts to still the tongues of those who were prying into the affairs of the society. As I tell elsewhere, the paper men were never slain.

One of these men, I am not saying whether he was a secret service operative or a Sicilian who turned reformer, told me of his initiation into the society. It was conducted in the place of necessity with the greatest secrecy, and in a covered wagon, the eyes of a black man being watching when the initiators had met, he was carried in a huge basket or hamper, so that none passing through the street might see a man, blindfolded, being led into the house.

Not until he was in the midst of the assembled companions was the bandage removed from his eyes, and then he found himself surrounded by a group of masked men. Forty or more pairs of sparkling black eyes glared fiercely at him, as if they would seek to frighten him from carrying out his purpose of joining the society. Throughout the ceremony of initiation the eight eyes glared straight into the face of the recruit. Not a word was spoken save by the leader; only the eyes glared and glared through the slits in the black masks.

"Where have you acquired the S?" asked the leader, who sat upon a sort of raised dais.

The "S" refers to the bylaws, which the recruit is required to learn by heart before he may be admitted to the society.

To this question the recruit answered:—

"Under the Cedar Plains, and passing from the hole of the benchalk I saw three lamps lighted and the one in the center hardly stood up."

A man at a table with a large book checked off the question and answer, recording that the candidate had replied correctly.

"Who has formed the plan of S?" was the next question.

"Fernando Misprizzi,"

"Is he dead or alive?" asked the leader.

Silence. The members of the society seemed scarce to breathe awaiting the reply of the recruit. He felt the tension—realized that this was one of the most sacred of the formulas in the ritual. At last he spoke.

"He lives always, even after the end of the world."

"The answer was correct."

"Since when have you acquired the S?"

"Since the scientific tree was planted in the soil."

At this point the members of the society went through the form of creating in whispers, giving the recruit the idea that they were discussing his desecrality as a member of the society. A long made a show of writing in a diary the number of the while others seemed to be arguing

In his favor. This is almost always done in order to impress the recruit with the doubtful honor that is being bestowed upon him.

The leader restored order.

"With what is the hole covered?" he asked.

"With a very fine carpet, where the blackmailers play," replied the recruit.

"What is enclosed in this hole?"

"The penny of crime denied, fought about and reacquired."

The next question was, "How do you demonstrate a crime?"

"Give me a sheet of paper and you will see," replied the recruit.

This is merely a formal question and answer and so far as I know the recruit is never required to draw anything on the paper. There seems to be much in the question and its answers which mean nothing in reality. Some of the expressions may have an arbitrary meaning, but there is much which is merely rigmorale.

"What does the head of crime wear?" asked the leader after the recruit had answered properly the question of how to demonstrate a crime.

A silk handkerchief with five knots and penny denied, fought for and reacquired."

You will remember that when Morello was in New Orleans on the affairs of the Ignazio Florio Association he wore a handman handkerchief with five knots tied in it in defiance of those who threatened to expose his counterfeiting schemes in connection with the real estate propaganda. All afternoon Morello stalked the streets of "The City of Caro Forgo" wearing this badge of defiance described in the Black Hand ritual as worn by the head of crime. His enemies there knew what it meant and feared him. Their fear was justified, for that night the man who had threatened to expose Morello was stabbed to death.

To return to the initiation.

"How many weapons are there?" asked the leader.

"Thirteen. Five knives, two pairs and one separate; five packs of cards, three of which are for the ordinary blackmailing of the experienced; one stiletto, one small tapper and a razor."

"Where have you drawn blood?"

Again the members of the society hung breathlessly on the words of the recruit. The black eyes glared and not a sound came from behind the grim masks.

"From the thumb of the right hand," came the answer, and the leader asked quickly:—

"What does an experienced blackmailer bear?"

"A star in front of him, on his forehead, and a vermillion flower on the big toe of the left foot."

This may sound ludicrous as you settle comfortably back in your easy chair and read it, but I have it on the word of men who know that there is nothing of humor in the initiation ritual of the Black Hand Society when you are face to face with a score of masked men, each of whom you know to be a criminal of the lowest order, reckless of life, remarkably secure from punishment for the commission of crime. Low burning candles light the room grossly and twenty pairs of fierce Sicilian eyes glare through narrow slits in black masks.

"How many kinds of blackmail are there?" was the next question asked.

"Three. Ordinary blackmail that becomes all blackmailers by turn; bold blackmail, which is that denied, fought for and acquired; and high blackmail, that belongs to the high initiated blackmailers."

This answer was correct. The leader spoke again.

"What does a highly initiated blackmailer especially bear?"

"A small scissors, a silver needle, pin, cotton and taffeta."

Twenty masks were ripped from twenty dark skinned faces, and the new member of the Black Hand knew for the first time who were to be a score of his most important associates in crime. He did not, however, know who the leaders of the society were. They were not present. He may never have found out who they were, for the leaders keep ever in the background, and the rank and file do not know them.

VEACH DRIVES IN WINNING RUN

With Bush on Third, Boehling Walks Cobb and Crawford to Get Veach—But

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—In the tenth inning of yesterday's game with the Athletics, one out and Bush on third, Boehling purposely passed Cobb and Crawford. Veach came through with a sharp single, and Bush scored. The run that gave Detroit its second straight victory over Washington today had a perfect day at bat with three singles and two passes in five innings. McBride was put out of the game before Washington took the field in the first inning for disheartening decision at first base. Washington—Detroit 3.

Weilman Beat Athletics.

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—After Philadelphia scored two runs in the opening session yesterday, St. Louis came back and by lurching five hits, two of them for extra bases with errors and base on balls, scored five runs and never headed. The home team winning making it two straight from the champions to 2.

White Sox Not Hitless.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Chicago evened the series with Boston yesterday by winning the second game of the series 3 to 2. The first two runs were scored by each team were scored by home hits. The winning run was scored in the seventh. Scott furnished Weaver's grounder and Blackburn scored. Singles by J. Collins and Weaver. Waver, Benz held the bases to five hits, while R. Collins got hard.

Ivers Leads Local Hitters

The regulars in the Red Sox lineup, that is the regular hitters, continue to sustain a fairly good average but those who haven't been hitting haven't started yet.

Ivers is in the same position as he was a week ago, while Deneau has dropped a few points. Biddy Burns climbed up near the 200 mark.

The following averages include the last game played:

Once Giant, Now Leader of Red, is Given Great Ovation.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Charles Herzog, former third baseman of the New York team, made his first appearance yesterday on the Polo Grounds as manager of the Cincinnati team and received a great ovation, though rain held the crowd down.

His team was easily shut out by the champions by a score of 6 to 0. Marquard held the visitors to five scattered hits and not a Cincinnati player reached third. Cincinnati fielded poorly. The score: Cincinnati 0; New York 6.

BRAVES WIN LENGTHY GAME.

BOSTON, June 20.—Boston won from St. Louis, 7 to 5, in a game which lasted two hours and 47 minutes, a record for the season here.

The visitors developed a batting streak in the eighth and two home runs, a triple, and three singles added four tallies, overcoming Boston's lead.

In the last half of the inning, the home players drove Griner out of the box. Saltee, who relieved him, was wild, Boston getting four runs by three singles. Manager Huggins, of St. Louis, and Second Baseman Evers, of Boston, were put off the field for disputing decisions.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair.

Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly.

You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

First Lacrosse Game Played Next Saturday

Brantford is Practicing Hard For Opening Against London.

Just one week more before the local lacrosse team play their first league game of the season, and as all the boys have been attending practice regularly during the past month, they should be able to easily win their first home game when they meet the speedy London aggregation behind the dyke next Saturday afternoon.

The locals may be without the services of Frank Hearn and Angus Duncan for Saturday, as both are out of the city at the present time, although Manager Slattery has a couple of speedy youngsters trying out who will no doubt make some of the regulars hustle to retain their places before the season is very far advanced.

Pat Shannon, the stalwart goal keeper, will again be seen defending

A PROTEST. Sporting Editor, Courier.

Sir.—Will you kindly allow me, through the medium of your valuable paper, to pass some remarks for the benefit of the sporting public, re Protest S. O. E. against Duffs.

In the first place, according to the Constitution, the Secretary of the League must notify in writing the parties concerned, to attend meeting, to defend the case. This he did not do.

He has on several occasions failed to do so. I consider in fairness to the Duffs that as the Referee was not present and only witnesses of the S.

Scout Notes

Boy scout officers will attend St. Andrews training camp at Toronto from the following troops: Headquarters, Grace, Trinity and Brant Avenue.

Local scouts are showing up in good shape for the annual camp from 20th to 30th of July. Headquarters and Grace Church troops met on Thursday for their joint practice preparing for the garden party at Mohawk Villa.

Life saving, master at arms and red cross work was gone through.

The Canadian National Exhibition will be the meet-up of all scouts this year, and an endeavor will be made for at least 150 scouts from the local contingent to attend.

The scout, Turner, of the Y. M. C. A. troop, is the latest scout who has been struck by the wireless craze. He is making good progress with his installation.

The scouts are running a program for Fraternal Day Old Home Week—they will head the parade on this occasion and will have a mounted marshal to direct them.

Paris News

(From Our Own Correspondent) PARIS, June 20.—All that was mortal of the late Mitchell Ryan, were laid to rest yesterday morning in the Roman Catholic Cemetery, the funeral being largely attended.

Mr. Ryan was well known in town, having spent most of his life here. He held many important positions, at one time he sat in the cabinet, being deputy reeve and Reeve for a number of years, and also held an office in the Agricultural Society. Mr. Ryan was also a great orator and bowler and a staunch Reformer. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives in this their hour of trial, as it was only last December, when his brother, James, passed away.

The members of the Paris Football team object to being placed number five on the list. Their standing is really number three and the figures are as follows:

NEWS FROM ENGLAND, IRELAND, SCOTLAND, WALES

Lonely Old Man's Plight
William Kattery, an old age pensioner, living alone at Richhill, county Armagh, was missed by his neighbors. On forcibly entering his house they found him unconscious on a paralytic stroke, and had been evidently lying there a whole day and night before being discovered.

A Price for His Head.
Patrick Maguire, an inmate of the Balrothery Union, who has just been given his discharge in order that he may seek employment outside, fought in the American Civil War under General Grant, and during service sustained a deep indented wound in the forehead. How he survived puzzled the doctors, and it is stated that one medical man became so interested that he offered Maguire 75,000, for permission to take his head after death in the interests of science.

Over Cliff to Save Dog.
The Penarth police effected the rescue of a spaniel dog which had fallen over the cliffs at Penarth, and had secured a foothold forty feet from the summit. Sergeant Lewis and Police Constables Davies and Humphries formed the rescue party, the constables in turn being lowered over the edge of the cliff with a rope fastened beneath their arms. Humphries secured the dog, and together policeman and dog were hauled up the cliff, which at this spot is almost perpendicular.

In Fear of Tramps.
Mr. P. Harding Roberts, clerk of the Holywell Board of Guardians, appeared before the Holywell magistrates and explained the scheme for relief stations for vagrants, which had been adopted by the unions of North Wales. He asked the Bench to commit to prison any vagrants brought before them for begging, as there was now no necessity for any man on the road to beg. Mr. Samuel Jones (one of the magistrates) said many of the farmers in the country assisted these tramps because they were in fear of them.

Grand National Winners on View.
Sir Charles Ashton-Smith has invited the quartermen at Dinorwic quarries with their wives to Vaynol Park, where three Grand National winners—Jerry M. Covertcoat and Sunlock—will be on view.

Postman Walked 126,000 Miles.
At Llanceny Mr. John Townsend, Crickhowell, who for over forty-one years carried the post from Crickhowell to Llanceny was presented by the parishioners with a gold watch on his retirement from the postal service. Mr. Beckwith, J.P., said that Townsend had travelled over 126,000 miles during his period of office.

Foundering of Open Mail Boat.
Three Whalsay men were lost through the foundering of an open boat when conveying mails from the mainland to Whalsay and two of the widows raised an action for compensation against the North of Scotland, Orkney, and Shetland Steam Navigation Company whose vessel, the Earl of Zetland usually carries mails under contract but was then withdrawn from service for survey.

Scots Boy's Adventure.
An adventurous fourteen-year-old Scots lad named Dickson having run away from home with money taken from his mother's purse in order to join the Navy was found over for six months by the Sittingbourne Bench, where he appeared for appropriating a bicycle from outside a public house there. He was found exhausted in a field while on his way to London.

Farm for Small Holdings.
For the purpose of erecting small holdings the Holland (Lincolnshire) Comby Council, at its meeting at Spalding on Tuesday, decided to purchase from Lord Lincolnshire a farm at Deeping St. Nicholas, for £13,000. The council also agreed to spend nearly £4,000 in adapting them. Spalding St. Nicholas is a village four and a half miles south-west of Spalding.

New Battleship Commissioned.
The new battleship Marlborough was commissioned at Devonport on Tuesday as the flagship of the First Battle Squadron. She will fly the flag of Vice-Admiral Lewis Bayly, who on June 22 will relieve Vice-Admiral Sir Colville in commanding the squadron. Lady Gwendoline Churchill presented to the ship an autograph letter from the great Duke of Marlborough.

Dangerous "Slap-Bangs."
While engaged in the manufacture of small explosives, commonly called "slap-bangs," a woman named Kate Eaves of Dublin, received serious injuries. Some of the gunpowder which the woman was using in her work suddenly exploded. She was conveyed to hospital. Following upon the explosion some articles in the premises took fire.

Hotel Maid's Quarrel.
Mary O'Connor summoned Margaret Mathews at South Dublin Police Court for assault and damages for injury to a dress, the parties being waitress and housemaid respectively at a private hotel in Harcourt-street. A fine of 10s. and costs was imposed.

Complainant stated that on coming from a walk into the kitchen she was given a chair by Pat, the hall-porter. This attention seemed to annoy the housemaid, who gave witness a black eye and damaged her dress.
Illicit Distilling in the Highlands.
Smuggling appears still to continue in the Highlands. The Excise officers just recently discovered in the district of Kintail a new smuggling still and head hidden in a cairn between the fishing village of Bandalloch and Camushnie.

Scene at a Cock Fight.
Patrick Bryne, Tinakilly and Jas. Merrigan, Milton South, were at Wicklow petty sessions convicted of cruelty in ill-treating cocks by causing them to fight. They were allowed off on their own recognizances of £10 each. Proceedings against 22 others for assisting at the alleged fight were dropped. Constable Healy said that with the aid of field glasses he identified about 26 out of a crowd of some 80 persons whom he saw present at the affair. When he had the twenty-six names taken, down a stick on which he was standing he broke down, making a noise, and the crowd scattered. He told them they need not run as he had their names, but at that they ran the faster. (Laughter).

Farmer Drowned.
An open verdict of "found drowned" was returned at an inquiry into the death of Montgomeryshire farmer, Mr. John Watkin Pritchard, Llandrino, whose partially dressed body was recovered from the river Yrwyw near "his house." Pritchard's sister said her brother had worked a great deal about money matters. A great many bills had been coming in, but they need not have depressed him as they appeared to have done.

Crow Devours Starling.
A gentleman was mowing the grass in his front garden in Desswood-place, Aberdeen, when he heard an unusual scream as if some bird were in pain. He then saw a crow holding fast a starling. The crow flew over the house on the opposite side of the street, carrying its poor victim with it. In a minute it came back into view again, and alighting on a chimney, with a triumphant "caw," proceeded to make a meal of the luckless starling.

A Gallant Postman.
Robert McCrae, a postman at Glasgow, effected a gallant rescue of James Baird, a boy of eight, who accidentally fell into the Clyde at a point near Millerfield-road, Dalmar-nock. McCrae, who was passing in the course of one of his deliveries, handed his bag to a boy and jumped into the water. He swam out, and secured the boy and brought him to the bank. McCrae, who resides at Rutherglen, afterwards continued the work of delivering letters.

Memorial to Actors.
On the site of the first Hastings theatre, where they performed, Sir Herbert Tree on Tuesday unveiled a memorial tablet to two actors of a century ago—Kean and Elliston.

Mistress and Irate Servant.
Annie Coomber, aged twenty-seven, was charged at Brighton on Tuesday with assaulting her mistress, Mrs. W. Hitchen, with hot pins. Mrs. Hitchen, who keeps a private hotel on the sea front, stated that the girl, who was shortly leaving her service, went out without permission on Bank holiday, taking another servant with her. On her return Mrs. Hitchen offered to pay the wages due if she would go. Coomber, it was stated, thereupon became angry, and in the course of the dispute she attempted to kick Mrs. Hitchen's daughter, but the blow fell upon her mistress. Coomber next took two batpins from her head and attacked Mrs. Hitchen, who was in injured in one hand. In her defence Coomber maintained that she was off duty when she went out. On returning the argument ensued, and Coomber alleged that when she was attacked by her mistress she only used the batpins in self-defence. The magistrate dismissed the case.

GRAND TRUNK WILL EXTEND "SAFETY FIRST" MOVEMENT THIS MONTH

The "Safety First" Movement, introduced on the Grand Trunk about one year ago, has been found, after a thorough test, to be such an effective means of preventing injuries to employees, patrons and others that it has been decided to extend the work to the Grand Trunk line.

Mr. Geo. Bradshaw, Safety Engineer, who has had charge of the work since its inception will extend the organization to the new system under the direction of Mr. Morley Donaldson, Vice-President and General Manager, who is sparing no effort to give employees and patrons of the System the benefit of every approved method of modern railroad operation.

The remarkable success of the Movement on the Grand Trunk has been due in large measure to the hearty co-operation of the employees who have become not only interested but really enthusiastic in carrying on the "safety campaign." There is a most commendable disposition prevailing on the part of employees to see how careful they can be in the discharge of their duties and to see which Division, Terminal or Shop can make the best safety record. There may have been a time on all roads when a careless act of an employee would attract little attention, unless perhaps to mark the man committing it as a "brave fellow," but that day has passed, especially on the Grand Trunk, and the employment of safety in doing his work is soon informed in no uncertain way by his fellow employees that the "Safety First" is the rule on this road. "Grand Trunk does not want to take unnecessary chances in the performance of their duties in the sake of saving time or for any reason."

The members of the Safety Committee, about six hundred in number, are so earnest in their efforts for the correction of unsafe conditions and practices that the file of the employees are imbued with the spirit and the purpose of the great Safety Movement. The employees are in effect "safety men." And the best about it is that it is a work that appeals to the highest instincts of men and they have entered into it in the least from compulsion. Cause there is no driving force, no harsh discipline, and they really want to help the movement make the Grand Trunk the safest road in the country, and to travel on it.

Josh Boynton has now got the reputation as Brantford's star angler. Josh refuses to state how many he caught but he will admit that no larger bass were ever hauled out of the Grand River.

The Ladies Aid of Wesley Methodist church held a talent tea on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lütich, Cockshutt road. A pleasing feature of the afternoon was a presentation to Mrs. Liddy of a beautiful hand-painted vase. An address was read by Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Donaldson made the presentation. Music was furnished during the afternoon by Master Jim Wedlake, Leslie Brown and Miss Dorothy Brown.

A jolly and most successful dance was held at the Brantford Golf and Country Club on Thursday evening—some 60 or 50 members participating. The married people present included the president, Mr. Fitton, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Waterous, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Mahon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Van Westrum, and Mr. and Mrs. Logan Waterous. Hot coffee and light refreshments were served at 10.15 and the return to town was made shortly after 11 by radial and motor. Over and above expenses, $15.85 was cleared, leaving a total still to be raised for the range fund, of $15.30—and the dance itself proved a most enjoyable affair.

Commencing to-day a new innovation will be started at the Brantford Golf and Country club, a 50c club dinner only will from then be furnished the members who wish to remain out for the evening meal following the weekly tea at the popular resort, thus doing away with the unromantic catering which has heretofore so handicapped the stewardess on Saturdays. This will be a welcome change to as through the week meals will be served as formerly, each member giving their individual order for the meal desired and club dinners being served only on Saturdays at present, until one sees how the experiment works out.

Nuptial Notes

HARTLEY—LAKE
A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. James Lake, 119 Albion street, when his eldest daughter, Ada Maude was united in marriage to Samuel Hartley of this city. The bride was given away by her father entering the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by the bride's sister, Miss Olive Lake. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Brown and took place in front of an arch of evergreens and orange blossoms. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty luncheon. Man beautiful presents were received by the bride showing the esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their many friends.

The happy couple will reside at 135 Terrace Hill street on their return from their honeymoon.
CRAIGIE—MACKAY
PARIS, June 19.—A quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian manse at 5 o'clock, when Rev. Mr. MacBeth united in marriage Miss Anna MacKay, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. MacKay of Durham, Ont., to Mr. Herbert (Bert) Craigie, youngest son of Mrs. Craigie of this town. The bride was married in her travelling suit of tan whip cord with a chic hat to match. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Craigie left on the 5.40 train for Buffalo and Toronto, where their wedding trip will be spent. Mr. and Mrs. Craigie will reside in Paris.

Shortly before leaving at the close of work on Wednesday afternoon, the fellow employees of Miss Anna MacKay in No. 3 finishing room, Penman, Limited, presented that young lady with a handsome embroidered table cloth and a dozen table napkins as a mark of their esteem and good wishes. The following address will explain itself:

Miss Anna MacKay, Paris:
Dear Anna—Having learned that you are about to leave us, we feel that we cannot allow you to go without some small gift of remembrance and ask you to accept this linen hoping that it will remind you of the time spent with us. We also wish you happiness and prosperity wherever you may be.
Signed on behalf of the girls, No. 3 Finishing Room.

Miss MacKay, while evidently taken by surprise, expressed her appreciation in a few neat words.

Women's Institute

Onondaga's Women's Institute held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. A. W. Vansickle on Wednesday June 17th. The day being fine, a large number were present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. M. N. Simmon, the vice-president, Mrs. Vansickle took the chair and asked to be relieved on account of hostess duties. Mrs. K. J. McMullen was asked to preside. The meeting opened by singing The Maple Leaf, after which the roll call was answered by "favorite quotations." The programme consisted of vocal music by Mrs. Thomson of Brantford, and instrumentals by Miss Vera Allan. These were much enjoyed by all. The delegate, Miss Emily then gave a splendid talk on Home Nursing and also a demonstration of bandaging, which was very much appreciated. Then ladies decided to hold a strawberry festival on the 30th of June. The programme will be supplied by Mr. Easton of Grimby and Messrs. Greenwood and Sanderson of Brantford. A vote of thanks was tendered to the entertainers of the afternoon and also Mrs. Vansickle for the use of her home.

The meeting closed with National Anthem after which dainty refreshments were served.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright 1913 by W. G. Chapman.

Finally it occurred to him to look up, and there above him he saw through a round opening a tiny circular patch of starry sky. Feeling up along the sides of the shaft as far as he could reach, the ape-man discovered that so much of the wall as he could feel converged toward the center of the shaft as it rose. This fact precluded possibility of escape in that direction.

As he sat speculating on the nature and uses of this strange passage and its terminal shaft, the moon shone through the opening above, letting a flood of soft, silvery light into the shadowy place. Instantly the nature of the shaft became apparent to Tarzan, for far below him he saw the shimmering surface of water. He had come upon an ancient well, and what was the purpose of the connection between the well and the dungeon in which he had been hidden?

As the moon crossed the opening of the shaft its light flooded the whole interior, and then Tarzan saw directly across the shaft another opening in the opposite wall. He wondered if it might not be the mouth of a passage leading to possible escape. It would be worth investigating at least, and this he determined to do.

Quickly returning to the wall he had demolished to explore what lay beyond it, he carried the stones into the passageway and replaced them on that side. The deep deposits of dust which he had noticed upon the blocks as he had first removed them from the wall had convinced him that even if the present occupants of the ancient pile had knowledge of this hidden passage they had made no use of it for perhaps generations.

The wall replaced, Tarzan returned to the shaft, which was some fifteen feet wide at this point. To leap across the intervening space was a small matter to the ape-man, and a moment later he was proceeding along a narrow, dimly lit, morning cautiously for fear of being precipitated into another shaft such as he had just crossed.

He had advanced some hundred feet when he came to a flight of steps leading downward into the Stygian gloom. Some fifty feet below the level floor of the tunnel recommenced, and shortly afterward his progress was stopped by a heavy wooden door, which was secured by massive wooden bars upon the side of Tarzan's approach. This fact suggested to the ape-man that he doubtless was in a passageway leading to the treasure chamber, barring progress from the opposite side, tended to substantiate this hypothesis unless it were merely a prison to which it led.

Along the tops of the bars were deep layers of dust, a further indication that the passage had lain long unused. As he pushed the massive obstacle aside its great hinges shrieked out in weird protest against this unaccustomed disturbance. For a moment Tarzan paused to listen for any responsive note which might indicate that the unusual night noise had alarmed the inmates of the temple. But this he heard nothing he advanced beyond the doorway.

Carefully feeling about, he found himself within a large chamber, along the walls of which and down the length of the floor were piled many tiers of metal ingots of an odd though uniform shape. To his groping hands they felt not unlike double-headed bootjacks. The ingots were quite heavy, and but for the enormous number of them he would have been positive that they were gold. But the thought of the fabulous wealth these thousands of pounds of metal would have represented were they in reality gold almost convinced him that they must be of some baser metal.

At the far end of the chamber he discovered another barred door and the hope was renewed that he was traversing an ancient and forgotten passageway to liberty. Beyond the door the passage ran straight as a war spear, and it soon became evident to the ape-man that it had already led him beyond the outer walls of the temple. If he but knew the direction it was leading him! If toward the west, then he must also be beyond the city's outer walls.

With increasing hopes he forged ahead as rapidly as he dared until at the end of half an hour he came to another flight of steps leading upward. At the bottom this flight was of concrete, but as he ascended his naked feet felt a sudden change in the substance they were treading. The steps of concrete had given place to steps of granite. Feeling with his hands, the ape-man discovered that these latter were evidently hewn from rock, for there was no crack to indicate a joint.

For 100 feet the steps wound spirally up, until at a sudden turning Tarzan came into a narrow cleft between two rocky walls. Above him shone the starry sky and before him a steep incline replaced the steps that had terminated at its foot. Up this pathway Tarzan hastened and at its upper end came out upon the rough top of a huge granite bowlder.

A mile away lay the ruined city of Opar, its domes and turrets bathed in the soft light of the crescent moon. Tarzan dropped his eyes to the ingot he had brought away with him. For a moment he examined it by the moon's bright rays, then he raised his head to look out upon the ancient piles of crumbling grandeur in the distance. "Opar," he mused, "par the enchanted city of dead and forgotten past. The city of the beauties and the beasts. City of horrors and deaths, but—city of fabulous riches." The ingot was of virgin gold.

The bowlder on which Tarzan found himself lay well out in the plain between the city and the distant cliffs and his black warriors had seated the morning previous. To descend its rough and precipitous face was a task of infinite labor and considerable peril even to the ape-man, but at last he felt the soft soil of the valley beneath his feet, and without a backward glance at Opar he turned his face toward the guardian cliffs and at a rapid trot set off across the valley.

The sun was just rising as he gained the summit of the flat mountain at the valley's western boundary. Far beneath him he saw smoke rising above the treetops of the forest at the base of the foothills.

"Man," he murmured. "And there were fifty who went forth to track me down. Can it be they?"

Swiftly he descended the face of the cliff and, dropping into a narrow ravine which led down to the dry forest, he hastened onward in the direction of the smoke. Striking the forest's edge about a quarter of a mile from the point at which the slender column arose into the still air, he took to the trees. Cautiously he approached until there suddenly burst upon his view a rude boma, in the center of which, squatted about their tiny fires, sat his fifty black Waziri. He called to them in their own tongue, "Azise, my children, and greet your kins!"

With exclamations of surprise and fear the warriors leaped to their feet, scarcely knowing whether to flee or not. Then Tarzan dropped lightly from an overhanging branch into their midst. When they realized that it was indeed their chief in the flesh and no materialized spirit, they went mad with joy.

"We were cowards, oh Waziri," cried Bunsul. "We ran away and left you to your fate; but when our panic was over we swore to return and save you, or at least take revenge upon your murderers. We were but now preparing to scale the heights once more and cross the desolate valley to the terrible city."

"Have you seen fifty frightful men pass down from the cliffs into this forest, my children?" asked Tarzan.

"Yes, Waziri," replied Bunsul. "They passed us late yesterday as we were about to turn back after you. They had no woodcraft. We heard them coping for a mile before we saw them, and as we had other business in hand we withdrew into the forest and let them pass. They were waddling rapidly along upon short legs, and then one would go on all fours like Boigani, the gorilla. They were indeed fifty frightful men, Waziri."

When Tarzan had related his adventures and told them of the yellow metal at he had found not one demurred when he outlined a plan to return by night and bring away what they could carry of the vast treasure, and so it was that as dusk fell across the desolate valley of Opar fifty ebony warriors trailed at a smart trot over the dry and dusty ground toward the giant bowlder that loomed before the city.

If it had seemed a difficult task to descend the face of the bowlder Tarzan soon found that it would be next to impossible to get his fifty warriors to the summit. Finally the feat was accomplished by dint of Herculean efforts upon the part of the ape-man. Ten spears were fastened end to end, and with one end of this remarkable chain attached to his waist Tarzan at last succeeded in reaching the summit.

Once there he drew up one of his blocks, and in this way the entire party was finally landed in safety upon the bowlder's top. Immediately Tarzan led them to the treasure chamber, where to each was allotted a load of two ingots, for each about eighty pounds.

By midnight the entire party stood once more at the foot of the bowlder, but with their heavy loads it was mid-forenoon ere they reached the summit of the cliffs. From there on the homeward journey was slow, as these proud fighting men were unaccustomed to the duties of porters. But they bore their burdens uncomplainingly and at the end of thirty days entered their own country.

Here, instead of continuing on toward the northwest and their village, Tarzan guided them almost directly west until on the morning of the thirty-third day he bade them break camp and return to their own village, leaving the gold where they had stacked it the previous night.

"And you, Waziri?" they asked. "I shall remain here for a few days, my children," he replied. "I must go back to your wives and children." When they had gone Tarzan gazed over two of the ingots and, springing into a tree, ran lightly above the tangled and impenetrable mass of undergrowth for a couple of hundred yards to emerge suddenly upon a peculiar clearing about which the glimmer of the jungle forest towered like a guardian host. In the center of this natural amphitheater was a little, flat-topped mound of hard earth.

"SUWANEE RIVER" IN SONG BOOK

The popularity of "Suwanee River" dates back to the time when Christina Nilsson, the fair haired daughter of a farmer near Wexio, Sweden, surprised all who heard her with the sweetness and compass of her voice as she sang Foster's plaintive melody. She was an accomplished player on the flute and violin and she made her debut at the early age of 17 at Stockholm. Like many of the famous prima donnas, the opera chosen for her appearance was "La Traviata." She made a concert tour of the United States and sang many years in Italian opera. At her farewell concert given in London her voice was exquisite in its purity and sweetness and evenness of tone, having a compass of three octaves, an exceptional range. In America she will be known and long remembered for her singing of "Suwanee River" in the height of her success and operatic triumphs. She was the acknowledged incomparable artist of her times. This beautiful song, and many others sung by Nilsson, are to be found in "Heart Songs" now offered by The Courier who will find the terms given in the coupon published on another page of to-day's issue.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

CREATION'S DRAMA OPENS IN LONDON

Royal Welcome Extended in Princess Theater.

PASTOR RUSSELL IS PRESENT

In Discourse He Explained How to Enter the School of Christ—Meekness the Primary Lesson—Then Comes Humility—Next Comes Gentleness, Patience, Long-Suffering, Brotherly-Kindness and Love—Methods of Instruction—Two Classes Soon to be Graduated—Disposal of the Finally Incurable—The Future Service of the Successful Classes.

London, June 14.—Pastor Russell is here, and in the Princess Theater he presented his famous Photo-Drama of Creation, a royal welcome. This was the opening exhibition of a program on this side of the Atlantic which includes the principal cities of both the East and West.

Great Britain and the Princess Theater. The Pastor Russell is here, and in the Princess Theater he presented his famous Photo-Drama of Creation, a royal welcome. This was the opening exhibition of a program on this side of the Atlantic which includes the principal cities of both the East and West.

The Pastor began his discourse with the statement that there is only one way by which to get rid of one's sins—belief in the Lord Jesus Christ. But mere intellectual belief, he declared, does not accomplish this result. The Bible says that devils believe, and tremble. They are not justified by their believing. Neither are we justified by merely believing. We must do something more. The believer who acts on his belief, and who shows that he really means what he says, will make a full confession of himself to God. From the standpoint of the Scriptures a believer is a disciple, a follower, a pupil.

The Pastor went on to demonstrate that the School of Christ is not open to everybody. The whole world of mankind are not in the School of Christ, with some taking more lessons and others fewer. There is one definite way of entering this School and becoming a pupil of the Great Master Teacher. Here are the terms in His own words: "If any man will come after Me (become My disciple, pupil), let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." Only those who present their bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God through the merit of the Redeemer imputed to them and received by faith, are enrolled in the School of Christ. In other words, only the members of the Church which is the Body of Christ are in His School, being taught of God through His Word.

Addressing the Church, St. Paul says, "We are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus, unto good works, which He has prepared for us by His providences and by His Word of Truth, working in us by our experiences, which He has made for us, and by the opportunities which He gives us. All these things are designed by the Lord to bless us and to develop us into His own character, likeness, as His Gospel says, 'For we are like unto our Father in Heaven—that we may be holy, even as He is holy—that our intentions, our aims and our actions may be exactly like those of God.'

The Pastor reminded his audience that when a child enters school for the first time, he is scarcely put himself into the hands of his teacher for instruction. It requires years of patient training and study before he can be said to have an education, and still more instruction before he can become a teacher himself. This, he said, is exactly the picture which God gives us in respect to the Church. During the time that he has invited the Church class to enter the School of Christ and prepare for the great work of human uplift during the incoming Age.

The Royal Priesthood will all be teachers. Under the Jewish arrangement the priests were all teachers, instructors of the people, helping them in every way in respect to morals. The Royal Priests will also have authority to rule the world for its good. None but those whom God can entrust with this great power will be qualified to use it to uplift the world.

The Pastor then explained that those enrolled in the School of Christ are taught a great variety of lessons. The first of these is meekness—teachableness. None will be qualified for the great work of the future who has not been thoroughly taught this valuable lesson. He declared that there is probably a greater lack along the line of teachableness than along any other line. The conceit and self-will are qualities which prevent their possessors from being teachable—meek.

Those who are good pupils in the School of Christ will hear the Master's voice instructing them that of themselves they are nothing and can do nothing; that they need His assistance all along the way; that they need first of all to be taught of God—through the great Teacher whom the Father has appointed to give them instruction. Through His prophecies and through His Word He teaches all who are in His School. The voice of Jesus comes to all His pupils, speaking to them through the Scriptures and the various experiences of life.

Those consecrated children of God who have not learned the lesson of meekness, will not be able to enter the primary lesson. Whoever says, "Lord, I want my own way; this is what I prefer and what I intend to do," is not in the class. He cannot make progress in spiritual things. The Lord will not force such to do His way; during this Age He is not seeking those who must be forced to do His will. He will be forced on those who need it during the next Age.

Throughout the Gospel Age the call has been for those who declare in their covenant that they desire to do the will of God, and who will sacrifice their lives in order to do that will. After they have made this contract with Him, and He has accepted them and sealed the contract by giving them the earnest of the Holy Spirit, they are bound to abide their agreement. They must either go on to everlasting life or perish in the Second Death.

The Pastor said for some time upon the subject of meekness. Some people, he declared, find this a difficult lesson to learn. But things are easier when we are guided by the Lord, who is naturally very meek and teachable usually has disadvantages in other ways. People will impose upon him; for they are not disposed to respect the meek, as we all know. The man with a great deal of self-esteem and only a little meekness will have his difficulty in coming under the hand of the Lord. The speaker reminded his hearers that the Lord will have his own way, but he will have his difficulty in coming under the hand of the Lord. The speaker reminded his hearers that the Lord will have his own way, but he will have his difficulty in coming under the hand of the Lord.

will serve Him by rendering assistance to the Kingdom class. Under another figure these classes are designated in Psalm 45 as "the King's daughter" and "the virgins, her companions that follow her." The speaker next showed why there are to be these two classes and what has made the difference between them. The first class is constituted of those pupils that are so intent upon learning their lessons and of being graduated with honors that they not only study carefully their text book, the Word of God, but they watch the Lord's eye as it were, bent upon seeing what is His will concerning them. To those He has given the precious promise, "I will guide thee with Mine eye." Their reply is, "As the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their master, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress, so our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until He have mercy upon us."—Psalm 123.

The thought is that this class are all attention to see what they can do for the Lord, watching to see what He wishes them to do, and do not wait until He disciplines them severely. This Little Flock class will be composed of such as are guided by the Lord, such as are so anxious to do His will, so alert, so willing, to do anything they can do at any time. He is neither to be disappointed in season, out of season," to themselves. Those who possess this spirit will be of the first class to be graduated from the School of Christ.

The second class to be graduated will be very large in number, the Pastor said. It will consist of those who are not so anxious to do things. In figurative language, they are inclined to play during study hours and to forget the rules. Yet they are neither bad nor good. They are well-intentioned pupils, but somehow they do not properly study their lessons. They are inclined to study a little, then play a little, then study a little more, etc. These pupils require to be "kept in" after school frequently, and occasionally need a little switching. But they finally finish their course and are graduated.

Dropping the figure of the school-room, the Pastor discussed this second class. "What shall we do," he declared, will not be on the Throne, as will the Little Flock class. Instead of wearing golden crowns, this Great Company will have palm branches in their hands; instead of receiving the Divine nature, they will be of a spirit nature like unto the angels. But their conditions will be very blessed for anything. The Master has to give will be good.

This class, the speaker said, will be composed of very good people, well-meaning people, but they are not up to the standard which the Lord desires for the Kingdom class. Whoever would be of the highest class should see to it that he reaches that standard. Those who will get the first place are those who catch the spirit of the Master and are loyal to Him and His cause, thus proving themselves to be worthy of His love. As He has said, "He that loveth father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me. And he that taketh up his cross and followeth after Me, is not worthy of Me."

The Pastor then declared that according to the Scriptures we are on the eve of a great change or dispensation, that the One who redeemed the world is about to take His great power and reign. Those pupils in the School of Christ who are most attentive to the Master's voice speaking through the Word of God are hearing wonderful things pertaining to the Plan of Salvation. Those who are obedient to what they hear are getting a clearer understanding in proportion to their obedience. Those who are inattentive and those who refuse to hear will not understand, but will surely suffer in the coming Time of Trouble—"such as never was since there was a nation"; "no, nor ever shall be."

By way of conclusion, the Pastor exhorted all consecrated Christians to greater earnestness in striving to make their calling and election sure. He reminded such that they were not called merely to make a consecration, but to enter the School of Christ, to learn the Master's will, to be developed in heart and mind and in every way qualified to be with the Lord and to share with Him in His glory, honor and immortality.

To accomplish this result, they must receive chiseling and polishing before they are fit to be used. After experience, after trial after trial, they must be as they are rightly exercised by this discipline the blessed result will be character-likeness to our dear Redeemer, who as New Creature was also "perfected by the things which He suffered." With all such who are faithful to their Lord the experience of life will develop meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly-kindness and love. And thus, having finished their course in the School of Christ, they shall be ministered unto them an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

A Shipwreck.

Muggins, gazing intently at a dead dog, in a resigned tone at last said: "Here is another shipwreck!" "Shipwreck? Where?" blurted out Juggins. "Where, my dear friend?" quoted M. "There is a bark lost forever." Juggins growled and passed on.

"Broken?" Statuette Solid Gold.

While in Rome recently an Aberdeen tradesman named Sunderland purchased from a hawker a statuette of a Roman soldier five inches high, for $2.50. It was thought to be genuine, but examination now shows it to be solid gold.

Two Points of View.

"I can't understand," he said, "how a man can let his wife and children go away for months while he remains at home."

"I can't understand how a man can't," he replied.

Lesson XII.—Second Quarter,
For June 21, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark x, 17-31. Memory Verses, 25-27—Golden Text, Luke xvi, 13—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our lessons for many weeks have been found only in Luke's gospel, but now we have one recorded with nearly equal fullness in Matthew, Mark and Luke. Why the committee should turn to Mark instead of Luke I cannot tell, but we will look at the harmony of the three records. The preceding passage concerning the little children is also found in these three gospels, but a little more fully in Mark, for he tells us that Jesus was much displeased with His disciples and also that He took the children up in His arms and blessed them (Mark x, 14, 16). Both Matthew and Mark say that He put His hands upon them. We shall not misunderstand the lesson of today concerning the rich young ruler unless we get first that main thought concerning the children.

If the number of times that an event is recorded gives an idea of its importance these two items concerning children and the young man must be of special importance and those recorded in each of the four gospels of still greater importance. The other records of this lesson are in Matt. xix, 16-30; Luke xviii, 15-30. Mark alone tells us that Jesus had gone forth into the way and that the young man came running and knelt to Him. As in the case of Zaccheus, he was certainly in earnest and had no thought of his dignity as a rich man, for he ran and knelt upon the road. The next item is nearly the same in each record. "Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" as is also our Lord's reply: "Why callest thou Me good? There is none good but one; that is God. If to this young man Jesus was God, then he declared, will not be on the Throne, as will the Little Flock class. Instead of wearing golden crowns, this Great Company will have palm branches in their hands; instead of receiving the Divine nature, they will be of a spirit nature like unto the angels. But their conditions will be very blessed for anything. The Master has to give will be good.

The young man's question reminds us of another under different circumstances. "What shall we do that we might work the words of God?" (John vi, 28.) Our Lord brought the young man face to face with the commandments with the desire to convince him of sin, that He might bestow upon him freely the eternal life which he seemed to be seeking so earnestly, but he did not see himself as a sinner and thought that he had kept all the commandments from his youth up. The heart of our Lord went out gently to him, and Mark says that "Jesus, beholding him, loved him" (verse 21). Because He loved him He sought still further to convince him of sin, and by asking him to sell all he had and give to the poor he would show him that instead of keeping all the commandments he was continually breaking the first one by thinking more of his earthly possessions than of God, who gave them to him, and that while he seemed to want life eternal he really wanted his present possessions more than treasure in heaven and his present life in a mortal body was more to him than the life beyond. Only in Mark do we find that Jesus said to him, "Take up the cross."

The cross means dying to self and wealth and all that comes between us and God, and his present life in a mortal body was more to him than the life beyond. Only in Mark do we find that Jesus said to him, "Take up the cross."

The cross means dying to self and wealth and all that comes between us and God, and his present life in a mortal body was more to him than the life beyond. Only in Mark do we find that Jesus said to him, "Take up the cross."

Not many congregations or ministers or sessions or committees would deal in this way with a rich moral young man today. Many would be only too glad to receive him and be careful not to ask him too many questions for fear of offending him. Some would be glad to take him in for the sake of his wealth and influence and ask him no questions. But our Lord saw the value of his soul rather than all else and never sought wealth or favor from any one. He came to give, not to receive, and the only way to obtain eternal life is to come empty, helpless, believing, and receive the Lord Jesus, in whose alone is life, as the free gift of God to every truly seeking soul (John 1, 12; III, 16, 17; IV, 24; VI, 47; Rom. III, 24; VI, 23; John III, 11, 12). It is impossible to obtain it by works or wealth (Rom. IV, 5; Ps. xlix, 6, 7).

It is next to impossible for a self righteous or wealthy person to obtain eternal life, for it is so difficult for such to see or realize the need or emptiness in reference to things eternal. Yet Zaccheus was a rich man, and the son of Tarsus was a self righteous man, and both became truly saved. "With God all things are possible."

Peter now comes to the front by saying: "Behold, we have forsaken all and followed Thee. What shall we have therefore?" Matthew, Mark and Luke each record the reply concerning the hundredfold now and in the world to come life. In Mark it reads, "For my sake and the gospel's," but in Luke "for the kingdom of God's sake." The gospel life is the way to the kingdom, so it is virtually the same. Mark also adds "with persecutions," and if we are wholly for God in this present time we will find it true that "all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (II Tim. III, 12). In Matthew only do we find mention of the twelve thrones for the twelve apostles, but Luke records the same on a later occasion (Lu. xxii, 30).

"MY ONLY MEDICINE"

Says Mrs. Corbett, Are "Fruit-a-lives" "They Keep Me in Perfect Health"

Mrs. ANNIE A. CORBETT
AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913.

"I have used 'Fruit-a-lives' for indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I am highly pleased with 'Fruit-a-lives' and am not ashamed to have the facts published to the world. When I first started, about six years ago, to use them, I took four for a dose, but I cured myself of the above troubles and gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking 'Fruit-a-lives' I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the disease as from these treatments.

Finally, I saw 'Fruit-a-lives' advertised with a letter in which someone recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory and I have no hesitation in recommending them to any other person. They have done me a world of good. I get satisfaction from them, and that is quite a lot!"

ENGLAND'S DECLINE IN THE TIDE OF IMMIGRATION

Statistics to Show That Since the Passing of the Aliens Act the Influx of Foreigners Has Been Greatly Modified.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. ATTENTION was called by the writer of an article in "Police Court Reform" in the Times to the characteristic types of prisoners and public in some of the London police courts. Aliens were specially indicated. However, the alien danger is certainly not greater now than it has been for some years past, and in some respects the figures are reassuring. It does not need a long memory to recall the agitation led by the late Sir William Evans-Gordon, then member for Stepney, against the unrestricted admission of persons of all nationalities. At that time, some ten or twelve years ago, the immigration of these people, especially into the port of London, had reached alarming proportions. Their concentration in the East End was considered to be a menace to the British population there resident, and had led to overcrowding of the worst description. The British residents were being pushed out, and their places taken by people whose standard of living and of comfort was of an inferior type. In well informed quarters it was considered that this was what constituted the real danger, and not, as might be supposed from sporadic incidents, such as the running amok of criminal Russians and the Sidney street siege, the criminal tendencies of the population. Since the passing of the Aliens Act the situation has been considerably modified. During the eight years that the act has been in operation there has been an almost continuous decline in the volume of immigration into the port of London, especially as regards immigrants from Russia. In 1906, for example, the first year of the operation of the act, the number of Russian immigrants into London was 7,228 out of a total of 10,283. In 1910 it was 2,963 out of a total of 4,012, and in 1913 it was 3,569 out of a total of 5,450. The increase in 1913, which followed a steady decline for the previous seven years, is attributed to prosperous trade in this country, which encouraged the working class tailoring industry. This industry in the East End of London is at length being recognized and some steps have been taken to meet it both by English waiters themselves in the matter of organization and by classes instituted by the London County Council.

WARNS ENGLAND AGAINST GERMANY'S WAR MOVES

Army Officer, Once Imprisoned by Kaiser in Fortress for Espionage, Says British Nation Is Being Deluded by Smooth Words from Germany.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. THE danger to the British nation of being deluded by smooth words from Germany while she is unremittingly preparing for war is the subject of a vigorous article in the June number of the National Review by Captain Bertrand Stewart, the Yeomanry officer who was sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress for espionage, and who was most harshly treated by the Germans. He was released by Lieutenant Brandon and Captain Trench just a year ago by an act of clemency on the part of the Kaiser. "Captain Stewart begins by pointing out that many persons do not seem to realize that strong defensive services are the only bulwark of England's freedom and of legal justice throughout that kingdom and dominions. "Let us understand Germany's position," he says. "She has learned that the policy of open hostility to England, and the policy of the quill vive and because it strengthens the hands of those who urge that full preparations should be made to meet any German act of aggression. "Hence a show of friendliness has been assumed in the hope that she may obtain concessions from us, and that the British nation, with its proverbially short memory, will be lulled into a feeling of false security. "But what is really her present position as regards ourselves? There have been pleasant speeches by Prince Lichnowsky, meetings in London of influential men interested in peace, and besides these a direction to the Press Bureau to cease for the moment actively hostile articles concerning Great Britain. But has there been a reduction of one soldier or one sailor as a proof of this friendliness? "On the contrary! Her army has lately been greatly augmented, and her navy is steadily increasing as the result largely of wilfully fictitious and misleading propaganda, and an agitation has now been begun for still more ships. "If Germany answers us that these are maintained against France and Russia, we may reply that that danger existed before her change of attitude toward us. If the change of attitude indicated a real change of feeling toward England, it should have been accompanied by at least a decrease in the German navy. "The real attitude and the real aims of the German government remain the same. "Captain Stewart then shows how, in his opinion, the liberties of the British people are threatened by Germany, and proceeds: "Is not the preservation of the priceless blessings of freedom and justice for the millions under the King's sway a sacred trust which lies on all of us, men and women? If it is, we must realize that it depends, and depends only, on keeping ourselves strong enough to prevent Germany defeating us and then forcing her KAISER'S ARTISTIC TEMPERAMENT (Special Dispatch.) BERN, June 20. THE artistic activity of the Emperor finds another illustration in a plan and general design for a mineral water "rinkhille," which the committee of architects at Bad Homburg have just received from the palace at Berlin. The most notable part of the design concerns the inner arrangement of the building. Here the conception is strongly under the influence of that stern classicism of which the Emperor is notoriously fond, softened by a touch of Teutonic sentiment. The spring is made to overflow from a stately Greek altar, over which a pair of charming water nymphs are bending with outstretched hands, blessing the waters before their task of leading begins. Although plans, as such, are unobtainable, the Kaiser, they differ little from his original sketches. They have been perfected and amplified by one of the Kaiser's friends among the architectural community. They are included among a host of others inspired by an advertisement of the spa Committee announcing a general competition for a design for the new Kaiserbrunnen Spa, to be erected near the middle of the main avenue. Among earlier architectural projects of the Kaiser's which may be seen in Germany the Queen Augusta Victoria spring at Homburg is one of the most notable examples, whilst his collaboration in some of the features of the imposing William I. Memorial Church on the edge of the Tiergarten of Charlottenburg, has become almost proverbial.

SHOT BY A DEAD MAN.

(Special Dispatch.) GENEVA, June 20. A DEAD man killed a gendarme the other day at Willeg. The body of a young Swiss who had shot himself was found lying on the road, and some peasants who found it reported the case to the police. The body was left untouched, according to the regulations, until the arrival of the gendarme. A revolver was still grasped in the hand of the dead man, whose finger remained on the trigger. The gendarme, a man named Isobner, aged forty-five, with a family of seven children, attempted to remove the weapon, when it went off and a bullet passed through his stomach. Isobner died in a hospital a few hours later.

WOMEN CLERKS AND DOWRIES

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. THE scheme for providing marriage dowries for women clerks which was to have been discussed at the annual conference of the National Union of Clerks has had to be postponed until the next conference, as by its position on the agenda it proved to be out of order. The idea of marriage dowries for women clerks, your correspondent was informed by Mr. Walter Head, the editor of the Clerks' Gazette, is not a new one. Under the old rules any woman member of the union who had no claims on the funds for unemployment or sickness had twenty-five per cent of her contributions for benefits returned as a marriage dowry if she ceased to be a clerk. In 1902 the women themselves pronounced against the dowry and decided that they did not want petty bribes. The new dowrying dowries was therefore devised and it is not certain that the suggestion to provide dowries, when it comes up again, will be accepted. In the last census (1911) over 100,000 women gave their occupation as clerks

London Newspapers Print Columns of Interviews and Letters in Answer to Vicar Who Denounces Eccentricities of Fashion. (Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. THE London newspapers during the last two weeks have been waging a campaign against the exaggerated and so-called indecent styles in women's dress. They are devoting columns every day to letters from the clergy, the stage and men and women well known in the social world. The campaign received its impetus from the pulp of the Rev. Richard Free, vicar of St. Clement's, Fulham, and his remarks have brought forth a flood of letters, some of the writers defending his attitude, while others denounce him as a prude. One of the correspondents, a woman, who signs herself "Not a Prude," has this to say: "I entirely agree with the Rev. Richard Free and his other correspondents who call attention to the immodest dress of women in the present day. I am a woman, and certainly not a prude; I have a daughter and like to see her becomingly dressed, but I should blush with shame to see her attired as the majority of girls (and elderly and middle aged women, too) are at the present time. We see and hear of the most short that they cannot kneel in church or stoop to tie a shoe lace without exhibiting their limbs. "We see dresses in the day and in the evening cut so low that one longs to throw a shawl round the wearer. Surely, if that all go a step further, we may as well return to the habits of the ancient Britons, disperse with clothes and merely paint our skins! "Those in favor of immodest fashions would do well to study St. Paul's advice: 'That women adorn themselves with modest apparel with shamefacedness and sobriety.' I do not know about sobriety, but there is very little shamefacedness to be seen anywhere. "A Woman writes: "The most ardent supporter of the present day fashions cannot truthfully say that they are modest. The quotation, 'A lie that is half a lie,' &c., might well be applied to the up to date woman's dress in its semi-concealment of the female form. "It is needless to say that there is no delicacy or suggestiveness in the perfectly nude figure. Who can deny that there are both in the scantily clothed forms seen daily in the streets? Not much imagination is necessary to enable one to observe the effect of such scanty attire on the faces of youths just entering manhood. "St. Paul had a great deal to say on the subject of woman's dress, and he was a minister. When our first parents knew that they were naked they were ashamed. In these days we know it and are not. "As may be expected, the women of the stage defend the present day styles, and the views of two actresses are given here-with. "It is sheer nonsense," said Miss Ellaline Terrie, who is playing the lead in "Broadway Jones" at the Lyceum, "to decry the method of present day dressing. The dresses were never more charming. If we would go back to the Early Victorian style it would be perfectly absurd. If people are to use the imagination of the parochial school, they will see the form divine as well under a crinoline as through a divided skirt. Do not let us become absolutely hypocritical. We are bad enough already. Clergymen, like cobblers, should stick to their spiritual lasts and leave alone things about which many of them know little or nothing. "I am afraid that it will be an impossible task to please everybody in regard to women's fashions in dress," said Connie Edliss, who is appearing in "Not Liked" at the Alhambra. "After all, I do not see anything very terrible in a portion of a young woman's knee being revealed, es-

ALARMED OVER INDELICACY OF MODERN WOMEN'S DRESS

London Newspapers Print Columns of Interviews and Letters in Answer to Vicar Who Denounces Eccentricities of Fashion. (Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. One of the correspondents, a woman, who signs herself "Not a Prude," has this to say: "I entirely agree with the Rev. Richard Free and his other correspondents who call attention to the immodest dress of women in the present day. I am a woman, and certainly not a prude; I have a daughter and like to see her becomingly dressed, but I should blush with shame to see her attired as the majority of girls (and elderly and middle aged women, too) are at the present time. We see and hear of the most short that they cannot kneel in church or stoop to tie a shoe lace without exhibiting their limbs. "We see dresses in the day and in the evening cut so low that one longs to throw a shawl round the wearer. Surely, if that all go a step further, we may as well return to the habits of the ancient Britons, disperse with clothes and merely paint our skins! "Those in favor of immodest fashions would do well to study St. Paul's advice: 'That women adorn themselves with modest apparel with shamefacedness and sobriety.' I do not know about sobriety, but there is very little shamefacedness to be seen anywhere. "A Woman writes: "The most ardent supporter of the present day fashions cannot truthfully say that they are modest. The quotation, 'A lie that is half a lie,' &c., might well be applied to the up to date woman's dress in its semi-concealment of the female form. "It is needless to say that there is no delicacy or suggestiveness in the perfectly nude figure. Who can deny that there are both in the scantily clothed forms seen daily in the streets? Not much imagination is necessary to enable one to observe the effect of such scanty attire on the faces of youths just entering manhood. "St. Paul had a great deal to say on the subject of woman's dress, and he was a minister. When our first parents knew that they were naked they were ashamed. In these days we know it and are not. "As may be expected, the women of the stage defend the present day styles, and the views of two actresses are given here-with. "It is sheer nonsense," said Miss Ellaline Terrie, who is playing the lead in "Broadway Jones" at the Lyceum, "to decry the method of present day dressing. The dresses were never more charming. If we would go back to the Early Victorian style it would be perfectly absurd. If people are to use the imagination of the parochial school, they will see the form divine as well under a crinoline as through a divided skirt. Do not let us become absolutely hypocritical. We are bad enough already. Clergymen, like cobblers, should stick to their spiritual lasts and leave alone things about which many of them know little or nothing. "I am afraid that it will be an impossible task to please everybody in regard to women's fashions in dress," said Connie Edliss, who is appearing in "Not Liked" at the Alhambra. "After all, I do not see anything very terrible in a portion of a young woman's knee being revealed, especially if it is neatly stockinged; for we must all accept the fact that Nature has given women as well as men with her limbs. Some people seem to be as sensitive to changes of fashion as others are to changes of weather. If I were half as sensitive about the method of draping the human form divine I should certainly remain severely at home. But the eyes are got used to one style of dress or another, and it might be well to establish training colleges for prudeish people, so that their eyes could, gradually become trained to gaze without discomfort the occasional sight of a shapely foot or leg peeping between the edges of a divided skirt. "But of all the comments on the Rev. Richard Free's scathing denunciation of the indelicacy of modern women's dress, the one which has struck me most forcibly is that of a woman who has tried to find a reason for the eccentricities of fashion. A professor, however, advances the plea that woman should be blighted and not blamed for her follies of vanity, and that she are the outcome of heredity and the predatory instincts of primeval man. "Heretofore mankind has been greatly puzzled by these eccentric follies and peculiarities of the fair sex," says Professor Schlessinger, "the well known German scientific writer and psychological investigator. 'Sometimes they have given rise to hilarious mirth, and too often to even more unpleasant condemnation. But the poor things really can't help it, for scientific investigation has proved that all these peculiarities are connected with the origin of the human race, when we lived in caves and men acquired their wives by capture, while women did all the work. "The ideal of small women, for example, came from the fact that the smaller and weaker woman was much easier to manage in primitive times, when the swiftest men caught the most women and the swiftest and strongest women escaped the most men. That naturally bred a race from slow and weak women. "Why does a woman invariably turn backward when getting off a tram, or a trolley? It is because in primitive times she was stolen violently by some man and carried away thrown over his shoulder, with her face turned toward the cave from which she had been so rudely rescued. As a consequence woman's face is now always turned toward the place from which she came. "On these occasions, too, the women wore loose, easy sandals were able to run and avoid capture, while those who cramped their feet to keep them small were caught. Feeling the uselessness of tight footwear, man pretended to admire small feet and helped to perpetuate a race of half crippled women. That is why so many women torture themselves with tight shoes to-day. For the same reason woman now weeps at weddings because she remembers the time when all weddings were tragedies, and she always lingers unnecessarily long in dressing for the theatre because her prehistoric ancestor who loitered outside the family cave was always the one caught by the wife hunter. "In spite of civilization woman is still the primitive cave dweller in her dress and adornments and many of her customs. Feathers, plait, and beads are the masses of metal and stone called jewelry with which she loves to bedeck herself all help the student of history to make a diagnosis of the savage. "This reversion of type to the primitive characteristics of the cave dweller is more marked than it has been in several generations. It is largely due, I fancy, to a reaction from the strain of a too rapidly developed civilization, with its attendant tyrannies of culture and refinement. How long it may continue before it is checked, not even science can determine. It will be soon, however, for the most deplorable throwback of all as a result of the wave of reaction, the militant suffragette. She seems to be a reproduction of the short haired woman of the Stone Age who escaped capture and spent her days throwing stones at her buxier sister, wrangling with her fellows about the justice of man. And her only weapons of warfare to-day are still the club and the hatchet."

WOMEN CLERKS AND DOWRIES

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, June 20. THE scheme for providing marriage dowries for women clerks which was to have been discussed at the annual conference of the National Union of Clerks has had to be postponed until the next conference, as by its position on the agenda it proved to be out of order. The idea of marriage dowries for women clerks, your correspondent was informed by Mr. Walter Head, the editor of the Clerks' Gazette, is not a new one. Under the old rules any woman member of the union who had no claims on the funds for unemployment or sickness had twenty-five per cent of her contributions for benefits returned as a marriage dowry if she ceased to be a clerk. In 1902 the women themselves pronounced against the dowry and decided that they did not want petty bribes. The new dowrying dowries was therefore devised and it is not certain that the suggestion to provide dowries, when it comes up again, will be accepted. In the last census (1911) over 100,000 women gave their occupation as clerks
