HOW GOOD FRIENDS PART

A pleasant surprise was accorded Mr and Mrs H. D. Wing by a gather ing of friends and neighbors at the home of Mr and Mrs Alex. Taylor on Thursday last, where the genial com pany were invited for a Thanksgiving ner. Mr Wing, as will be rem bered, having sold his farm on Hard Island, will, accompanied by his wife, soon leave to spend a part of the winter at least at Rhode Island and Boston, Mass.

After partaking of the whole-hearte hospitality of their host and hostes which was greatly enjoyed by all, th object of the occasion was proceede with and the following address read:-

To Mr and Mrs H. D. Wing. Dear Friends,—We, a few of you friends and neighbors, have assemble on the eve of your departure for th purpose of enjoying once more, whe we have so often enjoyed before, a fe pleasant hours with you in our midst Though our hearts are glad that yo are thus enabled to retire from th more active concerns of life and enjo well earned rest, we sincerely regre that in doing so you are to be separate from us, at least for a season. Thi thought causes us to look back an recall our many pleasant associations of the past, not only of a social character but also as we, with united effort, hav wrought to accomplish some goo purpose, where we find your presence was always reliable, your assigned portion cheerfully forthcoming, and eventually, your part well done, and the silent influence of your lives ha largely been in harmony with th spirit of "Peace on earth and good will to all men." Nor yet only in social circles or the busy affairs of life will we miss you, as we well remember how in the sick room the skilled care and tender touch of the feminine hand has often passed as a benediction of grace to a suffering one.

And last, but probably not least you will be missed by the homeless wanderer who. we believe, was never turned unaided from your door, and who, ere he passeth that way again, in his heart may bless you and with the old poet sigh and say, "behold, the Signed in behalf of the neighbors. Mr Wing immediately responded to the address and with few but well chosen words thanked his friends and neighbors for their kindness, which was so much appreciated, and assured them that they had fully decided that after their journey their home would ultimately be in close proximity to them, for they had no expectation of finding better neighbors than they were leav ing. The company dispersed bearing with them a feeling of thankfulness to them by whom they had been so hospitably entertained.

"I think sometimes men are contented," I ventured.

"Certainly," Jack admitted, "I'm talking of the days they're not. And women are the same, only they seem to get dissatisfied with what they make rather than the work of making it. I know a women—a good, hard-working, practical woman, who can cook anything. He pies and cakes are delicious, and her house, is always clean. One day we were talking together and she suddenly tells me she's tired of cakes and dishes. "It seems," she said, "all my labor is thrown away. I work all morning toget dinner ready, and after dinner—where is it all!" I told her that cooking had always seemed to me a most honorable art. "I know," she said, but sometimes I feel I'd like to be a man and have my work always before me, I'd like to make engines, for instance."

"Did you tell her that when a man has made an engine he is either discharged or put to build another one?"

"It old her that, but she said that would be different to see your work eater or hight up. I pointed out that engine building was hardly a recreation, yet she still has a fixed notion that she'd like it."

"And she will never build engines," I reflected.

"Of course not. That's where the mornal lies. If she had visibed to make a certain eaks she could have done it, no doubt. But no, as she draws an appetizing, light brown cake from the own there's a far away feeling she'd rather be building an engine."

"Perhaps she doesn't realize that engines are rough, heavy and often dirty."

"And so many women wish they could bake cakes well."

"Quite so. Right next door there's likely a woman who is a willing, but unklifely a woman who is a willin

Consul Frank W. Mahin reports that new coal mines have recently been opened and others very much developed in the Nottingham district. Improved methods and apparatus are also being applied to mining. Among these is the substitution of modern screens to clean and sort the coal, saving much time, while doing the work more thoroughly Electric power and compressed air are also supplanting primitive methods of learning coal out of the pits, and ingenious methods of carrying miners to their work, saving the strength they would lose in walking, are being used. Mechanical appliances are now used for cleaning colliery tubs, which soon become caked with fine coal and dirt become caked with line coal and dirt and have hitherto been cleaned by hand. The most expeditious device is a cir-cular scraping tool workd by an electric motor, which cleans a tub in a minute. It is estimated that the total capital employed in British coal mines is fully $500,000,000, and that the present wages annually paid amount to $200 000

EARTH 10.000.000 YEARS OLD And Not Growing Any Cooler, Prof.

See Concludes. In the September number of the Proc ings of the American Philosophical Society, Prof. T. J. J. See, W. S. N., has a memoir on the cooling of the earth and the theory of carthquakes held by the ancients. In part show that earthquakes are due primarily to the leakage of the ocean's bottom.

the leakage of the ocean's bottom.

For almost a century scientists generally have held that the earth is cooling, and therefore slowly contracting. In this way they explain earthquakes and mountain formations. Now comes Prof. See with an elaborate argument more exhaustive than that of Lord Kelvin, tending to show that the effects of secular cooling of the globe are insensible, and totally denying the contraction of the earth.

the effects of secular cooling of the globe are insensible, and totally denying the contraction of the earth.

Prof. See's memoirs may be summarised as follows: The earth's temperature has an elliptical distribution within, being about 8,300 degrees Fahrenheit at the centre, and falling off toward the surface, where it is zero. As the earth slowly cooled, the crust was the only part which experienced an appreciable fall in temperature.

Hence the crust is thin, with a thickness of not more than twenty miles, which agrees with the depth deduced from the study of the world shaking earthquakes. The great earthquakes originate at the depth of about twenty miles, and none is known of a depth exceeding forty miles.

As the earthquakes al havie a superficial origin, and no shakes have a deeper source, it follows that there is no deep seated contraction of the earth, consequently all changes in the crust are due to ordinary earthquakes, and no other cause.

Secular cooling is infinitely slow, and affects only the crust, whereas world chaking earthquakes proceed from the layer just beneath the crust. As earthquakes occur mainly along the seacest, they cannot be due to the expulsion of lava from beneath the coeans.

SLEEP AND DEATH.

Neither Pain Nor Consciousness at the Instant of Either .

The phenomenon called sleep may be summed up in the following propositions, "We're all the same," said Jack, ris- says a writer in the Cosmopolitan:

to exhaustion by fatigue. Secondly—This death is temporary because the vital system continues to perform its functions during sleep and restores the sensitive organs to their normal condition.

ormal condition. For our purpose death may be considered under the three heads, natural death, sudden death and death from disease. Natural death is death from old age.

differs from natural sleep only in degree.

The gradual loss of sensibility by the sensitive organs which precedes sleep now takes place in the vital system, and all the organs pass into permanent sleep together. There can be no pain preceding or at the moment of such a death, any more than there is pain preceding and at the moment of passing into temporous sleep.

Sudden death may be defined as death Sudden death may be defined as death due to a sudden injury from without or within the body sufficient to destroy at once all irritability of both the sensitive and vital systems. It requires no argument ment to prove that a person who is sud-denly stricken dead can suffer no pain. The element of time must be present in order to suffer physical pain, and in the sudden death of a person the element of time is absent. We come now to consider the third and by far the most frequent form of death, namely, death from disease. As soon as disease is established dying begins, which is but a more rapid than natural ceasing of all sensibilities, accompanied with more or less suffering, according to the cause which produces it. This dying and suffering, called disease, must terminate either in so-called death, which is insensibility to it, or in recovery, which is removal of the cause of it.

But in any event the suffering has been endured, no matter whether the final termination is death or recovery. No one is conscious of nor can recall the moment he passes from waking into natural or temporary sleep. Nor shall we, by a "supreme agony," or in any other way, be conscious of passing into permanent sleep.

Being born and dying are the two most important physiological events in the life history of our bodies, and we shall know no more about the latter event at the time it occurs than we did about

A diver recently told me of going down to the City of Chester, sunk many years ago at the mouth of the harbor by one of the large China steamers. He de-seended with a stout heart and a mind inured to the n agedies of the sea, but when he saw two sisters of charity sleeping quietly in their berths, and, near by, a man on his knees, swaying back and forth with the motion of the tide, and a dim mysterious light over all the sometre chiefts his heart falled him. the sombre objects, his heart failed him and he gave the signal to be hauled above. THE NAUTCH GIRL.

Question of Her Position in Social System Troubling India.

tem Troubling India.

The position of the nautch girl is no longer what it was in the Indian social system. Not merely Europeans, but some of the best among the natives feel that in view of the gradual raising of the tone of society the evils associated with her profession should cease to enjoy the toleration accorded to them in the past.

This view, however, is by no means universal, and the conflict of opinion is strikingly illustrated by the experience of Gauhar Jan, a well known nautch girl of Calcutta and one of the finest native singers in India. A rich Marwari family of Bombay recently engaged her to perform at a marriage ceremeny, paying her a fee of Rais,000 (£1,000). Later she visited the Lady Northcote Hindu Orphanage and consented to sing in its aid gratis in the town hall. The citizens of Bombay, male and female, flocked in large numbers to listen te her, as the gramophone has made her name a househeld word in India. The handsome sum of £400 was collected on the spot for the exphanige. At the close of the assembly the Hon. Sir M. Perozeshah Mehta pinned on medal on her breast.

Hearing this, Mr. Justice Chandravarkar, of Bombay, a well known social reformer and Brahmin leader, ceased his conascilen with the managing committee. A hot newapper discussion has followed. Mr. Silak and others have written in defence of Sir M. Mebta, while other correspondents a reagainst him. On another occasion Geuhar Jan sang in aid of the Mohammedan College of Aligarh, but Nawah Mohammedan Colle OLDEST BANK IN THE WORLD. There was a kind of public record of-fice attached to the palace and temple at Nineveh, in which it was customary to deposit important legal and other doc-uments, such as contracts and agreeuments, such as contracts and agreements for the purchase and sale of property, marriage settlements, wills, etc. Among these there were discovered official statements as to the history and transactions of the eminent banking house of Egidu at Nineveh. Assayrian chronology proves that these refer to a date, about 2,300 years before the Christian era, when Abraham dwelt at Ur of the Chaldees as is stated in Genesis. We may, therefore, claim for this firm the may, therefore, claim for this firm the reputation of being the oldest bank in the world, at least, of which we have any record, or are likely to have. The ac-counts are very voluminous, and cover the transactions of five generations of the transactions of five generations of the house from father to son. The firm grew rapidly in importance during this period, during which they attained great wealth; for they had succeeded in secur-ing from the King the appointment of collectors of taxes, a position which in the east always leads to fortune. They afterwards framed the revenue for ev-eral of the Assyrian Previnces, with very great gain to the firm.—T. P's. London Weekly.

What the Lord Mayor Costs.

The maintenance of the pride, pompand circumstance of civic state costs the Corporation of London a yearly sum of close upon £18,000. The Lord Mayor receives £10,000, and the income tax on that sum is paid for him, while he is allowed £100 for the supply of new furniture, and dis robes cost close upon £200. Then the rates, taxes and tithes payable on the Mausion House total upward of £3,000; the lighting involves an outlay of upward of £570; the water supply costs £180, and fire and boiler insurance absorbs £185. Next structural and other repairs represent an expenditure closely approaching £2,000, and periodically there is a heavy "call" for special redecoration, the amount spent last year, for instance, on the Egyptian Hall being £3600. Quaint items are: "Fees on presenting the Lord Mayor to the Lord Chancellor, £7 los.; and expenses of Lord Mayor's "westry," £3 6s. 6d.—London Standard.

The effect was most marked. Weiss, reassured as to the fate of his soul, immediately improved. A new deed was drawn up, in which Krauss solemnly reconveyed the other man's salvation to him. This was witnessed by two doctors and Weiss has now been discharged cured.

Waved Large Union Jack in Faces of Runaway Horses.

Saskatoon, Nov. 4.—A serious accident was narrowly avoided on Wednesday afternous by the heroic conduct and great presence of mind of Principal Irvine, of the King Ed-ward School. mind of Principal Irvine, of the King Edward School.

As the children from the school some three or four hundred in number were about to cross the railway track on 23rd street, on the way to participate in the opening ceremonies at the Alexandra School in Saskatoon West.

a team of runaway horses was noticed heading at breakneck speed straight in the direction of the group of school children.

Mr. Irvine at once seized a large Union Jack, which one of the pupils was carrying, and pushing his way towards the horses, vigorously waved it before the animals with such good effect that they swerved around and headed in another direction.

The horses had almost reached the children, and had it not been for the prompt action of the principal there is not the least doubt but that there would have been a dozen or more seriously and perhaps fatally injured.

INFLUX OF JAPS.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 4.—W. L. Macken-zic King, a deputy-minister of labor, who is investigating the claims of Japanese arising out of the recent riots, has secured evidence showing the existence of a system employed by boarding-housekeepers to bring Jap labor-ers into the country.

by boarding-housekeepers to bring Jap laborers into the country.

Four organizations here, who have contracts with the railway companies and others to supply laborers, deal with similar companies at Japan. The immigrants are taken care of by boarding-housekeepers here who supply them with work, and take about ten per cent. of their wages as long as they are on the Job. The men have also to pay the companies in Japan.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—No further information has been received here regarding the disaster at Karatagh, in the province of Bokhara, which was almost completely destroyed by a landslide following the earthquake of October 21, resulting in the majority of the inhabitants losing their nives. A despatch from Tashkend to-day says that the total population did not exceed 5,000 as a rule, though the number of inhabitant forms. itants was somewhat larger in the sum mer, as Karatagh is frequented as a pleasure resort by the people of Hissar, in which district of Bokhara the strick-

The Russian Government is taking no steps to send a relief expedition to Karatagh. To do so would be contrary to the Russian policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of Bokhara, and it would involve a journey of over five hundred miles through the mountains from the nearest Russian point. It is not known here what steps the Bokaran Government is taking to send in relief, but it would appear to be acting with the usual and characteristic Asiatic fatalism and procrastination. A Brampton despatch: In the Police Court here yesterday Neil McCallum, a well-known farmer and dealer in horses, was committed to stand his trial for al leged fraud in connection with a note given in a horse deal. The completionants were John McBride, Belfountain and his son, Deputy Reeve McBride, will-known farmers of Caloden township. The latter with friends were at the C. P. A hot dispute arose, followed by blows, and the waiting-room of the sta-tion became the scene of the worst row seen in that town for years. When the battle was over the elder McCallum was ous, and remained so for half an hour. Reports came down town that he was dead, but an hour and a half later he had recovered sufficiently to admit of his being driven home.

HOTEL TRAGEDY.

Husband and Wife Shot and Apparently Dying.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 4.—Hearing two shots fired in rapid succession early to-day the employes of the Highland hotel, burst into a room and found Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Kirwan, of this city, apparently dying from bullet wounds which the husband claimed were self-inflicted. They were rushed to the hospital where they were both reported in a critical condition.

KEPT DEAD BODY OF PLANCER Young Italian Could Not Bear to Part

Naples, Nov. 4.—A particularly gruesome story has come to light in this city. Elisa Soalisi, a beautiful young woman, was engaged to be married to a young man named Alessandro, but she died a few days before the date set for the ceremony, and was buried in a local cemetery. Alessandro was heart-broken over his bereavement, and one night he dug up the body and carried it to his lodging. He embalmed the corpse of the young woman, dressed it in its bridal clothes, and kept it in his rooms for a fortnight. Neighbors finally grew curious from he fact that the young man never went abroad, and peeping one day through his shuttered window, they saw Alessandro seated alongside the dead body of the woman who was to have been his wife, affectionately holding her hand. The police were informed, and Alessandro was arrested. CRASHED INTO BREAKWATER.

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Drippenia, Hearthurn, and Indigestion as real diseases, Ji they are symptoms only of a certain specific Merre sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Exemedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital princip much lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, billousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, say Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. The "Just as Good Kind" Never Pays.

If there is one thing more than an other that should aggravate a self-respecting person, it is to be told that the article they ask for at their druggist's is not to be had, but that they can have something "just as good or better." The principal reason for such attempts at substitution is either the desire of the storekeeper to sell something on which he can make more money, or he hasn't the goods asked for, and wants to make a sale of something in its place. Every reader of this paper should bear in mind when a king for Vinol, the modern cod liver oil preparation that it is for sale in Athens at our store, only, and that it can always be had when asked for

WON A MEDAL

In the great Herald race "around the mountain" at Montreal on Thanks-giving Day, Mr Melvin Milroy of Athens won honors for himself and for the Brockville Harriers' Club, of which he is a member.

The race created widespread interest and some of the best of amateur athletes in Camada were among the 216 that started in the eleven-mile trial of speed and lendurance. Athens' repre sentative held a good position among the little bunch of leaders and with plenty of reserve force was prepared for a scorching finish when he met with a mishap that greatly marred his chances. In the crowded streets a cab ran over one of his feet, injuring it to an extent that made running the rest of the race anything but pleasant, and causing him to drop from fifth to ninth place, which was his position at the

to Cure and Uses the Best Available Remedies.

The proposed legislation through the Dominion Parliament for the regulation of the manufacture and sale of patent or proprietary medicines is of the utmost importance, and it is receiving a great deal of attention, not only by the proprietary medicine manufacturers, but also by the leading doctors and druggists. Every manufacturer of reliable and high class remedies welcomes the bill as a step in the right direction. The discussion has brought out the fact that the best physicians in Canada and on the continent approve of and prescribe Psychine in cases of the most difficult character. In a recent instance of very serious throat and lung trouble the patient had been using Psychine. Two leading United States specialists were consulted, in addition to two eminent Canadian physicians. Upon learning what the patient was using, a sample of Psychine was taken and analyzed, with the result that the physicians advised its continuance. LESSON VI.-NOV. 10, 1907

Commentary.—I. Joshua's earnest appeal (vs. 14, 15). 14. Now therefore—In view of the fact that Jehovah has peal (vs. 14, 15). 14. Now therefore In view of the fact that Jehovah has brought you forth with such a mighty hand. Fear the Lord—Reverence the Lord and walk carefully before Him Think of His Majesty and respect His authority, and remember that His eye is ever upon you. Always make Him the object of all your worship. Serve Him—Perform His will; obey His commandments. In this address Joshua calls their attention to the many things God had done for them. An idol could do nothing for any one, why then did they cling to idols? In sincerity and in truth—Without hypocrisy. "The Latin word from which our 'sincerity' comes, denotes honey without wax,' unmixed purity. The Greek word is considered by some to be founded on the idea of something held up in the rays of the sun, and proved to be without speck or flaw."—Cam. Bib. Put away the gods—It would seem from these words that there were some among them who privately kept the images or gods which had belonged to their forefathers. The gods which their forefathers worshiped were (1) the gods of the Chaldeans. They worshiped fire, light and sun and made gods to them. (2) The images worshiped by the Egyptians which were the ape, serpents, vegetables, etc. The inhabitants of Canaan also worshiped idols, which would become a snare to Israel unless they put away all heashiped idols, which would become a snare to Israel unless they put away all hea-then worship. Joshua saw that they could not be sincere in divine worship and use idols. Beyond the River (R. V.)—That is, beyond the Euphrates, in Mesopotamia and in Ur, the land of Abraham's nativity.

15. If it seem evil—If it seem unwise or inexpedient Choose you get.—Like

15. If it seem evil—If it seem unwise or inexpedient. Choose you, etc.—Like Elijah on Carmel (1 Kings 18. 21), Joshua calls upon the people to at once decide as to whom they would serve. "They had been harboring idols (v. 23) and worshiping them in secret, while openly professing to serve God. It was high time for this to cease. The whole hope of the nation depended upon a whole-hearted service of Jehovah. There was no good reason for them to defer the matter a single moment." As for me and my house—Joshua is outspoken. His decision was made many years before this. "He almade many years before this. "He also resolves for his family, his children and servants, and such as were under his care and influence and protection. Though he was a ruler, Joshua did not neglect family religion. He speaks as though there might be some of his people who would turn to idol worship, but in his household he would not permit idolatry. He gave them his decision and example before receiving their real." before receiving their reply."

that they now consider themselves as belonging to God. What ever may have been their sins they were not

They reply with firmness. ready to forsake the service of Jehovah. They reply with firmness, leaving no room for doubt. "Joshua did everything possible to confirm their decision and to render it enduring. That brought us—Some reasons are now given which led them to make this decision: I. God had delivered them from Egyptian bondage. 2. The "great signs" wrought in the land. 3. Their preservation for forty years in the wilderness. 4. The ex-it, for in the verses following they commit themselves unreservedly to the service of Jehovah. An holy God commit themselves unreservedly to the service of Jehovah. An holy God—He is holy in his character, and will not allow his people to be defiled by any impure worship. A jealous God—He is altogether unlike the gods of the nations around, and if they would serve him they must make him the highest obect of their love and devotion. Will not forgive... your sins—Rather, will not pass by your sins as if taking no notice of them.—Gray. He will not tolerate sin. "The explanation is, that while God is forgiving to the truly penitent, he vigorously punishes all incorrigible sinners."—Whedon.

20. Then he will turn—God is unalterably fixed in His attitude toward sin, toward the repentant sinner and toward the righteous. He never changes, but does not deny God's goodness to them, but He had made a law and if they transgressed the wrath of (60d would certainly fall upon them. They fixed their own punishment. Consumes—Punish them severely. 21. We will serve the most of the moment of the componies. If heathen gods are really better, serve them. Count the cost (Luke 14.28). Know the worst. Face the cross. There are trials and temptations in serving God, but it pays. Then choose. Take a blank sheet of paper. Rule it. Write God's name above one column and Satan's name above the other. Weigh deliverately impartially each service. Write ponse. If heathen gods are really better, serve them. Count the cost (Luke 12.28). Know the worst. Face the cross. There are trials and temptations in serving God, but it pays. Then choose. Take a blank sheet of paper. Rule it. Write God's name above one column and Satan's name above the other. Weigh deliverately, impartially, each service. Write honestly in one column the reasons why you should serve Satan. Then deliberately determine to serve God. Write your name to it and stand by it.

VIII. Holy service. "The can be no opportunity in particular the reasons why you should serve Satan. Then deliberately determine to serve God. Write your chose of them holy God's" (v. 19). If you choose to serve, i verely. 21. We will serve the Lord-They understood Joshua's meaning, and declare they will not cause God to turn declare they will not cause God to turn and do them hurt. Whatever He requires, at their hand, they pledge themselves to be obedient. They promise to.

He said the men would be taken back 24. Will we serve—The thought of prompt action did not change them, but only settled their minds more fully. The better they understood the more determined were they to obey. The service of sin is wrong, degrading, painful, destructive; the service of God is right, exalting, happy, saving. God's service is reasonable, worthy of our best efforts.

25. Joshua made a covenant—A covenant had been concluded by God on Sinai with Israel and solemnly ratified (Exod. 19, 20). This covenant Moses had renewed in the field of Moab (Deut.

1V. A memorial stone (vs. 26-28). In these verses we are told that Joshua put their covenant in writing and erected a memorial stone under an oak. This monumental stone would remind them of the vows they had made and be a witness to future generations. God undertook to make it easy for them to remember to do the right, and He held them ber to do the right, and He held them responsible for the fulfilment of the vows that they had thus solemnly made.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS. .. PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

I. Reasonable service. "Now, therefore, serve him" (v. 14). "Therefore... will we also serve the Lord" (v. 18). Joshua's call and the people's choice were based upon a review of what God had done for them. So we who are "justified by faith," because "Christ died for us" (Rom. 5:1, 8), are free from sin, are delivered from this body of death (Rom. 7:24). are under "no condemna-(Rom. 7:24), are under "no condemna-tion" for whom there is no separation (Rom 8:1, 35-39), can say that ours is "reasonable service."

a "reasonable service."

II. Sincere service. "Serve him in sincerity" (v. 14). Christ has "chosen us... that we should be holy and without blame before him, in love" (Eph. 1:4). "Me want to help you," her baby girl said to Margaret Bottome, as she was putting down the carpet. So the mother gave her the saucer of tacks to hold. But presently the tiny hands grew unsteady, the saucer fell, and the tacks lay scattered upon the carpet. It seemed the mother was hindered instead of helped. She looked at the grieved lips of her child and kissed them into smiles. Quickly into her heart came the thought Quickly into her heart came the thought her imperfect service for God and his loving acceptance of it, and afterward relating the incident she said, "Baby did help mother better than she knew." God counts sincere service as blameless, covaring all its imperfections with the man-tle of mother love. If we will be blame-less here (Phil. 2:15) he will present us faultless there (Jude 24).

III. True service. "Serve him.... in III. True service. "Serve him.... In truth" (v. 14). A tiny boy was having such a good time with his blocks when his mother said, "Come, dear, it is time to put the blocks away and get ready for bed." "Oh, manma," begged the child, "let me stay a little longer—just till the clock strikes again." It only wanted fifteen minutes of seven, so the mother said "If you will stop cheerfully wanted fifteen minutes of seven, so the mother said, "If you will stop cheerfully when the clock strikes I will let you p!a.y on." He promised. It seemed only a minute to the busy block-builder when the clock on the mantel told the hour of seven. The dear child looked up in surprise, shut his lips tight, drew a long breath, and then said as cheerfully as he could, "I didn't think it would strike so soon, but I must keep my truth."

IV. Voluntary service. "Choose" (v. 15). God's claim to Israel's service was Example before receiving their reply."

18. Therefore will we also—Joshua would not be permitted to stand alone in his choice, for they were of the same mind, and would claim the same God with him. They would not break the vows which they had made. III. A Covenant Made (vs 19-25).

19. Ye cannot serve the Lord—Ye cannot in your own strength, while still clinging to your idolatry, and with hearts unregenrated. Joshua did not intend to suggest an impossibility, and the people did not so understand it, for in the verses following they commit themselves unreservedly to the service of Lobyach Arr hely. CRISIS REACHED IN DISPUTE BE-TWEEN LEAGUE AND GRAZIERS.

Police Swept Aside-Crowd Armed With Sticks Gathered at Master's Residence—Hustled Members of the Hunt as They Came to the Assembly -A Threat to Lay Poison on Fourteen Farms.

New York, Nov. 4.—The Herald has received the following cable despatch from Dublini Matters have come to a crisis in connection with the dispute between the Ormond Hunt, King's County, and the local branch of the United Irish League. The latter is opposed to the grazing system and has been agitating for break-system and has been agitating for breaking up the grazing lands and for their distribution to enlarge small holdings.

The graziers are the chief obstacle.
Gertain graziers are members of the Ormond Hunt, and the league some time ago informed the Hunt Committee that if they were allowed to follow the hounds the hunt would be stopped. Negotiations ensued, and it was then announced that the Messrs. Kenny, who are chiefly aimed at, agreed not to hunt during the season.

This, however, was not considerd sufficient and the United Irish League circulated a notice broadcast on Sunday calling on the people to assemble their hundreds at the opening of the meet this morning, at the master's, Mr. Crad-dock's, residence, and teach the insolent men a lesson by stopping the hunt.

More than five hundred people, all armed with heavy sticks, assembled, and, headed by a band, marched to Mr. Craddock's residence. Meanwhile, the followers of the hounds were beginning to assemble, about one hundred mounts to assemble, about one hundred mounts turning up. These were groaned at, and so threatening was the aspect of the crowd when Mr. H. M. White Spooner and some friends were driving past that Mr. Spooner drew a revolver.

As the crowd drew near Mr. Craddock's place they created a terrible din, the band playing, horns and tin whistles being blown, and others cheering.

At the entrance to the private grounds in front of the mansion, Mr. Corbet Craddock and half a dozen police cleared the way, but were quickly swept aside and an excited throng of several hundreds broke down the ornamental shrubs and swarmed all over the place, amid waving sticks and the ring-leader declared that the hunt would be eader declared that the hunt would be leader declared that the hunt would be stopped.

At this juncture Mr. Michael Hogan, M. P. for North Tipperary, arrived and exerted his influence to prevent the breach of peace which seemed very imminent. As Mr. White Spooner was standing at the front door a couple of dozen men ran toward him with uplifted sticks, shouting:

"Now draw your revolver on us. Shoot us if you dare!"

Mr. Hogan succeeded in inducing the

Mr. Hogan succeeded in inducing the crowd to withdraw. He was at one with them, he said, in stopping the hunt, but they should not resort to violent

Shortly after Mr. E. F. Saunders, Mrs. Saunders and Grant Saunders rode up and were met with boohs and hisses. The crowd declined to let them pass The crowd declined to let them pass through, but Mr. Saunders at length got an opening and passed on. Mrs. Saun-ders in attempting to follow was pre-vented, and a Justice of the Peace, who was on foot and endeavoring to make way for her, was severely hustled. He had his hat knocked off and narrowly escaped a violent blow from a stick. A parish priest succeded, with Mr. Hogan, in keeping the more violently disposed members of the opposition within bounds.

At length the Hunt Committee appointed three members to confer with a like number from the league, but the conference came to no agreement, the league demanding as a minimum the expulsion of the eMssrs. Kenny from the hunt.

The master decided that in view of the threatening attitude of the crowd it was inadvisable to bring out the hounds, and those present rode off amidst rounds of cheering by the crowd. The master of the Meath foxhounds has received a notice from the local branch of the Irish League that if Judge Fitzgerald, who recently awarded dam ages to Lord Ashtown in connection with the Glenaheiry bomb outrage, is allowed to ride to his pack poison will be laid on fourteen farms. The Meath season opens to-morrow. Similar notice has been sent to the master of the Ward Union staghounds, with which Judge Fitzgerald has hunted since the season called the company's official Santa Claus would be on hand with the purse of gold.

Those receiving the announcements were entreated to join the association and "reap the benefits, which are as certain as death." He might have added taxes, for it was further stipulated that whenever happiness entered the home of a sister member, each and all of the others would be required to chip in her proportionate share of the $500 in gold. In addition to this a semi-annual assessment of $2 was also nominated in the bond, this last to cover "office rent and postage."

To be eligible one need only be "a married person of good moral character"—with the necessary $5.

It is urged in the literature that statistics, or the number of benefits falling due, can have nothing to do with the matter so long as the married folk are willing to co-operate. Members are also called upon to remember that they are "taking no chances," the prospectus closing with quotations from the poets, in which Adelaide Anne Proctor and Sir Walter Scott are quoted as having anticipated the proposition, and old Ben Franklin as having spoken prophetically when he said: "Why not pay a premium on life, rather than on death?"

Bradstreet's on Trade.

Montreal.—General wholesale and money stringency has still a disturbing et- ed for some penalty

Montreal.—General wholesale and retail trade continues to hold a good tone here. The money stringency has still a disturbing effect upon business. This has largely been responsible for the declines in the values of Canadian securities during the past week. While lack of money is in some cases regtricting Canadian industrial enterprises, there is still a brisk tone to all lines of manufacturer. In some particular branches, such as textiles, the manufacturers are unable to turn out sufficient goods to meet all demands. Values continue to advance. In lines is creating a heavier demand for cotons. The demands upon hardware manufacturers is keeping factories busy. While the demand for builders' supplies has fallen off somewhat there is etill a fairly good movement in this regard. Grocers report markets generally steady to firm and the demand for staples good.

Toronto—A healthy and generally brisk to be is reported to all lines of trade here. Stocks are moving well and the outlook for the winter business is bright. Money is still very scarce and the granting of credits is being done with extreme caution. Wholesale done with extreme caution. Wholesale drygoods are marketing their grain and products is largely responsible for the high prices which farmers are obtaining for this. forward. Sugar is quieter and steady. Teas and general lines are firm in tone.

Winnipeg.—The outlook for general trade here continues to grow brighter as the season advances. Threehing returns are showing better than was expected and with grain prices high country trade promises well. The grain is being marketed rapidly and from most districts collections are improving. Grocers report a fairly good business in all staples. Prices on new goods show cousiderable advances.

Vancouver and Victoria—All lines of wholesale trade report a good movement here, in fact, the trade all this year has been neavier than it was last. Values in all lines are firm. Flour and feed prices have advanced sharply. The fruit trade is heavy.

Hamilton—The volume of wholezale and retail trade here continues good. Country trade is showing improvement and collections are generally fair to good. Values in all lines hold very firm.

London—There is little change in the business situation here. Wholesale sorting orders are good and prosepcts for the winter season are bright. From most directions collections are good. Local industries are busilty engaged.

Ottawa—General business continues fair. Wholesale drygoods are moving briskly and retail trade has a good tone. Country trade is moderate. Country produce is still slow in coming forward and values are firm.

DAWSON CITY

THE FLUSH TIMES OF EARLY DAYS A THING OF THE PAST.

The Dredge Has Taken the Place of the Miner-Water Supply for Individual Claim-Owners a Serious Problem, Says Dr. Lachappelle.

Vancouver, Nov. 4.- "The Yukon. Council has aked Commissioner Henderson to make representations to the Minister of the Interior in the direction of securing some kind of relief in regard to the water supply on behalf of individual claim owners in Dawson district," said Dr. J. O. Lachappelle, Vancouver, on his way to Montreal from the north. "We are face to face with a mining situation anything but favorable to the country as a whole, the serious problem created by the possession by a large company of two principal courses of water supply. Water, and nothing but water, is the prime requisite in working placer ground. Under existing circumstances the individual claim owners are virtually in the lands of, shall I say at the mercy of, the Guggenheims. While appreciating the splendid enterprise of the New Yorkers, the large expenditures they are individual claim owners in Dawson disspiehald enterprise of the New Tora-ers, the large expenditures they are-making, and sincerely hoping to see-them making handsome returns or their investment, I believe that the question-of other vested rights should not be-lost sight of. Controlling as they do the two most available sources of water lost sight of. Controlling as they do the two most available sources of water supply, grave danger threatens the individual claim owners. Wherein liesthe remedy? Some kind of relief from the present intolerable situation will beheartily welcomed by the entire population in the district. The problem is a very complex one, requiring careful consideration by the authorities. Times are very quiet in the north. All the mines have suspended operations for the winter, except a few properties on Sul-phur, Quartz and Black Hill Creeks. The former glory of Dawson has departed. It has no semblance of its former self of the good old days.

"Unlike in the earlier years, owing to "Unlike in the earlier years, owing to lack of employment miners and laborers now go outside for the winter. All in all, the immediate outlook is not too encouraging. During the past season between fifteen hundred and two thousand men were employed by the large mining companies principally in improvements. With the inauguration of dredging operations there is a great reduction in the force of laborers employed, and they only work four or five ployed, and they only work four or five months in the year."

WARNING TO AUTOMOBILISTS.

Reckless Driving Discussed in Toronto Police Court.

Toronto despatch: "I want the impres sion to get abroad that automobilists must consider pedestrians," said Col. Denison in the Police Court yesterday morning. "The drivers of autos will have to bear the blame when they run over any person. People have a perfect right to walk about our streets without risking their lives, and because a man happens to be absent-minded, it is no reason with the control of the cont why he should be injured when he does not hear the auto horn tooted."

The case was that of Victor Otto, charged with reckless driving. The defendant knocked down the complainant, Q. Zurick, on Bloor street, and severely injured him. Zurick was alighting from a street car when the auto, coming from behind, struck him.

"The auto was only going at the rate of about six miles an hour,' said the counsel for the defence.

"It had no business to knock a man down going even at the rate of one mile an hour," replied Colonel Denison. The case was complicated by the fact that the injured man has entered a suit for damages in the Civil Court. suit for damages in the Civil Court.

Chief Justice Meredith Indignant at Motion Made.

Toronto despatch: Chief Justice Meredith waxed wroth yesterday over a motion presented by counsel for G. O. Hayne, defendant in an action brought by J. W. The defendant's motion was to have Kay's name removed as plaintiff, and after a full presentation of facts counsel was interrupted.

The True and The False

ing. Here was the lifelong listlesness of a long-lost hope. So that the days flowed on and her children did not suffer, she did not care. She never took the trouble to inform herself of anything connected with the interests of the farm. If she could tell a field of wheat from a patch of potatoes, it was the extent of ther agricultural knowledge. She certainly could not tell a field of wheat from a field of rye.

But for the invaluable presence and services of Big Len, the farm, and everything upon it, would probably have gone to the auctioneer's hammer! But Big Len was fidelity and skill combined. And, assisted by his strapping son, Little Len, faithfully worked the farm—such as it was, with a fractional field here, there and everywhere, broken up among rocks, wherever in some little glen or hollow the deposit from the mountains had made a patch of arable soil.

Old Abishag was the cook, house-servant, spinner and knitter to the little establishment. And she, too, frequently added, by the works of her hands, a halfadded, by the works of her hands, a half dozen pairs of focarse yarn socks, to be exchanged at the village shop for "two pounds of sugar, a pound of tea," or else for "a pair of number seven girl's shoes, and a pair of number ten boy's."

Ellen's only epistolary correspondence was with Mrs. Hunter, with whom she exchanged a letter every month, and from whom she continually heard the most satisfactory accounts of Honoria satisfactory, except in one respect— that Honoria seemed to have forgotten that Honoria seemed to have forgotten that she had ever had any other parents than Mr. and Mrs. Hunter. Mr. Hunter had legally and regularly adopted her. And she was known only as Miss Hunter, the only daughter and heiress of the great Daniel Hunter. And she was the beauty, the pride, and the boast of all the singing and dancing schools, and all the juvenile balls and parties, and "always Queen of the May." But in consenting thus to Honoria's premature entrance into vanities, rivalries and selfishness of a juvenile fashionable world, Mrs. Huntwrote that she had acted against her own better judgment, and that now, hav-ing seen the effect of these amusements the mind and manners of Honoria be anything but desirable, she should put a stop to. Ellen had no neighbors—in fact, that rugged mountainous district was very sparsely settled, and the roads were so intolerably bad as to amount to a posi-tive embargo upon social intercourse. The tax-gatherer, Mr. Ipsy, was her only isitor, and he came but once a year Ellen's children, nurtured under the se

He inherited the gypsy skin, black hair, and eagle eye of North. No step upon the mountain was like his-his flashing glance, quick, clear tones, and agile spring were in perfect unison. It was his delight to rise in the morning before the sun, and with his light fowling-piece to range the mountains, and return with a well-filled bag of game before the family were ready to sit down to breakfast. Or at noon to sit under the broad, spreading elm, or up-on some projecting point of rock, receiving into his expanding soul the beauty and the glory of nature; or simply chormed with some individual effect of light and shade upon mountain, valley or forest—trying to reproduce it upon paper, often throwing down his pencil with a tyro's diegust at his own awk-wardness and failure, but oftener work-ing on, inspired with the young artist's exquisite sense of genius, and the thrillxquisite sense of genius, and the thrill-un oun; oun; on author of authority of the control of ing presentiment of future fame and

Ellen O'Leary. After the early storms, a deep calm had settled upon the lives of the soul within that gave the wondrous lived at the rock-bound cottage on Silver Creek, and were supported by the produce of the fractional farm. Ellen O'Leary was a very bad manager, or rather no manager at all. She knew little, because she cared little, about farming. Here was the lifelong listlesness of country of the friends, her resolution amount of the soul within that gave the wondrous charm to Maud's lovely face. She was not a child of quick impulses or strong passions. Her affections were quiet, pro-found and eternal. In self-reliance she seemed rather diffident, and in self-defense timid; but in the cause ans service of her friends, her resolution amount of the soul within that gave the wondrous charm to Maud's lovely face. She was not a child of quick impulses or strong passions. Her affections were quiet, pro-found and eternal. In self-reliance she unted to a total forgetfulness or disregard of consequences, and her courage would have seemed rashness but for her passionless, deliberate manner of pro-

The little family was startled out of its quietude by the visit of Mr. Ipsy, who announced that Daniel Hunter was retiring from public life and coming to settle permanently at Howlet Hall; also that he was going to build a church and school at the Summit.

CHAPTER XVI.

"Will you rest now? Will you rest? Will you let this overwrought, toil-worn brain repose a little while?" murmured brain repose a little while?" murmured Augusta, softly passing her fingers over the great politician's corrugated brow. It was the first evening after their arrival at Howlet Hall, and they occupied their favorite, wainscoted sitting-room. The furniture of this apartment had been purposely left weekenged and had been purposely left unchanged, and the room preserved its old-fashioned, the room preserved its old-fashioned, sober, slumberous air. It was cool, spring weather, and a fine wood fire was burning in the fireplace. Daniel Hunter sat before it in a large, stuffed, leather chair that might have belonged to the eighteenth century. Augusta entered, and came softly behind his chair, and was stronger against the might be some common to the state of the state and came sortly beaund his chair, and was stooping over him until her ringlets lay upon his cheek, as with sweet, grave tenderness she smoothed his brow, and muttered: "Will you rest now?"

"Will you rest now?"
He smiled gravely, put his hand behind him, and drew her around to a seat by his side and toyed with her ringlets, but in a thoughtful, abstracted manner: his mind was far away. The lady sighed and wondered what "question" had fol-lowed him to his hermitage to cheat him lowed him to his hermitage to cheat him of his rest. Both are changed in these six years. Augustus pale cheek is paler than ever, and her countenance has a calmer and profounder beauty. But the change that has passed over Daniel Hunter speaks of the fierce strife of political factions. His face is thinner and darker than before, and his great, ponderous forehead is—or seems—greater than ever by reason of the growing baldness of the upper portion, for his raven hair is falling off, and here and there a silver ing off, and here and there a silver thread shines amid its darkness. Yet the countenance, if sadder, graver and ster-ner, is also more majestic than ever be-

The lady sat by his side, with her hand clasped in his, watching the profound thoughtfulness of that noble countenance, and then she inquired, soft-

"Now, what is it—the French question, the Sub-Treasury bill—what is it that has pursued you even to this place, and will not let you rest."

He paused in his thoughts, and looked at her in the most perplexed, amused way, and then said:

"Why, you are mixing up past questions and present questions in the most unacountable manner, my love—bills that are dead and buried, and bills that are scarcely born. It was the French question that occupied me then. I con-fess I cannot at present see any way Restrest—recover, and then in some healthful, hopeful, strong moment, the answer will come to you like a sudden inspiration." As she said this she was passing her fingers lightly through his hair, and her eyes unconsciously fived upon the silvery threads. He saw, or felt her look, and he smiled and said: "No matter, love!-so that yours is Ellen received an invitation from Mrs. Hunter and prepared to make her a visit. She went by the shortest route, the bridlepath and therefore took neither of the children with her, but only little Len, mounted on a plough horse, as her attendant. Ellen employed herself during the whole ride in trying to steady and strengthen her nerves for the interview with her daughter, lest her agitation might excite the surprise and curicosity of the latter, and lead to embarrassing inquiries. A brisk ride of two hours brought her to Howlett Hall, where she was received most affectionately by Mrs. Hunter, who took her at once into the sitting-room, where Miss Honoria, in her morning-dress of white muslin, sat at the piano practicing her Italian muslic. The young lady arose with her usual dignity to receive a new visitor. Ellen looked at her, a dainty, delicate, dignified little lady, and a strange pang shot through her heart.

"Honoria, this is Mrs. O'Leary, a dear friend of ours," said Mrs. Hunter.

And before the little belle could make friend of ours," said Mrs. Hunter.

And before the little belle could make her formal courtesy, Ellen clasped her in her arms and burst into tears. Mrs. Hunter sat down, calmly waiting the issue. But Miss Hororia withdrew herself with an offended air, and resumed her seat. Mrs. Hunter instantly arose again, took Ellen's hand and, pressing it af-fectionately, led her to a seat upon the sofa. Ellen recovered herself and was the first to speak, albeit in a broken, faltering voice:

"You must please to excuse me, Miss Honoria. I knew your father well and loved him. I love Mrs. Hunter also—and

"Pray, do not mention it, madam. You are very good, and I am very much !lattered, I am sure," said Miss Honoria, haughtily, as she adjusted her slightly disordered dress.

Ellen was cut to the heart. Poor Filen Ellen was cut to the heart. Poor Filen did not recollect that at Honoria's age she herself was just such an inselent. affected piece of egotism and conceit. Mrs. Hunter rang the bell and ordered cake and wine brought, and when her guest had taken some refreshment, the lady bade Honoria sit down to the piano and sing for them. And the young lady, never unwilling to display her inusical powers, complied very graciulty, and sang several sweet songs, to the delight of Ellen. Soon after this dinner was announced. At the dinner table Ellen met Daniel Hunter and Miss Letitia, both of whom received her with great cor-

Daniel Hunter and Miss Lettita, both of whom received her with great cordiality. Early in the afternoon Ellen prepared to take leave, resisting all Mrs. Hunter's persuasions to stay by saying that the little girl, Sylvia, was not quite well and that she feared to leave there also all night. Therefore, Ellen bade. well and that she leared to leave use alone all night. Therefore Ellen bade them all good-by, imprinted a passionate kiss upon the haughty, unwilling lips of Miss Honoria, received a warm, affectionate one from Mrs. Hunter, and so departed.

The family were preparing to receive a newly married pair—Mr. and Mrs. Lovel. And one lovely afternoon in April the bride and groom arrived, and there were kisses, and congratulations, and were kisses, and congratulations, and inquiries, and gentle attentions, and nursing tenderness, until they were refreshed from their journey, and comfortably installed in the parlor. The young couple were a pretty, innocent-looking pair of turtle-doves enough, a very nice match, some people said, because, forsooth, both were fair-haired and fairskinned, and both the best the same height. Mr. Lovel were fair-haired and fairskinned, and both about the same height, Mr. Lovel having the advantage of only an inch or so in this respect; though in every other respect of moral, mental and Christian worth. Mr. Lovel was greatly the superior of his pretty, gentle, frivolous wife—else had not Daniel Hunter called him to the pastoral care of his new church.

On Thursday before Easter Bishop S — arrived at the Hall to solemnize the rights of dedication, and was received with the utmost respect and cordiality. But the countenance of the venerable prelate was overcast, gloomy and foreboding. Kind and gentle in his manners, he sought to throw off the shadow from his brow and spirits, but in vain; and after dinner he requested an interview. after dinner he requested an interview with Mr. Hunter. His host conducted him into the library and they sat down on opposite sides of a small writing table, the bishop with an ominous sigh and groan, Daniel Hunter in quiet expec-

"Does your memory serve you to re-call the last occasion upon which we met, Mr. Hunter?" inquired Bishop S—. Daniel Hunter reflected a moment, and then answered:

"Certainly, sir. It was upon the occasion of your calling, in company with several other gentlemen, at the Executive Chamber in A—, with a petition for the reprieve of William O'Leary, convicted of the murder of Burke."

"Yes, sir; and. Mr. Hunter, it is eleven years to night since you refused to grant our petition for the reprieve of that man."

"To what end. reverend sir, is that painful event recalled?"

'To the end, Mr. Hunter, I fear, that you may regret your refusal more than you ever regretted any act of your life." "Be good enough to explain yourself, Bishop S.——"

"Heaven be pitiful, Daniel Hunter, so will. But when you have heard-listen, then. It is not two weeks since I was called to the deathbed of a man of the highest social position, who confessed, in the presence of myself and the Mayor f A—, that he was guilty of the mur-er of Burke, and the he was dying of emorse. He had killed Burke to avenge an insult offered to his sister; he had escaped and gone abroad instantly after the deed and, after remaining in Franc everal years, had only recently returned to find out that an innocent man had been executed for his crime. His deposi-tion was taken down, and he died in ten ninutes after signing it."

Daniel Hunter was not a man to start r ejaculate. He heard this terrible anor ejaculate. He heard this terrible annunciation, and lifted up his head, and his strong, massive face seemed turned to marble—and:

"God be merciful to human error!" he exclaimed; "for if the convict had been my own son, I would have done as I did."

CHAPTER XVII.

In the meantime, at the Silver Creek farmhouse, little Maud lay II. Ellen, on returning from Howlet Hall, had found her in a high fever, and had sent off to the Summit for the doctor. Her illness was pronounced to be a congestive fever, threatening the brain. And all the family vised with each other in devoted, though profoundly quiet attentions to the gentle little patient. Ellen watched by her bedside day and night, scarcely allowing herself an hour's needful rest in the twenty-four. Old Abishag forgot to swear, and prayed instead. And Falconer learned a lighter step and softer tone when he entered her sick room.

And Maud, in her fevered dreams, babbled sweetly of a beautiful lady, that led her by the hand through green and shady woods and lawns, and who gave her cold, sparkling water from fresh fountains when she was thirsty, and sat down and took her upon her lap, and laid her tired head upon her soft bosom when she was exhausted. And sometimes this lady was her mother, come from heaven to visit her—and sometimes the was Mrs. Hunter, whose portrait hung above the mantelpiece at Howlet Hall.

As Ellen watched, alone, beside her, in the darkness of the night, and saw her stretch her feeble arms, and her her stretch her feeble arms, and her countenance irradiate with joy, to welcome the vision of the sweet lady—so real seemed this vision to the sick child, that Ellen cowered in awe, and crossed herself, and uttered the Ave Maria, for she thought it was an apparition of the blessed Madonna.

And Falconer, when he heard the child babbling in the daytime of the lovely lady's smiles and tones—understood her visions—but somehow, even to him, they were invested with a sacred mystery that awed him into silence.

At last the crisis of Maud's illness passed. The fever waned, and with it passed. The fever waned, and with it faded the bright vision of the lady. And Maud's thoughts returned to healthful, maua's thoughts returned to heatened, erdinary life.

Mr. Bill Ipsy came over to see the little convalescent, and brought her some oranges and some fine apples, and sat down by her bed and told her of the beautiful new church that was all ready for addication at Faster and the new for dedication at Easter, and the new Sunday school that was to be opened the same day. He himself was to be the superintendent, he said; and Mrs. Daniel Hunter and Mrs. Lovel, the pretty wife of the young minister, and one or two other ladies of the county, were to be the teachers of the classes.

In the course of the next week, Mr In the course of the flext week, Mr. Ipsy called at the cottage to know if the children were not to be allowed to go to Sunday school. The children were very anxious to go—and their entreaties, joined to Mr. Ipsy's arguments, and Ellen's secret inclination to oblige Mrs. Hunter, provided over her scruples and Ellen's secret inclination to oblige Mrs. Hunter, prevailed over her scruples, and she consented, saying to herself (though she afterward confessed it as a sin, for she was a Catholic), that there was no other church or school in the neighborhood—that the Protestant Church was better than none at all, and that the sect which had produced Mrs. Hunter could not be so very far wrong.

So the next Sunday, very early in the morning, Falconer and Maud got ready, ate a slight, hasty breakfast, and set out together to walk to the Summit. By the footpath the distance was short. It was a lovely May morning, and Fal-

It was a lovely May morning, and Fal-coner and Maud had a delightful walk. They reached the Summit and entered the church. The sexton conducted them the church. The sexton conducted them upstairs into the spacious gallery, in which the Sunday school was kept. Here, dispersed about in the gallery pews, were about a half dozen of teachers, each with some eight or twelve pupils collected around her. Among the teachers were Mrs. Daniel Hunter and Mrs.

Lovel.

Mrs. Hunter had a large-sized square pew beside the great organ. There were about a dozen little girls around her. The black lace veil was thrown back, and the lady's beautiful face was unshaded, save by the drooping black ringlets.

Mr. Ipsy, as superintendent, stood befor a large desk in the corner, c'oing something with pen and ink, and lightly kicking his neat boot toes together, and twinkling his eyes and eyebrows, and every little while sticking the pen behind his ear, and flying off at a tangent to hand a book to some pupil, or to to hand a book to some pupil, or to speak a word to some teacher.

Our girl and boy were evidently rather late. The morning prayers were over, and the exercises of the school comand the exercises of the school commenced. So Mr. Ipsy told them when Falconer walked up to his desk, made his bow, and presented his little sister. Nevertheless, Mr. Ipsy took a New Testament out of his desk, and opened it and handed it to Maud, and told her to read for him that he might test her read for him, that he might test her abilities, and know in what class to place her.

Cruelty to Animals in Hawaii. Afterward I was taken to Kawaihae, where I saw cattle loaded in a most o'clock when I landed on the beach among a lot of cowboys and half-naked natives. The cattle were corralled under he trees, and when one was ready to be the trees, and when one was ready to be taken aboard a rope was tied about its borns. A cowboy on horseback then rode into the surf, dragging the frightened steer into the water. The rope was tossed to a half-naked native who was awimming, and he in turn carried it to the men waiting in a small hoat. There men pulled the animal, which must now swim or drown, to the boat and tied him by the horns to its side. After eight steers had been tied up in this manner the engine on the steamer was set to work and the boat pulled alongside by means of a rope. The cattle were then hoisted on board by the use of a belly-band. The method of handling these dumb animals is brutal, and while the men seem to use as much care as possible in moving them about, their pitcous bellowing caused by fear made as pathetic a scene as I have ever witnessed. Thousands are shipped every year, and it seems that some more turnan method of putting them aboard might be adopted.

The Japanese sailor on these ships is said to be the best for keeping the ship clean, while the native excels in handling the boats, especially in yough water. The Hawaiian is a born swimmer, and native boys will follow these vessels for several hundred yards as they are leaving Honolulu, swimming alongside and diving for coins thrown overboard by the travelers. The passage on these boats is always rough and en the Ewalani, as the ship lay at anchor out in the channel, the nights were intensely warm. Freighting in this way is necessarily expensive, but those in authority say that it is the only way practical as no wharf could withstand the lashing of the waves caused by the mad fury of the winds during winter. At that season it is often impossible to make landings along the rockey coast of Molokal. —Mrs. C. R. Miller in Leslie's Weekly.

SUFFERING WOMEN

Made Well and Strong by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Every dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills makes new blood. Every drop of pure blood brings the ill, disheartened woman nearer to health and happiness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have brought the nearer to health and happiness. InWilliams' Pink Pills have brought the glow of health to thousands of sufferers who gladly bear testimony to that effect. One of these is Mrs. Elizabeth Danham, of Welland, Ozd., who says: "For more than a year I was greatly run down. I had sickening headaches and my heart would palpitate so violently that at times I feared death was near.
I was under the care of a doctor, but insteadof improving I lost strength, and my weight decreased from one hundred and forty to ninety pounds. I was discouraged, but finally decided to give up the doctors' treatment and try Dr. Williams' Pink Bills. I am glad I did so, for after using the Pills a few weeks I could see a marked improvement in my condition. The headaches left me, I regained strength, the distressing heargapitation ceased and at the end of two months I was fully restored to health and felt better than I had for the past twenty years. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are truly a marvellous medicine, and I cannot praise them enough."

Heart palpitation.

cannot praise them enough."

Heart palpitation, anaemia, headaches, loss of appetite, general weakness, backaches, weariness and a host of other troubles are all the outcome of bad blood. Dr. Williams' Plnk Pills make new rich and blood, the bad blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood—the pure blood does the rest. That is why these pills cure all troubles due to watery blood or weak, shaky nerves. There is not a nook or corner in Canada where you will not find some grateful person who has been cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. On the word of your neighbor we ask you to try this medicine if you are weak, ailing or run down. The pills are sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 at all medicine dealers, or from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
