Catholic Consecration.

THE RIGHT REV. RONALD MACDONALD, D.D.
Consecrated Bishop of Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.
BY THE BISHOP OF ARCHAIC

The procession having arrived in the Sanctuary, and the Consecrator being seated on his Pulpit, in the middle of the Altar, all the Bishops rose, and the Right Rev. Dr. Sweeney, Bishop of St. John's, in his capacity as Senior Bishop, addressed the Consecrator thus:
"Right Rev. Father, our Holy Mother the Catholic Church prays that you would raise this Priest here present to the Episcopal charge."
Consecrator—Have you an Apostolic Commission?
Senior Bishop—We have.
Consecrator—Let it be read.
All sat down and the Secretary read the Apostolic Briefs:
As the Oath had been administered already in the Vestry, the Consecrator proceeded with the

EXAMEN

The Order established of old by the Holy Fathers, teaches and commands that whoso is elected to the Episcopal Order shall be beforehand diligently examined in all charity, concerning the Doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and shall be questioned as to the divers revelations and virtues, suitable to this charge, and this practice must needs be maintained according to the warning of the Apostle: "Lay hands hastily on no man." But that he is to be ordained may learn how it behoves him, when appointed to this dignity, to behave in the Church of God, that they who lay hands on him may be free from blame. In virtue of this authority and commandment we now ask of thee well-beloved Brother in sincere charity whether thou be ready, in so far as thy nature permits, to conform thy judgment to the maxims of Divine Scripture,

HE SPEAKS THROUGH THE VOICE OF HIS VICAR.

The Bishop-elect then slightly rising covers his head, and replies:—
"With my whole heart I am willing to conform thereto, and to obey it in all things."
Consecrator—Wilt thou by word and example teach the people for whom thou art to be ordained, what thou learnest from the Divine Scriptures?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou reverently receive, teach and observe the traditions of the orthodox Fathers, as well as the Decretal letters and Constitutions of the Holy and Apostolic See?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou, in all things show fealty, subjection and obedience, according to canonical rule, to B. Peter the Apostle, to whom God gave the power of binding and loosing; and to his Vicar our Lord Pope Leo XIII., and to his successors, the Roman Pontiffs?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou in thy manners refrain thyself from all evil, and inasmuch as thou art able, by the Lord's help, change them for the better?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou, with God's help, keep and teach chastity and sobriety?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou ever be engaged in Divine things, and estranged or far as human frailty will permit, from earthly cares and sordid gains?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou in thine own hearing, observe humility and patience, and teach the same to others?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—Wilt thou for the sake of the Lord's name be gentle and tender to the poor and to strangers and to all who suffer want?
Bishop-elect—I will.
Consecrator—May the Lord grant thee these and all other good things, and keep thee and strengthen thee in all goodness.
All—Amen.
Then he questioned him as to his belief.
After the celebration of High Mass the Rev. Father Ryan; S. J., preached

AN ELOQUENT AND POWERFUL SERMON from I Cor. iv. 1. 'Let a man so look upon us as the Ministers of Christ, and the mysteries of God.' In his opening remarks the preacher spoke of our Lord's appeal to public opinion when he would teach the world who he is. 'Who do men say the son of man is?' The answers were various. Simon and Peter answered and said 'Thou art Christ the son of the living God.' This noble profession of faith was nobly rewarded, for then and there Christ promised to Peter the primacy of his church. To the question: 'WHAT DO MEN SAY THAT A CATHOLIC BISHOP IS?' the replies would be just as various. But St. Paul gives the answer: 'He is the Minister of Christ and dispenser of the mysteries of God.' This was the answer of faith: The ceremony of consecration is not a mere external symbol. The consecration is sacramental: It signifies and sanctifies. Like the Omnipotent Word of God it does what it says by saying it. He spoke and they were made: 'He commanded and they were created.' His ministers commanded and his bishop is consecrated—a wonderful power that God gives to man. You shall best understand the nature of the power by reflection on the consequences of its exercise. Think of

THE DIGNITY, MERIT, AND THE GLORY OF THE CATHOLIC EPISCOPATE.
The dignity of a Catholic Bishop consists of what he is; his merit in what he does; and his greatest glory in what he suffers for the cause of God. Christ is the anointed of God in his triple character of Prophet, Priest, and King. His kingdom is twofold—internal and external. His internal kingdom is the mind and heart of men; his external kingdom is the Church. In ruling this twofold kingdom he has been mercifully pleased to use the Ministry of men. He calls them and consecrates them and sends them to continue the mission that he began, in summoning and sending which gives him the power and obedience of faith. His duty is to feed the minds of men. The Holy Ghost, the spirit of truth, gives to the bishop in consecration the power to teach and interpret the inspired Word, and his office as minister of the king and of our souls. As St. Patrick calls him, is to lead souls to salvation by showing the way of truth and right. The compendium of all God's wonders is found in the blessed sacrament. 'He hath made a memorial of all his wonders,' and this memorial he has given to his Minister, the Catholic Bishop, who now is not only able to feed the mind but the heart of men.

THE PRIEST HAS THE WONDERFUL POWER OF FORGIVING SINS.

But this power he receives from the Bishop, and in this will be seen the peculiar and sacramental character of the episcopal office. As St. Thomas puts it: 'The Priest has power over the real body of Christ, the blessed sacrament; the Bishop over the mystic body of Christ—the Church. The priest's over the real body of Christ is personal and does not necessarily depend on external communion with Christ's Vicar. The Bishop's power over the mystic body of Christ is official, and does essentially depend for its exercise on actual communion with the Pope. Here is seen the dignity of the Episcopal character, Christ when in the form of God, took upon himself the form of a servant.

THIS IS A WONDERFUL MYSTERY;

but almost a greater mystery is that which had been witnessed to-day. He who was in the form of a servant has, by consecration, taken the form of God; and this that he may become the perfect minister of the mysteries of God. In concluding, the preacher spoke of the two qualities required in the Catholic Bishop. As a minister of Christ he must be faithful and true. He paid a tribute to Bishop MacDonald, whose loyalty and truth to his people is best seen in his works. The above is but the mores outline of the discourse, which was finally delivered and made a profound impression.

BISHOP SWEENEY.

in the prescribed liturgical words, postulated the high office of Bishop for the Bishop-elect. The Papal mandate, or bull, was then read by the Assistant High Priest, and the ceremonial proceeded. At the conclusion of the consecration the new Bishop walked around the Church, giving his benediction to the people. The Mass sung was that known as 'Miss Royale,' and was very effectively rendered by the Choir of the Chapel. The service, except inasmuch as the consecration is added to the ceremonial, differs in no respect from the ordinary celebration to be witnessed in any Catholic Church. The effect, however, on such occasions, as this was very different. The crowded Church, the numerous clergy, the rich robes and glittering vestments, the presence of all the prelates in the Maritime Provinces, the rarity of the occasion—for since Bishop Fraser was consecrated in Antigonish no Bishop has received the plenitude of sacerdotal authority in Eastern Nova Scotia—all united to impress the beholder and make the day memorable. Immediately after the ceremony a little girl—Miss Alice Strapp, of his diocese—met Bishop MacDonald, and presented him with a bouquet as he entered the convent, and asked him for his blessing on herself and all the little girls of Harbor Grace.

HIS LORDSHIP WAS THE RECIPIENT OF THE FOLLOWING GIFTS. Testimonial fund from the Congression $1,000. Pectoral Cross and chain, value $150 from private friends. Crozier from Brother Priests. Ring set in amethysts, from a private friend. A Ring valued at $40 from Indians in congregation. Three mitres from a private friend. Pectoral stoli, enature and gremial, made of gold cloth, and studded with precious stones; from private friends. The vestments worn at the ceremony were presented by the children of Mary Harbor Grace. The racket gloves and silk stockings worn at the ceremony were presented by the Children of Mary, Pictou Convent.

THE NEW BISHOP.

Ronald McDonald was born in Antigonish County; and is now forty-six years of age. He commenced his classical studies at Cape George, in the school of Malcolm McLellan, whose attainments are well known in Eastern Nova Scotia. He completed his education at St. Francis Xavier's College, where he was ordained priest, October 2nd, 1859. Having very successfully discharged the duties of Professor in his Alma Mater for three years; he was sent to take charge of the Catholic Mission in Pictou, including at that time, Pictou proper, the Albion Mines; Merigomish and the Indian Island. During his ministry he had five new churches erected, of which that at Pictou has been noted for elegance of style and finish. A substantial globe house, of brick and stone, bore the best testimony to his energetic and unwearied labors.

THE GROWING WORK.

was, perhaps, the new convent opened a year ago, and already occupied by a by a comparatively large school. This edifice, one of the most commodious and symmetrically proportioned, adds not a little to the beauty of the town. In addition to this, he left at Albion Mines a large fund judiciously invested, which is to be used whenever the necessities of the place shall require a new church. Having always.

THE INTERESTS OF THE MICMAC POPULATION.

at heart; he not only attend to their spiritual wants, but also caused a school house to be built, in which all the Indian youths receive instructions and make fair progress. His congregation today numbers about one thousand sound twenty years ago it consisted of thirty-seven families. Bishop McDonald is more widely known over the Lower Provinces than any other Catholic clergyman. At home he is the ideal of his people, and the intimate friend in social life of the members of all other denominations.

(From letter of Newfoundland Correspondent of Montreal Gazette, dated 16th August.)

MINING.

We have continual reports of new discoveries of mineral deposits from the north; and these "finds" are occurring over a wide area and in districts far apart,—showing how wide-spread are our mineral treasures and what an extensive field is presented in Newfoundland to mining enterprise. It is stated that our great copper mine at Little Bay is likely to be eclipsed by another which is in course of development a few miles from the former. Some excellent specimens of copper ore have recently been brought from Cann Island, near Fogo, and wonderful accounts are received of an extensive deposit there. On another island silver ore has been found which, on analysis, yielded forty-eight ounces to the ton. Then from the western side of the island there are accounts of recent discoveries of great value. On the southern side of the Bay of Islands a copper deposit has been found so promising that a party of men, with a mining captain, have been despatched from Little Bay Mine to test it. At Pilley's Island operations are going on under promising auspices. Scores of mining grants, having an inviting appearance all over the mining regions around Notre Dame Bay, await examination, the holders having no means of working them. We want more capital for the development of our great mineral resources. Mr. Eilershausen, to whose enterprise and energy, in connection with mining, Newfoundland is so deeply indebted, has just concluded a most favorable arrangement with a wealthy London Mining Company, which will enable him to prosecute the development of the numerous mining properties which he holds on a more extensive scale than ever. A Syndicate of American mining capitalists made him an offer some time ago, and a company was formed; but negotiations with them having terminated, the new arrangement referred to, which is of the most satisfactory character, has been entered into. Mr. Eilershausen is expected here shortly should the French Shore question be settled in our favor as we confidently expect, all restrictions in regard to the mining and settlement on that part of the coast will be removed. It is believed by those who are best informed on the subject that there are immense mineral deposits on the French Shore; and owing to the preposterous claims of the French our Government cannot at present issue licenses which will cure holders in possession and enable them to work. This wretched dog-in-the-manger policy cannot surely go on forever. Negotiations are in progress, and Sir William Whiteway is in London watching the proceedings.

FOUR DAYS ON A BATTERED HULL.

THE CREW OF THE SPANISH BARQUE "ARETHUSA" SAVED BY A "SUNBEAM."

The barquentine Sunbeam, Captain Wolger, arrived to Edwin Duder, Esq; last night, with the officers and crew of the wrecked Spanish barque Arethusa. The Sunbeam left Pernambuco for this port on the 4th July. She experienced strong winds and boisterous sea, almost from the time of sailing, but nothing else specially worthy of note transpired until August 17, when at 9 30 a m, in latitude 22.30 north, longitude 45 29 west, the hull of a vessel from which signals of distress were fluttering, was descried from the masthead. The Sunbeam's course was at once shaped for the disabled vessel, and as it appeared that immediate assistance was called for, every effort was made to render it with as little delay as possible. On running up, alongside the dismantled hull, Captain Wolger ascertained that the object rolling on the water close by him was all that remained of the once full-rigged barque Arethusa of 500 tons. In a few minutes a shattered and unseaworthy boat pulled towards the rescuing party, and the emaciated and almost exhausted occupants were cheerfully received on board. The remainder of the ill fated barque's crew, Captain Wolger was informed, were on a rudely-constructed raft astern of the hull. These were forthwith taken off and conveyed to the Sunbeam by the hardy and generous-hearted seamen of that ship. The Arethusa was then boarded and found to be in a sinking condition, with the water already between deck. Captain Wolger, however, remained by the wreck until late in the evening, and his crew, who worked with that cheerfulness so peculiar to British seamen under such circumstances, succeeded in saving the clothing, &c., belonging to the Spanish officers and crew. When night closed in the Sunbeam resumed her course, leaving the unfortunate barque to sink beneath the waves. The Arethusa, it seems, was bound from Barcelona to Havana with general cargo. Four days previous to the fortunate appearance of the Sunbeam, a terrible hurricane was experienced, during which the spars were carried away, bulwarks smashed in, everything swept off the decks, and hull so battered by the sea that it was found impossible to keep her afloat. As the vessel settled down in the water, the seas washed over everything. The crew suffered terribly. Working night and day at the pumps, their legs frightfully swollen from constant exposure to the sea, and without a boat capable of affording them a chance of reaching land or some friendly sail, the agony of mind they endured can neither be imagined nor described. Indeed they all agree that they could not have survived twenty-four hours longer without assistance. Captain Wolger and his crew did all in their power to make the shipwrecked men as comfortable as possible; and the latter fully appreciate their kindness. Just before going to press, Signor Don Jose Fronscky, Vice-Consul for Spain, called at our office with Captain Kibalti and his mate, and, on behalf of themselves and crew, desired us to publicly thank Captain Wolger and his gallant tars for their noble conduct during the rescue, as well as for the warm-hearted treatment the shipwrecked crew received while on board the Sunbeam. The Spanish seamen, on landing, were kindly received by the Consul and carefully provided for. We understand they will be sent home by the first opportunity.—Telegram, Sept. 3.

Holloway's Pills.—This cooling Medicine has the happiest effect when the blood is overheated and a tendency of inflammatory action is set up in the system; one Pill taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, flatulency—indications of a weak stomach; or disordered bowels. A few Pills taken at bed time act as alteratives and aperients, they do not relieve the bowels but regulate every organ connected with them, overcome all acid humors; and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and beget a feeling of comfort in hot climates and high temperatures, which is most desirable for preservation of health.

We are pleased to be in a position to state that it is the intention of the Railway Company to give contracts for the coming fall and winter for the cutting down of a quantity of Railway sleepers. We hope they will not forget "this Carbonear of ours," and that they will have a goodly pile for early Railway operations as it will be badly needed. Now do the Government and the people see the utility of completing Pike's Road through to Heart's Delight this season. We hope our member will have his eye to business, and the interests of the people at heart.

Since Wednesday last the people of the North Shore have done very well with the fish. As soon as the weather was favorable for them to launch their boats they proceeded to the scene of their labor and were fully compensated. Wednesday the Bay-de-Verd boats loaded. The Island Cove boats also done well. The Northern Bay and Job's Cove boats caught from one to two quintals per man, and all along the shore they done equally as well.

A short time since, at Western Bay, a man named Kensiel went on board Mr Frost's trading schooner to purchase a barrel of flour, and a very few minutes after alighting on the deck he dropped dead. We have not ascertained the cause of death as there was neither a post mortem examination or a magisterial enquiry. He was buried without a word save a prayer. Who knows, we can't judge. But where is the Conception Bay Medical Society, or are all the Government Officials asleep.

We noticed sometime last year in a Saint John's journal something relative to the distribution of poison in the woods for the purpose, we suppose, of poisoning foxes, but which has had a very bad effect on cattle. The same thing occurred lately in Northern Bay. Last winter some men in that locality spread poison in different places for the purpose of killing foxes, and since the snow which this poison was laid on has melted the grass has been tainted with its odour, endangering christians as well as cattle, who may eat berries from the spot. There has already been one black and white cow perished from the effects of the poison, also a black fox near the same place, they are both to be seen within five yards of each other. Come Mr Penney look out for the interests of your district.

We regret to learn that the Rev. M. Hanley, P.P., Northern Bay, is about to leave the country. The Rev. gentleman is offering for sale a splendid horse and waggon,

We are called upon by a sense of duty to inform our readers that we have nothing whatever to do with the Wasp. It is the property of the Wasp Publishing Company, who hire our material and pay us for it. We ask if there are any amongst you who will refuse honest money when offered and earned.

The arrival of Sir W. V. Whiteway, on Thursday by the Hibernian, was hailed with delight by almost every inhabitant of St John's, bunting waved from many houses, and several arches were erected. A band of music accompanied him to his residence where he was the recipient of the following address:

To the Honorable SIR WILLIAM V. WHITEWAY, K. C. M. G., Premier and Attorney General of Newfoundland.

We, the undersigned inhabitants of St John's avail ourselves of this occasion of your return from England to offer you our sincere congratulations and a hearty welcome.

We desire to testify our sense of the deep interest evinced by you in all that relates to the general welfare of this colony.

We have viewed with deep concern and sincere gratification the efforts put forth by you for its advancement, and in particular the manly energy independence and ability displayed by you in initiating and prosecuting the work of Railway construction in Newfoundland. We assure you that in this grand project, so essential and so certainly calculated to promote all the best interests of our common country, you possess the confidence, sympathy and hearty co-operation of all reflecting men. Signed, J. SYME, M. MONROE, WM. PILOT, M. HARVEY, R. J. PARSONS, ST. A. M. MACKAY, DAVID SCLATER, And many others.

REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,—It affords me deep and heartfelt pleasure to receive your sincere congratulations and cordial welcome on my return to Newfoundland; with this expression of your confidence in me. This gratification which you this day afford me, I can hardly find language to express; would that my works merited the praise you so generously bestow. I have only with others endeavored to do my duty in the position in which the country has placed me. I have been honored as the instrument for carrying its wishes into effect. To have your approbation in what has been accomplished, to see in prospect the advancement of our common country, is, indeed, a magnificent reward.

I have always viewed Newfoundland as a field of vast richness, exclusive of her well known fisheries, and I have long looked forward to the day when her mineral and agricultural wealth would be developed; that day of prosperity I believe to be near. We have taken initiatory steps in such a direction; but I pray you to remember that much yet requires to be done. We must not relax our labors; continuous efforts, under Divine guidance can alone attain success. Let us therefore gird ourselves for work, and then I am confident that no great length of time will elapse before Newfoundland will stand in the foremost rank of Her Majesty's colonies. Again expressing my gratitude for your kind reception, I am, gentlemen, yours faithfully. Signed, WILLIAM V. WHITEWAY. St. John's, Nfld, 7th Sept., 1881.

The schooner 'Mary M.' belonging to Messrs N Stebb & Sons, arrived from Labrador on Sunday night, having sailed from Domino on Thursday. Her reports respecting the lower part of the shore are by no means encouraging. From Indian Tickle north, comparatively little had been done. Several of the fleet had returned South poorly fished and with no prospect of making up anything like an average catch. The weather, too, proved very unfavorable for fish-drying up to the time the 'Mary M.' had left, and an immediate change for the better was necessary to prevent the gloop fish from spoiling. As far south as heart from, fair voyages have been secured; and in some harbors the herring fishery had commenced with favorable prospects.—Telegram.

The examinations before the commencing Magistrate (Judge Courroy) were completed to-day and resulted in Messrs. Crichton, Norman and Heale being committed for trial. The accused were released on bail, to appear on the 21st November in the Supreme Court. D. J. Greene, Esq., has been retained by the defendants—Telegram Sept. 8.

WRECKS AT LABRADOR—By the arrival of the Labrador mail, intelligence have been received of the loss of several craft on the coast during the recent gales that have prevailed there. Three of these craft belonged to this place. The first of them, the schooner Helen McGregor, was lost on the 27th July by striking on a rock in Flagstaff Tickle near Hopedale. When the water fell she broke in two and went to bottom. This vessel was in charge of Mr John Meaney, a dealer in charge of Mr John Munn & Co., and at the time of the disaster had on board no fish. She was a schooner of 45 tons and was owned by Messrs John Munn & Co.

The second, the George S Fogg, was owned by Captain Nicholas Fitzgerald and was driven ashore on the 24th of August at the Farm Yards. She had a quantity of fish in at the time.

The other was the Ornament belong to Messrs Paterson & Foster. We have not heard particulars. The tonnage of last two mentioned craft was 103 and 51 tons respectively.

Besides these craft we hear of the loss of three or four others belonging to the Northward. Amongst them was a vessel owned by Captain Barber of Swain's Island. This vessel, unfortunately, had a full load of fish on board at the time of the disaster.—Standard.

TAKE NOTICE—On the 13th December last Miss Fanny Coleman, a native of this town, died at the New Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, Scotland. As no clue to her relatives can be obtained by a party in town who has made careful enquiry, if this should meet the eye of any relative we shall be glad to furnish the name of the gentleman, and he or she may hear of something to their advantage from him. We will be obliged if the newspaper in the colony will copy this paragraph Times.

Married—At Hearts' Content, on Saturday last, 3rd inst., at the residence of Alfonso Coopard, Esq., by the Rev. Richard Walsh, C. C. Carbonear, Mr. Charles P. Wallace, of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, to Miss Elodie Debroisse of St Pierre.

To the memory of Mary Joseph, wife of Mr John Thomey, who died at Harbor Grace, July 22nd, 1881.

When a child she was loved for her gentle emotions
Her faithful obedience to parents and friends
Her duty to God and her fervent devotion
Proved she often reflected life's pleasures would end.

Though young, but unteent, with consent of her parents
She married, left Small Point and lived in sweet peace
Eighteen months scarce passed, mortal aid unavailing,
She succumbed to death at her home Harbor Grace.

Farewell Loving wife, and faithful companion,
Farewell beloved sister your troubles are o'er,
By sorrowing friends your death is lamented
From Bay of Conception to bleak Labrador.

Let us hope you're but gone to a home that's eternal
Where peace everlasting you are destined to share
Though divided by death, yet death may unite us
So we will remember you Mary by prayer.

LITERARY.

LOVE'S FROLIC.

Imitated from Anacreon for Yule-tide.

(PETER SPENSER, B. A., Author of "PARVULA.")

When my weary, worn out eyes
Closed, to seek a willing peace,
And the moon, in midnight skies,
Glitter'd like a shilling-piece,
At my door there came a knock,
O'er my brain a dizziness,
Through the window-pane I look—
'Holloa! what's your business?'

There I saw a little boy,
Frosty-faced and shivering;
Forty arrows, like a toy,
Beat his back, a quiver in.
Let me in he cried, 'till day—
Lost my road in joggin' on;
I possess the means to pay,
Put your board a noggin on.

'Men by mercy show the God—
Don't be stupid, pondering;
If you send me on the road,
I shall die in wandering.'
'Enter in,' said I, 'my lad!
Pale your cheeks and spectre like;
Here's a fire to make you glad,
Here's a bottle nectar-like.'

To the dying flame he drew,
There he took a seat awhile;
And his color backward flew,
As he warm'd his feet awhile.
Then he dried his moisten'd hair,
Then he took a sup or two,
Then he humm'd a merry air,
Rose, and tried a hop or two.

But when he beheld his bow,
All his joints seemed sinuous;
'Sure,' he cried 'tis spoilt by snow,
And he twang'd contumacious.
'If 'tis hurt, unhappy I,
Speedy death, my due it is!
You shall be my bullock's eye,
While I see if 'true it is.'

Ere against I could exclaim,
Fearing some ill-luck in it,
At my heart he took an aim,
And his arrow stuck in it.
'That's a hit—my bow is right,
Now,' says he, 'away for it!
Through a pain he took his flight,
And left poor me to pay for it.

Surely Not.

'Surely not!' said Mrs. Seymour St. Leger to her daughter Augusta; 'surely not. It is preposterous to think of such a thing. You must dismiss the idea from your mind at once, and not give way to any sentimental nonsense. Why, what can you be thinking of? You know you have little or no fortune, and his uncle, I am sure, does not allow him more than five hundred a year! Absurd, Augusta! It must not be thought of for an instant. Why there is not enough to buy shirt buttons for him, much less to pay your milliner. And Mrs Seymour St. Leger, who got so heated in urging her objections as to speak of such unheard of things as shirt buttons, fanned herself; and then said again, 'Surely not.'

'And why not, mamma?' asked her daughter.
'You make me angry, Augusta, by asking such frivolous questions,' said Mrs. St. Leger, 'You ought to know what is due to your position in life. I am sure I have tried to teach you to give proper attention to such matters.' And to do Mrs St Leger justice, she had done her best to make her daughter as worldly-wise as possible. 'It would be very different if you were in the same position as your cousins,' she resumed. 'If one of them were headstrong enough to fall in love with a poor cstrate, or something equally dreadful, it would not matter quite so much, for their immense interest and patronage would be able to find him a good living at once, and plenty of promotion afterward. But it is necessary, absolutely necessary, that you and your sisters, above all girls, should take care to secure for yourselves a good position in life. try to look at the matter in a sensible light, and don't nourish such girl notions. Who would call on you if you marry Mr Egerton?'

'I don't care about people calling, mamma,' said Augusta. 'Nonsense!' said Mrs St Leger, using her fan vigorously. 'And where would you live, I should like to know? You would be obliged to go to Bloomsbury or Finsbury, or some equally out-of-the-way place. No; the idea must be given up at once, Augusta, and if you won't write to that effect I will.'

'I cannot tell him a lie, mamma,' said Augusta.
'As if there was any necessity to do so,' said Mrs St Leger. 'I will manage all that; I am sure Mr Egerton will take good care not to send any more of his offers here. You must not wed with any parvenu like him.'

Mrs St Leger forgot herself here, as she saw the moment she had uttered the last sentence.

'He is not a parvenu, mamma,' said Augusta, her colour rising. 'He is as good as we are, and if he were rich, there would be no objection. I will answer the letter myself, mamma. I think it will be better, and it certainly is right, that I should. And now I think we have talked enough about the matter.'

'Take care not to commit yourself,' was the mother's reply.

To tell the truth, Mrs. St. Leger was rather afraid of her daughter; she could not understand her. 'She is such a remarkable girl,' she used to say to her intimate friends; and on this particular occasion judging that further remonstrances would be useless, she held her peace.

In the estimation of her friends Mrs St Leger was a clever and lucky woman. Left a widow with four daughters and an income of something like twelve hundred a year, she had contrived to keep up an establishment and appearance similar to that sustained by her husband during his life. Her cousin, the earl, let her have her house in Wilton place rent free; her brother-in-law, who came into her husband's estate, gave her a new carriage and a pair of horses. She had the use of his box at the opera, which was the same as taking one for herself, for herself, for he never went, and he had no wife to use it. She and her daughters were to be met at most places.

Holloway's Pills.—This cooling medicine has the happiest effect when the blood is overheated and a tendency to inflammatory action is set up in the system; one Pill taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, fulness, and flatulency—indications of a weak stomach; or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bed time act as alteratives and aperients, they do not relieve the bowels but regulate every organ connected with them, overcome all acrid humors; and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and beget a feeling of comfort in hot climates and high temperatures, which is most desirable for preservation of health.
