WHAT'S BRED IN THE BONE.

CHAPTER V.

"Après Mardi le deluge!" exclaimed her ladyship, dolefully. "Oh, Marie, what a Lenten season we shall be entering after our two months' carnival here! Sackcloth and ashes for nine months, before the dear damp and that sweet north wind come to prostrate me again. Do you know, when I die—at it again, you see—I'm thinking of asking Dick to post me over to Pere-la-Chaise instead of disturbing the ashes of his forefathers. Birdie would be sure of an occasional cotton then, when she came to drop a tear upon my grave. What do you say, mon Capitain? Wouldn't that be a good idea—eh?"

Birdie was of opinion that she would not care to dance a cotillon if her dear mamma were dead, unless indeed for the sake of all the lovely little bouquets the gentlemen would give her, and which she would, of course, immediately carry in a basket to ornament the grave, as she saw the little girls doing the Sunday she went with Louise to the cemetery. Yes, perhaps for that sacred purpose she would like to dance a cotillon now and then, but for no other—if her mamma were dead.

Venus' attire was another source of annoyance to her ladyship, for the maker of the mysterious mailots, about which I had heard so much, suddenly fell ill after taking her measure, and the garment had to be finished by the costumer's sister, who was an inferior artist. At last, however, after many disappointments and delays, the whole classical costume arrived, and one evening when I was busy writing to the convent, Birdie's eyes distended with wonder and admiration, burst into my room and summoned me down-stairs.

"Come down quick—quick, Miss Bernard, and see them both dressed—not dressed 'tactly, but ready for the picture! And you'd never know Birdie was a girl at all—never! She's just like the dear little fat boy with the wings on Jane's valentine. She looks lovely, she does! If I was Birdie, I'd never become a stupid old girl again; I'd grow up a boy, I would. Oh, quick, Miss Bernard—come quick!"

I went down and for one moment stood upon the threshold of the dressing-room, transfixed with admiration scarcely able to realize that the two still figures standing out against a curtain of crimson velvet were real flesh and blood; stood gazing at them in almost reverent delight, as I had often gazed at the solemn marbles in the Louvre, until poor little Cupid broke the spell with a piteous whispere.

"Mammy, mammy, I want it sneeze! And then Venus' waven ar dropped, the amorous smile faded from her face, and she burst into a hearty girlish laugh.

"From the sublime to the ridiculous is certainly but a short step with you, Birdie! Well, Miss Bernard, we sh-

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

ly await your verdict. Are you satisfied with the effect we produce? Are we up to your expectations—eh?"

I replied haltingly, gaspingly, that the picture was exquisite—classical, artistic—that I had never seen anything like it before—that I was not disappointed—oh, not in the least!

And I thought—thought in sacred bewilderment amazement, can it be possible that she means to appear like that before half Paris—that she, the wife of an honorable English gentleman, the mother of his children, will stoop to exhibit herself like that shameless woman who had so shocked me at my first visit to the theatre a few nights before. Oh, she could not mean it! It was a joke, a rehearsal for my edification alone. Of course, it was that—how stupid of me to have understood at once—how very stupid!

"Well, well," she broke in, with an impatient frown, "are those few halcyon days your whole stock of appreciation? I say, Marie, did you ever see anything so truly exquisite as that drapery from the left shoulder sn't each fold simply a dream of art? Monsieur actually created every one of them with his own master finger. He took more interest in my appearance than in that of all the others together. He said his Venus was to be the piece de resistance, the chef-d'œuvre of the whole performance. Of what till you see the effect with a background of dark foliage, in a glow of Elysian light!"

"Then—then that is your whole costume? You are to appear like that? Nothing is to be altered—changed—changed!"—with a little shriek. "Good heavens, Marie, I'd as soon think of chopping off my arms as of changing a single fold, a soupcon of a wrinkle! Oh, it's easily seen that you don't know moustier, nor realize what his dominion is in Olympus! Change indeed!" Then very sharply, "And pray what do you profess to see, Miss Bernard, that requires change or alteration? One would imagine that any one with the faintest perception of love of art would—would—"

"I know, I know; I don't deny it, perfection as—as a work of art," I blundered out. "It isn't that, Lady Nesbitt, at all."

"Then pray what is it? Speak out clearly, Miss Bernard, if you please!" "It's only—only that perhaps Sir Richard won't like your looking so very—very—"

"So very what—what?" "So very like a statue." Her face crimsoned with anger, her low voice was tremulous as she answered: "I understand you. I know what you mean now. You dare to insult me again—you, my paid dependant, my servant. You dare to reproach me, your mistress—me, a married woman, to—insinuate that my husband's mind is as narrow, as tainted with false prudery, as—as demoralized as yours! Demoralized—yes, I repeat the word, for I call it a demoralized mind that sees wrong, in-delicacy, sin, in the most innocent harmless things, as yours invariably does, Marie Bernard, judging, condemning, reproving harshly and foolishly, seeing the—the what do you call it?—in every one's eyes but your own, seeing—"

"Mammy, I hear pappy coming up the stairs! Mayn't he come in and see you, too? Oh, he'll want to come in, I know! Birdie told him you were going to dress up to-day."

The color faded from Lady Nesbitt's face, and she bit her lip; then, after a moment's pause, said:

remain on the scene, I hurried to my room and, leaving the children in charge of Louise, went on to visit an old school friend, who lived on the other side of the Seine, and who kept me chatting till it was past the usual dinner hour.

Louise, in an unabated condition of sympathy and excitement, accented me in the hall on my return, and begged me to go in and try to console her poor little mistress, who, she declared, and been lying on her bed in a most pitiful state ever since I left.

"And moustier?" I asked. Monsieur had gone out like a husband on the stage, and had never come in since, and the cook was at her wits' end about the dinner, and Birdie—la pauvre cherie—had gone to sleep at last, clasping to her heart the little maillot rose, which she said her cruel papa had ordered to be burned in the fire at once! And, oh, it had been a terrible scene; she, and Seraphine the cook, and Cle-mence, and Monsieur William, had not been able to eat a morsel of dinner, they were so enraptured with excitement!

I went into the child's room first, and gently tried to remove the wretched pink rag on which the little tear-stained face was pillowed; but even in her sleep she resisted the movement so energetically that I had to desist.

"No, no; you must not take it, you wicked, wicked pappy! Burn all my toys, my dolly's new house, my tricycle, if you like; but if you take my Cupid things, I'll never love you again—never, never! Oh, cruel pappy, don't!"

In the next room I found my mistress lying, as the maid had described, upon her bed, all the paint washed off her face by her tears, her classical drapery crushed and trampled on the floor. As I stooped over her, she opened her heavy eyes and looked up at me with sullen resentment.

Makes Hair Grow.

McMurdo & Co. have an invigorator that will grow hair or money back. The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Growth, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed. A large bottle for 50c.

CALLED TO BE SAINTS.

Who are the Saints? The men of old, Who live in Scripture's sacred story. With halo round their head, of gold, And thronged above in realms of glory.

Who are the Saints? Not these alone, But men, plain folk, who here are living. Their God to serve, their Christ to own, And for His life, their own lives giving.

Who are the Saints? The men who pray Upon their feet as well as kneeling; And speak to God each working day, As well as when church bells are pealing.

Who are the Saints? The men who work And take Christ with them in their labour; Nor lag behind, nor ever shirk Duty to God and to their neighbor.

Who are the Saints? The men who fight: Fight against Devil and Temptation; Fighting as ever in God's sight; Fighting no matter where their station.

Who are the Saints? The men who sin, But pardon crave for their behaviour. And own their guilt and cleanse it in The blood shed for them by their Saviour.

Who are the Saints? The men who live The kindly life of Christ's own teaching; Living to help—to lead—to give; Practising good, not merely preach-ing.

Who are the Saints? The men who die—Sinners whom Jesus saints has made Saints through His grace—yes, you and I. Comrades—Christ's own redeemed Brigade. —Rev. A. J. Townend.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of MATHIEU'S SYRUP of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts makes it amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the diseases of the throat, the bronchial tubes and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

Waterbury, N.S., Dec. 27, '07. Filimore & Morris, Amherst, N.S. Dear Sirs,—Herewith we enclose our cheque $15.00 in settlement of our account to date. W. O. COOK & SON.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

They say that if you are willing to buy outright, to wait long enough and to take reasonable gains, you can be practically sure of making money on the stock exchange.

I don't know much about that. My one and only experience certainly hasn't given me reason for such an opinion.

But I do know of one direction in which, if you wait long enough, are willing to take reasonable gains, use discretion and common sense, and know what you want far enough ahead, you are absolutely sure of making money—or rather saving it. That is exactly the same thing.

And that is in bargain hunting. The bargain-crazy woman who will buy anything at all, whether she has any use for it or not, if only it is advertised as a great bargain, is often ridiculed, and I think she deserves all she gets. But there is a sane and legitimate kind of bargain hunting, of which I think every woman of limited income absolutely ought to be mistress.

A neighbor of mine who has had to make every cent of her household money tell, practices this to perfection. Let me briefly describe her methods to you.

This woman devotes a day at the beginning of each season to taking stock of everything in her house, of her husband's clothing, her own, the children's, the bedding, the linen, the furniture, the kitchen utensils, etc.

And at the end of this stock taking, she plans out the family wardrobes for the coming year, and then makes careful lists of all the articles that must be bought during the next few months.

These lists she keeps in her top bureau drawer, and also, to a certain extent, in her head, and with them in view she makes a systematic study of every advertisement that comes within her reach. During bargain seasons, such as January and August, she takes two or three newspapers in order to keep in touch with all the shops. If any shop has a list of customers to which it sends advertising circulars, she makes sure that her name is on the list.

As a consequence of this systematic bargain hunting, she is able to buy almost everything she uses, at from twenty to thirty per cent under the staple prices.

For instance, at the beginning of this winter, she noted down that she would need half a dozen sheets and a dozen towels in the course of the next year. One day in January, she saw an advertisement of the sheets she always uses at twenty per cent, less than the ordinary price, and promptly bought half a dozen. In February, she found an opportunity to buy thirty-seven and a half cent towels for twenty-five cents apiece. Had she waited until her sheets and towels actually wore out in the spring, she would probably have had to pay staple prices.

She had the children's next summer wardrobes mostly planned in the fall, and by careful watching, found a chance to buy gingham for their gingham dresses at fifteen cents instead of twenty-five.

Of course, any woman would find it simpler, pleasanter and more dignified to go shopping just when she felt like it and pay staple prices.

But then, as for that, might not any man find it simpler, pleasanter and more dignified to work when he felt like it and accept a low salary, instead of working hard for a higher one?

I believe, with my neighbour, that a part of every wife's business is to use her husband's money to the best possible advantage, and surely this systematic bargain hunting is one excellent way of doing that.

Ruth Cameron

Do You Feel This Way? Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a cough, or cough, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are of known composition. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from roots without alcohol. Contains no habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

POOR HALIBUT FISHERY.—By the Fortia we learn that the halibut fishery on the S. W. Coast is almost a complete failure. Stormy weather has been the principal drawback, but the fish have been also abnormally scarce to date this season. About 200,000 lbs. of fish were shipped to different parts of Canada and consumed locally last winter, but up to date hardly a tenth of this has been secured. The Fortia this trip brought down 2,000 lbs. halibut.

HOSPITAL PATIENT.—John McMan, of Mall Bay, arrived by the Fortia yesterday and was taken to the General Hospital. He has an internal complaint.

Lecture to Holy Name Society.

The members of the Holy Name Society and their lady friends were treated to a very interesting and instructive lecture last night. We were pleased to see such a number of the fair sex present. At 8.15 the Spiritual Director, Rev. Fr. Sheehan, accompanied by the President, also the members of the Committee, appeared on the platform. In a few well chosen words the President introduced the lecturer and also announced the subject he was about to lecture on, viz.: "Our Most Holy Father, Pope Pius X." The room was tastefully decorated, and the principal attraction was a lifelike picture of His Holiness being hung on the wall. It being draped with the Papal colours and having the Irish harp and native flag suspended from each side, which presented a very pleasing appearance. In the lecturer's opinion, the remarks given a brief description of the birthplace and early life of our Holy Father, summing up some of his characteristic qualities while in the care and protection of his kind and devoted parents. His mother was well aware that he was intended for the church, and at the age of 12 he was sent to a Seminary to pursue his theological course. After his second year in the Seminary his father died, which meant a great blow to his family. He had then six years more ahead of him, and during that period studied unceasingly; and at the age of twenty-three was ordained to the holy priesthood in a little chapel which he used to visit frequently in his younger days. It was not the intention of the lecturer, as he said, to deal fully to-night on the whole of the life of His Holiness, as time would not permit him to do so, but he hoped at some future date to have the pleasure of continuing this subject, and also to have some views of the ancient city, which would be the means of creating much more interest in the subject. He also thanked the audience for the kind hearing given him and also for their large attendance. Mr. John Rolis, Chairman of the Literary and Amusement Committee, then rose and in a very elaborate speech reviewed the lecture already given. He said he had much pleasure in proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and that he was seconded by Mr. John Dea. This vote of thanks was carried by acclamation. The President then announced that another lecture would take place in the week, and also that Fr. O'Callaghan would be the lecturer. The audience was treated to selections on the gramophone by Mr. John Dea, who so very kindly placed his gramophone at the disposal of the Committee. Our genial friend, Mr. James Stapleton, must not be forgotten, who figured so largely in that part of the programme allotted to him. We hope to see a large attendance again next week, and we assure those who attend that we will do all in our power to make them feel happy whilst they are amongst us.

JAMES J. WHALEN,
St. John's, Feb. 23, 1912.

Western Star Howler.

Dear Mr. Editor.—In the "Western Star" of Feb. 7th we find a very pathetic account of the hardships undergone by the shipwrecked crew of the "Morrisey." Such are the dangers expected, and unhappily, too often experienced by "those who go down to the sea in ships" to get their daily bread. No doubt the Editor of the "Western Star" is a very erudite man, and it is not our intention to cast any reflection upon his article, but simply to get the necessary explanation of certain passages we find in the account of the "Loss of the Morrisey." With that desire in view we beg to present to your readers the following passages:—
(1) "Tuesday morning, 9th January, she again got under weigh in rock ballast." Does this mean that the ship started on her voyage? If so, is weigh the right word?
(2) "At 7 o'clock double reefed foresail was torn in riven." What are riven?
(3) "The vessel was still hove too making lee." What does this mean? We don't quite understand the use of the words way and weigh, too and to. In our text book of navigation that we use at school we are often obliged to correct the spelling of the weigh, but I thought it was spelt lee-way. No doubt there must have been something wrong with the printing machine, and it wouldn't do the words correctly. Again, reading farther on we find that "the vessel was rill to rill with ice, and she could not possibly remain afloat more than three or four hours more had she not gone ashore." To put aside the seriousness of the matter it must have been a slight word sewing to see a vessel afloat on the beach. It reminds

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure.
"Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headache," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont., "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I came to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck, and she had her so much good that she wished me to try it.
"I did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicines and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience."
The cure effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Bruce Arrived.

The S. S. Bruce arrived here at 7.30 last evening from North Sydney bringing a full freight, 238 bags of mail and 2 packages. The following passengers came in saloon:—E. E. Burns, Dr. Mitchell, Mrs. Mitchell, Miss D'Alger, A. S. Mitchell, W. Murray, J. S. Simpson, P. E. Rudolf, W. Mounce, C. Paterson, J. Smith, Messrs. Blain, Sexton, Bennett, E. Collishaw, Mrs. Collishaw, Antoni Michael, W. Birch, S. Shaw, G. Roberts, R. Moulton, J. O'Reilly, W. W. Watson, Brigadier Moresen, J. W. Morris, Mrs. Morris, T. R. McGrath, C. E. Blackie, P. J. Cleary, G. Whitty, Miss E. Henderson, Mrs. A. Stewart, Head Const. Newhook, A. W. Bishop, J. W. N. Johnstone and 40 in second cabin. While the ship was at port the capt. and officers were given a banquet by Mayor Kelly and the town council at the Belmont Hotel in honor of the first trip of the new Bruce. The health of the Reid Nfld. Co. and Capt. Spracklin were shipped and a pleasant time spent. The ship was visited by hundreds of people at North Sydney, and nearly the whole population turned out to watch the manner of her breaking up the harbor ice.

Safe in Port.

The S. S. Almeriana, Capt. Fairclough, arrived here from Halifax at 4.30 p.m. yesterday. The ship had a pretty hard experience since reaching the Newfoundland Coast, when she left Halifax at daylight on Saturday morning last and had fairly fine weather and ran south of Sable Island, but when the neighbourhood of Cape Race was reached her troubles began. This was Monday morning and she met a heavy body of tough slob ice which extended away to sea and it was found next to impossible to steam through it. The ship each day attempted to get down the shore through the slob but so closely was it packed on the coast that her headway through it was slow, and though she got down to the neighbourhood of Cape Spear, all attempts to force her towards port were fruitless, and she was driven away south. Thursday evening it became stormy with a S. E. wind which reached the velocity of 40 miles off shore but the ship dragged in on the land with the slob which rafted in and yesterday morning was in a position of extreme danger. She lay on a heavy body of wind, tide and ice steadily pressing her on the coast though a full head of steam was kept up and the captain and crew spent hours of the greatest suspense and agitation. When the ship was about 2 miles off the land her anchors were dropped but did not actually check her, she was kept going till speed ahead to relieve the anchors, and all on board recognized that if anything went wrong in the engine room the ship was doomed. About daylight the minds of all were relieved when the wind veered from N. W. and canted the slob off the land giving the ship a chance to run towards the shore. She was immediately hauled off. The ship has a heavy cargo including deals, sticks, etc., on deck, and she had such a heavy list on the shore that she had to be run along the decks to enable the crew to get about, they being covered with ice for a while and dangerous to walk on. Mr. Ellis and her passenger came along in the ship. She will sail for Liverpool this evening.

Here and There.

DR. KEEGAN IMPROVING.—Dr. Keegan is still improving and there are great hopes of his recovery.

GOES TO PLACENTIA.—The S. S. Argyle sailed for Placentia at 11 last night to take up the regular service. The S. S. Home will come ash here to undergo general overhauling.

ARRIVED WITH PRISONER.—Head Constable Newhook arrived from Sydney by the Bruce last evening, bringing the prisoner Bishop who is charged with casting away the schooner Annie Raymond, on Labrador, last summer. He was taken to the police station on arrival.

SCHOOL OF WALES.—When the Portia was near Grand Bruit on Sunday last she passed quite near a school of 7 whales, which were very large and were seen by all on board the day being fine. It is a whale that had been around she might have made a haul.

WITH THE ADVENTISTS.—"The Prophetic Beast of Rev. 13: 18. The mark of his name; what is the mark?" This is an interesting and thought-provoking question asked by Elder C. H. Keslake at the Adventist Church, Cookstown Road, to-morrow night. Do not fail to hear it Seats free.

FIREMEN'S MEETING.—A special meeting of the Firemen's Union was held here last night to consider the question of a strike for higher wages on the coming sealing voyage. Hon. M. P. Gibbs, who was present, addressed the meeting and gave the most careful consideration to the question. He said that he would do more harm than good to all concerned. There was a marked diversity of opinion amongst the members. Nothing was done but another meeting will be held before the sealing voyage.

CITY TEAM SELECTED.—Last night the City Hockey 14 had a practice in the Prince's Rink, after which Messrs. W. J. Higgins, J. Vinicombe and H. Dickson, the selecting committee, appointed the local team to play the Windsorites. The names are:—Goal, S. Walsh; point, Gus Hervey (Capt.); cover, G. Marshall; rover, Collier; right, R. Stick; centre, McPherson; left, Pilsent; D. Walsh, spare man. The first match will be played this evening beginning at 9.20.

BAIT VERY SCARCE.—When the small supply of herring for bait early in January with the sparse supply of salted squid is used up the Western bankers will find it difficult to continue work we learn by the Portia. For several weeks past very little herring could be had in Fortune Bay and none could be procured from day of islands. This will also affect the ordinary fishing fleet as well, and is a bad look out for those prosecuting the Western winter fishery, and shows the necessity of some measures being adopted for the preserving of bait fishes to meet a period of scarcity.

HOCKEY TEAM HERE.—The Windsor Hockey Team arrived here last night from Sydney by the S. S. Bruce. They are: A. S. Mitchell, manager, W. Murray, H. Brayson, D. Mounson, P. Rudolf, J. L. Simpson, Roy Bennett, C. Paterson, B. Sexton and J. Smith. They are all in good condition and feel confident of winning. They had a practice this forenoon and gave a good account of themselves. The opening game will be played to-night Bennett, Paterson, Smith and Sexton were here last year. Paterson and Simpson are great skaters and are open for a half mile contest with local men.

Robinson and the Reids.

In the Daily News editorial of this morning, under the caption "Bond and the Reids," the editor makes a most unwarranted attack upon Sir Robert Bond, in fact a libellous attack, for he accuses the right honourable gentleman of "vindictiveness" in the discharge of his public duty. When the public have read Sir Robert Bond's speech, which we publish to-day, they will not fail to observe that in dealing with the subject of the Sanatoria Sir Robert could not have been more dispassionate if he had made a special effort in that direction, and as to any "vindictiveness" being displayed, they will observe that there is not the slightest foundation upon which to base such a contemptible charge. The Honourable (?) John Alexander Robinson in his editorial has written himself down the "vindictive" man, and the unscrupulous literary assassin. The Reids' might well exclaim "save us from our friends," and especially from the championship of the editor of the Daily News, who, in a not very remote period described the firm of Railway Contractors as "A huge octopus, whose tentacles should be clipped." If the Editor of the Daily News and his friends desire to publicly discuss the Reids' and their connection with the Colony, they are quite prepared to enter into the matter at a moment's notice and the Reids' will have to thank their friends (?) for the consequences.

The Police Court.

To-day a drunk was discharged and another fined $2 or 7 days. The principal in an affiliation case gave bonds. A disorderly was fined $10 or 30 days. Jno. Brien was charged with assaulting Mrs. Garland on Carter's Hill on the 23rd inst., but no penalty had been imposed up to 1 p.m. A man convicted of the larceny of a slide, valued at $1.60, the property of Edward Power, and summoned by Const. Tobin, was fined $20 or 30 days.

The case of Sergt. Noseworthy vs. M. Wain for the alleged purchasing of liquor for a boy was dismissed, the man proving his innocence. A man who assaulted and beat a woman gave bonds to keep the peace. The case of the owners of the s.s. Labrador vs. the owners of the s.s. Albenga was continued to-day and several witnesses examined.

Railway News.

The east bound express from Millerton Junction left Port Blandford at 7 a.m. to-day, following the rotary plow. The train from St. John's to Placentia is expected to arrive there this evening. The Carboner train that was stalled at Avondale left the latter place this morning without the plow. A gang of men is on ahead shovelling the snow. The Bonavista train left Trinity Junction at 3 a.m. to-day for Clarendville.

Special Evening Telegram.
Lloyd-George was chief speaker at last night's Women's suffrage. If suffrage for women were made a Govt. measure, the Chancellor said both Liberal party and Cabinet would be "hopelessly shattered," but if it were introduced as an amendment to reform bill, this would enable all its supporters irrespective of party to vote for it and the suffrage bill would be carried next year.

PARIS, To-day.
The greatest apprehension is felt throughout France regarding the threatened national coal strike in England. France gets more than half her coal from that country. The million tons yearly. Present stock is low. A national strike in Britain would paralyze many French industrial concerns.

OTTAWA, To-day.
An agreement satisfactory to both Canada and States in regard to future regulations of fisheries is understood to have been arrived at as a result of the recent conference at Washington. It is understood the terms of the agreement will not be made known until the Government of Newfoundland has been informed of outcome of negotiations.

LEHIGH, Okla., To-day.
Eight miners are known to be dead and possibly a score of others entombed and believed killed as a result of fire in Western Mine Coal Company's Gould property.

Governments

LIKE INDIVIDUALS SOMETIMES GO MAD.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I read your observations in last night's Telegram on Morris' immigration policy, and I was in the House of Assembly on Thursday afternoon when Sir Robert Bond brought to light this iniquitous undertaking. His startling revelation concerning the Government's immigration policy will awaken indignation from one end of the country to the other. Truly governments, like individuals, sometimes go mad were the significant words with which he concluded his remarks in respect to that policy, and when the public read his speech they will have little difficulty in arriving at a conclusion concerning the mental calibre of the present Government. Legislations and governments have at various times attempted by laws to benefit the working classes and it is almost unthinkable that our rulers actually entering into an agreement with periles in England to send out the walls and strays of the cities there to be educated in farming at the expense of the taxpayers of this country, to give the promoters of the scheme 50,000 acres of the best land in the country free of cost and free of taxes, and an annual grant of money besides. Thousands of our young men have left their homes during the past few years because of want of congenial employment, and now the old folks at home are to be saddled with the support of paupers to be sent out from England. What with Morris' dole, and Morris' paupers the country will soon be rich indeed.

Here and There.

WILL BE DOCKED.—The S. S. Gloucee will be docked for repairs.

S. S. BRUCE SAILING.—The s.s. Bruce will sail for North Sydney on Monday afternoon.

AT PLACENTIA.—The S. S. Argyle sailed last night for Placentia to take up her regular route.

S. S. FOGATA SAILS.—The s.s. Fogata will leave St. John's this mid-night to take the Conception Bay mails and passengers. She will call at Brigus, Carbonear and Spaniard's Bay, returning Sunday night.

MANY CHILDREN DYING.—Quite an epidemic of Grippe has broken out on Bell Island and a number of children have died of it there, ages ranging from 5 to 10 months.

HIS HAND INJURED.—Mark Murray working at the R. N. Co.'s ship Dock met with an accident this morning while rolling in flour. His hand was caught in a broken iron hoop and the flesh torn off.

BACK FROM HOSPITAL.—Miss Effie Henderson, who had been in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, returned by the s.s. Bruce last evening. She is much improved in health, though not quite recovered.

DIED IN BOSTON.—Fireman Con. Kavanagh received a word from Boston by last mail saying that his brother-in-law, Mr. John Gosse, had died there two weeks ago after an illness of only two days. He has been settled there seventeen years.

THE ADVENTURE HERE.—The S. S. Adventure, Capt. Couch, arrived this morning from Lonsburg with 1916 tons coal. She made the run in 46 hours and Capt. Couch says the Gulf is clear of ice and that it is easier to get to Sydney now than Lonsburg.

COMING ON DOG TEAM.—Capt. Bob Bartlett left Brigus this morning at 6 o'clock for St. John's on a dog team. His brother in law, Mr. W. Dove, left here this morning on snow shoes to travel to Holyrood to meet him. Capt. Bartlett will take the Neptune to the Gulf.

The 20 men of the N. S. S. Co. of Bell Island, have been replaced by others and both companies have now 1000 men each at work and are looking for more help. Great quantities of ore are being put in the stock piles and the first opportunity steamers will ply to the island to take it to the foreign markets. The season will open far earlier than last year and will be busier as the companies have big contracts to fill.

Quebec Farmer Tells Good News.

FOUND COMPLETE CURE FOR CRAMPS AND KIDNEY DISEASE.

Suffer for Six Years, but Found Health and New Life in Dodd's Kidney Pills—Praise for Old Reliable Remedy.

Marie East, Bonaventure Co., Quebec, Feb. 23. (Special).—Mr. Peter Bernard, a prosperous young farmer living near here, is spreading the good news that he has found a complete cure for his kidney troubles. "I suffered for six years from cramps in the muscles and kidney disease," Mr. Bernard says, "but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely. Yes, I am feeling so well that I want other sufferers to know just how easy it is to be cured."

It is a good old saying that it is easy to do anything if you just know how. Mr. Bernard and hundreds of others are telling you just how to cure kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure it. And as kidney disease is the direct cause of rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, heart disease, pain in the back and urinary troubles Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them by removing the cause. If you haven't used Dodd's Kidney Pills yourself ask your neighbors about them.

Dangerous Experience.

Messrs. Cohen, Hearn and Goldstone set out early Thursday morning from Bell Island to walk across the ice of the Tickle to Portugal Cove. When about half way across the ice which they traversed broke away in a large pan and started down the bay with them on it. It was only 2 or 3 inches thick and would certainly go in pieces when it would get down there in the rough water. The men had to run for it and landed under below Portugal Cove winded and exhausted. They barely managed to get ashore and had they gone out the bay with the ice all would have been drowned.

NON-COMS. ASSOCIATION.—The Non-Coms. of the Methodist Guards held a meeting last night for the purpose of forming an Association. After preliminaries had been disposed of the following officers were elected: President—Bart. Sgt. White; V.P.—Sergt. Milley; Secretary—Corpl. John's; Treasurer—Corpl. H. Barrett; Committee—Lance-Corpl. Way and Sergt. Butler from the Band; Corpls. R. Hudson and J. Ellis from the corps. Another meeting will be held on Friday night.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

When but a child I saw a bride stand blushing at the altar; sustained by high and noble pride, she did not shrink or falter. Fair orange blooms on her head, she wore a veil and bustle. "She is a LILLIAN'S ENGAGEMENT" the verger said; "her name is Lillian Russell." And when I came to man's estate, I saw another marriage; the blushing bride was simply great, of high and gently carriage. She leaned upon the bridegroom's arm — an arm of brawn and muscle. "What grace!" the verger said; "what charm! Her name is Lillian Russell!" Years passed, and manhood's prime was gone, and I was worn and jaded, when to the church one summer dawn, a wedding trove paraded. The verger, old and heavy eyed, and bent by worldly tussle, said: "Here we have the deathless bride—my dear old Lillian Russell!" Before I leave this world of grief it's little that I ask it: I'm in the sere and yellow leaf and waiting for a casket, but 'ere I've curled myself and died once more I'd like to hustle and see again that blushing bride, the star eyed Lillian Russell!

THERAPION A complete revolution has been wrought in the department of medical science, whilst thousands have been restored to health and happiness who for years previously had been merely dragging out a miserable existence.

THERAPION No. 1—A Sovereign Remedy for primary and secondary syphilis, eruptions, ulcers, pains and swellings of the joints, and all those complaints which mercury and sarsaparilla are popularly but erroneously supposed to cure. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood and thoroughly eliminates all venereal matter from the body.

THERAPION No. 2—A Sovereign Remedy for debility, nervousness, impaired vitality, sleeplessness, distaste and incapacity for business or pleasure, loss of appetite, blanching, indigestion, pains in the back and head, early excesses, etc., which the faculty is persistently ignorant, because so inveterate to cure or even relieve.

THERAPION is used by principal Chemists and Dispensaries throughout the world. It is in England No. 1 and 2. In ordering, state which of the three numbers you wish. It is in white letters on a red ground. It is sent by post free by order of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.

Therapion may now also be obtained in Drages (Tasteless) form.

At the City Hall.

Deputy Mayor Martin presided at the City Council meeting last evening. There were present also Councillors Conker, Ryan, Channing and Myrick. The Robinson Export Co. will likely be given an order for hose to be used in the parks.

Engineer Ryan reported that the work of showing the snow from the belt line was going on well. The belt line will be open next week.

Wood kindling in future will not be supplied to the Water Store without a "requisition."

Snow will be removed from Remble's Hill Road and Cunningham's Street. Mr. Power will take Michael Fogarty's place on night duty.

F. J. Morris, K. C., sent in a copy of a letter that he had sent the Colonial Secretary outlining proposed legislation that the Council is desirous of having passed. He will draft a bill to submit to the Legislature and the lines contained therein should the Council desire same.

Hon. Sir P. Morris acknowledged the receipt of a letter re the proposed legislation in connection with the City Council. He asked to have a draft submitted in order that he might lay it before the Government. This will be done.

The householders who have been wasting water by letting their pipes run will again be notified, and failing to comply with the law will be summoned. F. J. Morris, K. C., wrote saying that he had examined the deeds of the Coady property submitted by Hon. M. P. Gibbs, and found that the title was invested in Elizabeth Coady. After the Engineer's report was read, pay rolls passed the meeting closed.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Feb. 24, 1912.

It is only the first time that we have to persuade customers to buy Santal Tooth Paste, after that they ask for it regularly. It is a real triumph for a dentifrice which has not been extensively advertised to have gained such a reputation and such a vogue in a few weeks, with so many first class tooth preparations in the market already. The reason is of course especially in this case, it is pleasant to use, that is most sought after. We have consistently recommended it in the best order. Brush for using the paste with, and we attribute not a little of the success of the paste to this circumstance. The Santal Brush is quite the best and most practical of Tooth Brushes. Price, 25c. Paste, 25c. a tube.

Note From Elder Keslake

Dear Sir,—I find that not a few people are crediting me with being the author of the letter signed "Citizen" which appeared in your columns on Feb. 21. In reply to Archbishop Howley's Pastoral Letter. Kindly permit me to say I am not "Citizen." Nor was the letter written by a Seven Day Adventist. In discussing theological questions I have hitherto invariably written over my own signature, and at present have no intention of departing from that custom. Yours truly, C. H. KESLAKE, St. John's, Feb. 23, 1912.

Will Not Race.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Owing to the reports through the press and otherwise, I find it necessary to say that it is not my intention to take part in any future skating contests. I retired from competitive skating three years ago, then holding the championship for many years. I prefer seeing another competitor represent Newfoundland in the proposed race. Thanking you for space, I am, Yours truly, FREDERICK G. CHISLETT, St. John's, Feb. 24th, 1912.

A SCANNING OF THE MORRIS GOVERNMENT!

An Invincible Argument for Lower Taxation.

SPEECH OF THE RT. HON. SIR ROBERT BOND, P.C., K.C.M.G.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.
February 22, 1912.

SIR ROBERT BOND.—I rise to move an amendment to the Address in Reply to the Speech with which His Excellency the Governor opened this Legislature on the 14th inst., and in doing so I shall offer some criticisms upon that Speech. Having carefully considered the same, I am forced to the conclusion that it is more remarkable for that which it does not contain, rather than for that which it does contain, with one exception, and that I shall deal with at a subsequent stage of my remarks. It seems to me that His Excellency's speech cannot fail to be disappointing to those who have pinned their faith to the promises so profusely made, and which have been so often repeated, by the present Government. It cannot fail, I think, to be disappointing to every man, be he Tory or Liberal, who has the welfare of this country at heart. For it portrays a complete abandonment of policy and principle, that have found expression in the opening speeches of the past three sessions. We stand to-day on the threshold of a new parliamentary year, the 4th session of the 22nd General Assembly. In the ordinary course of events this would be the last session before a General Election, but, as the present Government has returned to power in May 1909, possibly we may witness another session of this Parliament before the curtain drops, and the People's Party make their final exit from this Chamber. Be this the last session or be it otherwise, it witnesses the near approach of the dissolution of the governing body, and, we might reasonably expect, therefore, that in the Speech before us there would be revealed an intention on the part of the Government to redeem the past, and to perform works meet for repentance. It is well, I think, that the responsibility for this document, which is termed "The Governor's Speech," should be clearly defined, because there are doubtless thousands in this country who verily believe that the pledges and assurances set forth from time to time in the opening Speech of the session are pledges and assurances for the fulfilment or non-fulfilment of which the representative of our Sovereign is responsible. We, in this House, of course, know full well that the opening Speech is a document prepared by the members of the Government, and is supposed to foreshadow their policy for the information of this House. The Constitution which imposes upon His Excellency the Governor the duty of delivering this Speech on behalf of his Ministers, at the same time exonerates him from all responsibility in the premises, and, for every word in the opening Speech, places the whole responsibility upon his Ministers. It is well, that it is so, it is well that it should be clearly understood that it is so; for otherwise, during the past two or three years, the Crown, which is the fountain of honour and truth, might have been brought into contempt, for, Sir, the opening Speeches have contained the most solemn obligations and pledges that have not been fulfilled. Those pledges would appear to have been given but to soothe public feeling, and to create a favourable atmosphere in which the members of the Government might pursue the even tenor of their way.

Lest We Forget.

Let us from the threshold upon which we have just stepped look backward for a few moments. In the opening Speech of the first session of the present Parliament the Government, through the lips of the then Governor, declared "that the burden of taxation borne by the fishermen and working classes of the Colony is too great, and calls for such adjustment as will lean more equitably on those who at present feel most seriously the increased cost of living in this Colony." This declaration was accompanied by an intimation that the tariff would be immediately revised. We now know that this was nothing less than a promise of cruel deception; a mere pretext of fulfilment of a pledge given by the leader of the Government a few months previous when seeking the votes of those "overburdened" people. In the manifesto issued by Sir Edward Morris to the Elector in 1908, he said,

"Reduction of taxation so that it will bear equitably on the working classes can be best accomplished by placing on the free list such items as tea, sugar, pork, and other prime necessities on which very high taxes are now imposed." If this language meant anything more than deception, then, we must regard it as a promise, that provided the "People's Party," so-called, was returned to power the tea, sugar, pork, and other prime necessities' on the free list. The paragraph in the opening Speech of the first session of this Parliament, to which I have had reference, was a renewal of that promise. Three years have now passed since that promise or pledge was given, and still the weary Titan staggers under the too vast orb of its fate. Still the "overburdened fishermen and labouring classes," as the Government admit, "feel most seriously the increased cost of living in this country," must pay duty on "tea, sugar, pork, and other prime necessities."

We Have Now Entered Upon the Fourth Year Since That All-Important Pledge Was Given to the People.

and what do we find? Why, that the pledge finds no renewal in the Speech before the House, neither is there any indication that a revised tariff is to be proposed for the adoption of this House. The weary Titan must still stagger on, the "overburdened fishermen and labouring classes" must still bond beneath the weight of "increased cost of living." The naive Deities from the height of their ministerial Olympus look down in contempt upon the people they have duped. But, while still, the extravagant and the present Government their wasteful expenditure of public money, and the enormous and most onerous obligations that they have placed upon the Colony, such revision of the tariff as I have been referring to, almost, if not altogether impossible without a reduction of the Civil List. The placing of tea, sugar and pork upon the free list would reduce the revenue by the sum of THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS per annum, in view of the obligations with which the Colony has been burdened. It would puzzle wiser heads than those of the Government to devise a revision of the tariff under which that large amount of taxation may now be dropped. In the matter then of this promised reduction of taxation the people have been most wantonly and cruelly deceived. The Government, whom no higher authority has ever lived, declared that "One of the very highest duties of all who are intrusted with the administration of public affairs is to eschew and to repudiate the raising of any expectations except what they know they can fulfill." This is a standard of ethical morality that I regret to say the present Government fall very short of. Sir, I cannot refrain from contrasting the conduct of the present Government in this connection with that of their predecessors in office. During eight years of the late Government's administration taxation was reduced by nearly a million and a half of dollars, or about TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS per annum. And I am in a position to state that if the late Government had been returned to power at the last Election, the burdens of taxation that now weigh so heavily upon all classes of the community would, long ere this, have been removed. This would have been but the sequel of the policy that I inaugurated during my term of office. Sir, there is an eternal justice in this world, and the history of nations as well as of individuals has demonstrated the truth that what men sow they shall reap.

The People Are Reaping To-Day That Which They Sowed at the Last Election.

They sowed to the wind, and they must expect to reap the whirlwind. The expenditure of borrowed millions is affording them at present a temporary shelter, but that must necessarily disappear before long, and then we shall all feel the full blast of the storm. Increase of taxation, and the reduction thereof, is what the people of this country must now look forward to.

ward. The folly of the few has made hard the lot of the many. But, to pass to another point. In the opening Speech of the first session of the present Parliament the Government declared their intention to provide a bounty for the clearing of land so as "to induce a greater number of our people to turn their attention to the cultivation of the soil." Three years have passed away since then but no bounty has been provided for the clearing of land, and as there is no mention of such a bounty in the Speech before us, we are justified in concluding that the Government have abandoned the bounty idea for the "new agricultural policy." Instead of fulfilling their pledge and encouraging a greater number of our people to turn their attention to the cultivation of the soil, they have deemed it more expedient to provide a bounty of five or six thousand dollars a year for three of their supporters in this House who are supposed to devote their attention to the formation of societies for the promotion of greater excellence in kitchen garden produce, and to warn the fishermen-farmers against the danger of producing cankerous, or what the learned Minister of Agriculture last session so aptly designated "ferve looking potatoes." I had the pleasure last session of dealing with some phases of the "new agricultural policy." I shall not repeat those observations now, although no less an authority than that great scholar and statesman, Lord Morley, in his life of Richard Cobden, declares that "repulsion is the public's most effective instrument in securing reforms," and, that "the most not shrink from incessant repetition." However, Sir, there will be many opportunities for applying this instrument of torture during the session. At this time I would only observe that the "new agricultural policy" which has taken the place of the bounty to "fishermen-farmers" promised in the opening Speech of the first session of this Parliament was truly a marvellous conception. Under the Government may secure faithful allegiance by farming out positions of emolument to their supporters in this House, or they may practice what they preach, and, as the most extensive electoral bribery in the distribution of live stock and seeds. But alas, Sir, that is not the worst phase. Under the Government has been sacrificed to party politics, and its agricultural advancement has been put back at least a generation. The late Government had, with the approval of the House, laid the foundation for a Model Farm and Experimental Station, where the boys of our country might receive a scientific and practical training in agriculture. Every civilized country in the world is to-day endeavouring to advance agriculture by such means, yet here in this country of vast undeveloped resources, and where so few avenues of employment open out to the rising generation; in this country which performs at the present time sends more than a million of money abroad for agricultural produce that might be raised at home, we find a Government which flouts before the public as the "People's Party."

Denying to the Children of the People they Represent the Advantages that are Everywhere else Afforded.

Sir, can you conceive of anything more unpatriotic or unjust? Can you conceive of a greater breach of confidence and trust? A Government like a trustee is responsible for the proper administration of the estate. If a trustee betrays the confidence reposed in him as such he is very properly indicted before the courts of law and punished. Thank God there is a Court before which the present Government may be indicted for the maladministration of the vast estate for which they are trustees, and that is the high Court of public opinion. Before that Court I indict them this day. While on this subject of Agriculture, there is, I would remark, another very grave omission in the Speech under review. There is no reference whatever to the Government's immigration policy. They had such a policy in view, for, in the opening Speech of the second session of this Parliament we were told that measures were "being devised for the settlement of unemployed lands along the line of railway by the establishing there of farming colonies composed of suitable agricultural emigrants from the British Isles." Two years have passed away since then but we have no "farming colonies" established along the line of railway, and this House and the public have been left entirely in the dark as to the measures that were "being devised" to bring about the immigration referred to. What were the measures that two years ago were "being devised"? What class of emigrants did the Government propose to bring in here? For two years this House and the public have been living in a state of expectancy, wondering what the scheme could be that was taking so long time to "devise," and what class of people we were to be added to the population of the Colony. Last year fifty-eight thousand persons emigrated from the rural districts of Scotland owing to the increasing burden of rates or taxes. Was any attempt made by the Government to induce those people, or any of them, to settle in this Colony? Will be admitted, I think, that no more desirable emigrants could possibly be found than those brawny, branny, thrifty folk. Was that class of emigrants ever permitted to flow past our doors without any effort being made to turn at least a portion of it this way? The Government have admitted that the burden of taxation borne by the fishermen and working classes is too great. Then, if that is true, why do they not endeavour to induce suitable emigrants to come here and share that burden of taxation with our people? In this matter they have been exceedingly remiss, and in their conduct of the financial affairs of the Colony, and that is saying a good deal. Are you unaware, Sir, that the Government have, in their endeavour to induce a suitable emigrant to come here and help bear the burden of taxation, they have been actually aiding a scheme to bring pauper children here and which would entail increased burdens on this Colony? Such is the truth.

Let Me Draw Aside the Curtain and Let in the Light on This Matter.

Shortly before this immigration policy was announced by the Government through the lips of His Excellency the Governor, some philanthropic gentleman in England had inaugurated a scheme to procure the emigration, to the Colonies of the Empire, of pauper children, or the waifs and strays of large cities of Great Britain. The scheme was approved by the Premier of this Colony. It was approved by the Government, and the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, on behalf of the Government, pledged this Colony to extraordinary liberality in the furtherance of the scheme. He undertook to give the promoters "FREE GRANT OF FIFTY THOUSAND ACRES of the best land in the Colony," "with exemption from taxes; to give them 'a bonus on all areas cleared of timber'; to give them 'an annual grant of money for teachers' salaries'; and, to give them 'a grant for school buildings.'" I notice, Sir, an appearance of incredulity on the faces of some honourable members, and I am not surprised at this, for it is difficult to conceive that such a scheme could have met with the approval of the "People's Party." Yet, Sir, the facts as I have given them are vouchered for in a pamphlet published by the promoters of the scheme. We have no waifs or strays or pauper children, such as exist in the great cities of the world, in this country. I am thankful to say, but we have hundreds of bright healthy boys to whose parents their future in life is a very serious problem. With advantage to themselves and to the country these boys could be instructed in the manual work of Agriculture which is the financial backbone of all nations, and the origin of all national wealth. The late Government recognizing this, as I have previously said, made provision to grant the boys of this country a scientific and practical knowledge of Agriculture, and the Government recommendation of three Government supporters in this House, who profited at the rate of Eighteen hundred dollars per year by the Government accepting and acting upon their recommendation, the advantage of an Agricultural training has been refused to the boys of this country. And yet, Sir, we have seen a Government which has been lavishly proffered to the waifs

At Least Another Four Millions of Dollars Will Be Added to the Public Debt.

Sir, is that a matter for jubilation? I have regarded, I still regard those branch railways as a totally indefensible expenditure, entailing upon the people of this Country a liability for which there cannot be forthcoming a commensurate return. I have regarded the undertaking as a huge piece of electoral bribery undertaken without regard to either cost or utility. And the remarks of the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, on the occasion of the opening of the branch line to Bonavista appeared to confirm the latter conclusion, for, he is reported as saying, "I promised you, before the last election that if my party was returned to power that within two years I would visit your town by rail."

Let Me Draw Aside the Curtain and Let in the Light on This Matter.

My promise is this day fulfilled." In the height of jubilation this unguarded admission was made. It is to be hoped that the branch line to Bonavista will be operated very differently from the manner in which other branch lines have been operated during the past year. If not, then the people will have reason to curse rather than bless the promoters of the enterprise. I do not exaggerate when I say that the operating of the line between St. John's and Carbonara and vice versa during the past year has been distinctly disgraceful, entailing the greatest inconvenience and hardship upon those who were obliged to travel by train. Let me read an extract from an editorial that appeared in the Harbor Grace Standard of date November 17th last. This is what it said:

Men Who are Worn Out for Want of Sleep and Proper Rest are not Competent.

nor should they be permitted to operate a railway train. The thing should end, and end it will if I can convince this House of its duty. I was exceedingly pleased to notice that at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade last month a very strong representation was made in the House as to the unsatisfactory manner in which the Railway Contractors are carrying out their contractual obligations, for it is to be hoped that the Government will now see the necessity for discharging their duty in the premises. During the period that the late Government was in power my political opponent declared that he was constantly fighting the Railway Company, and that as a consequence the railway service was most unsatisfactorily performed. He referred to the relations between my Government and the Contractors their vast land grants remained undeveloped and their proposed hotel enterprise was at a standstill, and it was urged and set forth as one of the reasons why the late Government should be defeated. Well, my Government was defeated. Has the conduct of the railway and steam service been more satisfactory to the public or more unsatisfactory? Have the vast land grants or any of them been developed? Has the hotel enterprise appeared? I am willing to admit that during the whole of my term of office it was one continual fight to get contractual obligations carried out, and to have preposterous claims against the Colony set aside. I am willing to admit that since the advent of the present Government to power all fighting with the Railway Contractors has ceased; that trumped up claims have been dropped, and that the Contractors, who are subsidized public officials, have become public masters. But, have the public benefited by the changes?

The Recent Report of the Board of Trade Furnishes a Partial Reply.

The public feeling recently voiced by the Harbor Grace Standard furnishes another answer, and the inconvenience and privations experienced by the residents of the South Side of Trinity Bay who are supposed to be served by the railway via Broad Cove and who from the 3rd of January to the 24th had an service whatever furnished still another answer to my query.

The public are exceedingly dissatisfied with the way the trains are run on the line between St. John's and Carbonara. The evening trains do not frequently till all hours of the night. Matters are growing worse instead of better. Only those that cannot help themselves travel by these trains, and they grumble. The railway hands are like the public, only more so. The public are insistent for a change. Imagine travellers weary and worn by hours of travel in one of these trains finding themselves landed at a terminal station in the small hours of the morning with no means of conveyance at hand for themselves and baggage and every hotel and boarding house closed, and you can imagine the heavy load that the public had to put up with. The Harbor Grace Standard allusion to the "railway hands" suggests the question as to whether the immediate steps to be taken to regulate the number of hours that train officials may be on duty. I consider that before the session closes the matter should be dealt with.

Men Who are Worn Out for Want of Sleep and Proper Rest are not Competent.

Trinity Bay who are supposed to be served by the railway via Broad Cove and who from the 3rd of January to the 24th had an service whatever furnished still another answer to my query. The non-operation of the railway for nearly three weeks via Broad Cove was a perfect outrage and entirely without excuse. To say that it prevented its operation would be incorrect for three hours from the time that an engine and plow started from Whitbourne on the 20th January the whole line was open to traffic. For ten days the people of that portion of the district of Trinity were without even a mail, and many of them I am told were reduced to the extremity of borrowing provisions from neighbors through the neglect of the Railway Contractors and the connivance of the Government. Bad as the railway service was during the summer and autumn, the conduct of the same since the commencement of the New Year beggars description. While the public have been patiently waiting for their mails and for the delivery of their provisions, they have been made to wait for a kind Providence to send warm winds and copious rains to clear the track. It was part of my duty as Colonial Secretary for many years, to keep an eye on the operating of the railway, and I can truthfully say that the country has never enjoyed anything equal to the present condition of things. If it be contended that weather conditions have made it difficult to secure regularity of service, then it must be made to overcome those difficulties. It will be found that the Broad Cove branch has been practically abandoned since Christmas. The Placentia service has been but little better. It has consisted of midnight meanderings between Brigus Junction and Whitbourne. Since last Saturday week no train has been run to Placentia nor was any attempt made until Friday last. On the 24th I telegraphed to the Government, "the 'Chronicle' announced that 'the task of clearing the Placentia branch tracks was heavy for or 5 miles towards Placentia from Brigus Junction.'" It is that to be wondered at I would ask, after the line being abandoned for more than a week, it is quite evident to me that the Government do not know how the railway is being operated, or they don't care for the heavy mail I telegraphed to the Colonial Secretary as follows:—

WHITBOURNE, Feb. 14, 1912.

"Hon. Colonial Secretary,
St. John's.
"No mail received here since Friday. No train has passed through since Saturday morning. I have, though engine could come here on Monday morning at daylight, take on board coal and return to Brigus Junction. The present disgraceful condition of service surely demands immediate attention of the Government. Although I have received no official notice of the meeting of the Government I am aware it is sitting and desire to get there. When may I hope that trains will be operated to this place."
R. BOND.

To that message I received this reply:—

"St. John's, Feb. 15, 1912.
"Right Hon. Sir R. Bond,
Whitbourne.
"Your message received. Official intimation opening legislature mailed you Monday. Am now informed by Reid Newfoundland Company that no train has got beyond Brigus Junction since Saturday owing to storm that afternoon which completely blocked line between city and Junction. Understand east bound express due Whitbourne one o'clock. Line to St. John's now clear and regular train arrangement Engineer to report whether undue delay occurred in clearing of lines. Regret exceedingly inconvenience to yourself personally. Owing to your absence debate on Address not concluded. House adjourned till Monday."
COLONIAL SECRETARY.

It will be observed that if the Government knew anything about the train or mail service "the official information of the opening of the legislature" referred to in the Secretary's telegram would have been posted to me but for whose favor the mails been posted here for Whitbourne, and Trinity Bay South Cove? Unless I am greatly deceived I might be found in a line at Brigus Junction at the of any highway robber who pass that way. Is not that a Before we entered upon the of more lines of railway sense would have suggested of first securing the efficiency of those we had. efficiency in securing the opening of new branches tire out of place. Again, spirit of boastful pride the ment informs us that the exceeded the estimate. I do it a matter for much sur the Revenue exceeded the when in framing that estimate count was taken of the revenue col from the expenditures of million millions. The fact is Revenue for the past two years been largely abnormal. It part from the establishment of Pulp and Paper Mills at the and Bishop's Falls; in the gambling in timber land also from the expenditure of Railway Loan. If the Government contend that there has been of revenue apart from this, it is not a matter for boast but rather for feeling of regret. It denotes bad statesmanship one hand and bad faith on the other. It is of the essence of states that burdens should be light benefits should be heavy. If are taking from those they are declared "overburdened" more in taxes than is required the actual fulfilment of their service, then, the Government plundering those unfortunate. If the surplus revenue is normal, then why do not the ment fulfil their pledge and people "tea, sugar, pork, and prime necessities" duty? they don't do this, then we denounce bad faith, and of unwarranted betrayal confidence. If on the other Government admit that the of revenue is abnormal, and that of their enormous and investigations, they are and they don't know it. Government appear to be of the trend of their policy to believe that the mass fully ready for any that be concerted action on the "overburdened taxpayers" early end to the present carnal ethical crime. Sir, it is nothing more than a country with a population of less than a million, whose earnings are less than sixty dollars and thousands of whom subsist on the scantiest, nearly three million dollars be wrung from them. It is an aggravation of all that those who are guilty obtained place and power, solemn pledge to reduce the Government during the past year, and my colleagues invest in me and my colleagues our energies to lighten load of taxation upon this that they were the reversal of the value of a dollar and half a million dollars was their credit in the Bank of to meet the stress and storm future. The surplus of revenue which the Government bore the circumstances I have all is that the stress and storm rather for deep regret. "It'll fares the land, to hasten a prey,

Where wealth accumulates and decay."

I observe a paragraph in the before us having reference subject of taxation, or, in fact, and intimating that the ment propose to introduce it to deal with it, and that the ury has received a gift from cooperation in this city in the of the movement. Sir, Speaker of this House are to
