CHAPTER XIX.
"And you shan't if you don't wish to," murmured Marie, caressingly. "There is the breakfast bell! I must run and finish my hair or Mrs. Dalton will read me a homily upon feminine neatness!" and with a laugh she ran out of the room.

Lucille stood for a minute or two looking out upon the lawn. A few hours, perhaps two, and Harry would come up, and all would be known. Ah, what a happy, happy time lay before her! What had she ever done that the gods should be so good to her? They had given her a handsome fortune, and now they had crowned it by bestowing upon her the noblest, handsomest man in the world. The spray of clematis lay under her pillow, and she took it from thence and kissed it gently, but passionately, before she laid it carefully in the drawer of her bureau.

"I'll keep it till I die," she murmured, "just to remind me of last night, and my dear, dear love!" Then she blushed and smiled. "What would Lady Farnley say, if she could hear me? She who has praised me for being unlike the bread and butter schoolgirl, would find me as foolish as the most foolish of them all."

Then she went into the corridor, but at Susie's door she paused and listened. There was no sound, and she knocked softly, but no answer coming, she thought that Susie was asleep, and meeting one of the housemaids on the stairs, told her not to disturb Susie, as she was sleeping off a headache.

Mrs. Dalton at the head of the table smiled over the coffee cups. "No need to ask you how you are this morning, Miss Darracourt," she said. "You look the picture of health; but I trust that you slept well?" Lucille laughed softly.

"Oh, yes," she said as she took her place at the table.

"Marie, where is the letter bag?"

A footman brought it from a side table, and Lucille opened it. There were several letters for herself, and one for Marie Verner.

"What a strange handwriting, dear!" she said, throwing it over to her.

Marie Verner glanced at it and put it down beside her plate. She knew Mr. Sinclair's writing all too well.

"It is from a horrid dressmaker who seems to think that I shall forget her bill unless she reminds me of it every other morning."

"My father never failed to impress upon me that the best kind of punctuality was that which prompted us to pay our just debts immediately; they were due!" said Mrs. Dalton.

"He didn't add whether you had the means or you hadn't, I suppose?" said Marie.

The old lady opened her lips to retort when a footman entered.

"The Marquis de Merle, miss!" he said, as impassively as if it were the call of gentlemen to make morning calls at breakfast time.

Lucille looked up with faint surprise. "Lord Merle?" she said, wondering.

"The Marquis in the middle of the night!" exclaimed Marie. "Good gracious, the Hall must be on fire!" Lucille rose with a vague look of annoyance about her lips, then she sank into her chair again.

"Where is the Marquis?" she asked.

"In the drawing room, miss," said the footman.

"Show him in here, please," said Lucille.

"I wonder, what on earth he wants!" exclaimed Marie Verner, stirring her coffee and clinking the spoon against the cup in a light-hearted, careless fashion. "I do hope he has come to propose some rational idea of spending the day!"

Mrs. Dalton folded her table napkin.

"Shall we leave the room, Miss Darracourt?" she asked.

"No, no," replied Lucille; "do not, please. I dare say it is as Marie suggests, and we shall want your advice."

The Marquis entered as she spoke. He was carefully dressed, as usual, but there was an expression of annoyance and gravity upon his face which Lucille noticed instantly.

He appeared as if he were making an effort to dispel the cloud from his brow, as he bent over her and murmured an apology for the unusually early hour for his visit.

"Is the Hall on fire, Lord Merle?" asked Marie, when he had shaken hands with her and Mrs. Dalton.

He smiled in a patient kind of way, as one does at the playful persistency of a child.

"No, Miss Verner."

"Well, if you are quite certain that it is not, you had better sit down and have some coffee. I don't believe you have breakfasted."

A footman brought a chair to the table, and the Marquis sat down and breakfasted.

A footman brought a chair to the table, and the Marquis sat down and accepted a cup of coffee from Mrs. Dalton.

"I must plead guilty to not having breakfasted," he said.

"Last night's dissipation," remarked Marie. "If one has one's pleasure, one must be prepared to pay for it. The only one of you three who seem to have gone through last night's dance unscathed is Lucille. Perhaps, like the young lady who was asked why she went to so many balls, dancing agrees with her."

The Marquis smiled at this sally; but it was evident that he had something on his mind, and that his visit was one of business, and Mrs. Dalton rose.

But he glanced at her and said, in his polished manner:

"Pray do not retire on my account, Mrs. Dalton; the business I have come upon can be better discussed in open forum—with Miss Darracourt's permission."

"What is it?" asked Lucille. "Has anything occurred, Lord Merle?"

He set down his cup, and looked at the floor for a second, as if reluctant to commence.

"I am almost sorry that I have intruded," he said at last, slowly and gravely; "but it seemed so natural to come to you under the circumstances—the plate-closet in the small dining room has been broken into, and a number of the articles stolen.

Marie uttered an exclamation of amazement, and Mrs. Dalton held up her hands with a shocked expression; but Lucille still said nothing.

"Why—how—when did you discover it?" demanded Marie Verner.

"This morning," he said. "I myself discovered my loss. Being rather restless, I rose earlier than usual, and was passing through the small dining room on my way into the garden when I saw the panel door partly open, and found that several pieces of the plate were gone."

"Oh, dear!" said Marie, under her breath.

"What a terrible loss, my lord!" lamented Mrs. Dalton. "Those rare and beautiful specimens of the goldsmith's art!"

"Yes," he said, smiling, but rather sadly; "and the most unfortunate part of the business is that the thief, whoever he was, seems to have guessed which were the articles upon which I set the most value—I don't mean money value—for he has taken the most curious pieces, and those which are most distinctly heirlooms!"

"Tut! tut! tut! Oh, dear, what will you do?" exclaimed Marie.

He shrugged his shoulders, and played with his watch chain.

"I do not know exactly; indeed, I have ventured to come to you for advice," and he glanced at Lucille, who sat with downcast face.

"Advice!—to us!" exclaimed Marie. "Three women! Why don't you go to the police, Lord Merle?"

CHAPTER XX.
Lord Merle bit his lip and appeared embarrassed and hesitating.

"I—I really scarcely like to tell you!" he said. "It is so unlikely, so improbable; and yet—"

"Oh, do go on!" broke in Marie Verner. "Don't you see we are all on the tiptoe of curiosity? We don't get a burglary every day, Lord Merle!"

"Pardon me," he said. "I was hesitating because the matter is painful to me, and I fear it will be as painful to Miss Darracourt."

"To me!" said Lucille.

He inclined his head gravely.

"Yes, I fear so. I had better go on in a direct way. As soon as I had made the discovery I at once thought of ringing for the servants and making the theft public; but it occurred to me that I myself might perhaps find some clue to begin with. The robbery must have been committed late last night, or early this morning—I mean about two or three o'clock, as I passed through the room on my way to bed last night after the ball, and I am certain that the closet was locked, or, to speak with more exactness, closed."

"Yes," said Marie. "Well?"

"Well, I searched to see if I could discover any foot-marks on the gravel and on the floor of the conservatory, for the first thing—"

"And did you?" broke in Marie.

He inclined his head.

"Yes, I saw two kinds of footmarks. One was my own, the other—I cannot say for certain!"

"For certain!" exclaimed Marie, raising her brows.

"Not for certain!" he repeated.

"Then—but go on!"

"I then examined the lock to see if it had been tampered with—I mean forced in any way, but it had not; there were no marks of a chisel, or any instrument whatever. There is not a scratch or an indentation in the gliding or the polished wood. If there had been I should have seen it in a moment; any one could detect it as easily as I myself could."

"Then the thief must have unlocked the panel!" said Mrs. Dalton.

A silence fell, as all eyes were turned on the Marquis.

"I cannot come to any other conclusion," he said, gravely.

Lucille glanced at Marie, then lowered her eyes again.

Mrs. Dalton was grappling with the facts in her prim, conscientious fashion.

1040—A SERVICEABLE GARMENT.

Ladies' Apron. One of the most practical features of an apron is the protection it affords. The design here shown has this good point and some others. It has deep arm openings, and is cut with sufficient fullness. It is held to position at the back with a belt. Gingham, percale, drill, lawn or linene are good materials for this style. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large. It requires 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a Medium size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1036-1025 — A CHARMING GOWN SUITABLE FOR MANY OCCASIONS.

Composed of Ladies' Waist Pattern 1036 and Ladies' Skirt 1025. As here shown, embroidered voile in a new shade of tan was used with trimming of lace, and a girdle of soft silk. The waist is cut with low fronts, revealing a vest, of crepe batiste. The collar is in Modest style. The sleeves are finished with pretty cuffs, and are cut in one with the fronts. The tunic may be omitted. The Waist Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt is 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for a medium size. The patterns are also good for silk, velvet, cloth, linen, crepe, gingham, lawn or batiste, and may be developed separately. The skirt measures about 1 1/2 yards at its lower edge.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

An Act Respecting Stamp Duties.
[Passed September 7th, 1914.]

Be it enacted by the Governor, the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, in Legislative Session convened, as follows:—

1. From and after the commencement of this Act there shall be paid for the use of His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, upon the several instruments mentioned in the Schedule hereto, the several duties in the said Schedule specified.

2. No such instrument executed after the commencement of this Act in this Colony, or relating wherever executed to any property situate or to any matter or thing done or to be done in this Colony shall, except in criminal proceedings, be pleaded or given in evidence or admitted to be good, useful or available in law or equity unless it is duly stamped in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

3. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any Bank note payable to bearer or on demand, issued or circulated by any Bank doing business in the Colony.

4. If any Bank doing business in this Colony or any branch of such bank issues any cheque not duly stamped, the manager of such bank or branch shall be liable for every offence to a penalty of Ten dollars, to be recovered in a summary manner before a Stipendiary Magistrate.

5. Every instrument to which this Act applies shall be stamped with adhesive or impressed stamps, of value equal to the duty payable thereon, and for the purpose of so stamping any of the instruments in the Schedule hereto, either stamps provided or procured for the purpose of the Act 61 Vic., Cap. 14, entitled "An Act respecting the Payment of Certain Fees and Charges by Stamps," or ordinary postage stamps may be used.

6. In this Act "Instrument" means any paper or writing mentioned in the Schedule.

7. An instrument shall not be deemed to be duly stamped unless the stamp affixed thereto is cancelled.

8. All the provisions of the Act 61 Vic., Cap. 14, entitled "An Act respecting the Payment of Certain Fees and Charges by Stamps" shall apply to this Act and the Schedule hereto, and this Act and the Act 61 Vic., Cap. 14, may be cited together as "The Stamp Acts, 1898-1914."

9. The Governor in Council shall make rules and regulations as to the affixing of stamps to all instruments under this Act and the cancelling of the same. All such rules and regulations, when published in the Royal Gazette and one other paper published in the Colony, shall have the force and effect of law.

10. This Act shall come into operation on the 1st day of October, 1914.

"I'll keep it till I die," she murmured, "just to remind me of last night, and my dear, dear love!" Then she blushed and smiled. "What would Lady Farnley say, if she could hear me? She who has praised me for being unlike the bread and butter schoolgirl, would find me as foolish as the most foolish of them all."

Then she went into the corridor, but at Susie's door she paused and listened. There was no sound, and she knocked softly, but no answer coming, she thought that Susie was asleep, and meeting one of the housemaids on the stairs, told her not to disturb Susie, as she was sleeping off a headache.

Mrs. Dalton at the head of the table smiled over the coffee cups. "No need to ask you how you are this morning, Miss Darracourt," she said. "You look the picture of health; but I trust that you slept well?" Lucille laughed softly.

"Oh, yes," she said as she took her place at the table.

"Marie, where is the letter bag?"

A footman brought it from a side table, and Lucille opened it. There were several letters for herself, and one for Marie Verner.

"What a strange handwriting, dear!" she said, throwing it over to her.

Marie Verner glanced at it and put it down beside her plate. She knew Mr. Sinclair's writing all too well.

"It is from a horrid dressmaker who seems to think that I shall forget her bill unless she reminds me of it every other morning."

"My father never failed to impress upon me that the best kind of punctuality was that which prompted us to pay our just debts immediately; they were due!" said Mrs. Dalton.

"He didn't add whether you had the means or you hadn't, I suppose?" said Marie.

The old lady opened her lips to retort when a footman entered.

"The Marquis de Merle, miss!" he said, as impassively as if it were the call of gentlemen to make morning calls at breakfast time.

Lucille looked up with faint surprise. "Lord Merle?" she said, wondering.

"The Marquis in the middle of the night!" exclaimed Marie. "Good gracious, the Hall must be on fire!" Lucille rose with a vague look of annoyance about her lips, then she sank into her chair again.

"Where is the Marquis?" she asked.

CHAPTER XIX.
"And you shan't if you don't wish to," murmured Marie, caressingly. "There is the breakfast bell! I must run and finish my hair or Mrs. Dalton will read me a homily upon feminine neatness!" and with a laugh she ran out of the room.

Lucille stood for a minute or two looking out upon the lawn. A few hours, perhaps two, and Harry would come up, and all would be known. Ah, what a happy, happy time lay before her! What had she ever done that the gods should be so good to her? They had given her a handsome fortune, and now they had crowned it by bestowing upon her the noblest, handsomest man in the world. The spray of clematis lay under her pillow, and she took it from thence and kissed it gently, but passionately, before she laid it

Earl Kitchener Says the Tide Has Turned.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Sept. 17. In the House of Lords to-day, Lord Kitchener declared that the tide had turned everywhere in favor of the allies. He stated that while the struggle was bound to be long, England has good grounds for looking forward to its end in quiet confidence. In opening his address he spoke in highest eulogy of Sir John French, the British Commander-in-Chief, who, he said, had met every difficulty presented by the situation in a manner that has proved his worth as a soldier. "Thanks to his superb leadership," continued Kitchener, "the British army has been able at all times to fight a fight that has thrown terror into the enemy. Nothing has been wanting, his every move has shown he has foreseen that was to come, and has so distributed his forces that strongest German blows have spent their weight without bringing the disaster the corps had planned." Latest advices from the front do not change published statements. The Government has taken the people of the nation into its confidence, so far as it is able. Every bit of information that properly can be made public is published. Our troops have met the disaster of a hard campaign with a good heart. They are now waiting for the general forward movement with good heart, and when the word comes, England can depend on her soldiers to give an account of themselves; of which all true Englishmen will be proud. Although the struggle is bound to be a long one, England can look forward to the final outcome with quiet confidence. England now has in the field more than six divisions of troops and two cavalry divisions.

Another Great Battle Raging in North of France.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, this a.m. Another great battle, even more vital for the countries concerned than those which have preceded it, is now in progress on a line extending from the region of Noyon, on the River Oise, northwest of Paris, to the River Meuse north of Verdun. The front is somewhat shorter than was the case of the battle of the Marne, but this will only result in a more fiercely contested battle, with masses of troops throwing themselves at each other, and every available piece of artillery concentrated in a determined effort on the allies to break through the lines. The Germans, who a fortnight ago had abandoned their first swift endeavor to destroy the armies of France and Britain and capture Paris, have now fortified themselves in the mountains north of the River Aisne, through the plains of Champagne and in the Argonne mountains, through which the Meuse flows. They are in a stronger position than they were for the battle of the Marne, and have been strongly reinforced with fresh troops. From the northeast they have attempted some counter attacks against the allied troops, which, flushed with victory, have been trying to prevent them from entrenching themselves. According to English and French reports, these attacks have been repulsed, and the Germans have been compelled to give way at certain points. It would appear that the western wings of the two armies, of the German right and allies' left, are again bearing the heaviest part of the fighting. Upon the armies of General Von Klueck and General Von Buelow depends the safety of the rest of the German army, should retreat be decided upon or forced upon them.

and besides holding the front, they have to be prepared to withstand another attempt on the part of the allies to outflank them. These German forces hold a position from a point near Noyon on the Oise along the district north of the Aisne to a junction of the latter river. With supplies behind them are splendid lines of railway running in all directions which facilitate the movement of troops from St. Quentin, Guise and Metz, so that in this respect, they are well placed. The allies on the other hand, it is believed are bringing new troops through Rouen and Amiens to threaten the Germans' flank. In fact, nearly the whole northwest of France is now open to the allies, the Germans having withdrawn most of their scattered troops eastward toward the Oise.

Field Marshal Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, speaking with full knowledge of the situation at the front, declared, the "tide has now turned," so that he, although telling the public the war will be a long one, appears to be hopeful of the outcome which is pending. The little British army that has fought so long and so hard, is looking forward to support from Indian troops which should soon be at the side of the Englishmen. If not for the present battle then for one which must soon follow it, no matter how it goes with the French troops, who also occupied the valuable centre of Solons, the engineers having closely followed the army, repaired railways, which is being reinforced. On the whole both as to positions and strength, the forces of the opposing armies should be evenly matched, except for the advantage of the allies having an army to threaten Von Klueck's flank. The situation along the rest of the line is much the same.

Patriotic Concert.

Arrangements are now being made for a grand Patriotic Concert which will be given at the Casino Theatre shortly. The affair will be under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, and the object will be to provide funds for the Women's Patriotic Association. The cause alone will ensure the support of the public, and the programme which is to be a varied and interesting one, will be worthy of a liberal patronage.

The entertainment will be divided into three parts. The first will consist of songs and recitations of a patriotic character, rendered by the leading amateur talent of the city. The second part will consist of lantern slides showing the principal characters in the great war drama, and also the camp at Pleasantville, with scenes from the daily life of the First Newfoundland Regiment. The closing part of the performance will be a series of tableaux depicting the great nations engaged in the conflict, Britain's army and navy, her call to the Colonies, and their noble response.

The foregoing is a rough outline of the programme but there will be many specialties of a novel character as well, all combining to make the show first class. Generous offers have been received from Mr. Kieley, who has offered the use of the theatre—seats reserved—free of charge. Mrs. Rossley has consented to train

C.C.C. Parade Last Night

The C.C.C. held a Battalion Parade at their Armoury last night, and although the weather was so disagreeable, the turn out of lads was especially large. The Battalion was inspected by the Commanding Officer and Major Kent, the companies being drawn up under their respective captains. No. 2 and 6 companies were represented by Capt. V. P. Burke and Capt. L. C. Murphy. Lt.-Col. Conroy made a lengthy speech to the lads and referred to the large number of cadets who had volunteered their services to the Empire in the present war crisis. Their places, he felt assured, would be regretted, but others should be forthcoming to fill the vacancies. He referred to the volunteer movement in patriotic terms, which were warmly applauded, and at the termination of the drill many new recruits came forward and applied for enrollment. The corps will hold a church parade on Sunday week.

Strenuous Strife.

When man discards the pruning hook, and takes up gun or sabre, determined, in his heart, to cook the gander of his neighbor, when he elects to turn his face to ruin, wreck and ravage, he shows that he, with all his grace, is still at heart a savage. He talks about the boon of peace—an ear his country lends him—and then he goes to knock the grease from someone who offends him. He swears by all the saints above that warfare shocks and kills him, and he'll support the White Winged Dove, whatever ill befalls him; then someone steps upon his toes, which makes him yearn for slaughter, and he proceeds to tear his clothes, and grabs his sword and swatter. Is there an army in his path? You see him hack and hew it still crying, in his noble wrath, "My neighbours drove me to it!" While wailing sickener and cress he says he is a martyr; he claims he is a prince of peace, while acting like a Tartar. At last his neighbors tire of tricks beyond excuse or pardon, and so they break his head with bricks and plant him in his garden. The boon of peace! The human herds will praise it loud and louder, and as they praise they'll grind their swords, and manufacture powder.

The Situation in Hamburg Serious.

Rome, Sept. 11.—The Giornale d'Italia declares that Hamburg is in a serious situation on account of lack of food and equipment.

A return traveller brought the information and says that while he was in Hamburg eggs were selling there at ten marks ($25.00) a dozen, while fresh meat was priceless, all cattle having been requisitioned. The smallest quantity of fresh milk, butter and eggs is reserved for the hospitals, the remainder together with all other available food is taken to the army storehouses, where it is accumulated by the General Staff for the use of the army.

Traffic has practically ceased in Hamburg it is asserted, and 1,500 ships are idle.

Germany Must Place Loan at Home.

New York, Sept. 14.—If Germany succeeds in placing the $250,000,000 war loan just announced, she will have to place it at home.

That is the unanimous opinion of leading New York bankers canvassed yesterday. To a man they asserted that with the money markets of Europe and the United States closed to her, Germany will find that the bankers' boycott, for years a threat against German aggression which was ignored by the Kaiser's advisers, will have to be reckoned with now that the dash on Paris is checked and the advantage, for the moment at least, is with the allies.

Published by Authority.

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to direct that the following Proclamation of His Majesty the King, superseding Proclamations of August 5th and August 12th last, relating to Trading with the Enemy, shall come into effect on the date thereof.

JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary,
Department of the Colonial Secretary,
September 15th, 1914.

BY THE KING

A PROCLAMATION. Relating to Trading with the Enemy.

GEORGE R. I. Whereas a state of War has existed between Us and the German Empire as from eleven p.m. on August 4th, 1914, and a state of War has existed between Us and the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary as from midnight on August 12th, 1914:

And whereas it is contrary to law for any person resident, carrying on business or being in our Dominions, to trade or have any commercial or financial transactions with any person resident or carrying on business in the German Empire or Austria-Hungary without Our permission:

And whereas by Our Proclamation of the 5th August, 1914, relating to trading with the enemy, certain classes of transactions with the German Empire were prohibited:

And whereas by paragraph 2 of Our Proclamation of the 12th August, 1914, the said Proclamation of the 5th August, 1914, was declared to be applicable to Austria-Hungary:

And whereas it is desirable to restate and extend the prohibitions contained in the former Proclamations, and for that purpose to revoke the Proclamation of the 5th August, 1914, and paragraph 2 of the Proclamation of the 12th August, 1914, and to substitute this Proclamation therefor:

And whereas it is expedient and necessary to warn all persons resident at carrying on business or being in Our Dominions, of their duties and obligations towards Us, Our Crown, and Government:

Now, therefore, We have thought fit by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, to issue Our Royal Proclamation declaring and it is hereby declared as follows:

1. The Proclamation of the 5th August, 1914, relating to trading with the enemy, and paragraph 2 of the aforesaid Proclamation of the 12th August, 1914, together with any public announcement officially issued in explanation thereof, are hereby, as from the date hereof, revoked, and from and after the date hereof, this present Proclamation is substituted therefor.

2. The expression "enemy country" in this Proclamation means the territories of the German Empire and of the dual Monarchy of Austria-Hungary, together with all the Colonies and Dependencies thereof.

3. The expression "enemy" in this Proclamation means any person or body of persons whatever nationality resident or carrying on business in the enemy country, but does not include persons of enemy nationality who are neither resident nor carrying on business in the enemy country. In the case of incorporated bodies enemy character attaches only to those incorporated in an enemy country.

4. The expression "outbreak of war" in this Proclamation means that eleven p.m. on the 4th August, 1914, in relation to the German Empire, its Colonies and Dependencies, and midnight on the twelfth August, 1914, in relation to Austria-Hungary, its Colonies and Dependencies.

5. From and after the date of this Proclamation the following prohibitions shall have effect, (save so far as licenses may be issued as hereinafter provided), and We do hereby accordingly warn all persons resident, carrying on business or being in Our Dominions—

(2) Not to compromise or give security for the payment of any debt or other sum of money with or for the benefit of an enemy.

(3) Not to act on behalf of any enemy in drawing, accepting, paying, presenting for acceptance or payment, negotiating or otherwise dealing with any negotiable instrument.

(4) Not to accept, pay, or otherwise deal with any negotiable instrument which is held by or on behalf of an enemy, provided that this prohibition shall not be deemed to be infringed by any person who has no reasonable ground for believing that the instrument is held by or on behalf of an enemy.

(5) Not to enter into any new transaction; or complete any transaction already entered into with an enemy in any stocks, shares, or other securities.

(6) Not to make or enter into any new marine, life, fire or other policy or contract of insurance with or for the benefit of an enemy; nor to accept, or give effect to, any insurance of any risk arising under any policy or contract of insurance (including re-insurance) made or entered into with or for the benefit of any enemy before the outbreak of War.

(7) Not directly or indirectly to supply to or for the use or benefit of, or obtain from, an enemy country or an enemy, any goods, wares or merchandise, nor directly or indirectly to supply to or for the use or benefit of, or obtain from any person any goods, wares or merchandise, for or by way of transmission to or from an enemy country or an enemy, nor directly or indirectly to trade in or carry any goods, wares or merchandise destined for or coming from an enemy country or an enemy.

(8) Not to permit any British ship to leave for, enter, or communicate with any port or place in an enemy country.

(9) Not to enter into any commercial, financial or other contract or obligation with or for the benefit of an enemy.

(10) Not to enter into any transactions with an enemy if and when they are prohibited by an Order in Council made and published on the recommendations of a Secretary of State, even though they would otherwise be permitted by law or by this or any other Proclamation.

And we do hereby further warn all persons that whoever in contravention of the law shall commit, aid or abet any of the aforesaid acts, is guilty of a crime and will be liable to punishment and penalties accordingly.

6. Provided always that where an enemy has a branch locally situated in British, allied, or neutral territory, not being neutral territory in Europe, transactions by or with such branch shall not be treated as transaction by or with an enemy.

7. Nothing in this Proclamation shall be deemed to prohibit payments by or on account of enemies to persons resident, carrying on business or being in our Dominions, if such payments arise out of transactions entered into before the outbreak of War or otherwise permitted.

8. Nothing in this Proclamation shall be taken to prohibit anything which shall be expressly permitted by Our license, or by the license given on Our behalf by a Secretary of State, or the Board of Trade, whether such license be specially granted to individuals or be announced as applying to classes of persons.

9. This Proclamation shall be called The Trading with the Enemy Proclamation, Number 2.

GIVEN at Our Court at Buckingham Palace, this 10th day of September, in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fourteen, and in the Fifth year of Our Reign.

Germans Use 14-Inch Guns for Siege Work.

Huge Cannon, Hauled by Motors, May be Trained on the Paris Forts.

Germany's success in the march towards Paris, according to an ex-army officer, has been through a change in warfare caused by the high state of efficiency that the motor car has reached. The German heavy artillery has done more damage to the allies than anything else. The infantry has done little except rush positions which have been shelled by their heavy guns. Surgeons of the allies say that the majority of the wounds they have had to treat have been caused by shells rather than by bullets.

In former wars it has always been a long, tedious effort to get the big siege guns and howitzers into position, and the infantry and field artillery had to do the work, but now motor cars have been built to haul and transport the cannon and the Germans have brought these guns up into position and used them most effectively.

There are two guns which have been used considerably not only against the men fighting in the ranks of the allies, but against the forts that have stood in the way of the advancing Germans. One of these is an 11 inch howitzer, and the other is a gun of more recent invention, which is of 14 inch calibre. The 14 inch gun is one of the latest turned out by Krupp, and little about its effectiveness was known before outside Germany.

The 11 inch gun is hauled by cars. It is 11 feet long and has a bore of 11 inches. The shell, which weighs 136 pounds, can be thrown six and a half miles when the piece is elevated at 42½ degrees. The maximum elevation is 65 degrees, and at that elevation the shell can be thrown four and a half miles. Thirty-eight pounds of powder are used in the charge.

Two carriages are necessary to transport this huge piece of artillery. The barrel is carried on one, and the mounting with the recoil brake and two reservoirs on another. The wheels of these carriages are shod to prevent them sinking into soft ground.

When the position wanted is reached, the carriage with the mounting is first stationed and then the carriage with the barrel is moved up at the rear of the mounting and the barrel is hauled into position by thin wire cables working through pulleys. The 14 inch howitzer can throw a shell weighing 250 pounds more than eight miles. This huge piece is also hauled by motors. It has been reported that several of these 11 and 14 inch howitzers are to be used on the forts surrounding Paris.

When the German Ox is Gored.

New York Times:—"Consistency hides its head when carnage is in the field. This is the reason why Germany protests to China against the very thing she herself has done in Belgium. In a note to the Foreign Office at Peking the German Charge d'Affaires declares that "Germany would hold China responsible for permitting Japanese and British soldiers to cross her territory." But Germany tried to persuade Belgium that she ought to give unopposed passage to the imperial hosts in their march toward the French frontier. When Belgium refused she fought her way through, literally mowing a broad path through the territory of an unoffending neutral nation. By the tactics that guarantee her neutrality Belgium is bound to resist any invasion of her soil. Had she consented to give the right of way to German troops France and England would have held her responsible in damages, just as Germany now proposes to do in the case of China."

R. N. Captains for British Liners

The outstanding feature of the naval appointments issued yesterday is the fact that R. N. captains have been appointed to the following British liners:—
Teutonic, White Star Line.
Edinburgh Castle, Union Castle Line.
Orama, Orient Steam Navigation Co.
Calgarian, Allan Line.
The appointments are Captain J. R. Segrave to the Victory, additional for the Teutonic on commissioning; Capt. W. R. Napier to the Pembroke, additional for the Edinburgh Castle on commissioning; Capt. H. Chatterton to the Pembroke, additional for the Orama on commissioning; Captain T. W. Kemp to the Victory, additional for the Calgarian on commissioning; all dated September 5.—Liverpool Express, Sept. 8.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company. Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C., F.C.S. Analyst and Assayer

Highlanders Drove Enemy Into Fishpond.

"A dramatic incident in the recent fighting may be mentioned the grim work at the ancient fish ponds near Ermenoville. These ponds are shut in by high trees. Driving the enemy through the woods, a Scotch regiment hustled its forces right into the fish pond, the Scotchmen jumping in and the Germans up to their middle to finish them in the water, which was packed with their bodies."

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Twenty-eight Prussian prisoners, the first to be seen in Paris in the present war, arrived at St. Lazare station on Sept. 18. They had become separated from their regiment and had lost their way. They asked a peasant near Meaux if the Germans had taken Paris and how to get there. The peasant replied that he thought Paris had fallen, and would conduct them to the right road.

Oceanic Rescue Told by Captain of a Trawler.

London, Sept. 11.—Captain Armour of the Aberdeen trawler Glenovil, told the following story of his rescue of the crew of the White Star liner Oceanic to the Aberdeen correspondent of the Central News.

"It was misty and very dark Tuesday morning of the north coast of Scotland and our attention was attracted on our homeward way by signals of distress in the direction of the coast.

"It required skilful seamanship, which would have been impossible to a larger boat than ours, to bring the Glenovil near enough to discover the Oceanic on the rocks.

"Finally, after a long and hard tussle in the nasty sea, we brought ourselves alongside. Ropes and ladders were lowered over the side of the liner over which the crew scrambled and tumbled to the deck of our boat. In a short time practically every available inch of our space was occupied by men from the big boat. We got 400 of them and then steamed off—we could hold no more—and emptied them on a larger steamer which was standing off in the distance unable to get any nearer without herself running on the rocks of this dangerous coast.

"After transferring our human freight we returned quickly but cautiously and took off the remainder, who were similarly transferred to the boat in the offing.

"The rescue was attended with great risk, on account of the heavy sea and darkness and the dangerous rocks all about.

"The captain of the Oceanic was the last to leave his ship. He paid us a high compliment and thanked us warmly."

The People versus the Sword.

New York World:—"The new treaty of London can have no other meaning than that all the resources of men and money of the greatest Empire ever known have been enlisted for the war and are to be thrown into the balance. It will take time to make them available, but with a resolute spirit behind them it is certain that eventually they will bear heavily upon their adversaries. The prospect is solemn enough to impress even those who are at peace, for it foreshadows a strain upon civilization such as was never before known. It is to be a contest not so much between people and empires as between systems. It is British self-government, British sea power, British commerce and British wealth, world-wide in their extent, in a life-and-death struggle with consolidated German autocracy and militarism, which for forty years have burdened mankind with armaments and menaced it with war.

"It is the rule of the people or the rule of the sword, not in Britain alone, not in Germany alone, but throughout the earth, now and for generations to come."

Insanity.

"If before he strikes the fatal blow the murderer could only stop and think; could see the bleeding body of his victim; could realize the awful consequences of his act! Insanity! What else was the foray upon the English embassy by the mob in Berlin; what else the succeeding insurrections heaped upon the French ambassador; the burning of Louvain by the German soldiers; the dropping of bombs into Antwerp by the Kaiser's airmen? Yet the German writers in America chatter about civilization. They dare to talk of German civilization. They, too, have lost all sense of perspective and all distinction. They, too, are mad.

"Instead of whooping up the hordes of death in Europe and hurling anathemas at their neighbors in the United States, the Germans of America should be down upon their knees asking God to have mercy upon the wives, the mothers and the children of the Fatherland."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Might-Have-Been Mirages.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One morning last week I was interrupted at my work by some dear friends who came from some distance. Not to have given up the day to them would have been to show the height of inhospitality as well as to deprive myself of a great pleasure. So the pencil I had thrown down when the knocker announced their arrival lay idle for the day.

Now of course I enjoyed the enforced holiday, and yet (how seldom "and yet" is absent even from our dearest pleasures) and yet their coming was in one way a misfortune. You see I was in an unusually good mood for working and if I had not been interrupted I should have accomplished wonders. I felt sure.

But would I have?

That is the point I want to bring out.

Would the mood have lasted if I had had a chance to last? Would it have lived to a ripe and fruitful old age if it hadn't been cut off untimely in its youth, or might it have steadily died of inanition as so many such moods do?

I am afraid I can guess the answer.

I know a woman who hates to go to bed early. She will frequently sit up until one or two o'clock over an alluring book or a piece of embroidery; she seldom goes to bed before midnight and is unquestionably injured.

The new silhouette shows a waist not tight, but closely fitted, sleeves long and plain, and the skirt gradually widening toward the feet.

The corsage bouquet has not lost its popularity. A single poppy rose, aster or dahlia of huge proportions is worn at the girdle.

War Brevities.

After this, European missionaries will have a lot to explain to the heathen in Africa and Asia.—New York World.

The Hohenzollern (megaphonically)—Take courage, my brave German! Your Kaiser is prepared to sacrifice a million of you.—Punch.

Many German spies may still be in Paris, three of them dressed as British officers having been discovered on Sept. 7th in the Grand Hotel by a genuine British officer, who had them arrested.

The sum of $17,000 which was found in the pockets of Gen. von Buslow after he was killed in the battle of Haalen by a young Belgian soldier, has been turned over by King Albert for Red Cross purposes.

Ninety-seven per cent of the admiration that is now felt in this country for the Emperor of Japan is due to the fact that in going to war he did not announce a special partnership with Almighty God!—New York Herald.

As a result of the war, fifty papers in Great Britain devoted to trades or to sports have suspended publication. Evidently there is something worse in war-time than a censorship.—New York Weekly.

Lady Strachona has given $50,000 towards the maintenance of the Strachona Horse, raised by her father for the South African war, who will be sent, it is said, as a unit with the Canadian expeditionary force.

As priests are liable to orders for mobilization, more than 15,000 are now serving as officers, sub-officers and enlisted soldiers in France. Several hundred priests who belong to the orders which were expelled from France have returned to join the army.

Reports received in Rome say that desertions from the Austrian army are increasing daily, especially when regiments are near the Roumanian frontier. Thirty-five per cent of the men of the Mecliar regiments have disappeared.

Next Christmas, it is estimated, there will be 1,000,000 orphans in Europe because of the war, and European militarism would hold that the best use for them was to rear them and train them for more human slaughter when they are old enough to do their glorious part.—The World.

The Pacific cable to Australia has been cut and all communication with the Antipodes has stopped. It is believed that the German cruiser Nurnberg has brought about the interruption. She was last seen near the Fanning Islands, where the cable was probably cut. As a British battleship is in chase of the Nurnberg, her career will probably soon be ended.

The Premier of Serbia, who is also Foreign Minister, says he would be glad to pay the expenses of British newspaper men so that they could see with their own eyes that the reports of Serbian successes against the Austrians are true. The Foreign Minister does this because of Austria's denial of these victories.

While male Germany is on the firing line women are said to be driving taxicabs in Berlin and serving as railway booking clerks, signalmen, watchmen, guards and ticket collectors, while the post offices are conducted almost exclusively by women. Perhaps they will some day ask to be allowed to vote on the strength of these substitute services in war-time.—The World.

According to Lady Randolph Churchill, who arrived in London on Sept. 3rd from Germany, coming by way of Holland, Prince Frederick William of Lippe took his own life following a mistake of his regiment before Liege on August 4, when his cavalry regiment, nearly annihilated a German infantry regiment which it had mistaken for Belgians. The Prince shot himself, fearing to face the anger of Emperor William. His widow, with whom Lady Randolph is acquainted, was informed of his death on August 14th.

The Russians, after the capture of Lemberg, have been advancing west, and are now encompassing Przemysl, one of the strongest of the Galician forts, which is fifty miles west of Lemberg. It is believed in St. Petersburg that the fortress will either surrender or be taken by assault within a few days. Its fall would clear the way for the Russian army in Galicia to join with the army that has been operating in East Prussia, and would mean a long stride for the Russians in their advance upon Berlin. Cosacks are also advancing through the passes of the Carpathians to the invasion of Hungary, and 520,000 men are following them. Austria has no men in the field to meet this unexpected development of Russian tactics.

Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor.

Strength Returns, Health Renewed, Vitality of Youth Re-created.

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Ambition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Cheboque Pt. N. S. comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-checked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the 'blues.' Read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1 at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from the Catarhzone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Obituary.

A. VINCENT.

We note with regret the demise of Mr. Alfred Vincent which occurred yesterday afternoon at his residence, Queen's Road, after a tedious illness. Deceased, who was 66 years of age, was a most exemplary and well-respected citizen. In recent years he was the First Landing Writter in the Department of H. M. Customs. In that capacity he was known to the general public as a most obliging official. In the earlier part of his career he was a school master for many years at Bonavista. He was a good Christian man and a prominent and valued member of Cochrane St. Methodist Church. Before entering the civil service Mr. Vincent was in public life and contested the District of Bonavista but was not successful, though only by a slight margin. He was also a pioneer advocate for Old Age Pensions. The family and other relatives of the deceased will have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement and in which the Telegram joins.

Birthday Congratulations.

Congratulations to Mr. R. C. Russell of H. M. Customs, who to-day celebrates his seventieth birthday, having been born on Sept. 18th, 1844. Mr. Russell is still hale and vigorous, and is doing customs duty at the R. N. Co.'s express office and baggage department. He was 26 years of age at the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, and remembers well the interest with which the meagre reports from the front were then read at that time. The Telegram wishes Mr. Russell many happy returns and hopes that he may be spared to look back through the years at the present conflict which is now devastating Europe.

Big Freight Offering.

There is an unusually large amount of freight now at Montreal awaiting shipment to this port and in order to relieve the congestion another steamer in addition to the Morwenna and Cascoona will be put on the Black Diamond route, probably about the first of October. Also the S. S. Cascoona, which is due here to-morrow from Montreal via Charlottetown and Sydney, is filled with freight, principally flour.

A Thought for the Times

THE WAR.—CHAPTER IX.
I. C. MORRIS.

War is at all times a regrettable occurrence, and the very mentioning of it brings a sort of dread over the feelings. At its best, the clouds which attend it, shadow the nation to such a degree, that even its victory is dimmed, and its glory tarnished. But independent of the war itself, there are certain features, which, while of a more or less incidental character, are to be regretted. Every war has had its share of these, and so has this present war. Among many things which one should not wish to have occurred, the action of the Kaiser in refusing to permit the Empress of Russia to pass through his territory, was one of the most heinous of the lot; and it will be recorded in the annals of the nations, as undignified and uncalled for, and small in the extreme.

The Empress is a lady who has had her own share of sorrow—for every life has its portion. She had been on a visit to England, to see her sister, the Queen Mother, and at the outbreak of the war she immediately started for her home at St. Petersburg, Russia, of which country her son is Czar. Her line of travel led her through the German Emperor's territory, and she undertook to travel by the usual route—not dreaming that any objection would be raised. Her anxiety no doubt was great, as she probably knew what this war would really mean, and how terrible should be its results. Her visit to her sister—Alexandra, England's Queen Mother—had terminated with a terrible shock, and her farewell was almost tragic. What her feelings were and what the burden of her heart, can only be imagined. Royal daughter though she was, and high and honored by her nation and by the crowned heads of Europe, she was still a woman, with a woman's heart.

All true men honor womanhood. It has been so in all ages, and will be so. It is ordained so. Womanhood is angelic, and motherhood is sacred, and widowhood is a living memorial of both. The man who respects a woman doubly respects himself. The chivalrous age of the Knights Templars told this tale in a romantic, as well as heroic, manner. In these days of maddened rush and push, these modern days of commercialized humanity, we may not fully realize what the power of woman's love is; but we honor her all the same, and therefore we say, that all true men will respect womanhood, will stand up in her presence, and bow to her influence—her influence for good.

In whatever position we meet a woman she should command our respect. She is worthy of it. Is she on the street, down and fallen? Despise her not. A thousand things put her there, and a conspiracy of conditions united in her defeat. Neath it all there still lives and hopes, a woman's heart. Is she poor? Then she is but one of poverty's large families. Is she your daughter? Then instruct her. Your wife, cherish and encourage her. Your mother? Then forever reverence her.

The Empress of Russia represented all these three characteristics. She was a daughter of Royalty. The wife of Russia's late Emperor. The mother of its present Ruler. With her dignity and years she arrived at the railway station where flies the German flag. She was hastening home; but in her haste she was delayed, yes, stepped, and even turned back. The war lord of Europe asserted his royal right, and exercised it against her, and she had to pay the penalty, and instead of passing through German territory she was obliged to take a round-about course.

The act of an Emperor, true; but not the act of a gentleman. It was a chance of a lifetime for the Kaiser to show his charity and to manifest his nobility. He could have allowed his royal traveller to pass on, at least; but had he placed at her service a special car, and thereby had assisted her, he would have avoided one of the most contemptible happenings of this great war. His was a small act, and it has met the disapproval of all classes of people. Such a chance may not come to him again; and, no doubt, when the war is over, and the memories of its conflicts crop up, and the situation is reviewed there will be regret for having so acted. But the regret will be too late, the wound cannot be healed, and a whole world beholds it with disgust.

Such is war, we say; or rather such are some of its conditions. Somebody decided to fight, and millions fly to arms. Someone has a grievance, and the people pay the price. Someone hasn't enough, and the whole world must give of its best. A man who would fain be greater than he is, refuses to let a royal lady cross his domains, and by this action he insults the women of all the royal families of Europe, and among them the loved and idolized Queen Mother of England. Such we say is war. Is it any wonder then that people ask "how long" of that world which is growing tired of such things?

Is not the cup of the world's sorrow yet full? Has not humanity yet paid the price of its sin? Is not the Christian toil of nineteen centuries sufficient to reform mankind, or is the chapter still to be written out page by page, and every page to contain the record of oppression, wrong and suffering? How long, we ask, will man be small, and how long will the innocent suffer because of others' errors?

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Sept. 18th, 1914.
To cure a cold in a few hours—not always an easy task—Dominion Casca-Bromide Quinine Tablets have been highly recommended, and are useful in all cases of cold and cough, as well as for headache. They may be taken by children as well as adults. Price 25 cents a box.
If your feet have a tired aching feeling by the evening it may well be that there is something gone wrong with the foot arch. In that case you will find comfort by wearing a pair of the Scholl Foot Ezers (or Foot Arch Supports), a scientifically made appliance which will cure entirely many cases of foot trouble. Price $2.00 a pair.

Packed House

Delighted With the Four British Belles.
One of the most refined and beautifully costumed acts, is the Four British Belles at Rossleys, which was crowded to the very lobby. These talented young ladies are very fine singers, and nothing like their dancing has ever been seen here. Their costumes are all perfectly new and beautiful and will be worn at Rossleys' for the first time; each number they gave was more captivating than the other. Miss Webster sang an Irish ballad last night, that stamped her a favorite already. The Buck and Wine Dance by two of the ladies brought down the house. Miss Keen's Dutch Song and Dance was very sweet and dainty. Their finishing song and dance was the most beautiful thing ever seen here. The ladies all in elegant white satin costumes, looked lovely and this one number was worth twice the price of the admission. They will change the songs and dances all the time. New costumes for every song and dance. To-night the two great real features "The Grey Sentinel" a wonderful production and two others.

This Date in History.

SEPTEMBER 18.
New Moon—19th.
Days Past—260 To Come—104
SAMUEL JOHNSON born 1709. The lexicographer was born at Lichfield. His greatest work is "The Lives of the Poets," which with all its faults remains one of the greatest monuments of English criticism. Great as Johnson as a writer, there is much truth in Macaulay's remark, that "Boswell's book had done for him more than the best of his own books could do. The memory of other authors is kept alive by these works; but the memory of Johnson keeps many of his works alive."
MATTHEW PRIOR died 1721, aged 57. A well-known poet and wit who acquired celebrity by writing "The City Mouse and Country Mouse" and a number of other poems appropriate to the humour of the time.
WILLIAM HAZLITT died 1830, aged 52. One of the most admired of our essayists and critics. His "Characters of Shakespeare's Plays" and his published lectures on the poets and dramatists, besides his "Table Talks" are still widely read.
GEORGE MACDONALD died 1905, aged 81. A novelist and poet whose stories of Scottish peasant life paved the way for a later school of workers in the same field. He wrote "David Elginbrod" and "Robert Falconer."
TO OUR KINDRED AFAR.
Come Australia, come New Zealand—Canada, with heart of gold,
Come and help to keep this freeland Free for ever as of old.
Hangs her fortune in the balance,
Greedy is her foe and fierce,
Help to prune his Eagle's talons
Ere its beak her bosom pierce.
Yonder rants the lords of legions;
He is false as you are true,
Yea, as well O younger regions,
He has lust to subdue.
Not alone shall we lie cloven
If he scale our iron wall,
With our fate is Yours involved,
And as one we stand or fall.
Fain would he ride ruthless o'er us;
Strong in Wrong his hoof abhorred,
Strong in Right is She that bore us—
Make her stronger with your sword.
—William Watson.

Belgian King Praises British Troops.
Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
The King received the following telegram from the King of Belgium: "I desire to congratulate you most heartily on the splendid action of the British troops at the battle of the Marne, in the name of the whole Belgian nation. I express to you our deepest admiration for the stubborn courage of the officers and soldiers of your army. God will surely help our armies to avenge the atrocities committed on peaceful citizens and against a country whose only crime has been that she refused to be false to her engagements." King George on receipt of the telegram sent the following reply to King Albert: "I thank you most sincerely for your kind telegram and for your appreciation for the services of my troops. I earnestly trust that the combined operations of Allied forces in combination with your brave army, whose heroic efforts are beyond all praise will meet with continued successes and will free your much tried country from the invader."

CARSON'S MARRIAGE.
LONDON, To-day.
Sir Edward Carson was married at Wincanton, Somerset, to-day to Miss Ruby Frewen, niece of Morton Frewen, member of Parliament for North-east Cork.

2 P.M.
THE KING'S SPEECH IN PROLOGUING PARLIAMENT.
LONDON, To-day.
In his speech proroguing Parliament, the King spoke to-day as follows: "My Lords and Gentlemen, I address you in circumstances that call for action rather than for speech. After every endeavor had been made by my Government to preserve the Peace of the World, I was compelled in assertion of treaty obligations, deliberately set at naught, and for protection of the public law of Europe, and the vital interests of my Empire, to go to war. My navy and my army have with unceasing vigilance, courage and skill sustained in association with our gallant and faithful Allies a just and righteous cause. From every part of my Empire there has been a spontaneous and enthusiastic rally round our common flag. Gentlemen of the House of Commons, I thank you for the liberality with which you have met the great emergency. My Lords and Gentlemen, we are fighting for a worthy purpose and we shall not lay down our arms until the purpose has been fully achieved. I rely with confidence upon the loyal and united efforts of all my subjects and I pray that Almighty God may give us His Blessing." When the Deputy Speaker announced the formal prorogation, Will Crooks, Labor Leader, arose and asked if it was in order to sing God Save the King. The answer was then sung, the members rising in a body.

FIERCE FIGHTING ALONG FRONT.
LONDON, To-day.
A Bordeaux despatch says the battle continues with great fierceness along the whole front. The death is announced of General Bataille, killed in action.

SOME MOVE IN NORTH BELGIUM.
LONDON, To-day.
A correspondent of the Daily Mail at Ostend learns that important events are expected in North Belgium in the next few days which he is not allowed to disclose. He says there is little doubt that there are three German army corps of about 150,000 men in Belgium.

PREPARING FOR SIEGE.
ROME, To-day.
Despatches received from Trent, Austria, are to the effect that everything is in readiness for the proclamation of a state of siege. Even Alpine refuges, it is declared, have been transferred into forts in which cannon has been mounted.

COLLISION IN ST. LAWRENCE.
QUEBEC, To-day.
The Dominion Government steamer Montagny, sunk in St. Lawrence, 36 miles from Quebec this morning. She was struck by the Dominion coal collier L'Ingen, in a fog; 12 lives were lost. Fourteen lives were lost in the Montagny. The second officer, LeChance, and one other officer were lost. Among the lost are two women and 11 children, the families of the light house keepers at Belle Isle and Flower Island.

DIED.
This morning of apoplexy, Louise below wife of W. J. Perry, leaving a husband, two sons and one daughter to mourn their sad loss; funeral on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, No. 5 Hamilton Street; friends and acquaintances will please accept this, the only intimation.

At Britannia, this morning, Anna Maria, wife of the late David Currie, aged 81 years, leaving three sons and one daughter to mourn loss of a true mother.

Storm Plays Havoc at Bay de Verde.
According to a message received by Hon. J. C. Crosbie, from Bay de Verde, to-day, the entire fleet of fishing boats has been practically wiped out by last night's storm. A tremendous sea is running at Mulley's Cove and at Blackhead alone twelve boats have been destroyed. Flakes, fishing stages and wharves have been swept away and the damage to waterside property cannot yet be determined. This will be a hard blow to the fishermen of the district, as they have already fared badly during the season, and are now prevented from engaging in the fall fishery, by the loss of their boats and fishing gear. Gravel's Cove is open to the storm and it is expected that much damage will also be reported from that locality.

Reids' Boats.
The Argyle sails from Placentia this afternoon on the Merasheen route.
The Bruce left Port aux Basques at 11 a.m. to-day.
The Clyde left Botwood at 4.35 p.m. yesterday, outward.
The Dunce sails from Port Blandford to-day.
The Ethie leaves Clarendville to-day.
The Home sails from Lewisporte to-day.
The Kyle is remaining in port until the storm abates.
The Maitresse arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.05 a.m. to-day.
The Meigle arrived at Bonne Bay at 2.10 p.m. yesterday, going north.
The Sagona is north of Twillingate.

Slight Fire To-day.
At 11.30 a.m. to-day a slight fire occurred at the house occupied by a family named Newell, on New Gower Street West. The blaze was caused by a fire in the back of the chimney catching fire, and was promptly extinguished by the firemen from the West End Hall, a few yards distant. Considerable alarm was raised by the neighbors, when they discovered that in an adjoining room were two little children that had been locked in by their mother while she went down town. When the little ones heard the alarm of fire they were very much frightened, and were taken to a house nearby to await the return of their mother.

Two Men in Peril.
Early this morning two men at the South Battery while endeavoring to save their fishing stages from destruction, as their was a terrific sea running, drifted outside the Light House and in the direction of Freshwater Bay. Six men from the South Side put off in a fishing skiff and rescued the two men who had a rough experience for a couple of hours.

Drowning Accident.
A man named James W. Loveys was drowned this morning at Western Bay while attempting to save wreckage. A message regarding the above was received by Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings.

War News.

Messages Received During the Night.

FRANZ JOSEPH LEAVES VIENNA.
Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Sept. 17. The Central News has given out a despatch from a correspondent at Petrograd, who says that the retreating Austrian Army in Galicia has lost all discipline, and that the retirement has become a rout. According to a report from its Vienna correspondent, Emperor Francis Joseph has left the Austrian capital for an unknown destination.

LOOKS SUGGESTIVE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. President Wilson announced to-day that he had received from the Imperial Chancellor of Germany a non-committal reply to his inquiry into a report that Emperor William was willing to discuss terms of peace.

COMMENDABLE ACTION.

LONDON, Sept. 18. A despatch to Reuter's from Sydney, N.S.W., says: "The State Government, acting in accordance with the powers conferred upon it by Parliament at the outbreak of the war, to prevent gambling on food stuffs, to-day seized 140,000 bags of wheat which its holders had refused to sell for four shillings and two pence ($1.00) a hundred weight, the price fixed by the Government."

FIVE BRITISH STEAMERS SUNK.

TOKIO, Sept. 18. It is reported here that the German cruiser Emden has sunk five British steamers off the coast of India. The passengers on the vessels are said to have been saved.

BOARD OF TRADE TO TAKE POSSESSION OF ARTICLES OF COMMERCE.

LONDON, Sept. 18. A proclamation was issued to-night authorizing the Board of Trade to take possession of any articles of commerce, which are being unreasonably held from the market, paying the owners fair prices for them.

FOUNDED IN ENGLISH CHANNEL.

LONDON, Sept. 18. The Admiralty announces that the training ship Fisguard II, formerly the battleship Erebus, has foundered during a gale in the English Channel. Twenty-one members of the crew were drowned. At the time of the disaster the Fisguard was being towed. Boy Artificers were trained on the vessel.

With the Recruits.

Another squad of volunteers, who had been instructed in the theory of rifle shooting at the camp at Pleasantville, marched to the Southside Range yesterday afternoon for rifle practice. They were in command of Capt. J. W. March.

All the volunteers, except those retained for sentries and guards, were granted leave last night, and visited their friends in the city.

Several squads were skirmishing in the vicinity of the White Hills yesterday, and acquitted themselves creditably.

The boots supplied for the volunteers are, we understand, not up to the requirements of army boots. In this respect there is no person to blame, but the makers did not evidently understand the qualities necessary for boots that will minimize fatigue naturally resulting from forced marches. Some of the recruits were unable to wear them at all and have had to provide their own boots.

One of the Old Guard.

The many friends of Mr. Michael Hickey, especially his associates in the T. A. and B. Society, will be glad to know that he celebrated his 88th birthday yesterday. He has been 52 years a member of the T. A. and B. Society and in the early days of that institution did much to promote its interests. We extend to him our best wishes for many happy returns of the day.—P.

Personal.

Mr. Gilbert Bishop, son of Capt. J. Bishop, of Western Bay, who was formerly a lieutenant of the Methodist Guards, is now at Valcartier, having enlisted in the 5th Highlanders. The Guards at Western Bay are, no doubt, proud of being represented by such a fine young man as Bert.

EXPRESS ARRIVES.—The Lintrose express which was delayed by the derangement of a freight train, arrived in the city at 10.30 p.m. yesterday.

WE SELL FOR LESS

Divorced Life
 by Helen Hanson Fuentis

The Double Standard
 "The way men cling to the double standard of morality," said Mrs. McCarrren, "makes a veritable farce out of most marriages."
 Marian had never given the subject much more than mere passing thought. Her own divorce had not been precipitated by this particular phase of marital misfortune. Mrs. McCarrren's statement, accordingly, surprised and interested her.
 "I didn't know that the double standard was so prevalent," she replied.
 "My dear, it's the bane of woman's happiness," was the emphatic reply. "If a single standard is possible to achieve, it must be insisted upon," she continued. "The man who strays from that particular rule of moral conduct must eventually feel exactly the same burden of disgrace, as the woman who strays from it is now compelled to feel. If, on the other hand, a single standard is humanly impossible to attain, then, for heaven's sake, why not educate our girls to expect nothing but polygamy in men?"

 Marian gasped at her companion's plain language.
 "If polygamy is inherent and necessary to male conduct, let us educate our daughters to that view, so that they will understand the matter perfectly, yield to the inevitable, and be spared the horrible awakening after marriage. In the name of common sense, let's find out where we stand, as women, and make up our minds to one thing or the other. Personally, I think there is perhaps one man in a hundred who does not violate his marriage vows in this respect."
 "As few as that?" demanded Marian in astonishment.
 "I certainly think so," was the answer. "I should like to see statistics on the subject. I should like to see the gruesome matter approached with some effort to be scientific about it. We gather statistics on nearly every subject under the sun. But in this, the most vital problem of a woman's happiness, we stagger blindly in, cram our daughters full of incredible idealism about men, and marry them off in a blaze of romance, doing our level best to make every one of them think that she is marrying a perfect man, destined to fit perfectly into the golden scheme of things which we have insistently deceived her into believing."

 The speaker paused for a moment after her sweeping and bitter indictment of the established order as to things marital.
 "Why," she talked on, "we marry our girls off into a web of ignorance and deception. It's the most brutal part of our whole clawing, dismal scheme of organized exploitation. Yet we call it civilization! We surround the marriage ceremony with all the sanctimonious glamor of religion by the state, we raise a thousand bars against its dissolution—and all the while, under sinister cover, polygamy flourishes on every hand. Is it any wonder that women, once they learn the truth, hate the thought of bringing more children into the world—especially daughters, destined in turn to be thrown brutally on the rocks of disillusionment? Do you know what I'd like to see?"
 "What?" inquired Marian with growing interest in this serious point of view which seemed to be digging right into the heart of things.
 "I'd like to see an organized strike on the part of women against marriage, to be kept in force until this matter could be settled, one way or the other. Women are in the grip of an enormous and frightful man-trust.

We have men willing to shoulder the responsibility of every other variety of "trust-busting." But this most evil and menacing trust of all flourishes for the reason that nearly every man in this country is a preferred stockholder in it. He is drawing his dividends in license, and church and state permit it. Trusts have to be broken from without. It is up to us women."

Where Responsibility Lies.
 No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.
 To make jam fritters, cut fairly thick slices of bread and butter and jam. Make a batter with flour, eggs and milk. Dip slices in until well covered, then fry to a golden brown in plenty of fat.

WARNING!

IN THE INTEREST OF THE PUBLIC SAFETY.

The Rifle Range on the South Side Hill will be in constant use, from daylight till dark, for musketry practice, until our Regiment leaves for England.

All persons are therefore prohibited from approaching the Rifle Range within 200 yards from either side, or within 1,000 yards of the targets to the eastward.

Any unauthorized person so doing will be liable to arrest, besides incurring serious danger from rifle bullets. A number of red flags will be used to indicate the Danger Zone. This prohibition does not extend to any part of the Hills west of the 800 yards Firing Point.

By order,

JOHN SULLIVAN,
