Do You Perspire Freely? Many people are acutely sensitive to the odors arising from excessive perspiration, and yet under no circumstances is it wise to completely check perspiration for it is essential to health—many of the impurities of the body are gotten rid of by perspiration. O'MARA'S PERSPIRATION DEODORANT does not unduly check perspiration, but when properly applied it keeps the body comfortable and sweet—it counteracts body odors. 35c. a Jar. CHAPTER XXXII.
THE BURDEN OF A SIGH.

Their welcome in Grosvenor place was characteristic of Sir Edward.

"How do you do, Miss Carlisle?" he said, holding her hand and looking at her in his grave way, but with a kindly light in his keen, absorbed eyes. "I am very glad to see you back, and I have missed you very much indeed. Bruce is a lucky fellow to have recovered you, a very lucky fellow indeed," and he took and wrung Lord Norman's hand.

After dinner Sir Edward sat over his wine with Lord Norman for a little while, then he rose.

"Going to the house, I suppose?" said Lord Norman.

"N-o, not to-night, I think," answered Sir Edward.

"Not to-night! Why, I thought you had to speak!"

"Y-es, so I had; but I don't think I will go to-night—that is, if I shant be in the way. I don't know what the papers will say; no doubt they'll imagine I've had a domestic bereavement."

It was a great compliment to Floris, and one she was fond of talking about in after-life, when Sir Edward had become the "great statesman of the day."

They spent a quiet, delightful evening, and when the two ladies had gone to their rooms, Lady Betty held Floris at arm's length.

"Ah, my dear, how happy you look!" she said, her eyes full of sympathy very near to tears.

"Do I? I am glad of that," whispered Floris. "For I am very, very happy, dear. Happier, perhaps, for all that has passed. You see, one wants to know what misery is to be able to appreciate, at its full value, such happiness as mine!"

Not many weeks later Bertie returned to England. At a ball, which was attended by Bruce and his intended bride, the traveler met the bridegroom-elect. Explanations followed which satisfied both parties; and if anything were needed to complete Floris' happiness, it was the reunion which followed.

A flurry of excitement, which was of short duration, was occasioned by some news Bertie brought with him from Genoa. While he was stopping at the "Three Keys" Hotel, on his way home to England, a fellow-countryman committed suicide. The only means of identification was a cigar case on which were the initials O. R. Oscar Raymond was recognized as the unfortunate victim when Lord Norman identified the cigar case as the one which he presented to Raymond when they were at college.

Close upon the heels of this news came the announcement of Lady Blanche's engagement to a Parisian, Count d'Ennon. Bruce knew him; an old man, and a bad one.

He could forgive Oscar Raymond, dead by his own hand; he could forgive Josine, with the unhappy life he knew she must lead; but Lady Blanche he could not entirely and completely forgive!

As soon as could be arranged, the wedding, which made Floris Countess of Norman, was celebrated. It was a quiet ceremony, at least that was how Lady Betty described it, though, as Floris said, if hers was a quiet one she pitied the bride who had to endure a grand one.

The date of the wedding had got about; perhaps Lady Betty whispered it in the strictest confidence to a lady friend or two, and the little chapel in the Savoy was grammed.

All Floris' friends were there, the Lynches and Dr. Greene included; and the great duke who was related to Bruce, at his own request, gave the bride away.

Bertie was best man, and not a few of the young ladies who were present cast pensive glances in his direction; but Bertie seemed to think on this, as on all other occasions, that there was only one woman in the world worth thinking of, and as he could not have her, the rest, as Hamlet says, "was silence."

Floris looked very beautiful; indeed the great society paper declared emphatically that she would be the most lovely bride of the season; and Bruce, who had lost his haggard look, was, as Dr. Greene remarked, "as fit as a man could be."

Their honeymoon was spent in that state of bliss which only two such devoted people as Bruce and his bride, the Countess of Norman, can realize. It was indeed a fitting forecast of the happiness which in every way attended them until the end of their days.

Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER I.
A GLOOMY DAY.

Since mamma's death, no steps of any kind have been taken with regard to it; and, but for our present urgent need of money—a need that has been created by a long and dangerous illness from which Len is only just beginning to recover—it is probable we should never have thought of it now.

This illness of Leonard's has proved an almost overwhelming calamity for us, for it is not his work alone that has been at a standstill; Addie's earnings have also failed us. During the time of our anxiety she tried in vain to snatch a little time and thought for her writing, and the result is there are no nice, convenient little checks from editors dropping in upon us, now that we need them so badly; while Len's great picture, on which so many hopes were built, and that was to have been ready for the opening of the Royal Academy, stands untouched on the easel; while he daubs away at things that will bring us in a few pounds on which to live.

Not that we are quite without hope of better days. We are still young and sanguine enough to believe in the splendid possibilities of the future! Of course, Addie is to write a novel some day that will take the world by storm; and Len's great picture, when it is finished, is to be the picture of the year; and if I could only manage to do something great myself, how well we might have got along!

"And how it is that I happen to be the one drone in the hive I can't conceive!" I remark, with a sigh of desperation. In the course of that discussion of affairs financial. "Here's Len working away for fame and fortune with his paint and brushes, and Addie turning bottles of ink and quires of manuscript paper into money; and why Mother Nature ever took the trouble to turn me out of hand at all, since she did not see fit to endow me with a single faculty I can manage to turn to account, I can't conceive!" "There's gratitude for you!" says Len, taking the poker and tapping the big lumps of coal in the old-fashioned open grate until it sends forth a bright, warm glow, that throws our faces and figures into a sort of Rembrandt-like distinctness against the dim background of unlighted room beyond. "If Mother Nature had only treated all her daughters as liberally as she has treated you, Lesley, what a 'dream of fair women' life would have been! You can lay the flattering unction to your soul that you are uncommonly good to look at, if you are good for nothing else. You are very pretty, my dear!"

"Pretty!" I repeat, turning up my nose in supreme disdain—not that it is at all necessary, for, as Len says, it turns up quite enough of its own accord. "What is the use of being pretty, I should like to know? Will my good looks pay the butcher and baker, or buy me new dresses and bonnets, do you suppose?"

"We can't all be geniuses," says Adelaide. "As one star differeth from another, you know, different people different gifts; and yours is among the best, dear—the gift of making every one love you."

"Oh, of course," I reply with a laugh which, but for a desperate effort of self-restraint, might have ended in a miserable little flood of tears. "We are a wonderful family, take us altogether, comprising, as we do, so much brains and beauty among us!—we paint our own pictures, write our own books, and—"

"Blow our own trumpet; and Lesley is trumpeter in chief!" interrupts Len, with one of his quiet, quizzical smiles. But, for all that, it is a little hard that we should be so terribly pressed for money just now, I think, as for the next few days I go on cooking the dinners, keeping the accounts, and looking rather sharply after the coal and other sundries, to the infinite disgust of our landlady, Mrs. Battles—a genteel creature, low of voice, and cat-like in movement, whose very manner seems to act like an irritant upon my nerves and to arouse what I call the discordant elements of my soul.

CHAPTER II.
OFF TO DEEPDENE.

"ADDIE," I cry one morning, bursting rather unceremoniously into the room in which my sister, looking pale and tired, sits busy at work at a manuscript-littered table, "I've got far and away the most splendid idea you ever heard of in all your life!"

"Won't it keep, Lesley?" she asked, with a shade of not unnatural impatience at having her ideas thus summarily put to the rout. "I'm very busy just now, you see."

"No," I reply, feeling that I must talk, or explode; "it is much too good to be kept to myself. It is about Deepdene, Adelaide. Suppose we were all to go down there and spend the summer? What do you say to that for a suggestion? Just think of the advantages to be derived from such a scheme! Len could have the chance of air the doctor says he needs; we should save our rent; you would have peace and quietude for your writing. Len for his painting; while I—oh! well, it is quite impossible to say what I might not do—I might improve the fortunes of the family by captivating a rich Devonshire squire and winning a rich husband, perhaps—who knows!"

"But is it practicable, do you think?" Addie inquires, with a look of growing interest, referring to the first part of my suggestion rather than to the last. "Why not? Deepdene is our own. What is to prevent our living in it if we like?" I ask.

"The rats, the drafts, and the damp, I am afraid!" she laughs; "and then, Lesley, have you forgotten the ghost?"

"A little arsenic and good fires would do a great deal toward mitigating the first two evils." I return. "And as to the ghost—oh!—well, I'm willing to take my chance with him, or her—which ever gender that spectral individual belongs to—who, by the way, has monopolized our property quite long enough, I think."

WAR REVIEW.

Notwithstanding the fact that the enemy has powerfully strengthened his battle line running across the Soissons-Rheims salient with additional fresh reserves and has stubbornly disputed further passage north to the Allied troops, the enemy front has been compelled to bend back appreciably on all sides of the salient except at the anchor points resting immediately on Soissons and Rheims. South of Soissons further wedges have been driven east into the enemy front down to the Ourcq River. East along the Ourcq the French and American troops have crossed the stream at various points and advanced their line well to the north, while south-west of Rheims the Allies have debouched from the wooded sectors and gained the plains, notwithstanding the violence of the enemy counter-maneuvre. On some points the Germans succeeded somewhat in breaking the forward movement, but nowhere were they able to bring it to a standstill. The retreat of the enemy still remains orderly, but everywhere the Allied troops are pressing him hard. Particularly bitter fighting has taken place around Fere-en-Tardenois and at Sergy, both of which towns are now in the hands of the Franco-American troops. The battle lines shifted back and forth, and Sergy changed hands four times, but the Americans finally drove the enemy out and retained the village, inflicting heavy casualties. The fighting in Fere-en-Tardenois also was sanguinary, the opposing forces fighting in close contact through the streets of the town, but with the enemy being gradually driven back under the machine gun and rifle fire of the French and Americans, or left wetting in their blood from contact with the cold steel of the Allied bayonets. Immediately south of Soissons on the West front on the edge of the salient the Germans strove heroically to hold back their enemies, in order to prevent the further flanking of Soissons, and the possible cutting off of large forces of their men, fighting along the Ourcq. South of Quichy-le-Chat, a Scottish troops, however, captured positions in the outskirts of the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road, while further south the French overcame the resistance imposed against them, crossed the high road and took Grand-Rosary Cagny and the Butte de Chalmont, southeast of Soissons, well in side the salient and at present far outside the immediate battle zone.

Various towns and villages along the Soissons-Fismes railway are said to be in flames. This seemingly would indicate that the retreat of the enemy from the big pocket is to proceed still further north before they intend to halt to face about and give battle to the Allied troops along a chosen line. If the retreat on the west is to be carried beyond the Soissons-Fismes line it is the intention of the Germans to make their stand from Soissons east along the Aisne to the Vesle River, and thence southeast to Rheims.

British troops on various sectors in France and Flanders continue their pressing tactics against the German front. Near Morlancoeur in the Amiens sector the Australians have taken several lines of trenches, captured a fairly large number of prisoners and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy during counter attacks. Near Gavrelle, which lies east of Arras, Canadian contingents also have carried out a successful enterprise and have taken prisoners.

RUPTURE BETWEEN GERMANY AND TURKEY.
LONDON, July 29.
The relations between Germany and Turkey have been severed, according to direct information from Constantinople. This announcement is made by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co.

If as reported there has been a breach of relations between Germany and Turkey, disputes over the distribution of the spoils of war doubtless there have been rumors that Turkey was opposed to the share of Rumania that Bulgaria was to receive, and that Turkey also was looking with jealous eyes toward the Black Sea littoral, the Caucasus and the Balkans. Announcement was made in the Reichstag in June that differences had arisen between Bulgaria and Turkey over the division of lands taken from Rumania under the peace agreement with the Central Powers. The announcement was made by the German Foreign Secretary who said that the provisional arrangements which it was desired should continue as short a time as possible must find its rational solution in the union of North Dobruja with Bulgaria in accordance with the desires of the Bulgarian people. The Foreign Secretary adds that the question was a difference of opinion between two of Germany's Allies to whom Germany was bound by exactly equal ties, and that everything must be avoided which would cause the impression to prevail abroad that Germany's policy favored the claims of the one ally at the expense of the other. The Cologne Gazette early in June asserted that the differences between Turkey and Bulgaria involved certain danger, that the work of harmony achieved by the Central Powers at Bucharest may suffer. The paper added that both Bulgaria and Turkey were claiming Germany's full support in their respective interests. The North German Allgemeine Zeitung, a semi-official German government organ, however, declared that the dispute of Dobruja was one on which Turkey and Bulgaria would have come to an agreement and that Germany could only express herself reservedly on the matter, if Germany wasn't to assume heavy responsibilities for the future. Later the Berlin Voelische Zeitung printed an article by its Constantinople correspondent, declaring that the political censorship in Turkey had been abolished, in order to allow Turkish papers to attack Bulgaria. Announcement was made some time ago that Turkey and Germany were in hot dispute over the disposition of the Russian Black Sea Fleet. Talat Pasha, the Turkish Grand Vizier, replied to depositions from the Turkish Navy League which pointed out that Turkey had an incontestable claim to the fleet. He said negotiations were proceeding between Germany and Russia for handing over the fleet to Germany, but that the Turkish Government had taken energetic action with a view to acquire it. Turkish ambition in the Black Sea littoral and in the Caucasus recently were attacked by the pan-German Berlin paper Koelner Zeitung. Turkey's idea, said the paper, seems to be to gain a dominating position in the Black Sea, making the pan-Turkic idea paramount there and creating in the Caucasus a strong rampart between Turkey and Russia, hence the German policy is confronted with difficult tasks.

PARIS CONFIDENT.
PARIS, July 29.
The Parisians have apparently settled down to a feeling of confidence in the efficiency of the high command and the valor of the Allied soldiers. The fact that the Germans stubbornly held on to a certain portion of the northern bank of the Marne between Jaingonne, Dormans and Châtillon caused some uneasiness, but this feeling has been eliminated by the abandonment of those positions on Saturday, in defence of which the Germans shed much blood and expended a tremendous amount of energy and munitions. The population has also been cheered by the news that the advance of the Allied forces was more pronounced, the armies retrieving more territory on Saturday than on any day since the opening of the offensive on July 18th. While the contentions are always couched in moderate and sober terms, it is easy for the population to reckon the advance on the maps by comparing the names of the villages and towns mentioned in the latest statement with those referred to on Friday. All the afternoon papers feature the abandonment of the heights on the north bank of the Marne. Military men consider that the giving up of the positions north of the Marne is of the greatest strategic importance, because the German artillery could command the Paris-Châlons railroad from the heights. The enemy seemed determined not to abandon the hills, putting up a most tenacious resistance. The retrograde movement of the Germans apparently has assumed a great impetus since Saturday in some places along the Chateau Thierry-Soissons road. French cavalry is coming into action, interfering with the movements of the German rearguard. In well informed circles there is a feeling that the Germans will attempt to make a stand on the river Vesle. It has been the contention of some military critics that the Vesle was destined to become the new line of German resistance, since General Foch's thrust caused their left wing to stagger back under a surprise blow.

ALLIES OVERCOME OBSTACLES.
WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 29.—To dislodge the Germans after conquering Fere-en-Tardenois, the Allies next had before them the difficult task of crossing the Ourcq River in the face of the strongest German fire. Happily the River is running very low just north, for not a bridge was left intact. The Allies succeeded in overcoming all obstacles here and secured a foothold in the northern bank, where they present a serious menace to the enemy. Further in the southeast in the neighborhood of the Ris Forest toward the centre of the pocket both the infantry and the artillery were heavily engaged. In the region north of the Ris Forest there were some very furious combats, which lasted several hours, and resulted in the Allies gaining possession of Champois. Then Ronchere was reached by advance guards. Further to the east cavalry patrols came into action in the Meuniers Wood, and at Villers Agron Anquize. All along this part of the line the enemy threw great quantities of gas shells, the fumes of which remained for a long time among the Allies near Romegny and Bigny. The Allies got over the Dormans-Rheims main road, but the advance called for the greatest precautions here because of the enormous number of enemy machine guns under cover of the small woods in this region. On the eastern flank, however, the Allies have got beyond the wooded country and on to the plateau.

RETREAT CONTINUING.
LONDON, June 29.
The German retreat is continuing along the whole line with the Allies closely in pursuit, according to news from the fighting area in the Soissons-Buzancy salient received up to noon. The Germans have succeeded in checking to a certain extent, but not stopping the French advance. The French are on the north bank of the Ourcq, and to the east they have secured the whole line between Rheims and Dormans. The Germans are stubbornly resisting and are burning villages. Heavy fighting is still in progress to the south of Soissons in the neighborhood of Buzancy. So far the French have made no progress there. Villages between Soissons and Bazoches, about fourteen miles to the east, however, are on fire, leading to the belief that the Germans may intend to further retreat.

AMERICANS CAPTURE TOWNS.
WASHINGTON, July 29.
The crossing of the Ourcq by the American forces in their continued pursuit of the enemy north of the Marne, was reported in General Pershing's communication for yesterday, received to-day at the War Department. The capture by the Americans of the towns of Derlages et Morteville, Sermy and Rencher, beyond the Ourcq, also is announced.

RETURNS TO WORK.
COVENTRY, Eng., July 29.
At a mass meeting to-day the strikers in the munition plants decided to return to work immediately.

POSITIONS MAINTAINED.
WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 29. (By the A.P.)—The Allies pushed on beyond Fere-en-Tardenois this morning, and maintained their positions everywhere in the face of strong German counter-attacks. The village of Sergy, southeast of Fere-en-Tardenois changed hands four times, finally coming in possession of the Allies. An extremely violent artillery duel was on this morning north of the Ourcq as far as the Soissons. In the sector south of the Ourcq the guns were also busy.

HIGH GROUND WON BY FRENCH.
LONDON, July 29.
The French won ground on the important front between Soissons and the Ourcq on the German right flank to-day. Launching a new attack this morning near Grand Rosse, they advanced half a mile. The high ground here already is in French hands. The fighting was still proceeding at last reports received in London this afternoon.

GERMANS START NEW BATTLE.
LONDON, July 29.
The Germans started a new battle this morning in a quiet sector east of Rheims, by launching a heavy attack against the French positions on Hill 181, near Monte Sansonville. When the latest despatches were filed, the fighting was proceeding without much advantage to either side.

CONTINUING RETIREMENT.
LONDON, July 29.
News of the French advance below Soissons was received in London late this afternoon. Still further north this morning the French surrounded the village of Bouzany and took 200 prisoners, but later lost the village. From many parts of the line the news is that the Germans are continuing their retirement, but resisting strongly at several points, especially on the east wing along the line of Chambery, Ville en Tardenois and St. Commes.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.
LONDON, July 29.
British troops last night carried out a successful operation in the Maricourt sector, the war office announced to-day. The British took all their objectives, and three German counter-attacks were beaten off with losses to the enemy.

BERLIN STATEMENT.
BERLIN, via London, July 29.
After fulfilling their tasks, says a German official statement, issued to-day, our forefield guards fell back to their lines in accordance with orders issued by the high command. At Fere-en-Tardenois and to the south of that place, the enemy's attacks, several times renewed, led to violent combats, which ended in the repulse of the enemy. The communication admits that on the night of July 28-27 still in accordance with plans, the Germans evacuated the front line between the Ourcq and Ardre, and also shifted the defence to the region between Fere-en-Tardenois and Ville en Tardenois without the knowledge of the Allies.

PUT ON THE RETIRED LIST.
WASHINGTON, July 29.
The German General Von Francols has been put on the retired list for punishment for failure of the offensive in the region of Soissons, according to an article in the Frankfurter Zeitung, received here to-day by cable.

NAVAL CO-OPERATION.
LONDON, July 29.
There is no branch of Anglo-American activity in which co-operation and comradeship are more marked and more complete than in the Navy, said Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, speaking to-day at the American Luncheon Club. There are more than 350 American warships now based on this side, said Sir Eric; and Mr. Roosevelt, the American Assistant Secretary of the Navy, has assured us this number will increase faster in the future than in the past.

MUST BE REDUCED.
NEW YORK, July 29.
Demands of the Government and private war industries for steel purchases are in such huge proportions, with repeated expansion of the nation's military programme, that the allotments to less essential manufacturers must be continually reduced, J. L. Repogle, Federal Steel Administrator, announced here to-day.

Although their hostility to the embargo upon skilled workers was unabated, the promise of an enquiry into the situation has reconciled the strikers to the inevitable. Food Hoarding.

Perhaps no greater offence can be committed by a community, as well as by an individual, against the well being of the nation in war time than that of food hoarding. People guilty of this, apparently do not realize it has on seriousness, nor the effect it has on the laws of supply and demand. There might also be added the knifed crime of profiteering, which in the United States is made an offence against the realm and punished by fines, the sum of which is turned over to one of the many war funds instituted in that country. But the hoarding of food contrary to the regulations of the Controlling Board constitutes a far greater menace, perhaps, than profiteering, though they both bear equally harsh on the consuming purchaser. All the food producing countries, which are at war are hard put to it to supply their soldiers, the needs of home consumption and the requirements of foreign trade, and naturally something had to be done to curtail waste and minimise extravagance. The fighting man in the field is the chief consideration. He must be fed. Next in order comes the war worker, whose name is legion, and who, in order to turn out a countless flow of supplies and munitions, must be as well fed as the soldier's abroad. The navy and the merchant marine have to be looked after, then the home population. All these are non-producers of food, yet they have to be fed. Upon the farmer all the great tasks of raising wheat and cattle must be laid, and that he may not fail, the State decrees that help shall be afforded him. The man behind the plow is as necessary to victory as the man behind the gun, and to ensure that victory there must be no diminution in the supplies which are needed by Armies, Navies and Merchant Shipping. These cannot wait. Whatever is required must be ready when the requisitions for stores come in. A continuous supply must be ever in transit, and no delay must ensue. "If an army," to use a Napoleonic axiom, "lights upon its stomach," and that is as true to-day as it was when uttered, there is all the more need for the commissariat department to have at command everything essential, and with that in view and seeing its absolute imperativeness allied regulations have been issued certain regulations for the better conservation of food. These regulations decree that certain quantities only may be bought within a given time; they also set forth that certain quantities only may be exported to countries which hitherto had carte blanche in their orders. It is in consequence of this that Newfoundland has been cut down in her food purchases abroad. It is for this reason that our people have been asked to conserve and save. Carefulness in the use of food will be one of the great factors in bringing victory to the Allied arms, and Newfoundlanders above all others, should appreciate this. We are utterly dependent on outside help for everything we eat, and if we show ourselves extravagant in the use of imported foodstuffs, or negligent in our recognition of the circumstances surrounding the conditions under which we receive our allotments, our source of supply will be removed. So long as we are careful and provident, there will be ample for needs; and there is no earthly necessity for hoarding. Nothing could be more selfish; nothing is more unpatriotic. The food hoarder is helping the enemy, though maybe he does not realize it. And he is not only rendering the foe assistance, but what is more, if anything could be worse, he is depriving his fellowman of his proportionate share of the necessities of life, and this has a tendency to weaken the resisting powers of the population, a weakness which may end disastrously. We trust that it will not become the duty of the Food Control Board to invoke the aid of the law to prevent any recurrence of this offence of hoarding food. The good sense of our people should be a guarantee that the regulations now in force will be carried out. But if a repetition of this matter occurs in any larger measure, the Control Board will be perfectly justified in penalizing the offenders. Fair play to two hundred and ten thousand people in the outports will demand that this be done.

Here Are The Facts.

The Military Service Board has had under consideration an alleged breach of the Military Service Act referred to in an article which was published in the Evening Herald of Tuesday, July 23rd, headed "Priest's Story." This matter has been in the hands of the Police for some time for the purposes of investigation and the Board is now advised that no breach of the Military Service Act has occurred, but as so much publicity has been given, the facts as they now appear are set forth below. Some time during the month of May last Mrs. Matthew Quigley, of Torbay, applied to the Rev. John Ashley, Parish Priest at that place, for the Baptismal Certificate of her son Michael, who was then and is still residing in the United States. Fr. Ashley states she told him that her son was 19 years old and that she wanted a certificate for Torbay, he might apply for exemption from military service, or as she put it, "to get him clear of the service." Fr. Ashley, for the year 1899 and found a Baptismal entry which was shown to Mrs. Quigley, which she stated to refer to her son. Accordingly he gave her the usual Baptismal Certificate. She took the Certificate to the Registrar and subsequently brought it back to Fr. Ashley enclosed in a letter from Hon. M. P. Gibbs, of which the following is a copy: St. John's, May 23, 1918. The enclosed Certificate shows Quigley to be but 19 years of age. Quigley's mother claims he will be 24 next September. The Certificate is required by Quigley, who is now in the United States, for the purpose of exemption from "draft" to be made in Aug. I will certify your signature. Yours truly, (Signed) M. P. GIBBS.

Dear Father Ashley, The enclosed Certificate shows Quigley to be but 19 years of age. Quigley's mother claims he will be 24 next September. The Certificate is required by Quigley, who is now in the United States, for the purpose of exemption from "draft" to be made in Aug. I will certify your signature. Yours truly, (Signed) M. P. GIBBS. Mrs. Quigley states that when she brought the '19 year' certificate to Mr. Gibbs she told him that Michael was 23, which she returned to Fr. Ashley she asked him to certify to 24. Fr. Ashley very positively refused and on the following Sunday morning gave her the correct certificate showing Michael Quigley to have been born at Middle Cove on the 14th September, 1899. This was taken to Mr. Gibbs and Fr. Ashley's signature was certified by him as a Notary and sent by Mrs. Quigley to her son in the United States. It appears that the first certificate referred to by Michael Quigley was not to Michael Quigley, but to the son of another family of the name of Quigley. Mrs. Quigley has two other sons, one aged 17 living in Torbay, and one aged 32 living in the United States. The Board is of opinion that the facts are substantially as above stated, and being so to consider that any action on their part is called for.

New Moons and N. E. Winds.

Local meteorologists and the weather prophets who are learned in lunar love say that the prevailing winds for 1918 will be N.E. So far they are correct. They base their predictions on the time of the new moon, asserting that whenever the phase occurs in the a.m., the wind for the full moon period will be mainly from the N.E. Reference to the calendar will show that the phases of the moon occur in January, February, April, June and July have been in the morning. The phase to come for August, September, October and November will also occur after midnight, so that a continuance of N. E. winds may be expected for the balance of the year.

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

TO-NIGHT'S THE NIGHT. To-night's Baseball game should prove to be what is generally known as a "blood" match. The Wanderers are smarting over the drubbing administered to them by the Cubs last week in the Mount Cashel series, while the Cubs on their part are not inclined to apply any balm to their opponents' sores. This contest will open the second round of the League series. The Wanderers will be strengthened by the addition of Ford who will play third base, while Drover will also be in evidence. It is therefore not unlikely that the Cubs will find they are up against it hard when Freddie calls "Play Ball." Here are the doughty warriors: Wanderers. Pitcher: C. Hall. QUIET ON BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, July 29. Reporting military operations on the British sector of the Austro-Italian front, a war office statement issued to-day says that in the past week the situation on the British front was quiet. Six hostile airplanes were brought down. Two of ours failed to return.

REMAINS IN THE CROWN.

LONDON, July 29. By a decision of the Privy Council announced to-day the dominion of some 45,000,000 acres of land in Southern Rhodesia, remains in the Crown, but the British South Africa Company will continue to administer the land and may be reimbursed financial matters.

WANTS IT REFERRED TO WILSON.

LONDON, July 29. In the debate in the House of Commons to-day on his motion regarding Ireland, Mr. Dillon, the Nationalist leader, proposed the reference of the question to President Wilson.

CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE IN FLANDERS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 28. (By the A.P.) Continued rain has turned the Flanders front in many places into an impassable mire, while other parts of the front are wet and soggy. Such conditions are most unfavorable for launching an assault against the British lines, even if the enemy, who is busy trying to save his troops porters of the Marne from further defeat, should have some such plan in mind. Large quantities of gas have been produced in many places into an impassable mire, while other parts of the front are wet and soggy. Such conditions are most unfavorable for launching an assault against the British lines, even if the enemy, who is busy trying to save his troops porters of the Marne from further defeat, should have some such plan in mind. HARDEN'S VIEWS.

AMSTERDAM, July 28. Maximilian Harden devotes practically the whole of to-day's Die Zukunft to proving that Chancellor Von Hertling's charge against the Allies that they want to annihilate Germany is untrue. Harden quotes President Wilson's Munich speech to show how bitter the Entente nations are against militarism, but that they are ready to give the German people a chance. He compares these speeches with those recently delivered either by the German Chancellor or various Junkers in the Prussian Upper House, where the demand for unlimited annexations is continually heard. He concludes his remarks by urging the Allies to begin to set clearly on which side is the will to annexations. Germany.

Keeping Still for the Children.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One find oneself wondering now and then what the person who enunciated the old proverb "children should be seen and not heard" would say if he could spend a few weeks in an average American family observing some specimens of the average American child.

I fancy his sensations would be the mental equivalent of the sensations of a man who finds himself stood on his head.

I could not help invoking the shades of this person when I met some people who have an average—a very average—young person for a daughter. She is a most self possessed young miss aged, I should say, about twelve. And if the man who wrote the proverb could only meet her I would much prefer being present at the meeting to spending an evening at the theatre or at bridge.

When Elders are Hushed Up.

Now do not infer that I agree with the gentleman of the proverb, (I have a feeling somehow that it was a man. A man would resent having the centre of the stage taken away from him more than a woman) that children should always be hushed up in the presence of their elders. But what gets me is the way in so many families that elders hush up when a child begins to speak.

That was what I specially noticed during my evening with the self possessed young person and her parents when she started to speak the whole room instantly became silent while we all listened to what she had to say. The hush was really impressive. What she had to say seldom was.

The Little Girl who Suttered.

Nor is this an unusual case. I can think of several similar cases that I can think of another occasion when some people called on me with their little girl, a child of about seven. She sutters quite badly (sutters trick they have permitted to grow upon her) and the inevitable result was that whenever she took the floor she held it for some time. And as the group of us, some eight or nine adults were supposed to cease our chatter when she spoke, the result was that we spent most of our time listening.

No Monopoly for Either, my Platform

I do not believe in monopolies on the part either of children or grown-ups. Children should be listened to courteously but I do not think this courtesy should be exaggerated into a deference that is sure to give the child an idea that he is the only person who greatly matters in the scheme of things. That idea will add none to his usefulness, his popularity nor his happiness as he grows older.

WOMEN TRIUMPHANT.

The woman barber is on her back; to-day the dyer is on his side; boards blue, and brushed some talcum on my neck, as well as any man could do. Her fingers held my nose, she lathered me with queenly grace, and tinted up the brush that grows around the borders of my face. To-day I took a jitney ride; a woman driver held the wheel; she was as blooming as a bride, and full of business as an eel. And when I offered her in pay a bogus seven dollar bill, she threw me over a stack of hay with most surprising strength and skill. I went to shoo some sheaves of wheat, that all the nations may be free; and I tolled on weary feet, a husky dame worked next to me. As counsel for James Pritchard Hose, in court I did my very best; a woman lawyer then arose, and knocked my logic galley west. While I was fighting with my wife I fell downstairs and broke a thigh; a woman surgeon brought a knife, and fixed me up as good as new. The men have gone to whip the Hun; their wives and daughters stay behind, to see that every duty is done, to carry on the ceaseless grind. To-day I thought, with whoop and song I celebrate a Hun defeat; a woman peeler came along, and pinched me, on Commercial street. A woman jailer saw me kneel contritely on the prison stones; a woman cad heard my spiel, and put me down for fifteen bones.

BEAUTIFYING THE ARMS.

Beauty of the arms includes not only their appearance but their action. In the muscular development of the arms girls are much inferior to boys. Nearly every boy can pull himself up by a bar until his chin touches his fists, but few girls are able to accomplish this feat. There is such a close connection between the arms and the muscles of the front and back of the trunk, that any exercise that develops the arms will also develop the upper trunk muscles.

A splendid resistance exercise for the arms, which should be taken slowly is as follows: With the arms at sides, inhale deeply, clench the fists, bring fists to shoulders moving the lower arm only, and resisting the movement partly. Now, with the fist shoulder high and held there, bring the elbows slowly out and up to the shoulder level. The third part of the movement is to carry the fists close under the arm pits and as far back as possible. Cross the fists high up on the back and then lower them easily to the sides. Every part of this exercise includes resistance.

Lifting weights from the floor to enlarge the upper arm need not be done with an actual weight in the hands, in fact, it is much better for girls to control the resistance, regulating it according to their own individual strength which varies from day to day.

Take a long step forward and bend to the floor with the hands touching the floor. Take a deep breath, clench the fists, and pull the arms up as if lifting a heavy weight. As you lift carry the weight of the forearm, bring the back foot, flexing the back knee, keep the elbows high and twist until the palms are up and the elbows back as far as possible.

Repeat three times to the right and three times to the left. Follow by three deep bow breaths. To increase the size of the forearm, open and close the hand rapidly with tension, increasing the number of times daily.

SEND HIM A PAPER.

Said Private Jimmy Barkis as he chatted with his mates, "I wonder what they're doin' in the 'O United States; Is Ty Cobb hittin' doubles in the way he used to do?"

Is Speaker peggins' runners with that same old deadly throw? I wish I had a paper from the home town, old or new.

An 'ould read about the people an' the places that I know.

"I can't get interested in the Daily Mail or Times, I want the home town paper with its latest local crimes. I'm wondering who has married since the day I was out of the country. Who's been buried, since I left there. Oh, it seems so long ago! For a copy of the paper I would give up six months pay. There's no much I'd like to read of 'an' so much I want to know."

Said Private Jimmy Barkis, "It's a funny thing to me, But they seem to think a paper we don't want to see. They write us cheerful letters an' they send us things to wear. They send us good tobacco, an' we're mighty grateful too. But they plumb forget a paper from the old town over there. Is a thing we'd never part with 'ill we read it through an' through."

Household Notes.

Scarfs edged with wool fringe finish some of the prettiest duvetyne coats.

Turquoise silk trimmed with lavender organdie makes an attractive frock.

Evening capes have collars made of silk flowers sewed very close together.

Ostrich feathers are much used on hats, but usually flat under a veiling of tulle.

Pink and gingham trimmed with pink organdie makes an unusually smart frock.

Ratine and spotted batiste, and even mill make the war-time garden party gowns.

A yellow bathing suit is girdled with blue, and has pockets of yellow and blue stripes.

Among the ornaments seen on the summer hats are silk flowers painted by hand.

The untrimmed low-cut necks of dresses are becoming only to plump and lovely throats.

A summer suit of shantung is splendid for two reasons: it looks well and wears well.

A dress of white dotted rose foulard can be very attractive if trimmed with brown rabbit fur.

Silpans of wool, lined with foulard, are worn inside out when the owner wants a change of dress.

Tunics are as much worn as ever, and are often carried out in trikot over an undershirt of smooth satin.

A pink batiste hat embroidered in French knots can be worn upon either afternoon or evening occasions.

One smart dress of mull was trimmed with a soft bow tie of lace insertion, which had long, pointed ends.

An attractive motor veil was made of net, weighted by a very broad band of velvet—broad enough to be used as a gape.

If one wears a girdle of blue with a white dress, it is only right to wear blue stockings and white shoes to complete the costume.

Some Sneezing Superstitions.

Sneezing superstitions are prevalent all over the world.

In Scotland it has long been maintained that idiots are incapable of sneezing, and the power to do so has been deemed evidence of the possession of a certain degree of intelligence.

It was a Flemish belief that a sneeze during a conversation or a bargain proved that what you said was the truth. The Chinese believe that a sneeze on New Year's Eve means bad luck through the coming year. The Japanese hold that one sneeze means that someone is praising you; two, show blame; whereas, if you sneeze three times, you are merely ill.

When an American Indian falls sick and sneezes he believes his illness to be the work of some spiteful spirit. When he gets well he changes his name, so that the demon may not know him again. A pious Brahmin will touch his right ear when he sneezes. Evil spirits are believed to enter the body by the ears, and the object of protecting the ear with the hands was to prevent their gaining admission. Speke and Grant, the African explorers, were unable to discover any trace of religion among the natives of Equatorial Africa, except an ejaculation (apparently a prayer) whenever a person sneezed.

In France in earlier days, a sneeze was greeted by the removal of the hat; and when the paroxysm was over the sneezer formally returned the salutes of all present. In England also, in the seventeenth century, a sneeze was saluted by the removal of the hat. Joseph Hall, Bishop of Exeter in 1587, wrote that a man no longer reckoned among his friends those who failed to uncover when he sneezed.

The Siamese have a peculiar idea of their own—that the gods are continually turning over the pages of the Judgment Book, and when they come to the page relating to any particular person, that individual invariably sneezes. Their salutation is, "May the Judgment be favorable to you."

Homer, in the Odyssey, mentions a princess who prayed to the gods for the speedy return of her husband. Scarcely was her prayer ended when her son sneezed! This was regarded as a sign from the gods that her prayer was granted.

Once while Zenophon was addressing his soldiers, some one sneezed. The great general remarked that Jupiter had been pleased to send him a special sign that their cause was a righteous one.

Sneezing was usually considered unlucky in Wales, but in Europe generally it was deemed lucky unless overdone. If a man sneezed more than three times, for instance, it was a sign of bad luck. The Welsh belief of ill-luck has prevailed, and it is a very general custom among Italians, when a person sneezes, to say, "God be with you."

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the code of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

A Map for German Submarines

A German map with numbers squares of waters around the United Kingdom was discovered in Norway and lately released for publication by the French censor, and shows how the German navy plotted the North Sea and English Channel for the use of its submarines.

By the use of a special code the departure of every vessel, its tonnage, speed, route and whether it was a ship of commerce or of war, was wirelessed to the submarine by spies in certain coast towns of the adjacent waters. Mr. Henry Barby, writing in the illustration gives the following translation of this code, and as it will be seen it is so designed that every message shall seem to refer to some innocent commercial transaction.

The nationality of the vessel is indicated by first, second, third or fourth quality, meaning in that order, British, German, French, or Russian while neutral shipping is designated by colors, such as Norwegian, painted black; Swedish, painted blue; Danish, painted red.

The description of the vessels is designated in the following way. "Wooden Box, Series 1, means a warship with one smokestack. Series 2, two smokestacks, and so on. Packing case, Series 3, means armored cruiser, three smokestacks. Metal box, Series 2, 3, or 4, means light cruiser, two, three or four smokestacks. Barrel, Series 2, 3, or 4, means destroyer, two, three or four smokestacks. Barrel, Series 1, means a torpedo boat, while the submarines are designated as "samples" and mines as "packages." The position of the boat is indicated by the number of the square on the map; thus a wireless reading "First quality packing case, Series 4, No. 432," translated is "British armored cruiser, four smokestacks, in square 432."

The discovery of this map and the translation of the code quickly led to the discovery of the wireless stations which were being used by the German spies, and it is said that this discovery and the use the Allies put to it, accounts in no small measure for the falling off in the list of the U-boat victims.—Scientific American.

Bank Responsible for Error

An interesting decision has been made by the Missouri court of appeals, relative to holding the sender of a telegram responsible for a mistake in transmission. A Wyoming bank telegraphed a brokerage house, offering a carload of potatoes at $1.35 a hundred pounds. The telegraph company's mistake in transmission made the price 25 cents a hundred. The sender of the telegram was accepted by the brokers and the potatoes were shipped. When payment was tendered at the rate of 25 cents a hundred the Wyoming bank refused to accept the money and brought suit for the full amount. The Missouri court of appeals ruled that the bank had made the telegraph company its agent in forwarding the telegram and that as the brokerage house acted in good faith it could not be compelled to pay more than the amount quoted in the message.

Suspected of Aiding U-Boats Off Coast.

Boston, July 25.—Oswald Kunhardt, formerly German and Austrian consular agent in this city, was arrested yesterday as an enemy alien at his home in Manchester and brought here. Federal officers refused to confirm or deny a report that the arrest was connected with submarine activity off the coast. It was admitted, however, that information in the possession of the officers indicated that the arrest was of more than ordinary importance.

The Individual Responsibility.

We are told that ships will win the war, that food will win the war, that coal will win the war. So they will, if they get the chance. But ships, food, coal, are all inanimate and impersonal; and the only way in which they can be put to work for the winning of the war or the achievement of any other purpose is by the hands of men. It is only through the agency of human labor that ships or food or coal can be produced or used; so when we come right down to rock bottom, it is individual effort that is going to win the war, and nothing else.

Non-existent is the man whose individual efforts have no bearing upon either the production or the use of some necessity of war. For at the very least, we all eat, and in eating consume food; and food is one of the very biggest potential agents of victory. So it behooves every individual to put forth every possible effort to place production safely ahead of consumption.

Some can do more than others, for some hold positions of more responsibility than others. We are all too wont to ask what is the use of saving a shovelful of coal when another can save a ton; or what is the use of unloading a single car a day earlier when we see whole trains remaining unmoved for days at a time; or what is the use of keeping a handful of food out of the garbage pail when shipments of fruit go bad through somebody's negligence; or what is the use of cultivating this tiny patch here, when that large one over yonder is held unproductive by shiftlessness or absentee ownership. In every case the answer to such a question is that a big wrong and a little one do not make a right, but rather combine to make a bigger wrong. The use of saving a shovelful of coal is that shovelful; the business of the man with the shovel is to save his shovelful, not to worry about what the other fellow is doing with his tons.

Pershing and Bliss Made Knights.

London.—To General John J. Pershing has been awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath and to General Tasker H. Bliss, American representative at the Supreme War Council, has been given the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Washington.—Under a provision incorporated in the Army Appropriation Bill and approved by the President, officers and enlisted men of the American Army are authorized to accept and wear decorations conferred by Allied Governments. This provision was designed particularly to permit the many officers and men receiving crosses of war or other honors for gallantry at the front to wear their decorations.

The elevation of Generals Pershing and Bliss to the Knighthood of England is concrete evidence of the recognition given their services in the great war by the British Government. The Most Honorable Order of the Bath is one of the oldest of the knightly organizations in Great Britain. It was established in 1389, fell into decay in the reign of Charles II., and was revived by George I. It consists of fifty-five military and twenty-seven civil members, exclusive of the Sovereign, Princes of the blood royal, and distinguished foreigners who may be nominated to the honorary distinction.

Have You Forgotten

THE BOYS WHO DID NOT FORGET! Thirty cars on the last ship here. Thirty cars, and with devil-may-care freedom and swank and without any fuss. Hundreds of cars, since the War began entered the city to tear through the streets. Shameless their owners, though these are the sweets. Gathered, by some who have stayed around here. Through the blood of the boys who have been over there.

Battered and shattered they drag through the street. On crutches, with sticks, on their battle-wrecked feet. Taking the dust of the men who stayed home. Some men who are now on the crest of the foam of riches and wealth, through the war and a chance. Given them by those men who stopped bullets in France.

Some in hospitals and some in homes lie. And daily they yearn for the open blue sky. For the rivers they fished, for the whispering trees. For the song of the birds, for the rest and the peace. Which Nature and Summer might bring to the worn. But helpless, forgotten, they lie, battle torn.

But what can you think of yourselves, you who play. And frivol and idly spend every day. There in those cars which were deeded to you. By the men who have been to those higher things true. By the men whose battle is shattered, and broken in health. Who protected you whilst you were grabbing this wealth.

What of the Glory of Empire that you shouted and sang all the past four years through. Is it her glory or is it her shame. That you let down those men, who have given us fame? They heard the call of the Empire and went. Some no doubt will come again, some are back spent. Fighting for you and yours, safety to get. Shall it be said of you that you forget. What they have done for you, what in their blood sacrifices filling your cup?

Call for them, go for them, take them around. Dine them, 'e'en wine them, if wine may be found. Those who are heroes, those who are men. And it will not be long until that time when. You will find that your friends who most interest are. Those Veterans whom you may take out in your car.

"A COMRADE." The above lines came to me, following a request to me for an appeal to Car Owners on behalf of some of our disabled Returned Sailors and Veterans, who would like to get out into the country once in a while. Sometimes I may apologise for my verse, but in this case I do not, but demand an apology to the Veterans, from those car owners who have been acting selfishly. Various requests of this nature have been made for cars, but they have borne little fruit. I hear of one request made on behalf of one Veteran who is very badly injured, and he was told that car owners had promised to call for him and to be ready. But they forgot, and it may not be too long until each of their four tires, some day when they are miles away from anywhere.

However, this note is written to say that if any car owners are at a loss to find any Disabled Veterans, who require a formal introduction to them, that if they apply to "The Ladies' Visiting Committee," through the President, Lady Horwood, the Secretary, Mrs. L. H. Peterson, that they will not have long to wait. And I know that if at any time you put a car on the disposal, you can also get the names of disabled Veterans, who would appreciate a friendly offer of your car, through Mr. Harold Mitchell, President of the Veterans' Association, or the Secretary, Mr. B. B. Harris.

There is a lot to be done for Veterans who is returning, having given, in many cases his all for his country and for you, and various associations are lacking the many problems attendant upon this. But the Burning Question is, "What Are You Doing?" In the meantime you can show an interest, remembering that sometimes it is the little every day human attentions which may count for a lot. Possibly the Association of Car Owners may arrange something, to show that it is not composed of bad fellows! H. M.

Thoughts Upon the Times

(By PATRIOT)

Is our "great, strong, silent" Premier becoming loquacious in the "Old Country," or is he imitating our talkative Baron?

Recent dispatches from Oporto quote Newfoundland fish at 84 to 90 shillings per qtl. This is a splendid price for our products, but even much higher prices are paid in Spain and Italy. Come to figure it out, 84 shillings mean $21.89 in our currency. Why should not fish be $14 per qtl. this year, Mr. Coaker? If the fishermen even got this price for it there would still be a handsome profit left for the merchant and the shipowner. Why not more evenly distribute this profit among all three parties interested?

The fishermen, and especially the fishermen of the North, are invited to note that "old," or last year's fish, is now selling in the Oporto market for from $20 to $22 per qtl. yet their own paper, the Advocate, and their President, have apparently made no attempt to compel the fish buyers to pay more than $10.50 for fish. Remember he promised to do so when he got control of the Government. He now has full control. Whilst the fishermen's salt and everything else have gone up in price, fish remains practically at the same figure it was last year. What are you going to do about it, fishermen? It will be too late to wait until your Supreme Council meets in November. Mr. Coaker now has the power, which he has always craved for, and can, according to his own argument, compel the merchants to pay you full value for your produce. Never in your lives will you need it worse than this year. Never was Newfoundland fish in greater demand, nor commanded a better price than now. If the fishermen do not receive this year $14 per qtl. for their fish, some one will be cheating them out of a clear three million dollars. Why is the Advocate so silent on this important matter?

The steamer "Earl of Devon" is advertised to take up the Northern Coastal Service. This is to satisfy the repeated demands of the public. But why the Government, after disorganizing the whole service, should wait until August 1st to put on this, or some other boat, passes ordinary comprehension. The Government, by its actions, seem to be flouting public opinion. They seem to have no regard for the wishes of the people. There are places in Bonavista and Notre Dame Bays where even Mr. Coaker would not find it healthy at the present moment on account of the interruption in the coastal service.

Now that the price of soft coal has been fixed at the mines by the Canadian authorities at, at least, one dollar lower than we were told our coal dealers were paying for it, the public will expect a reduction in the price. If coal can be sold in Sydney for $5 per ton or less, not even war conditions should make the price to the consumer any more than $15 here. The Minister of Shipping will be remiss in his duties if he does not immediately bring about a reduced price. The people are waiting for it.

Chance for Voluntary Enlistment.

To be Given First Under Treaty. Washington, July 22.—The British-Canadian and United States treaty regarding the drafting of British subjects in the United States and citizens of this country who may be living in British possessions provides that British and Canadian subjects living in the United States who do not return to their own country for military service may be drafted between the ages of 20 and 44 by the United States.

United States citizens in Canada between the ages of 21 and 31 may be drafted by Canada, and United States citizens in England may be drafted for the British service if such citizens are between 19 and 48 years old, except that the United States may claim exemption for Americans under 21 and over 31 years of age.

Citizenship Held.

Opportunities for all concerned to return to their native land for enlistment is given, with a proviso that though the countries shall facilitate the return so far as possible, the resident country will not be responsible for transport or the cost of transport; also that there shall not be a loss of citizenship in the event that a British or Canadian subject enlist in the American army or in case an American enlists in either the British or Canadian forces.

There is a preliminary period of 75 days during which voluntary enlistment is permissible under a late order from Gen. Crowder to all selection boards to discontinue inducting British subjects into the American army; to see that all British and Canadian in the United States, whether declared as otherwise are given an opportunity during this period to enlist in the British or Canadian armies.

The British and Canadian Recruiting Mission has been informed that the drafting of all British subjects between the ages of 20 and 44 years who have not enlisted in the British or Canadian armies, will begin in 75 days. They will then be taken into the United States army and probably placed in Class 1 of the American draft if eligible.

The brand of "Port Wine" which has made its appearance on the market during the past week is not of our manufacture and we know nothing of it.

It is impossible to imitate or copy our brands. In regard to our competitors, in the words of Kipling, "we have left them sweating and toiling a year and a half behind!" When we charge you a dollar a bottle for our wine, which is the retail price throughout Canada, we are not going to sell you a syrup. Ours has the "warm feeling" and just as much "kick" as the prohibition law will allow.

The carload comprising the undermentioned brands has left Toronto and should be due here about the middle of next month: "Royale Vineyard" Port Wine. "London Dock" Sherry. "Black Cherry Brandy. "Ginger Brandy. "Lazare et Fils" Creme de Menthe Blue Gin.

Salt and Pickled Herring.

In spite of the announcement from St. John's recently that split and round herring were commanding up to $10 and $12 there, the market here remains unchanged and the quotations continue at $11 and $12 on the spot, and there is little demand for these at this price. There is considerable interest in Alaska Scotch cured herring in the New York market, and most merchants here have placed orders for quantities of this pack at prices which are considerably higher than those ruling for Newfoundland herring of the same cure. The quality of this Alaska herring is reported to be excellent, although there is reason to believe that the fish will be generally small this year. British Columbia herring, much of it of variable quality, is coming forward, but the trade here has taken little interest in this grade this year. The discriminating buyers in the New York market will not accept herring that is not on a good, standard quality. Maine supplies have been small, but there are reports to the effect that the quality of the Atlantic shore herring is compared favorably with that from any other section. There are no marked changes in quotations at present, but many quotations are nominal.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, July 20.

Wld. Notes

Arrangements are being made by the British Government with the fishermen of Newfoundland for the supplying of large stocks of fish for the use of the army and navy. A great part of the fish brought in this year is expected to be taken by the government as soon as negotiations now in progress can be closed. Canadian and American interests are also seeking a part of the Newfoundland catch.

The codfishing season is just getting underway, and the inducements brought about by the heavy demand has caused a large number of old fishermen to go back into the business.

The loss of labor through enlistments is being met by the purchase of modern equipment, including power boats, which are used on a larger scale than ever before. These boats are replacing smacks, and it is found that a much greater area can be covered daily by the fishermen.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Nfld Scotch Cured Herring.

Although there are offerings of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring, supposedly of the fall pack, at $14 and $15 per barrel f.o.b. St. John's, New York merchants are paying little heed to these figures, most of the large factors having purchased for very much less. The fact that fall herring continues to be offered leads some in New York to believe that Newfoundland packers are endeavoring to "put something over" on New York merchants, who have supported their industry to a large extent. Those who have made personal visits to St. John's, are of the opinion that there is little or no fall herring left in packers' hands, except that of one packer on the north coast.

The offerings are, therefore, considered as winter and spring herring, which these merchants have been able to purchase for $10 and $12 per barrel and are now selling well below the quoted prices for other grades. The improved condition of the cold storage situation in New York has given an impetus to the market, but the big demand has not yet developed. There is, however, every evidence that there will be an increasing demand for Scotch pack herring in this market, and if there is no further difficulty with cold storage it may be expected that the market will have an active late summer and fall. The range of prices for Newfoundland Scotch pack herring here may be considered as being $25 and $25, but there are few sales at the higher prices. New supplies received during the week are of good quality, but sales were not at the full market prices for these in all cases.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette, July 20.
