CHAPTER VII.
A CHAINED HEART.

"I must go back!" she says, trying to laugh, but looking at him with the sweetest dismay in her lovely eyes; then she looks over her shoulder, and her face grows more troubled. "No! I could not. I must wade—after all, it doesn't matter. It is quite warm—"

"What!" he exclaims, with horror. "You wade! Why the water is awfully deep a little further on, I know. Besides, you don't suppose I would let you!"

She laughs—a troubled laugh.

"But I must. I can't stay here till the stream runs down!"

"No," he says; then, with a leap of the heart, he adds, trying to speak carelessly; "I shall have to carry you!"

He makes the bold proposition, avoiding her eyes and looking straight beyond her, and so does not see the wide-open surprise in hers, and the swift, sudden flash of color.

"Oh, no!" she says, softly. "I'll go back, please."

A wild courage takes possession of him.

"Look here," he says, with suppressed eagerness; "you can't go back; you can't turn on this wretched stone, and you can't wade. Why, it might be the death of you, a delicate girl—"

"I'm not delicate; I'm very strong!"

"I don't care," he rejoins, waxing bolder each moment. "Anyhow, you'd get fearfully wet, and would be sure to take cold! Besides, if you won't think of yourself, think of me."

"Of you?" with wide-open eyes.

"Yes! Remember what hard work it was to get Mr. Temple to consent to your coming with me, and how I had to promise to take care of you! Pretty kind of care it would be if I let you go back wet through, to take a dangerous illness."

She laughs softly at his rough earnestness, and, encouraged, though she did not mean it for encouragement,

MRS. LEWIS OF BROOKLYN

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"For one year I was miserable from a displacement, which caused general run-down condition with headaches and pains in my side. My sister induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I found it helped me very much, and such a splendid tonic that I am recommending it to any woman who has similar troubles."—Mrs. Eliza G. Lewis, 80 Vernon Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Such conditions as Mrs. Lewis suffered from may be caused by a fall or a general weakened run-down condition of the system, and the most successful remedy to restore strength to muscles and tissue and bring about a normal healthy condition—has proved to be this famous root and herb medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have disturbing symptoms you do not understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

CHAPTER VIII THE FIRST KISS.

"FORGIVE me! Forgive me!"

White, motionless as a statue, she looks down at him with wide-open eyes in which fear, amazement, and the dawning of a new life struggle for expression. She says not a word, does not move, does not tear her hands from his pleading grasp, but looks down at him as some vestal might have done in the old Roman days when the savage Vandal broke into the sanctuary and seized the sacred maidens.

"Forgive me!" he prays, breathlessly. "I was mad! mad! I did not know what I was doing. Do not look at me like that. I have frightened you. Yes, yes—I know. But you have no cause for fear now. See! If you will speak to me one word, one little word, I will not ask you to forgive me—I will go away. Miss Temple—Lela, speak to me!"

Slowly a faint tinge of color comes back into her face, her eyes lose their fearsome look and slowly fill with tears; pantingly she draws her hands from his grasp and clasps them tightly. In these moments she has passed the magic stream—the girl Lela Temple, innocent of the meaning of love and passion, has vanished forever, and the woman has taken her place.

"Ah, Heaven!" he murmurs, tortured by her tears. "What have I done?—what have I done? Don't—don't cry! That is more than I can bear, and yet I deserve it!"

The tears run down her face unheeded by her in silence for a moment, then she says, in a strangely still voice:

"Why did you do it?"

His heart leaps with relief at the sound of her voice. The silence was killing him. Let her upbraid him, smite him with scorn and contempt, if she will—anything rather than that awful look of outraged innocence and dread.

"Because—because I was a brute and a coward—because I was mad!" he falters, with fierce remorse.

The answer does not satisfy her; he does not look like a brute or a coward as he kneels penitently before her, his handsome face full of sad, sincere contrition. She thinks swiftly of all his gentleness and consideration for her—of the nameless little things, looks, tones, that have proclaimed him a true-hearted gentleman, for all his rough-and-ready manner; and she is bewildered and unsatisfied.

"Why did you do it?" she repeats, her delicate brows knitted, her lips quivering, her eyes fixed on his with solemn trouble.

"Why?" he says—then, with a deep breath, the truth leaps to his lips. "Because I could not help it; because you were so near to me—you hair touched my face. Because I love you!"

It is said at last. For the first time she hears the words which mean so much, so terribly much in a girl's life. For a moment she scarcely realizes their import, and the bewildered look still lingers in her eyes; then suddenly the meaning flashes upon her, and a vivid crimson rushes to her face and neck, and goes, leaving her pale and trembling.

"It is the truth," he says. "It does not excuse me. It is only making you angrier—no, not angrier, but more ashamed for me—but it is the truth. I should not have done it if I had not loved you. Ah, Lela, say that you will forgive me and let me go. I will never come back again—you shall never be troubled by seeing me, or meeting me. I will do anything you say or wish if you will just say those words, 'I forgive you.'"

She scarcely hears him, her brain is in a whirl, her heart beats so loudly that it seems to keep time to the words that fill her whole soul with a strange tempest of pain and delight and wonder—"I love you! I love you!"

"You—love—me!" she says, as a child might question some novel fact in the world of science that had broken on it for the first time.

"Yes," he says, gently, all the roughness awed out of him, "I love you!"

She looks down at him, then beyond him with a meditative look in the large, lovely eyes, as if trying to realize it. She thinks of love as she has read of it in books—not understanding it by any means, treating it as she has read of it as something that never could by any possibility come within the range of her experience; and as she thinks she tries to realize that here, at her feet, Lord Edgar Fane is telling her that he feels for her this strange, mysterious love.

He does not speak; he waits, watching her every look.

Presently she comes down from heaven to earth again, and fixes her eyes upon him.

"Yesterday," she says, so softly that he can hear her and that is all—"yesterday you saw me for the first time."

"Yes," he says, steadfastly, "for the first time. I know it."

"And yet you say that—ah, it is impossible!"

"No," he rejoins, his eyes glowing with passionate fervor and intense eagerness to convince her; "no, I love you. I think I loved you then—"

"Yesterday!" with a sudden flush and quiver of astonishment and doubt.

"Yes, I am sure of it. Why not? One does not learn to love! No, no! I know that now. It comes at once, in a moment! As you stood—but I shall only offend and grieve you still more deeply and make it harder for you to forgive me!"

She opens her lips, but does not speak; but her hands move slightly, and he takes the gesture for one of permission, and goes on:

"Ah!" she murmurs, reproachfully, but he will not take back the word.

"Yes, and I could not speak. My heart seemed to go out from me. I can not explain. I could not make you understand if I talked for a week. But it was just that; I felt as if I were not worthy to stand before you—to speak to you—to hear you speak. I did not know it then, but I loved you in that first moment."

Something in the ardent words, breathed with such reverential devotion, such gentle earnestness, makes her tremble, and half unconsciously she sinks down onto the grassy bank and sits with clasped hands looking down at the stream.

He rises and stands beside her, his eyes fixed wistfully upon her face, drinking in her beauty, and longing for some sign of forgiveness to appear in the lovely eyes.

"I loved you at that moment; else why should I have dreaded the moment when I must leave you? I remember how I longed to stay, how I seized on any excuse to remain; though I felt awkward, clumsy, rough, and altogether unfit to be near you."

"No, no," she murmurs, but without looking up.

"Then I went, and when I had gone I still thought of you, and I came to the cloisters just on the chance, in the wild hope, that I should see your shadow in some window, and so know you were near. May I go on? I will go directly; directly you tell me that I have not sinned past your forgiveness!"

"Yes, I am sure of it. Why not? One does not learn to love! No, no! I know that now. It comes at once, in a moment! As you stood—but I shall only offend and grieve you still more deeply and make it harder for you to forgive me!"

She opens her lips, but does not speak; but her hands move slightly, and he takes the gesture for one of permission, and goes on:

"Ah!" she murmurs, reproachfully, but he will not take back the word.

"Yes, and I could not speak. My heart seemed to go out from me. I can not explain. I could not make you understand if I talked for a week. But it was just that; I felt as if I were not worthy to stand before you—to speak to you—to hear you speak. I did not know it then, but I loved you in that first moment."

Something in the ardent words, breathed with such reverential devotion, such gentle earnestness, makes her tremble, and half unconsciously she sinks down onto the grassy bank and sits with clasped hands looking down at the stream.

He rises and stands beside her, his eyes fixed wistfully upon her face, drinking in her beauty, and longing for some sign of forgiveness to appear in the lovely eyes.

"I loved you at that moment; else why should I have dreaded the moment when I must leave you? I remember how I longed to stay, how I seized on any excuse to remain; though I felt awkward, clumsy, rough, and altogether unfit to be near you."

"No, no," she murmurs, but without looking up.

"Then I went, and when I had gone I still thought of you, and I came to the cloisters just on the chance, in the wild hope, that I should see your shadow in some window, and so know you were near. May I go on? I will go directly; directly you tell me that I have not sinned past your forgiveness!"

She scarcely hears him, her brain is in a whirl, her heart beats so loudly that it seems to keep time to the words that fill her whole soul with a strange tempest of pain and delight and wonder—"I love you! I love you!"

"You—love—me!" she says, as a child might question some novel fact in the world of science that had broken on it for the first time.

"Yes," he says, gently, all the roughness awed out of him, "I love you!"

She looks down at him, then beyond him with a meditative look in the large, lovely eyes, as if trying to realize it. She thinks of love as she has read of it in books—not understanding it by any means, treating it as she has read of it as something that never could by any possibility come within the range of her experience; and as she thinks she tries to realize that here, at her feet, Lord Edgar Fane is telling her that he feels for her this strange, mysterious love.

He does not speak; he waits, watching her every look.

Presently she comes down from heaven to earth again, and fixes her eyes upon him.

"Yesterday," she says, so softly that he can hear her and that is all—"yesterday you saw me for the first time."

"Yes," he says, steadfastly, "for the first time. I know it."

"And yet you say that—ah, it is impossible!"

"No," he rejoins, his eyes glowing with passionate fervor and intense eagerness to convince her; "no, I love you. I think I loved you then—"

"Yesterday!" with a sudden flush and quiver of astonishment and doubt.

"Yes, I am sure of it. Why not? One does not learn to love! No, no! I know that now. It comes at once, in a moment! As you stood—but I shall only offend and grieve you still more deeply and make it harder for you to forgive me!"

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

1871 HEAD OFFICE MONTREAL 1919
T. B. MACAULAY, President

Splendid Record Achieved during 1918

The year 1918 was for the business of life assurance a year of supreme achievement.

Owing to the combined effect of the war and the influenza epidemic, death claims were unusually high. The payment of these claims enabled the Companies to render an unprecedented measure of public service, and to fulfill to a more noteworthy degree than ever previously the beneficent purpose for which they were founded.

The record achieved during 1918 by the Sun Life of Canada was one of particularly striking success. For the first time in the Company's history new assurances paid for exceeded Fifty Million Dollars. The growth in size, strength and prosperity accentuates the Company's position as not merely the leader among Canadian life offices, but one of the great insurance corporations of the world.

The Company's financial power is emphasized by its large Assets, Income and Surplus. During the year $7,460,000 was added to the Assets, which at December 31st, had reached the huge total of $97,620,378.85. The Income is now $21,651,099.69, while the undivided Surplus is $8,027,000.

Some idea of the magnitude of the benefit to the community from the Company's operations is afforded by the disbursement to policyholders of $9,768,000, of which $3,268,000 represented sums paid to the beneficiaries of policyholders swept away by death.

Policyholders have again had the opportunity, through the Company, the leading part in subscribing to the 1918 Victory Loan. Besides fulfilling to the utmost of its ability its patriotic duty in this regard, the Company has also been able to take advantage of the unique opportunity to purchase on very favourable terms large amounts of long-term securities, the beneficial effects of which will be felt on the earnings for many years to come.

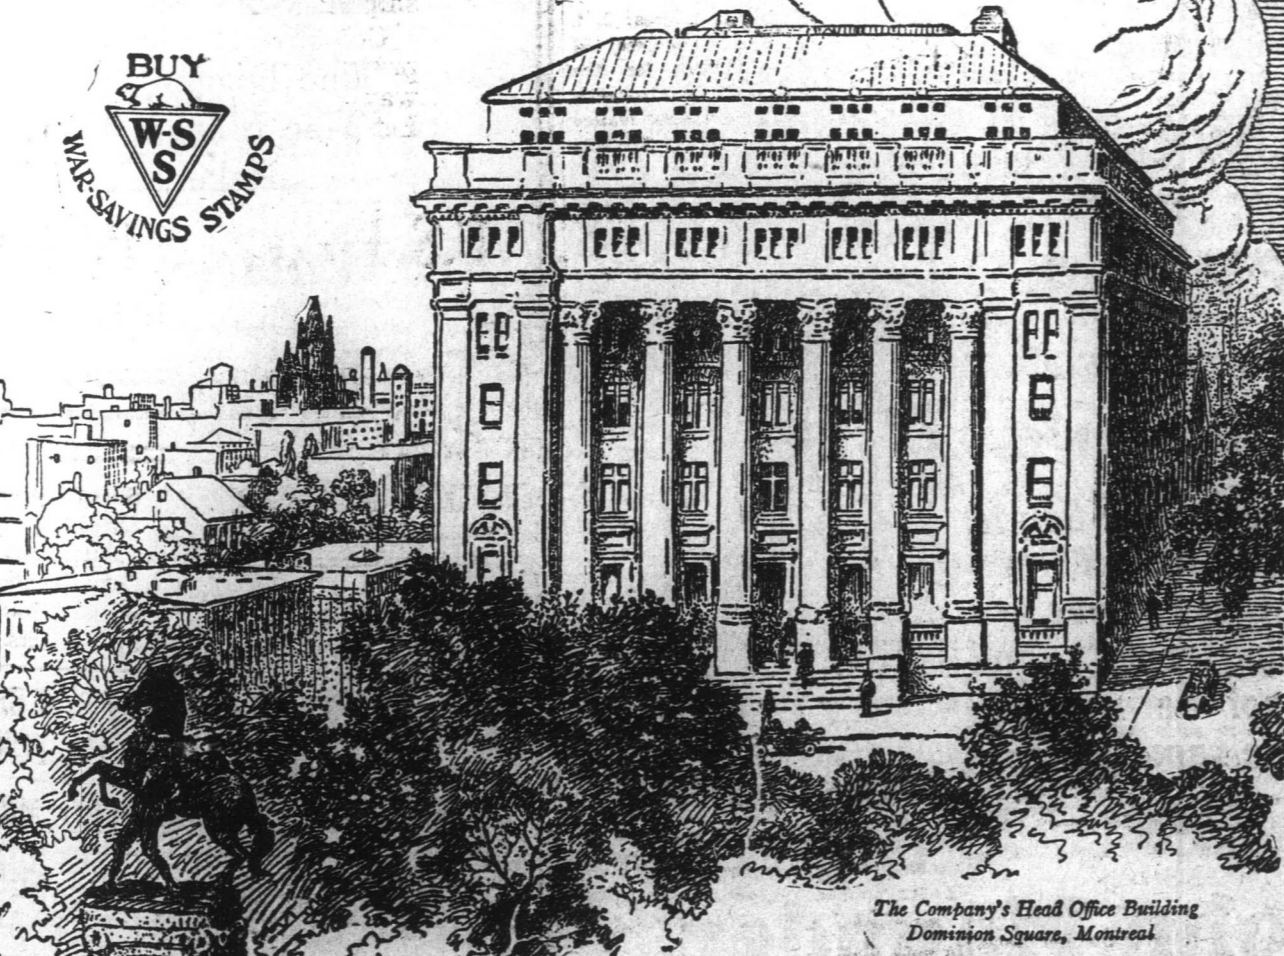

The impetus given to life assurance by the experience of 1918 continues into the current year, and the results of the operations for the first two months greatly surpass all previous records.

Boating Pubs.

Boating plans are mooted for the "very" law which is to be passed this summer. The idea is not a new one. The "coupers" that frequent the North Sea are floating grog-shops of the very worst type. They are outwardly large snappers or steam trawlers, but the fish they catch are the fishermen themselves. The "coupers" are, or were, mostly Dutch or German, and they carried large stocks of the most poisonous spirits, which they sold to the men of the fishing fleets frequenting the Dogger. In the days of the Mississippi, when the fastest steamers in the world raced up and down the great river, the floating bar was a regular institution. They were slow boats which travelled under their own steam from one town to another. But these were duly licensed, and, unlike the "coupers," theirs was a perfectly legitimate trade.

Health Report.

During the week six cases of diphtheria, three of smallpox and one of influenza were reported in the city. Four residences were disinfected and released from quarantine. At present in hospital are 33 diphtheria, 21 smallpox, and 24 influenza patients, while one with diphtheria is being treated at home.

Landsmen Take Seals.

Messages received in town yesterday from Change Islands, stated seals were fairly plentiful the last few days and some of the landsmen secured several tows. At Twillingate, also, a number of seals were taken. A message from LaSalle to the Marine Dept., yesterday, stated the wind was N.W.; too close packed and no water in sight. Seals were very scattered and dipping, but on Wednesday the landsmen took about 80.

Recovering.

Third engineer Campbell, of the S. E. Cape Breton, is now able to get around again, his injuries from the boiler explosion being slight.

Interesting Reminiscences.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Would you be good enough to allow me space for the following: After reading Mr. Short's account of the trade carried on between Trinity, St. John's and Poole by Slade & Co., it brought to my mind an old gentleman in his nineties I met in Poole a few months ago, who told me he had sailed out of Poole for six years in brig belonging to the firm of Slade & Co., landing cargo sometimes at St. John's, and other times at Trinity. The old gentleman made reference to St. John's being more of a fishing station at that time than he supposed it is now. If I remember rightly, he said the name of one brig was the Elizabeth. In my going around I met another old gentleman who was well versed in the trade carried on between Poole and Newfoundland, while at his home one day he showed me a picture of an old brig called the David, which he seemed to prize very much. This old craft was owned by Slade and Company, and piled between Poole and Newfoundland. I was very much interested in Poole. It was here my father received his education some ninety years ago, and I was anxious to see some of the things he used to tell me about. My father told me some interesting things about Christ Church and its old cathedral and while there I visited the cathedral and was shown through the massive building by the caretaker, who told me he had a brother in Fogo employed by the firm of J. W. Hodge & Co., and wished to be remembered to him if I changed to see him on my return to Newfoundland. Christ Church Cathedral has a funny history. Built on the banks of the Rivers, Avon and Stour, in the thirteenth century, on a site that a Pagan temple stood for centuries before, the Priory Church as it is called, was to have been built on St. Catherine's Hill. Legend has it that the stones to commence the building that had been carried up the Hill in the day were brought down in the night by unknown hands and placed on the present site where the church now stands. Legend further runs that while the building was progressing there was always one person more working than came to be paid on pay day. This was supposed to be the great Master himself, so they decided to call the building Christ Church, and it is further said that when the workmen placing one of the principal beams in position it was found to be too short, but on the return of the workmen the next day they found the beam in position and long enough. About three hundred years ago while repairing the church, this beam was removed, and was placed in one of the galleries with one end extending about four feet out over the gallery, where my guide pointed it out to me. The size of this beam is about five feet square. I ascended to the roof of the Cathedral where I had a good view of the Channel and the Isle of Wight in the distance. Before leaving the Priory some curious epitaphs can be seen. Inside the church is a quaint example: "Sally Williams died of grief, on the 8th of April, 1836, age 70 years." In the churchyard are many curiosities; the most important is the one called the puzzle epitaph which runs as follows:—
We were not slayne, but ray'sd
Ray'sd not to life, but ray'sd
But to be buried twice,
By men of strife.
What rest could the living have
Where the dead and none.
Agree amongst you,
where we ten are one.

Masonic Celebration of Peace.

We learn that the Board of General Purposes of the United Grand Lodge of England favors that a Peace celebration be held by the Masons of England. Among the suggestions offered are that a monster gathering be arranged for the 24th June next, at St. John the Baptist Day, at the Royal Albert Hall, London, although it is known that the hall is not large enough to accommodate the number of brethren who would desire to attend. The Freemason's Chronicle, of England, in commenting upon the celebration, says:—
Hundreds of thousands of Freemasons, in every part of the world, will desire to Masonically mark the celebration, which might be arranged to take place simultaneously in every province and district of the English constitution, as also in those of Ireland and Scotland, and, indeed, of every jurisdiction throughout the universe. We suggest a Masonic church service on a Sunday as early after peace as can be arranged, allowing time to communicate with distant parts of the Empire and outside nations. England, as the Mother Grand Lodge of the world, could take this project in hand, and success would attend any effort it might make. It would be something to record that millions of Freemasons in all parts of the world were offering praise and thanks to the Great Architect of the universe on a particular Sunday,

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last evening. The Mayor presided and all the Councillors were present.
Before the meeting opened Coun. Morris in a happy speech welcomed the Mayor home, and said he was glad to hear he had enjoyed his holiday which the Councillor said was well earned. He referred to the assistance given him by the members of the Council during his occupancy in the chair, and paid a tribute to the work of the Secretary who was most faithful and competent in the service, and also paid a compliment to the work of the City Engineer.
After reading the minutes of last meeting, etc., the following matters were disposed of.
J. A. Clift wrote in reference to land on Ordnance Street, that he had heard from the owner who stated she would be in St. John's a very short time, and asked that matters stand over till her return.
Job Brothers & Co., stated they required a water service for the north side premises and asked if it were possible to connect this service with the water main supplying the sprinkler system. The Engineer will report on the matter.
W. T. Penney requested permission to build addition to house, Barnes' Road, and also to lay concrete steps to house. Plan of addition must be submitted and particulars in connection with the steps will be looked up.
R. McCarthy's plan of dwelling on Battery Road was approved.
Plan of co-operation for David Donnelly, McParlane St., passed.
Wm. F. Kenny submitted plan of shop and dwelling on New Gower St. Approved.
James H. Bowden, 153 Casey St., was given permission to build a garage.
J. J. Mulcahy's application to build a garage on Cochrane St. was approved.
Plan of addition to J. M. Brown's premises, Waterford Bridge Road, passed.
R. C. Hopkins' request to raise a back kitchen on Barter's Hill, stood over.
A. E. Cowan requested permission to erect concrete wall, build a small outhouse and fence land at 100 LeMarchant Rd. Permission was given.
R. G. Chafe's request to build a small garage on Patrick Street was deferred pending submission of plan.
Mr. E. Fleet was given permission to repair platform on New Gower St. Thomas Rumsey was allowed to repair fence on Hamilton St.
C. Johnson applied for permission to install a small motor in shop, Duckworth St. This was granted.
J. S. Baggs offered some clay for use on the road. If material is suitable, the Engineer is to take it.
Residents of Rankin's Lane and Merry Meeting Road asked for a light in that locality. Consideration stood over.
James Murdock asked that the water and sewerage be extended on Top-sail Road to P. H. Cowan's property. Mr. Cowan was willing to bear the cost. This will be done when weather permits.
H. M. Bradbury will be asked to submit plan of dwelling, Pleasant St.
The City Engineer reported on the work of removing mud from the streets, laying out sprinkler system for Messrs. Bowring Bros., and general routine matters throughout the city during the past week.
The Health Officer reported on collection of proposed stable of William Cummings, LeMarchant Road. Permission was given for the erection.
Health Officer submitted his weekly report, which showed six cases of diphtheria, three of smallpox and one of influenza, in the city during the past week.
The Plumbing Inspector submitted list of parties notified to connect their premises with the water and sewerage.
After disposing of some other routine business and passing the pay-rolls and bills, the meeting adjourned.

Fads and Fashions.

The newest capes have introduced the waistcoat.
Flotex is a new material, charming for blouses.
Skirts show a great many pendant ball ornaments.
Hats of flowered voile have made their appearance.
Buttons will be the chief trimming for linen dresses.
Pin tucks form a dainty and satisfactory trimming.
Dresses have their waists such bloused at the back.
One-piece dresses are adopting capes of their own.
Jersey silk continues to enjoy an immense popularity.
Pale pastel shades are all promised for summer.
Lingerie gowns are long-waisted with short, full skirts.
Sleeveless sport suits are usually accompanied by a cape.
"Cloud blue" is a new soft grey blue and very becoming.
The smart tailored suit implies always the lingerie blouse.

SOLDIERS' MARRIAGES BILL.
 LONDON, April 10th.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—In the House of Lords, the Lord Chancellor introduced a bill, which passed its first reading, providing that where marriages were contracted in the United Kingdom, during the war, by members of the Overseas Forces, a competent court, in the district where the marriage occurred, is empowered to entertain matrimonial proceedings by either party to the marriage. The bill applies to self-governing Dominions and also to many of His Majesty's Dominions and Protectorates.

AUSTRALIAN FOTTERS WIN.
 LONDON, April 10.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—In the Inter Service Rugby Tournament at Bradford, Australia defeated New Zealand by 6 points to 5, or two tries to a goal. In the first half Thomson and Egan scored for Australia, and in the second half Storey for New Zealand and Stohr converted. Six thousand spectators saw the match, which was played in brilliant weather.

MAY DECLARE A HOLY WAR.
 LONDON, April 10th.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—Reuter's learns that some apprehension is felt that trouble in Egypt, which was fomented at the beginning, entirely by Nationalist sentiment, may take a religious turn, and that the native tribes may declare a Holy War against the British Empire. There is reason to believe that the natives may have been affected by Turkish propagandists, who are in no way friendly toward Britain. Steps are being taken to deal with this possibility.

Canada to Be Annexed.
 TO THE UNITED STATES WITHIN THE NEXT TEN YEARS.
 Is the prediction of Senator Edwards, Ontario.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 8.—"Canada will be annexed to the United States within ten years," is the prediction made here to-day by Senator William C. Edwards, for more than thirty years a member of the Canadian Parliament, and one of the foremost business men in the Dominion. Senator Edwards, who is stopping at the Hotel Freymore, continued: "Economically and industrially there is every reason why the two great American countries should be united under one government. Old ideas on the subject have been swept aside by the close association of the governments, business men and men in service during the war. There is the strongest sentiment taking deep root throughout the Dominion in favor of amalgamation, and from observations that I have made everywhere in Canada there is every reason to believe that annexation will have been accomplished within the next ten years."

GOT MONEY AND A WIFE.
 A Fugitive From Justice, With Stolen Passports, Had a Good Time in the United States.

New York, April 1.—The story of how a fugitive from British justice, with stolen passports, and a winning address, was able to personate a British officer, to swindle by fake charities New Yorkers whose confidence he gained and eventually to marry a young woman who had no idea he had left a wife and two children in England, is told in papers examined by Justice Cohen in the supreme court, yesterday. The American wife, Florence Brainerd Grimwood, of Chevy Chase, Washington, got from the justice an order permitting service by publication of a copy of the summons and complaint in an annulment suit she has started against William Robert Archer, also known as William F. G. Grimwood, now believed to be in England. She says that Archer, posing as Captain Grimwood, of the British army, arrived in New York on a French liner in the spring of 1916. On the boat he gained the sympathy of fellow passengers by reason of the pain he suffered from a supposed bullet wound. He spoke modestly of membership in a proud English family and of his having been a candidate for parliament, of his having been a physician with offices in Herley street, London, and of having loyally given up his practice and gone to the war with the first division of British regulars. His tale obtained for him introduction into the home of well known New Yorkers at one of which he met the complainant.

"Here sleeps in peace a Hampshire Grenadier Who caught his death by drinking cold small Beer, Soldiers be wise from his untimely fall And when very hot drink strong or none at all."
 This memorial being decayed was restored by the officers of the Garrison A.D. 1789.
 "An honest soldier never is forgot, Whether he die by Musket or by Pot."

Frightful Murder

Of Mother by Her Son, Who Had Shown Signs of Religious Insanity.

Bowmanville, Ont., April 1.—Mrs. Hannah Copeland was brutally murdered about nine o'clock this morning at her home in the village of Newtonville, ten miles from this town, and her son Herbert is in jail on a charge of matricide.

The story told the high constable was that the son quarrelled with his mother over a pocket handkerchief of his which he declared she had. When he failed to get it he made a vicious attack on her with a sharp bladed pocket knife and slashed her abdomen. Then she attempted to run out of the house, but he seized an axe and struck her down with it. It is said that he then proceeded to disembowel her and cut her open as he might have done if butchering an animal, both the knife and axe being used in the operation. The entrails were cut out and thrown into the stove. Both of her arms were cut off, and with the trunk of the body were placed beside the stove, with kindling wood around them.

The kindling wood was lighted with the apparent purpose of destroying the evidence of the crime, but the fire was extinguished before this was accomplished. Then the mutilated body was dragged into the yard. Copeland is a farm hand and has lived at Newtonville all his life, though not with his mother lately. It is alleged that Copeland was religiously insane and had been acting strangely since Saturday.

By RUTH CAMERON.

How much easier an attractive environment and proper equipment make the doing of some disliked or monotonous task.

I had this fact brought home to me by the gift of a very attractive and convenient work box specially designed for my domestic implements. Up to the box I had been hitting bar for my work. It was a big bag, and a steel of wool or cotton-wool needbook I wanted of ending me in its work.

On the contrary, there is a place for everything and I look off the cover I have everything was, I have believed that I had as mitigated my weekly darning as the best well appointed box.

Colors Help To. I made from the strictly white of the box, it is an elegant thing. It is of a light shade and has a lovely blue and orange on the bottom of the cover. When I sit on the table it gives me pleasure and satisfaction. The dilapidated faded old box was far from giving.

I had for Christmas a new box and I have never mind of keeping up my correspondence as I have since I had that useful and pretty variety.

I knew some of the "wonder" who after sighing and even when wiping off with a very soft cloth, apply a layer of powder, leaving as much on the face as you can without its being noticeable. Thus protected the rays of the sun can do very little harm.

special pains to provide ample bureau and such helps as plenty of coat and trouser hangers, plenty of shelf space for his beloved books and magazines, a special chest of drawers for the tools that had always been scattered about his old room.

Not A Miracle, But— One would like to say he was instantly converted into a paragon of neatness and order. That did not happen. But he did make a tremendous improvement and is now, according to his wife, more neat and orderly than the average man.

Milady's Boudoir.

ESCAPING SUMMER TAN.

It is no longer considered the thing to exert one's powers to acquire a leathery coat of tan, which, to say the least is doubtfully becoming. And this poor skin, how it suffers and grows unsightly because by the owner's lack of sense. Then, when the winter months come and the low neck dresses are to be worn, the scars of the summer sun remains, and instead of one thinking of the vacation at the seashore, they are doubtless thinking of Miss Black's poor complexion. Now the summer girl takes more reasonable care of her skin, knowing that it is no longer good form to neglect the proper precautions against the sun and wind burn.

One of the first precautions is that of carrying a green sunshade on sunny strolls especially after a sea bath. An old umbrella will answer the purpose for of course one does not wish to risk a delicate parasol upon the windblown sands and against a wet bathing suit. Have a sunbath, you must but do not go to the extreme and bake yourself brown. An excellent way to prevent burning is to mask the face in cold cream and powder before braving Sol's rays.

This mask need not be as conspicuous as it sounds. First rub a good cold cream on the face so that it enters the pores, and then after wiping off with a very soft cloth, apply a layer of powder, leaving as much on the face as you can without its being noticeable. Thus protected the rays of the sun can do very little harm.

RECOMPENSE.

It's raining as I write these lines; around my neck the right wind is blowing a sad and sodden tune, and seems to say, "I'm not in vain! It takes all kinds of wind and rain to bring the flowers of June." We must admit said flowers are worth the bitter gales that lash the earth, the rain-storms and the snows; we'll see what all the tempests meant, when we dig up our bottom cent to buy a large red rose. No jonquils would our garden haunt; no tulips would in splendor flaunt their colors safe and sane; no lilies would in beauty bloom, no pansies would enjoy a boom, but for the sloppy rain. The wind was boisterous to-day; it blew my parasol away, and spoiled my stovepipe hat, but as it whirled it seemed to cry, "I bring the harvests of July! Oh, boob, get wise to that!" All things are working for our good, although their curves, misunderstand, will sometimes make us tired; we must toil on through wind and wet, through storm and shine, if we would get the things we most desired. If everything for which we wish were brought us on a golden dish, this life would be a frost; we do not rightly prize a thing, a doughnut or a diamond ring, unless we've felt the cost.

How It Happened.

The veteran Labour leader, Mr. Robert Smillie, commenting recently on the Workmen's Compensation Act, remarked that not every accident was due to the fault of the employer.

"For instance," he went on, "there was the case of Shamus O'Riley. He had just been introduced for the first time in his life to a circular saw, and the foreman of the sawmill, after giving him the necessary orders, left him to do the work.

"Shamus was vastly interested in the buzzing blade, and his curiosity getting the better of his discretion he soon found himself minus a finger. "As he sat disconsolately mopping the blood from his hand the foreman reappeared, "Halloo, my man, what's the matter with you?" he cried.

"What's up wi' me? Am I not after losing a finger," said Shamus in great and excusable indignation.

"The foreman frowned. "And how off'earth did you manage that?" he asked angrily. "Shamus shook his head. "Sure an I don't know: I just touched the blessed thing like this"—sitting the action to the word—"wid my finger when—befabers, there's another one gone!

Dances in Coal Mines.

Dancing underground is by no means unheard of. Balls have taken place in coal mines both in England and abroad. A dance given in a mine at Gosforth, near Newcastle, was one of the most remarkable ever held. The "ballroom" was 1,200 feet beneath the surface, and was paved and flagged specially for the dance. It was brilliantly illuminated, and dancing continued for hours.

The ballroom may have lacked an element of beauty, but the novelty was unique. One of the most beautiful dances underground took place in a salt mine at Norwich. In this case the mine was illuminated with thousands of candles, the sparkling light and a reflection making the scene one of magnificence. This ball was given to aid charity, and was attended by people from all over the kingdom.

"Never Again" Billiards.

The recent billiard championship matches have not been productive of any sensationally big breaks, such as "anchored" firmly together in the jaws matches in days gone by.

The reason is that various strokes, by assiduously cultivating which certain players were able to achieve an almost superhuman skill in one particular direction, are now barred beyond a given consecutive number.

Never again, for example, will a player be able to score 1,200 in one break by potting the red 400 times in succession, as did Peall upon one memorable occasion. It is now forbidden, by the amended rules of the game, to play this stroke more than three times running.

Similarly, the stroke known as the "anchor" or "cradle" cannon, may now be played more than twenty-five times in succession. This stroke consists in first getting the two object balls "anchored" firmly together in the jaws of one of the corner pockets, and then going on to score a succession of cannons of them without causing them to stir from their "cradle"—no very difficult feat once the required position is attained.

Reese upon one occasion, made 249, 552 of these cannons in succession, his total break being 499,135—a record.

365 Tons of Gold.

ONE TON MAKES 114,240 SOVEREIGNS.

Altogether, the British Empire produces sixty per cent. of the world's annual output. Last year it produced £50,250,500 worth of gold. It weighed 12,800,567 ounces, or about 365 tons. As gold mines work continually every day throughout the year, the amount of gold won per day is just about one ton.

One ton of gold, in accordance with the English Mint standard, can be coined into 114,240 sovereigns. A sovereign weighs just a little over a quarter of an ounce and contains twenty-two parts pure gold and two parts copper. A ton of gold can be moulded into about sixty-five bars or ingots, each weighing, in accordance with the recognized standard, 400 ounces, and valued at £1,000.

Gold is throughout the world the standard of currency, and in consequence its value never alters. It is not liable to market fluctuations, as are so many other metals and things of general value. During the war, it has been said that the only thing in the world that has not risen in price is gold, which has remained at its pre-war standard, viz. £4 6s per fine ounce. This works out at £114,240 per ton, which is the total amount we are digging out each day from all our mines in different parts of the world.

Watch Your Envelopes.

POST-MARK WORTH MONEY.

If anybody has accumulated during the war a hoard of used envelopes, he will do well to look through them, because certain postmarks are already in demand by collectors.

The triangular "Passed by Censor," the American "Passed as Censored," the blurred "Damaged by Immersion in Sea Water" (a relic of U-boat activities), the Italian "Poste Militare"—these and others all have some intrinsic value now, and will have more in the near future.

"FEED THE GUNS."

Perhaps the most noteworthy valuable of war-time post-marks are those of the "Feed the Guns" type. The idea of using such marks—advertisements for stamp defacing—was originally put into practice in Canada, where they were common long before the war. And it was there that patriotism was first appealed to by means of them.

Early in 1917 Canadians were exhorted by post-mark to "Help to Win the War—Buy War-Savings Certificates," and to "Save Your Money—Lend It to Your Country." The most famous Canadian postal slogan, however, was "25.00 dols. for 21.50 dols.—Buy War Savings Certificates" of which there was a French version for French Canadians.

Fashions and Fads.

Hats drip with fringe.

Wing sleeves are always charming. Ribbons are often raveled to form fringe. Tight draped effects appear in bodices. The very long-waisted dress is popular.

Tailored suits feature large scarf collars. The long and narrow train is still in favor. Moonlight blue is a lovely tone for evening wear.

STAFFORDS' PHORATONE.

Just Folks

THE OLD HUNDRED PRO.

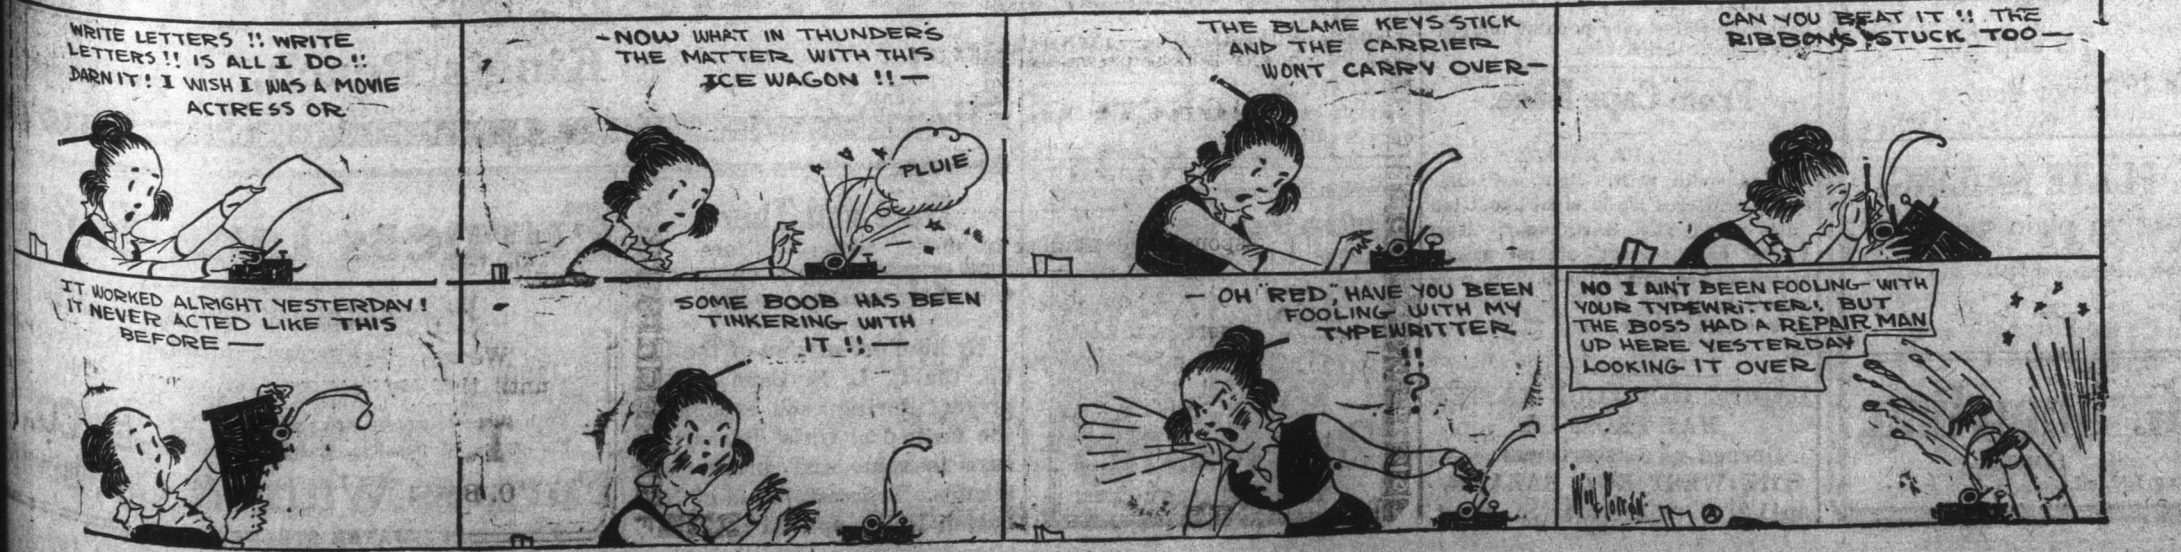

I do not mind the partner who is shooting off the line. I do not mind the fellow who is given to a whine; I can stand the fiery golfer who looks up and dubs—and swears. For the epithets he uses tell me how much he cares. But the bird that gets my nanny and puts all my grit to wing. Is the chap who knows precisely what's the matter with my swing. I've a normal disposition and I'd like to keep it so. That all sorts of men are needed to make up this world, I know. So I take 'em as I find 'em, and I hail the cheery sort. And when I meet a growler, still I try to be a sport. But the gink who slips my trolley on the fairway or the tee. Is the chap who has the notion he must teach it game to me.

I have never found it helped me when my nerve was being tried. And my drives were short and toppy and my pitches going wide. To have some one simper sweetly like a maiden to a pup. "It's too bad your game's so rotten, but I'm sure your looking up. If you'll watch me for a minute while I make a swing, or two I can show you in a hurry just exactly what you do."

Golf's game of bugs, I fancy, each of us who loves the games. For some reason or another is entitled to the name. Some imagine it's the golf ball, some imagine it's the club. Some imagine it's the weather or the caddy when they dub. But of all the irritating freaks of golf, the worst I know is the chap who shoots a hundred, yet imagines he's a pro.

VICTORY!

THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE PREVAILS.

The sovereign will of a free people firm and unanimous in demanding their rights from the Legislature of this dominion, has resulted, in a victory for the popular forces. Democracy has once more triumphed. Its protest has been heard, noted and acceded to by the Government. The withdrawal of their election Bill has proven that fear of the popular verdict inspired the Right Honorable the Prime Minister to make the announcement of the postponement of the arranged election. The action of a prominent member of the Executive also contributed toward precipitating the crisis, and the relations between the two Government groups are now strained to the breaking point. The asseverations of the Premier, in making known the decision arrived at in a party meeting held yesterday afternoon, the House being adjourned until an agreement could be reached; that the Government have manifested their honesty and fearlessness in putting off the election for which every preparation had been made, will not be taken seriously by the country. As a matter of fact they have been compelled to this course by events over which they had no control, and the hostile demonstrations of the people have forced their hand and dictated the course which, very reluctantly, has been adopted. Legislation will proceed as usual and the people will be able to judge for themselves how their stewards have acquitted themselves, and later render their verdict.

Significant Silence.

The significant silence of the Advocate following the startling announcement of Wednesday is portentous. Not a word yesterday about the F. P. U. candidates, which were, on paper, going to sweep every district for which they had been selected. Not a word or a line concerning elections. Such an omission suggests that there is something going between the antagonistic groups which form the National Government. Other evidence also points to interparty strife and "confusion worse confounded" reigns in the inner councils and has spread among the rank and file. The bombshell thrown into the camp by the Dictator has "queered the pitch" and how to save the situation without doing more damage than has already been done is the crucial question. Some of the members, unfavorable and hostile to the dictator, have suggested, it is rumored on the street, that the late followers of Lord Morley throw the F. P. U. members overboard to "sink or swim" as best they may, and advise the formation of a brand new party using the best material in their group as a nucleus and bringing in some new men to make up the requisite number of candidates. It is further alleged that this move meets with the approval of many of the party followers, who look upon it as a rare opportunity, and one which may never occur again, of getting rid of the "old man of the sea" and his servile following.

The charming audacity of the President in selecting unknown men and employees of the F. P. U. for the districts in which that body has no status is on a parity with the conceit which is so largely characteristic of that same individual, and which conceit has now brought him to the point where he must either withdraw or accept the consequences of his rash action in precipitating a climax. Should the President stand pat then the alternative, as presented, will, it is said be adopted. Should he fall down, his position and standing with the F. P. U. is jeopardized, and his self-pride stung to the core, because having made his announcement and pronouncement, it will be taken for an exhibition of weakness should he give way to the demands of his colleagues. In any case he is in the position of being between the devil and the deep sea, and a very unenviable position it is.

On the other hand if the Crosbie-Cashin group accept the President's slate in toto they will have lost all control over the party, which will be swung by the latter, who will then become the autocrat de facto. Should they refuse to surrender, the frail thread which binds them to the President will be snapped and the full strength of the forces at his disposal, which do not possess the strength that is imagined, will be arrayed against them, they will lose the support of the "organ," and because of that their hope of a return to power will pass like the "baseless fabric of a vision." Cheer up, good friends! the worst is yet to come.

Observed at the Council.

"A Daniel come to Judgment" was the comment made on the address of Hon. Mr. Whiteley at yesterday's session. We agree with Mr. Whiteley in asking for purer politics, but surely the hon. gentleman is a little bit confused when he places all our newspapers in the same category. It appears that his judgment is just a small bit faulty but we forbear from hurting his feelings further.

Hon. Mr. Templeman certainly scored against the Government and the F. C. Board yesterday by pointing out the ignorance of the latter, and the prosteering concerns of the former in freight, etc.

Hon. Mr. Anderson again hit the editor of the Herald for his scurrilous writings, and Hon. Mr. Goodridge concurred in what Mr. Anderson said. The Hon. President, having no paper, orally defended himself and seized the opportunity to hit back at the gentlemen who did not agree with his writings, but owing to remarks and interruptions by Hon. Mr. Gibbs and others, the editor retired from the field, beaten.

Hon. Mr. Ellis was again to the forefront with his statements of this and that, but met a very poor reception from the members opposite. Apparently the Government are becoming more irritable as time flies. —M.P.

Historical Society.

The President, H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., C.M.G., presided at last night's meeting of the Historical Society. The following were elected to membership: Hon. J. A. Clift, K.C., H. F. Fitzgerald, Esq., J. P. W. M. Butt, Esq., and Miss E. Morris, of the Legislative Library. The paper read was Capt. John Mason's Brief Discourse on Newfoundland, published in 1820, and a paper commenting on the document. Mason was Governor of John Guy's Colony at Cuper's Cove, Conception Bay. He made a survey of the whole island and his map of Nfld. is the first made from a survey by an Englishman. He proved that Newfoundland is a single island, not several as was believed by many. His description of our flora and fauna is quaint and very interesting. The names of the fish, birds, animals and plants are often similar to those now in daily use in Newfoundland, though some of them, on the other hand, are unknown to us. The brochure is very rare, only three copies of the original publication being known to exist. The copy Mr. LeMessurier had is a reprint of the first edition and is somewhat difficult to read, owing to the old-fashioned shape of the letter "g" and the use of "v" for "u." Mason was very enthusiastic about the climate and agricultural possibilities of Newfoundland. His reference to the ice as a means of keeping off enemy invasion in the spring of the year reminds one of similar remarks during the past few years. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer was proposed and carried by acclamation. The society will take up for discussion at its next meeting the advisability of forming a Historical Library and will further consider the encouragement of the study of local history in the schools.

Sopwith Biplane's Test Flight Successful.

At 5.50 yesterday afternoon, the Sopwith biplane, with pilot Harry Hawker, and navigator MacKenzie Grieve, made its first test flight this side of the Atlantic. Flying from the hangar at Mt. Pearl, the machine circled over the city, turned when over Quidi Vidi, and returned to the hangar, having flown about 60 miles in little less than half an hour. The motors and other apparatus worked splendidly, and except for the final adjustment of the compass, the machine is now ready for the great adventure. Our morning contemporary stated that "at the take-off the plane got into a vacuum and it appeared to those assembled at the aerodrome that she was about to crash, but by skilful management" this was prevented. We are informed that this was a nonsensical and ridiculous statement, and that the machine experienced no trouble neither such as spoken of nor any other. Thousands of citizens witnessed the 'plane in the air, and although it was so high as to appear only as big as a large gull, the noise of the motors could be distinctly heard by the watchers below. Invitations to the governor and suite and others to attend at Mt. Pearl this afternoon at 3.15 have been issued, when the machine will be inspected by the visitors. Up to press hour it had not been decided to make another flight this afternoon.

Martynside Aeroplane

With Pilots, Arrives by S.S. Sachem.

The S.S. Sachem arrived in port at 12 o'clock this morning. By her came Major Morgan and Mr. Raynham, the fliers who are to cross the Atlantic by air in a machine built by the Martynside Aviation Co., and brought here on the steamer by them. Major Morgan, it will be remembered, was here before, granting an interview to the Telegram, and speaking to him this morning, the Major states that he will be busy now until all preparations for the flight are made. With two famous companies represented here now—the Sopwith and the Martynside, hot competition should result, and all sportsmen will wish both parties the best of success and luck. Both the late arrivals, as in the case of Messrs. Hawker and Grieve, are well known in the aviation world, and something big in aeronautics from them may be expected.

NURSERY HYGIENE.

The nursery is the most important room in the house; therefore its hygiene must be above suspicion. Many parents fall into a fallacy regarding modern heating methods, and while admitting the comfort, cleanliness and convenience of the Gas Fire, call its suitability for nursery use into question on the grounds of hygiene.

This idea is wrong. The modern Gas Fire is more hygienic than the coal fire, has all its good points without its bad ones. The Gas Fire gives radiant heat and assists ventilation. The products of combustion are carried off by the flue connection to the chimney. There is no smoke, dust or ashes, and for a sick room it is invaluable.

The modern ventilated Gas Fire produces radiant heat, a natural heat similar to that given by the sun, and is hygienic to its many other advantages.

For particulars of the new Radiant Fire, phone 97 or call at the Gas Co.'s showroom. ap10.codff

Friday's Comments.

By FREDA.

could, but the opposing forces are too strong to be bought over, and so they are belittled by the Government organs in terms which hurt nobody as much as the writers themselves.

Some of the sealers have been querying why the price of seals has not been advanced by the Wordy President this year. We are unable to answer the weighty question, having no knowledge of any time wherein the price of fat was raised by any one man. This failure in 1919 is but an omen to the worthy W. that his star of fame is setting.

The greatest surprise of all came last evening when the Government that would not postpone the Spring election for 14 days, decided to postpone it for four or five months. The movement is one which the public will remember in the autumn election and the day of the present clique is but lengthened out to prolong the agony of suspense. What more is behind this decision is not yet revealed, but it would be the climax of surprises if some (as yet) invisible working had not influenced the present election extension.

What time is the Housing Problem to be touched? It appears from the attitude of the party that little is thought of the citizens of St. John's. The conditions are known, and yet the Government in its customary pose merely listen heedlessly to the call for houses worthy of habitation.

The "Union Candidacy" was the signal for great division among the coterie of the present conglomeration. The Morris followers could not tolerate the coolness of the other fellow, and consequently for the past few days, there has been petty quarrelling in the Government camp, and of course as quoted in the Scriptures, "a divided house cannot stand."

The Retribution.

The visit in state of the Kaiser to the Holy Land more than a decade ago is still in the memory of most. The then Great War Lord was of course on a showy political mission, which eventually made Turkey the slave of Germany. In the most magnificent state, with horsemen and footmen and cloth of gold, he moved from place to place made sacred by the memory of Him who was crowned with thorns and wore the simplest of garments. But even while all this Royal mockery was going on, this pretense of respect and reverence for the Prince of Peace, the Kaiser's philosophers at home were preaching that Christianity was a creed for slaves, meekness was weakness, strength the only thing to be respected, might was right. How complete the irony of fate. The fervent Christian, General Allenby, has captured every square foot of the land over which the Kaiser made his triumphal progress, and the philosophers have been confounded by the ruin of their plans and their nation. Alfred Noyes, the gifted English poet, has written some fine verses on the contrast:-

SLAVE AND EMPEROR.

The Emperor mocked at Nazareth, In his stately hour, The Slave that bowed himself to death And walked with slaves in Nazareth, What were His Words but wasted breath Before that "will to power?"

Yet, in the darkest hour of all, When black defeat began,

The Emperor heard the mountains quake, He felt the graves beneath him shake, He watched his legions rally and break, And he whimpered as they ran.

"I hear a shout that moves the earth, A cry that wakes the dead! Will no one tell me whence they come, For all my messengers are dumb? What power is this that comes to birth And breaks my power?" he said.

Then, all around his foundering guns, Though dawn was now not far, The darkness filled with a living fear That whispered at the Emperor's ear, Quinine That Does Not Affect Head. Because if its tonic and laxative effect, LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE (Tablets) can be taken by anyone without causing nervousness or ringing in the head. There is only one "Bromo Quinine," E. W. GROVE'S signature on the box. 30c.

Color schemes will be as vivid and weird as they are beautiful. Some afternoon and dinner gowns have short puffed sleeves. Heavy white linen frocks are trimmed with white woolsuche. Net is a dainty trimming for frocks of tulle and printed silks. Frills of lace and linen and chemise tucks are in favor again. Occasionally a floral hat is seen rising high from a close-fitting brim.

At the House.

(Yesterday)

The House met at the usual hour, but there was no business and that hardy annual "the petition" had ceased to bloom. Much to the surprise of the members (Opposition at least), the Speaker announced an adjournment to 5.30. This gave rise to no little speculation, but it soon became apparent that there was something unusual on, little groups of Government members engaging in whispered consultations and low voiced debates. At 4.30 all the rank and file on the Government side were summoned to the Speaker's room, when a general party meeting took place, which it is rumoured developed into a high old-time and almost a free fight. The question at issue was whether the F. P. U. president should be the dictator, which position he has attempted to assume, or whether the Government should be the dominant power. The matter was threshed out very stormily but eventually it was agreed that the Premier should make a declaration that the proposed election would not be held and legislation providing for a further extension be introduced. This was not in accord with the wishes of the dictator, who however had to give assent and a patched up truce was arranged.

On the House assembling at 6.30 the Prime Minister in announcing the decision stated that the Election Bill, which had gone to Upper House and there slightly amended, would remain so as to do away with the expense of taking a new list of voters, it being the Government's intention to hold an election on the old list. He said the Government had been charged with attempting to steal the election because of the fear of letting the country know what they had done during the past year. To prove their honesty and their fearlessness of criticism, they had decided to go on with the business of the country and hold a regular session, and he courted a full enquiry into the work of the Government. The election would therefore not be held till the Fall, and a Bill would be introduced extending the life of Parliament, so that if anything arose in connection with the Peace Conference, that necessitated immediate action, which he did not anticipate, a special session would be called. The Bill, however, would specially call for an election next Fall. This action of the Government had not been forced by pressure of the Opposition or from outside and was purely voluntary. He had no doubt that when they appealed to the country in the Fall they would receive the endorsement of the country.

Mr. Currie expressed surprise at the remarkable volte face of the Government, who only a few days ago were grimly determined that the election would be held early in May at all costs. If this change had not been due to pressure by the Opposition, he had no doubt it was due to other pressure which would become apparent in a day or two. The postponement of the election would not materially affect the Opposition so far as the country was concerned, for whether it was held in the Fall or a month hence, the result would be the same, and it would not be so favourable to Government as the Prime Minister professed to think.

With the unanimous consent of the House the Extension Bill was then introduced and read a first time, and will be read a second time to-day. Before adjournment, Mr. Walsh read a telegram which he had received from Placentia, stating that about eighty passengers were held there waiting to get away, and asking that the Ethio, which was now at that port, take them home. He asked the Colonial Secretary to communicate with the Reids and see if the request could be granted.

The House adjourned at 7 o'clock until the usual hour this afternoon.

A Child's Laxative Is "Syrup of Figs."

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit" laxative. Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company. Don't be fooled!

S. A. Maternity Hospital Notes.

There appears to be some envelopes missed by the house to house collectors. If you have one not called for, kindly send it to Mr. P. Steer, the Treasurer of the Hospital Building Fund.

The early part of the Maternity Hospital Campaign was chiefly devoted to the collecting from the labouring and intermediate classes, who responded very generously, giving evidence of their practical interest in the scheme, in whose interest, chiefly, the Hospital project is being promoted.

The members of the General Committee, however, are now actively engaged in seeking larger and more handsome donations from the wealthier citizens. It is to be hoped they will meet with a generous response. W. H. BURROWS, Territorial Representative.

"Big Threes" and Others

The present craze for designating all sorts of combinations and enterprises in terms of numbers, with the adjective "big" prefixed, is by no means new. Molke, so long ago as 1871, coined the phrase "Big Three" in allusion to the French fortresses of Strasbourg, Metz, and Verdun. "With this Big Three in our possession our safety is assured," he said at the Versailles Peace Conference. He got his will so far as the first two were concerned, but failed as regards the third, luckily for France, and the world at large.

To-day we find the newspapers using the phrase "Big Three" to designate three individuals—Clemenceau, Wilson and Lloyd George; and three affiliated trade unions—those representing the railwaymen, miners and transport workers.

Similarly, the "Big Five," a term borrowed from America, means over there the combination of the five great meat packing firms—Swift, Armour, and the rest—which together constitute the American Meat Trust; while it was also used over here when the Coalition Government was formed to designate its then leading lights—Lloyd George, Bonar Law, Arthur Henderson, and Lords Milner and Curzon.

Famous Centenaries.

This year of grace, 1919, is going to be one rich in centenaries. To begin with, it is just a hundred years ago since Queen Victoria appeared on another earth—a centenary concerning which the monthlies will presently be waxing eloquent.

Another noted centenary of the present year is that of the famous old sea-dog, Admiral Rodney, the man in whom for years the French found so persistent an assailant, so doughty an adversary. 'Twas back in 1719 that this old gentleman first lighted his friends with his presence. The centenary of W. E. Foster, the statesman, will also be celebrated this year. Few greater authorities on education than this gifted son-in-law of the great Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, ever breathed.

Among other worthies whose names must also be mentioned in this connection is that of John Campbell Sharp, the Waverley author, poet and philosopher; Arthur Hugh Clough, the poet; and Charles Kingsley, the gifted author of that immortal thriller, "Westward Ho!"

Scotsmen will presently be doing honour to the memory of another noted individual whose centenary also falls this year—a man worthy of a happier fate—Donald Cargill, the great Covenanter, who, it will be remembered, for daring to excommunicate the King, was executed at the Old Market Cross, Edinburgh. Neither must we forget George Elliot, the authoress of that unparalleled romance, "Adam Bede."

S. A. Concert.

A very interesting and enjoyable entertainment was rendered at the Salvation Army Citadel, Adelaide Street on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Home League and Young People's Legion. The audience were favoured by the presence of Colonel and Mrs. Adby. Mrs. Adby Provincial Leader of the Home Legion opened the meeting and ably introduced the Colonel as chairman. The Colonel very kindly took the programme, and introduced the various items in his usual jocular and able manner. The programme consisted of recitations and singing, accompanied by music from the piano, violin, cornetina, cornet and the corps band.

Among those taking part in the programme were Miss Pike, an accomplished pianist; Miss Abbott, who beautifully sang the Holy City; Mr. Rows rendered a violin solo, and Mr. Fred Gushee recited in the French Canadian tongue. The remaining parts of the programme were rendered by members of No. 1 and 2 corps. All the items were of a very interesting character, and were enjoyed immensely by all. We desire to thank the Colonel and all who participated in the programme and hope that ere long we shall be favoured with another entertainment of such an interesting character. The proceeds which were satisfactory go towards the completion of the Young People's Hall.—Com.

A New Source of Food Supply.

It has recently been discovered that the eggs of dog fish are as good for eating purposes as hens' eggs. These of the larger varieties of dog fish are quite as large as ordinary hens' eggs. The empty shells are picked up on the seashore. They are squarish flaps of leathery stuff, with the egg in the centre.

Turtle eggs are largely eaten in all hot countries. You find them on almost any sandy beach between latitudes 25 north and 25 south.

The turtles come out of the sea, scrape a hole in the sand, lay their eggs and cover them up. A hundred and fifty are often found in one nest. These eggs are about the size of hens' eggs, covered with a white, parchment-like shell, and, if fresh, of excellent flavour. They make capital omelettes, or can be fried or used for cooking, but they will not boil. That is to say, the white will not set as does that of a bird's egg.

The fresh water turtle also lays edible eggs. There are both hard-shell and soft-shell turtles in the lakes of Florida and Louisiana; also in South American rivers, such as the Orinoco.

The turtle living in the Orinoco lays eggs which are extraordinarily rich in oil. The Indians in British Guiana collect twenty-five millions yearly for making oil.

The eggs of many sea birds are excellent eating. The best of the lot is said to be that of the "murre," a bird which is very common on the Labrador coast.

The Indians of the Florida Everglades eat the eggs of the alligator. But these have such a strong musky flavor that white men cannot touch them.

Here and There.

ENQUIRY CONTINUED.—The enquiry re the Cape Breton tragedy was continued yesterday afternoon. Drs. Scully, Keegan and Campbell, and Boiler Inspectors McLachlin and MacFarlane were examined. Further enquiry this afternoon.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. and Mrs. John Boggan wish to thank Drs. Keegan and Carnell, the Sisters and Nurses of the General Hospital, and all friends for their kindness towards their daughter Marie, during her stay in hospital.—adv.

NATIONALISTS RELEASED.

CAIRO, April 7.

(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—
A proclamation issued by General Allenby, orders the release of four detained Nationalist leaders, who are now permitted to land in Egypt.

ANOTHER STRIKE.

MONTREAL, April 10.

The employees of the Canadian Express Co. struck this evening at 6 o'clock for higher wages and improved working conditions. About 1,200 men in all are affected in this province and the Maritime Provinces in Montreal. One hundred and seventy-five men are out.

LABOR PARTY TALKING.

LONDON, April 10.

The National Executive of the Labor Party at a meeting to-day, formulated a statement of policy demanding that the Paris Conference put an end to the protracted discussions and make peace in accordance with President Wilson's fourteen points. The Labor Party also demands the withdrawal of the Conscription Bill, the cessation of military interference in Russia and the speedy withdrawal from that country of British troops.

A BIG HAUL.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 10.

Eight men held up the Baden Bank in the northern section of the city this morning, and escaped with between $40,000 and $50,000.

BERLIN BANKS CLOSE.

BERLIN, April 10.

A majority of the big Berlin banks were forced to remain closed to-day, or at least to shut down their branches, because of the strike of bank employees. The strike had a distressing effect on business, although the Deutsche Bank continued to do business.

SELLING CHEAP GOODS.

LONDON, April 10.

A suggestion was made in the House of Commons to-day that American manufactured cotton goods were being offered in England at prices below which they were sold in the United States. W. C. Brideman, Under Secretary of the Board of Trade, said that an anti-dumping bill was already in print and the Board would like to have any information in the possession of the members regarding the suggestion made.

NEW MINISTRY IN EGYPT.

LONDON, April 10.

The official Press Bureau to-night issued the following statement: "General Allenby reports that a new Ministry in Egypt was formed yesterday, with Hussein Ruchdi Pasha as President of the Council. The provinces are quiet, but demonstrations by the peasantry have occurred at some places. There were disturbances in parts of Cairo on April 9th, the feature being hostility toward Armenians by parties of roughs."

CLERGYMAN ARRESTED.

WASHINGTON, April 10.

The State Department has been advised of the arrest of Rev. Eli Miller Mowry, Presbyterian missionary at Pyeong Yang, Korea, on a charge preferred by the Japanese authorities that he was aiding and abetting the Korean independence propagandists.

U. S. TROOPS DISCONTENTED.

WASHINGTON, April 10.

An official report to the war department on discontent among American troops in Northern Russia, is understood to contain about the same facts as related in the Associated Press despatch received to-day describing the unwillingness of an American company to return to the firing line until appealed to by their regimental commander. Officials indictated the report would not be made public. It was said that there was nothing to show that the American officers at Archangel regarded the situation as very serious. In view of the situation which has developed among the American troops in Archangel, official circles are impressed with the necessity of promptly relieving the American soldiers who are now in Northern Russia.

S. S. Digby Arrives.

S. S. Digby, Capt. Chambers arrived at 11:30 last night from Halifax after a fair run of 53 hours. A large number of bergs were seen on the dawn but no field ice was met till Cape Race was reached when a heavy string was run into, causing some delay as the ship was nursing along slowly. She brought 1,700 tons of cargo and as passengers: His Grace Archbishop Roche, Rev. Fr.
McGrath, Miss Violet K. Butt, Miss
May Power, Hon. R. K. Bishop, Mr.
H. Mitchell, Mrs. J. C. Baird, Miss
Baird, Miss Carter, Mrs. H. T. Atlay,
Major Partridge, Mr. Chauber, Dr. T.
Smith, O. K. Nelson, W. White, G.
D. Matthews, C. C. Carter, W. A.
Brown, Jas. House, G. Grimes, M.H.
A.; H. N. Burt and ten in transit to Liverpool. The Digby sails for the other side at noon to-morrow.

M. C. L. I.

At the annual meeting held last night in the Institute Rooms, favorable reports were rendered by the Secretary and Treasurer, which showed that the session just drawn to a close maintained its usual high standard of interest, and manifested more than ever the justification for its existence. Mr. George Peters kindly consented to conduct the election of officers, assisted by Mr. S. Tucker.
The following members were then elected as an executive for the next session:

President—C. C. Pratt.
1st Vice-Pres.—W. Drover.
2nd Vice-Pres.—R. Hearder.
Sec.—L. R. Curtis.
Asst. Sec.—J. M. Barbour.
Treas.—E. F. Peters.
Librarian—S. R. Penney.
Assistant Librarian—E. Bursay.
Committee—T. Soper, G. Peters, S.
P. Whiteway.

The President, resumed the chair and the usual speeches were made.
The Institute regret to report the absence of the retiring President, who, through illness, was confined to his room. The annual dinner will be held at Wood's Restaurant on the 24th inst. There being no further business, the meeting closed with the National Anthem.—S. R. P.

A Terrible Penalty

frequently follows the neglect of an injury. Germs and dust get into the wound, it begins to fester, blood-poisoning sets in, and sometimes the loss of a limb is the result.
Safeguard yourself against such a possibility by applying Iodo-Pak at once. This antiseptic balm destroys all germs and prevents festering and blood-poisoning. The healing essence promotes the growth of new tissue and it is not long before the wound is completely healed.
Iodo-Pak should be kept handy
in every home, office, store and factory for cuts, scratches, burns, scalds and bruises. It is equally good for eczema, rashes, boils and ulcers. All dealers, 50c. box.

LIVELY SKIRMISH IN THE RED CHAMBER.

At yesterday evening's session Hon. Mr. Whiteway started the further debate on the Election Amendment Bill, and in the course of his remarks urged for a purer political life, and that the press should not be so defamatory, and he stated it was a pity that men capable of the work did not come forward to put politics into a higher sphere.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs agreed with Mr. Whiteway and stated that it was the men did not engage in public life.

Hon. Mr. McNamara called the attention of the House to the high freights, citing the excessive charges on hay and coal, at $20.00 and $6.00 per ton, respectively, and stated that a re-adjustment of the tariff was necessary.

Hon. Mr. Templeman also took up the question of freights. Freights on fish shipments to Europe, as charged the exporters, were matters for serious consideration. The high freights had a probable lasting effect of killing the export of Newfoundland fish to the markets they had held for years. In the case of shipments to Greece by the S. S. Escasoni, there had been a rush to get the fish aboard, and crowd the markets—not intentionally, but simply in the desire to get the fish abroad. The freight demanded and paid was $14.00 and $16.00 a quintal. The charge was simply a matter of highway robbery; and there was no other reason for shipping the fish, which crowded the markets, except a desire on the part of the shareholders of the Escasoni to grow rich at the sacrifice of the fish shippers. It was a case of downright stealing. St. John's shippers might think they knew it all, but they had a lot to learn. The city merchants did not have to bear the burden of supplying the small fishermen; they supplied the output, plumper mostly and were generally assured of their returns, but suppliers (like Mr. T.) who were called upon to attend to the "small" man, were bound to get caught all the time. As regards the Food Control Board, he looked upon that combination as a joke. He cited cases of getting supplies of molasses last year, where one was obliged to swear to a document a "mile" long before the supplier could get three puncheons, and then told of a case where one party got as many puncheons as he demanded without swearing at all, and had enough to go around and to spare. The personnel of the Board of Food Control was not as it should be. There were men on it who did not know the weight of a barrel of pork. One member was used to selling laces and women's skirts, and such like, and not knowing how to sell them properly had to give it up. The whole trouble with that with high freights and charges our fish being placed in well held markets at $40.00 a quintal, and put out of the reach of the regular consumer. And altogether with this, England had dumped 180,000 quintals of Iceland fish on the market without a consideration of Newfoundland, which rendered our position worse than ever.

Hon. John Anderson then referred to his own previous criticism saying it was justifiable, and he seized the opportunity to again ensure the Hon. President and the editor of the Herald for his remarks in that paper especially on Mr. Ayre, pointing out that the honours which had gone to the President and others of Newfoundland were chiefly awarded by reason of the blood of the soldiers poured out on the fields of battle. He also spoke of the Housing problem and the disrespect which the Government showed while trying to remedy the present conditions of the people. He stated that in St. John's there were 2,500 houses in which 12,000 people were living without water or sewerage facilities, and nothing had been done. He was voicing the sentiments of 6,000 workmen, and it was not he who was thrown down, but the men he spoke for.

Hon. Mr. Goodridge emphasized the importance of passing the necessary legislation now for the raising of the loans, for payment of our liabilities. Mr. Goodridge also stated that there was no combine on the part of merchants to make the freights greater. He also denounced the editor of the Herald for his recent writings relative to Mr. Ayre saying the writer was not worthy of the confidence of anyone, either in the House or out of it.

Hon. the President then endeavoured to answer Mr. Anderson with reference to Mr. Anderson's criticisms of titles, he wished to say that all titles came from the King and not from individual influence. He took exception to Mr. Anderson's remarks that the Newfoundland titles had been won at the sacrifice of the blood of the Regiment. So far as Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin was concerned, he had sent two sons to the front, one of whom had made an excellent record, and no more could be expected of him. He (Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath) was not a married man, but he had sent his ward and nephew to the battle lines, and he had covered himself with honour and won a distinction. What more could he do. Mr. Anderson had two sons, one enjoying a lucrative position in the Pay and Record Office of the Newfoundland Regiment in London, and the other was running a Cabaret in New York. He had nothing to say against them, and would not speak disparagingly. He only wanted to bring this matter to the attention of the members of the House. It was impossible to be sure of Mr. Anderson's position as to being with you or against you. His connections with the Herald were purely of a private nature, and no one in the House had a right to bring them to question, any more than he had a right to delve into the private business of other members of the House. He was sorry for the references made to him by Mr. Goodridge. It was uncalled for. He assumed all responsibility for what appeared in the Herald about the Citizens' Meeting, and it was a private concern. Mr. Goodridge himself, 30 years ago, on the floors of the Assembly had attacked a member of the House, and told him he was feeding him and his family, and it was ill grace for Mr. G. to lecture him. The House should have nothing to do with his private affairs.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs—Mr. Goodridge only replied to a vicious attack made on him, and in self defense. It was an aggravated case, and in no way similar to yours.

Hon. the President—That might be so, but I have made no attack on Mr. Ayre.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs—You know the references you made to him were untrue.

Hon. the President—I did not know but they were true.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs—Then as editor of a newspaper desiring to publish facts, you should have enquired and learned if they were true before you published them.

Hon. Mr. Goodridge—I was replying to a venomous attack made on me. No one had made any attack on you. You accept responsibility for the publication of the article, and the dignity of the Chair of this House has not been maintained.

Hon. the President—I am well able and intend to maintain the dignity of the Chair.

Hon. Mr. Goodridge—Your attack was made behind a screen, while mine was a just defense. Mr. Ayre in no way said or suggested anything against your character. No one can say anything against my political career; it has been straight, honest and without a desire for any personal aggrandisement.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs then took the floor and again referred to the bill before the House saying there was nothing to be gained by not accepting the amendment that nomination day should be May 16th. If the Govt. were sincere they would legislate the loan bill right away. The Colony would soon be assuming a debt of $50,000,000, and current obligations would call for $2,500,000 on the debts, $750,000 for war pensions, and other expenditures of $7,500,000. He estimated an average voyage of fish at 1,500,000 quintals, and a fair price, considering economic conditions of the markets which we supply, at $10.00 as it was sold by the producer. At this ratio, every second quintal of codfish taken from the waters went towards paying the revenue. How long the Colony could stand without falling in its obligations, he knew not, but unless great care were taken, and the seriousness of the situation realized, we would be insolvent within a year. The Government should pass the loan bill now and put the country on a sound financial basis, and not jeopardize its future. He did not wish to see conditions get back to 1894, while there was a way out of it. He did not want the Colony's credit ruined abroad. It was up to the Council to act, and he hoped the members who had the business interests at stake, would deal intelligently with the matter.

Hon. J. Anderson effectively answered the slurs of Hon. Mr. McGrath on his son.

Hon. Mr. Squires then made a further amendment that the date of election be fixed as the 19th, 22nd or 26th. He declared that it was disgraceful that the credit of the colony should be endangered for political expediency, the action of the Government trying to get an early election was but a ploy to get a new lease of power.

Hon. Mr. Anderson did not consider it was important what time the Minister of Finance got to New York so far as lifting the maturity bonds were concerned. It was only a matter of getting the money. This could be floated either in Newfoundland or in Montreal, and it was only a matter of transferring the amount to New York to reduce the note.

Hon. Mr. Ellis said it was arranged that the Minister of Finance would get to New York at the right time, the Government had arranged for this provision.

Hon. Mr. Anderson desired to know if his presence in New York was to redeem the loan due, or place a new one.

Hon. Mr. Ellis explained that it was to raise a new loan to redeem the bonds now due, and look for a further loan of four or five millions. About nine or ten millions were required by the Government.

Hon. Mr. Anderson would like to know if Hon. Mr. Ellis knew what he was talking about. He was sure the Government did not worry here nor there about a million. He would like full information in the matter.

Hon. Mr. Ellis suggested he had better seek it from the Minister of Finance.

Hon. Mr. Anderson—You are the mouthpiece of the Minister of Finance, and should come here fully informed.

Hon. Mr. Ellis—I am not here to be joked with or fooled with. Your sarcasm about a million being here nor there is not called for.

Hon. Mr. Anderson—You have been parading in and out to the Government since the House opened, getting information. You better go back now and get the information I am asking for.

Hon. Mr. Ellis—Patience will soon cease to be a virtue and you will probably get treated in a manner you will not like.

Hon. Mr. Anderson—All both, Sir.

Hon. Messrs. Squires, Gibbs and Goodridge contributed further to the debate, which closed at 8 o'clock, when the Bill passed without amendment.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs gave notice to introduce a bill dealing with Workmen's Compensation, and at 6:30 the House adjourned to meet this evening at 8 o'clock.

Sun Life Has Record Year.

OVER FIFTY MILLIONS OF NEW BUSINESS IN 1918.

The Sun Life Assurance Company's 48th Annual Report, just issued, not only surpasses last year's wonderful record, but is better than any ever issued by the company. Every department of its activities shows strength and progress. New business secured constituted a record, total assets are higher than ever before, income is larger, total assurances. In force are much greater while the surplus of over $8,000,000 indicates that the company is in a splendid position to safeguard the welfare of those entrusted to its care.

The past year was easily the best in the history of the company and an examination of the report shows that the big Montreal company made gains in every department of its activities. Its assurances in force now exceed $340,800,000, a gain of nearly $23,000,000 during the year. New policies issued and paid for exceed $61,591,000, while assets which gained $7,460,000 during the year now crowd close to the $100,000,000 mark. To be exact, these amount to $97,620,000.

It is evident that the Sun Life exercises the utmost care in the selection of its risks, while the excellent methods employed enables it to retain on its books an unusually large part of the new business secured.

That the margin of safety is ample is shown by the fact that the net surplus remaining above all liabilities and capital stock exceeds $8,000,000. During the year the company paid to policy holders and their beneficiaries $9,768,000, a sum considerably in excess of the amount paid last year, the heavier claims being due to the war and the influenza epidemic.

Another new record was made in regard to income with $21,651,000 received, a gain of over $2,300,000 during the year. The company is now comfortably installed in its new office building on Dominion Square, Montreal, where unequalled facilities enable them to carry on their large and growing business in the best possible manner.

Church Lads' Brigade.

Last night's parade was earlier than usual on account of the competition for the Outerbridge Shield. The various squads were as keen as mustard and the examining officer was Lieut. Col. Walter Rendell of the Royal Nfld. Regt., who will make up the marks and announce the winning squad and its N. C. O. next week.

On Tuesday night Lieut. Colonel Goodridge invited the officers' mess to his residence at Rosedale, Waterford Bridge Rd. and held the monthly mess meeting. Captain C. Wearing Hayward was the guest of the evening, he being one of the original officers when the brigade was organized and ranking senior at that time to Lt. Col. Franklin, D. S. O. The mess were all delighted to see Capt. Hayward after his twenty years' absence from the Colony, and regretted that he returns next week to British Columbia to take up his duties on the Canadian Govt. survey. At the close of the meeting the mess was entertained by Lt. Col. Goodridge.

The C.L.B. War Heroes' Memorial, presented to Avalon Battalion by ex-Lieut. Col. R. G. Rendell, O.B.E., is now at the Armoury. It takes the form of a war shrine—made of British oak from the training ship Britannia, 1869-1905. Over the door panels, the words, "For God, King and Country" are seen. Opening the doors of the shrine, the top one reads, "Greater love hath no man than this," and on the bottom, "The heroic dead." In the centre is seen a cross—the emblem of the great sacrifice—and surrounding this solemn token are the names of the officers and lads who have given their lives on the field of honour for the Empire. Each name is on a separate brass plate, with the name and date of death of many a gallant C.L.B. lad, who has given his all—the greatest sacrifice he could make. The War Shrine is most appropriate, and the name plates clustered around the cross, are emblematical of the faith they carried in their Redeemer and the life of the World to come.

Lieut. Miles, assistant Recruiting Officer, was busy last night with several new recruits—showing lads are as keen as ever to join up to the C.L.B. colours, and four veterans rejoined after serving the flag overseas, six; Sergt. Major Stewart Dowling, M.M., who has been posted to the Ambulance Corps, under Lieut. Reeves; Corporal Harold Rendell, late of the Navy, and Bert Colton also rejoin their companies, and Lance Corporal Aleck Hennebury (late of the Regiment) is posted as Assistant Instructor in the gymnasium.

The Bugle Band, under Drum Major Bursell, continues to progress at their practices. No school classes or street studies were held last night, due to the lads having to participate in the Shield Competition. The date of the annual exhibition of drill and official presentation of the Outerbridge Shield and promotions, with the unveiling of the War Memorial, will be announced in a few days.

(By Admiral Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa.)

This important volume gives Lord Jellicoe's personal narrative of his command of the Grand Fleet, from his appointment in August, 1914, until his relinquishment of the post two years later. The book deals with all the naval "affairs" of this period, including the Battle of Jutland; and therein, of course, is its greatest interest.
With numerous Illustrations,
Maps and Charts.

For the average investor, one of the most important considerations in selling or buying bonds is to be assured of the character of the firm with which he is doing business, its experience and the facilities which its various departments afford for selling, buy-
