In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.
That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

For Her Sake; The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XLIV.

"Her heart is not in it," thought the housekeeper.

She retired to her own suite of rooms, and stood by one of the windows, longing to be engaged in something, however trifling, to banish her miserable thoughts, when she was suddenly startled by the cry of an animal in pain.

Until the day she died Lady Clan would never forget the scene that presented itself to her astonished eyes. Her husband was sitting smoking in the shade of a stately elm. He had set two dogs to fight, and was eagerly urging them on, enjoying the combat with undisguised delight.

For a moment Diana was too horrified to speak when she saw her pet dog being urged to fight with Carlo, the big retriever belonging to Lord Clanronald. Up to this time Floss had had the worst of it. He was torn and bleeding, and Diana's soul rose in arms when she saw his condition.

Lord Clanronald was very sulky with her during the remainder of the day; but Diana would not notice it. The little dog suffering terribly, and one of the grooms was dispatched for a veterinary surgeon, as it was feared that Floss would die.

From the whispered comments of the groom and the surgeon she gathered that it was not the first time his lordship had distinguished himself by cruelty toward animals.

As she sat by the little dog, more than once it flashed across Lady Clanronald's mind that he was the worthier animal of the two. The housekeeper nursed Floss in her own room, and told the horrified young wife more than one story of his lordship's wanton cruelty.

Hitherto Diana had not actively disliked him; she had been careless and indifferent; but as the days passed by and she began to understand the weak, vain, cruel, selfish nature more clearly, she could not help despising him.

Diana was little by little finding out the true character of the man she had promised to love and obey. He loved her more perhaps than anything else in the world, but he never studied her feelings or gave her the least consideration.

She raised the poor little spaniel in her arms and kissed it with passionate grief; then she walked up to her husband, and, with one stroke of her white hand, gave him what she would have given a schoolboy—a hearty box on the ears.

"You contemptible coward!" she said. "You ought to be made suffer just what these dogs are suffering!"

"My Lord Clanronald," she rejoined, "I was not aware there was any sentiment," said Diana, coldly. "There has been, it has been all on your side. You can invite as many people as you please—the more the better; I am quite as much bored as yourself."

STEEDEMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS. THE DOCTOR: "My wife, my child and myself. Give them a Spoonful of Steedman's Powder and it will be as good as nothing."

CHAPTER XLV.

Lord Clanronald stood on the lawn, smoking his morning cigar. With him was his best friend—if such an epithet could be applied to Captain Basil Egerton, of the Royal Horse Guards—one of the handsomest, most accomplished, and good-for-nothing men of the day.

Basil Egerton had already run through three fortunes, and had darkened more homes and blighted more lives than perhaps any man of his age. His handsome, careless face wrought evil wherever he went.

"Do you think," she asked, "that animals were created in order that they should amuse themselves by their torture?"

"I have never thought about it," he said; "I do not want to be cruel to the dogs. But, be that as it may, Diana, you must not again behave like that to me."

"I am glad you admire her," returned Lord Clanronald. "She is a handsome woman, and high spirited, too. But I have been thinking—and I am right for once in my life in the opinion I have formed—that she is too high-flown for me."

"I can imagine," said Basil Egerton, "that you find her so." "She was so perfectly beautiful in face and figure that I was carried off my feet, and I never thought about what they call 'mind.' Indeed, it is the last thing I ever trouble about in any one."

"Decidedly," agreed the captain. "I find it out now," resumed Lord Clanronald. "She is too high-flown for me altogether. She believes in all kinds of romantic nonsense, would die at a dog-fight, talks of sermons in stones and brooks, goes into raptures over a half-blown rose, likes the early morning and the dew on the grass. Now what is the use of such a wife to me?"

"Very true," said Basil Egerton. "But how is it you did not discover this before?"

"I never thought of it. It was her face that fascinated me and caused me to forget everything else."

"If her face was enough then, why is it not enough now?" asked the captain.

"I am tired of it," replied his companion. "It is all through this foolish custom of honeymoons. I have seen one else, no other face for so long—a state of things which brings about its own results."

Captain Egerton laughed at the thought of his friend's matrimonial dilemma.

"You have done a thousand times better than you deserved," he said. "To tell you the truth, Ronald, your great surprise is that you were able to win her; she might have aimed much higher."

"I do not consider that I was a bad match for her," rejoined Lord Clanronald, sulkily. "Perhaps not. But she might have done much better—she might indeed; and I wonder she did not."

Lord Clanronald looked straight into his friend's face.

"Basil," he said—"do not be afraid of wounding my feelings—tell me—do you think my wife loves me?"

The Baltic States Conference in Depat has been advised that Finland has decided to aid General Yudenitch with thirty thousand volunteers in a new attempt to take Petrograd within the next few weeks. AUSTRALIAN ELECTION. LONDON, Nov. 14. The Sydney correspondent of the Morning Post says the Federal election campaign is now fairly launched and there is every prospect of a fight for the "soldiers' votes." Executive of the Returned Soldiers Association seems to hold for Premier Hughes, but their organization is still loose and many of the rank and file are uncertain. Apparently the soldiers' vote will decide between the two parties. MINERS AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS. CHICAGO, Nov. 14. Only a slight increase in the amount of bituminous coal produced through out the country was in prospect today. The miners generally showed disposition to await developments at the meeting to-day at Washington. Miners and operators, called by Secretary of Labor Wilson to negotiate a new wage scale, in the general summary of the situation optimistic statements regarding the resumption of fuel production were received overnight only from Colorado. HEARTH HANDS OVER GOVERNMENT. TORONTO, Nov. 14. "My Back Is So Bad"

PAINS in the small of the back, lumbago, rheumatism, pains in the limbs all tell of defective kidneys.

Poisons are being left in the blood which cause pains and aches.

The kidneys, liver and bowels must be aroused to action by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is no time for delay when the kidneys go wrong, for such developments as hardening of the arteries and Bright's disease are the natural result.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Dr. Chase's Medicines at all Drugists and Dealers. GERALD S. DOYLE, Water St., St. John's, Sole Agent.

Fads and Fashions.

Fad effects are used not only for entire frocks, but for facings and trimmings.

A black satin waist-coat of a navy blue suit was trimmed with Bulgarian embroidery.

For Southern wear are strict tailor-mades of white tricolette and white hairline serge.

Sheared of its long hairs, mongale makes an effective summer fur trimming for wraps.

Some spring wraps are being planned in a short side effect, and longer front and back.

Tucked and scalloped chemisettes of white organdie are used on serge frocks with jacket opening.

Paris suit skirts are short, with fullness about the hips, many being draped with cascade, rather than panier effects.

Household Notes.

Soak nuts in hot water before cracking. The nut-meats will come out more whole.

Cauliflower soufflé is cheaper than meat and a satisfying dish for the midday meal.

An old-fashioned codfish dinner includes boiled potatoes, beets and onions in addition to the fish.

Have fewer foods on the table if necessary, but see that each is well chosen and perfectly prepared.

Onions and lima beans with mutton or beef broth foundation, makes one of the best of winter soups.

If a level teaspoonful of cornstarch is added while making fudge, the candy will be smooth and creamy.

COUNTESS TOLSTOI DEAD. LONDON, Nov. 14. Countess Lea Tolstoi, widow of the famous Russian novelist, died at Krasnaya, Soliana, November 4th, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Helsinki, quoting the Krasnaya Gazette.

A HORRIBLE DEATH. QUEBEC, Nov. 14. John Johnson, laborer, 48 years old and married, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon in a most horrible way at the pulp mills of the Pulp and Paper Co. at St. Raymond, Hortnet County. Johnson was caught by machinery and thrown through an opening barely four inches high between two huge rollers. His entire body passed through this narrow opening, coming out at the other end barely three inches thick. The body had been spread to a length of over twelve feet when it rolled through the four inch aperture between the rollers.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS. PARIS, Nov. 14. Numerous troops are being gathered in and about Paris for use in the event of disorders during the election. Sunday. General Mangin, who is at present living in the Department of the Seine et Oise, a few miles from Paris, has been requested by the Government to remain in the vicinity of the capital, and it is said he will take command of the troops in the Paris district should rioting develop Sunday.

POINCARÉ LEAVES FOR FRANCE. DOVER, Nov. 14. President and Madame Poincaré departed for France to-day. Before leaving the President expressed his gratitude to the British for the welcome he had received, saying that Great Britain and France in future would be inseparable in the sacred task of rebuilding a shattered world.

MET STORMY WEATHER. CALAIS, Nov. 14. President Poincaré and party arrived here at noon after an extremely stormy passage across the English Channel.

AWAY FROM THE MADDENING CROWD. WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. The Prince of Wales left Washington to-night accompanied by only his immediate personal staff, for a three day stay in a southern winter resort, where he proposes to remain in strict incognito. His next public appearance will be on Tuesday when he arrives in New York.

AGITATORS HELD FOR TRIAL. NEW YORK, Nov. 14. Jas Larkin, Irish labor leader, and Benjamin Gitlow, a former assemblyman, charged with advocating criminal anarchy, were held for the Grand Jury late to-day by Chief Magistrate McAdoo. Before announcing his decision, Mr. McAdoo scathingly denounced the activities of Radicals in this Country.

BORDEN AT WASHINGTON. WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. Sir Robert Borden, looking very fine after his sojourn in Virginia, came up to Washington yesterday unheralded and dined at the British Embassy as a fellow guest with the Prince of Wales. Later he stood with Viscount Grey at the reception to all officials of Washington which was held in the Embassy in honor of the Prince. It is expected that the Canadian Prime Minister will return to Virginia with the Prince to-night following the latter's visit to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

DELAYED AGAIN. NEW YORK, Nov. 14. The Handley Page airplane which started early to-day from Mincola on what was intended to be a non-stop flight to Chicago, descended at Mount Jewett, Penn., this afternoon, according to a message received by Dr. Miller Hutchinson. Intense cold in the upper levels of the air forced the landing, the telegram said. Vice Admiral Mark Kerr commanding the plane despatched the telegram at 3.30 o'clock. It read, "Water trouble, probably due to the intense cold weather, necessitated landing here. Hope to continue on to Cleveland tomorrow; strong head winds all the way. We are two miles from Mount Jewett."

GERMAN AGENTS MUST. BERNE, Nov. 14. German agents are reported busy in the Voralberg district of the Tyrol, agitating in favor of the union with Germany, according to advices from Voralberg reaching here. Agents of German financial concerns have been officially permitted to study the possibilities of exploiting the water power of the region and the electrification of the Voralberg railway, the reports state.

"HINDY" SHUT OUT. BERLIN, Nov. 14. Pan-German students to-day refused to permit Marshal von Hindenburg to enter the Reichstag building to testify before the sub-committee which is investigating war responsibilities, and forced the Field Marshal's chauffeur to return with the former commander in chief to his home.

Bits of Law—Libel. A libel is a written or printed defamatory statement. A slander is a spoken one. If the truth of a statement can be proved, the complainant is not likely to obtain damages. To repeat a libellous statement will render you liable to the injured person, even though you did not originate the statement. Unless malice can be proved, a newspaper is not liable for publishing in its columns reports of public speeches which contain libellous matter. In an action for slander, the plaintiff is justified if he can show that he has sustained actual damage or that his reputation has been impaired. It is legally safe to call a man a liar to his face if no one else is present. To accuse a man of any moral failing in connection with his business before a third party, however, is not legally safe. Mere vulgar epithets are not generally speaking, libel.

It is the cry of the children when a band is heard far down the street. Nearer and nearer it draws until each note becomes clearer and clearer.

To those in the city this is a familiar picture. But to those residing in suburban towns stirring strains of band music are more rare.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

in your home makes it possible for you and your children to have at all times the wonderful march music that has inspired the world.

Wherever you live—on the farm or in town—let the New Edison bring the parade, with all its glamour, into your living room, every instrument, every note as clear as a real band—thanks to the genius of Thomas A. Edison.

We tell a wonderful story about the New Edison in a beautiful book that you should have. It is called "Edison and Music". Ask for it; and also for "What the Critics Say".

Price of Fish. (Trade Review.)

The exceeding stormy weather during the past fortnight has prevented any arrivals of the fishing fleet with their season's catch. We are all looking for a change in the weather which will mean a very busy spurt of trade for this city when so many craft will find their way here laden with codfish and all prepared to purchase winter requirements of provisions.

The outlook for the price on hard cured Shores codfish is encouraging and we fully expect to see an advance as the quantity put in this way is very limited and not at all equal to requirements.

Twelve dollars is the price quoted for No. 1 Merchantable and $10 per quintal for Madeira, but we would not be at all surprised to see some move up.

Well salted Labrador cure is offering freely at $8.00 per qtl. and we call on all the merchants to establish this value, as anything less will not recompense the fishermen for their heavy outlay at present price of provisions and fishing gear. If the fishermen cannot make two ends meet they will not continue this business.

The news from foreign markets is a little more encouraging. Baine Johnston's schooner Ruby W. was first arrival at Gibraltar from Labrador and has been ordered to Patras.

Several other vessels are also due and likely to meet with fair market, but there is no active buying. If some judicious credit was offered to Italy instead of stipulating for "cash on nail" we believe that it would quickly help very materially in selling many cargoes and quite possibly enhancing the value of our produce.

Household Notes.

Soak oranges in hot water for five minutes and the peeling will slip off easily. Add the leftover chicken gravy to potato soup; the combination is delicious. After washing, a Tam o'Shanter hat, dry over a dinner plate to prevent shrinking. When creaming butter and sugar for cake, beat the butter first until it is creamy. Gloss paint should not be laid on over gloss—the undercoat should be a dull paint. Hermits are excellent and much liked cookies to put in the children's lunch baskets.

Don't forget to air all the house thoroughly the moment winter weather sets in.

Parker & Monroe, Ltd. THE SHOE MEN.

An Important Proviso.

(From the Boston Transcript.) Good election stories are not plentiful, especially new ones; but here's something that happened a few years ago that is rather amusing. The manager of a shipyard assembled his employees and told them that they might vote in a municipal election just as they pleased. "In fact, I shan't even tell you how I am going to vote," he said; then added: "After it is all over, I shall have a keg of beer brought into the yard. (Hurrah! Hurrah! shouted the men.) But I shan't tap it unless Mr. Blank gets in."

"Cascarets" work while you sleep! When one of you gets bilious, head-achy, constipated, if the breath is bad, stomach upset, or for colds, sal-lowness, just take "Cascarets" to regulate the liver and bowels and all is well by morning.

"Cascarets" never gripe, sicken or keep you anxious all next day like Calomel, Salts, Oil or violent Pills. "Cascarets" are the most delightful laxative-cathartic you ever experi-enced. Switch to "Cascarets"—Cost so lit-tle!

George Cadbury.

The Ideal Employer --- No Strikes at Bournville.

"Not for the glory of God but the benefit of the shareholders" was the blatantly cynical business slogan of a now famous witness before the Coet of Living Commission when charged with making undue profits.

But subsequent witnesses put him completely in the shade. His profits were admittedly small compared with those of the firms they directed.

In such times it is refreshing to recall the business career and policy of Mr. George Cadbury, chairman of directors of Cadbury Bros., Ltd., of Bournville, England, the world re-nowned cocoa and chocolate manu-facturers. Certain it is that if all big businesses were conducted on his lines the present strained relations and even bitter antagonism between labor and capital would not be manifest. George Cadbury is now eighty years of age. It is sixty-five years since he entered his father's business. At that time it was steadily losing money owing to the father's zeal for public service to the neglect of his business. At the age of nineteen, in company with his brother Richard, four years his senior, George Cadbury took over the manage-ment of the concern, at that time em-ploying twelve workpeople. At the present time it has a pay roll of $500. I went to school in the old building which formerly housed the concern, but which had been converted into an improvised technical school. It has long since been superseded by a modern palatial structure with up-to-date equipment. Over 30 years ago Mr. Cad-bury's humanitarian spirit led him to transfer his business to Bournville, a pretty suburb of Birmingham.

He felt that healthier conditions could be provided for his staff, though the move was strongly discouraged by his friends. Visitors to the place have seen the beautiful cricket ground, two football fields, open-air swimming baths, recreation rooms and institu-tions for lads and girls. Competition for employment with such a concern is very keen and strikes are unknown.

Years ago Mr. Richard Cadbury died while on a visit to Jerusalem, so that the sole direction has long been in the hands of George Cadbury. A five-minute religious service, usually con-ducted by the head of the firm begins each day, and is attended alternately by men and women employes. Religi-ously, Mr. Carbury belongs to "the Friends," more popularly known as Quakers. For over half a century he has been the moving spirit in the Adult School movement, personally attend-ing every Sunday morning at 7.30 and conducting the proceedings of one of the principal branches in Birmingham. To do this he cycles several miles from his home at Northfield.

For years Mr. Cadbury has been

To-day's Messages.

RAILWAYMEN WIN VICTORY.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. Railway workers scored a complete victory in the House to-day, through the incorporation of their plan for voluntary conciliation of labor disputes in each railroad bill. The House re-jected a plan for compulsory arbitra-tion, including anti-strike provision, and also a plan written into the bill by the House Interstate Commerce Com-mittee, which was described as a mid-dle ground between that adopted and compulsory arbitration.

BUDAPEST EVACUATED.
BUDAPEST, Nov. 14. Rumanian troops began the eva-cuation of Budapest this morning, the National Army holding the bridgeheads as they left. Budapest had been eva-cuated by ten o'clock and the National Army was occupying it.

SCHOONER RAMMED.
PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14. The British schooner, Annie Conley, was abandoned off this port to-night after her side had been stove in by the steamer Ransom B. Fuller. Captain Thebedeau and his crew of three men were rescued by the Fuller and brought here.

THE BOUNDARY DISPUTE.
OTTAWA, Nov. 14. To the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will be left the settle-ment of the long dispute as to the precise location of the boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the territory of Newfoundland on Labrador Peninsula. Upon this question there has been some discus-sion for a number of years, and the controversy has become more acute since the Dominion Parliament ad-ded Ungava to the Province of Que-bec. Newfoundland has been claim-ing that the boundary line strikes the coast considerably further north than the Canadian Government and the Government of Quebec have been willing to concede. It is now announ-ced to the court that the question will be a wide one, reading as follows: "What is the location and definition of the boundary as between Canada and Newfoundland in Labrador Penin-sula, under the statutes orders in council and proclamation."

IMPOSSIBLE.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. The demands of the coal miners for a thirty hour week and a sixty per cent. increase in wages, and in un-derlying position by the operators alike, were declared "impossible," Secretary Wilson in opening to-day the conference called to bring peace to the bituminous fields of the nation, to obtain this peace the Secretary proposed three plans of procedure, declaring that the Washington wage agreement still is legally in force. Mr. Wilson told the operators and miners that the people of the United States were not "shylocks" and do not want to exact "the technical provi-sions of a bond when the conditions under which the bond was made have changed."

A GOOD SPORT.
LONDON, Nov. 14. William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, the American prohibitionist, whose cam-paign in England was rudely inter-rupted Thursday by a band of stud-ents, to-day, as a result of his attitude toward the adventure, is one of the most talked of and popular figures of the day. He commanded the biggest headlines in to-day newspapers and the general verdict of the headline writer was that he was a "good sport."

Mr. Johnson could not have desired a better advertisement than Thurs-day's incident, for his campaign against the liquor traffic and his future public appearances likely will command attention, by reason of the fact that he has announced himself as considering the hazing as a good joke. The students, who marched about him yesterday upset-ting traffic in a goody part of the West End, now propose to tender Mr. Johnson a banquet and of presenting him their tributes of respect. Baron Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor speaking at a Peace celebration din-ner to-night, referred to the Johnson incident, and said it was profoundly to be regretted that a citizen of the United States should be subjected to such an outrage.

POET WARRIOR DISAPPEARS.
TRIESTE, Nov. 14. A telegram to the Trieste Stock Ex-change announcing the departure of Gabrielle D'Annunzio, says, "Gabrielle D'Annunzio left Trieste last night for an unknown destination in a torpedo boat, followed by other ships. Rizzo was left in command of the city."

PARIS HAS BLIZZARD.
PARIS, Nov. 15. A blizzard struck the Paris region last night when six to ten inches of snow fell, and the storm continued with unabated violence. The central markets are practically deserted and surface tram car and taxi cab ser-vice has been virtually tied up, and trains from the provinces are arriv-ing hours late. Some trains from the north have been stalled altogether, and all overland telegraphic commu-nication with Spain has been inter-rupted.

WHY MARRIED PEOPLE LOOK ALIKE.

One often hears it said that people who have been married a great many years grow to look alike. I think this is true, but why is it? A paragraph in a story I was reading the other day seemed to me to put the reason in a very lucid way, although it was not a story about married life. On the contrary, it was about the experience of a little old maid who had been in Brussels when the war broke out and who, in trying to get from Brussels to Paris, was left alone on a field where a battle had been raging and where dozens of wounded and dying men lay without care of any sort.

It changed her heart and her face. This tremendous experience which she went through, that night, trying to help these men, changed her whole outlook on life. In her own words: "It was like being torn all to pieces and put together again differently."

But to get back to the paragraph that made me understand better why married people sometimes look alike: it was a description of this woman as she looked to a fellow passenger on the ship in which she was finally going back to America. "She had the colorless makeup of a middle-aged mouse," writes Mrs. Mantaru, "but her expression was amazing. It startled and arrested one. All the old lines of the face were set to small ambitions and sordid desires, but the look which should have accompanied these lines were clean gone, wiped into something big and still and simple."

Do you see the connection? The Way Our Faces Are Stamped. "All the old lines were set to small ambitions and sordid desires." That is, the way she had lived, the things she had wanted had set a stamp on her face. And isn't this true of everyone?

We are apt to think of resemblance as consisting of a likeness of features or coloring, but they can consist of a likeness of the set of the face, and this I suppose is the way in which married people resemble each other. They have wanted the same things, they have had the same ambition, the same outlook on life—that is, if they are a couple who have lived in harmony, and you will notice that it is only this kind who grow to look alike—and the result is that their inner life has stamped their faces with the same sort of look. Of course, I do not mean to imply that in their case the ambitions are small or the desires sordid. What the stamp is, depends upon the individual.

GOD'S INSTRUMENT. He who has smothered another's way And left a long-remembered day With one whose heart was sick with pain, Need never say he's lived in vain. He who has done one kindly deed And served another's hour of need, Has truly justified his birth, And made this world a richer earth.

He who has borne his share of grief And never faltered in belief, But through it all has kept his trust That God knows best and God is just, May die content to such a plan; For he has truly played the man, And rich or poor, that man shall be Fit spirit for eternity.

He who has given as he could, And spent his strength for what is good—Has helped the weary and the weak, No other goal from life may seek. He who has tried to play the friend Shall come to glory at life's end And find to his serene content That he has been God's instrument.

Love and Service.

Love makes all burdens light. Two poor children, one a little girl of perhaps nine, the other a little boy of four, were following the circus procession, and forgot that they were wandering far from home. The little fellow became tired and sleepy. His sister, her own bare feet sore and muscles weary, took him in her arms to carry him, and he soon fell asleep. She was tugging away, her hair disheveled, her face dusty, and a kindhearted man said to her, "Can't you waken him and let him walk? He must be very heavy for you to carry." "O, no," she said, "he is not very heavy, he's my little brother." Now that looks illogical, but it is not. Love makes burdens actually light. It gives wings to tired feet. It thrills weary muscles. Impassioned love for the work to which one feels especially called alone can give enthusiasm and moral courage. It may be that our fathers were too enthusiastic, for emotion that is intelligently directed is born of conviction, and that must be first conceived in the mind before it is impressed upon the heart. It is likely true that in some cases our fathers had a zeal, but not according to knowledge. But if so, it is to be feared that we have knowledge without zeal, which is the greater sin. Better the shout in prayer that could be heard for half a mile, and the "jerks" that would make the hair to "snap like a whip cracker" than the spiritual paralysis and moral death which sometimes in these last days holds the pulpit and pew in the chilly grasp of ice-embalmed proprieties.

The New York longshoremen have ended their strike with no gain in wages or working hours, but with themselves and the world some $20,000,000 poorer than when they rejected their union leaders' orders and walked out. And the poor old public must settle the bill.—Morning Chronicle.

HOMESICK.

I am sitting in my palace, which is strictly up-to-date; and my Aunt Jemima Alice says I am a lucky skate; my existence should be sunny, should be sweet as shredded honey, for I have a stack of money, and a fiddle by the gate. I am sitting in my palace as the evening shades draw near, drinking from a jeweled chalice many quarts of kickless beer; luxuries are all around me, and no creditors confound me, and no sorrows ought to hound me, yet I spring the scalding tear. For my heart is sick with longing for the scenes my childhood knew; for the woods where birds were thronging, and the pastures wet with dew; all the day I'm longing, wishing, for the creek where I went fishing, and old Dobbin, tall a-swinging, and the cow that murmured "Moo!" Oh, my present lot is splendid, but I'm thinking, with a sigh, of the school that I attend; I in the happy days gone by; and I hear the buzz and clamor when the teacher used to hammer all the rudiments of grammar into boys and made them cry. So I weary of my palace, though it is a sight to see, and I'd like to break a gallus climbing up an apple tree; for this stale life never varies; and I'd like to swipe some cherries, and some melons and some berries, and to rob a bumble bee.

Tobacco Next.

American tobacco interests are becoming alarmed over the organized efforts being made to amend the constitution by prohibiting the growth, sale and use of tobacco, and have banded together as the Allied Tobacco League of America to prevent, if possible, tobacco following the same fate as whiskey. Led by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the anti-tobacco workers are conducting a vigorous campaign everywhere to arouse public sentiment against the "weed," and the measure of their success may be judged by the eagerness with which tobacco-growers, leaf-dealers, warehousemen, manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers of tobacco products are flocking to join the new league to oppose them. It may surprise Europeans to know that in three or four States of the Union it is already unlawful to buy cigarettes, and such as are brought into the State by individuals may not be smoked publicly.

Britain in Persia.

The agreement recently made between the British and Persian Governments is one which has given rise to many international heartburnings and jealousies, the press of other countries declaring that the Imperial authorities have gone in for more aggrandizement at the expense of the Shah and his kingdom, and with an ultimate possibility of making Persia into another British protectorate.

Apart from the minor details of the new Anglo-Persian treaty, the main points are but two: Britain lends Persia British army officers to reorganize her forces and establish order, and conjointly with the Indian Government, advances to Persia the sum of two million pounds, which loan is secured on the Persian customs. In addition Britain promises to support certain of Persia's claims for reparation by Turkey and Germany against damages done by these countries during the war, and also agrees to uphold the rectification of the Persian frontier. There is nothing to foreshadow British aggrandizement and control in Persia, because of the text of this treaty.

But it is natural that where assistance is given, some return has to be made or some concessions granted. That is a business proposition. Therefore the British Government secures the co-operation of the Persian authorities for the encouragement of Anglo-Persian enterprises and for the greater development of the natural resources (which are many) of that country. Persia abounds with saline lakes, which can easily be turned into valuable commercial propositions. The soil is very fertile producing an immense variety of crops, the chief cultivated products being wheat, barley and other cereals, cotton, sugar and rice, and in many sections tobacco. The Caspian Province rivers teem with fish, especially the sturgeon, great quantities of which are caught, cured and exported to Russia. Minerals exist plentifully, chiefly iron, copper, lead, antimony, coal, sulphur and naphtha.

All these Persian products are vitally necessary to Britain, if she is to take her former place among the great manufacturing nations of the world, and consequently the new treaty gives the Empire a priority over all other countries in developing and increasing the output of Persia's raw material, and it is this decided advantage which has been secured by agreement that arouses the jealousy of the other nations, which have been diplomatically prevented from having an equal share in the Persian gift, though Britain makes it quite clear that she claims no exclusive rights for herself to the entire exclusion of other powers, and has no desire whatever to create a monopoly, neither does "any covet-designs of any kind underlie the agreement."

In defending the treaty, Lord Curzon, Government leader in the House of Lords, said: "Those who believe that the British are going, as a result of this agreement to settle down in Persia and to Anglicize, to Indianize or to Europeanize it in any sense of the term, are grossly mistaken. All we want to do is to give Persia expert assistance and financial aid which will enable her to carve out her own fortunes as an independent and still living country." Incidentally it may be added that British industries will derive a vast benefit from the available material which Persia will be able to furnish and manufacturers will receive a flip from the advantages which such a source of supply commands.

Government Resigns

There was a meeting of the Governor-in-Council at Government House this morning, at 11 o'clock, at the conclusion of which Sir Michael Cashin, Prime Minister, tendered his resignation, which carries with it the resignation of the Government. His Excellency the Governor asked the Ministers to retain their seats and offices until a new Administration had been formed, which they consented to do. The resignation of Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath, K.B.E., as President of the Legislative Council, and Chairman of the Board of Pension Commissioners was tendered and accepted. Upon the request of the Governor, Sir Michael recommended that R. A. Squires, Esq., K.C., Leader of the Opposition, should be requested to form a new Ministry. The Ministers thereupon bade His Excellency an official good-bye.

Forced to Return. The French steamship Pro Patria, which attempted to reach St. Pierre et Miquelon from North Sydney on Saturday last, was forced to return after having progressed but a short distance. A large quantity of butter, a deck load of which she carried, was washed overboard, later washing ashore at North Sydney.

Another Derelict. The S. S. Fanard Head bound to Belfast from Quebec and which left this port yesterday, after coaling, reported by wireless that she passed a derelict with a stump of a mast standing. The position given was 25 miles east of Cape St. Francis. There was no sign of life aboard the schooner.

The Horse Case. The horse case between Messrs. Halley and Berrigan was concluded in the Central District Court yesterday afternoon. Judge Morris will hand down judgement next week, as a lot of technical evidence has to be reviewed.

N. I. W. A. Meeting. The N.I.W.A. held a meeting last night for the purpose of discussing the new Constitution, nearly all the clauses of which have been dealt with. It is likely that the Ladies' Branch will be given a special standing in the Constitution under consideration. A committee was appointed last night to meet the Executive of the Ladies' Branch in reference to the inter-relationships between the two organizations.

"Ferm" Enquiry. This evening the cross-examination of Capt. Linderup re the nature of repairs necessary to put the ship in seaworthy condition, will be held. It is likely that the enquiry will not finish for another week.

Another Marine Loss. The schooner A. Whist, harboring at La Scie, was lost there during the recent storm. She was a vessel of 80 tons and owned by Parsons Bros. of Freshwater, Bay de Verde.

Social Service Opens.

The Social Service Congress opens in the Canon Wood Hall on Monday afternoon at 2.30, and it is hoped that a large attendance will be present. The speakers for the afternoon will be Rev. J. G. Shearer, D.D. on "The Conservation of Life," Mr. R. Dunbar on "Training and Education," Rev. D. B. Hammond, on "Delinquent and Defective Children," The Rev. Dr. Tippy will also speak. The visiting clergymen are on the incoming express, and will arrive in town to-morrow.

Cochrane St. Centennial Church.

The Service at this Church on to-morrow (Sunday) evening will consist largely of music, the subject being "Songs of the Sea." Miss Vincent and Mr. Charles Hatcher will be the soloists in the Anthem, and Miss Herder will sing Sir Edward Elgar's "Sabbath Morning at Sea," words by Mrs. Browning. Rev. Dr. Bond will preach on "The Sea is His and He made it." A number of well-known hymns, dealing with the Sea will be sung by the whole congregation, and the order-of-the service, with all the Hymns, has been printed for the use of the Congregation. The Service will partake of the same character as the Song Services that used to be held in the old Church, which were so greatly enjoyed by the people. Visitors will be welcomed.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Nov. 15. Lithia Water (prepared by adding one of our Citrate of Lithia Tablets to a glass of water) is reputed to be a good remedy for Rheumatism, and certainly is of value in many cases, and is one of the simplest remedies of the kind, as it does not interfere with the digestion, and helps anyway to clear up the kidneys. For those who are troubled with pains of rheumatic origin we would recommend a trial. McMurdo's Lithia Tablets are in bottles containing 40 tablets and sell for 60c. a bottle. Witch Hazel and Almond Cream, splendid for use after shaving. Price 30c. a bottle.

Police Court.

For being drunk and disorderly at the Salvation Army Depot, a laborer was fined $5. For being drunk and disorderly, another man was fined costs. For maliciously breaking a pane of glass in a shop window, a man was fined $5 on 5 days. For breaking another pane he was fined $7 or 10 days.

Personal.

Mr. Stavener, Consulting Engineer of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., is in town from Pittsburgh. He will visit the Bell Island mines. Mr. and Mrs. Sol Cole and family left here by Thursday's express for Calgary, where they will reside in future. Lt. Commander Woodhouse and bride (nee Miss Jean Emerson) left by Sackem for England, yesterday. The Hon. A. B. Morin, K.C., Minister of Justice, leaves by train to-morrow, on a visit to the United States and Canada, from which he expects to return about the middle of January next. Upon his return he will resume the practice of his profession at his offices in the Board of Trade Building, Water Street, continuing the partnership with Mr. F. Gordon Bradley.

Coastal Boats.

REID'S Argyle left Flaccinta noon yesterday. Clyde at Lewisport. Dundee not reported. Ethie not reported. Glencoe arrived at Port Blandford on the 13th. Glencoe arrived at Port aux Basques at 8.30 a.m. Home at Lewisport. Kyle not reported. Meigle arrived here at 2.10 a.m. Sagona not reported. Petel left Clarendville at 8.15 a.m.

Mary Falls in Love With Sir William Treloar.

Although he is seventy-five years old, Sir William Treloar, former Lord Mayor of London, who is noted for his philanthropy on behalf of cripples, has inspired love in some lonely woman's heart. She has written him, enclosing a cheque for $5,000, saying: "Can I be your wife, because I have no one to look after me? My name is Mary, and I am now standing in Farrington Market."

Supreme Court.

Court met pursuant to adjournment. Present Chief Justice Horwood and Justice Kent. The King vs. William Walsh. The prisoner is arraigned and pleads "guilty." Mr. J. A. Winter for the prisoner is heard in mitigation of punishment. The prisoner is sentenced to twelve months in the penitentiary at St. John's with hard labor from this date. The King vs. Annie Walsh. Indictment for bigamy. The prisoner is arraigned and pleads "guilty." Higgins, K.C., for the prisoner, is heard in mitigation of punishment. The prisoner is sentenced to twelve months in the penitentiary at St. John's with hard labor from date of commitment. Court adjourns till Monday at 11 o'clock.

Tablet to Heroes' Memory.

The Loyal Orange Association at New Bonaventure, are having a beautiful marble tablet prepared at Muirs, to be erected in their hall in memory of their associates who fell on the field of battle.

To Right Ship.

Mr. F. H. Ellis, Manager of F. H. Ellis & Co., left for Bay Bulls this afternoon to superintend the righting of the schooner Faustine. He was accompanied by a diver. The effort will be made to-morrow.

Had to Pay Costs.

In the Magistrates Court this forenoon, the man Gibbons, principal in the "shooting" affray of a few days ago, was let go on payment of costs. The firearm which he was supposed to have used on his opponent, could not be found.

Fishladen Schooner Ashore.

The schooner Lucania, Garland Rowe master, fish laden, while anchored at Wild Cove, Canada Bay, during the recent storm parted her cable and was driven on the shore. The crew landed safely.

Shipping News.

The Canadian Adventure left Montreal yesterday for this port with a general cargo. The General Bing arrived at Marytown yesterday, salt laden, from Oporto. The Lady of Gaspe, from Boston, put into Marytown yesterday on her way to this port.

Australians Taken Off Ship.

Terrible conditions are said to prevail on some of the troopships, because of bad conditions; 400 Australian soldiers with their wives and 200 babies were taken off a troopship at Tilbury dock last week, and will sail by a better vessel. General Monash, Australian director of repatriation, says the people were miserable and the vessel disgracefully crowded. He admits the vessel ought never to have been accepted for the purpose. General Monash mentioned an allegation that a rat had been found in bed alongside a baby.

"Nothing Too Good For Our Men"

This cry of the leaders of great ventures into the frozen zones has sent our heroes into the white fastnesses with the confidence that wins, borne out of being well outfitted.

JAEGER wear has been chosen for over a quarter of a century as the only dependable protection for those exploiters of courage who race for honour to the Poles, when every life is valuable.

No time to risk experimenting with unknown brands. This is a TEST for the BEST.

It is certain that a great measure of the success of these expeditions must have been due to the reliability of the JAEGER products worn.

To-day the ordinary man may obtain in JAEGER everyday under and outer wear the same materials and scientific construction of garments that sustained the men in these historical expeditions.

JAEGER, cheaper than other brands, because MORE QUALITY TO THE YARD.

The Bigamy Case.

It appears that in the bigamy case, concluded in court this morning, the witnesses of the marriage were also witnesses in the bigamous ones. The minister who performed the bigamous marriages was not made aware, that either Walsh or his wife, Annie Walsh, had been previously married. The father of one of the guilty parties was also cognizant of the illegal acts and the Justice department was this morning instructed to find, in how far they had violated the law.

In St. John the Baptist Church, Nov. Bedford, Mass., recently, Miss Olive Grace, who four months ago shot at and injured John S. Nera, Jr., repeated the vows that made her his wife. The marriage of the young couple is the culmination of a romance as dramatic and sensational as one of fiction. On the night of June 25 the bride, then the fiancée of Mr. Nera, while riding with him in his automobile, drew a revolver and shot him, then turning the revolver upon herself put a bullet over her own heart, before she could be prevented. The motive was given as jealousy. Mr. Nera not only stubbornly refused to prefer charges against the young woman, who is only 22, but engaged counsel to protect her interests.

Newfoundland Soldier's Success.

The Bar to his Military Cross awarded to Capt. Harris Oke formerly of "ours," was won while serving with the Royal Fusiliers in Russia. His acts as recorded in the official citation, read:—
"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. His skillful handling of his platoon was largely responsible for the gaining of all objectives. By his prompt action in opening fire on the enemy's river craft he undoubtedly saved the column a large number of casualties. Two steamers and one gunboat put up the white flag, but as the Dvina he was unable to board them. Subsequently this officer in conjunction with Lieut. Walker undoubtedly saved a critical situation by his prompt action in turning his men about and forming a defensive line. On all occasions this officer has shown marked gallantry, and has set a splendid example to all ranks."

Market Notes.

COD OIL.—A large sale of common was made last week at $260 per ton, but the market is not by any means active. Refined is quoted at $2 pre gallon, with a little extra for choice lots.

PROVISIONS.—Flour supplies are plentiful at this moment, but the filling of outport requirements will make a big gap in stocks on hand. The highest grades are being offered at from $14.50 to $15 retail; lower grades $14 to $14.50. Some mills have advanced their prices twenty cents per barrel because of short stocks. Another increase of twenty cents per hundred pounds in sugar has taken place. Fancy Molasses is being quoted at $1.05 and choice at $1 per gallon, puncheon lost. Butter has been given a "touch up" of three cents per pound.

Obituary.

There passed away on the 14th inst., Fortified by rites of Holy Church, Ellen Mary, wife of the late Michael Larkin who was drowned on the ill-fated Lucerne many years ago. Although silling some month her death came as a great blow to her two daughters, mother and brother, who are left to mourn the loss of a loving mother and an affectionate sister and daughter.

Chinese Metal Type.

England and the United States share the distinction of owning the oldest set of metal type bearing Chinese figures in the world, a part of the set being in one country and a part in the other; and a recent description goes back into the ancient history of that much-talked-about country, Korea, for there it was, at least as long ago as 1403, that separate types of metal were invented. In that early time the type was set in a bed of beeswax, the surface was covered with ink, a sheet of paper laid across the upturned faces of the characters, and the printing done by brushing the paper lightly with a cloth. The printer, if he was efficient, could make as many as 1500 impressions a day, but he doubtless worked more than eight hours, and his method certainly would not have gone far in getting out a modern newspaper. But the Korean invention was an improvement over the printing from engraved tablets, and later from wooden blocks, that had been practiced in China in the second century A. D. and also over the movable type of clay which the Chinese inventor, Pi Sheng, made in the eleventh century.

The Dominion Government passes regulations regarding Sabbath observance, and then violates its own statute by continuing its sitting on Sunday morning to pass the Prohibition Bill. There is good material in this act of Sabbath desecration for the various clergymen in the city to preach a sermon shortly from the commandment "Remember the Sabbath Day and keep it holy."

Forepeak Waterlogged.

BUT SHIP NOT LEAKING.
North Sydney, Nov. 12.—The S. S. Viks, loaded with sugar, arrived in port yesterday, with water in her forepeak and upon investigation, it was found that the ship was not leaking, but that the water had gone down the chain pipes, owing to the covers being knocked off with the sea. One of the water boats, is engaged to siphon the water out, after which the ship will proceed on her voyage.

Deck Load Shifted.

The S. S. Kaimba, from Montreal, loaded with hard pine timber, bound to Glasgow, arrived in port yesterday, with her deck load shifted. She will have some of the timber unloaded, and a survey will be made to decide whether it will be necessary to unload the entire deckload, and have it reloaded before proceeding on her voyage.

Some Eel Stories.

CAN'T LAND THESE.

There may be some who class with fishermen's yarns the story of the diver at Tobermory, who was recently attacked by a 15-foot conger. There is no reason for doing so. Congers grow to a gigantic size and eels of all sorts are ugly customers.

Some years ago a giant conger was caught in shallow water off the beach at Snettisham in Norfolk. It measured 8 feet 8 inches in length, and weighed 148 lb. Such a brute, if caught on a line and drawn into a boat, would be a most dangerous capture. Congers half that size have been known to bite a man's hand in two and to have driven their teeth through the blade of an ear.

In 1913 Kakanamaku, the champion Olympic swimmer of Honolulu, was attacked by a giant eel which dragged him under water and held him there for nearly two minutes. He escaped at last, but at the cost of the first finger of his right hand.

Eels Dragged the Bathers Down.
Eels attain an immense size in the rivers of New Zealand and have been known to attack bathers. Many cases of bathers being drowned occurred in a river near an out-station owned by a relative of Col. R. F. Meysey Thompson, and it was at last definitely ascertained that eels had dragged them down.

No longer ago than April 1913 an eel caused the death of a fisherman at Singapore. The man was fishing off Sweetenham Pier with a line which he had foolishly fastened around his wrist. An eel, estimated to be 10 feet long, swallowed the hook and despite his struggles, he was dragged in and drowned. His dead body was afterwards found under the pier with the line, now severed, still attached to his wrist.

A nugget of gold weighing over three pounds and worth about $1,000, has been found near Oroville, California, by a mucker in the employ of Stone & Webster, contractors for the construction of the Caribou power plant of the Great Western Power Company.

John Pacione, spokesman for 30 Italian coal miners from Tonica, Ill., who at Chicago, recently, applied to the Internal Revenue Collector for passports to return to their native land, when asked why they were leaving the United States, replied: "No beer, no wine, no work; go work; go home."

A new mineral has been discovered in Siberia. The discovery was made by a hunter on the shore of Lake Kalkash, and the mineral has been named Balkashite. It has the appearance of dark brown rubber and when ignited it burns with a strong flame, leaving about two per cent

ash. When placed in water it becomes a mass very much like paraffine.

Syrup as a substitute for sugar is the latest. One of the restaurants in Cambridge, Mass., now serves a spoonful of syrup direct from the can with each cup. ## Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines and Primate of Belgium.

WE SALUTE THEE!

Out o'er the deep we shout our salutation.
Hear our voice upon the breeze: "Ship Ahoy!"

Pride of the Christian world, we may not see
Thy face, nor hear the music of thy tongue
Telling thy land's great fortitude and faith,
When soul and heart with agony were wrung.

Our sister lands have thrilled beneath thy feet.
Thou Champion of the Righteousness of God!
Who braved the raging tyrant to his teeth,
When o'er thy Sireland's fields in might he trod.

Thy voice defying, raised against the foe,
With such compelling force, that every word
Like prophet tones went out across the world—
A call to Manhood that all Manhood heard!

Before thee those whose intellects were schooled
The big artillery to count supreme,
Were cowed—thy God was still the Lord of Hosts,
And He thy martyred Belgium would redeem!

This was the faith, whose inspiration kept Unquenchable, the fire of Belgium's soul,
Thro' years when dark despair engulfed the earth,
That lit the trail that led to Freedom's goal.

Through a red sea of blood thy people passed,
Wherein the tyrants' hosts went down to doom,
E'en as the people of the prophet, who
A rescued Israel led from Egypt's gloom.

Thou and thy Belgium balked the hand of Hate,
The Peace-blessed lands acclaim thy triumph now;
The choicest laurels of the States of earth
Are proudly placed to deck thy patriot brow.

Yonder the great is borne across the sea,
The waves that kiss his barque as he goes by
With shout exultant, tells unto the shores
That old Atlantic never knew such joy

Than now, for bearing on her bounteous breast
This seer whose deeds have thrilled the hemispheres,
A soothing brings for trials her bosom knew
When earth was racked with frightfulness and tears!

The fisher, as he toils upon the deep,
May see the ship that bears thee, move afar,
And maybe thou, some headland light of ours,
May see, soft burning, like a distant star.

Or happily from the hamlets that look out
O'er the broad bay, thy folks shall watch thy sail;
So in these sea-nursed towns through all the years,
Thy name shall live while faith inspires the tale.

For when they speak of the great ones of earth,
The supermen—the noblest of their day,
Some patriarchal voice this truth shall vouch:
"The greatest of them all went by this way!"

The Lord Mayor's Show.

London's Annual Pageant.

A thin line of spectators on the curbstone, in the light of a gray November day. A few flags strung across the street. A blare of trumpets, and the roll of kettle drums; the music of the military bands, firemen with engines, and sailors with lifeboats. A man in armor, perhaps, and some Beefeaters with their halberds. A representation of the guilds, in a long line of barouches with aldermen in silk hats; and then—the gilded coach of the Lord Mayor, with the

of the promise of the corporation annually to present their Mayor to him, his successors, or his justiciar, for approval upon the day of his election.

Those were stirring times. A year before John had proclaimed himself the Pope's vassal. That year Roger Bacon was born. The next the Great Charter was signed. A year later John lost his crown crossing the Wash in a flood, and a few weeks later passed away at Newark. Nor was the Lord Mayor without his troubles. Trapsing after an itinerant monarch, in order to get your election confirmed, must have been particularly trying in days when there were no roads to speak of and plenty of robbers. Indeed, it became so harassing that in 1297, Henry the third of that name, being king in England, and Roger Bacon just completing the "Opus Malus," the Corporation, induced to King to forego the ceremony of personal presentation, and to delegate the interview to the Lord Chancellor and the Barons of the Exchequer. The Barons of the Court of Exchequer are no more. Their picturesque robes vanished from the bench about the time the judges trekked from Westminster to their new home in the Strand; and so, when the gilded coach rumbles down Fleet Street, and passes under the great archway into the Courts, it is the Lord Chancellor, in his black and gold gown, who welcomes the new Mayor, as the representative of the King, and the embodiment of the law. For as the Chancellor himself sings in "Iolanthe":—

"The law is the true embodiment of everything that's excellent. It has no kind of fault or flaw, And I, my lords, embody the Law."

There was a Mayor of London, of course, Lord Mayor they call him for courtesy, before over the little matter of presentation was arranged with John Lackland. The first Mayor was that redoubtable draper Henry Fitz-Ailwyn, of London Stone, who was elected to office in 1189, Richard Coeur de Lion being king. This London Stone was the great milliarium which the Romans set up from which to measure their roads out of London. You may see all that is left of it today tucked into a niche in the wall of St. Swithin's Church, in Cannon Street. Once upon a time, but that was before the fire passed over it, it was a fine upstanding stone; but time and prentice boys, weather and wagon wheels, have reduced it to what it is. Hard by it, in any case, the sign of Fitz-Ailwyn hung in the days of the Crusade, and within, good master Henry measured off Lincoln green and sold his woolen hose to his customers in the City. Those were days when a draper needed to be as handy with his sword as with his yard measure, and a Lord Mayor to swing his iron mace more nimbly than any mace-bearer ever manipulated a gilded one. Riots were plentiful; civil wars and rebellions more than enough indeed. In the great rising of 1380, did not that pugnacious fishmonger William Walworth, strike down Wat Tyler, with his dagger, in the presence of the King, in consequence of which the dagger, according to tradition, became a part of the City arms?

"Brave Walworth, knight, Lord Mayor, yet slew Rebellious Tyler in his alarms;
The King, therefore, did give in law
The dagger to the City arms."

Wherein, for once at any rate, tradition is "excepted," as that sublime cockney, Mrs. Gamp, would say. The dagger in "the City arms" is not a dagger at all, but the sword of St. Paul; and was there long before Walworth proved his bravery by stabbing the unsuspecting Tyler.

It was in Walworth's day that the honorary prefix of Lord was bestowed on the Mayors of London. The King, it was a way the Kings had, was in need of money, and a levy was made upon the City, every man in his degree. But the question arose, What was the degree of the Mayor? Whereon some assessor, with more genius for finance than respect for precedence, suggested, "Put him among the earls," a proposal immediately acceded to, with much glory to the corporation, and private loss to the Mayor, who found himself mulcted to the extent of £4, all in the name of his forced magnificence.

Great, indeed, and very magnificent in their day, have been the Lord Mayors of London. Was there not Whittington, hm of the cat, who, a poor boy sleeping alongside of a milestone on the great North Road, woke to hear the bells of London chiming from their steeples.

"Turn again, Whittington, Thrice Lord Mayor of London."

The only objections are, that Whittington was not a poor boy; never had a cat, in that way at any rate; and was four times Lord Mayor. Then there was that famous Tudor knight and merchant prince, Sir Thomas Gresham; and Edward Osborne, ancestor of the Duke of Leeds, who jumped from a window on London Bridge to save his master's daughter, who had fallen into the river below; that wonderful oriental potentate, William Beckford; and that notorious radical, John Wilkes, of whom Sheridan, was it not? wrote.

"Johnny Wilkes, Johnny Wilkes,
Thou greatest of binks,
How changed are the notes you now sing!

ROTTEN ROW IN AUTUMN.

This one place in London that is slow to regain its pre-war appearance is Rotten Row, in Hyde Park, where society takes its horse riding and driving exercise. Horses selling at 100 per cent above their 1914 prices
 and hay at $60 a ton are largely responsible for this. Every autumn Rotten Row is the first part of London to take on the depression of coming winter. This year, owing to the paucity of horsemen and the noticeably poor condition of the horses, it is doubly cloaked in depression.
 Khaki has clung to the Row more persistently than elsewhere in London. Generals and staff officers have been the last to relinquish uniform.
 They also seem able to find access to horses and to find time to ride them in the Park. Many ladies, too, seem to have a chain to uniform, and have converted it for use in Rotten Row.
 With the wispes of dead leaves and the sombre brown of the majority of the riders the Row at this season is drab.
 Then, again, the cavalry from Knightsbridge Barracks appear to be allowed to drill and exercise in the Row—more khaki, more sombre colour, more melancholy and depression.
 The panoply and glamour of the soldier seem a thing of the past. It is not certain what the decision of the Committee on Army Dress may be,
 but let it be hoped that it will abolish
 khaki, at any rate as a peace dress.
 The memories that khaki conjures up are too distressing. Rotten Row with its khaki and undated horses is a caricature of its pre-war picture.

LORD ALLENBY'S NEW POST.

The question is being asked if Lord Allenby, in accepting the High Commissionership for Egypt, must not abandon his command of the British armies in the East. The new post carries with it considerable administrative changes, as the army is also the governor in the occupied territory. General Sir William Congreve is to command in Palestine.
 Presumably he is to be technically subordinated to the Egyptian command—held, I believe, by General Watson—but I understand that he is to have a considerable measure of independence. He is a very gallant and a skilful soldier, and is described by those who know him as endowed with a charming personality and a sympathetic mind open to ideas. The news, private and public, from Egypt is disturbing. Demonstrations have been resumed on the scale of the spring. Much more serious—the discontent of the fellahin persists,
 the price of land has gone up to intolerable heights, and the working of the Egyptian Labor Corps has left a bad taste in the mouth. Behind all is a strong pro-Turkish agitation which is inspired from the Young Turks. Lord Allenby when he gets to Egypt will have a taxing task.

WINDING UP THE PEACE CON-FERENCES.

The Peace Conference, which at the outset presented a formidable assemblage of diplomatists and statesmen, has now dwindled to a committee of three. A further evidence that the conference is approaching the end of its work is the decision to appoint a Co-ordination Commission, which will be the guiding body for the twelve or more major commissions charged with carrying out the provisions of the Treaty with Germany. This Co-ordination commission will be made up of representatives of the Great Powers, and when the conference ends, and with it the Supreme Council, the Commission will act as the Allies' delegates for the enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles.
 The conference itself may be expected to end within a month or six weeks. After that the various issues remaining for solution, such as Russia and Hungary, will be handled through the Foreign Offices of the various Allied and Associated Powers, but a new Conference, reduced in size, will be appointed shortly after the adjournment of the present
 one for the special purpose of settling the Turkish problem.

CREUSOT AND SKODA.

I learn that Schneider and Sons,
 the famous gunmaking firm of Le Creusot, have acquired, with the approval of the French Government,
 the controlling interest in the not less famous Skoda works, where the much talked of 12-inch mortar, and the 15-inch long range gun used by the Germans and Austrians were turned out during the war. The main Skoda arsenal is at Pilsen—renowned for its lager beer—formerly in Austrian, but now Czechoslovak territory. But there was a secondary arsenal near Trieste, at present in Italian hands. Skoda's, under French direction, will supply
 not only the Czecho-Slovak army,
 but most of the Allied or friendly armies of Eastern Europe, Poles, Ru-manians, Serbians, Greeks, Franco, as M. Clemenceau declared in his speech during the Peace debate in the French Senate, is relying upon these small nations, our fighters, to help her avert or quell Germany's next aggression, should it ever take place, and she is anxious that the supply of artillery and munitions

 should not in that case require to be transported overseas. That is the motive underlying Schneider's part-purchase of Skoda's.

EX-SOLDIERS AS DOMESTIC SER-VANTS.

While the supply of domestic servants still seems inadequate to the demand, it is surprising that more people do not endeavour to obtain ex-soldiers for their homes. At one organisation alone that interests itself
 in the welfare of ex-service men
 there are 150 names registered of men who want employment as servants in civil life. This association is the Comrades of the Great War,
 with headquarters in Grosvenor Crescent. In the old days of the regular army it was quite a common thing for officers to run their homes
 on one maid and a soldier servant.
 The soldier was the handy man of the house who could do anything that was wanted—answer the door, wait
 at table, make the beds, clean the silver, and if need be give a hand in the garden, stable, or garage. The experience of most householders who have had ex-soldiers in their homes
 is that the men suffer from none of the drawbacks of the professional manservant, who often appears limited by a kind of "caste" from doing many sorts of work. A bachelor, of course, who has had the good fortune to retain the services of his old soldier servant may indeed count himself lucky.

THE RETURN OF THE PET.

The pet is returning rapidly to that pre-eminence which was his before feminine war activities made him unfashionable. No longer, however, does the smallest possible dog
 with the highest possible voice capture the stage. Rather he is relegated to the care of older women, and he is less often seen tucked under an arm or curled up in a large muff.
 Variety in pets is the order of the day, and the eighteenth-century fashion in marmosets is being revived with such rapidity that the price of marmosets has more than doubled and may yet be the subject of complaints of profiteering. On the whole the twittering of the marmoset is preferable to barking, perpetual and shrill.
 Fed with a grape, which is about as big as his head, he is an attractive little beast to carry on the shoulder or run up the curtain. Monkeys are gaining a great deal of affection, but parrots carried on the shoulder have an even greater vogue. For one thing, they can be matched up to the color of a dress or a hat or even of an eye. For another, they are attractively ridiculous in their warm winter coats. A small green parrot perched on a dark furred shoulder is quite the latest thing in pets. There is yet a sensation awaiting London. A lady who was accustomed to lead a leopard about in Venice has just arrived.
 Will she lead it about London? Will she, perhaps, take it on a bus—on the top of course? What will the friendly British police say? London is expectant.

LORD ASTOR.

The late Lord Astor's chief claim to interest was his wealth and his houses and his adventures in journalism de luxe. He was the first American millionaire to acquire and restore famous English homes. He bought Hever Castle, the home of Anne Boleyn, a moated Plantagenet fortress that had fallen to the state of a glorified farmhouse. Astor spent a great deal of money to have it restored under the best antiquarian and architectural advice. He also took over Cliveden, the big classical pile on the upper reaches of the Thames. The Astor office on the Thames Embankment in London was built by Pearson like a little Elizabethan stone palace, roofed and with precious woods. He had there had a huge Flemish garden roof. This place is associated with the gatherings which he held when running the "Pall Mall Gazette." Lionel Cust was the editor, and its staff included the most brilliant amateurs and professionals

of the time. Salaries and expenses were on a proper millionaire scale.
 The history of its all-too-brief career
 is the golden legend of London Journalism. Astor also founded the "Pall Mall Budget," a weekly, now remembered by poster collectors because of its poster by Giffenhagen, and the "Pall Mall Magazine," which did some fine work in illustrations and maintained a good literary standard,
 with lapses when the proprietor himself wrote stories.

Emigrants Who Didn't.

FAMOUS MEN WHO CHANGED THEIR MINDS.
 Long is the list of famous men of Britain who in youth or in seasons of gloomy uncertainty have toyed with the thought of waiving their fortunes afresh in lands afar. History and Literature would have been very different if all had carried out their early intent. What a gap in our "island story" there would have been if, for instance, Cromwell had fulfilled his intention to emigrate to America! But Lord Morley dimis-ses the story as at least improved. The same design has also been ascribed to Pym and Hampden.

The Pioneer of Journalism.

Daniel Defoe, the pioneer of journalism, and author of "Robinson Crusoe," when yet under thirty, was offered a position as factor in Cadiz.
 His crushing debts made it a desirable place of refuge, especially as there were good prospects of accumulating wealth without risk; but,
 as he assures in his old age,
 Providence, which had other work
 for him to do, placed a secret aversion
 in his mind to quitting England.
 He had confidence enough in his own talents to think on this he could gather laurels, or at least gain a livelihood.

Oliver Goldsmith's when a young man left his mother's house with thirty pounds in his pocket, took his passage
 to America, made for Cork, and there missed the boat! Later he lived in a London garret, writing for bread and expecting to be dunned for a milk score.

Poor Robert Burns, his worldly circumstances desperate, and his heart convulsed by the wrenching of Jean Armour from him by her angry
 father, looked for deliverance and relief in emigration.

Ship Sailed Without Him.

To get £20 to take him to Jamaica
 he published his poems by subscription.
 The ship sailed; but Burns was still at Mossgiel, for his strong heart
 could not tear itself away from Scotland, and some friends encouraged him to hope that he might be made a gauger! In a few months he was about to be hailed by the universal acclamation of his country a great National Poet.

Even the prosperous Walter Scott
 once contemplated a Government appointment in India, in order, as he wrote to Southey, to escape from "the drudgery of literature." The appointment was not obtained.

Something more idealistic entered into the dreams of emigration conceived by the Lake poets. Coleridge and Southey hailed with enthusiasm
 the "ideas of liberty," promulgated by the French Revolution. Another young poet, a Quaker named Robert Lovell, a great enthusiast for liberty, joined them at Bristol. Those three friends formed a harmless project of trying the experiment of human perfectibility on the banks of the Susquehanna.
 This vision of Pantheism, as it was called, was soon dissipated by the marriage of Southey and Coleridge to two sisters, the Misses Fricker of Bristol.—John O'London's Weekly.

The Relief of Lucknow.

On the afternoon of November 15, 1857, there stood in India as gallant and resolute a little army as ever fared forth on a desperate enterprise. The picture was an inspiring one with its glittering phalanx of lancers, the massed squadron of Sikh horsemen in turbans of blue and red; the turbaned
 and hawk-eyed regiments of Punjab
 infantry; and the waving sea of Highland plumes and tartans. "Ninety-third," said Sir Colin Campbell, "will bring the women and children out of Lucknow, or die with you in the attempt," and from the grim line of killed Highlanders came back the reply:
 "Ay, ay, Sir Colin!" It was indeed a desperate venture to send 6,000 men to the relief of a garrison shut up in a fortress of 700,000 inhabitants,
 and besieged, as it had been for four months, by 60,000 fierce and pitiless Sepoys. For three quarters of an hour
 the British cannon battered the tough
 brick wall, under a perpetual blizzard
 of lead from hundreds of loop-holes.
 Gunners, by the score, fell at their posts
 to be instantly replaced by others,
 and all the while crouching infantry
 were straining like dogs at a leash,
 to make their rush, only to be restrained
 by Sir Colin's command, "Lie down, 93rd! Every man of you is worth his weight in gold to England to-day."
 When at length the wall was breached,
 our men rushed like tigers to the rescue of the besieged, and battle and carnage raged like an inferno.
 Doughty deeds were done that day
 which can never be overvalued. Lieut.
 (afterwards Earl) Roberts, who ac-

Intervention in Russia.

IS IT JUST?

(By J. R. SMALLWOOD, of the Telegram Reportorial Staff)

That question, in my sincere opinion, cannot be rightly answered by twenty people in Newfoundland. "Answers" may be forthcoming in numbers; but, as no one can formulate a reliable opinion on any question, much less that of Russia, unless he has the facts, all the facts and nothing but the facts at his conscious disposal, a logical answer cannot be made. It is no exaggeration to say that we in Newfoundland, as, indeed, it is with the people of this perplexing case. True we have received countless newspaper correspondents' despatches from Russia; those, under ordinary circumstances, would not be reliable, and under present circumstances they are a thousand times more unreliable. In the first place the despatches are sent by newspaper men (mostly American) and, although I would have nothing to say against the newspaper profession in general, I will say that the correspondents in Russia do not wire their papers the facts, all the facts and nothing but the facts: In the first place, they are not actually in that part of Russia with which we are now concerned, but all of them swarm around the territory occupied by British and other soldiers. Imagine a small frontier town where a dozen, say, newspaper men are billeted. Each represents a great newspaper or a greater news agency. Their papers or agencies expect a certain amount of copy from them, and the more startling and sensational it is the better they are pleased and the better pay the correspondent receives. The correspondents do not disappoint them. I would not either if I were there. I would turn out the most sensational, glaring and hair-raising stories that my brain was capable of producing. I could do it here, without going out of the country at all, and my "despatches" would send cold shivers down your spine. All I would have to do to be to look up the history of Chinese torture and I would have an accessible fountain of "Russian Horror" stories. There is also the individual competition between the correspondents, and we should not wonder at the stories sent back by them.

Now, our only idea of conditions in Russia, with here and there an exception, has been gained from the newspaper stories. That such are unreliable, if not actually fictitious, will not be denied. It stands to reason, therefore, that our conception of the Russian Revolution, the Russian Debacle, the Russian Horror and all of the others is all wrong, distorted and unreliable.

You have been in Courts? I shall not ones against the Combined Party are the bourgeoisie or, as the Russians call them, the Intelligentsia, meaning non-producing classes.

Frankly I may state that I do not for the moment believe the stories of murder and bloodshed that have been sent from Russia. I sincerely believe that they emanated from the fertile brains of highly imaginative newspaper men. You remember how many stories of the Tsar's death came from Russia? One correspondent had seen him shot before the eyes of his wife and children, and the latter clung to his knees and begged the soldiers for God's sake not to shoot him. Another had seen him thrown down an old well and still another had seen him exiled to Siberia. Dozens of similar ones have been published. Trotsky and Lenine have been captured and shot about fifty times and still the game goes merrily on.

Now, I am not attempting a defense of Bolshevism. I do not presume to defend Trotsky or Lenine. My object is to lay before the reader a few facts not widely known. I would like to counteract the strange idea that the Russians are a nation of cut-throats and murderers. That some unfortunate killings did take place in the Revolution I am prepared to admit. In a country like Russia, where the people had been ground down in the dust and suffered the agony and misery of the iron-heel of despotism scorching in to their faces, there were bound to be some such incidents. All of the political prisoners were released, and, as there were among them a large number of Anarchists, the possibility of killings was greater. But as for the massacre and bloodshed and rapine and rape and murdering I am very skeptical.

Lenine said: "Russia is pictured to outsiders as a vast region wherein no such thing as order or security is possible, where the Bolshevik hunt down and murder all who are in disagreement with them. We are pictured as a mere minority holding the rest of the population in check by a saturnalia of crime and terrorism."

"Would that the plain people could visit Russia and see for themselves the things that have been accomplished by us in the short period that we have been in control; if they could see Petrograd and Moscow darkened at night, from lack of fuel for lights, as safe as the streets of Europe's or America's best policed cities in broad day light; if they could see people going about their business in an orderly and systematic manner, while at the same time our Red Army is fighting grimly and successfully on many fronts, they must of necessity come to the conclusion that all the news from Russia was not warranted by the facts."

He also said: "The great mistake abroad is the belief that only a few in Russia are determined to maintain the Russian Federated Soviet Republic. The truth is that only a few wish to overthrow it."

These few, practically all bourgeois, find that under Soviet Rule they must perform useful work in order to play any part in the government of Russia, and their previous mode of getting a living prevents them seeing the beauty of such an arrangement."

We have all heard of Prince Kropotkin, the great Russian writer and economist.

Prince Kropotkin, perhaps the best known of all living Russians among Englishmen, a man of unquestionable honour and public spirit, and imbued with a scientific mind's sense of evidence, has addressed a letter to George Brandes, the well-known Danish literary critic and essayist, and it is reproduced in L'Humanite and the Manchester Guardian.

It gives us an honest picture of what is happening in Russia while old age compels its writer to devote himself to the task of a book on ethics.

Prince Kropotkin went to Russia after the fall of the Tsar's regime. On various occasions he had been reported imprisoned and persecuted by the Bolsheviks.

He says in his letter: "Nevertheless, I protest with all my strength against any armed intervention of the Allies in Russian affairs. Such an action would result in an outburst of Russian jingoism. It would give us again a jingo monarchy—the signs of which are already looming—and, mark it well, it would stir up amongst Russians in general an attitude hostile to Western Europe, which could not but have the most unfortunate consequences. The Americans have grasped this already."

"People imagine, perhaps, that they are supporting a Liberal Republican party in Kitchak and Denikin. That in itself is a mistake. Whatever the personal intentions of these two military leaders, the majority of those who have gathered round them follow quite different aims. They would inevitably bring us back a monarch, reaction, and a bath of blood."

"Those of the Allies who understand the situation should, therefore, repudiate all armed intervention. The more so, as they would find no end of work to do in another direction, should they really want to help Russia."

And, although he is an anti-Bolshevik: "As for that, one may cause rivers of blood to flow in order to make the Russian people go back to the past, it all will be in vain."

He also stated that he had been captured and ill-treated and stated that his treatment had been all that he could have desired.

Lieut.-Col. Sherwood Kelly, V. C., made the following statement, and was commended for it:

"I know my action renders me liable to professional penalties, and prejudices my future in the army, but I am prepared to take the risks in carrying out what I know to be my duty to my country and my countrymen."

"I volunteered for service in the North Russia Relief Force in the sincere belief that this was needed to make possible the withdrawal of our troops. The wide advertisement of this relief force led us to believe that affairs in North Russia were about to be wound up in a decisive manner."

"Immediately after our arrival in Archangel we received the impression that the policy of our officials was not what it was stated to be. This impression hardened as time went on and we were reluctantly driven to the conclusion that the troops we had been told were sent there for purely defensive purposes were being used for offensive purposes on a large scale, far in the interior, in furtherance of some ambitious plan of campaign, the nature of which we were not allowed to know."

"These operations were not even well conducted and were not calculated to benefit in a military or any other sense a sound and practical British policy in Russia. They only entailed useless loss and suffering."

"We discovered that the much vaunted 'loyal Russian army' was composed largely of Bolshevik prisoners dressed in khaki, utterly unreliable and always constituting a greater menace to our troops than the Bolshevik army opposing them. This was tragically demonstrated when the Russians murdered and murdered their British officers."

"We discovered that the puppet Government set up by us in Archangel rested on no basis of public confidence and would fall to pieces the moment British bayonets were withdrawn."

"I saw British money poured out like water and British lives sacrificed in backing this worthless army and keeping in power this worthless Government and I became convinced that my duty lay not in helping this mistaken policy, but in exposing it."

"I ask that this be published, so that people may know the truth about the situation in Archangel."

Colonel Kelly said, in addition, that the sending of British soldiers to Russia was the work of politicians who were, in turn, backed by big business interests that were scheming to exploit Russian wealth.

Senator Borah of America, said, regarding the sending of American soldiers to Russia: "No despot ever sacrificed his people or his soldiers in a more intolerable cause or with less color of authority or with less justification."

Through the manipulation and the machinations of foreign powers we are being drawn into a war with a friendly people, and our soldiers are being sacrificed in a matter with which the United States has no concern and against which it ought to stand unequivocally."

Through his and other's efforts the American soldiers were withdrawn from Russia, and, later still, through the efforts of certain big men in Great Britain, the British soldiers also.

William C. Bullitt, an American who undertook a mission to Russia at the request of Colonel House, tendered these conclusions to the Senate upon his return: "No Government, save a Socialist Government, can be set up in Russia to-day except by foreign bayonets, and any government so set up will fall the moment such support is withdrawn. The Lenine wing of the Communist party is to-day as moderate as any Socialist Government which can control Russia."

In Mr. Bullitt's opinion the Soviet form of government was thoroughly established and he said that perhaps the most striking fact in Russia was the general support which was given the government by the people in spite of their starvation. Indeed the people wholly blamed the blockade and the Governments which maintained it for their distress. "The Soviet form of Government seems to have become to the Russian people the symbol of their revolution. Unquestionably it is a form of government, which lends itself to gross abuse and tyranny, but it meets the demands of the moment in Russia and it has acquired so great a hold on the imagination of the common people that the women are ready to starve for it and the young men to die for it."

Now a concentrated attack by England, France, Germany and other countries is projected and awaits only plans.

Personally I cannot see just why the Russians cannot be left to themselves. If their system of Government is not perfect that is their affair. It is not our business to interfere with them. To my mind it would be as unfair for that to happen as to have the French to swoop down on Newfoundland and bombard her ports because we had decided that the city should be incorporated.

Let the Russians look after themselves. A hundred and sixty six millions of people will not submit to anything they do not want, and the Bolshevik Government has been in power in Russia now for twenty three months.

home-made remedy has no equal.
Easily and cheaply prepared!

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try
this famous old home-made remedy.
One who has coughed all day and night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It gives a moment to prepare and really is nothing better for coughs.
Put a 10-cent bottle put 2 1/2 ounces of sugar (50 cents worth); then add plain syrup, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture will about two-thirds of the money
usually spent for cough preparations,
and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.
You can feel this take hold instantly,
sting and healing the membranes in the throat passages. It promptly loosens
the phlegm, and the cough will appear altogether. A day's use will fully break up any ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for croup, hoarseness, and bronchitis.

THE DAILY DOPE

BY THE CUB-EDITOR

WE KNOW YOU AL

Don't you remember Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt, Green Alice, whose hair was so brown.

He kept with delight when you gave her a smile and trembled with fear at your frown?

He got me, Ben? All has changed. He wears a hobbie skirt and a silhouette like a yard of tape and she has the fashionable droop of her boots are too small.

Her boots are too small. He has been persuaded by the influence of peroxide to grow golden like the sunshine, she never weeps.

Her account of her complexion which runs when it is wet, and if you want her to tremble from fright or anything else, you've got to go some.

Believe me, Ben, I ain't what she used to be, she's changed.

TO-DAY'S BRIGIT IDEA.

The famous novelist sat at his desk gazed upon a serial. "It was late at night," he wrote, "and the wind whirled with an eerie sound about the women doctors and our own ideas, if we were going to lie awake at night about it we should get a headache. This will probably go down in history as the great talk era following on the great war."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

You'll never know how quickly a head cold can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. It will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is a moment to prepare and really is nothing better for coughs.

It is a most valuable concentrated extract of genuine Norway pine essence, the most reliable remedy for colds and chest ailments. It will avoid disappointment, and give you the relief you need. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pines Toronto, Ont.

BUT SHE WOULDN'T WAIT.

Elizabeth tripped lightly into the country post office. "I want to know," she demanded with a tell-tale blush as she handed the clerk a pink communication addressed to her lover, "how long it will be before I get an answer to this letter."

"That depends," he answered: "if he's in jail they will let him write once a month only, if he's dead broke he'll have to wait till he can earn the price of a stamp, and I have no data upon which to base an opinion of his earning capacities. If he's ill in bed he may not care to dictate his heart's sentiments to a cold, disinterested third party, and if his smallpox they won't let him write at all; ditto, if he's dead. Then, again, if he's got a new girl—"

At which moment he realized that the fair Elizabeth had frown.

WE SHOULD WORRY!

Anyway, what with Bolshevism and prohibition and peace treaties and rumors of more war and fashion and women doctors and our own ideas, if we were going to lie awake at night about it we should get a headache. This will probably go down in history as the great talk era following on the great war.

WE GUESS NOT!

That politician Won't get far Who does not offer A cigar!

PARTIAL INFORMATION.

Mr. Jones keeps pigeons, and Mr. Brown, next door, tries to keep pigeons—quite a different state of affairs. Mr. Brown is constantly losing birds, while Mr. Jones is as constantly suspected of finding them. The other morning Mr. Brown, with a smile and a sixpence, approached the youthful son of Mr. Jones.

"Willie," began Brown holding up the coin, "did daddie find a bird yesterday?" Willie nodded. "And was it a blue bird with some white feathers in its wing?" "Dunno," responded Willie, pocketing the sixpence. "You can't tell their color when they're in a pie!"

NEW AT HAND.

Lady: "I should like to look at a hat which I see is to let in this building, but no one has answered my ring." Man: "I'll show it to you. Come this way, mum."

"Well, this is something like. The rooms will suit, I am sure. What sort of a janitor have they have?" "The very best in the city, mum." "Obliging?" queried the lady. "The kindest-hearted gentleman to be found anywhere, mum."

"Honest?" "As the day is long, mum." "Is he attentive to his duties?" "He's been workin' himself up some new thing to make folks comfortable." "Well, I declare! I wouldn't lose this flat for the world. Where is the janitor now?" "I'm him, mum!"

Diamond weighing scales are so accurately poised that an eyelash will turn the balance.

THE COLUMN WRITER.

The column writer's luckier than the reader is at that. "ho-ho" And thereby bust a slat.

WELL, AIN'T IT RIGHT!

Park Orator: "An' I tell yer that all them millionaires' money is tainted—all on it!" "Unconvinced Person: "Ow d'ye mean, 'tainted?'" "Park Orator: "Well, 'tain't yours, an' 'tain't mine, is it?"

"It is the most unfortunate letter in the alphabet because it is out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time."

THE BRUTE!

"I find that my husband has been having the office-boy call me up every day and mumble terms of endearment. That's a nice way to fool his wife! He's been going to the billiard-match."

"How is it that you didn't recognize the voice?" "Well, I'm busy at bridge every day, and I've been getting the cook to answer the telephone."

TAKEN IN, YES.

An amateur photographer was desirous of taking a village church noted for its beauty, and as it was near the village school he did his best to get there before the children came from class.

But just as he had got the church

nely focused, out trooped the children, who crowded round the camera wanting to get taken in the photograph. Suddenly an idea struck him. He proceeded to group the children behind the camera, and then took a good photograph of the church.

"Are we all taken in?" eagerly asked the children, as he began packing up. "Yes; you are all taken in," said he, as he walked away smiling.

HAD HIS OWN MENAGERIE.

Smithson—"Come with me to the zoo." Pimpleton—"No, thank you; I'll stay at home. My eldest daughter does the kangaroo walk, my second daughter talks like a parrot, my son laughs like a hyena, my wife watches me like a hawk, my cook is cross as a bear, and my mother-in-law says I'm an old gorrilla. When I go anywhere I want a change."

British Rule in Palestine.

Rev. S. E. Rohold, a Christian Missionary, who has recently returned from the Holy Land, gives an interesting description of the wonderful change that has taken place in the Holy Land since the British occupation and his tribute to the benign influence of British protection makes British blood tingle and makes patriotic Britishers proud of their citizenship. British influence has always proven beneficial to every country that accepted it, and it is not remarkable that it should benefit Palestine. But the result of the British protectorate over the Holy Land will be watched with particular interest because of the sentiments associated with that historic part of the earth. Rev. Mr. Rohold delivered an address in the Christian Synagogue, Toronto, immediately on his return from Palestine, which was reported in the daily press in part as follows:

"Mr. Rohold, who was born and spent his boyhood in Jerusalem, contrasted conditions as he had known them in his youth and on several visits made to the country while it was still under the heel of the Turk, with those existing under the protectorate of the British. Although, he said, the Holy City was physically unchanged, the atmosphere of the whole place was almost unbelievably different. In place of the squalor and chaos in which the citizens daily went about their business in the old days, when lawlessness of all kinds was the expected thing, all was now sanitation, cleanliness and order.

"No longer did the drivers of the carriages for hire upon the ancient streets cheat and swindle their fares with noisy protestations. A complete system of tariff, printed in English and Arabic, had been inaugurated, and was now strictly enforced, much to the advantage of the stranger's pocketbook. No longer was ofal, refuse and dirt allowed to collect in the streets and lanes, a competent woman doctor at the head of the Bureau of Sanitation now enforced street-cleaning rules rigidly, while the magnificent system of courts of justice had reduced crime to a minimum.

"Mr. Rohold spoke at some length of the railroad built by the British army under Gen. Allenby, from Egypt to Jerusalem. This line, built upon the sand—an undertaking often pronounced impossible—was characterized as among the greatest engineering wonders of the world. The road crosses several hundred miles of parched and arid desert, yet every few miles were great water tanks, where cold, filtered water might be obtained.

"Under British administration, said Mr. Rohold, the sun had at last risen upon the Holy Land, and, he added, there now awaited a warm welcome to the Jewish Christian missionary both from the people themselves as well as from the military authorities."

Such reports as this is enough to make us wonder if the day is not about to dawn for which the prophets sighed, and suggests the possibility that we may see the time when the wilderness of Palestine "shall rejoice and blossom as the rose."—Exchange.

Search for Polar Land.

HOPE NOT YET ABANDONED.
Halifax, N.S., Nov. 12.—Seven steamers are coasting the ocean, off the Nova Scotia coast, for Captain Wheeler and crew of the American steamer Polar Land. Another day has passed since the wireless operator sent out the last S.O.S. call on Sunday, stating that the ship was being abandoned, and nothing further has been heard of the fifty men. Every effort is being made to find the missing crew, and hopes are still held out for their safety.

Seven Ships Searching.
The search for the missing men, which the Kanawha commenced, continues. The waters in the vicinity of where the Polar Land sent out her last S.O.S. are being carefully combed. Last night, Mr. C. H. Harvey, Marine and Fisheries Agent here, stated that seven ships were engaged in the search for the missing crew. They are the steamers Arammore, Strathfillan, Pioneer, Yellowstone, Ninian, and the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Seneca and Androscoogin.

The Arammore was ordered from Flint Island to the scene. The Strathfillan is bound from Glasgow to New York, and the Pioneer from Montreal to an American Atlantic port. The steamer Yellowstone sailed from Halifax on Friday last for Havre, while the Seneca left Port Hawkesbury yesterday. The two Coast Guard cutters were asked to join in the search by the American Consul here, at the suggestion of Mr. Harvey, Marine and Fisheries agent here.

Civilizing or Corrupting.

Taking cigarette smoking as a standard of civilization, the savages of British East Africa are fast catching us up. A few years ago the natives were content with crude raw tobacco mixed with all sorts of things. Now they are smoking cigarettes at the rate of 25,000,000 a month. An official of the British-American Tobacco Company told me that the Kavaronos, a tribe on the shores of Lake Victoria, Nyanza, and one of the proudest, most moral and most naked in Africa, have an improved method of smoking. "We packed our cigarettes in boxes of four," he said, "because the Kavaronos smoke four at a time, putting one in each corner of the mouth, and one in each nostril."—London (Eng.) Express.

Wise Men Say—

That there is a better market for smiles than for frowns.
That great wealth and little health make a pitiable combination.
That men of the right mettle fight best when their backs are to the wall.
That there's time for everything—except the retelling of your troubles.
That strong men must expect to be misunderstood and criticized. That is part of the price of rising above mediocrity.

That it is a curious inversion of the fitness of things that those whose time is worth the least have the most expensive watches.
That many a good idea goes to waste for the reason that there is not sufficient enthusiasm to carry it along to a successful conclusion.

That to look into the future is not a sign of weakness, but of superiority. Forethought is essentially a sign of civilization; the savage thinks only for the present, the civilized world for the future.

French Women Marry Chinese Coolies

French women in the desolated areas are marrying Chinese members of coolie battalions engaged in the work of restoring property. The Minister of the Interior is very much disturbed and has warned the Mayors of districts to protect French women from such a union. In his circular, the Minister of the Interior points out that the Chinese will after the expiration of their contracts return to China, where French women who have married them will be in a precarious situation in view of the smallness of the wages paid there. The circular also states that numbers of the coolies who are marrying

We'll Wait in Patience.

A committee of international experts has been sitting in solemn conclave to determine what constitutes a new-laid egg. The public, which has endured many things at the hands of what may be called the war-egg, will be disappointed to find that the weighty answer cannot be given until 1921, when a meeting of the International Association of Poultry Inspectors and Investigators will be held at The Hague. Who shall determine the new-laid egg? The much-travelled egg from Siberia was the sport of speculation and big dealers, and a thing of doubtful culinary value, but even now, when such distant products cease to form a part of the daily food of Europeans, there is a certain antiquity about the cheap egg that is scarcely pleasant. The rapid encroachment of the keeping of the domestic hen, who will cluck the announcement that an egg is ready for use, seems the only way in which the public shall be enabled to define what a new-laid egg really is.—Christian Science Monitor.

Werner Horn Sentenced to 10 Years.

Werner Horn, the German, who attempted to destroy the St. Croix bridge by dynamiting it on February 2, 1915, has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. In passing sentence, Judge Barry told the prisoner that he had not qualified as a belligerent under the provisions of the Hague Tribunal, and, therefore, his offence could not be looked upon as an act of war, in the eyes of international law, as he had pleaded. The only point in the prisoner's favor was that he had waited until passenger trains had gone over before blowing up the bridge, evidently because he did not want to be responsible for causing injury or death to defenceless civilians. When sentence had been passed Horn said he wanted to make a protest, that because his Fatherland had signed the Peace Treaty he was not punishable, but he was ordered removed to jail, and any more protests will have to be made from the Dochester Penitentiary.

The World's Shipping.

It is estimated that the world's output of shipping this year will be about 8,000,000 tons, breaking all records. In spite of the great loss of shipping during the war it is interesting to learn from Lloyds that there was more shipping afloat in June of this year than before the war. Here are the figures: June, 1914, 45,404,000 tons; June, 1919, 47,897,000 tons.—Moncton Transcript.

New Relief For Constipation,
"LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us.
 They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise
 —unwise for two reasons.
 First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.
 So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits"
 because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory.
 Try it and be convinced.

Where Drugs
Come From.
 To form the collection which fills
 the drawers, bottles, and jars of even the most unpretentious druggist's shop, tax is levied upon almost every country in the world. North, south, east, and west, our drugs come to us,
 and they reach our shores in such strange forms that not one person in a thousand, seeing them in the rough
 at the docks, or in any of the great wholesale stores, would be able even to guess at the names and natures of half of them.
 Who, for example, would connect a great pile of dry, thin twigs, neatly tied into small bundles, with sarsaparilla, the great blood-purifier? These twigs are the creeping roots and rootlets of a prickly shrub that grows
 in Jamaica, and they are worth from 5d. to 2s a pound.
 Somewhat similar in appearance is specaucania, which also comes to us
 in dry twigs, being part of the trailing root of a plant found in the damp forests of Brazil. These roots receive no preparation, save drying, before they are shipped off to Europe via Montevideo. They are packed in large sacks, and the workman who opens the bales must beware of breathing the pungent, irritating dust given off, and which is productive of unpleasant results if incautiously inhaled.
 Castor oil, too, is hard to recognise in the pretty little brown beans, spotted with black, and with polished
 skins, that arrive in bags from India.
 They look far too attractive to suggest the much-hated dose of our early days.
 Aloes, the bane of many nauseous medicines, may be seen in its crude form as a solid mass, resembling brown sealing-wax, packed in heavy wooden boxes, from which it is chopped out in flakes with a chisel and hammer. It is of different qualities and prices, according to whether it comes from Arabia, Scotia, or the West Indies, and may fetch any sum from 25s. to 180s. a cwt. Aloes is the juice of the big fleshy leaves of the plant of that name. This juice is pressed or evaporated from the leaves and poured into chests or kegs in a semi-solid state, hardening presently into a solid block. Not infrequently it is enclosed in the dried skins of monkeys, and in this strange form brought to market.

HOW YOU CAN TELL
GENUINE ASPIRIN
 Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross"
 are Aspirin—No others!

 If you don't see the "Bayer Cross"
 on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.
 There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations.
 Look for the "Bayer Cross"! There it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.
 Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.
 Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin"
 have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neu-ritis.
 Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had
 at any drug store.
 Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 161), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

A Hot-Headed Poet.
 Someone once offered Gabriele D'
 Annunzio, Italy's greatest living poet and aviator, whose recent raid on Fiume caused such a flutter, $3,200
 for a series of lectures in South America.
 "Thanks," he replied, "I have no
 wish to leave the ocean for a box of cigars."
 The reply was typical of the man who writes his poetry clad in a robe
 of cloth of gold and whose stock of fancy waistcoats and neckties is the envy of the Beau Brummells of the world.
 By the way, his real name is Tom-maso Rapagnetta, but as this was considered by him too commonplace for a poet, he changed it. His assumed name means "Gabriele the Messenger."

Suggestion

What is a Kewmack?
 A reference to "Kewmacks" by counsel to the Douglas-Pennant inquiry, may possibly cause thoughtful people to wonder where the habit of abbreviating is likely to stop. "Wacks"
 is just tolerable, if not very elegant;
 "Wrens" is ingenious, if rather obvious. But "Kewmacks" is frankly horrid. Really, we would sooner articulate "Queen Mary's Auxiliary Army Corps" than invent monstrosities like "Kewmacks!" But of course, there's no accounting for tastes.
 Official circles in England have a well-known penchant for verbal economy. In civil departments it is bad enough; in the army, it is extracrabiling. Unfortunately, the mere initials of bodies or of institutions seldom lend themselves with happy effect to re-formation into words. Hence the inevitable cacophony. Initials used alone, on the other hand, tend to ambiguity. Does M.P. stand for Member of Parliament, or for Military Police?
 So the dabbler in cryptograms has sometimes concluded that a short cut is often the longest way round.

At Odds With Watts.
 (From the Lewiston Journal.)
 It was one of the good old Isaac Watts hymns. The congregation had just risen at the Congregational Church in Augusta to sing.
 "We will omit the first and fourth verses," said Rev. Dr. Scob. "And tell us why. You will notice that the two verses in question begin
 like this:
 Great God how infinite thou art
 What worthless worms are we.
 "Now, it is bad enough to be a worm, but to be a worthless worm is more than I think we ought to be called upon to endure." As a consequence the two verses in question were omitted.

"For the Blind."
 A small storekeeper, to the surprise of his brethren, suddenly decorated his window with a gorgeous new blind.
 "Nice blind of yours, Isaac," quoth
 his neighbor.
 "Yes, Aaron."
 "Who paid for it, Isaac?"
 "The customers paid, Aaron."
 "What! The customers paid for it, Isaac?"
 "Yes, Aaron. I put a leedle box on my counter, 'For the blind.' And they paid for it."—Ex.

War's Effect on Birds.
 It is a curious fact that the effect of war on birds is not that which one is led to expect. When a Zeppelin flew over the pheasant hunting preserves
 in England, the shrill cry of these birds warned the country for miles around of the approach of the airships.
 But the nightingale never stopped his song unless a flying machine was directly over his head. The birds at the front paid little attention to the din and roar of battle, often singing
 while a bombardment was in progress. Their nests were found under the roofs of the railroad stations. The partridge and the lark often rested directly in the line of fire, and during the intervals of firing the song of the lark could be heard. The swallows upon their return from warmer
 climates, finding their previous nesting places destroyed, built their new homes in the mouths of deserted cannon and in trench reinforcements.

Germany Must Make Good.
 Demand will be made of Germany
 that all violations of the armistice shall be made good. This has been decided upon by the Supreme Council, which has completed the protocol to the German treaty. The protocol provides that Germany shall surrender cruisers and destroyers to replace those sunk at Scapa Flow, and also surrender floating dry docks, lighters,
 trains, tugs and other naval equipments equal in value to that of the first-class battleships destroyed,
 which Germany cannot replace. There is no provision in the protocol as to how the warships and naval supplies shall be divided among the Allied and associated powers. Germany has been invited to send a commission to Paris
 to sign the protocol and attend the formal ratification of the treaty.

FISHERMEN!

This is the great Fishkiller with which the Norwegians catch such large quantities of fish. Place a sinker with a swivel on each end about one fathom above the hook, which spins like a minnow, and the fish bite ravenously.

Opportunities in Long-Term Bonds

Bonds maturing in 1919 or 1920 may now be sold advantageously, and the funds reinvested in longer term securities. The benefits of present high interest yield rates may thereby be secured for a period of ten years and longer.

We shall be glad to offer suggestions.
