"When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal those terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since."

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER III.

"Am I, I shall hope to meet some Englishmen who will remove the prejudice?"

"I hope I shall be one of the happy band," he said, laughing. "I shall do my best, and I shall say to myself, that in trying to please you, I am rendering a national service."

"There is one thing I must say about England," she continued. "It is a most hospitable nation—indeed, you are the most hospitable people in the world. Strangers come to you from every land—kings driven from their thrones, peers from their ancestral homes, all grades of political refugees. England, like a kindly hostess, opens her arms to all, bids all welcome, treats all generously, never gives up those who cling to her for who seek to hide their wounds in her bosom."

"I am glad you allow us even that much praise," he said, calmly; then after a few moments, he exclaimed suddenly: "Look! What a pretty picture, Miss de Ferras! Who is that—that young lady, I mean, in white and blue?"

She looked up with sudden misgivings, and saw that he was attentively watching Dolores. A sudden chill came over her, and her dark, brilliant face grew pale.

"That," she said, "is Miss Cliefden—Dolores Cliefden; have you not heard of her?"

"Dolores Cliefden," he repeated slowly. "Is she the daughter of Old Squire Cliefden at White Cliffe? I have heard of her."

"Yes, that is Dolores Cliefden," said Lola.

If he had been more shrewd, he would have detected a ring in her voice which betrayed her thoughts.

"Do you know her?" he asked eagerly.

There was an expression of proud surprise in her eyes as she answered him.

"Certainly I do. Are you not aware that we are called 'The Red and the White Roses'?" But I am forgetting—you are only a stranger amongst us."

"I shall not be a stranger long, I hope," he returned. "I have never been so many beautiful faces before."

"Do you like beautiful faces?" she asked.

He looked at her and laughed. "Does a butterfly like flowers? I have been a beauty-worshipper all my life."

"Then we shall agree," she said, "for I think beauty—great personal beauty—the highest of all gifts and the most enviable."

He stopped abruptly and spoke almost eagerly.

"Ah, no; you misunderstand me! I do not mean that," he said. "I admire beauty, perhaps so many more; but I never said and never thought, and never could think it was the highest earthly gift. There are others I value more. I could admire a woman for her beautiful face, but I could never love or marry her for that alone."

She made no reply and he stood watching the sunlight on the fair face and white dress of Dolores. Suddenly he requested—

"As you know her, Miss de Ferras, will you introduce me to her?"

She could not refuse, yet she did not wish to consent. He saw the half-hesitation on her face, but had no clue to it cause. He thought she was tired.

"Is it too far for you to walk through the glade?" he asked. "If so, never mind."

But it had suddenly occurred to her that, if he really wished for this introduction, it would be better if she should undertake it. She would know then all that passed. She turned to him with a charming smile.

"I shall be delighted," she said. "Nothing will give me greater pleasure. I am not at all tired, and the walk by the river is beautiful."

He thought that he had never met a more amiable girl, and his heart warmed to her, but his eyes still lingered on the fair, delicate face under the trees.

"So they called her the 'white rose'?" he said, musingly.

"Yes," Lola replied; and then added, quickly, "and they call me the 'red rose'."

"All I can say is that I am very glad that I did not live in the days of the Wars of the Roses—I should not have known whether to wear the red or the white!"

"You would have made up your mind in time," she said, thoughtfully.

"Every man does who has a mind worth making up."

"Do you think so? At any rate, I am well content not to be obliged to make any choice—in fact, I could not. The 'white rose' is irresistible, the 'red rose'—and he bowed low to her—charming. If I had been in the place of Paris, I could never have given the apple—each style is so perfect in its way."

"I respect Paris," Lola rejoined, quickly. "He made up his mind at once. I like prompt decisions."

"Do you?" he said, with sardonic amusement. "I should say that you are likely to be gratified. So far as I have seen the world, there are far more quick and hasty decisions than slow and wise ones."

"I have had the first chance," thought Lola, "and I will make the most of it. I will be so charming and so amiable that he will be compelled to recognize the difference between a white rose and a red one."

Sir Karl talked for a few minutes to Dolores, Lola listening with sharpened ears. But he said very much the same as he had said to her.

He told Dolores that he had had no time to call at White Cliffe, but he should do so at once; he regretted not having been at home when the Squire had called. He liked the simple, girlish way in which she said: "You will find White Cliffe a very quiet, old-fashioned place. It is one of the oldest houses in the county."

"That is just the kind of place I like," he answered. "One seldom sees anything quiet or old-fashioned in these days. I am often half undecided as to whether the olden days were not the best."

"I am sure they were not," remarked Lola. "I think every age improves; and I am quite satisfied with the one in which I live."

"I am very glad to hear it," said Sir Karl; "and you, Miss Cliefden?"

"I am very happy," she replied, "and think no age could be better than this."

"My belief," observed Lola, "is that the world is in its infancy. I believe we are only just beginning to understand. We are emerging from darkness into light; but the light is faint yet. I should like to return to the world when it reaches its middle age—to see what steam, electricity, and all the wonders of science have done for us. I should like to see the telephone perfected. When will its wonders stop? I should like to be on earth when it and other marvelous things are in general use. And there is one thing above others I should like to know."

"What is that?" asked Sir Karl, who was somewhat amused at her remarks.

"I should like to know whether men will so far overcome the difficulties of atmosphere, time, and space as to get to the planets."

"No," returned Sir Karl; "I think we shall have to be satisfied with our own world, Miss de Ferras."

"Our own," said Dolores, "and the beautiful world that is to come hereafter."

In some vague fashion those few, simple words pleased him more than all Lola's aspirations. He would have said more; but at that moment Lady Fielden came up to them, bringing with her a tall, distinguished-looking man, whose noble, kindly face was pleasant, though not handsome.

"Lord Rhyssworth," thought Lola; and her heart gave a great bound.

It was a strange coincidence that she and her rival should meet the two most eligible men in the country together.

"This is as it should be," thought Lola. "Lord Rhyssworth for Dolores, the handsome young baronet for me!" She was perfectly content.

Lord Rhyssworth greeted her very kindly; he said that he remembered having seen her when she was a child, and made some pretty complimentary speeches on her return, but all the time his eyes were fixed upon the face of Dolores. Then Lady Fielden suggested that they should go to the archery ground. But none of the quartet cared about moving; it was very pleasant to stand chatting under the trees. For some few minutes they all kept together, then Lord Rhyssworth and Dolores gradually gained ground, and Sir Karl, with Lola, was left at some little distance. Lola was delighted. She believed that for once Providence was going to favor her with the dearest wish of her heart.

Under the Black Flag

PIRATES AS THEY REALLY WERE.

The pirates of history are, on the whole, a very disappointing crowd as compared with the pirates of our boyhood's imagination. Instead of swashbuckling desperadoes we generally find a collection of quite tolerably decent fellows who were forced out of the Merchant Service by the terrible conditions obtaining therein.

They seldom took more from their victims than what was required to keep their ships in commission, while they approached no nearer to murder than the occasional flogging of a captain who had a bad reputation for his treatment of his crew.

There are exceptions to this, however; one, Teach, in particular, was the typical pirate of romance. He amused himself by inviting his mate and his gunner to drink in his cabin and then discharging his pistols blindly under the table. The mate, who incidentally was Israel Hands, immortalized in Stevenson's "Treasure Island," was lamed for life by this trick.

In his new book, "Piracy in the West Indies and Its Suppression," Mr. F. B. C. Bradlee deals particularly with the period of about a century ago. In those days the pirates were nearly all tough characters who had served in the various South American Navies as "barristers" in the wars against Spain, and had taken into piracy many of the cruelties they had learnt in that service. These men certainly were the bloodthirsty pirates of romance, but they had nothing brilliant about them. In fact, if the merchantmen of the time had only armed themselves to a reasonable extent they would very seldom have been molested for these gentlemen of the Black Flag had very little stomach for a fight.

One of the most picturesque of these sea-raiders was Gasparillo, whose right name was Jose Gaspar and who roamed the Gulf of Mexico in the latter part of the eighteenth century. He was a terror, and had things all his own way for many years till finally things got too hot for him.

So he and his crew agreed to divide their spoil and retire to respectability. Unfortunately, while they were sharing out, he saw what he thought passing Gasparillo Island, and was tempted to make a last comb. Having noticed him well away from his supports the prize turned on him and suddenly revealed herself to be an American sloop of war.

Gasparillo himself was determined not to be captured and twining a heavy piece of anchor chain round his waist he jumped into the sea and was drowned. But his entire crew with the exception of his cabin-boy were hanged at the yardarms.

Some of these West Indian pirates had ships, but most of them operated in boats from the shore, as they could thus be certain of the protection of the authorities in the Spanish and other islands, and always wanted a safe retreat in case of emergency.

Once a well-found brig sailed from Salem to collect a cargo of pepper in the West Indies, and according to custom took aboard a large sum in Spanish dollars. Evidently this was not done with enough secrecy, for she found a pirate waiting for her among the islands, and every man on board her had his throat cut.

Two members of her crew had a lucky escape. Just before the brig left Charleston, where it had called for stores, a large black dog had come to the quayside and howled dismally. This had been too much for their seamen's superstition and the two men had deserted, thus saving their lives.

It is not the policy of the manufacturers of Ivory Soap to make extravagant claims in its behalf. They simply say that Ivory soap is a good, pure toilet soap and that it will cleanse the skin thoroughly without injuring the most delicate complexion.

THE SECRET.

I've been on earth a long, long time, my head is white with age's rime. I've heard the rusty death-bell chime for friends, in solemn tones; and many who were borne away to sleep forever and a day, had often paused a bit to say, "You'll never make old bones."

The rules of health I have defied, I've let the diet deponents slide, I never walk when I can ride, all exercise I hate; I've borne around a load of fat, athletic gentles would stare thereat, and say "King Death will come to bat, if you don't cut down weight."

"Come play my game," the golfer cries; "to back in tallow is unwise; the fat man always ups and dies twelve years before his time; I chase a ball o'er hills and dales, and I am hard as three-inch nails; I'm feeling like the Prince of Wales, like Hector in his prime." But hark, again the death bell clangs, and guys who make those health "farangues" are travelling in shoddy gangs, to hang a counter tomb; while I, who've never fenced or sparred, or climbed a tree, or waded a yard, am resting in my wealth of lard, amid the orange blooms. I hate to stir myself at all, and so I lean against the wall—and that's the secret, after all, of living many years; do just as Nature may suggest; if you are lazy, sit and rest; if energetic, hump your back, as hump the bridled steers.

Presented to the King

The most important people at the Court to be held at Buckingham Palace this week will be undoubtedly the debutantes. They are the girls, still in their teens, who are to have the honor of being presented to the King and Queen.

Every debutante has to wear a veil not longer than 48 inches, and have three small ostrich plumes in her hair. The bobbed or shingled maiden will find the fixing of these plumes more than a little troublesome!

Of all occasions, the most terrifying for the debutante comes after she has made her deep curtsy to the King and Queen. She must not turn her back on the throne as she moves away, but must walk backwards, courtesying low to the members of the Royal Family and wondering in her heart if she will trip over her six foot train!

Gaston Doumergue, President of French Republic

Enquiry Into Mississippi Disaster Being Held--Irish Free State Appoints Professor Smiddy Representative at Washington--Robbery on the Chicago Express Amounts to $100,000.

FRANCE'S NEW PRESIDENT.

VERSAILLES, France, June 13. Gaston Doumergue was today elected President of France by the National Assembly here.

DOUMERGUE BEATS PAINLEVE.

Gaston Doumergue, President of the Senate, today was elected President of the Republic of France in succession to Alexandre Millerand. The opening of a cannon at half past four o'clock this afternoon announced the election by the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies gathered together in National Assembly of one of the grave political crises arising from the May elections. Immediately after the election of the President, Frederic Francois Marsal tendered the resignation of his cabinet to M. Doumergue. The resignation was accepted but M. Doumergue requested the Premier to continue with the routine business until a new cabinet was formed. Edouard Herriot, leader of the Radical party, has been requested to form a new Ministry and undoubtedly will do so. M. Painleve proved a good loser. He was the first of the statesmen to give the successful opponent congratulations.

M. Gaston Doumergue, the thirtieth President of France has had a long career in public life, during which he has been Premier and has held a number of portfolios in various Ministries. Born at Vigues Vives, August 1, 1863, he began the practice of law at Nimes in 1885 and several years later became a magistrate in Berlin. In 1895 he became a special Justice of the Peace in Algeria to yield that position when he became a Deputy from Nimes during the same year. M. Doumergue became Minister for the Colonies in 1902 and held that post until 1905 when for a year he was Vice-President of the Chamber, then successively he was Minister of Commerce, Minister of Public Instruction, Senator in 1910, Premier from 1913 to 1914, Foreign Minister for the latter year, Colonial Minister again from 1914 until 1917 and finally President of the Senate in 1923.

PAINLEVE PREFERRED.

LONDON, June 13. Some disappointment is voiced in official quarters over the election of M. Doumergue as President of France as the preference would have been for M. Painleve, because he is more closely identified with the political bloc represented by M. Herriot.

MARSAL RESIGNS.

PARIS, June 13. Premier Frederic Francois Marsal to-night tendered the resignation of his Cabinet to Gaston Doumergue the newly elected President of the Republic, by whom it was accepted.

IRISH MINISTER TO WASHINGTON.

DUBLIN, June 13. Professor Smiddy, Cork, has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State at Washington. It was announced at Dail Eireann today, by Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

ENQUIRY BEING HELD.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., June 13. The United States Navy to-day mourns its dead, three officers and 45 enlisted men, their lives snuffed out aboard the dreadnought Mississippi in the fleet's greatest peace time disaster, which brought a tragic climax to a week of sham-battles and target practice. Aboard the hospital ship Relief, lay the dead and injured, victims of a premature explosion in the Mississippi's No. 2 turret. Aboard the New Mexico flagship of division four of the battle fleet, members of the naval board of inquiry prepared to open an investigation of the disaster. Aboard the Mississippi, anchored outside the breakwater, officers and men watched the flames shattered turret, where a 14-inch gun with an explosive charge jammed in the breach meant that the danger of still another explosion had not passed. It was a score-back from one of the guns that shot death fire-flames and poisonous gases back in to the turret through its open breach. A second gun, breech loaded, let loose in the harbor as the Mississippi steamed home with its dead and injured in the drill grounds and hurled a steel projectile dangerously near to an outbound passenger liner. Of the injured, there were strangely few, only eight being hurt and their injuries comparatively slight.

LOSS NOT OVER $100,000.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 13. A. E. Gerner, Chief Post Office Inspector here, declared today the losses through the robbing of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul Express Mail train here last night would not exceed $100,000. Previous estimates placed the loss of currency and securities stolen from forty mail pouches at from $100,000 to $200,000.

NO LONGER A MENACE.

SAN PEDRO, June 13. All danger of another explosion on board the Mississippi, anchored outside the harbor breakwater, was removed today when the third charge of TNT in turret No. 2 was taken out, according to Lieut. L. N. Morgan, Flag Communication Officer.

The representatives for St. John's West park visited St. Philips last night, and held a celebration in honor of their victory. On arrival at the settlement, the members received a warm welcome and a volley of music, kettys, flutes, whistles, etc. lit up the courtyard showing the pleasure of the people. No meeting was held, but an enjoyable evening was spent.

Lady Hamilton Watched Nelson Draw His Plans of Battle

POOLE, England, May 22 (A.P.)—A naval officer staying at the old inn, "Lord Nelson," situated on the quay here, recently discovered some curious scrawlings on the wainscot of his room. Investigation revealed these to be plans of naval battles drawn by Lord Nelson who stayed in that inn with Lady Hamilton. Other marks and scrawls have been identified as dating back to the days of the sea-gods of the Elizabethan age.

Spencer College

Bishop Spencer College, on Wednesday night, gave an excellent kindergarten show. The auditorium was crowded with enthusiastic admiring parents and friends of the children. Miss Cherrington, Principal, presided and his Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland, Mrs. White, Rev. Canons Bolt and Jewes, Messrs. L. Outerbridge and E. A. Bowring of the directorate were also present. Professor Stirling was conductor. The programme consisted of Part 1: Songs, Rounds, Cycle of Songs, French songs; Piano solo, "Farantelle" by Florence Cornick; Recitation in costume by Phyllis Dowden, with another solo by Clara Miller proved that the young pupils were being scientifically and magnificently trained. Part 2 consisted of: (1) Drill; (2) Fragments from the Senior dancing classes, consisting of Carpathian Folk dance, Hornpipe, Ball Exercises, Fox trot and Closing exercises. The last half consisted of a graceful and charming demonstration by the junior stars, in the form of (1) Puck and the Fies dance; (2) Baby Birds; (3) Growing flowers; and (4) Curtesies. The programme was concluded with Spencer College Choir singing the Ode to Newfoundland. Miss Jessop, the kindergarten specialist, has done wonderful work with her pupils who showed their training in Wednesday night's demonstration. Miss Nash, who is the specialist in physical culture, continues to train her girls magnificently. The singing of Ethel Salt was delightful for one so young.

During the evening Miss Cherrington made an address and pointed out to the audience that the most important step in Education was to start right. Little pupils by the kindergarten system are taught to think for brains, eye and ear to activity for later studies. In the interval the audience were invited to visit the school rooms where (1) an exhibition of pupils' work was shown consisting of Kensington Embroidery in which the work of Margaret Crosbie, Irene Stirling, Millicent Roll, Florence Hayward and Jean Dawe was particularly outstanding in excellence. In knitting, senior Guide, Lieut. Grace Watson, Elizabeth Baird (8 years old), Jean Tait, Mary Curlew and Irene Stirling showed themselves to be mistresses of the art. Mary Curlew, nine years of age, showed a pair of stockings knitted beautifully. In the other classes Jean and Eva Stirling, and Marjorie Cook had some good articles. In millinery Rita Butler exhibited a hat made entirely by her own hand, a credit to a professional. In plain needlework, Margaret Lewis, Marion Samson, Jennie Edgar and Gladys Curlew showed great proficiency, and finally the samples of Kathleen Dodd, Joan Bowring and Silvia Stirling were most favourably commented on. This department is under Miss Mary McKenzie Bremner, who is also a specialist and who deserves the appreciation and gratitude of her pupils. In the drawing section Miss R. Keefe is in charge. Exhibitions of wall paper designing, model drawing and work from memory was also shown. We congratulate Spencer College on this satisfactory demonstration to the public of the training of our girls. We also wish to commend, specially the charming and graceful exhibition of dancing and deportment as given by Ray Perlin, Ruth Hickman and Jennie Edgar, and in the junior classes by Joan Thompson, Jean Hickman, Joan Bowring, Lorna Bowring, Ethel and Lucy Noonan. Their work shows the results of physical culture along the right lines.

The Supple Claim

PROVIDENCE, R.I., June 9.—The fight of a Providence mill worker, who has lived in less than moderate circumstances during his 62 years of life, for half of an alleged $40,000,000 estate left by a St. John's, Newfoundland cousin was revealed when Henry Supple announced that he had engaged counsel to go to Newfoundland to open a legal battle for the huge stakes.

For 40 years Henry Supple has lived in Olneyville, coming there from Boston. He lived in the latter city after coming from St. John's, at the age of 7.

About a year ago he learned that a first cousin, Samuel Baird, had died in St. John's, leaving a vast fortune, the existence of which had for many years been unsuspected by members of the family. Relatives visiting Newfoundland just previous to Baird's death came back with stories of the affluence of Baird.

Samuel Baird, Jr., a cousin of the late Samuel Baird, living in St. John's at the time of the wealthy man's death, is said to have taken over the fortune. Learning of this, Mr. Supple made inquiries and received from a Newfoundland attorney an offer to furnish information on the matter upon receipt of $20.

Mr. Supple declares he sent the required amount, but has never received the promised information. He then filed a protest with the courts of St. John's and now claims to have established beyond doubt his relationship to the dead man and his claim to one-half of the fortune.

Mr. Supple has one sister, Mrs. Anna Sever of Brooklyn, N.Y. but says that under the English law which prevails in Newfoundland the females of the family are not eligible to inherit unless specific bequests are made in a will. It is said that Baird left no will.

Mr. Supple's first real move in his fight to gain what he says is his legitimate share of $40,000,000 was made when he retained George Helford, a Providence attorney, and instructed him to proceed to St. John's to start the legal battle.

Last night the Olneyville man said that he had not yet determined whether Samuel Baird, Jr., who took charge of the properties after the death of his cousin, is still alive. Asked why he did not make an effort to prove his right to half of the estate when he first learned of his cousin's death, Mr. Supple declared that he had always been satisfied with his lot and had never felt the necessity of seeking a share in the vast holdings at stake.

Mr. Supple was married to Nellie McDonough 36 years ago. A son, John, born of the union, died several years ago at the age of 28. Three children

Safety First
The second act had come to an end and the curtain had fallen. Suddenly those near the stage became conscious of a stir and hurrying behind the scenes. A faint smell began to pervade the atmosphere; smoke came from the wings.
In an instant the same thought struck everyone, and the same word left every lip: "Fire!"
A stampede seemed imminent. Then the hero of the hour arose from his seat in the stalls.
"Keep your seats," he shouted. His words and manner reassured the terror-stricken people. Shamefacedly they sank back into their seats. Slowly the man strode to where there was an open avenue of escape. Then, without a moment's hesitation, he rushed for the door. Once outside, he mopped his forehead and murmured, breathlessly, "Well, someone's saved, anyway."

A Non-Starter
An irritable old sportsman was aroused from his bed at three o'clock in the morning by the insistent ringing of his doorbell. On answering it, he found a man struggling hard to maintain his equilibrium.
"What do you mean by waking me up at this hour?"
"Isn't you Mr. Smithers?"
"Yes, yes. What of it?"
"Isn't you the gent what advertised for a partner to go lion-hunting in Africa?"
"Yes, I'm the man. What do you want to know about it?"
"Nothing, 'cepting I just wanted to tell you that on no conditions whatsoever will I go with you."

THE TEACHER SMILES.
Amongst Dr. MacNamara's large budget of stories relating to schools and scholars the following strikes me as being exceptionally good.
A lady teacher was addressing her class on the subject of kindness to dumb animals, and calling to mind the cruel custom prevalent among dog fanciers of cutting off certain dogs' tails, thought it a splendid opportunity to point a moral.
"Now, which of you little girls can tell me why it is cruel to cut off puppy-dogs' tails?" she asked.
"For a moment there was no answer. Then a small child put up her hand.
"Well, Mabel, can you tell me?"
"Yes, teacher," piped the child's voice, "because of the text."
"Ah!" said the teacher, busily revolving in her mind those texts which might apply to puppy-dogs' tails, what text, dear?"
"Back came the text, albeit a little misquoted:
"What God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

TRINITY

EDWARD MULKACHY 1780 AND DENNIS YOUNG 1767.

In efforts to recall the work and to perpetuate the memory of those men who came to Trinity in the early days of settlement, I find myself harkening farther and farther back to the records of their marriages, Baptisms and Burials in the old Church Books. Such records not only constitute the earliest direct references to them, and perpetuate their memory down to the present day, but they will continue to do so, as long as these books are preserved.

Those people are fully entitled to such grateful remembrance, for they, in their humble ways had a real share in the laying of the foundations of our corporate life; upon which foundations down to the present day, each generation has had a share in contributing to the superstructure.

Those days, dating back at least fifty years before the beginning of the records in the old Church Book (to say, 1700) were days of hardships and privations to many of the young men who came either from Poole or Limerick and settled down in Trinity. Accustomed as they had been since their childhood days to some definite form of home, social, and religious life, the loneliness that was theirs for several years after their arrival must have been painfully acute. Of course every decade from the year, say, 1700, and during the following century on to the date of the first recorded baptism in 1758, found more and more people settled here, and thus the loneliness was lessened, and the domestic, social, and spiritual privileges were increased.

Whilst the first page of the Marriage Register (1757) contains the names of Hart, Long, Jeans, Bailey, Lockyer, White and Miller, names still familiar to us—yet to Edward Mulkachy, Joan Dixon and Dennis Young from Yonghall, Ireland, belong the honour of first mention, on that first page—names that have long since ceased to be known in our midst; but which are still immortalized in the entry referred to, and which I shall give at the end of this article.

The Youngs, the Dixons, and the Mulkachys were neighbours in Yonghall, Ireland, and as such they were more or less influenced by one another's actions from their earliest years. Edward Mulkachy was the eldest child of a large family; and from the day he was able to do anything to help his father to provide for the family, he gave evidence of a willingness and a resourcefulness to do so that deepened the love of his father and mother for him, and also won for him the admiration of every right thinking person in the parish. His young life was an illustration of the truth of the old saying:—"If you want anything done, ask a busy man to do it." Thus, in spite of his hours at school every day in the week but Sunday and Saturday; and the many chores at home and on the small farm before and after school, he always found time to do so many little things for the neighbours, that he became to them an indispensable part of the village machinery. Whilst he derived happiness from each and every act of this kind day after day, he was never so happy as when he was serving Father Fallon at the Altar in the parish church on Sundays, and putting everything in its proper place in the Sacristy after the service.

So the years went on in Edward Mulkachy's life from boyhood into youth. Then as his brother (two years his junior) became old enough to do all that Edward had been doing, and doing it largely in the same spirit; it did not come as a surprise to any one in the village, when it became known that Edward had made up his mind to relieve the stress of support at home, by leaving for Newfoundland, with the first batch of youngsters that was going from Ireland, and assigned to Benjamin Lester in Trinity.

The pain of leaving home and going out into a strange country was considerably softened in Edward's case, by the fact that John Dixon, who had been a neighbour of the Mulkachys, had gone to Trinity, Newfoundland years before as a cooper; had married there, and together with one child, he and his wife were very happy there.

The monotony of a thirty days passage across the Atlantic had begun to tell upon Edward, when the Island of Bacallan was reported right ahead, as the first sight of the new world. All other thoughts were then dispelled by those of anticipation of the new life he was to enter upon, and the old friend he was to meet on the morrow.

Many things in Trinity (that rapidly improved during the next ten years) were at the time of Edward's arrival, in a very primitive condition. Benjamin Lester had just begun to outline a business there, and his premises, as well as the temporary dwelling houses of the settlement, were not calculated to make the best impressions upon those coming from any part of the Old Country.

Edward Mulkachy, however, (together with the other youngsters) was received with a kind welcome, and comfortably housed for the night. He was delighted to meet his old neighbour, John Dixon, and to be taken by him to his home for a day or two.

It did not take Edward long to realize that "happiness does not consist in what you have, as much as in what you are"; for though there was evidence of the lack of many ordinary luxuries in the home outfit, yet abundant happiness was evident in the collective, and individual life of John and Nora Dixon, and their daughter Joan. And as such happiness is infectious, Edward went to Mr. Lester's office the next day, supremely happy, and to be informed as to whom he was to be apprenticed for the next five years.

As John Dixon was a valuable servant in the employ of Benjamin Lester, and it became known to him that Edward Mulkachy was a friend of his family in the Old Country, he (Benjamin Lester) thoughtfully and kindly arranged for Edward to be apprenticed to Mr. Richard Waterman in Trinity, so that he might be able to see his friends the Dixons quite often, and profit by their watchful care.

It did not take long for Edward's master and his wife to become aware of the willingness, and the resourcefulness in his character, that was so well known in Yonghall, and with the same effects; for though his daily life was so regulated as to give him every opportunity to learn the requirements for a practical life in the Colony, he was in every other respect treated as one of the family.

The only clergyman in Trinity at the time, and for several years afterwards, was Rev. Robert Kilpatrick, Missionary Priest of the Church of England. Mr. and Mrs. Waterman were God fearing people, and though as members of the Church of England, their family, and public devotions were different, and differently expressed in some ways from what, as a Roman Catholic, Edward had been accustomed to, yet they were so evidently sincere, and Mr. and Mrs. Waterman's daily lives were so consistently in keeping with their devotions, that Edward realized that his lot had fallen in good surroundings; and by sharing in those devotions, together with his own private devotions, and occasional family devotions at the Dixons, his spiritual life was kept in good condition, and his temporal life was lived accordingly.

For prospectus and information apply to The Warden.

The close of the five years of Edward's apprenticeship found him a young man in every sense of the word, and fully equipped for an independent life. It was a foregone conclusion on the part of his friends, from the time of his early visits to the Dixons, that Joan Dixon and Edward Mulkachy would marry at the end of Edward's apprenticeship. The mutual love that had been born in their lives during those early visits, deepened with the passing years, and many little preparations for their housekeeping were made at the same time and put away in Joan's "Dutch Trunk."

As Joan was the only child, and father and mother were growing old, it was decided that she and Edward should begin their married life in the old home. During the year 1780 in the first St. Paul's Church (that then stood in the middle of the old churchyard) and by the marriage service of the Church of England, Edward Mulkachy and Joan Dixon pledged their troth either to other, and were proclaimed man and wife together, in the name of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, by Rev. Robert Kilpatrick, Missionary Priest at the time. The following twenty-five years were intensely happy ones. Then came a succession of changes. John Dixon and his wife were called to rest within a few months of each other, and the next year, as the result of an accident, Edward Mulkachy was called to follow them. Their bodies were laid to rest, with reverent care and Christian burial side by side in old St. Paul's churchyard, and their dust to combine with mother earth, 'till the Resurrection morning. Joan their souls rest in peace. Then May Mulkachy found herself alone and lonely in the old house in which she was born and where she had been so happy. In order to dispel the loneliness she took two or three boarders, and for the next three years life went on in a new setting though by no means satisfactory. Then there came into her life another man from Yonghall, one Dennis Young, who was known her husband's people, and who had come to Trinity as the representative of a commercial firm in Queens-town, with which Benjamin Lester wished to do business. After a year's residence in Trinity he asked Joan Mulkachy to become his wife, and with that longing that had never left her to live again the old homelife, she consented, and the first entry in the old Marriage Register of St. Paul's Parish, Trinity, reads as follows: April 15th, 1787. Married by Rev. Benjamin Lindsay, Dennis Young, to Joan (Dixon), widow of the late Edward Mulkachy.

Thus during the first one hundred and fifty years after the discovery of Trinity in 1629, men came to us in early summer and left again in late autumn. Then during the next one hundred years they came, remained, and settled down in the various parts of Trinity Bay. Those men not only began the foundations of permanent homelife, but also during their three score years and ten of individual life, they added the first layer of superstructure on those foundations. During that century and the first half of the next, those Colonial-builders were steadily recruited by boys from Poole and Limerick, Weymouth and Waterford, Christchurch, Plymouth, and Westford, Somerset, Bideford, Yonghall, St. David's, and Glasgow. They were more or less clanish in their choice of wives, when it was possible to select, but in the large majority of instances, love, or a less tender sentiment brooked no interference, and they lived happy for ever afterwards. Hence, there are but few of the present generation in Trinity in whose veins do not course a mixture of English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh blood in various individual proportions—the outcome of which is a people in every respect thoroughly British. For example: my paternal grandfather was English; my maternal grandfather was Welsh; my paternal grandmother was Irish; and my maternal grandmother was a Newfoundland. (I daresay there was some "Scotch" in both my grandfathers at times.) Is it any wonder, I ask, that we have such a good opinion of ourselves?

Information for inquirers, re Samuel Garland. Samuel Garland was born in the parish of Shipton-George County of Dorset, England, in the year 1778. He came to Trinity about the year 1794. On May 20th 1827, he was married to Mary Still. Mrs. Garland died in 1859, aged 85 years. Sometimes I am inclined to believe that he must have been a distant relative of the Garlands at Trinity, and for the following reasons: He came from the same county in England. The land that he cultivated on the North Side, (Trinity East) and on which he built his house and lived for about sixty-five years, was secured by him from the Trinity Garlands. There was no clergyman in Trinity, and the new Church (old St. Paul's) was not ready for service at the time he was married, so he was married in the Garland House, Trinity, and by John Bingley Garland, Magistrate. This, however, was only a coincidence, and does not necessarily point to relationship. Samuel Garland was well known, and sought after in Trinity as a skilful seal-skinner, and as such was employed every spring, when the seals were landed and rendered out here. The witnesses to the marriage of Samuel Garland and Mary Still, were George Skelton, J.P., John Foster, John Peckham, Jr., and Sarah Peckham. They are both buried in St. Paul's Churchyard, Trinity. The F.P.U. Hall at Trinity East, is built on a part of Samuel Garland's property, and when the men of Trinity met in that Hall to organize a club for mutual improvement, they unanimously decided to call it "The Garland Club."

LOCAL ITEMS. Mrs. Eriksen is at St. John's and will remain there till her daughter, Miss Phyllis returns (20th inst.) from the Church School for Girls at Windsor, N.S., for summer vacation in Trinity.

Mr. Maddock, representing The Newfoundland Clothing Co., registered at Garland Hotel this week, did his work here, and left on Tuesday for Notre Dame Bay.

The S. S. Neptune came to Trinity last week for Mr. Samuel Grant and his outfit for the season's fishery at Blanc Sablon. He took with him about one hundred and fifty men, boys and girls, and we wish them "good luck in the name of the Lord." No matter how quiet Trinity has been before the Neptune leaves, it is always painfully so after she has left with her human freight, not all from Trinity, of course, but still enough to be missed.

The Methodist have done some extensive repairs to their cemetery fence and ground. I am always glad to see this being done to any place where the bodies of those whom God has called to rest, await God's next call to life and activity again. Our cemeteries are holy places now, and they will be very wonderful places on the Resurrection Morning.

Captain Flander in the schooner "Lucile B. Creaser" arrived from Barbados via St. John's last week.

Captain Stanley Barbour in his new schooner "The Gander Deal" made his first trip to St. John's and return, and he is very much pleased with her all-round good points.

Mrs. Robert Fowling returned from St. John's last week. Her daughter, Mrs. Lily and children came with her.

REGATTA COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the 1923 Regatta Committee will be held in the T.A. Armoury on Monday, June 16th, at 8.30 p.m., for the purpose of making arrangements for this year's Regatta.

CADETS DEFEAT STAR.

There was a large attendance present at St. George's Field last night to witness the football game between the Star and Cadets. The evening was ideal for football and although the game proved rather one-sided, ending in a victory for the Cadets by 6 goals to nil it might be said the tallness of the score was only a flash in the pan to the brand of football doled out. The Star eleven was composed of new material, and in making their initial appearance against a superior team, they played the game manfully and well and but for the fact of one or two of the Cadet forwards lying low, waiting an opportunity to get into the scoring column, which they succeeded in doing the margin would not have been so great. The Champions had all their regulars in action, and judging by their play both offensive and defensive, the team that defeats them will be compelled to step to the limit. Referee Brien called the players together at 7.40. In the first half the Cadets set up a lively pace, and during several stages of the game, had their opponents bewildered by the tricky play and timely passing, with the result that three goals were lodged home in short order. Walter Callahan being responsible for two, and brother "Bill," one. Time and again the Star lads made determined efforts to get the ball into their opponent's camp, but the stalwart defence set up by Kavanagh and Brown proved too much for them.

2nd Half
After a brief breathing spell play was resumed. The Cadets opened play with a determined attack and saw the leather confined to the Star danger zone. The Star goalie was called upon to save several well directed shots, and during the bombardment the Cadet forwards worked in. Walter Callahan was responsible for No. 4. Play was then confined to mid-field for a short period, only long enough though to find the ball driven back into Star territory. The Cadet forwards were combining nicely and soon increased their score to six; Flynn and Caul doing the needful. Towards the end of play the game lagged somewhat. The Star forwards made a few determined attacks on their opponent's goal, but they found Walsh unbeatable. Play on the whole was very good, and was devoid of any roughness. The game ended in a win for the Cadets by 6 goals to 0. The C.L.B. and C.E.I. will play for the points on Monday night next.

BASKET BALL.

Yesterday afternoon the challenge game of basket ball, between the Methodist College and Spencer College teams was played on the Ayre Athletic Grounds, at 4.30. Capt. L. E. M. Nash, of the Guides, was Referee. The teams were:—
Spencerians—Marion Wood (Capt.), Shirley Green, Vera Miller, Jean Hutchings and Dot Sellars; Spares: Bessie Williams, Gertrude Reid and Esther Gernell.
Collegeians—Muriel Lawrence (Captain), Rosa Peters, Phyllis Martin, Kathleen Ayre and Jean Johnson; Spares: Phyllis Randall. The afternoon being fine the girls enjoyed the game in the open air to great advantage. Every member of each team played the game, appreciated the exercise and good fellowship which, after all, is better than doing anything in order to win! The Spencerians were again victorious, scoring 14 points to the Collegeians' 2. One of the regular players of the latter team was unfortunately absent. The Ayre Grounds are ideal for sports of this sort and we hope that these games between the College girls' athletic teams will continue. They promote good sportsmanship and the exercise is developing strong and healthy bodies. What about a challenge tennis match next?

M. G. C. A.

A general meeting of the above Club will be held in the rooms on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock, when all arrangements will be finalized for the annual sports day, which take place on Monday afternoon next. The football sides will be drawn to-day. The preliminary will be run off at St. George's Field before and after the League football games on Monday and Tuesday evening's next. Entries for the various events are steadily coming in, and everything points to a successful and enjoyable day.

conditions, aside from political bombastics, are sound, and even in the latter aspect conditions are improving, as people recognize the ability and soundness of President Coolidge.

With 110,000,000 people almost fully employed and at high wages, thus insuring a big purchasing power for some time to come, and with stocks in the hands of producers, manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers, on the whole, not more than normal, we are now entering the period of the year when invariably there is a revival in business.

The purchasing power of the dollar is greater to-day than at any time during the past five or six years. Money is cheap and there is no danger of stringency for some time to come.

"Conditions abroad are on the mend and moving in this direction faster than we in America generally realize. There is a strong probability that the Dawes report will be adopted as the basis of the readjustment of the economic situation in Europe. This will give tremendous impetus to confidence and finally to business on the other side."

"There is practical assurance of the nomination of President Coolidge next week at Cleveland, and an almost equally assured probability that there will be elected in November."

"I cannot feel other than strongly bullish at this time on our whole situation, and that it is time the security market began to discount, at least in part, these favorable prospects."

Rules Given to Overcome Danger of Electric Shock

Chicago, June 11. (A.P.)—The rules for first aid in cases of high voltage shock are based on the fact that the victim's lungs become paralyzed, and success in saving life depends upon keeping up artificial respiration until normal breathing is resumed, Willis MacLachlan of the National Electric Light Association, told the American Medical Association's convention to-day.

"Since cases are on record of lives saved after three and one-half hours of artificial respiration, four hours of effort are recommended before artificial respiration is given up," he said. "The rules are as follows:—

"The victim is cleared from the current, either by shutting off the current, or pulling him away with the aid of rubber gloves, dry clothing, or sticks of wood, to serve as non-conductors. If it is necessary to cut the wire, a hatchet or implement with a wooden handle should be used and the operator should turn his face away to avoid the flash. The patient is then laid face down, with one arm up and the other supporting his face so that the mouth and nose are free from breathing. Artificial respiration should be begun at once, while an assistant loosens the clothing necessary, holds ammonia to the victim's nose and keeps him as warm as possible. If the victim must be moved, this should be done in a reclining position, and the artificial respiration should be kept up. After he resumes breathing, he should be watched, and if he stops, artificial respiration should be resumed. The prone pressure method is that in which the man applying first aid straddles the patient and presses both hands on the small of the victim's back, releasing the pressure rhythmically every two or three seconds, and imitating his own breathing as much as possible."

A Bond of Unity.

The movement undertaken by the International Magna Charta Day Association has for its initial aim the setting aside of one day in the year "to be observed as a memorial of the great outstanding event in human liberty, the influence of which is felt in every nation."

Seven hundred and nine years ago, in an assemblage at Runnymede the rights and privileges of the people of England were promulgated in a Charter to which their Sovereign Lord was compelled to give his assent.

From time to time other measures have been enacted with a view to extending the liberty of the subject, but one and all of the compilers have found their inspiration in, and have modelled their legislation upon the basic principles laid down in the historic Charter of British Liberty.

In these days when democratic institutions are no longer considered privileges but are claimed as a right, we fail to appreciate how remarkable was the action of those people who compiled the document which has indisputable right to be regarded as the most momentous in the whole of the annals of British History.

The most significant feature about Magna Charta is that it did not profess to introduce novel ideas, but in simple phraseology expressed what were the inalienable rights and privileges of the English people. In sentiment it was democratic without in any sense being revolutionary; it was the common voice of the people of every rank of society, and the fact that it originated with, and was carried into effect by the barons is striking testimony of that mutual sympathy and fellowship which have ever been, and it is to be hoped ever will be, the cohesive force which binds together the foundation stones of Freedom and Liberty upon which our constitution has been firmly built.

Since the days of the 13th century, English speaking peoples have established themselves in almost every corner of the globe. Many of them, in spite of their new environment and the distances which separated them from the Mother Country remained loyal to her institutions and her flag; others in course of time became an independent state, but all cherished and jealously guarded the great principles which were their common heritage, handed down to them by the same race.

It is too much to expect that these peoples of the same blood and sentiment, prompted by the same motives, and working for the same objects, should not unite their forces in the interest of humanity and give to the world a lasting peace? With such an idea in view, the Seven Nations, Great Britain and Ireland, Newfoundland, Canada, the United States, South Africa, New Zealand and Australia will celebrate to-morrow as Liberty Day. In the different churches of the Empire and the Great Republic appeals will be made for closer co-operation, and the prayer for unity and concord will be heard with a new significance by the thousands of worshippers, and will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of everyone.

Of Interest to Auto Owners

Goodyear Balloon tires make your car ride much easier, you are cushioned by a yielding pillow of air under each wheel.

Having so much wider surface in contact with the road they give remarkable traction and with their greatly improved cushioning they protect your car reducing vibration, bolts and nuts stay tight, rattles don't develop so quickly.

Goodyear Balloons give at least mileage equal to regular tires and do not puncture as easily; they do not affect gear ratio, power, speed, or hill climbing ability, and can be fitted to your present rims.

Fred V. Chesman of Goodyear Agencies Ltd., will gladly furnish further information regarding interchangeable tires, etc., and to introduce Goodyear Balloons will quote prices very close to those you pay for regular tires, and also arrange for disposal of your old tires.

Goodyear Balloons are on display at J. Coker's Showroom, Goodyear Agencies, Ltd., 178 Water Street, Phone 586-847.—June 13, 21

Misplaced Eloquence

At a race meeting a bookmaker was busy paying out a crowd of impatient creditors, and the combined effect of temperature, avoidpools, and financial losses was beginning to manifest itself in a growing shortness of temper.

A few minutes after settling up a very timid-looking man came up to him and, in a trembling half-whisper, said: "I'm afraid there's been a mistake about the money I won."

The bookmaker gave a pungent and trenchant summary of the man's intellectual shortcomings. The flow of oratory terminated in one long celestial belt of rhetoric.

"The little man was the centre of many pitying glances from the crowd, but he screwed up courage to speak. "Well, I'm sorry, very sorry," he said, apologetically, and with many nervous glances around him, "but you see, you gave me ten shillings too much."

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING JUNE 1924.

Attended to the landing of twenty head cattle from the "Sabie I." All the cattle were watered and taken care of by Mr. Halliday for the St. John's Abattoir Co. Also attended to the landing of 4 carloads cattle at the Railway Station. All the cattle were in good condition and were driven to pasture. I attended two sales of cattle at the St. John's Abattoir Co.'s yard. All were taken away immediately after the sale. Much difficulty has been experienced in leading these cattle through the streets singly, but the owners do their best to get them along without trouble. The Secretary of the Society has been corresponding with the agents of cattle and poultry which are often shipped here in an overcrowded condition, and they have seemed to give this matter their best attention. I humanely put to death a horse suffering from a fractured hip for a resident of the West End, also a cat for a lady on Pleasant Street, she afterwards subscribing $1 to the Society. Sent in two horses for treatment during the week. It has been remarked to me by a lady who has been a resident of St. John's for five years that she has taken a great interest in the dumb animals of the city, and she feels safe in saying that the horses of this city are to-day in better condition than they were five years ago when she came here. I am pleased to be able to endorse this statement. This is very creditable to owners of horses who are taking increased interest and pride in their teams as evidenced by their better physical condition, grooming and polished harness. The Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of St. John's and Mrs. Cook, have kindly placed their grounds Forest Road, at the Society's disposal for a garden party on Tuesday next. It is that all lovers of animals be present to encourage the work of caring for those who cannot speak for themselves. JONAS BARTER, Chief Agent.

Bring your friends, for Afternoon Tea, to the S.P.A. Garden Party next Tuesday. Tea tables in charge of Ladies you all know.

30,000 Miles for an Operation

Mr. P. Lockhart-Mummary, chairman of the British Empire Cancer Campaign, travelled 30,000 miles to the forbidden city of Khatmandu to perform an operation on the Maharajah of Nepal. According to a member of the party, the trip was full of incident. The engine of the express train carrying Mr. Lockhart-Mummary broke a connecting rod when travelling at fifty miles an hour, which, however, only caused a slight delay. From Raxaul the party were conveyed by motor car along the dry bed of a river running at the base of a deep ravine. A guard of armed horsemen accompanied them. Later in the day the party were transferred into pilkars and carried by coolies to Bhi Padi. They were again carried by coolies the next day, and crossed a pass in the Himalayas at an altitude of 8,000ft. Among the many wayfarers whom they passed were men carrying their wives strapped on their backs. Strangers are not permitted to enter or leave Khatmandu except with the special permission of the Maharajah.

'Some' Fish "Pulled up the tree. I suppose put in another man sarcastically. "More than that," went on other. "The roots of the oak tree so wide and deep that it took whole field as well. It's a question now." No man living has caught bigger fish than Mr. P. A. Mitchell Hodges, the sea angler, whose fame is world-wide. He is fair to admit, however, that even the biggest he has landed—and he has caught a sawfish weighing 5,700 lbs.—are quite small fry in comparison with some fish that other anglers say have got away from them. For instance, a man told a story in his hearing of how he once tackled a fish so big that no ordinary line was any use. "At last," this champion fish went on, "I tried three-inch rope, and hooked him. He was too strong for me to land, so I tied the rope round a huge oak tree in a field which I went for help. When I got back the fish had gone." DISTEMPER. A tablespoon of Minard's in one of molasses mixed with the brush mash will give quick relief. MINARD'S 'KING OF PAINT' LINIMENT

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

June 13th.—Lay long, being mighty weary from the parade of the night before, albeit my wife out of sympathy for me and calls me lazy. So up and to the Board of Trade, where Capt. Kean discourses with me and his talk of the book which England, the American novelist, did write of the seal-fishery, and is indeed, the greatest exaggeration, in parts, that ever I did hear of. The Captain tells me also divers tales of the seal fishery, mighty interesting. Since the election little news anywhere, and the town is now the dulllest place possible, being no life in anyone or anything. In the evening, the weather grown fine, to play at tennis. Lord, how chasteable is my luck, that on one day I may be among the best players, and on another, one of the worst, and indeed, it seems impossible for me to maintain the one standard form. Anon to drive around the pond in my motor coach, and to watch the crews at practice for the Halk Regatta. The bands playing, many to dance on an improvised floor, and the manner of their dancing amusing beyond all writing, almost. By special despatches this evening comes news of G. Donnerstag, a former Premier, he elected President of the French Republic, and indeed, a great surprise to many, all expectations being that the honour would fall on Painleve.

YOUR GIRL

Will take a real interest and make a success of the fine art of cooking if you provide her with the necessary equipment at home. Just because her grandmother used an old-fashioned coal stove is no reason why the young generation should be burdened down with it. If your kitchen is equipped with a "SMOOTHTOP" VULCAN GAS RANGE, fitted with a Modern Heat Regulator, perfect results are certain.

Try this recipe for NUT BREAD: 4 cups flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup English walnuts, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add the chopped nuts. Add milk and well beaten eggs. Put in two buttered pans and let stand 20 minutes. Set your oven heat regulator at 375 degrees and bake for 20 minutes. ### Mate of Windjammer Puts in Stirring Year

Seattle, Wash., June 9. (A.P.)—Mutiny on the high seas, typhoons, and Chinese pirates were among the experiences which the last year allotted Fred N. Troup, first officer of the five-masted schooner "Tseng Tai" which, flying the flag of the Chinese republic, has been docked here loading lumber.

Troup, whose home is at Puyallup, Wash., near Seattle, signed last summer as first officer on the American schooner Levi W. Ostrander. When her name was changed to Tseng Tai and Chinese took over the vessel, Troup became master. On a voyage from Shanghai to Foochow the schooner ran into a typhoon which sent her heaving for safety under bare masts.

On a second voyage to Foochow, the schooner touched at the port of Quantow. While it was lying at anchor Chinese bandits appeared.

"The Danish chief mate and I were the only white men aboard," recalled Troup. "Each of us had an automatic. I fired 22 times. Some fell; I couldn't count how many. My Chinese crew of 28 were caught in their quarters and three were slain. We managed to get in a motor boat and escape." Later they regained their ship, which the pirates had deserted after removing everything portable.

The Tseng Tai was refitted and held under the Admiralty courts while salvage claims were contested. Under a new ownership Troup went to Puget Sound with her as first officer. On the way the crew mutinied, but the trouble was quelled and the men responsible for it put in irons to be delivered to the police at Vancouver, B.C.

World's Biggest Reservoir

Thousands of men and tons of human-like machinery are transforming an area nearly four times that of the British Empire Exhibition grounds into the largest storage reservoir of its kind in the world at Littleton, near Laleham, Middlesex.

The reservoir, one of the marvels of British engineering enterprises, has been rendered necessary by the ever-increasing population in the area served by the Metropolitan Water Board.

About 6,750,000,000 gallons of water will be stored in the reservoir which has a circumference of nearly four miles, and covers a water surface of about 723 acres. The raw river water from the Thames, after a "period of storage in the new Littleton reservoir, will gravitate to the works at Kempton Park.

Magnificent pumping machinery to deal with the filtered water will be erected at Kempton Park. The maximum pumping capacity of the engines will be 16,000,000 gallons of water each 24 hours against a head of 300 feet.

More than 2,000 men are employed on the works to-day. There are 22 miles of railway track, 20 locomotives, and about 400 wagons, trucks, and other rolling plant. The coal consumption for the various operations amounts to about 150 tons weekly.

On the site of the new reservoir stood the major portion of the old village of Littleton, with its 1,200-year-old manor, which has now, with other buildings being submerged under 30 feet of water.

Gliders From the Sky

DESCENTS FROM AERIAL LINERS.

Motorless sky tenders are to be used on the great Eastern Railway between Berlin and Tokio for the use of passengers desiring to alight at any of the intermediate "halts" which are to be established along the route at suitable intervals.

When the place at which the descent is to be made is approached the travellers will take their places in the tender slung on special tackle beneath the cabin of the sky-liner.

The giant parent aeroplanes will descend to a suitable height from the altitude at which it will normally fly, and the speed, which on the average will be about 150 miles an hour, will be reduced to one at which the tender can be safely launched.

Warned By Wireless.

The releasing lever will then be pulled, and the passengers in the tender will find themselves drifting gently eastward to the landing-ground below, the staff of which will have been informed by wireless from the airplane that a descent is to be made to set down passengers.

This method has been adopted in order to save time, as it is intended, by flying at night as well as during the day, to bring Japan within three days' journey of Berlin. Already the airway between Berlin and Moscow has been flown over successfully, and steps are being taken to establish a long chain of lights for the guidance of pilots travelling at night.

When the service is established it will be possible, in conjunction with the airline that links up Croydon with Berlin, to reach Tokio in about four days.

Marjorie Hutchings Appearing at the Nickel Monday

TALENTED ST. JOHN'S CONTRALTO OPENING SHORT SEASON.

The management of the Nickel Theatre announces with pleasure that it has secured the services of Miss Marjorie Nightingale Hutchings, a gifted local Contralto who will appear on Monday, singing operatic and popular song successes. Miss Hutchings possesses a beautifully rich Contralto voice and we bespeak for her a successful season at this theatre.

Monday's attraction is an extraordinary entertainment, being Ethel Clayton's supreme starring vehicle, "Can A Woman Love Twice"? See the startling answer in this sensationally dramatic photoplay—this master picture which delves deep down into the very heart of a wonderful woman whose mother-love made her strong and brave enough to practise a great deception, yet whose girl-heart made her just a love-hungry woman after all. This is a picture that tells something—a photodrama that carries a mighty message in a blaze of utter entertainment.

Stirring battle scenes and a mighty dynamite explosion furnish spectacular thrills, but even these are overshadowed by the emotional magnitude of the sheer drama that the film contains. This is a magnificent photoplay that no man, woman or child in St. John's should miss.

Doing Away With Sleep

Two medical men are collaborating in an attempt to abolish sleep.

The human brain, according to these men, is a sort of storage battery, and while it continues to supply electric energy to other parts of our organism, we do not feel sleepy. It is when the electricity is exhausted that we become tired.

Accordingly, the experimenters have concluded that, if we can recharge the brain battery, the necessity for sleep will vanish. Presently, therefore, instead of going to bed, we will sit down, apply an electric current to the brain-cells, and in about a quarter of an hour be ready to start another day's work.

"The Stranger of the North"

UNUSUAL FILM OPENING AT MAJESTIC MONDAY.

The programme at this Theatre tonight is Wallace Reid's noted starring vehicle "Shorty's Clever Ruse" and is intensely interesting from start to finish. Misses Habel and McShane will again render their brilliant violin and singing act which is indeed a treat.

"The Stranger of the North" is the title of the great Canadian photoplay which has been secured by the Majestic Theatre for showing on Monday next. The film is an achievement of the Canadian Maritime Motion Picture Co., Ltd., a company in which many of our people are interested as stock-holders. The production shows very clearly that moving pictures can be made in Canada with just as good results as those made in Hollywood, Calif. John W. Noble who directed the film is also credited with its story and scenario.

The featured player in this photoplay is Richard C. Travers, others in the cast being Ruth Dwyer, DeSacha Moore, Pat Hardigan, Chas. Graham, James McDuff, Louis Dean and a regiment of Militia, the Cape Breton Highlanders. "The Stranger of the North" derives its title from the fact that the country (Nova Scotia) was originally settled by natives of Scotland and to-day retains much of the flavour of Scotland. Beautiful beyond description and among the most picturesque spots on the North American Continent, Cape Breton has heretofore escaped the motion picture camera. So far as is known this country appears for the first time as the locale of a film play.

Turkey Needs Women Doctors

Constantinople, May 13 (A.P.)—The great need in Turkey for female doctors, because male physicians are forbidden to attend orthodox Moslem women, has led Dr. George E. Vincent, director of the Rockefeller Foundation here, to consider the extension of the American training school for nurses and the American Medical College for Women.

Snobs in Society

Good Tales by an American Author.

Society, with a capital S, has a strange fascination for some people, as the following story shows. A certain gilded American youth, well known in New York, had just returned from a trip abroad when, two days after his arrival home, there came to him a letter bearing a ducal coronet. It had been forwarded from the hotel he stayed at in London before sailing for America, and was from the Duchess of Marlborough inviting him to spend the week-end at Blenheim a fortnight hence.

So he booked an immediate return passage, arrived at his destination in time for the house-party, and had the supreme joy of writing fifty letters to his friends on stationery bearing the magic name of his hostess's wonderful estate.

To Impress the Guests.

The above story, told by Elizabeth Marbury in "My Crystal Ball," is countered by another in similar vein told about an Englishman. He was a company director with an ambitious wife, who never allowed her visitors to forget that Princess Christian had once dropped in informally to see her.

"When lunching at various times at her house," writes the authoress, "I observed that the meal was invariably interrupted by a note requiring an answer, brought in and announced as written by a Royal Highness, or by a duke or duchess."

This little comedy was staked with an automatic precision, and served its purpose as a rule by impressing the guests gathered around the table.

A Kneel-Kissed Man.

Another good tale is told of an American naval officer, Lieut. Hobson, who, when he returned home after performing certain courageous deeds in the Spanish-American war, was rewarded with a perfect orgy of kissing.

The popular hero was kissed from New York to San Francisco, three thousand miles across the continent, and back again by way of New Orleans. Every American woman, married or single, who could get anywhere near him, tried her level best to embrace him at least once.

More than nine hundred thousand kisses, the newspapers reckoned, had been bestowed upon him, and speculation was at fever-heat as to the possibility of his reaching the million mark, when the United States naval authorities suddenly woke up to the absurdity of the situation and bundled him off post-haste to the Philippines.

What His Wife Said.

Before departing, however, he addressed a farewell meeting in Chicago, when so great was the enthusiasm that the lieutenant was forthwith kissed by an additional three thousand women. When Mrs. Hobson was asked whether she objected to this, she replied: "Not in the very least. I infinitely prefer to have my husband kissed once by three thousand women than that he should be kissed three thousand times by one woman."

"This, as the authoress remarks, was a case of Mrs. Hobson's choice!"

Commercial Failures in Canada

Unlike the returns for the United States, the Canadian insolvency statement for May shows decreases in both number and liabilities of commercial failures from the totals for the same month of 1923. Thus, last month's defaults in Canada, according to the returns to R. G. Dunn & Co., numbered 162 and had an indebtedness of $3,524,146, whereas the number for May, 1923, was 262 and the amount involved $4,622,960. Last month's figures also show reductions from the 308 failures for $4,870,794 of May, 1922. Fewer defaults occurred last month than in May, 1923, among both manufacturers and traders, while the indebtedness also was smaller in each instance. In other commercial lines the number of failures was the same in each year, but there was a considerable increase in liabilities last month.

The Canadian insolvency statistics for May are compared herewith for a series of years:

Year	No.	Liabilities
1924	162	$3,524,146
1923	262	4,622,960
1922	303	3,070,794
1921	137	3,551,437

Cemetery Committee

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Mount Carmel Cemetery Committee was held last night, those present being Messrs. M. F. Caul, Chairman; John Dalton, P. Grace, Jas. McGrath, M. Cole, N. Callahan, D. Whittle and M. Bulger. Treasurer Dalton presented a statement of expenditures and receipts in connection with the Cemetery, which was passed unanimously.

It showed that despite the fact that the actual earning power of the Committee is within fifty per cent. of the amount necessary for the upkeep of the resting place of our beloved dead, and yet, through the strenuous efforts of the gentlemen appointed by His Grace Archbishop Roche, to conduct the affairs of the Cemetery, they were able (through the generosity of those of our citizens whose loved ones are interred in the beautiful slopes of Mount Carmel) to liquidate in full the outstanding loan and in addition to carry forward a small amount toward this year's upkeep. The Committee is to be congratulated upon their great work—which is done voluntarily—but at the same time they are gratefully cognizant of the deep interest which His Grace the Archbishop displays in the Cemetery, as well as of the whole-hearted enthusiasm of those of our citizens, both Catholic and Protestant who are so keenly interested in the resting place of the dead. Without the tangible support and interest of citizens generally, it is appreciated that the efforts of the committee would be futile.

It was hoped that this year would be undertaken the completion of the retaining wall—around the new ground by the Lake side, but in view of the shortened finances it was thought expedient that this matter should be deferred until next year, especially in view of the fact that certain expenditures have to be immediately made in connection with the Mortuary Chapel fences, new walks,

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the election of M. F. Caul, as Chairman, P. J. Grace, Secretary and John Dalton, as Treasurer, who this year again ask the whole-soul co-operation of all citizens in the upkeep of "The Garden of the Dead", as has been given in the past.

Those interested in Mt. Carmel and Belvedere are reminded that the annual collection will be taken up at all Masses in the Parish to-morrow. No doubt the response will be generous.

It is hard to find a more tempting, appetizing dish than fresh codfish fried in Crisco.—advt.

Be Well--with this simple food

The example illustrated here is typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low, so that the skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invisibly clearing the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)

—before breakfast and at bedtime, Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain. Write us for further information or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: The Fleischmann Company, 261 Duckworth Street, St. John's, N.F.

Fleischmann's Yeast comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it to-day! A few days' supply will keep fresh in your ice box as well as in the grocer's.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST IS MADE IN CANADA.

"I am a graduate nurse. Back in 1911 while in charge of an operating room, I was afflicted with boils. I tried many remedies—still boils came, and I got run down and unable to carry on. Finally a physician told me to take Yeast. That was twelve years ago, and I have never had a boil since. I have used Fleischmann's for hundreds of patients and for any number of different ailments. I am glad to say that twelve years have not dimmed my enthusiasm for Fleischmann's Yeast or staled my appreciation of what it has done for me and for others in the course of my professional life."

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHO'S TO BE BLAMED!

I heard a woman in a trolley car the other day making a very indignant comment to her companion because an Inn to which she wanted to go was not willing to take her with her three children.

"I don't know what the world is coming to," she said, "when children are discriminated against like that. It's an outrage. I think there ought to be a law against it. I don't see how anyone can feel that way about children."

As I listened, I thought of some tales that a woman who goes every year to some summer Inn had told me in this connection.

Here are some of them.

In one Inn where she was staying, half a dozen guests were sitting in the living room when a child came down the stairs, sat down at the piano and commenced playing scales. "Mother told me to practice," she explained when remonstrated with. And she continued doing it every day until formal remonstrance was made to the manager.

Mother Wanted A Nap.
On another occasion a little girl was running the phonograph, putting on record after record of jazz music while the guests were all gathered around the fire on a rainy afternoon. After awhile someone asked her if her mother knew what she was doing. "Oh yes," she answered, "she told me to stop bothering her and come down here and do this. She wanted to take a nap."

This same woman was disturbed for several nights at a large hotel where she was staying by a baby crying, and asked one of the attendants to whom the child belonged. He told her the name of the mother. "Why, that's queer," she said, "I thought she had rooms in the other wing of the hotel. I was sure I had seen her coming from there." "That's right, ma'am," said the attendant. "That's where she and her husband have their rooms. It's just the nurse and the baby that are down this end. She has the baby here so it won't disturb her husband. He's a very light sleeper."

The Infant Terrible.
Still another case in my own experience was that of an infant terrible of five years old who grabbed away people's books, rushed up behind and startled elderly ladies, slipped into people's rooms and examined the contents of their bureau drawers, knocked the balls out of place when grown ups were trying to play croquet, and otherwise endeared himself to a household of guests while his parents and grandparents looked on blandly and refused to try to control or discipline him. The climax came when he crawled along the fire escape into a lady's room and turned the key in her bathroom door locking her in (in her tubling costume, by the way) for several hours. The host at that Inn does not take children any longer unless he knows just what kind of children they are.

The Innocent Always Suffer.
Hard on the other children? Yes, but the penalties which the people who abuse privileges break down on people who would be considerate are always hard on the innocent. It's not because all children are ill mannered and undisciplined and make life uncomfortable that the Inn keeper charges high for children or refuses to have them. It's because some parents do not do their duty. And isn't it they that the lady should have been cross at rather than the Inn keepers who are afraid to take children?

Caplin were rolling in the beaches here this morning in fair quantities, and were considered an extra good run of caplin. Later in the season, it is usual that we find them putting in their first appearance.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Sheppard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sheppard, formerly of this town, and Mr. A. Gordon Watson, of Revere, Mass., is announced to take place at Revere, on Monday next, June 16th. Quite a few former Harbor Gracians will be present at this event. ## Last Government Controlled Wool Disposed Of

On April 30, the last bale of wool remaining from the British government wool control scheme was sold, and thus ended the government's intervention in the wool market originated in 1916 as a war measure. As reported to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its English Information Service, in July, 1920, when the government control scheme came to an end, it was found that 2,908,000 bales of wool from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Falkland Islands were left in the hands of the authorities. The task of marketing this large carry-over in a way not to endanger the wool market, was skillfully performed by the British-Australian Wool Realization Association. Under the wool control scheme 9,895,000 bales of colonial wool were dealt in at a profit, estimated at par of exchange, of $340,620,000. There was great danger that the residue of 2,908,000 bales in 1920 if thrown on to the market under conditions of unrestricted competition, would have depressed wool prices to uncommercial levels and made wool growing unprofitable. This danger was avoided through the operations of the B.A.W.R.A. To-day, it is stated by those informed regarding the wool industry, that there is an underproduction of wool.

Appropriate Hymns

Mr. A. G. Bradley, the well-known writer tells a couple of good stories concerning his schoolboy days at Marlborough College.

On one occasion (says Mr. Bradley), I remember that the late Dr. W. G. Grace played in a match at Marlborough, and marvellous to relate, the famous cricketer was bowled out by a schoolboy first ball.

Whereupon the choir at service that evening sang a hymn containing the boastfully significant lines "The scanty triumphs Grace hath won!"

On another occasion two Marlborough bowlers named Wood and Stone played havoc with the wickets of a visiting team from Cheltenham, and the choir celebrated the occasion by singing, "The heathen in his blindness bows down to Wood and Stone!"

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with headaches. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and run a rooming house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it."—Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 208 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, headache, lack of ambition and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

SEVEN YEARS IN THE TEACHING PROFESSION.

One stands forth in Reason's glorious light. In his own proud consciousness of right, he sets his faults, his virtues does not boast. He creates—and himself the most. He turns with swelling heart, and fares the fates. He firm resolve upon his purpose sets. He shares the happiness for the deed; and he whose toll, pits that against dull care. He labors hard at his task each day, to teach the youth, the unerring ray. He says: "Go forth into the markets here. Carry kindly words of cheer. Gentle, honest, staunch and true, you shall give their love to you. In seven years in the teaching profession, such is the record of Mr. P. J. Patrick, the one and only English Catholic teacher to have held that proud distinction in the annals of Canada. His brother seniors honored him by holding a banquet in his honor and presenting with a souvenir of the occasion. The banquet was held at the Knights Columbus Hall, Mountain Street, and attended by School Board members, teachers and friends. Mr. J. Gallagher, of the Edward Murphy School, was the Chairman, and an ideal toast master. Among the present were: Mr. Rev. Msgr. Donnelly, D.P., of St. Anthony's School, Commissioner, Dr. E. J. C. Murphy, and Joseph T. McLaughlin, School Commissioners. Rev. Martin J. School Visiting, Provincial Inspector of Schools, T. Murphy; Mr. Edward Quinn, the popular bass singer, and the Jubilarian; Mr. Patrick of the Normal School; Mr. D. J. Principal, Edward Murphy of Mr. W. J. Brennan, Principal of the School; Mr. Daniel Carter, of St. Thomas Aquinas School, who were made by Msgr. Donnelly, Kennedy, J. T. McLaughlin, Provincial Inspector, J. Cuddeby, Lynn, Patrick and Denis Malloy, Mr. Ed. Quinn. A choice of vocal and instrumental music was given under the direction of J. I. McCaffery, Organist of St. Charles. The teachers present their veteran confere with a gold-headed cane, suitably bed, and a set of pipes. Mr. Patrick replied in a happy strain, and one and all for the great shown him. "Fitz," as he is commonly called by the teachers, is still going strong in his profession and has no notion of retiring to go on the pension list, as the salary would be too small to supply his large family of nine. A plea was made at the banquet to try and get an allowance each year from the Commissioners which, added to his pension, would allow him a decent living wage. The three Commissioners present at the celebration promised to support the cause. Mr. Fitzpatrick is married to a Miss Thomey, formerly of Harbor Grace.

THE SAILORS' CLUB HAD A BANNER YEAR.

The Sailors' Institute and the Catholic Sailors' Institute had a banner year in the point of attendance and finances. The Catholic Sailors' Club is undergoing a thorough renovation. The concert hall will be considerably enlarged, and shower baths added, together with new recreation rooms. When finished it will be one of the finest places in the Dominion for the use and benefit of the brave toilers of the deep. The work is well supported in Montreal and at the weekly concerts the hall in both institutions are crowded with sailors and citizens, and the fine performances are thoroughly enjoyed. A few evenings ago the Belmont Club boys gave the sailors their annual concert and, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, they played before 1,300, 600 citizens and 700 seamen. Over one hundred were obliged to stand during the two hours performance. The applause at times was deafening as the youngsters went through a variety performance of over twenty items consisting of solos, choruses, individual and class recitations, songs, two boxing matches, funny stunts, and a dialogue. Mr. J. Ritchie Bell, the Manager, paid a glowing tribute to the youngsters' work, and said that they gave the sailors and their friends two hours of real enjoyment. Mr. Frank J. Jackman acted as Chairman.

TOO MANY OF THEM WASTE THEIR TALENTS.

The aspirations of too many of the youths are on the down grade. The home education is being sadly neglected. Too much freedom to wander the streets at all hours of the night, getting into trouble with bad companions, going to questionable theatres and movies, they become pleasure mad. At school, they are there in body only, while their minds wander to scenes foreign to their school work. They are listless, inattentive and dreaming half their time in class, but oh! when they reach the streets they seem to be not like "dumb driven cattle," but actually crazy for fun, even at the risk of plunging themselves in front of autos and auto trucks. Too many of our youths are throwing away many of the talents which God has given them, especially in the line of music. The Daily Telegraph says: "When we educate children, we train them to form aspirations which in some way or another must be satisfied. It is not a matter of indifference, it is of high importance to the nation, and these aspirations should be gratified wholesomely, that a love of music, for example, should find something better to hear than vulgar noise, that a taste for drama should not be compelled to feed on buffonery and cowboys. We increase our national resources and we build up more vigorous minds and richer characters in the children of the future, and that is not done without fostering a love of art in schools and of providing means for its development. In this age of machinery and of routine tasks, we need, if we are to have a contented and happy people, all the aid that the arts can give us and bring light and color into the hours of leisure."

Constantinople Going to the Rats

During the last few days I have heard some significant statements about the present condition of Constantinople. A traveller from eastern Europe told me that the place was described to him by an old British resident in the Levant as, to all appearance, a dying city. Owing to the flight of Greeks, Armenians, and other foreign residents, the streets are deserted. For want of repairs and paint the houses are everywhere shabby and dilapidated—many empty and unsafe. The worst feature of all was the plague of rats, which swarmed everywhere, particularly in people's bedrooms at night.

An English officer describes another aspect of the place, as a warning to intending visitors—particularly from western Europe. He refers specially to the disappearance of the traditional respect for the English on the part of the natives, the annoyance and extortion practised in connection with the passport system, and the blackmailing carried on by the owners of shore boats. "The man who rows a passenger out to his steamer, after agreeing to the amount to be paid, will drop his oars midway on the passage and refuse to go until he has received six times the agreed amount. Worse things than this seem to be happening. The same witness writes:

"A lady, a subject of one of the chief European Powers, while walking in the street with her husband, met three Turks, apparently well-to-do. One of them pinched her as he passed the lady's husband remonstrated. The police appeared on the scene and took them all to the police-station. There the husband was detained, while his wife and the three Turks were sent away.

Next day the lady returned to the police station, when the police flatly denied all knowledge of the affair, and asserted that they had never seen her before. All the efforts made by the Embassy of one of the most powerful countries in the world have failed up to now to elicit any trace of the missing husband. Constantinople was not the safest place in the world before the war, but I never heard anything quite equal to this—Truth.

Gold Lettered London Sun Treasured

VANCOUVER, B.C.—(Can. Press)—Although the printing art has made great strides in the past century, few more attractive editions of a daily newspaper have been produced in this modern day than the copy of "The Sun," of London, England, of July 10, 1838, owned by David Kiama, of this city.

It was published on the day of Queen Victoria's Coronation and in honor of that occasion the front and back pages were printed in gold ink, which to this day has preserved its lustre. Almost half of the front page is devoted to a magnificent steel engraving of a medallion of the young queen. Like the London Press of today, the cost-of-arms appears at the head of the front page.

Whatever interesting events may have been going on in England and the remainder of the world on that memorable day are not narrated in "The Sun," of July 10, 1838, its entire space is devoted to the Coronation.
