Word has been received here that the Schooner Charles H. Sprague, loaded with lumber by Messrs. A. D. Mills & Son, which sailed Saturday last from this Port bound for Porto Rico, sprang a leak and filled while off West Quoddy Head early Sunday morning during a south east gale and driving rainstorm. She put into Quoddy Bay and anchored, but being in danger of capsizing in the heavy sea, slipped her anchor and tried to make the upper bay, but grounded on the point near the Government break water where she lay in a dangerous position on a rocky reef. Later a tug went to the aid of the schooner and pulled her off the reef and towed her into the upper bay where there was smoother water.

Mrs. Wm. DeBlois, who is now living in Windsor, where her daughter is attending school, is in town.

The Hallow'een spirit was abroad last Thursday evening and groups of our light hearted young folk could be seen, some wearing their way to the were out on mischief bent. Platforms, gates and other articles easily lifted were carried hither and there, while door bells rang and the usual pranks indulged in. It is a pity that our young people carry their fun sometimes past the mark of a joke. No person who has been young himself, feels objection to the Hallow'een fun, but where damage is done to personal property, fun ceases. We note a reward of five dollars is offered by one of our citizens who seems determined to trace the mischief done to his personal property.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Winchester who have spent the summer on their farm at Lower Granville returned to town on Friday.

Mrs. Gombel Crowe of Middleton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Edwards.

The Social and Tea held by the ladies of St. Louis, R. C. Church last Wednesday evening proved a financial success notwithstanding the rain which fell in torrents during the afternoon and evening. Seventy five dollars was taken at the doors. To clean off the balance of the food left over, a fifteen cent tea was given again on Friday evening when the amount taken made a total of one hundred and five dollars. The ladies of the Church whose membership amounts to about twelve families, are to be congratulated upon the success of their work.

OUR COUNTY ASSESSMENTS.

To the Editor of the Monitor.

Were the allegation to be made that fully half of the property in this county escapes taxation simply because it happens to be owned by a few influential individuals or corporations and that almost the entire burden of taxation falls upon the small property owners while their favored wealthy neighbors are practically exempt, the allegation would doubtless be received with surprise.

At the present time when the assessment for the various districts is being prepared for the ensuing year, I desire through your columns to draw the attention of the public to a few flagrant cases of injustice of this kind, with the hope that publicity may effect a most needed reform.

By the provisions of the Assessment Act it is required that property shall be assessed for taxation at its "actual value." At first blush, it may appear unimportant what standard of valuation is chosen providing all the property in the County liable to taxation, be assessed by the same standard, and little objection is commonly made to the practice followed in this County, of assessing property at from one half to two thirds the actual value.

A moment's reflection, however will convince that there is a sinister motive behind this apparent injustice.

If property is assessed at half its value then the man with $1,000 of property escapes the payment of taxes upon $500. At the same time his $100,000 neighbor escapes taxation upon $50,000.

The one obtains protection and public service for $500, without cost and the protection upon $50,000 gratuitously. The small owner could much better afford to be assessed at full value providing the rate of taxation was proportionately reduced by the full value assessment of his prosperous neighbor.

Anything but a full value assessment discriminates against the poor man.

But this is not the most serious injustice under which the small property holder of Annapolis County labors at the present time.

It is an actual fact that while the small owners are assessed at from one half to three quarters of the actual cost of their property, an entire different and much smaller standard is taken for the holdings of many of the more wealthy and influential.

In this and a subsequent letter I desire to call attention to a few of the more flagrant cases of discrimination in this kind actually practiced in Annapolis County.

In Springfield are the headquarters of the Assessment Commission, a company which a few years ago purchased the mill property and timber areas of the Davisons of Bridgewater at a figure reported to have been one million and a half dollars. This concern is engaged in stripping this portion of the Province of its wood and shipping the product, in an almost raw condition to the United States. The management has paid the taxes on the sales of the Company last year amounting to the tidy sum of 91,000 000.

Turning to the assessment roll for polling district No. 25, which is the district in which the bulk of the Company's property is located, we find the Company's property assessed at the extravagant figure of 912 825.

Let us hurriedly examine the assets of this corporation located in this district. My inventory must of course be far from exhaustive and I will endeavor to place my valuations well within the mark.

From the roll we find that the assessor places the Company's acreage of land in this district at 1,000 acres and this is probably an extremely modest estimate.

This heavily wooded timber land is probably worth $50 per acre, but to be conservative we will place its value at $25 per acre or a total value of $25,000.

At Hastings is a magnificent mill built by the Company at a cost of $500,000. The Company ships 50,000 000 feet of lumber annually or an average production of about 1,000,000 feet per week.

I am informed that the lumber kept on hand at Springfield averaged 20,000,000 feet but we will put it at 12,000,000. This at $12 per thousand feet, which is the minimum figure for which this lumber is sold, would amount to $144,000.

One of the many assets of this concern is a splendidly equipped railway service consisting of thirty miles of railroad and valuable rolling stock. Probably twenty miles of this road is located in the Springfield district, but we will say fifteen miles to be quite within the mark. Upon a road similar to this the Nova Scotia government leftarranted a few years ago by placing a loan of $10,000 per mile but we will value this road at $8,000 per mile or a total value for the 15 miles of $120,000.

The Company owns five powerful locomotives. The new locomotive recently purchased by the B. A. R. Company cost $15,000 but we will estimate these at $10,000 apiece, or $50,000 for the five. The cost of ordinary flat cars is something like $500 per car. The 120 logging cars of the Davison Lumber Company are more costly and we will place their value in their present condition at $700 per car aggregating $84,000.

The Company's steam log loaders are probably as valuable as their locomotives. There will place their cost at $8,000 each or $24,000 for the three.

The little town of Hastings with a population of about two hundred and fifty people is also owned entirely by the company. Beside the mill located here there are thirty or more dwellings, a large cook house, a thoroughly equipped machine shop and much other property of various kinds.

The Company also owns every foot of the little town of Crossburn. Here there is something over twenty dwelling houses, three schools, the officials being fitted up with hot water heating appliances and other modern improvements. There is also located here a store building, a station house a cook house, railway station a sound house, a machine shop and other buildings. The assessors place this little town at $500 or less than the cost of one dwelling.

ST. JOHN, November 2.—Ernest Wilson, a 36 year old cigarette fiend, was this morning sentenced to five years in Dorchester penitentiary on the charge of theft. He made a statement in court that excessive cigarette smoking was the cause of his downfall, and he smoked no less than one hundred and three one day, taking one after the other. Recently he went from home to home and was allowed to roam through the residences claiming to be the electric light wire and telephone inspector. From every place, he stated, he stole articles. When sentence was pronounced this morning he made a dramatic fall to the room floor in a hake faint. After being carried out of the court by the police, and finding he had no sympathy, he revived and merely told those near him that

Mary Ann the Unlucky.

How Her Ill Luck Turned to Good Fortune.

Nature had developed Mary Ann on large physical lines, noteworthy in regard to her pedal extremities and hands. Perhaps her mouth also might be included in the general extension, but its broadening effect was somewhat mitigated by two enormous dimples which were constantly in evidence. Her hair—well, some people are sensitive respecting too much description. We will call it bright in color, with a tendency to curl.

All in all, which was considerable, Mary Ann was good to look upon, even as the gorgeous pumpkin in the glad harvest days.

So thought Jefferson Gill, who was as conspicuous for elongation as Mary Ann was for rotundity. He drove a baker's cart along the outlying highway, invariably halting at the gate before the cleanly farmhouse of Mary Ann's father, with the loud creak of his vociferous.

Not that he had effected sales of any account, but a glass of cool milk was much to his taste and other considerations.

Mary Ann was possessed of what is known as a "falling foot." To be more explicit, she stumbled easily and apparently with little provocation. This was a source of much mortification and some damage, the latter, however, being mainly confined to articles she fell with or people she fell on. Her early experience had guided her to the art of letting herself go the moment her equilibrium became displaced, and now she could flop down almost gracefully and hardly break an egg in the basket. But it was a mortification to the flesh and considering her size, it must have been a great mortification.

She favored Jefferson. It was a full year since that fall in the road behind the baker's cart, when, with a cream cake in each hand, the slipping upon a round stone and the attraction of gravitation had launched her suddenly upon the angular form of Mr. Gill as he scooped over to pick up a nickel she had dropped.

A natural anxiety for the cream cakes caused a rather heavier settlement than usual, and Mr. Gill suffered accordingly. But as he was very polite he accepted apologies profusely and after being brushed off with a broom took two more cream cakes from his stock, set upon the piazza with Mary Ann, and ate them so slowly, though gaspingly, for his respiration was badly affected for several minutes. This was a long past incident now and acquaintance had ripened into affection. Jefferson's life was lonely, he had a snug sum in the bank and lately his mind dwelt largely on Mary Ann. "Going to be a circus," he announced one warm afternoon, "Saturday. Want to go?"

The hand holding out the glass of milk she had brought unclasped in excitement. "No!" cried the object of his attentions. "Oh, murder! What did I drop that for? Let me get the mop."

As she hurried in from the porch Jefferson gazed mournfully at his shoe and the white stream trickling over the floor. "I'm half afraid to take her," he muttered. "She's sure to have something happen. Never did I see her like for dropping things and falling down. It's her way, though," he added gallantly, "and she'll get over it. Growned too fast; that's all."

The appearance of Mary Ann with mop, however, a fresh offering from the dairy and a joyful smile dispelled his annoyances. She gave a couple of vigorous wipes with the mop, then fell upon her knees and scrubbed the soiled shoe with great energy.

"It's too bad! I'm awful sorry, Jeff. Leaked in on your sooking, didn't it? Of course I'll go to the show. Ain't it the stupidest thing? Pa says I'll be the death of somebody yet! I'll wear my new hat."

"Don't," he said gently. "I hate to see you doing that."

The girl looked up quickly, then down, and rubbed harder than before. That rapid glance in the blue eyes made Mr. Gill's heart flutter wildly. He saw a blush stealing down the white neck. He had stooped to her white wrist and clasped it firmly. "No, Mary Ann," he whispered, "I can't bear for you to be cleaning my shoes. I don't mind," whispered the girl. But she rose obediently and suddenly turned from him. "They call me 'Mary Ann the Unlucky,'" he heard her murmur. "Hebe!" She pulled her hand away, brushed by him into the house, and he saw her eyes were full very much unlike Mary Ann. "Be ready at 3 o'clock, Saturday," he called after her.

"All right, Jeff," came back a smothered reply, and Mr. Gill departed in some bewilderment.

"I must have grabbed her too hard," he mused anxiously. "I don't know I didn't mean to hurt her. Pah! I was just going to say something."

Jefferson felt pride in Mary Ann. He had altered her for she had succeeded fully through the crowd. She had enjoyed herself hugely and been sparing in her demands for peanuts and caramels and had not broken down the seat as upon a former occasion.

Now the circus was, oh, and her warm arm nestled him or toward the entrance of the grounds as they chuckled and laughed outright in pleased recollection of amusing scenes.

Going down the little hill, well away from the press of pushing strangers, Mary Ann trod upon a banana peel. It was enough. With the derision of distant onlookers ringing in his ears, Jefferson, his face red and angry, pulled her up. "I knew you'd do something," he growled.

His companion, after the common impulse, glanced angrily at the spot of humiliation, then quickly stooped and thrust her hand in the short grass.

"Your luck has turned, Mary Ann. Will you spend it for what I want you to get?" His light tone trembled, and his face was white.

"Tell me, Jeff." As on the porch three days before her eyes searched his and dropped.

"A—wedding gown."

"A—wedding gown?"

"Yes, Jeff, and—and I'll try not to fall down in it."

Hearst Repudiated by Labor Party

NEW YORK, November 2.—Union labor formally repudiated William R. Hearst last night at a mass-meeting in Cooper Union. The Tammany ticket was endorsed. Charles Delaney, president of the Central Federated Union, presided. On the platform were scores of prominent labor leaders who said that they voted and worked for Hearst in the last two campaigns, but could no longer follow him.

Samuel Prince, James P. Holland, James H. Hatch, Robert F. Wagner, author of the Cooney Island Five Cent Fare bill and several others spoke.

"I voted for Hearst last year, and the Lord forgive me for it," said Samuel Prince. "He claims to be the laboring man's friend. There's not one honest man in New York and that is he, so he says. Now we have a chance to beat him and repudiate him."

An Eight Hour Day for Railroad Men.

MONCTON, November 2.—An eight hour day is what the I. C. R. machinists are shortly to ask the railway department to grant, so it is stated by parties in close touch with the Machinery Union.

Recently the machinists on the C. P. R. asked and were granted a four hour day and a rate of pay that made no disturbance in wages. This concession granted by the company resulted in creating an interest in the shorter hour movement among the I. C. R. employees. The question of shorter hours of work has been discussed by the local machinists union, and it is pretty well understood that at the next session of the machinery schedule the eight hour day will be the leading concession asked for.

Some years ago there was an agitation among the I. C. R. employees here for shorter hours, but there was no union at that time such as the Machinery Union to grapple with the question and carry it to a successful conclusion. The schedule adopted by the Machinery Union and the shorter hours movement to the front.

It is argued by the I. C. R. employees, and not without some force, that the government road should not be behind in a matter of this kind, but rather it should be to the front and instead of following the C. P. R.'s example an eight hour day should be granted to all employees all over the system.

Boy's Horrible Death.

MONTRÉAL, November 2.—By taking a freight elevator to save himself the trouble of walking up one flight of stairs with a message, Geo. Piquillan, a thirteen year old messenger boy at Dupuis Freres store here met instant death on Saturday afternoon. The lad started off with a message, and hauled the cable to bring the hoist up slowly and as it passed he jumped on. As it neared the next floor he pulled the cable to slow it, but got the wrong one and started it at full speed. In his excitement he leaned over, and his head was caught between the elevator and the floor, being nearly squeezed off. His body rolled over and dropped fifty feet to the bottom of the shaft.

NEWS NOTES FROM SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, November 2.—It is reported the C. P. R. is trying to make arrangements with Maroon to handle all the latter's business. If successful, the C. P. R. will put in street wires and give the wireless a good service.

Grand jury yesterday brought in no bill against Peaco, the young man charged with manslaughter in connection with the Sydney Mines mining fatalities. Also in the case of John McHenry, porter at Port Moresby, charged with stealing a registered package containing $1,500. The theft of that seems still a mystery.

VANCOUVER DOG LACERATES FIVE YEAR OLD CHILD

MONCTON, November 2.—The five year old daughter of Comdie Boudreau was terribly bitten by a vicious dog near her home on Saturday. The dog caught the child in the neck, narrowly escaping putting its teeth through the eye and lacerating the whole side of her face. The brute broke off one of the child's teeth and left a gash that will scar her for life. The dog belonged to the party living in the same house as Boudreau, and was immediately killed.

MISS ANNIE O'NEILL

Bear River News.

Weymouth.

Many more towns die for want of confidence on the part of the business men and lack of public spirit than from opposition of neighboring towns and adverse surroundings.

Honest poverty should be respected, not scorned. It was in the homes of the lowly that we oftenest hear of Christ being when he was here upon earth and, in our day, it can be truthfully said that we meet Him there oftener than elsewhere.

A horse race is an interesting event to some, but more of your friends are interested in any event that concerns you. If you go away on a visit, or friends call on you, see that the fact reaches this office, where any item of news, either personal or local is thankfully received.

Not long ago an English army officer spent a good deal of time in Canada visiting local markets for the purpose of finding out the capabilities of the country to supply suitable horses for export. He expressed no little surprise at the number of poorly-bred, ill-formed and blemished horses he found in the country. The same complaint has been made by the Government judges who have been attending the fall fairs of Ontario during the season just closed. But the special point emphasized by the English buyer was the striking fact, apparent almost everywhere that very little grooming was practiced in this country. Proper grooming is acknowledged by those competent to speak as only secondary in importance, in the developing and handling of good horses, to good exercise; and yet how many owners either neglect this duty themselves or trust their valuable animals to the care of inexperienced or incompetent men who know nothing of the needs of the animals, and apparently care less—Toronto Globe and Canada Farmer.

The men and women who try to make their home the most interesting spot on earth for each other, and for their friends, and those who are near and dear to them, have but one general use for the club. It is to them like the theatre, a pleasant place to enter now and then, but not a spot to dwell in.

A school boy's composition on "The Editor" ran as follows: The editor is one of the happiest men in the world. He can go to the circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a cent; also inequities and hangings. He has free tickets to the theatre, gets wedding cake sent to him, and sometimes gets licked, but not often, as he can take it back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor can sit up every night and see all that is going on.

Don't worry about something that you think may happen tomorrow, because you may die tonight, and tomorrow will find you beyond the reach of worry.

Don't worry over a thing that happened yesterday, because yesterday is a hundred years away. If you don't believe it, try to reach after it and bring it back.

Don't worry about anything that is happening today, because today will last only fifteen or twenty minutes.

Don't worry about things you can't do, because worry only makes them worse.

Don't worry about things you can help, because then there's no need to worry.

Don't worry at all. If you want to be penitent, stop and think, "I worry but you will do you good. But worry, worry, fret, fret—why, there's neither sorrow, penitence, strength, penance, reformation, hope, nor resolution in it. It's merely a worry.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

The late Dr. Buller, an eminent eye specialist, stated that a large number of the cases of blindness which had come under his observation were due to the patients having used liquors which were adulterated with wood alcohol. It were well to remember, too, that Dr. Buller's practice was in Montreal. In the meantime the people of the West had become filled up with vain delusions as well as adulterated whiskey. People can get drunk and even die of drunkenness while the man who gets wood alcohol in his leg without sudden spasmodic jerking? And when he turns in the gateway does he go so smoothly, or does he flinch in front, as if the boards were not even, or his feet hurt him more or less? Are his eyes staring and expressionless, his ears always forward, indicative of defective vision.

While remodeling the old Middleton Hotel the carpenters came across several things significant of its history. In one of the bedrooms a trap door was found, which had probably been concealed under a carpet and bed. At another place a bottle of liquor was found in a partition. It had doubtless been concealed there, and forgotten as the cork had never been drawn. In the attic a room was found through which the only entrance was through a skylight. In the room was found a ladder, a bed and a profusion of bottles. This place was evidently used as a stronghold when the Scott Act campaign waxed warm. Another was more difficult to explain. In a small closet under the hall stairs were found half a dozen sand bags. They looked like the size of a man's arm and two or three feet long.—Exchange.

(A correspondent to the Outlook, a former proprietor of the hotel, wrote this somewhat thrilling story by the explanation that the millinery shop was in the building.)

The Taylor Company gave one of their popular entertainments in Oakdale Hall on last Thursday evening to a fairly large and highly appreciative audience.

The continuous wet weather this fall has been a great set-back to the farmers in getting their crops gathered, and as the season advances, it begins to look rather serious. The rainstorm of Monday night and Tuesday morning was the heaviest of any we have had this season.

Messrs. John C. Harris, Freeman R. Rice, Maurice Benson and William Parker arrived home Tuesday from Hartney, Man., where they have been laboring in the grain fields. They report excellent weather there during the month of October, and the wheat crop considerably short of last year.

Dimock York, Elmer Rice and three other boys returned from a successful moose hunt last Saturday, they having captured a fine large-bull moose. The head, which is the best one brought out here so far this season, is well formed. The animal, weighing a spread of 42 inches. They had a chance for another one which, like the fish that gets away, was the "biggest yet," but "D. M." who was within about twenty feet of him, was suddenly seized with a serious attack of "back fever," which seriously interfered with his aim, and Mr. Moore got away with a whole life.

Rev. W. V. Higgins, a missionary from India on furlough, now acting as Field Secretary for the Maritime Provinces for the Baptist denomination, gave an illustrated address on 16 in India in the Baptist church on last Saturday evening, which was well attended. On Sunday morning, he occupied the pulpit, where he delivered a powerful missionary sermon; also preaching at Lansdowne in the afternoon. He also gave an interesting and instructive address, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Aid Society, in the church in the evening. At these services he gave an intelligent outline of some of the obstacles to be surmounted by those who give their lives to this work, also showing the need of a more concentrated effort on the part of Christian people for financial support, as well as the need of more consecrated men and women to devote their lives to the Master's service, in leading the millions of far off India to the Saviour of all mankind. A collection in aid of missions was taken at the evening service, the sum of nine dollars being realized.
