SEXTON vs SCHAEFER.

The correspondence between Messrs. Sex- ton and Bensing looking to a match game of billiards, 8,000 points, three balls, for $2,000 a side, between William Sexton, of New York, and Jacob Schaefer, of Chicago, terminated on the 31st ult., by the acceptance by Bensing, in Schaefer's behalf, of Sex- ton's proposition, with a slight modification of the terms of the match, which, it is believed Sexton will promptly accede to. Accord- ing to Bensing's acceptance, the match is to consist of three games of 1,000 points each, to be played respectively in Chicago, New York and St. Louis, the player making the greatest aggregate score in the three games to be the winner of the match and stake. The choice of the city and table for the first game to be decided by toss, the loser of the first game to name the city and table for the second. The details are to be settled this week. The match excites con- siderable interest.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

THE TORONTOS BEAT THE SHAMROCKS.

The first championship lacrosse match of the season was played at Montreal on Satur- day last, between the Shamrocks of Mon- treal, and the Toronto club of this city. The Torontos left for Montreal on Friday even- ing, and arrived in Montreal about 9 the next morning. They made the Windsor Hotel

Third Game.—The usual rest, and now it was do or die with the Montreal representa- tives. After thirteen-and-a-half minutes' hard play, Giroux put the rubber through the Toronto goal, and scored a game for the Shamrocks, amid the most tumultuous cheer- ing from the crowd.

Fourth Game.—After resting, the ball was again faced. The Shamrocks got the advan- tage, and after 8 minutes' active play, Lynch tipped the ball through the Torontos flag, winning the second game for the Shamrocks. The excitement was now intense, and the cheering for the Shamrocks tremendous.

Fifth Game.—After 22 minutes' hard play- ing and several appeals on behalf of the Torontos, who claimed they had put the ball between the flags, Suckling sent it through the goal in an unadmirable shape, and won the match and the championship for the To- rontos.

The Shamrocks have challenged the To- rontos for the championship, and the match will be played in Toronto in about three weeks. The Toronto players speak in high terms of the treatment they received in Montreal. There was a fair field, and there was a total absence of rough play.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting of the National Lacrosse Association of Canada will be held at the Rossin House on the 7th and 8th of June. On the second day an inter-provincial match will be played between picked teams from the Ontario and Quebec lacrosse men.

Cricket.

COLLEGE-ASYLUM.—On Thursday of last week the teams of Trinity College and the Toronto Lunatic Asylum had a one innings game on the Trinity College grounds here. The Asylum made 112, of which 25 were extras; Tyne wielding his bat for 22, and Lett for 28. The Collegians tallied 78, 11 being extras; Madlock scoring 22, and Reid and Moore 11 each.

TRINITY COLLEGE—ALL NORTH.—This match was played at Newmarket on Satur- day last, and resulted in favour of the North by 25 runs, only one innings being played. Trinity's total was 97, of which Prof. Mad- dock made 41, and Coldwell and Spragge 14 and 11 respectively. The North put 122 together—R Sutherland contributing 28, Dudley 20, and Pearson 17, while the extras amounted to 20.

AMHERSTBURG.—At a recent meeting of the Amherstburg cricket club the following offi- cers were elected.—President, James Templeton, 1st Vice, C E Fisher, 2nd Vice, J A Auld; Sec-Treas, W H McEvoy, Committee—H T Cousins, W T Wilkinson, J A Auld, and J A Auld.

base of the brain caused by the blow received by the ball, and that the nasal bone was fractur- ed. The verdict of the jury was in accordance with this testimony. The jury further exon- erated the boy from all blame, but called on the authorities to put a stop to the practice of ball playing on the streets.

HAMILTON-GALT.—The Standards of Hamil- ton on Saturday last at the Crystal Palace grounds in that city beat the Mutuals of Galt by a score of 8 to 1.

GUELPH.—The Maple Leaf, of Guelph beat a picked team of that burg on Saturday by a score of 11 to six. The Tecumsehs play the Maple Leafs at Guelph on the 18th.

In an exhibition game on Saturday at Roches- ter, the local team beat the Tecumsehs by 7 to 3. Doucher pitched for the Caucucks.

The Rochester, N.Y., Democrat of Monday says.—"Alerron Shearman, a well known Roch- ester amateur, joined the Tecumsehs when they were here last week, and in Saturday's game played first base. A number of the Tecumsehs went on a disgraceful debauch Saturday night, and it is to be feared they were accompanied by two or more of the Rochester. We have no de- sire to allude to this more particularly this morn- ing, but there is a reason for everything, and perhaps it would not be so difficult to account for the 'unlucky Mondays.'"

On Tuesday the Tecumsehs won an inter- national game from the Hornells, beating the home team 2 to 1. The day before they beat the Cricketers of Binghampton 9 to 0.

The Clippers of this city got away with the Eckfords on Saturday last by 15 to 5. The Clip- pers play the Mutuals of Galt on the Cricket Ground here to-morrow afternoon.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP.
THE TORONTOS BEAT THE SHAMROCKS.
 The first championship lacrosse match of the season was played at Montreal on Saturday last, between the Shamrocks of Montreal, and the Toronto club of this city. The Torontos left for Montreal on Friday evening, and arrived in Montreal about 9 the next morning. They made the Windsor Hotel their headquarters. The western team was the first to show on the ground, the Shamrocks putting in an appearance shortly after.
 At the commencement of the game, 8:20 p.
 m., there must have been fully 7,000 people
 present. Mr. W. Maltby, of the Montreal Club, was the referee; Messrs. J. Aird and
 D. Hogg, Toronto umpires; and Messrs. J.
 W. Mellroy and L. McMann, Shamrock umpires. The names and positions of the players were as follows:—
 Torontos—J. Hughes, goal; Ross Mc-Kenzie, point; W. O. Ross, cover point; H.
 O. Ross and J. Innes, defence field; C. Robinson, C. H. Nelson, and T. Mitchell, field;
 R. H. Mitchell and S. Hughes, home field;
 T. Arthurs and H. E. Suckling, home; field
 captain, J. Massey.
 Shamrocks—Murphy, goal; Hoobin,
 point; C. Morton, cover point; C. McGuire
 and J. Hyland, defence field; Butler, Giroux, and C. McHugh, field; J. McHugh and Farmer, home field; Lynch and Brennan,
 home.
 We have not room for a detailed report of the playing, and are obliged to content ourselves with a brief summary of the games.
 First Game.—Upon facing, Giroux got
 the ball and tipped it to Morton, who threw it towards the Toronto flags. The ball went behind the flags and was returned in the direction of the Shamrock goal; it was, however, quickly sent back to the visitors. From here it was passed to and fro, but finally sent through the Shamrocks flags by a throw by
 S. Hughes. Time—six minutes.
 Second Game.—Ten minutes rest, and at it again. This was a very short game. After two and a half minutes' play on the field, T. Arthurs by an overhead throw landed the ball in the proper place, and the Torontos scored the second game in their favor.

torontos, who claimed they had put the ball between the flags, sucking out it through the goal in an undonabl- shape, and won the match and the championship for the Torontos.
 The Shamrocks have challenged the Torontos for the championship, and the match will be played in Toronto in about three weeks.
 The Toronto play-ers speak in high terms
 of the treatment they received in Montreal.
 There was a fair field, and there was a total absence of rough play.

THE TORONTOS BEAT THE SHAMROCKS.
 The first championship lacrosse match of the season was played at Montreal on Saturday last, between the Shamrocks of Montreal, and the Toronto club of this city. The Torontos left for Montreal on Friday evening, and arrived in Montreal about 9 the next morning. They made the Windsor Hotel their headquarters. The western team was the first to show on the ground, the Sham-
 rocks putting in an appearance shortly after.
 At the commencement of the game, 8:20 p.
 m., there must have been fully 7,000 people
 present. Mr. W. Maltby, of the Montreal
 Club, was the referee; Messrs. J. Aird and
 D. Hogg, Toronto umpires; and Messrs. J.
 W. Mellroy and L. McMann, Shamrock
 umpires. The names and positions of the players were as follows:—
 Torontos—J. Hughes, goal; Ross Mc-
 Kenzie, point; W. O. Ross, cover point; H.
 O. Ross and J. Innes, defence field; C. Robinson, C. H. Nelson, and T. Mitchell, field;
 R. H. Mitchell and S. Hughes, home field;
 T. Arthurs and H. E. Suckling, home; field
 captain, J. Massey.
 Shamrocks—Murphy, goal; Hoobin,
 point; C. Morton, cover point; C. McGuire
 and J. Hyland, defence field; Butler, Giroux, and C. McHugh, field; J. McHugh and Farmer, home field; Lynch and Brennan,
 home.
 We have not room for a detailed report of the playing, and are obliged to content ourselves with a brief summary of the games.
 First Game.—Upon facing, Giroux got
 the ball and tipped it to Morton, who threw it towards the Toronto flags. The ball went behind the flags and was returned in the direction of the Shamrock goal; it was, however, quickly sent back to the visitors. From here it was passed to and fro, but finally sent through the Shamrocks flags by a throw by
 S. Hughes. Time—six minutes.
 Second Game.—Ten minutes rest, and at it again. This was a very short game. After two and a half minutes' play on the field, T. Arthurs by an overhead throw landed the
 ball in the proper place, and the Torontos
 scored the second game in their favor.

torontos, who claimed they had put the ball
 between the flags, sucking out it through the goal in an undonabl- shape, and won the match and the championship for the Torontos.
 The Shamrocks have challenged the Torontos for the championship, and the match
 will be played in Toronto in about three

 The Toronto play-ers speak in high terms
 of the treatment they received in Montreal.

THE Master of the Hounds

Yes, indeed, and I do respect and love you with all the affection of a daughter.' Then recollect, my dear child, that all your troubles and trials belong to me as well as yourself; we ought to have no divided feelings or interests. But I see, dear girl, by your pallid face, you have punished yourself as much as William. Come, Blanche, give me another kiss, and promise never to be guilty of such folly again.' Pressing her to his heart once more, the old squire then turned to Lady Malcolm, whom he shook heartily by the hand, then to Mrs. Gordon, with whom he exchanged the most cordial greeting. We will now leave this once more united happy family, and follow Lord Ayrshire to his club, where he dined with Lord Henry Bayntum. The evening being sultry, an extra quantity of claret was required, which had the usual effect of inducing less restraint in Lord Ayrshire's conversation, who, after his interview with Mr. Harcourt considering himself secure of the heiress, began to make more particular inquiries of his friend respecting Mr. Mangle and his client's pretensions to her fortune.

'The money is all right enough,' replied Lord Henry, as Mangle tells me the property now lets for ten thousand per annum, and, from his agent's report in Scotland, is certainly worth more.'

'Well, but who is the man, or where to be found, who has set up this claim?'

'On that point, Ayrshire, my most particular friend, Mangle, is not disposed to be every communicative, as I pumped him pretty hard the other day without getting anything out; in fact, between ourselves, as Mangle is as arrant a scoundrel as ever swung at Newgate, I've an idea that this is a bit of speculation of his own devising, and his client a man of straw. Otherwise, why should he refuse to give his address? I have been thinking this over, and tried him again this afternoon, with no better success. This looks deucedly suspicious, and my impression is that this rascal has got some deep scheme in his head, and by working on old Harcourt's timidity, thinks to frighten him into terms. Evidently he has the thing in his own hands, and this young Douglas is a nonentity—that's my opinion Ayrshire.'

'Not unlikely, Bayntum—then what do you think the fellow would take for his chances? would thirty thousand pounds cookey him off?'

'At once, I should say, or perhaps less money, if he had a proper man to deal with.'

'Well, Bayntum, as you know how to deal with these sharks, will you undertake to negotiate with them?'

'For whom?' inquired Lord Henry, with some surprise.

'Myself, Bayntum; for the fact is, I had an interview with Harcourt this morning, and I have signed an agreement to take all responsibility in this suit off his shoulders, and he has agreed I shall marry his ward.'

'The dence you have! why that beats some of our little transactions on the turf all to nothing.'

'Oh, it's all fair, Bayntum, and above-board—a quid pro quo—and you must allow I have, as far as money is concerned, the worst of the bargain.'

'Egad, I'm not so sure of that, my dear fellow—the odds are greatly in your favor, and if you are obliged to give Mangle thirty thousand, you still clear an immense stake—it is a capital investment.'

'Well, Bayntum, that may be the case or not; but although it did not enter into my calculation to compromise with, or buy off, this pretender, yet the fact is, this girl is precisely the person I have been looking out for a long time, to sit at the head of my table. She is well-bred, highly connected, of graceful and dignified deportment, a perfect lady in manners, and has passed through the ordeal of her first season in town without affection of any kind, although so generally admired, without the least disposition to flirtation. I have watched her narrowly, Bayntum, and never could detect the slightest

So now, good-night.' At ten o'clock the next morning, Lord Henry drove to Lincoln's Inn, and found Mangle at home, with whom he at first entered on some affairs of his own, to allay any suspicious about the heiress's property, and was about leaving, when, taking his hat, Lord Henry said, in a careless tone, 'Well, Mangle, I forgot to ask how you got on with old Harcourt; the news is all over town, and the heiress at rather a low figure in the betting world, there being long odds against her getting married this season.'

'Ah, my lord, you are always thinking about your betting-book, instead of other matters; but I think Mr. Harcourt is pretty well satisfied by this time that our cause is a good one.'

'Well, Mangle, I'll have a bet with you—an even five-and-twenty—you don't win the stakes, notwithstanding.'

'Thank you, my lord, I am not a betting man.'

'Say five then, Mangle—anything for a bet—shall I enter it in my log?' taking out his pocket-book.

'Oh, no, my lord, I really never bet at all—not even five shillings. I should lose my practice, were it known I was a betting man.'

'Stuff and nonsense, Mangle; but come, if you won't do business in one line, you will, perhaps, in another. I'm in a speculative humor this morning, and want something on hand; so I'll buy your chance, if you will offer fair terms, out and out, and set up for the girl myself.'

'But where, my lord, could you find the money, were I disposed to deal with you?'

'Oh, my friend Moses in the city, or some other old clothes man; but that's nothing to you, I'll find it somehow, if I can make fair terms—that is, to get paid for my trouble. Egad! it's not a bad spec.'

'But the young lady, my lord?'

'We are on capital terms, Mangle, although I don't know much of Harcourt—that will follow: now for the price—what's the figure?'

'Well, you know, my lord, it can only be done with my client's consent; but, without prejudice, say a hundred thousand guineas.'

'A hundred thousand devils, Mangle!—why, that's half the value of the property!'

'Not anything like it, my lord, with all the arrears.'

'All chaff about the arrears, my worthy friend; and then, just look at your chance with your Lord Malcolm, who swears he will take the matter out of Harcourt's hands, throw it into Chancery, and keep it there the next ten years, and carry it, if necessary, to the House of Lords. Your client must be a man of substance to stand this racket.'

'Well, perhaps he is, my lord; but Lord Malcolm is reported not over rich.'

'He is just on the point of marrying a young lady with two hundred thousand pounds—to my loss, I am sorry to say, having made a bet on the subject—so there's no mistake in that matter.'

Mr. Mangle looking rather serious at this intelligence, Lord Henry said, 'Come, Mangle, I'll take you at the odds laid last night at Brooks's—seven to one on Miss Douglas against the field; which means Mangle and Co. with their backer.'

'You don't mean to say, my lord, that wagers are being publicly laid on this suit?'

'I do, though, my unsophisticated friend, and here, showing the entry in his book, 'is my bet with Mr. Mangle, who offered it freely round the table—seven to one against Mangle and Co.'

The lawyer looked aghast at this damnable opinion of his case, and inquired how it was possible gentlemen on the turf could know anything of matters so entirely out of their province.

'We bet on every event, anything, everything that is discussed at the club,' replied Lord Henry; 'and we have fellows well paid, besides jockeys and trainers, to give us the information we require. You are in the market now, and the odds are increasing against you every day; first three, then five, now seven; and to-night, they say, ten to one will be offered on the heiress winning in a canter.'

'Really, my lord, this is too bad.'

'You can't help yourself, my worthy friend,' replied Lord Henry; 'but now I will make you an offer of thirty thousand pounds for your chance, money down.'

'Really, my lord, we could not accept such a trifling sum.'

'A fair offer, Mangle, well calculated,

'No, Mr. Harcourt, certainly not; but you might insist on her accepting Lord Ayrshire—or force Mrs. Gordon to bear the expenses.'

'Pooh! nonsense, my dear; it is idle talking in that strain; it cannot be done. Lord Beauchamp has now become a man of consequence in our county, and it is our policy to be on good terms with him and his father; besides which, he used to be a favorite with you once, as well as myself, and has really done nothing to forfeit our good opinion. I never objected to the man, but his means; and as your niece will be raised to the rank you have desired so earnestly, it is perfectly absurd, my dear, raising any further objections. You have got what you coveted for niece; Blanche has got the man she loved, and I have got out of my difficulties; so now, my dear, I can afford to make you a present of two pounds (which he laid before her), to help to pay your milliner's bill, and purchase any little extras you require, before we leave London.'

'Well, my love,' replied the lady, quite mollified, 'I dare say you have acted very wisely in this business, and if you are satisfied, I am content to submit to your decision.'

Mr. Harcourt had only one more little unpleasantness to encounter, in his interview with the marquis, which was readily disposed of by informing him the next day, when he called, that his ward, Miss Douglas, had confessed her long attachment to Mr. now Lord Beauchamp, and declared her resolution to marry no other.

'But surely, Mr. Harcourt, Lord Beauchamp would not think of marrying Miss Douglas under existing circumstances?'

'Indeed, he does, my lord, and since our interview yesterday, has called here, and taken every responsibility on himself.'

'And you, Mr. Harcourt, have given your consent to the marriage?'

'It was useless, my lord, my attempting to refuse it, as Lord Beauchamp had obtained the consent of her other guardian, Mrs. Gordon.'

'Oh, very well, sir,' replied the Marquis, rising with great dignity and indignation; 'then I have the honor to wish you good morning, sir; and with head erect, he stalked fiercely out of the room, cursing Harcourt in his heart, as he walked down-stairs, for a rascal, cowardly driveller. 'D—n the fellow!' muttered Lord Ayrshire, 'I saw by his quivering lip he had sold me, and would have laid my cane over his shoulders, but for the expose of the whole affair, and that infernal paper I was foolish enough to sign. Yet, confound the paper, that I must recover at any rate; and he turned quickly back for that purpose, and again entering the room, said, 'I had forgotten, sir, a little document I was foolishly induced by you to sign yesterday.'

'Oh, certainly, my lord; I will deliver it to you immediately,' taking it from his desk, and expressing his regret at not being able to carry out his lordship's wishes.

'I will thank you, Mr. Harcourt, notwithstanding, to observe your promise of secrecy in this transaction, or the consequence may be as unpleasant to yourself as to me.'

'Oh, certainly, my lord,' replied Harcourt, 'nothing which has occurred between us shall ever escape my lips.'

'I hope not, sir, for your sake as well as my own,' growled Lord Ayrshire, who, crumpling the paper in his hand, turned majestically to the door.

CHAPTER XLV.

The marquis, furious at his rejection, and Mr. Harcourt's duplicity, was in no very complacent humor when he met Lord Henry three hours afterwards at his club; and he at once said he was so thoroughly disgusted with Harcourt's conduct in trying to make a Jew bargain with him, that he had declined having anything more to do with him.

'Then you have resigned all pretensions to Miss Douglas, Ayrshire? Is that fact?'

'Exactly, Bayntum.'

'What, after the agreement you signed yesterday? How is this?'

'Harcourt would not stand to his terms; so I quashed the thing off-hand with that double-dealing old humbug.'

'Then you have made an ass of me, Ayrbetween them, and his interview with Mangle.

'Upon my word, Bayntum, this beats horse-dealing, with those two fellows bantering and bargaining for my cousin as if she was to be put up to auction, and knocked down to the highest bidder—confound it, sir, this is too bad; and I will expose their audacious proceedings to the world.'

'Serve them both right, Malcolm—but don't be too great a hurry—although Ayrshire has treated me very cavalierly also.'

'Well, Bayntum, you may serve us now, so go, keep your appointment with that rascal, Mangle; and if you can pick out what you suspect, and I believe to be the case, that it is a trumped-up affair, by Jove! I'll give you two thousand pounds, and engage Beauchamp shall give you two more.'

'On your honor, Malcolm, are you in earnest?'

'On my oath, if necessary.'

'Enough, old fellow, I'm off to Lincoln's Inn, and will meet you to-morrow at the club, at two o'clock.'

There being a grand re-union that night at Lady Hasleton's, Lord Henry was there, and knowing his penchant for Miss Douglas, Lady Fanny Trimmer began bantering him on the sudden downfall of his idol. 'What a fortunate escape for your Lordship—and Ayrshire, after such very particular attentions, has altered his tone completely this evening—can't endure the name of Douglas now—ha, ha!'

'No wonder Ayrshire has changed his key,' replied Lord Henry, 'when he found all the notes in B flat.'

'Rejected! Lord Henry, do you really mean to say he has been refused by that pretty little impostor?'

'She is no impostor,' replied Lord Henry, indignantly; 'but an impostor has laid claim to her property, to which he has no more right than I have; that fact has come to my knowledge this day; and as for Ayrshire and others sneering at and running down Miss Douglas now, it is because she has rejected half a score of them, at least, before a word was said about her loss of fortune.'

'You astonish me, Lord Henry: refuse Ayrshire! impossible! What girl in her senses could commit such folly?'

'I suppose, then, when young ladies are in love, they are out of their senses, and, therefore, Miss Douglas, having been attached to Lord Beauchamp before she made her debut in the London world, has been mad enough to prefer him to all our gay men of ton.'

'Gracious goodness! how romantic! and Lord Beauchamp really intends to marry her, notwithstanding this claim upon her property?'

'Yes,' replied Lord Henry, 'if she had not a shilling in the world, but I wish I were as secure of my bets as she is of her rights.'

Lady Fanny Trimmer was not slow to communicate the intelligence received from Lord Henry to her numerous acquaintances; and the news spread quickly through the gay assembly that Lord Ayrshire had been rejected by the heiress. Sir John Martingale having received a similar check, which he attributed to the influence of the marquis, could not forbear expressing his satisfaction at his rival's discomfiture; and on meeting him, said, 'so, Ayrshire, it seems that you are on the wrong side of the post yourself, as well as one or two other men, in spite of all your jockeying to hustle and bustle them off the course.'

'I don't comprehend you, Martingale?'

'Well then, my lord, it is rumored you have failed to induce Miss Douglas to become Marchioness of Ayrshire.'

'And who, sir, has had the audacity to circulate such a report?' inquired the marquis, in a violent passion.

'It is all over the room, my room, and no longer a secret.'

'Your authority, sir?' demanded the marquis, imperiously.

'That you shall have, my lord, if you will assert it is not true.'

'That is nothing to the purpose, sir. I require your authority.'

'I heard the news from Lady Fanny Trimmer, who was telling it openly—replied the baronet.

'(The devil in petticoats!) muttered the marquis, and he turned away to find the wholesale retailer of scandal. But his worst fears were realized, when he was referred by that sarcastic lady to Lord Henry Bayntum, and the look of savage despair with which he received this unlooked for absent to-morrow from two until four o'clock. I will take my tiger with me, who is a sharp quick boy, smuggle him into the club whilst I write a few lines just to rouse his little, and return for an answer in half an hour, leaving the boy, with the key in hand, to hear the remarks Mangle makes on a letter, which I shall leave on the table.'

'But suppose he should discover the boy?'

'Then the little rascal shall have his tail all ready, to say he got there to overtake what his master and the lawyer were talking about; and a caning from me—which, of course, won't hurt him over much—I shall watch my friend into his den, and allow him time only to read the letter.'

'Well Bayntum,' replied Malcolm, 'must leave you to your own devices; now, good-bye, as Beauchamp is waiting for me.'

About half-past three the following day Lord Henry drove in his cab to Lincoln's Inn with his tiger behind, to whom he had previously given instructions how to act, as his training groom inside, dressed as a gentleman, who held the reins, while Lord Henry alighted at Mangle's door, and going to the clerk's room, inquired if he had returned.

'No my lord,' was the reply; 'but I expect him at four o'clock.'

'Very well,' said Lord Henry, 'I can wait now; but as I wish to see him on particular business, I will write a note in your room, and leave it on his table.'

'Oh, certainly, my lord,' showing him into his employer's sanctum, and placing writing materials before him, after which the clerk returned to his own business, the boy, who had been standing outside the entrance watching his opportunity, slipped unperceived, and was immediately enclosed in his hiding-place. The purport of Lord Henry's note was to propose an interview with Mr. Archibald Douglas, Mangle's proposed client, to come to a final arrangement the next afternoon at four o'clock, and he would return for an answer in half an hour. Having finished his despatch, he whispered the boy to keep his ears open, his mouth shut, Lord Henry halted to call again between four and five, and just as he was about to enter the cab, he called again into his cab, drove off towards the West End, where, leaving it with directions to the man to drive home, and return to the same place at five o'clock, he retraced his steps to Lincoln's Inn, and watched on the opposite side of the square until he saw Mangle enter his office. 'That will do,' muttered Lord Henry; 'now ten minutes to show him time to read my note, and I'll warrant by his private ejaculations, Tom picks something out.'

The boy experienced some queer sensations when he heard the lion bounce his den, followed by the clerk, who said Lord Henry had been there writing a note; he would call again; but his terror was considerably increased when the lawyer attempted to open the book-case to deposit his bet.

'Where's the key, sir?' demanded Mangle of the clerk; 'I left it here when I went out.'

'Can't say, sir,' replied the man; 'perhaps you put it in your pocket.'

'No, sir, I did not,' retorted Mangle, never do, fumbling all the while to swallow there.'

'Well, sir, I heard you lock the door when you took out your bag, and perhaps you had dropped the key somewhere.'

'I did no such a thing, Mr. Scribble; but there, get along now, and mind you fall before you leave the office.'

This little affair ruffled Mr. Mangle's excitable temper sufficiently to create an explosion on reading Lord Henry's note.

'What the devil does this blackleg of a lord want to see my client for? some shaming trick, I suppose—but there, that won't fight. Confound the fellow! he'd the cat out of the bag, or sell me, perhaps, once. Monkton is a keen rascal in some things, although a confounded ass in other good looking, and all that sort of thing; but my lord will be sure to catch him tripping. He's a damned deep hand that Lord Henry, and would know a snob from a gentleman the twinkling of his eye. No, no, it won't do, it won't do—but I must go down to Brompton this evening, and see what I can make of the fool—but confound it, her Lord Henry,' as his lordship halted

...that this rascal has got some deep scheme in his head, and by working on old Harcourt's timidity, thinks to frighten him into terms. Evidently he has the thing in his own hands, and this young Douglas is a nonentity—that's my opinion Ayrshire.

'Not unlikely, Bayntum—then what do you think the fellow would take for his chances? would thirty thousand pounds do him off?'

'At once, I should say, or perhaps less money, if he had a proper man to deal with.'

'Well, Bayntum, as you know how to deal with these sharks, will you undertake to negotiate with them?'

'For whom?' inquired Lord Henry, with some surprise.

'Myself, Bayntum; for the fact is, I had an interview with Harcourt this morning, and I have signed an agreement to take all responsibility in this suit off his shoulders, and he has agreed I shall marry his ward.'

'The deuce you have! why that beats some of our little transactions on the turf all to nothing.'

'Oh, it's all fair, Bayntum, and above-board—a quid pro quo—and you must allow I have, as far as money is concerned, the worst of the bargain.'

'Egad, I'm not so sure of that, my dear fellow—the odds are greatly in your favor, and if you are obliged to give Mangle thirty thousand, you still clear an immense stake—it is a capital investment.'

'Well, Bayntum, that may be the case or not; but although it did not enter into my calculation to compromise with, or buy off, this pretender, yet the fact is, this girl is precisely the person I have been looking out for a long time, to sit at the head of my table. She is well-bred, highly connected, of graceful and dignified deportment, a perfect lady in manners, and has passed through the ordeal of her first season in town without affectation of any kind, although so generally admired, without the least disposition to flirtation. I have watched her narrowly, Bayntum, and never could detect the slightest approach to levity in her conduct since the night of our first acquaintance; and the manner in which she has so quietly repulsed any too familiar advances from those puppies, who have been so constantly trying to ingratiate themselves into her favor, has excited my strongest admiration. In short, Bayntum, she is one in a thousand, and last, though not least in the opinion of most men her features and form are perfection.'

'I cannot gainsay a word you have spoken, Ayrshire, in regard to Miss Douglas; and if you obtain her fortune, or half of it even, with herself, you may think yourself a deuced lucky fellow.'

'Well, Bayntum, between ourselves—and mind, it must go no further—if you can arrange this little affair with Mangle, at a reasonable rate, say thirty thousand, I will make you a present of a couple of thousands for your trouble.'

'Agreed, Ayrshire, I will see him to-morrow morning as soon as he reaches his den; but are you quite sure of the young lady consenting to her guardian's bargain?'

'Oh, my dear fellow, not the least fear of that. Harcourt was to see her directly, and no doubt, under the influence of her aunts, Lady Malcolm and Mrs. Gordon, who will both urge her to comply with his wishes, I look upon it as a settled thing already; no girl of common sense or prudence could decline such an offer.'

'Perhaps not; yet you have heard, I suppose, that although one man may lead a horse to water, two cannot make him drink; and this young filly may have a will of her own, as well as a love of her own.'

'Pooh! nonsense, Bayntum; just now no man would come forward as I have done—the risk is too great, and the fancy of marrying for love is quite out of date.'

'Not quite, Ayrshire, however, I will attend to my part of the business early to-morrow, and meet you here at three o'clock.'

...with your Lord Malcolm, who swears he will take the matter out of Harcourt's hands, throw it into Chancery, and keep it there the next ten years, and carry it, if necessary, to the House of Lords. Your client must be a man of substance to stand this racket.'

'Well, perhaps he is, my lord; but Lord Malcolm is reported not over rich.'

'He is just on the point of marrying a young lady with two hundred thousand pounds—to my loss, I am sorry to say, having made a bet on the subject—so there's no mistake in that matter.'

Mr. Mangle looking rather serious at this intelligence, Lord Henry said, 'Come, Mangle, I'll take you at the odds laid last night at Brooks's—seven to one on Miss Douglas against the field; which means Mangle and Co., with their backer.'

'You don't mean to say, my lord, that wagers are being publicly laid on this suit?'

'I do, though, my unsophisticated friend, and here, showing the entry in his book, 'is my bet with Martingale, who offered it freely round the table—seven to one against Mangle and Co.'

The lawyer looked aghast at this damnable opinion of his case, and inquired how it was possible gentlemen on the turf could know anything of matters so entirely out of their province.

'We bet on every event, anything, everything that is discussed at the club,' replied Lord Henry; 'and we have fellows well paid, besides jockeys and trainers, to give us the information we require. You are in the market now, and the odds are increasing against you every day; first three, then five, now seven, and to-night, they say, ten to one will be offered on the heiress winning in a canter.'

'Really, my lord, this is too bad.'

'You can't help yourself, my worthy friend,' replied Lord Henry; 'but now I will make you an offer of thirty thousand pounds for your chance, money down.'

'Really, my lord, we could not accept such a trifling sum.'

'A fair offer, Mangle, well calculated, taking Chancery suit and all into account, with heavy damages to the losing party.'

'To-morrow I shall offer only twenty, putting on his hat. 'Is it a bargain or not? can't wait any longer.'

'I will report your proposal to my client,' replied Mr. Mangle, musing, 'and you shall know his opinion to-morrow evening, say a four o'clock, if you call here.'

We must now go back to see what has passed in Upper Brook Street, after Beauchamp's departure the preceding day. Mr. Harcourt, on repairing to the drawing-room was interrogated by his spouse as to the purports of Lord Ayrshire's—and Beauchamp's visit, who, having given a full explanation of his transactions with them, said exultingly, 'well, my dear, don't you think I have made a capital bargain in getting rid of this responsibility on such easy terms?'

By making a fool of the marquis, Mr. Harcourt.

'Oh, no, my dear; he has made a fool of himself by offering a second time, when I told him he had little chance of success. But it is quite a different affair with Beauchamp; there the thing is settled off at once, and I am now relieved from a load of care and apprehension.'

'And the man I disliked above all others recognised as my niece's accepted husband, Mr. Harcourt; very complimentary, indeed, and consolatory to my feelings. He could not have married her for three years, at least, without your consent; that, out of deference to my wishes, you ought to have withheld.'

'And saddled myself with about fifty thousand pounds in costs and arrears of rent, my dear; where could I have found that money? That, it seems has not entered into your calculation. Would you like to give up your carriage and horses, just to spite Beauchamp?'

quivering lip he had sold me, and would have laid my cane over his shoulders, but for the expose of the whole affair, and that infernal paper I was foolish enough to sign. Yet, confound the paper, that I must recover at any rate; and he turned quickly back for that purpose, and again entering the room, said, 'I had forgotten, sir, a little document I was foolishly induced by you to sign yesterday.'

'I hope not, sir, for your sake as well as my own,' growled Lord Ayrshire, who, crumpling the paper in his hand, turned majestically to the door.

'It cannot be helped now, Bayntum, the thing is at an end.'

'Not quite, Ayrshire; my part of the contract has been performed.'

'Oh, I understand; we can talk of that another day, as I am in a great hurry now to keep an engagement, and my horse is waiting.'

Lord Henry, nettled at this cool treatment, determined to find out more; and meeting Lord Malcolm soon after in the Park, asked some questions about his cousin, whether there was any truth in the report of her being engaged to Lord Ayrshire.

'Not the slightest,' was the reply.

'Indeed, Malcolm, you are quite sure?'

'Positive, Bayntum; but who is your news-monger?'

'Well, what would you say to a hint from the man himself, that it was, or would be, the case without doubt?'

'Do you mean to imply that Ayrshire told you he had been accepted by my cousin, Bayntum?'

There was no reply, but a knowing look and a provoking smile on his face, which at once rousing Lord Malcolm's temper, he hastily said:

'Lord Ayrshire was flatly refused by Miss Douglas, who has been engaged to my friend, Beauchamp, for the last six months, to my certain knowledge—there, Bayntum, I conclude that is plain enough, and strong enough to check any further idle boasting about her.'

'Is the thing quite settled, Malcolm?'

'Quite so,' was the reply; 'and her guardian's consent obtained.'

'What a fool Ayrshire has made of me, then,' exclaimed Lord Henry; and, without hesitation, he related all that had occurred her debut in the London world, has been man enough to prefer him to all our gay men of ton.'

'Gracious goodness! how romantic! and Lord Beauchamp really intends to marry her, notwithstanding this claim upon her property?'

But his worst fears were realised, when he was referred by that sarcastic lady to Lord Henry Bayntum, and the look of savage despair with which he received this unlooked for disclosure from his quondam friend, confirmed Lady Fanny's impression that the report was perfectly true. 'Ha! ha!' she laughed, as the marquis abruptly left her without a word in return, 'the arrow has pierced the bull's eye this time, and the fastidious marquis had fallen by the bow of a simple country maiden.'

Not daring to question Lord Henry, whose pride and quick temper were equal to his own, for fear of a thorough expose of his transactions with Harcourt, Lord Ayrshire quitted the room, and left London a few days after, on a continental tour, ridiculed by all his associates—regretted by none.

The next day Malcolm held a long consultation with Lord Henry, who had prevailed on Mangle to accept the thirty thousand pounds in satisfaction of his client's claim.

'It's a hollow thing, said he; and my impression is, we could catch this rascal out with a little more trouble.'

'Well, Bayntum, if you do not regard the trouble, and can succeed with us in upsetting him altogether, Beauchamp and myself will double our stakes, and make you a present of ten thousand pounds, which I hope will set you straight.'

'Will you, by Jove, Malcolm?'

'Yes, we will, indeed; and sign an agreement to that effect, if you require it.'

'No, no, old fellow; I can trust your word and Beauchamp's—but a thought has struck me, which I think will help us a little to clear up this mystery. In Mangle's den—which, by the way, is a dark, gloomy room—there is a sham book-case, lettered outside with reports and law books, but hollow within, and the key generally left in the door of this closet, which contains only a few old dusty parchments. Now, as I know he will be

'Yes, my lord, you will find him in room.'

'Halloa, Mangle,' exclaimed Lord Henry, 'put your hat on, a moment, and just walk with me to the end of the square, as I am all behind-time, horse taken ill, and obliged to send him home; we can walk and talk well as sit and talk, so come along.'

They had no sooner left the room than the boy emerged from his hiding-place, and collecting the discussion about the key, locked the closet door again, and throwing it on Mangle's chair, slipped noiselessly from the department, and walked in a different direction to his master; but a sharp whistle, fore-he turned the corner of the square, satisfied Lord Henry that his tiger had escaped. That was all he required. Mangle fruitlessly endeavored to shake Lord Henry's purpose of seeing his client. 'Why surely, my lord,' argued the lawyer, 'his signature will be quite sufficient; what more can you require?'

'To see and know the man, Mangle, witness with my own eyes his handwriting. Did any one ever hear of such a contract-bargain as this, not to know, or even see the principal you are dealing with? Come, come, Mangle, this won't do with me on the turf.'

'Well, my lord, I will endeavor to do your wishes; but I am not sure that Douglas is in London.'

'Very well—then I must wait till he is,' replied Lord Henry; 'and now, good evening.'

The clerk, seeing the coast clear, the lawyer, quickly joined his master, and told him what he had overheard Mangle muttering to himself on reading the note.'

ELLIOTT'S PERFORMANCES.

William Elliott, who is a pitman, and from Pegwood, near Newcastle, was in November, 1849, at Hay Farm, near to the Borders. He stands 5ft. 11 in. high, weighed on Monday 11st. 41b., and is a very powerful, well-developed man, chest measurement being about 41 in. His earliest successes were defeating George Martin in a two mile race in skills the Blyth for £25 a side on April 18, 74; but in his match with William Robertson of Newcastle, he suffered defeat; George in an open boat race for £50, from the Mansion House to the Meadows House, the Tyne, and Elliott won easily; in the Regatta, 1875, Elliott had a start of 10 lengths of R. W. Boyd in the Scullers' regatta, and he carried off the prize, defeating the Gateshead sculler, who was at the time much to general surprise, in the heat; after this event Elliott was asked to row J. Finnigan, of the Felling, two miles on the Tyne, on May 8, for £80, and was defeated—Finnigan, from odds of 11 to 8 were laid, winning in 15 min. 50 sec.; on March 16, 1877, he rowed against Alex. Hogarth (the Champion of the Wear), two miles and a quarter on the Tyne, fine boats, for £80, and with comparative ease defeated him by four lengths; in the same month he competed successfully for the Championship Challenge Cup on the Tyne, being beaten in the heat by William Nicholson, of Newcastle; after this event he was taken charge of by Mr. James Taylor, of the Trafalgar, Newcastle, one of the most skillful rowers in the North, and under his able tuition Elliott improved rapidly—so much so that his friends matched him against that famous game sculler George Tarryer, of Ramesbury, for £100 a side, to row from the High Level Bridge to Scotswood Suspension Bridge, on the Tyne, and Elliott did not disappoint those that had formed a high opinion of his capabilities, winning after a splendid race. After this he rowed and defeated Robert Bagnall, of the Ouseburn, for the Tyne Championship Course, for £100 a side on January 15, 1878, and his great match previous to this event was with William Nicholson, of Stockton-on-Tees, for £200 a side, to decide which of the two was most entitled to throw down the gauntlet to Higgins, with a view of trying to bring back the Championship once more on the Tyne. This came off on Monday, 4th, a windy day, with the water very rough; Elliott, served by his great strength, won, and by no less than 500 yards. Immediately afterwards a match was ratified with Higgins for £200 and the Championship, to take place on June 8 next; also the above noticed with Thomas for £100 a side, over the Tyne Championship Course, which Elliott was trained by James Taylor, who, with J. R. Hymes, accompanied him in his training in a double-sculling boat.

COURTNEY ON HANLAN.

HANLAN TO BEAT MORRIS.

A Herald correspondent at Watkins reports the following interview with the oarsman Courtney:—
I have just seen Courtney. Asking him about the Hanlan-Plaisted race, he said the latter did not begin to dash away so fast as the start as he when he annoyed Riley so much at Saratoga; that Hanlan did not row in as good form at the Centennial; that he is held in undoubted admiration in his own neighborhood, and is undoubtedly a hard man to beat; that he is accustomed to very rough water and quite at home in it, and that he ought to win the Morris at Pittsburg on the 20th of June. He thinks that the Am. oarsman who ought to row against him is James Riley of Saratoga, and says that at Owaseo Lake last Fall the latter's race with him practically ended at the turning stake. Speaking to him of the two best known oarsmen in the world to day, the two Trickotts, one of whom is said to have recently lost two fingers, he says that he does not believe the story, and that the way he has been deceived by despatches in English papers purporting to come from Philadelphia, he cannot be blamed. He adds that negotiations under the former alleged challenge from Trickett have fallen through his re-

LIZZIE WHIPPS BROKEN DOWN.—General A. Burdick's black mare Lizzie Whipps, by Enquirer, dam Grand Dutch S., broke down on the Louisville course, Sunday morning, 10th inst. She was making a trial, with a view of ascertaining her condition preparatory to running her on the first day of the present meeting at that place.

Mr. Swigert was so dissatisfied with the start in the Colt and Filly Stakes, at Lexington, on Thursday of race week, that he advertised his share of stock in the Kentucky Association for sale, and announced that he would not run another horse on the track. He claims that the start defeated his chestnut filly La Favorita, while others assert that McGrath's Andax, by Tom Bowling, won on her merits. It is to be hoped that Mr. Swigert will think better of the matter. If wrong was done him it certainly was not intentional.

Fur, Fin and Feather.

PLANTED.—Mr. J. B. Eagle, son of the proprietor of Eagle's Hotel, Weston, lately brought 700 live speckled trout from the North for his fish pond. He was very successful with his trip, having only one fish die. This last lot makes about 1,400 of the speckled beauties he has brought from the same source.

At the close of the dog show in New York there was an auction sale, at which a number of dogs were sold at prices ludicrously at variance with their estimated value. Thus, an Arabian collie dog, valued at $5,000, brought $50; a cocker spaniel, valued at $500, was knocked down for $75, and a bull-terrier, valued at $500, for $2.

A party of five gentlemen returned on Friday to Collingwood from Brewster's Lake, in Osprey, bringing with them as the result of the previous afternoon and morning's fishing in the lake and in Pretty river six hundred and ninety speckled trout, weighing one hundred and eighty-two pounds. Some of the fish weighed over two pounds each.

Mr. Edward Whalen, of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been connected with the Erie Railroad for the past ten years as engineer, has just returned from Hepworth, Ont., where he succeeded in catching 940 brook trout. The length of thirty-five of them was 12½ inches, and the length of eighteen, the largest being 13½ inches.

THE GARDEN AND CABIN-BUILDING BIRD OF AUSTRALIA.

This bird selects for its hut and garden a spot on a level with the plain, having in its centre a small shrub, with a trunk about the height and size of a small walking stick. Around the base of this central support it constructs, of different mosses, a sort of cone, about a span in diameter. The cone of moss serves to strengthen the central pilaster, upon the top of which the whole edifice is sustained. The height of the cabin is at least half a meter. All around, from the top of the central pilaster and diverging outward therefrom, arranged methodically in an inclined position, are long stems, their upper ends supported on the apex of the pilaster, and their lower resting on the ground, and thus all around, excepting immediately in front. In this way is made the cabin, conical in form and quite regular in the shape, the whole presents when the work is completed. Many other stems are then added and interwoven in various ways, so as to make a roof at once strong and impervious to the weather. Between the central pilaster and the insertion in the ground there is left a circular gallery in the shape of a horse-shoe. The whole structure has a total diameter of about a meter.

The long, straw-like stems of which it makes use as rafters, are the slender and upright branches of a species of orchid (Dendrobium), an epiphytal plant that grows in large tufts on the mossy branches of tall trees. They are as slender as fine straws and are about half a meter in length. These stems retain their small and closely packed leaves, which are still living, and

FRAUD PROMPTLY PUNISHED.

It is incomprehensible to us, why a man of average intelligence should have gone to the Lexington Course to perpetrate a fraud upon the patrons of honest sport. The Kentucky Association is the oldest active turf organization in America, and it is famous for energetic action as well as for a strict interpretation and an enforcement of the rules. The leading citizens of the commonwealth have been and are members of the Association, and fair dealing has been a cardinal principle of the management from the very start. The lamented Gen. John C. Breckinridge was the predecessor of Gen. James F. Robinson in the Presidential chair. The Kentucky Association has maintained its prestige for more than half a century. It has stood unshaken while Jockey Clubs in all sections of the country have crumbled to pieces. It is rich in history and there is no stain upon its flag. The evil doers have always stood in wholesome fear of the organization. Its track is the last place in the world on which to attempt a swindle. And yet a young man of good family, a resident of St. Louis, went to Lexington, and, with the hospitality characteristic of the city, and before the favors had grown cold, deliberately invited the disgrace which has overtaken him. This was the act of a madman. In the Consolation Purse, mile heats, on Friday of last week, the starters were T. J. Megibben's Emma C., J. G. Blow's Bill Bass, and G. W. Hancock's Tampico. Bill Bass was a strong favorite, and he won the first heat easily. He was sold at the odds of $25 to $8. In the second heat the son of Plantagenet and Adelaide was brazenly pulled. He was brought to a standstill near the half-mile pole, and, on returning to the stand, his jockey pointed to a bleeding mouth and a stirrup leather unfastened. The trick was so clumsily carried out that the judges—Gen. Robinson, Col. Johnson and Major B. G. Thomas—were not long in making up their minds as to what should be done. All bets on Bill Bass were declared off, and the rider of the horse, Frank Shelton, was expelled. On returning to town the investigation was made more thorough, and the full conspiracy was brought to light. John G. Blow had telegraphed to his brother in St. Louis, "Back Emma C. for all your are worth," which was evidence enough to hang a man, still it was not all the proof that was acted upon. An examination of the pool-books showed that Blow and his friends had placed their money against Bill Bass. After weighing the testimony the judges added to the expelled list J. G. Blow and his trainer, Lewis Riggs. Bill Bass was not expelled, for the reason that he is owned by Gen. Price, who was not present and had nothing to do with the fraud. This decision has given the widest satisfaction. At Lexington a man speedily bankrupts his reputation. It is no place for the schemers. If young Blow had had a level head on his shoulder ere he would not have thought for a moment of attempting the job which has buried him in disgrace. Let his fate prove a warning to other misguided men.—Turf.

CHALKS HIS NOSE.

The novel game of billiards between Capt. Robert, the French expert nose player, and Messrs. Maggioli and Coste, attracted an audience of about 150 spectators in the rotunda of the St. Charles Hotel last evening. The crowd was very quiet and was only roused to enthusiasm when the Captain chalked his nose preparatory to executing a difficult shot. Captain Robert played entirely with his nose, laying at full length upon the tables when he made his shots, and as he is rather short and stout, it was quite an exhibition of physical strength and endurance if not of skill and science. The entertainment consisted of two games of 200 points each, and as "the man with the nose" had to jump on the table to make his play and then jump down again, he must, calculating the table to be three feet high, have jumped up and down about 2,400 feet, nearly half a mile; and it was not a very nice night for jumping either. The nose player beat both his opponents, and looked fresh and lively at the end of the contest, the only noticeable change in his appearance being a slight redness at the end of his cue.—New Orleans Democrat.

FAST RAILWAY TRAVELLING.

On the 24th ult., the Directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad were run by special train over the G. W. R. from Detroit to Suspension Bridge, at a speed that deserves to be chronicled. The train left Windsor at 9.16 a. m., and arrived at Clifton 2.12—four minutes less than five hours. Out of this is to be deducted the actual time of stops at various stations and level railway

AN INDIVIDUAL.

"True greatness," we are told, "to no estate belongs," and if the estimate of that title is measured by public success, Hanlan, of Toronto, well merits his extraordinary popularity. The poet says, "what great events from trivial causes spring; and a monarch in our own times asserted "that nations go to war simply for an idea."

The physique of one man, added to his skill with the oar, has been the means of assembling 50,000 people together in a single day, and of circulating $250,000—no mean sum these dollarless days—in about the same time. The adeptness of a single individual has been the sole cause of this, and of that individuality Toronto may well feel proud in their aquatic hero. But in truth the national and international good affected by such a competition of skill as that in which Hanlan and Plaisted played such an interesting part last week cannot really be estimated by any given sum in dollars and cents, for the game of oars originates and perpetuates such a gigantic movement, permeating all society, that this little really leaves the whole lump of humanity. If 50,000 people are wild and excited on the spot, who shall number those who sympathize at a distance? and if 50,000 also tell out their time and dollars on the spot, who shall number those who do the same beyond the pale? A little stone cast in the pond causes a universal ripple, and if you beat the air with a stick you beat the atmosphere of a world. In a somewhat similar manner this Hanlan contends and a whole continent looks on, and if the circulation of money is a national aim, why here is a single individual alone doing in part, the efforts of peoples! Hanlan has moved a little world, and though he cannot, Atlas-like, carry it on his shoulders, he gives the financial portion of it such a fillip that Torontonians, nay, Canadians en masse, may well seek to do him honor. Hanlan must then be looked upon as a national hero of whom we may all be proud, for we question if there is a man in our midst, or even out of our midst, who could move western mankind as the unassuming boatsman of Toronto Bay has lately moved them. Canadian society of all kinds, especially, owes him much, and we all can, without any affectation, wish strength to his arm and continued success to his oars, and may he find a just and ennobling recompense.—Petrolia Advertiser.

TOWED BY A BUCK.

Early last Wednesday morning ex-Governor Romualdo Pacheco, being out for a salt-water pasar in his yacht Consuelo, his attention was called by the crew to an unusual troubling of the waters near the shore of Angel Island by some monster which the old shell-backs aboard had concluded must be a double-barrelled sword-fish. Mr. Pacheco's keener and less superstitious eye instantly recognized what had been mistaken for swords as the antlers of a magnificent three-year old buck, which had probably just completed the voyage down from the forests of Washington Territory. The blue, blood of the cavaliers of Spanish California, who time out of mind had thrown the unerring lariat over any convenient protuberance of the wild cattle of the plains, was up in an instant, and hastily improvising a lasso out of the main halyard, he ordered a boat lowered away and he himself pulled swiftly to the game. The boat had got to within just 63 ft. of the buck, as it was about to wade out into the stone quarries on the island, when the Governor, rising in the bows, gracefully swung the coiled rope three times around his head, and then, with the combined dexterity of a vaquero and a veteran harpooner, cast the deadly loop through through the air and over the buck's neck. Then ensued a quite interesting time, crowded with lively incident. The buck abruptly drew the boat ashore, and scattered it and its crew among the sharp-edged rocks, with no special care for regularity, and then started out for a canter with the novel appendage of an ex-Governor. But Mr. Pacheco was powerful too, and it seemed a very even toss up whether the buck had lassoed Mr. Pacheco or Mr. Pacheco the buck, with the call slightly in favor of the Governor, as he seemed determined to fight it out on that halyard line if it took him all summer. The sailors shouted the war cry of the period, "hemp," but it was not definitely ascertained whether they were cheering the bipedal or quadrupedal end of it. At the end of an hour, the buck being pretty well peeled, and the ragged edges of Angel Island rock fluttering with remains of gubernatorial garments, Mr. Pacheco vanquished the brute, which was brought to this city and presented to the post commandant at Goat Island.—San Francisco Chronicle.

USE THE BEST SEEDS AND BREEDS.

"Get the best" should be the motto of every farmer or gardener in selecting or purchasing any kind of seed, and he should give a wide berth to any seedman who has ever supplied him with inferior, foul or spurious article, representing it as choice. It is a matter in which the growers of cereals and vegetables of all kinds cannot exercise too much care, for, as Luforo stated, the whole question of profit or loss may depend upon the quality of the seed used. Many farmers are extremely careless about the selection of seed, and they are generally the crackers at harvest-time—the men who innocently and lugubriously assert that "farming don't pay."

What is true in regard to seeds is equally so concerning brooding animals. The wise farmer knows it is nearly as cheap to raise an animal which will sell at a given age for $100 as it is to grow one that will bring only half or one fourth that amount—the main difference being in the extra expense incurred for the service of a good sire; and yet how many thousands of farmers who know better (who "know the right and still the wrong pursue") continue to breed from scrub animals and lose the profits they may secure by breeding from the best. Indeed, to end our homily, let us say that the wide awake farmer takes advantage of his knowledge of the fact that it costs little more to raise a good animal than a bad one, while one may prove several times as profitable as the other. In brief, he "goes for" and uses the best breed of animals, and the choicest grains and seeds of the best varieties. And that is just what we urge every farmer to do this season, count that all who use the best seeds and sires, and pay proper attention to culture and management will find the little extra cost on the start to prove a good investment, returning many fold in profit.—*N. DEATH OF WILLIAM LINDSAY.

This veteran journalist, whose note-book and pencil had been familiar objects on every race course from below Sand Hook almost to the Rocky Mountains, died on Staten Island on May 26, after many years of patient suffering from rheumatic gout, culminating in heart disease and dropsy of the chest. He was born about 1826, but it is uncertain whether in England or in Scotland, upon the border. He was reared in Yorkshire, Eng. and was designated for a physician, to which circumstance, although he never practiced medicine, he owed the title by which he was best known—"Doctor" Lindsay. His father sent him to London to be educated in medicine and surgery, but he remained at college but a year or two, being like thousands of others by the news that Edward Harcourt in 1853 discovered gold near Bathurst. He did not remain long in Australia, but returned to England, travelled extensively in Belgium and elsewhere, made the acquaintance of many of the turf, and possibly did a little in the way of reporting for Bull's and other London sporting journals. Coming to this country at about the beginning of 1857, he joined the staff of the Clipper, with which, except for a comparatively brief interval, he was connected until his death. The first important task assigned him on this journal was one of the reporters of the Hadden Morrissey fight, and his first important duty on the New York Herald, with which he was long associated, was to report in part the Dead Rabbit Riot, in the course of which he narrowly escaped death, a man who was standing beside him on a brick pile being shot. In addition to his duties elsewhere, he was the sporting editor of the New York Tribune for many years, or until about 1873, when sporting events ceased to be a feature of that journal. About eighteen years ago, while co-operating with Charles J. Foster in reporting turf events for the Spirit of the Times, he also generalised the dramatic news for that journal, and until 1862 was its billiard reporter, as he was again for a time in the summer of 1866. In 1875 he again attended to its turf column. He was the successor of the late General Charles (Halpine "Altes O'Beary") as the editor of the Billiard Cue, and so continued until the Spring of 1864, and for a brief period in 1873 he edited the billiard column of the Turf Field and Farm, in which service he may be said to have closed his long and creditable connection with billiards. Possessing a wide general knowledge of sporting events, and scrupulously attentive to his duties, he was an unusually useful man on a newspaper, and there is scarcely a metropolitan journal of any standing that has not at one time or another called upon him to suddenly fill a gap. A general compulsion never permitted generally to carry out ordinary prudent bounds or to cause him to neglect his duties. Deriving his very life from the clefnotes of the world of sports, and many from those of the turf, as soon as his physical ailments began to seriously interfere with attendance at race meetings, and the like, it was but natural that he should begin to die. It had been crowding him for many months.

ated Robert Bagnall, of the Oneida, for the Tyno Championship Course, for 100 a side on January 15, 1878, and his first great match previous to this event was with William Nicholson, of Stockton-on-Tees, for £200 a side, to decide which of the two was most entitled to throw down the shuttle to Higgins, with a view of trying to bring back the Championship once more to the Tyno. This came off on Monday, 4th, a windy day, with the water very rough; and Elliott, served by his great strength, won, and by no less than 500 yards. Immediately afterwards a match was ratified with Higgins for £200 and the Championship, to take place on June 8 next; also the one above noticed with Thomas for £100 a side, over the Tuames Championship Course, which Elliott was trained by James Taylor, who, with J. R. Hymes, accompanied him in his training in a double-scuttling boat.

COURTNEY ON HANLAN.

HANLAN TO BEAT MORRIS.

A Herald correspondent at Watkins reports the following interview with the oarsman Courtney:—

I have just seen Courtney. Asking him about the Hanlan-Platsted race, he said the latter did not begin to get away as fast as the start as he had when he rowed Riley so much at Saratoga; that Hanlan did not row in as good form at the Centennial; that he is held in unbounded admiration in his own neighborhood, and is undoubtedly a hard man to beat, that he rowed to very rough water and quite at sea in it, and that he ought to win the Morris at Pitsburg on the 20th of June. He thinks that the American oarsman who ought to row Hanlan is James Riley of Saratoga, and says that Owasco Lake last Fall the latter's race with him practically ended at the turning stake. Speaking to him of the two best-known oarsmen of the world to day, the two Tricketts, one of whom is said to have recently lost two fingers, he says that he does not believe the story, and that the way he has been deceived by despatches in English papers purporting to come from Australia, he cannot be blamed. He adds that the negotiations under the former alleged challenge from Trickett have fallen through, his representative, Mr. Case, had actually seen Mr. Case, Trickett's representative, and that on the 20th of April he (Courtney) sent a challenge to Trickett to row in Australia or this country for £200 a side or any sum he liked, and that he would give $1,500 for expenses if the latter would come to this country; or he would give $1,500 should he go to Australia; that he has considerable hope that he will come here, and that otherwise his (Trickett's) money-making in the car in Australia is at an end, as if he were to come one else there would ever row him, and that Courtney wins the same result is likely to follow that the best way would be for Trickett to come here and get on a match with Hanlan, and that the English champion, and whoever would face him, and save his race with Courtney till all the others are first disposed of. He adds also that the people about Owasco are seriously design getting up a professional rowing race, with very large prizes, in case the English champion, Hanlan or Trickett, will come.

While talking with Courtney he received a challenge to row at Skaneateles on the Fourth of July for $300. It is hardly necessary to add that his visit here amounts to almost nothing and that he is constantly surrounded with friends of men who are glad to meet him. He looks hearty, says he weighs 193 lbs and has not been working much lately.

A taste for wagers of an eccentric character becoming perceptible in the overcrowded ranks of our "gilded youth." The other day a man suddenly appeared at the top of the steps attired in ragged military costume, and wearing on his head a fashionable monkey-pot hat. In one hand he carried a number of toy-balloons, and in the other a large umbrella. Of course he was followed by a considerable crowd, but just as the police were about to interfere he jumped into a cab and was driven away as if by magic. It has been ascertained that the seemingly eccentric individual was a young gentleman of good family, who won a bet of fifty pounds by making a fool of himself.

775, and a bull-terrier, valued at $500, for $4.

A party of five gentlemen returned on Friday to Collingwood from Brower's Lake, in Osprey, bringing with them as the result of the previous afternoon and morning's fishing in the lake and in Pretty river six hundred and ninety speckled trout, weighing one hundred and eighty-five pounds. Some of the fish weighed over two pounds each.

Mr. Edward Whalen, of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been connected with the Erie Railroad for the past ten years as engineer, has just returned from Hepworth, Ont., where he succeeded in catching 940 brook trout. The length of thirty-five of them was 12½ inches, and the length of eighteen, the largest being 13½ inches.

THE GARDEN AND CABIN-BUILDING BIRD OF AUSTRALIA.

This bird selects for its hut and garden a spot on a level with the plain, having in its centre a small shrub, with a trunk about the height and size of a small walking stick. Around the base of this central support it constructs, of different mosses, a sort of cone, about a span in diameter. The cone of moss serves to strengthen the central pillar, upon the top of which the whole edifice is sustained. The height of the cabin is at least half a meter. All around, from the top of the central pillar and diverging outward therefrom, arranged methodically in an inclined position, are long stems, their upper ends supported on the apex of the pillar, and their lower resting on the ground, and thus all around, excepting immediately in front. In this way is made the cabin, conical in form and quite regular in the shape, the whole presents when the work is completed. Many other stems are then added and interwoven in various ways, so as to make a roof at once strong and impervious to the weather. Between the central pillar and the insertion in the ground there is left a circular gallery in the shape of a horse-shoe. The whole structure has a total diameter of about a meter.

The long, straw-like stems of which it makes use as rafters, are the slender and upright branches of a species of orchid (Denarobium), an epiphytal plant that grows in large tufts on the mossy branches of tall trees. They are as slender as fine straws and are about half a meter in length. The stems retain their small and closely packed leaves, which are still living, and continue to maintain their life a long time, as is the case with greater part of the epiphytal orchids of the tropics; and there is little doubt that these sagacious birds select this plant on account of this vitality, purposely to prevent the decay of their dwelling.

But the aesthetic tastes of our 'gardeners' are not restricted to the construction of a cabin. Their fondness for flowers and for gardens is still more remarkable. Directly in front of the entrance to their cabin is a level place occupying in superficies about as large as that of the structure itself. It is a meadow of soft moss, transported thither, kept smooth and clean, and free from grass, weeds, stones, and other objects not in harmony with its design. Upon this graceful green carpet are scattered flowers and fruit of brilliant colors, in such a manner that they really present the appearance of an elegant little garden. The greater number of these ornaments appear to be accumulated near the entrance to the cabin. The variety of the objects thus collected is very great, and they are always of brilliant colors.

SAW DUST FOR CLEANING HORSES.

I have been experimenting to find a way to avoid the dust that is so disagreeable when grooming horses, and have found a way by which a very dirty horse may be cleaned in a few minutes. I use oak sawdust, that which comes from a green log is just moist enough to be good. I have tried pine sawdust, but did not like it because, after a time, the pitch in it will make the hair a little sticky and of a dull color. Sprinkle a few handfuls over the horse, on the side that you are on; then commence at the tail, and with a circular motion of the carry-comb toward the head, carry the sawdust into the hair, brush off clean, and the dust and dandruff will be removed without flying around. If the legs are muddy, fill the face of a stiff brush with sawdust and rub hard until the fine dust or dried mud begins to fly; then fill the brush again, and proceed as before. This operation takes off all dirt and dust, and leaves the hair clean and glossy.—B. P. O. in Country Gentleman.

Expelled. Mr. J. G. Blow and his trainer, Law-Riggs Bill Bass was not expelled, for the reason that he is owned by Gen. Price, who was not present and had nothing to do with the fraud. This decision has given the widest satisfaction. At Lexington a man speedily bankrupts his reputation. It is no place for the schemer. If young Blow had had a level head on his shoulder he would not have thought for a moment of attempting the job which has buried him in disgrace. Let his fate prove a warning to other misguided men.—Turf.

FAST RAILWAY TRAVELLING.

On the 24th ult., the Directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad were run by special train over the G. W. R. from Detroit to Suspension Bridge, at a speed that deserves to be chronicled. The train left Windsor at 9.16 a. m., and arrived at Clifton 2.12—four minutes less than five hours. Out of this is to be deducted the actual time of stops at various stations and level railway crossings, amounting in the whole to 56 minutes; making actual running time between stations four hours, or average speed for 229 miles, 57½ miles an hour. It should be borne in mind that Friday being the Queen's Birthday, was an exceedingly busy day with excursion and other trains on the railway, and it is satisfactory to find not only that this special was run with perfect safety to itself at this extraordinary speed, but also without interfering with the other traffic on the line. We hear that the C. B. & Q. R. directors, to whom it was a matter of great moment to overtake the Atlantic Express at Suspension Bridge, have expressed themselves, as well they might, exceedingly gratified with the manner in which they were "put through," and thus enabled to keep their engagement in Boston.

BREAKDOWN OF BOB WOOLEY.

Mr. Jas. C. Murphy's brown horse Bob Woolley, six years old, by imp. Leamington, out of Item (Idalia's dam) by Lexington, her dam Katona (Tom Ochiltree's dam) by Voucher, out of Countess by imp. Margrave &c., &c., broke down in a trial run just preceding the spring meeting of the Kentucky Association at Lexington, Ky. Bob Woolley has grown, thickened and spread a deal in the last two years, and stands fully 15½ hands. He was one of the speediest horses that ever trod the turf, and the day he broke down he ran a mile with heavy shoes, under blankets, in 1:41½. His race for a sweepstakes at Lexington, Ky., fall meeting, 1875, a mile and an eighth, which he won in 1:54, the fastest on record, was run at the rate of 1:41 to the mile. From his breeding and performances he should make a valuable addition to the stud, for a better actioned horse is not to be found.—Ky. Live Stock Record.

A CONSCIENTIOUS JUDGE.

Clinton Lloyd, Esq., for many years Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives at Washington, and withal an enthusiastic trout fisherman, tells the following story of the late Hon. Robert C. Grier, whose example, a correspondent suggests, is worthy the imitation of all who are clothed in the second ermine:

"The Judge had an utter repugnance to any method of catching a trout other than with an artificial fly. On one occasion he went to Youngwoman's town on a fishing excursion. Arriving late in the afternoon, he inquired of the landlord if he would give them trout for supper. 'Oh, yes,' was the reply. When supper was announced, the Judge's eyes were greeted with the sight of a dish of splendid trout, cooked to a turn, and calculated to tempt the appetite of a gourmand. 'How did you catch those fellows?' asked the judge in an excited tone. 'With a grab.' 'And what is a grab?' It was explained that it consisted of a stiff pole, the end of which were fastened three hooks, with which the operator leaned over a deep hole where the trout lay quietly, and hooked them out by catching them under the belly. 'Take them away, take them away,' screamed the Judge. 'I wouldn't eat a trout caught that way if I was starving to death, and if I could get the scoundrel that caught them into my court in any way, I would send him to the penitentiary for life.'"

Mr. Lenglen, of Arras, France, recently made known a curious case of the transmission of physical traits to the third generation. A man named Gamelou, who lived at the close of the last century, had six fingers, two thumbs on each hand, and two great toes on each foot. This peculiarity was not perceptible in his son, but in the third generation all of the children conformed to the malformation of their grandfather. A similar instance has been observed in the lower animals by Quatrefages.

he never practiced medicine, he owed the title by which he was best known to Doctor Lunt. His father sent him to London to be educated in medicine and surgery, but he remained at college but a year or two, being the focus of the news that Edward Harcourt discovered gold near Bathurst. He did not remain long in Australia, but returned to England, ravaged extensively in Belgium and elsewhere, made the acquaintance of patrons of the turf, and possibly did a little in the way of reporting for Bent's and other London sporting journals. Coming to this country at about the beginning of 1857, he joined the staff of the Clipper, with which, except for a comparatively brief interval, he was connected until his death. The first important task assigned him on this journal was one of the reporters of the Hookey-Morrissey fight, and his first important duty on the New York Herald, with which he was long associated, was to report in part the Dead Rabbit Riot, in the course of which he narrowly escaped death, a man who was standing beside him on a brick pile being shot. In addition to his duties elsewhere, he was the sporting editor of the New York Tribune for many years, or until about 1873, when sporting events ceased to be a feature of that journal. About eighteen years ago, while co-operating with Charles J. Foster in reporting turf events for the Spirit of the Times, he also generalized the dramatic news for that journal, and until 1863 was its billiard reporter, as he was again for a time in the summer of 1866. In 1873 he again attended to his turf columns. He was the successor of the late General Charles G. Halpine ("Miles O'Henry") as the editor of the Billiard Cue, and so continued until the Spring of 1864, and for a brief period in 1873 he edited the billiard columns of the Turf Field and Farm, in which service he may be said to have closed his long and creditable connection with billiards. Possessing a wide general knowledge of sporting events, and scrupulously attentive to his duties, he was an uncommonly useful man on a newspaper, and there is scarcely a metropolitan journal of long standing that has not at one time or another called upon him to supply a gap. A general companion, he yet never permitted himself to carry him beyond prudent bounds or to cause him to neglect his duties. Deriving his very life from the excitement of the world of sports, and many from those of the turf, as soon as his physical ailments began to seriously interfere with his attendance at race-meetings, and the like, it was but natural that he should begin to die. Death had been crowding him for many months, yet with indomitable will the Doctor sought to keep his feet, and he was at the Copper when as late as four days before his death, when at most any other man with whom surgery had experimented as it had with him would have been in bed. A wife survives, but he leaves no children. In 1858 he married the wife of John Slann the actor, and who, once a favorite actress, has long been in retirement.

EXCITING COMBAT OF SNAKES.

An exciting "mill" took place at the National Museum the other day. Two live snakes, of which there are quite a number, are kept in four glass cases, the bottom of which are covered with sand. It only a water snake was put in the case which the king snake occupies. His kingship resented the intrusion and attacked the visitor, and the two went tumbling around the case together in approved pugilistic style. Three rounds were fought. In the first two the king snake forced the fighting, and the water snake confined himself mainly to getting out of the awkward and dangerous positions in which the strength and skill of his adversary placed him. But as the "dodo" will turn when trodden upon, so will the water snake when bitten too hard, and when riddled down with a sponge after the second round he seemed to get his second wind and was eager for the fray. Meanwhile the king snake had opened his mouth to its full capacity, and was sharpening his teeth against the side of the case. Then came the fierce encounter, and both snakes fought nobly. Finally the king snake took his adversary's head entirely in his mouth and began to chew on it, which seemed to discourage the water snake, and caused his backer to throw up the sponge. The victor of the match is an old hand at contests of this kind, and recently bit an offending neighbour equally in two.—Washington Star.

NEWSPAPER DECISIONS.

1. Any person or persons who takes a paper regularly from a Post Office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. The Courts have decided, that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

THE ENGLISH DERBY.

The great national race of England—the Derby—was run on Wednesday last, and was won by Sefton; the French horse Insulaire second; and Childerio, third. Sir Joseph, the favorite, was not placed. The latest betting intelligence shows that Sefton started at the odds of 10 to 1 against him; 5 to 2 being bet that he would not be placed. After Insulaire won the French Derby he advanced from 5 to 1 to 8 to 1. Sir Joseph was at 8 to 1. It is probable that Insulaire just before the race supplanted Sir Joseph as favorite, as there was a strong growing feeling in his favor.

superiority over all the other horses in the country; their owners believed in their merit, and did not hesitate to name them against anything that might be entered in the stake. It is singular that only one nomination comes from Ontario, Quebec furnishing the other two. The conditions of the race and the nominations are as follows:

CONDITIONS.—The "Canadian Sporting Times" Stallion Race, to be trotted for by all Stallions owned in Canada on March 1, 1878 (bar Phil Sheridan) publicly advertised to, and making the season of 1878 in Canada. The season's service to consist of not less than ten mares.

$100 each; $50 forfeit, with Gold Medal added by the proprietor of the "Canadian Sporting Times" to the winning horse. Mile heats 3 in 6, in harness. Entries close on Saturday, June 1, 1878. Forfeit money must accompany nominations, and the other $50 payable on Friday, Sept. 20; 75 per cent. of money to first horse, and 25 per cent. to second. Pedigree and description, with owner's name to be given in nomination. Race to be trotted early in October, 1878.

1. H. SWIFT, Quebec, P. Q., enters black horse BLACK PRINCE, 5 years old, by Shaughran (a black pacing horse) he by Vershire, his grand-sire by Live Oak; dam unknown.

2. E. BARBEAU & Co., Laprairie, P. Q., enter brown horse BEN MORRILL, 10 years old, by Wiutbrop Morrill, dam by Old Columbus, 2nd dam by imported Trustee, 3rd dam Jane of the West.

3. S. J. P. WISEB, Prescott, Ont., enters bay horse CHESTNUT HILL, 6 years old, by Rysdyk, dam the Miller mare, by Bully King, by George M. Patchen.

A FRAUDULENT ENTRY.

The Dominion Rules provide that in making an entry for any trotting purse, the name of the horse shall be correctly and plainly written, and if he has ever trotted in a race under a different name within two years, such former name or names must be given; and a horse having once been named shall not again start in a race on any course in Canada, without a name or under a different name, without the foregoing provisions have been complied with. They further provide that any person found guilty of making such fraudulent entry shall be expelled. It will readily be admitted this is a wise provision for the protection of horse owners and the public. It is bad enough to "ring" a horse in a class to which he does not belong; but what should be said of a man who would cooley go to work and enter his horse, who had a record below 8:00, in that class, giving as his name that of another horse belonging to an entirely different party. In this way it was thought to destroy the identity of the entry, and in case of winning a heat it would act prejudicially to the horse justly entitled to the name.

In the report of the races at Clinton published in last week's paper, it will be seen that a bay gelding J. F. trotted in the 8:00 and 2:40 classes. The gelding J. F. is the property of Mr. John Fleming, of this city, and as might naturally be supposed he was more than surprised to see the name of his horse figuring in races in which he took no part. Upon investigation it was found that the horse trotted at Clinton under the name of J. F., was none other than the bay gelding Bob Moore, owned at Barrie, having a record that would debar him from contending in a 8:00 race. There can be scarcely a doubt that it was the intention to palm off Bob Moore as the horse J. F. owned in this city. J. F. has no record, and if his fraudulent representative would as a general rule be found to be head and shoulders in respectability above ninety per cent. of those found on the outside of the ropes, and as the former by no means occupied dignified positions in society some slight idea may be formed of the social status of a very large proportion of the spectators. Certainly the most objectionable feature about modern fistiana in America was the consciousness of being obliged to be brought in contact with the most desperate and depraved of the criminal classes. The sporting press of both hemispheres pointed this out at the time, and propounded under such management that the decline of the P.R. was only a matter of time—and that that period would not be very extended. The fact shows how correct they were in their anticipations. For nearly twenty years the "ring" has been lost sight of. Lately, however, quite a revival has sprung up, and that, too, in quarters where it might be least expected. It is not the old bare-fisted encounter in its purity, but for all practical purposes it answers as well. Under the new system of testing physical superiority by nature's weapons, a thickly-padded dog-skin glove is used, and while this evades the law it permits as severe punishment to be inflicted as if the blows were administered by the bare knuckles. In England contests with this glove are publicly advertised and as openly carried on, under the patronage of the scions of the best families. In New York, more than one encounter of this class has taken place among the members of the upper crust of society. This recognition of the manly art by such a class of patrons will surely result in the revival of the P. R. in its ancient purity, and the disciples of Sayers, Ward, Cribb, Heenan, Hyer, Sullivan and Morrissey look to this change of public sentiment as an ominous sign in favor of the magic square occupying the distinguished position it held half a century ago, when it could number among its patrons even royalty itself.

EXETER RACES.

The full programme of the Summer meeting at Exeter will be found in our advertising columns to day. The meeting will last two days, July 1 and 2, and the premium money foots up to $1,000, quite a respectable amount as things are going. The trotting is divided into 8:00, 2:50, 2:40 and 2:30 classes. $475 are offered for the running classes. The entries close on June 28. Exeter boldly claims to have the best half-mile track in Canada, and from the exemplary management of the Association we expect they will have a fine meeting.

STALLIONS IN "SPORTING TIMES."

GOLD DUST.

This lusty representative of the Gold Dusts will be found at his owner's stables Toronto, the present season. He is a fine looking colt, 16:1, 4 years old, and weighs over 1,200 lbs. He is by Forest Gold Dust (a son of Mr. Dorsey's old horse); his dam being by Vermont Morgan, 2nd dam by Am. Eclipse, (a thoroughbred). Gentlemen desirous of breeding to this class or strain of horses should take a look at Gold Dust, his appearance and breeding will probably satisfy the most critical.

pony, which has given birth to a colt that weighs only ten pounds. It is said to be the smallest piece of horse flesh in the country, and a little beauty.

The trotter Hannis, the surprise of 1877, shows symptoms of navicular disease, and consequently will not appear on the track this season. He has a record of 2:19½, having started in the campaign last year as a green horse.

"Please, pa, what does P. R. stand for? Paglistic Recreation, my boy."

Mr. Wm. House, of Carlisle, Ky., has a mare that gave birth to her twenty-fourth foal last month. She is now thirty years old.

Mr. Wm. Dobson left Toronto last week with 14 horses for Winnipeg, Man. They were a fine lot of large horses and apparently just the kind wanted in that new country.

The rumour that the trotter Slow Go, record 2:18½, was lame, is said to have no foundation.

The well-known trotter, Jersey Boy was sold on Saturday at Bordenstown, N. J., to John McFadden, of Philadelphia, for $4,500.

Capt. Stewart's horse, which jumped from a train near Carillon, while en route for Montreal, has been found unhurt. It is the first time we have heard of a quadruped achieving the feat of leaping from a train in motion, with an impetus of twenty miles an hour, and landing safely. But it was a field battery horse, which, perhaps, will account for its agility.

Grey Salem, a horse not unknown in Canada, won the 2:35 race at Pittsburg, Pa., May 31. Best time 2:35.

Mr. R. W. Thomas, of Dowiac, Mich., has recently purchased from Mr. D. Swigert, Spring Station, Ky., the bay filly America, 8 years, by Alarm, dam Asia by imp. Australian, and the bay filly Sweetheart, 8 years, by Lever, dam Rebecca T. Price (the dam of Mohawk) by the Colonel. Sweetheart is an own sister to Mahlick.

The Tascarora Nevada Times gives the following answer to a correspondent:—"Preacher—If the Deacon hunched you for threes when he held only two pairs, thereby causing him to lose the pot, half of the amount should have been deducted from his share when you came to divide at the end of the game. It is hard to stock a straight flush, and it would probably take you a year's close practice to learn to do it skillfully. It is safer and easier to palm that kind of a hand or raise it from your lap."

It is currently reported that the grey gelding Charles Henson trotted a trial heat over the Rochester, N. Y., track the other day in 2:18½. If this is a fact he looks like the coming horse. So many fabulous stories have been told regarding Henson that there is naturally a good deal of curiosity to see him in a race. There can be no doubt however, that Mr. Burt Sheldon has a remarkable fast one in Henson.

Hatcher Tom, a celebrated pacing horse, said to have a record of 2:18, broke his leg and had to be destroyed shortly afterwards at Davenport, Iowa, on May 22. He was owned by Mr. Mintzer of St. Paul, Minn.

Exeter Races will take place on July 1 & 2. See advertisement for full particulars.

ship which was finally ended by the Emma, but as she started twenty minutes before the Emma the latter boat won the race by three minutes. The correct order being Emma, Laura, Surprise, and Zitella. Much to the chagrin of the owners of the several boats, they informed that the race would have been over the next day, as the buoy off the coast had been carried away. The Kingston was objected to this, and refused to sail over, as they considered that they had won the race; in consequence the race (Saturday) only the Surprise, (Blanche), Victorine (Alexandria Bay), Eclipse, and the Eclipse, (Champion) entered. The Surprise took the lead, was never overhauled, coming in ten minutes by 37 minutes, which would represent six miles. Considerable dissatisfaction expressed by the yacht owners among the judges who did not appear to be much about yacht racing, and they very little judgement in settling the matter after the race was over. Their knowledge of sailing did not extend beyond "steer true course for the buoy who kept the inner grocery" and then anchor down until the capstan was brought into motion. It is a pity gentlemen take the opinion of judges at races of all kinds, their knowledge of the particular which they are supposed to judge is limited.

The chief feature of the regatta was the first appearance of Mr. H. De Gaulle Allen's new yacht, the Albatross, which is a curiosity of naval architecture looking like a cross between a wash tub. She would have come very winning the race had not all the other boats passed her, but notwithstanding her qualities it is evident she is better adapted for canal sailing and a tow-line race. Last spoken, her crew were seen on a hind, shoving her along with poles from astronomical observations taken from a spot, it was calculated she would reach the winning buoy when he became a man crew were well provisioned and had of fresh water on board so that no one is apprehended. It is understood that Allen procured the Maud's model Model Farm where they do these very well from being so much at sea. [Owing to the late hour this communication was received last week we were unable to hold it over.—Ed. S. T.]

RACING AT LUCAN, ONT.

LUCAN, May 28.

The Lucan R. & D. Park was opened on May 24th, the inaugural being a local meeting. The formation of the Association and the construction of the track exhibit commendable enterprise. About May 1st a primary meeting was called, the Association formed, a field obtained just outside the corporation limits, and work was at once started with such spirit that by May 28, about three weeks from the inception, we had a perfectly level half-mile-track, 60 feet wide, enclosed by an 8-ft. fence; a grand stand, capable of seating 500; a judges stand, ticket office, &c., fully equipped. On Sept. 15, we intend to hold our Fall Meeting, and we will be pleased to show horsemen and visitors the best half-mile track in Canada. There were about 1,500 present on the 24th, and this number would doubtless have been increased materially had our announcement been got out a week or so earlier. The following are the winners of the different events:

Farmers' Running Race—J Bowd's Little Nettie, 1; A McLean's Bay Jack, 2; F Brook's Sleepy Ben, 3.

Aquatic.

THE SILVER LAKE REGATTA.

FRENCHY JOHNSON WINS THE SINGLE-SCULL RACE.

The first regatta under the auspices of the Eastern Rowing Association took place at Silver Lake, near Boston, Mass., on May 30. Despite the drizzling rain about four thousand people were on the ground. The principal interest centred in the professional single-scutt race, for which there were thirteen entries, of which eight started, as follows: Jeremiah Driscoll, of Brookline; Frenchy A. Johnson, P. H. Driscoll and M. J. Mahoney, of Boston; James H. Riley, of Saratoga; James A. Ten Eyck, of Peekskill; Daniel F. Sullivan and David Kennedy, of Lowell. Riley was the favorite, but at the start, which was a fine one, Johnson showed in front and maintained his lead throughout, covering the three miles with a turn in 21m. 38½s., second in 21m. 44s., and Sullivan third in 22 m. 2½s. Ten Eyck, who was fourth, was allowed third money on a claim of foul. The prizes were $150, $100 and $50. The same prizes were given in the four-raced race for working-boats, for which they were eleven entries and eight starters, all local organizations. The Lakemans were the favorites, but the Chelseas led from the start and won in 19m. 55½s. West End second, Riverside third, Lakeman fourth. The pair-oared race was contested by four of the eight entries, and a fine race was the result. Time made was as follows: Longshore Crew, Portland, 21m. 14s.; six brothers—Godkins, Portland, 23½s.; Connolly brothers, 21m. 56s.; Casey brothers, 23m. 22½s. The amateur two-mile single-scutt race for a $100 cup brought out seven of the eighteen entries, and was won by Frank E. Holmes in 14m. 18½s.; Isaac Houghton, of the Union Club, second, and W. R. Goddard, of Harvard, third.

American oarsmen will take part in it. There is a magnificent stretch of water at Brockville for such a race, and there is reason why it should not be one of the most successful aquatic affairs of the year. As soon as determined upon the full particulars will be published the Sporting Times.

HANLAN'S REGATTA.

The regatta at Hanlan's Point on the Island, on Saturday last, was quite a successful affair, and complimentary to the Champion's management. The race for 18-ft. boats had six entries, and was won by Billy McKen; Humphries, second; Bob Berry, third; E. Jennings, fourth; J. Hanlan and Elliott were disqualified for turning one of the flags the wrong way. Billy McKen was also the winner of the race for 17 feet boats; with J. Hanlan second and Elliott third. After the race the champion showed his style in his shell. For the races, Mr. Tom Tinning kept the course clear and got the starters in position.

HIGGINS DEFEATS ELLIOTT.

The great boat race between John Higgins, of the Thames, and William Elliott, of the Tyne, for the championship of England and £400, came off on June 8, on the Thames course, being from Putney to Mortlake. There was an immense attendance. The race was won by Higgins with apparent ease. The weather was fair Higgins was the favorite at 11 to 10 on him. The time was 24:38, 28 seconds slower than Higgins' race with Boyd. It is expected Higgins will row against the American champion this year. It was strongly fancied that Elliott would come to America this year, but the result of this race will have a decided tendency to keep him at home.

HANLAN AND ROSS.

The St. John Daily News says:—Mr. Arthur Tilley, late of St. John, but now a resident of Toronto, arrived here from that city on Saturday. He has been requested to act on behalf of the Toronto sculler in some matters regarding the proposed race between Hanlan and Ross. His arrival, no doubt, caused the report that was circulated yesterday that Hanlan was in this city. There was no truth in the latter story. The latest proposition of the backers of Hanlan is that the race between their man and Ross take place on the 17th of July instead of the 29th of that month, as proposed by Ross' friends. This proposition is not likely to be received favorably by St. John men, as Ross' new English boat is not expected here until some time in July. The articles have not yet been signed; indeed they have not yet been forwarded from St. John, and notwithstanding that there is a deposit of $500 a side up, it cannot be said that the race is yet made.

HANLAN'S DEPARTURE.

On Wednesday morning Hanlan left via the Great Western Railway for Pittsburg, to prepare for his race with Morris, which takes place on the 20th inst. He was accompanied by Heasley and Loudon, his trainers; and Mr. James Douglas, of the Hanlan Club. He took with him his Swaddle & Winship shell and a Waters' paper boat. Elliott, of Greenpoint, N.Y., is building him a shell which will be forwarded to him at Pittsburg. He will make his headquarters at Hulton, about 12 miles from Pittsburg, and will train over the course. Quite a large delegation from Toronto will be present at the race.

SKIFF RACE.—On Saturday evening an exciting skiff race took place on Toronto Bay between Frank McCabe and Thomas McCarthy the distance being two miles straightaway and the stakes being $20 a side. McCabe won the race by about two lengths.
 DOUBLE SCULLS.—On Monday of last week a double scull race took place at Prescott, between Messrs. James Hibbard and Chas. Plumb, Jr., and Messrs. F. J. Daniels and D. Atkins. The course was from the ferry dock at Prescott to the buoy near Ogdensburg and back. Daniels and Atkins started off with the lead which they kept for over half-a-mile, but Hibbard and Plumb here

FROM OGDENSBURG.

To Editor of Sporting Times:

Sir,—Decoration Day has passed, but was not duly observed here, although the G. A. R. met in a quiet way, headed by the city band. Their extemporaneous arrangements were carried out, which consisted of merely strowing the graves of their deceased companions in arms with flowers, leaving out the usual speeches, songs, music, &c., of former occasions. Our citizens were treated to something first-class on the 28th ult., by the appearance of Frank Mayo as "Davy Crockett." The audience was composed of our best families, and they were fully repaid for the risk they run in going to Eagle Hall and taking chances. The New York Company also had a good house, and the beautiful play of "The Celebrated Case" won many friends here. May Fisk's Blondes had a "stag house," and many good personal hits were improvised and highly applauded. All of our horsemen have gone to Gouverneur to attend the meeting, which commences tomorrow (the 4th) and lasts three days. Mr. Wiser has sent quite a number of horses to be entered for the different prizes. Fishing is at its height here at present, and we have had quite a number of large fish captured by our local anglers. The Oswegatchie River is swarming with young shad. The presence of these fish in our waters settles the question that Seth Green's experiment in stocking the St. Lawrence river and Lake Ontario with shad was a success. There have been several captured in this vicinity, but they were quite small, 7 to 9 inches in length.—Max.

BRAMPTON ITEMS.

James Robson's b g Miller Boy beat T. McDougall's br m Armstrong Maid, at Macville, in a mile heat trot, on the 27th ult.
 Chas. K. Ily, of Bowmanville, (formerly of Brampton) has challenged Thos. Hill, of Brampton, to run 100 yards on the track here, within two weeks, for $50. Hill has decided to accept.
 Some of the Brampton trotters will take part in outside races on Dominion Day. D. Williamson has some fine horses under his care, among which are T. McConnell's stallion; Arthur Roy, and Mackenzie.
 There will be horse races and athletic games at Norval on Dominion Day, when $250 will be given in prizes.
 An error occurred in report of Green trot here on 24th ult. Britannia Bay got second money and place instead of Sporting George.—Julius.

 The second race was a match between Jim White and Alexander. It was won by Jim White in three straight heats. No time in either race. It is said this was the fastest race ever trotted over a half-mile track in Canada. THE SILVER LAKE REGATTA.

FRENCHY JOHNSON WINS THE SINGLE-SCULL RACE.

The first regatta under the auspices of the Eastern Rowing Association took place at Silver Lake, near Foston, Mass., on May 30. Despite the drizzling rain about four thousand people were on the ground. The principal interest centred in the professional single-scutt race, for which there were thirteen entries, of which eight started, as follows: Jeremiah Driscoll, of Brookline; Frenchy A. Johnson, P. H. Driscoll and M. J. Mahoney, of Boston; James H. Riley, of Saratoga; James A. Ten Eyck, of Peekskill; Daniel F. Sullivan and David Kennedy, of Lowell. Riley was the favorite, but at the start, which was a fine one, Johnson showed in front and maintained his lead throughout, covering the three miles with a turn in 21m. 38½s., Riley second in 21m. 44s., and Sullivan third in 22 m. 2½ s. Ten Eyck, who was fourth, was allowed third money on a claim of foul. The prizes were $150, $100 and $50. The same prizes were given in the four-raced race for working-boats, for which there were eleven entries and eight starters, all local organizations. The Lakemans were the favorites, but the Chelseas led from the start and won in 19m. 55½s., West End second, Riverside third, Lakeman fourth. The pair-oared race was contested by four of the eight entries, and a fine race was the result. The time made was as follows: Longshore Crew, Portland, 21m. 14s.; six brothers—Godkins, 21m. 23½s.; Connolly brothers, 21m. 56s.; Casey brothers, 23m. 22½s. The amateur two-mile single-scutt race for a $100 cup brought out seven of the eighteen entries, and was won by Frank E. Holmes in 14m. 13½s.; Isaac Houghton, of the Union Club, second, and W. R. Goddard, of Harvard, third.

BOAT RACING AT STRATFORD.

The regatta at Stratford on the Queens' Birthday was witnessed by a goodly number of spectators, who felt grateful to the Boat Club for doing something to relieve the tedium of the forenoon. The various races were contested with much good spirit and resulted as follows:

SINGLE SCULL RACE.—1, The Clipper, Alex. Fraser; 2, Mowat, John Hyde; 3, Bluebird, Geo. Wil on. Won by two boatlengths, the others about even.

DOUBLE SCULL RACE.—Hyde and McGregor; Clipper, Fraser and Wilson. Hyde's boat won, Fraser having broken an outrigger and compelled to drop out of the race.

SINGLE SCULL RACE.—1, Mary, W. Blachford; 2, Annie, Fred Jarvis; 3, The Ark, W. Crispin.

SAILING RACE.—1, Saucy Jack, E. J. French; 2, David Nicol; 3, The Club Boat, Dr. Campbell—a slow third.

$1,000 PURSE AT BROCKVILLE.

The citizens of Brockville purpose having a single scull contest on the St. Lawrence River, on Dominion Day, for a purse of $1,000, 4 miles. At present it is contemplated to divide the prize into three moneys—$500 to first, $300 to second, $200 to third. The committee have placed themselves in communication with the leading watermen of the continent, and so far the responses have been satisfactory. We understand the money has been secured, and if 3 or 4 starters can be guaranteed the race will be sure to come off. It is expected that Hanlan, Riley, Johnson, Ross, McKen, Brayley and Warren Smith, with probably a couple more not on behalf of the Toronto sculler in some matters regarding the proposed race between Hanlan and Ross. His arrival, no doubt, caused the report that was circulated yesterday that Hanlan was in this city. There was no truth in the latter story. The latest proposition of the backers of Hanlan is that the race between their man and Ross take place on the 17th of July instead of the 29th of that month, as proposed by Ross' friends. This proposition is not likely to be received favorably by St. John men, as Ross' new English boat is not expected here until some time in July. The articles have not yet been signed; indeed they have not yet been forwarded from St. John, and notwithstanding that there is a deposit of $500 a side up, it cannot be said that the race is yet made.

HANLAN'S DEPARTURE.

On Wednesday morning Hanlan left via the Great Western Railway for Pittsburg, to prepare for his race with Morris, which takes place on the 20th inst. He was accompanied by Heasley and Loudon, his trainers; and Mr. James Douglas, of the Hanlan Club. He took with him his Swaddle & Winship shell and a Waters' paper boat. Elliott, of Greenpoint, N.Y., is building him a shell which will be forwarded to him at Pittsburg. He will make his headquarters at Hulton, about 12 miles from Pittsburg, and will train over the course. Quite a large delegation from Toronto will be present at the race.

SKIFF RACE.—On Saturday evening an exciting skiff race took place on Toronto Bay between Frank McCabe and Thomas McCarthy the distance being two miles straightaway and the stakes being $20 a side. McCabe won the race by about two lengths.

DOUBLE SCULLS.—On Monday of last week a double scull race took place at Prescott, between Messrs. James Hibbard and Chas. Plumt, Jr., and Messrs. F. J. Daniels and D. Atkins. The course was from the ferry dock at Prescott to the buoy near Ogdensburg and back. Daniels and Atkins started off with the lead which they kept for over half-a-mile, but Hibbard and Plumt here showed in front and won by about 3 boats' lengths. Time, 15:30.

CAN'T SEE IT.—Felsing who was challenged by Billy McKen declines to make a match with the Toronto youth. Billy is now on the war-path and wants to raise somebody's hair. Who will see him.

The New York Herald announces a regatta at Silver Lake, near Boston, on August 22nd, open to all single scullers in the United States, for $1,000, all to the first man. This is evidently meant to bar out Hanlan, but why it is done in such an underhand sort of a way and not openly and above board, needs a word or two of explanation.

ROYAL CANADIAN YACHT CLUB.—At a special general meeting of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the following gentlemen were elected office-bearers for the current year:—Commodore, A. R. Boswell, yacht Geraldine; vice-Commodore, W. C. Campbell, yacht Oriole; Captain, J. H. G. Hagarty, yacht Alarm; Hon. Sec.-Treas., H. J. Grassett. The Commodore announced his intention to present a cup to the Club for competition at the regatta in September next.

QUESTIONS.—When you start a rowing race by the sterns of the boats and finish by the bows, who has the best of it—the long or short boat? And if you start by the bows and finish by bows, or start by sterns and finish by sterns—is there any advantage to be gained by long or short boats? If so, which in either case? This was a subject of discussion at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Pacific Amateur Rowing Association the other night, and will furnish subject for an argument at the boat-houses.

Bergh has just arrested a fellow in New York for docking his horses! What a dock-trinaire!

Chas. K. Hly, of Bowmanville, (formerly of Brampton) has challenged Thos. Hill, of Brampton, to run 100 yards on the track here, within two weeks, for $50. Hill has decided to accept.

Some of the Brampton trotters will take part in outside races on Dominion Day. D. Williamson has some fine horses under his care, among which are T. McConnell's stallion; Arthur Roy, and Mackenzie.

There will be horse races and athletic games at Norval on Dominion Day, when $250 will be given in prizes.

An error occurred in report of Green trot here on 24th ult. Britannia Bay got second money and place instead of Sporting George.—JULIUS.

CITY.

Mrs. Morrison's farewell benefit at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening was a suitable tribute on her retirement from the management of the house. The audience was one of the largest of the season, and composed of the elite of our citizens. The bill was London Assurance and To Parents and Guardians. The cast included, besides the beneficiare, Mrs. and Mr. Chas. Walcot and the full strength of the Exile Co., who recently played a short season here. Mrs. Morrison has reason to feel flattered at this testimonial to her efforts.
 The regular season at the Royal Opera House, under the management of Mr. Geo. Holman, was brought to a close on Saturday evening last. The Hoiman Opera Company are now enjoying their usual summer vacation.
 The Lyceum has been attracting large houses all week. Two new stars have been added to the company—Miss Eloise Allen, balladist; and Mr. Leon Whitney, animal impersonator. The Thompsons, Ned West, Jessie Boyd, and the Ezzeltine Sisters still continue. Several new features are announced for next week.

THE PLAYS IN RHYME.

'The Lady of Lyons' went 'Out on a Lark'
To flirt with 'Clancarty,' 'Alone,' 'After Dark,'
But in 'The Swiss Cottage' she met with 'Jane Bye'
'Bamboozling' 'The Shaughraun' and 'Robert Macaire.'
'Moll Pitcher' 'The Merchant of Venice' held tight,
While 'Henry the Fifth' squeezed 'The Woman in White.'
'Our Gals' and 'Our Bachelors,' seeking for
'Fun,'
Sent 'Toodles' for 'Money' to 'Dombey & Son.'
'The Wise' made 'An Awkward Arrival' right here,
And asked for 'The Loan of a Lover' from
'Lear,'
Their 'Love' they did 'Lispet' until they both heard
'The Exiles' and 'Mignon' pound 'Richard the Third,'
'Camille' and 'The Hunchback,' overcome with
'Remorse,' Grew weary of 'Marriage' and longed for 'Divorce,'
After 'Champagne and Oysters' 'Dick Turpin' was found
Close 'Under the Gaslight,' on 'Delicate Ground.'
Of 'Naval Engagements' 'Tom Cringle' did talk Till he met with 'Musette' in 'The Streets of New York.'
'Jane Shore' had a 'Dread' of 'The Drunkard,' she vowed,
Who with 'Nick of the Woods' sowed 'Wild Oats' in the crowd.
'Two Orphans' with 'Nobody's Daughter' did
mix,
And got 'Michael Erle' in 'A Regular Fix,'
'Othello' and 'Hamlet' for lodgings did wait,
But offered 'Our Boarding-house' 'Dollars'
'Too Late.'
'Evangeline' brought out her mammoth balloon,
And sailed with 'Pauvette' on 'A Trip to the Moon.'
'Tom Cobb' went with 'Bortha' to see 'Central Park,'
And gave 'The Young Widow,' 'A Kiss in the Dark,'
While 'Lurline,' 'Cinderella' and 'Rory O'More' Drove up in 'The Omnibus' right up to the door!

THE HARD-BATTED BASEBALL.

How dear to the heart is the green-covered ball-
field,
Where the good rival captains their men rightly place—
The pitcher, the catcher, the right field, the left field—
The good men, the true men, who guard well
each base;
The short stop so lively, the centre field handy,
The bat and the striker who aims to strike high;
But dear than all to the hearts of good fielders
Is the leather-clad base-ball we catch on the fly—
The jolly old baseball, the well-covered baseball,
The leather-clad baseball we catch on the fly.
The umpire, who calls out the strikes and the fouls,
Who all growling prevents with decisions so wise—
The striker who growls when he goes out three strikes,
Who calls for low balls and strikes at skyhighs;
The man who knocks liners as swift as chain-lightning,
To lay out the pitcher the short stop and all;
But a good fielder's grip on that ball is so tightning,
That he'd not drop that loving, old red-hot baseball,
The well covered baseball we used to so maul.

Miscellaneous.

George, King of Greece, is never happy except at the billiard table.

George Evans, the jockey, has returned from his visit to England. So far he has not been permanently engaged, but will doubtless, have important mounts for Mr. P. Lorillard's Mr. Belmont, and others, during the season.

A curious partnership is related as existing in Chelsea, Vt., where a turkey and a partridge are sharing a nest. The turkey continues to deposit her egg daily, although the partridge began to set after laying thirteen. During the occupation of the nest by the turkey the partridge attends to feeding.

One day last week Mr. R. Fitzsimmons, of Clinton, killed a ground-hog that was quite a curiosity. It was minus a tail, and apparently never had one, and in place of hind legs had two toes, each about two inches long, by means of which it managed to hop along, though slowly.

ENDURANCE.—The horse will eat ten hours out of the twelve; and the hog never knows what it is not to be hungry. The crow flies six miles, and the pigeon sixty an hour, but the humming-bird beats all things on the wing. The wild turkey can run faster than he can fly, and any man who is a good walker can tire a deer out in twenty-four hours. The fox is the hardest animal to catch in a trap, and a meadow lark is the shyest of all the birds in the air. The spider is the only creature that catches its food in a trap, and a sheep will live without water longer than any other domestic animal.

Middletown, Conn., will please go to the head. One of the nutmeg farmers has just made a wonderful discovery of the utilization of bull-frogs as churners. The farmer "having placed a pail of milk in a spring of water to cool over night, went there the next morning and found, it is solemnly asserted, instead of the pail of milk, a large bull-frog sitting in a contemplative mood upon a roll of fresh butter. The sole explanation is that the frog had jumped from the water into the pail, and, in trying to extricate himself, had, by diligent and continuous strokes of his long legs, churned the milk into butter."

Mr. H. N. Wells has informed the editor of the Richmond (Ky.) Register, that he is the owner of a cow that has been in the habit of sucking her own milk: "To prevent this, he split the cow's tongue at the end about one inch, and after watching her for a number of days, is satisfied that she is entirely unable to perform the old trick, and advises those troubled in the same way to try the project." If a split tongue will not cure the worst cases, we presume it will be in order to tear the tongue out by its roots. This discovery of Mr. Wells makes us bold to suggest that a horse which is easily frightened by the sight of a flag might be cured by burning his eyes out with a bar of iron heated to redness.

A BELLO OF ISAAC WALTON.—The editor of the Independent of Port Dover, Ont., mentions a relic he has of the celebrated fisherman, Isaac Walton, who flourished two hundred years ago. The relic is in the shape of a box, which, it is said, undoubtedly belonged to Walton. The initials of his name, and the date, 1628, are cut on the lid. It is a very ancient looking piece of mechanism. The hinges are strong, being riveted to the side of the box. It is oval-shaped, the composition being bronze. This is the identical box in which Isaac Walton carried his fishing-bait or flies on his fishing excursions to the North. On one of these excursions he reached as far as the Tweed, at Melrose, where he was entertained by the then, head of the house of Douglas. At this place this veritable old box was left, perhaps forgotten. It may, therefore, be called an ancient relic, having been manufactured 255 years ago.

CANADIAN CATTLE.

When we find a couple of our best brood stock fetching no less a sum than $6,209 each in the British market, we may well be sanguine as to the promise of an international trade in our live stock, as we are now and have hitherto been in our dead beasts. The inception of this trade was not in either cases at all promising, but as the fulfilment is becoming a matter of ordinary commerce its every bearing is rich in the implication of continued prosperity. The sale across the Atlantic has proved to be ready and unlimited, one condition only being imperative, namely, that the quality is equal to the prices willing to be paid for it. Trash will not do, and this foreign demand for a superior beef must act as an incentive to breed and feed well at home. It is impossible to estimate, in a national sense, the importance of this
