King Edward intermediates won from Winchester intermediates by default. Dufferin defeated Winchester in the junior series by a score of 51 to 21. Duf-ferin were much the better team, and they had no trouble in beating the Win-chester five. Their team work and shoot-ing were certainly good for a public school team. The line-up: Dufferin (61)-Forward, Sheppard; cen-tre Edlis; defence, Carter, Dallamore. Winchester (21)-Forward, Hall; centre, McDonald; defence, Gooderich, Harris. Lansdowne juniors defeated Rose-ave-nue juniors by a score of 42 to 17. Lanshandowne had Rose on the run most of the time, and found no trouble in winning. Langdowne lined up as follows: For-wards, Tooze, Slater; centre. Rockwood; defence, Williams, Gurnett, Smith.

Sympathy for Fitzsimmons.

Much sympathy is expressed for Bob Fitzsimmons, the "grand old man," who has met his Waterloo at the hands of Bill Lange, the youngster who claims the championship of Australia. But, Fitzsimmonis is making money at that. He is under contract with Hugh McIntosh, and has yet to fight two battles and earn the $25,000 reward pledged by McIntosh. Just who will be Fitzsimmon's next antagonist is a matter that has not yet been settled. It is said, however, that he will not go on with a second-rater, and it is more than probable that he will be match-ed with Tommy Burns. # Glimpses of Life in a Woman's Reformatory

How Ontario Cares for Its Unfortunate Women Criminals-Aims to Correct and Not to Punish - Keeping Prisoners Busy.

Among the reformatories and places Among the reterminals in the Pro-of correction for criminals in the Pro-vince of Ontario it is probable that vince of Ontario it is probable that least is known about the Andrew Mer-cer Reformatory for Women, its ob-ject and its workings. The institution has long been held over the heads of unfortunate women over the heads of unfortunate women as the one place that they should shun more than all others, and when they are sentenced to spend a term in it the punishment sounds almost the same to them as to be placed in an inquisition. This is, however, a great-by exaggerated and almost a faise of the place in which they are going to spend their time. The duty of the institution is not so much for hment as for reformative and educative purposes. Of course the inmates are not al-lewed their liberty, but they are not kept in cells and isolated totally from their sister inmates. Instead the Merin some respects could be favor-y compared to a huge boarding col. The inhabitants are taught to ook, sew, and do laundry work. They so make their own clothes, and that of their attendants.

How They Are Divided. the women are divided into three ses, but the position they occupy ands solely upon their behavior. se who are on the good list have small, clean, little room, which ins a cot, washstand, chair and any little decorations that they may choose to fix on the walls. These rooms have a window facing the south side of the lawn, while the door has a of the lawn, while the door has a small opening that is barred. Then there are those who are not on the good list. They have not the privilege of a room, but are confined to a cell. This is furnished the same as the former, but instead of having as the former, but instead of naving a window they have only a door, which is open and heavily barred. This faces a corridor and that is the only light that they have. The corridors, tho, are painted yellow and this affords them a good light. Some Are Bad Ones.

Last come the bad members, who have their names on the black list. They are kept isolated in special cells, and have not even the privilege of and have not even the privilege of working. In fact, they do not even leave their cells during the period of their punishment. These cells number about half a dozen, but it is seldom that more than two women are placed in them, as they would talk among themselves and it is a known fact that if a woman can talk, then she is sure to be fairly happy, no matter what circumstances she is in.

At present there are between seventy-five and eighty women in the Merit is a certainty that as soon as they have served their short term they will return to their old life.

A Splendid System. Then another bad factor in the regeneration of the criminal is the fine system. It frequently occurs that after a woman has been in the Mercer for some little time along comes one her drunken friends, who has saved enough money to pay her fine, and re-leases her. It is obvious that she will once more return to the old habits and again the same trouble will occur and land her in the Mercer once more It has often been suggested that in this practice and the short sentence were eliminated a marked improvement would be noticed, but as long as the authorities are forced to labor under this handicap it is certain that no great regeneration of the women criminals can be effected. They simply leave the institution, and drift right back into the life led previously. Many people will ask why. Two reasons can be given. One that they were not given a long enough term to really be of any benefit to them and the other that they have not any place to go. In the latter case the Salvation Army is deserving of great credit in finding homes for them, while the Prison Reform Association also does good work, but the average house-wife would not take one of these unfortunates under any consideration, so in many cases they are forced to go into their old habits in order to live.

A Capable Superintendent. The lives of these women, while in prison are governed by the superintenty-five and eighty women in the Mor-ver, and they are serving terms rang-ing from six months to two years, less a day, which is the maximum term. Of these the large majority is for six months, while only one or two received the big scattence. The criminals are recruited from all classes of workers. The domestics are greatly in the majority, but there are a number of housekeepers and laun-dresses. The most prevalent crimes for which they are sent down are vagfor which they are sent down are vag-for which they are sent down are vag-rancy and drunkenness. ISAAC WATSON. A RURNS. General Manager and Auctioncer. Assistant Auctionce

a year since I heard Miss Adamson in the difficult Mendelssohn concerto for violin and orchestra, when she displayed considerable virtuosity and brilliancy of technique. But Wednesday vening in a program which called more for pure spirituality than technical dexterity, it was plain that she had developed greatly in the power to make her instrument sing the subtler nu ances of the heart and the imagina-tion. This was particularly manifest in the Andante Tranquillo of Brahms' Sonata for plano and violin, and in the Adagio of the exceedingly beautiful D minor trio of Arensky-a composition which has a passionately wistful theme, ever recurring in each move-ment like the song of a banished lover. In the song te Miss Adamson was the Sound Horses of all classes.

In the sonata Miss Adamson was the virtuoso; in the Arensky Trio she was the artist expressing the loveliness of living beauty Mr. Tattersall, at the piano, display ed undeniable gifts in pianoism. In the Mozart Trio, he drove the tempo on, as it were, as if in a hurry to get it thru, and in the Arensky Trio he should have let the violin and 'celio dominate the melodic outline. Altho te really played excellently, he drew too much attention to the piano. his own sake. I advise him to quit the mannerism of bending and swaying over the piano as he plays; let him sit up, like Paderevski or Hofman, and not act so "flossie"; it won't make him any more musicianly than would long hair, and it may develop into uncon-scious humor before a serious audience. Mr. Bruce also displayed refined musicianship thruout the program, and in the Adagio of the Arensky Trio would have made Alvin Schroeder "sit up and take notice." I take pleasure in as-suring the members of Brahms' Trio that their concert Wednesday evening was as delightful as a sensibly cultured man or woman could wish to hear.

Weeding-Out Speculators in Turkey. CONSTANTINPOLE. Jan. 15 .- Ever since the new reign came into force in Turkey, the Minister of Public Works has been literally besieged with ap-plications for all kinds of concessions. It was, therefore, decided not to en-tertain applications which were not supported by a certificate of financial and technical aptitude, and a delay of one month was granted for this guarantee to be furnished. This neasure has been entirely successful. Out of nearly four hundred applica-tions* which had already been" subnitted to the Minister of Public Works. Ont. the authors of only four were able to lish their soundness and good faith.

Turning to the books of the year, the name of Mr. H. G. Wells looms large in the story of 1909. His "Tono-Bungay" is a great novel that will assure its author a place among the immor-tals, and "Ann Veronica" is human and true, with, in addition, a tone of sympathy and understanding of the mere man and the mere woman that one has not always found in Mr. Wells. Mr. George Birminz-ham's "The Search Party" is, perhaps, the humorous book of the year. This list is long and celectic—a suffl-cient proof of the vitality of British fiction. Mr. Hijaire Belloc's "Marie Antoinette" is conspicuously good among a mass of historical books, many of which were quite unnecessary and often conspic jously bad.

Sir Ernest Shackleton's "The Heart of the Antarctic" is the book of travel of the year, Dr. Syen Hedin's volume on Tibet rivalling it in absorbing interest. The late Francis. Thompson's "Shely" is by far the most important con tribution to pure letters published in 1909, and the year has also seen the issue of two volumes-Ruskin's letters, and Carivie's letters to his wife.

the Archaeological listitute of America and the American Philological Asso ciation recently, addresses were made by many prominent men connected with the large universities and colleges. Among them aree "The Distribution of the Roles in the New Menander," by Dr. Kelley Rees, of Yale; "An Interpre-tation of Raane." by Dr. Samuel Grant lian on the Status of the Later Comic Stage," by Dr. John W. Basore, of Norsemen Penetrated Center of North Princeton; "A question of Pronounc!-ation in the Time of Plautus," by Dr. Andrew, R. Anderson, of Northwestern University; "The Theory of the Em-peror Worship," by Dr. Walter D. Hadzsits, of Smith College.

At the same time the Archaeological Institute held a meeting in Assembly Hall. Most of the lectures were illus-trated with the stereopticon. These lectures seem to be more interesting to the general public, tho the room was by no means crowded. The committee in charge of the arrangements is anxious that the public attend, "The Roman Fortresses in the Province of Syria and Arabia," by Dr. Howard C. butler, of Princeton; "A Bronze Cista Belonging to Dr. James Loeb, Esq.," by Dr. George H. Chase, of Harvard; "A New Marble in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts," by Dr. Arthur Fairbanks, of the museum; "Byzantine Architecture in France," by Dr. Francis G. Fitzpatrick, of Harvard, were some of the subjects. The last mentioned was most enjoyable. The speaker traced the re-semblance between the Oriental and the French structures, including some of the famous cathedrals of the south of France. He went back as far as the ninth century and showed distinctly the marks of similarity between the French of that period and that of the older school from which the former was presumed to have been copied.

The concluding lecture of the morn-ing was on "Babylonian Bookkeeping." by Dr. Albert T. Clay, of the University of Pennsylvania. The speaker had Pennsylvania. chosen a subject that was full of possibilities both in humor and ancient lore, and he handled it in a manner that seemed to please his listeners. LONDON, Jan, 15 .- There are hopeful signs that the practice of spending extravagant sums of money upon the pomp and pageantry of funerals is fail. ing in popular'esteem. Wealthy men have left behind them from time to time instructions for their funerals to be of the plainest description, and par-ticularly insisting that there shall be "no flowers." The old-fashioned cera-mony of interment in the earth, again, has in many cases been set aside for the much more sanitary and economical process of cremation. The prac-tice of making the most of funerals, however, seems to die hardest amo those who can least afford the cost, tain quarters, but this is receiving comparatively little attention at the moment. The lower priced issues at the week cud are rather heavy. Tho for some time prices have displayed more or less resiliency, lower levels are assum-ed with the greatest of ease and it is cylient that, until a great improve. ed with the greatest of ease and it is evident that, until a great improve-ment in the speculative call is ex-perienced, price fluctuations are apt to move adversely rather than to the benefit of holders. Such issues as Beaver, Little Nipissing, Scotla and others are seized upon in the easiest sort of way for a bullish, movement, but these have to date jacked any sort of way for a bullish movement. Nova scotta Sh. Co. min. Co but these have to date tacked any permanence and the shares have lost about all they have gained in a very Rochester.....

the outstanding opinion of those in close touch with outside conditions seems to be that a better range of prices is justifiable, the how this can be experienced as long as public parprices is justifiable, the new this call be experienced as long as public par-ticipation in dealings remains such a negligible quantity is hard to say. As long as Wall street continues on the decline brokers do not lock for any n:aterial movement either way. Mean-while the best that can be said of the market is that should a better demand. for speculative steeks arise, advances might easily be realized.

tant consideration in the girlish hat. The turned-down brim continues. Children are not wearing the wholly upturned hat. The downward hat is far more "comfy" for winter time, and summer usually ushers in a like shape because of sun and freckles.

For the present, at any rate, children's hats, following the trend of fashion, are decidedly downturned. In France the child is the lesser woman to an almost alarming extent; but sensible American mothers modify as they see fit, and usually come out with a compromise such as the decidedly beautiful hats on the page.

Satin rosettes trim a white felt hat. This is a sensible mother's choice for many occasions: just the type of headgear belonging to the pique dress. Its rich effect is gained by the satin ribbon folded round the crown and shirred into huge rosettes front and back.

A single gardenia is the dashy note on a hat of more definite outline and greater elaboration. Its pulled-in crown is felt, its brim shirred satin, its edge valenciennes lace and its trimming a band of frilled lace.

Modeled still more closely after the French is the basket-shaped white hat made of bengaline, satin and ermine fur. It is one of the so-called mode hats, and a satin hand-made blossom adorns the side.

A wreath of pink satin roses taken round the crown of a black velvet hat shows perfection of workmanship. The coloring of the hat does not fall far behind. A very pale rose ribbon forms the upper trimming and the under shirring. This, too, is the shape that protects against the wintry winds,

Navy blue felt and squirrel fur are ideal for school wear with a bunch of blue ribbon at each side and a large, becoming brim: one of the hats that may be made at home.

The richest ribbon velvet with beaver -both of them white—is, again, a hat belonging to the white winter frock of linen or pique.

But when baby Irish lace is used successfully with black velvet on a rich beaver of the very most correct proportions we have reached a point of perfection not attempted by any but the best of milliners or the most clever of amateurs, with a "know-how." An exquisite use of the Irish edge is evident on the ends of the streamers, which are pointed to leave space for the inset of Irish.

There is art in the correct hatting of little girls. Both the hat and the age of the child demand consideration, and all millinery is perfect or imperfect according to the workmanship.

Canadian School of Painting

Art exhibitions in Toronto are always accompanied by a call for the development of a Canadian school of painting. This happened again in connection with the collection of world pictures recently on view in the galleries of the new public library and has been met by the objection that a Canadian school or any other school is the last trammel art wants. Criticism along this line, however, is based on an erroneous conception of what a "school of painting" really is and confuses it with academicism, a fertile source of those conventional standards which have in the past proved so detrimental to originality and against which so many young artists of creating genius have revolted. But it must be remembered that no school of painting in the proper sense of that term can be created to order. True schools, meaning thereby the presence in the work of a group of ideally kindred artists, of certain distinctive methods and characteristics either of motive or treatment, come of themselves and are only recognizable after they have attained a certain measure of fulfilment. Further national schools of art may and do contain many subordinate schools. This is the main glory of Italy, the country that in painting easily carries the palm.

Schools of painting are the product of original genius, otherwise they could never have come into existence and every great era in art has been marked by their appearance. But they did not owe their birth to external direction, but to individual conviction usually opposed to that traditionalism which, valuable in one phase because preserving sound technical methods, is objectionable when it is enshrined in an academic dictatorship that seeks to stereotype art. From academicism of this kind Canada should remain free. But that is a natural and creditable patriotism which prompts the hope that Canada will be great in art as well as in material development and that the day will come when the soul and spirit of the nation and its peculiar environment will create for itself new forms of pictorial representation. There need be no fear that original genius will fail to discover itself. What Canada can and should do is to provide the means thru which genius can be aided in its free development. Fortunately in these days the danger attaching to academicism has greatly lessened. The whole tendency of the age is towards individuality and independence, but the recent emergence of what is now known as the Glasgow School of Painting shows that there will always be room for those spontaneous and sympathetic aspirations which voice themselves in individual preferences for certain associated forms and methods of expression.

Misplaced Men and Women

There are thousands of men and women occupying positions in this world of ours that are irksome to them.

Those men and women are misplaced, in other words they are slaves to vocations to which they are not fitted.

They are all about us. Right here in the City of Toronto are

Discovering Gold By Telephone

For many years this Mother Earth has hidden her treasures in rock, mountain and deep in her fissure-pockets. Men have sought gold and silver and passed thru many trials and dangers for the mere love of the game, that of stripping old Earth of the treasures she so zealously hoarded. Every man is endowed, more or less, with the gambling spirit and any game with a grain of uncertainty in it is a fascinating game.

The prospector does not always make a find, but hope buoys him up. He knows there is always a chance of his making a strike some day.

Some of the richest mineral-fields in Canada have been discovered quite by accident, but more often the great fields, such as the new "Porcupine" field, have been brought to light by men, trained in the work of prospecting, following indications.

But the old-time prospector's day is nearing its close. Cunning brains have devised a method of locating gold and other minerals and altho the method is still in its experimental stage, it promises much for itself in future.

The method is based on the difference in the electrical conductivity of the earth due to the presence of ore deposits. Most ores are much better conductors of electricity than the soil and rocks, altho some others are almost insulators.

In making use of these facts to locate beds of ore two electrodes are grounded about one hundred yards apart. In the circuit is an induction coil with a glass condenser and two spark gaps. The current as it passes thru the ground is tested by two telephone receivers connected to portable electrodes which are usually grounded about seventy feet apart.

The make and break of the current in passing thru the ground is heard in the telephones as ticks. As the electrodes attached to the telephones are moved about, the variations in the intensity of the tapping in the telephones give an indication of the presence and position of the ore deposits. Altho the method is not out of the experimental stage, yet it seems to promise much for itself in the future.

Value of Resolution

There is a vast chasm between the mere desire for a thing and the resolution to secure it.

The obstruction that keeps nine out of every ten men from carrying out their resolutions is their unwillingness to get down to good hard work and pay the price for the thing they want.

If a man wishes to win anything worth while he has got to pay the cost.

Resolution is a mighty good thing, but it's no good unless it is powerful enough to batter down obstructions and clear the track for Purpose.

The cost of business success is close application to business. The cost of dollars is backaches hundreds of them.

A man or a woman who works at uncongenial employment and makes a certain showing of success is a rarity.

On the other hand, take the man or woman who has congenial employment and finds a pleasure in his or her work-that man or woman is almost certain to attain success in his or her vocation.

This world is divided into two classes of workers.

Those who work for dollars and cents and those who work for their art, profession or trade.

Parents make a grave mistake in influencing their sons and daughters to enter a profession for which they are in no way fitted.

That young man, with the mechanic's brain, who takes up banking simply because it is his father's wish that he do so is very often the man who walks out with the bank's money. He disgraces himself and his family, of course, and violated society never stops to question the "whys and wherefores" of his case.

The fact is, that young man had two sets of faculties, one set natural and God-given, the other set unnatural and man-made.

Those two sets of faculties were at constant strife with each other; that banker-mechanic's moral fabric was only as strong as his nervous system.

Morally he was not responsible for the crime he committed.

The misplaced man or woman should make a change.

It is no easy matter, indeed, when one has reached maturity, especially if there are others dependent on him, to change his occupation or profession. One must think many times before giving up a certainty for an uncertainty, a salary or sure income for an expectation.

It calls for moral courage and strength of will and purpose to brave criticism and ridicule and the risk of failure, but for the one who is sure he has discovered his real bent-if he would do his best in life-there is no choice but to make a change.

Cheap Picture Shows

Without doubt, some of the cheap picture shows, scattered broadcast thru our city, are bound to have a demoralizing influence on the minds of at least a few of the many hundreds of children who are daily allowed to patronize them.

Scenes of cheap sentimentality, train hold-ups, bank burglaries and murder are depicted with lifelike vividness and to many of those imaginative youngsters drinking in the pictures those theatres are giving a little more than a nickel's worth of amusement.

They are giving them a five-cent course of practical instruction in crime. In Chicago and other large cities, the police have been compelled to interfere with the cheaper moving picture shows, ordinances having been passed to prohibit the picturing of scenes and actions of crime.

Right here in Toronto one may see a murder, an execution and train hold-up almost any time for the small sum of five cents and usually the perpetrators are heroized.

The presentation of plays such as "Dick Turpin," "Jack Shepherd, the King of Thieves," "Jesse James, the Outlaw," have long since been brushed away by the iron hand of the law on account of the adverse suggestions they contained calculated to affect the minds of impressionable boys of an adventurous type.

Cheap moving picture shows are quite as harmful in their influence as the "blood and thunder" dramas.

It is high time for the law to take a hand in the moving picture game and it is high time for certain of the parents to take a hand in the selecting of edifying amusements for their children.

lies. In this connection the editor prefers to express no opinion. His work has been to champion the cause of the little toilers, who he considered are being overworked.

Perhaps neither teacher nor parents are directly responsible, perhaps both are indirectly so.

One teacher claims that in cases of overwork in the common schools the fault lies not so much with the course of study or the teacher as with over-ambitious parents of studious children, who desire to see shine brilliantly a mentality which is fitted merely to shine modestly.

That the courses of study are framed by men of experience and ability with regard to what can be accomplished by the child of average intellect without undue pressure.

mind which fail of definition. In a general sense it would seem to imply lack of fear alone. This is a mistake. Paradoxical tho it may appear it is nevertheless true that one may be of a timid and yet at the same time of a courageous disposition. Courage implies restraint of,

That much home-work is supplementary, given by the teacher at the expressed wish of many of the parents. And that often a teacher's ability is gauged by the amount of work she succeeds in getting pupils to do at home. Parents, on the other hand, seem to think that there is no question, but that a serious wrong is being done their children by the present strenuous system of education, and claim that the tasks imposed on their young minds are fearful.

The majority of mothers agree that no child under twelve years of age should be obliged to study anything more than reading, spelling, writing and arithmetic. The remainder of the school-time could be filled to advantage in reading and talking about birds, flowers, etc., because almost all children have a natural longing to learn of these things, and this longing should be gratified.

Courage

Courage is one of those attributes of the emotional | the apparently absurd accesses of feminine fear, has, when duly called upon by fate, shown her hand and cheered the despairing husband, brother or son, to final victory thru a practically unfordable maelstrom of worry and disease.

> The courage which knows fear and its innumerable emissaries, and is alive to its own responsibilities and continuously fights back its adversaries is the only real courage.

> Happy is that man or woman, born without fear, but noble indeed he or she who born with fear gradually thru the process of wise restraint overcomes the nata timidity, and finally looks upon all shades of life with beatific equanimity! This process of self elimination and its final goal of true happiness are possible alone thru the medium of that courage-real courage, which, realizing its relationship toward all other phases of the emotional mind so determines its course that perfect equanimity may ensue. This is the courage of wisdom-the acme of —F. B.

The chief obstacle that keeps the average man back is his desire to have a good time. But even the man who plays also pays. There is always the cost to be considered.

No man can properly achieve success without first learning the A B C of success.

A-ttentiveness, B-roadmindedness, C-oncentration, D-etermination, E-nergy, F-idelity, G-enuineness, H-opefulness, I-ntegrity, J-udgment, H-onesty, K-nowledge, L-oyalty, etc.

Regular work. Industrious endeavor. Perpetual effort. Planning ways and means to do this or that. Scheming to accomplish ends. The perpetual thrift to make every dollar count. Watching of the markets. Studying the conditions and considering the man at the other end of the bargain.

All these thousand and one things are the alphabet which spells "success." These are our school-teachers, our friends. The hardships. the struggles, the perpetual endeavor, the constant stretch of the mind to solve great problems, these are the things that strengthen, broaden the life, and everything, in the world, worth having, can be secured by the man who is resolute enough.

Passing of the Crow

The Canadian crow is a bold black bird. He is greedy and wasteful and of all our birds he has the most unmusical voice.

In the spring he builds his nest in some deep wood and with his mate makes life unpleasant for all other' feathered denizens who chance to be in his dominion.

He is a lazy bird, and prefers robbing the nests of his smaller neighbors to going far afield in search of food.

The Canadian crow has become acclimatized and seldom migrates to sunny lands, as he used to do. He stays with us and braves out the Canadian winters.

In flocks of ten, twenty or hundreds he takes possession of some sheltered thicket of pines or spruce at nightfall and is always up and away with the first streak of dawn, because he can sight and scent food from a long distance.

His dining-room may be a tangled patch of corn-stalks, which the farmer, having stripped off their best ears, has left standing, and where many a little golden "nubbin" of corn may be found by foraging, or it may be creek-valley where the carcase of some animal affords Mr. Crow a banquet.

He is a wise bird and seems to realize that the farmer, his deadly enemy in the spring, is quite content to lay aside hostilities in the winter and let him flit where he will.

Perhaps he knows that the farmer admires him for his plucky zest of life, but the truth is the farmer, up until recently has been indifferent to his going and coming, except in the spring of the year, when Mr. Crow and his family play havoc in the newly-planted corn fields.

But, of late, crows have become altogether too numerous to suit the tillers of the soil, and strengthened by numbers have become a menace to the large corn acreage in Kent and Essex Counties, Ontario.

This is why the farmers declare that the crow must be exterminated. What the mode of his extermination will be, remains to be seen.

At any rate he must pass out, so the farmer has decreed, and we may prepare to witness the passing of the crow.

Out of about 400 people injured during the past year, according to a recently published report of a street railway company, 150 were hurt while stepping off moving cars and 80 in trying to board moving cars. This haste-inability to "wait until the car stops," -is only one of the symptoms of that American and Canadian disease "hustleophobia," which often causes a whole trainful of people to rise from their seats and stand in the aisles for five minutes before the train gets into a station, and makes theatre auditors so restless that they have to begin putting on their wraps and moving toward the exits before the curtain falls, fearful lest they victims of accident meet misfortune thru their own hardihood in disregarding the rules of railway companies.

In every car is a "wait until the car stops" sign, but men will attempt to board moving cars just the same and women will persist in "backing off" cars before they ome to a standstill

All rights of the winning competition will be retained by the composer or composers, The World reserving only the privilege of printing a limited amount of copies for the benefit of its readers.

ALL COMPOSITIONS SUBMITTED FOR THE CONTEST, MUST BE FINISHED PRODUCTS WITH WORDS, MELODY, AND PIANO ACCOMPANIMENT, COMPLETELY READY FOR PUBLICATION.

Further rules for the contest will be found at the foot of this notice. Read them carefully.

We cannot impress too strongly upon contestants the necessity of thoroly mastering the rules. We have already had manuscripts, which do not begin to comply with the conditions. Several people sent in words without any music, others submitted songs which were not love songs. These were of course ineligible. So we say again "READ THE RULES."

RULES AND CONDITIONS OF CONTEST.

1.—The song must be a love song. 2.—The sentiment must be simple and dignified.

3.-Manuscripts may be sent in at any time from January 1 1910, to the 24th of March, 1910, when the contest closes.

-All compositions submitted must be addressed to the MUSI-CAL CONTEST EDITOR, The Toronto World. This is imperative. Any manuscript not thus addressed will be ignored.

5 .- Each manuscript must be placed in a SEALED envelope, on the outside of which is some motto or pseudonym

6 .- Another_SMALL envelope, also SEALED, marked with the same motto, and containing within on a slip of paper the composer's name and address, must accompany it. In this way the identity of the contestants will be unknown to the judges until after the award has been made.

7 .--- Any Canadian-born musician who is a permanent resident in Canada is eligible to compete.

vide an hour of cellghtful and educative music. About four o'clock on Thursday after-noons the audience begins to assemble, and soon the little white tea tables are surrounded by groups-members and their friends and conversation is freely ep-gaged in. Should the capacity of the room prove inadequate the upper gailery sup-ples abundant space, whither the strains of music rise. A pleasant spirit of socia-bility pervades these gatherings, and a beneficial exchange of ideas is ex-pressed along interesting current events as well as along the artistic and in-dustrial lines of work suggested by the surroundings: the hand-weaving of the French-Canadian women of Quebec, the cleverly-wrought embroiderles of the wo-men of the newly-settled west, the handi-work of the American Indian and the later productions of art: Thus over the quiet cup of tea much information is in-cidentally gleaned and much incentive given for thought and action. But the principal feature is the program, which hast week consisted of a group of Mc-Dowell's sketches for the plano, played with discriminating taste by Miss Mary Gunther; a 'cello solo by Mr. J. Sheard which was very much appreciated, and a group of child's songs by Liza Leh-mann, which were finely rendered by Miss Warnoch. Miss Anna Jeffrey made a very efficient accompanilst, and the after-noon was most enjoyable.

which I promised in a previous advertisement appears to-day. This plan shows the whole lay-out of New Liskeard, the darkened portions being those sections in which I am offering choice lots.

It will be noticed that these sections are in the most desirable portions of the town.

As I have already pointed out New Liskeard must grow, by reason of the fact that it is the gateway to one of Ontario's greatest farming areas.

The new gold discoveries of the north will help New Liskeard, and my advice to prospective purchasers is--make your selection early if you want a choice location.

Already a number of lots have been sold and in a short time the best bargains will be gone.

"The House Next Door" is said to be an unusually fine example of how a delicate and serious theme may be made to serve the purpose of pure comedy by the unfailing exercise of tact, wit and good taste. Its only aim is to afford entertainment, and this it is said to accomplish with extraordinary facility from the rise of the first curtain until the fall of the last. It has been found wherever this play has been presented, that audiences relax them selves for the full enjoyment of the comedy's amusing exposition of comi cally eccentric character; the crist unflagging humor of its dialog and the entertaining interplay of its various contending interests.

NOTHING TO FEAR

THE biggest men and the smallest women join in a common fear of tooth extraction. We tell them that we can extract the tooth without pain, and they come in for the operation 'twixt doubt and hope. Once applied, our method of painless extraction makes both a friend and an advertisement of the patient. It is so simple, so quick, easy, and painless that the fear and dread seem foolishly put of proportion. Ask some who have tried.

Miss Clare Armstrong of "His Last Dollar" Company is one of the most artistically dressed women on the stage, but she confesses to having possessed only one imported gown in all her stage career. Miss Armstrong is one of the Armstrongs of Georgia, and when she went to New York to make ber stage debut she was accompanied by the old negro "Mammy" who had been her mother's nurse as well as her own. "Mammy" formed her idea of things in the days when Southern ladies disdained to wear any garment that was not made entirely by hand. that was not made entirely by hand. Nobody has ever been able to persuade her to use a sewing machine. She looks on a machine sewed garment as a portrait painter does on a tin-type. A lady's gown, she insists, ought to rep-resent skill and unsparing labor rath-er than mere money. Miss Armstrong made her debut in a Paris frock, and was not a success in her part. "Mamwas not a success in her part. "Mam-my's" comment was "You couldn't act

And forthwith "Mammy" proceeded to dress her mistress according to her ideas of how a gentlewoman ought to dress. Miss Armstrong's next stage frock was cut by a modiste, but "Mammy" made it, and set every stitch by hand. She is immensely clever of fitting, and has developed a positive genius for carrying out Miss Armstrong's own designs. Once a year she goes to New York to study the fashions. Many of the modistes know her, and more than one of them has tried to engage her, not only for the fine hand-sewing, but for the groundwork of building a gown along proper lines. "Mammy" will have none of them. She sews only for her "Miss Clare," end is convinced that Miss Armstrong vculd fail utterly if she stepped on the stage in any gown that was not made entirely by hand. An interesting and perhaps successful attempt has recently been made to locafe the home of Zacharias and Elizabeth, and so the birthplace of John the Baptist, working from data supplied by the remarkable mesaic map discovered about eight years ago at Madaba, on the uplands east of the Dead Sea in Palestine. This now well-known map, which dates from the fourth or fifth century, gives the names and locations of many of the sacred mosaic pavement of a church about 12 netres long which the foundation stones in situ show was a domed structure, as required by the map, and which is in contrast to its representations of many other structures, which have gable roofs. Part only of this mosaic has so far been uncovered, but this part has an inscription bearing the names of Zacharias and John. The location is to the right of the road from Jerusalem to Hebron, 20 kilometres from the former and 16 from the latter, and is just where the road lescends to Ain Harrub, whose waters Pontius Pilate brought into Jerusalem. This discovery is likely to arouse considerable interest among archeologists.—Illustrated London News.
