CURRENT ON DENCE.

Mr. Editor.

The question which has been lately agitated regarding the introduction of the American Dollar and its aliquot parts into the Province as a circulating medium, involves in it considerations of so serious a nature, that I must be excused offering a few observations on the subject, and expressing at the same time my surprise, that the feeling excited by so inconsiderate a suggestion, should appear is favour of its adoption, without considering duly its results, and ascertaining, whether such a measure might not be fraught with evils to the Province as great, as any that have been experi-enced by the Act of 1820, augmenting the value of the Spanish Milled Dollar. The opinions already started in favour of this object, tend, if scriously offered, to thwart and counteract the immediate views of the British Government which, by the introduction of Sterling Money into all her Colonies, is to substitute, in a very great degree, the British Silver as a Circulat-

hat way the interest of the Act, and that on parchasing Bills to make remit-tanced by any alteration in the Curredcy. Every person having debts to collect after the passing of the Coin Bill, discovered that upon eve-ry 2100 that was due him, he had to receive 1-18 or $25 less than he would have done prior to the Act, and that on parchasing Bills to make remit-tances, he found, that the premium on Bills had advanced 1-16 or 6 $-3 per cent, thereby occa-sioning to him a less altogether of 1 or 12 $-10 pr. cent. for which he had ne & ther remedy than to mise the price of his goods in proportion to the adcent. for which he had no other remedy than to saise the price of his goods in proportion to the ad-vance on the Dollar, to the great inconvenience to, and tax upon, the people, but which in fact, was no remedy to the Storekeeper, and it removed not the great evil, the enormous high rate of Exchange, which will continue to exist as long as Bitls are in any reasonable demand. The want hitherto of an adequate supply of spe-cie as a circulating Medium, has not been so apparcut, owing to the free circulation of Bauk. Notes, but whilst Commerce is extending and coa-tinues brisk, there are found many periods in the course of mercantile transactions, when specie is in greater demand than at others, but still perhaps without any obvious cause : it is in such instances, that the assertion is verified, that there but few panish Dollars in the Province, and those inadejuate to the commercial transactions of the place.

In consequence of the unexpected rise in the Exchange, it has been very currently of opinion that all the other coins should have been assimilated to the maximum of the Dollar, but this is a very erroneous idea, as the object the not to alter th par of Exchange, but to remedy an existing evil by giving a momental value to a piece of money for the purpose of rendering it essential among yourselves, ind thereby secure it from being withdrawn from

But so obscure a view taken of so nice a subject rendered it a fatal illusion-for what will ever be the result of raising the value of the circulating Medium, but the diminishing of the value of you currency in foreign markets, for, if you raise you Dollars to 10s currency, when its intrinsic worth be no more than 4s 6d. sterling, the rate of Exchange will be evidently against you. Let us sup-pose for instance, that a Merchant in Great Briain has a claim upon any one here for £100 sterling, it will be unreasonable to remit in payment of such debt \$200, which at 10s, currency each, would be equal to  $\pounds$ 100, nor would it be less unreasonable to add the 11 1-9 per cent, the par of Exchange between the two Countries-but it would be expected of you to remit a sterling Bill of £100 hich could not be purchased in this market at the par of Exchange, but you would be obliged to pay a very high premium, floctuating above the differ-ence between 11 1-9 and the additional neminal value placed upon the Circulating Medium.

value placed upon the Circulating medium. This clearly sets the question at rest, and it be-hoves the Legislature in fature undertakings of the kind, to view more clearly the propriety of inter-fering with the Circulating Medium of a commerfering wish the Circulating Medium of a commer-cial Country-or had the Legislature depreciated probable and consistent to believe, that they would then have effected their purpose and served the bulk of the community, The Assaye table which has been presented to the Public, is adapted to confirm the illusion that should be guarded against. You may assimilate the value of your Circulating Medium, or you may increase or diminish the standard value of the various Coins current in your community, but'it will nous come current in your community, but it will neither tend to increase nor lesson their real, their intrinsic worth, which does not exist (taking a commercial view of it) as some people assert, so much in the quantity of pure unadulterated Metal they may coutain, as in the advantage one Coin can be turned to more than another tin there the be turned to more than another ; in short, the American Dollar cannot be turned to the same adcan vantage, nor is it of that value in foreign markets as the Spanish Dollar. Assimilate the two Coins and they will probably fetch the same value among us as a Circulating Medium, as they would equally answer the same purpose, but to meet the views of speculators in all commercial transactions, the Spanish Dollar would command a preference, would marketable Coin, and more advantage-data from whence we can pr only data from whence we can preced-Hence whilst Bills remain at par, no one will give for a Government Bill 412 Crowns, which when assi-milated to the Dollar, would be worth £126 15 4d 8-13 currency, or 15 77-117 per cent. move the par of Exchange, or 475 80-208 Dollars at 5: 4d. So long as the Crown retain its present value 5: 6d, the loss on Government Bills when private Bills are at par, will then be 2 51-270 per cent. and any sate of Exchange above 2 51-270 will be an evident gain. But to raise the Crown in proportion to the pre-sent valuation of the Dollar, would be, as is al-

sent valuation of the Dollar, would be, as is al-ready shewn, to prohibit the purchase of Govern-ment Bills-for as the value of the Crown shall be increased above 5s 6d, so much must the Exchange rise above 2 51-270 per cent. to indemnify the purchaser of a Government Bill. For example, should the Crown be 'raised to 5s 9d currency, 419 Crowns will be equal to £118 9 0 current and the purchaser of a Public Bill must deman premium of 7 61-180 per cent. or be a loser by his purchase.

But as the extgencies of the times may occasion a demand for Goverment Bills which are only to be procured for 412 Crowns every £100 sterling, it ould be an evident depreciation of the value of the currency, to fix the rate of the Crown in proportion to that of the Dollar-for by thus assimi-lating the Coins, it would be establishing as it were, another par of Exchange, equal to 26 10-13 per cent. or the premium on Bills would fluctuate above 15 77-117 per cent. It would be therefore impossible to say, how far this evil would affect the Community, and much every branch of trade might be affected by it. Besides it might eventually occasion the evil of altering the channel of Bills on England, by turaing it from the U. States to this Province when instead of the Americans demanding your when instead of the American's demanding your Bills, you would be compelled to purchase from them at a premium. To illustrate this, let us sup-pose that your Merchant would have to purchase Bills on New York for 10 per cent. premium, or $440 the £100 sterling, it would be paying here only at the rate of 6 2-9 per cent. for which a Bill could not be purchased—and so long as Bills could be purchased in the U. States under 19 per ceut. it would be an evident advantage to the N. Brunswick Merchant

From this illustration of my argument, it is evident that, the Legislature, with a view of co-oper-ating with the British Government, to aid the introduction and free circulation of the British Silver into the Province, for the convenience of com-mercial and private transactions, should be cautions in not placing too high a value upon the Crown, lest in so doing the beneficial effects of such a measure should be averted, and the British Silver consequently remain as it has done of small advantage to the Province, or indeed returned or advantage to the Province, or incode of Bills of Ex-remitted to England in the place of Bills of Exchange.

MR. CHUBB, having had the temerity to MR. CHUBB, having had the temerity to what in his own mind he well knew to be foliehoode tending to throw as odium on the undersigned, has thereby surrendered all claims to respectability, and becomes a jast object for animadversion and exposure; at the same time a hope is indulged, that his imprudence may not call down upon him, more severe rebuke, from an higher power than that of a Committee of the Grand Jary. that of a Committee of the Grand Jury. Against his better knowledge, Mr. C. states, in the Edite-rial paragraph alluded to, that the communication which appeared in the City Gazette, was seeming-ly from the Committee, we say against his better knowledge, for he took the pains to call upon us respectively, (that is those whom he publishes at full length, "the tools of an individual") in order to ascertain, whether our concurrence had been gi-yen to the communication, and was promptly apven to the communication, and was promptly an-swered that it had, and that it was moreover, " mild rebuke."

And what says Mr. C. next? " As much as we admire it, (viz. the charge,) and as much as we respect the honourable author, we could not persuade ourselves to put it through a second edition." Sorry are we to be obliged to oppose to this flatterin the presence of a respectable gentleman, that the Charge was a "d-d, paltry, common place thing," and that he did not think it worth while to insert it. Mr. Chubb's next attempt at exculpation is that the Committee did not request him to insert the Charge.

This act on the part of the British Legislature, may be viewed as a motive of policy to dispense with the necessity of so great a circulation of the Spanish Dollar, and avoid the expertation of it to so great an extent out of the Empire : but it is be sides, an act of much importance, embracing con-venience and benefit to the Colouy, in which light it ought to be considered.

The object being now attained, that is, the secutity of a Circulating Medium, what further object is sought by the introduction of foreign money for our domestic and other purposes; and where is the benefit to be derived by enhancing the value of a Coin not on own, which by a slight ma-newvre of the Congress, or by other unforeseen circumstances, might be drawn from us without a remedy. But it unfortunately happens, that in-vestigations as to the utility of such measures, are seldom seriously considered, from which there arise sections seriously considered, from which there arise ideas not well digested, which beget erroneous opi-nious, furnishing incorrect hypotheses, that tend more to confuse than inform, and occasion evils and inconveniences such as have been already experienced.

The Coin Bill of 1820, which has received the indiscriminate consure of the community, saddled, it must be admitted, the commercial transactions with a weighty tex, which will not easily be re-moved, and I doubt whether the return of the Dollar to its original standard, would remedy the inconvenience. Although the Act was followed by the desired object, that of retaining the Spanish Dollar in the Province as a Circulating Medium to the exclusion of American Money, yet it frustrat-ed its own intentions of being an advantage to the Commosity.

The Bill has deservedly been much inveighed against ; but I marvel whether its effects have been rightly viewed and fully considered -- it may therefore be essential to explain them, to obviate a re-currence of those evils which would inevitably ac-cure from a repetition of such ordinances.

It is not my desire that my opinion should be construed into a reflection on the wisdom of the Legislature; my intention being mercily to show ous generally. Besides, to introduce the American Dollar 'st 5s 4d would be tantamount to the prohibition of the Spanish Dollar ;- for the latter being evidently of more importance to the American speculator than his own Dollar, he would enhesitatingly come here and change piece for piece, to take advan-tage of the high premium which Spanish Dollars demand in the United States.

But we shall in no wise be alarmed at any prespect of a deficiency in our Circulating Medlum as soon as an Act be passed fixing the maximum of the British Silver Mouey, which will them become more generally in use throughout the Province— but, as fixing the standard of any Coin, is a matter out, as having the standard of any Coin, is a matter of nice consideration, and if injudiciously dene in the present instance, would reader the principal object abortive, more particularly as the Dollar is at present so much over-rated, it would not be easy to predict how great the inconveniences may be, nor where they might end.

As the value of the Dollar was cohanced with the view of preventing its exportation, this value which it has acquired, is only acknowledged by, and of effect among ourselves. The Crower has been already assimilated to the standard currency of the Country, and if the intrinsic value of the Dollar be reduced 2d sterling, so should it br, as Dollar be reduced 2d sterling, so should it be, as well as the Crown, reduced with you in proportion to accord with the par of Exchange, which will bring the value of the Dollar down to 4s 9d 7-9 currency of the Country, and which will be equal to the Dollar at 4s 4d sterling, plas 11 1-9 per to the Dollar at 4s 4d sterling, plas 11 1-9 per cent. To raise the Crown in proportion to par of Exchange, will be then to value it at 55 fd 6-9, but as this is an undivisable and inconvenient ratio, some other standard may be established above or below it, hearing in mind the interest of the Community, as well as the convenience to derived by a judicious Assay of that Coin.

As every one may not have resolved this sub-ject sufficiently in his mind, let us suppose that £100 sterling can be purchased for $416 2-3 at 5s 4d each, taking the usual par of Exchange, the

Pray, Mr. Chubb, who requested you to insert His Excellency's Speech, delivered at the opening of the present Session ? Let the writer of Habakkuk Couplecioth, and others of the same cha-racter " your friends," request a place in your columns as a "boon" but do not put it upon the organs of any Public Body to beg as a favour they should (if Journals be what they profess to be,) claim attention as a right. We are vituperated as " an angry committee ;"

Mr. Chubb ought to impate it solely to our forbear-ance, that he feels not the collective weight of the ance, that he leels not the collective weight of a Grand Jury's indignation, whose Foreman a Representatives he has so grossly libelled. Office Hours, -12 to 3. The New York Albion, Jan. 14th. as furnished us with English dates to the 6th December; alarming failures have occurred in England, the funds have failen rapid y. The great depression in price of every description of Stock, and the simost nominal prices to which I foreign securities were reduced, created such elarming sensations in the Money Market, as we fear will not soon subside. The limited di-counts by the Banks in propertion to the great demand have, as might be expected, forced a surplus into the Market of every thing that could command Cash, so that no doubt great sacrifices have been made. In tracing the cause of the present distress the London Courier remarks " it lies and deep, it is to be found in the monied transmiss of the country. It is over trading in Foreign loans, and joint Stock speculations, - the one thandlitheir disposable funds in Lotteries, where there all their disposable funds in Lotteries, where there are all blauks sid no prizes." We understood that the mains for new schemes and share speculations, had been nearly cared in Britain score time ago. actually have been found profitable, will be now aban-dened. The Mischievous spirit which has lately raged for Joint Stock comparies, has no doubt, in many instances, produc-ed the most alarming consequences. Men of Property and knowledge, have been drawn into these new schemes, and have by their example, led the ignorant and unthink-ing into them, to the serious loss of the individuals en-gaged, and to the community at large. We do not mean to other into any exposition of the principles on which these associations are founded, but their general adoption is at variance with our opinions of sound political economy, for as the principles of Joint Stock companies might be applied to every department of Trade, individual enterprise and exertion might, be-come unproductive and uscless, and must consequently force many individuals from the channels of ordinary bu-siness, to become mere speculators.

HEROS CORNER. THE DYING SOLDIER.

The war had censed—its iron sound No more rang startling on the air— The dead lay weltering on the round. And he was left to perich there. Hanhed with the trumper's stirring tone, White feebly rose the hollow moan Of agonized despair. —As pain convulsed each quiv'ring limb, When life was waxing faint and dim.

Oh I think ye not that as he lay Upon the field ; his life blood wet, His famey wandered far away To those the heart can ne'er forget !--Oh think ye not he thought of those That shared the joys-that shared the woes Which on earth's solitude he met--And twined the fies around his heart Which joy nor woe could rend apart !

He did-and blame him not that tears Burst from him in that painful hour, Thinking on all which life endears, And checks affliction's baleful power-And the value and the second s

Alas-his dream passed darkly on, A las-bis dream passed darkty on, Its fairest ints enrobed in night— Life's early promise too, was gone, Tho' brilliant as the morning's light— And there he lay—the lonely one— His race of honoar quickly run, And death before his sight— The clay-cold earth bis place of rest, And he must wither on her breast.

And if it be, that as he gazed Upon the blue and starlit sky-His nerveless arm was feebly raised, And fond regret was in his eye— Ob if he longer wished to stray Along life's wild and thorny way, And thought 'twas hard to die— Forgive the wish—for canst thou tell The arguish of life's last farewell i

Not such his feelings, when the morn Broke on the battle's bright array— Then--full of hope and martial scorn,— He dashed undaunted in the fray b-And as the drum's awakening roll Diffused a rapture thro' his soul, He blessed the happy day ; The wished-for day that was to see His sword illumed with victory !

Deceitful hope !- behold him now-The red drops on his snowy plume, The death-damps gathering on his brow, Those dark forerunners of the tomb-Those dark forerunners of the form— Oh! were his gentle moher there – How would her moanings rend the air :---Yet--glorious is his doom ! For him, his country's heart shall bleed----Who would not die for such a meed !

Weep not for him 1- he perished well-He died where noble men should die-War's thousand voices rung his knell, And valour lit his, failing eye. Sweet is the dying hour to him Who as the light of life grows dim, Lies down in victory 1 How homomed is the warrior's name-How inverty in the wreath of fame 1

WALLACE'S SOLDIERS. From Miss Boilie's " Metrical Legends of exalted Characters." His soldiers from as a living rock, Nov. braced them from the battle's shock ; And watch'd their chieftain's keen looks glancing From marshal'd class to foes advancing ; Smiled with the smile his eye that lightened. Glowed with the glow his brow that brightened; Bot when his burnished brand he drew, His towering form terrific grew, And every Scotchman at the sight. Felt thro' his nerves, a giant's might, And drew his patriet sword with Wallace wight. WALLACE'S SOLDIERS.

For what of thrilling sympathy, Did e'er in human bosom vye With that which stirs the soldier's breast, When high in gud-like worth confest, Some noble leader gives command, To combat for his native land? No; friendship's freely flowing tide; The soul expanding filial pride, That hears with craving, fond desire The bearing of a gallant sire; The bearing of a gallant sire ; The yearnings of domestic bliss ; E'en love itself will yield to this.

made of late years in this country to imulate the Iudian manufacture; and many improvements have, been made, both in the mode of execution, and in the procering of better wool; but still there was an eridect difference in the latter particular. At length (says the Scotsman,) "enquiries were set on foot in the East; and specimens of the ac-tual material used to the fabrication of the very finest shawls were brought home. It was found to consist of the under-growth of wool of the Thito consist of the under-growth of wool of the Thi-bet goat, or the down growing beneath the long rough hairs, which form the exterior covering of the animal. But a new difficulty presented itselfthis down was so extremely tender that the most expert spinners in England despaired of forming it into a thread of sufficient tenacity to bear the operation of the loom. The practical skill and inven-tions of our artizans are, however, inexhaustible; and we_verily believe, that if it were required to convert spiders' webs into cables, they would find means to accomplish it. An English spinner dis-covered a process by which he was able to form a very delicate yet firm and durable thread out of this soft material. Our manufacturers were then in condition to unite every possible excellence in their workmanship. We think me may safely say that this has been attained. Some soperiority the Indians have still in their patterns, from the tedious process they employ; but this will be confined to shawls of the very first class. In the others we already equal or surpass them; and future improvements will probably leave us little to desire on this head. Thirty years ago there was not a single shawl made in Edinburgh (the chief seat now of the fine manufacture) and the number made in Britain was absolutely triffing. At this day, shawls are made to the value of a million sterling annually, at least."

SHAWL	MANUFACTURE,

Under this head, the Scotsman supplies some curious information respecting the recent advance of our native manufacturers in rivalry with those of the East. It is observed, in introducing the subject, that "shawls were originally made in the East Indies and exhibit a curious example of the high perfection to which some single species of manufacture may be carried in a country where the arts in general are in a rude state. So highly are these India shawls priced in this country, that they fetch a price of £100, £200 or even £500, while the best of domestic manufacture can be had for £20 or £30. But what makes the preference shown to the foreign article still more surprising is, that no small proportion of the India Shawls brought to Britaia have been worn by the natives as turbans, girdles, &c. before they were imported. This is no secret among dealers, for the marks of wearing are often manifest to an experienced eye, in the discolouration or roughening of the surface, the attenuation of the fabric in particular places, In the discolouration or roughening of the surface, the attenuation of the fabric in particular places, and now and then in actual reots and holes,— Strange as it may seem, therefore, it is literally tran-strange as it may seem, therefore, it is literally trans-to the second second second second second second second to which the second second second second second second the second second second second second second second the second seco
