Alarm In Every Line of Appeal To People at Home

London, July 27.—(Toronto Mail and Empire cable.)—A letter from Kaiser Wilhelm, passionately appealing to the German people to stand firm and unwavering, no matter how the tide of battle flows, has been printed in all the German papers. The letter was circulated by the semi-official Wolff News Agency, dated from the front in the west, the letter says:

SERBIANS ARE ATTACKING BULGARIANS

Paris, July 28—Serbians have begun an offensive against the Bulgarians in Greece, according to a Havas dispatch from Saloniki. The Serbians have occupied a series of heights and are maintaining their position despite artillery fire and counter-attacks of the Bulgarians.

'Bremen Not Here,' Says Despatch From Halifax

New York, July 28.—(Toronto Globe cable.)—The Herald says this morning: "Coming from semi-official sources that cannot be ignored, and in a manner that is well worthy of credence, the Herald was informed that the German merchant super-submarine Bremen, anxiously expected in some Atlantic port by all Teutonic sympathizers, has been captured by British patroling squadrons and is at present time tied up in the Northwest Arm, an estuary in the harbor of Halifax, N. S."

MURRAY JAMESON OF CLOVER HILL, KINGS COUNTY IS KILLED

(Kings County Record) The sad intelligence of the death of Murray Jameson, Clover Hill, was received on Tuesday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Jamieson.

He was in New York when he was killed, and wrote home that he intended to enlist, and first thought of going with Major Anderson, of Moncton, who was then recruiting an artillery unit.

On June 21st he entered the trenches, and after two weeks' service was badly wounded during the big offensive, in which none won more credit than the Middlesex Regiment.

The letter conveying the sad news of his death was as follows: Dear Mrs. Jamieson: I regret to inform you that your son, Murray Jameson, of the M. G. Corps, has died of wounds in the hospital on July 4th.

I hope that God will be very near you and give you grace to carry your cross. It may be consolation to know that your son has died for his country and that his sacrifice will not be in vain.

Mr. Mackeigan Home from Toronto Practical Beginning by General Assembly Special Committee on Church Union

A practical beginning has been made by the special committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly on church union, which has been meeting in Toronto this week.

The object of the committee, Mr. Mackeigan said, is to carry out the decision of the assembly to effect a union with the Methodist churches by legislation which will be brought one year after the end of the war.

Advantage was taken of the presence of Rev. Dr. Chown, superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, and Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, who paid an informal visit to the committee.

The executive consists of members of the general committee resident in Toronto, with Rev. Dr. Clark, Montreal; Rev. Dr. Herdridge, Ottawa; Rev. Dr. Drummond, Hamilton.

The committee agreed that no policy in regard to legislation should be adopted until after full consultation with the other churches.

In these days of Pullman sleepers, no one would think of using a prairie schooner to cross the country. With modern plumbing facilities, nobody takes clothes down to the river to do washing. ARMY USE QUEER CAMERA OVER BATTLE FIELDS

When a German aeroplane on reconnaissance duty over the French lines was recently brought down by the allies, an aerial camera of an odd type was recovered intact. The instrument is described, with illustrations, in the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. It proved to be a splendid instrument and has attracted much interest among members of the flying corps. At the rear of the case a handle and trigger like those of a revolver are provided, the latter being used to operate the shutter. It weighs about twelve pounds, and has an additional handle near the front end so that it can be held with two hands when in use. The lenses are in universal focus and tests have shown that faultless photographs can be obtained with the instrument at heights varying from 100 to 1,500 yards.

Another large crowd turned out last evening for the concert given by the Temple Band in Kings Square. Rain has caused the postponement of several scheduled concerts this summer, but last night's was one of the few conducted on schedule. The programme included a very satisfying variety of selections, exceptionally well rendered.

PICNIC MUCH ENJOYED

Hundreds of people wended their way to Seaside Park yesterday to attend the annual picnic of the Church of the Assumption and incidentally to enjoy a few hours at the sea shore. Despite the fact that the picnic had been postponed since Tuesday, owing to inclement weather, there was no apparent falling off in interest and the games and refreshment booths were largely patronized. Rev. J. J. O'Donovan, the energetic pastor of the Church of the Assumption, directed affairs and was everywhere, encouraging the sport contestants, chatting with visitors, welcoming everyone, and readily finding something to occupy every minute. His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc and clergymen from the Cathedral, St. Peter's and other parishes were visitors. Postmaster Sears was a valued helper in carrying on the sports. The City Cornet Band, under Director Frank Waddington, played a most enjoyable programme of taking numbers, and, as usual, played well. It was in all a delightful afternoon and evening in every way.

MEXICO'S NEW ARMY

(Harry H. Dunn, in Cartoons Magazine)

The Mexican army of today is as different from that of the time when Porfirio Diaz thought he had 32,000 soldiers and woke to find barely 14,000, as is the German army that swept through Belgium different from our handful of 50,000 down in Texas. Six years ago, the Mexican army was composed of the riffraff of Mexico, convicts, political prisoners, drab slaves who served because they owed money to some friend of independence because they had been bought and not enslaved, the regular army of the Diaz administration was herded to its work as the Russians were driven into battle at Port Arthur or bound, as Guatemalan soldiers are chained to their barracks lest they flee. Today, the Mexican army is composed of free men, most of them bandits, it is true, many of them murderers, few of them to be trusted out of sight of their commanding officers, but all fighting because they want to fight, not because they have to fight. And those who judge the coming opposition of the Mexican army of 1916 by that which the forces of Santa Ana put up nearly seventy years ago are as mistaken as those who would attempt to compare the Armada with the British North Sea fleet.

Is H. M. Blair's Brother (Prescription Mail)

It is announced that the provincial government has dispensed with the services of Thomas Blair of St. Mary's, brother of Henry M. Blair, who has held the position of concrete inspector. The dismissal was made by Hon. P. G. Mahoney, ex-M.P., the rejected of Westmorland. Having dismissed Mr. Blair, Mr. Mahoney should now proceed to dismiss himself. Rejected by the people of Westmorland at the polls, he has no right to hold office and draw his salary as minister of public works. In regard to Mr. Blair, he has been in the employ of the government for five or six years, and was considered a valuable man, especially at election times. On several occasions he was selected by Col. McLeod, M.P., for special duty at Canterbury Station on polling day. Particulars as to why Mr. Blair's services were dispensed with are somewhat meagre, but one is justified in assuming that he was not fired for offensive partisanship, but because he is a brother of the ex-secretary of the public works department.

GETTOWN BOY DROWNED.

Roy Cooper, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooper, of Gettown, was the victim of a distressing drowning accident there yesterday afternoon. He, with some other boys, were swimming off Gaunce's wharf when, going out beyond his depth, he was seized with a cramp and sank. His companions were too young to assist him and he drowned. Twenty minutes later the body was recovered. The lad was twelve years of age, and the fatality saddened the entire community in and about Gettown.

EIGHTY DAYS

This is the eightieth day since Hon. P. G. Mahoney was appointed Minister of Public Works. He is still Minister of Public Works—the big spending department—though rejected by the people.

THE WAR NEWS

The despairing wall of the Kaiser, the wall of the beaten despot, is the feature of today's news. It is true that the Russians have nearly three million men on the eastern front against a little over a million and a half Germans and Austrians.

With regard to Turkey, the capture of Erzerum by the Russians means the acquisition of Armenia, and is a very severe blow to the Turks. Moreover, the great success won by Russia should soon bring Roumania into the field on the side of the Allies, thus making it easier to hold the Turk at bay and break the power of Austria.

The French and Italians hold their own at every point, and all goes well for the Allies. The Russian war minister, however, warns the people that the war will not end in the autumn, and his view is doubtless correct.

AN AMERICAN VIEW

The British blockade is not kindly received in the United States. It is alleged at Germany and German agents, but American interests will be somewhat affected, and therefore a protest has been entered. The New York Commercial, however, points out that to protest is about all the United States can do.

The Standard does not appear to have read the following paragraph from Mr. E. S. Carter's speech at Hampton: "Dr. Pugsley for many years has been the target of the government slanders in connection with the Central railway. I do not think there is a word of truth in them. I know that the counsel of the central railway investigating commission made a report which declared that there was nothing in such a statement. But in spite of that legal opinion—an opinion which was suppressed for political purposes—again and again, in our own legislature and in the house of commons it has been made to appear that Hon. William Pugsley and the government of which he was a member were responsible for an alleged deficit of $124,000 of Central railway funds."

Our just cause of complaint is that legitimate American trade is being strangled at the same time. We cannot help ourselves because we lack ships in which to carry our exports and imports. The British blockade does not strike all houses with German interests, and there is probably something behind this peculiar favoritism which will not be made public by those who have escaped the dragnet. England is playing with our trade interests like a cat with a mouse and the state of uncertainty is part of the game which keeps those who are favored from rushing to help those who are blacklisted.

He died, however, and the farmer was obliged to get another man. A day or two later the farmer strolled round to see how the new man was progressing. To his surprise, at the end of the field he found a large heap of stones.

"Well, sir," responded the man in charge of the operation, "we thought we'd save ye a bit of trouble next seed time; so whenever we finds a stone in the tatties we just dumps it down there."

"Ah!" remarked the farmer sadly, "I should never find another man like Sam, the old one." "Oh!" replied the other, rather nettled. "Why, old Sam was rather blind, and didn't know a stone when he seen one."

"I am not," said a tall, athletic looking man to the editor, "to write a column every day on the war in your widely read journal."

"What are your qualifications? Are you a great novelist?" "No." "Are you a famous preacher?" "No."

"Have you had any success in backing winners?" "On the contrary." "You don't happen by chance to be a star actor?" "Do I look like it?" "Or a cinema idol?" "No."

"Then what in the name of Jehovah-phat—" "I played half-back for—" "Why did you play that at once? You can have $10 a column and begin tomorrow."

NO OBJECTION TO MIXED BATHING

Solemn Discussion in Verdun Council But Law Will Be Enforced. Complainants That Young Men and Women Stay Around All Day in Bathing Suits Does Not Worry Aldermen

(Montreal Gazette) It was warm in the council chamber of Verdun last evening, and unanimously the members threw off their coats, collars and ties. Fortunately, most of the discussion was in regard to the big public bath that Verdun possesses, and with a stretch of the imagination it was almost possible to hear the lapping of the waves, the city hall not being too far away from the bath, which is practically a little bay constructed in the river just below Church street.

The trouble has arisen over the question of mixed bathing. An aged citizen appeared before the council to support a letter which had been written in regard to the matter. It was asked in the letter that fences be put around the baths, and supervision of bathing be made. The members of the council did not favor such a proceeding, and felt that an able guardian, with the assistance of the police, if necessary, would be all that was necessary to see that the laws were properly carried out. It was complained that young men, boys and girls would go to swim early in the morning and swim all day, except for periods of rest, during which they would stay around the dyke in their swimming costumes. Mayor Manning and the aldermen pointed out that in the big bathing places on the ocean, in America and in Europe, it was the custom for bathers to dress themselves in their costumes at hotels and walk through the town to the beach, and no harm was thought of it.

Ald. Cohn remarked that it would be easy for a guardian and the policemen to make a stern example of anyone who offended by appearing improperly clad. Ald. Crowdie said that if a man did not appear in proper costume, as was claimed in the complaint, it was a simple matter to reach him, for his clothes were in reach of the guardian. "If he does not give himself up, he would have to leave the bath and wander about the city in a bathing suit, and we could get him that way," said he. "Personally, if we cannot trust our people together in swimming, we cannot trust them together on land." He thought mixed bathing was alright. If there were not enough bathing houses, more could be put up. Another alderman remarked that last year there had been no trouble, except for complaints that the women's dressing rooms were not properly built, allowing the public to see too much. "Oh, well, that does not matter today, you have only to go into the public streets to see the same things," broke in the mayor quickly, and there was almost unanimous assent.

Another cause of complaint was in regard to lighting, and the aldermen thought this was perhaps justified, consequently, there was an adjournment to the bath. Only one light was to be seen, and the aldermen thought that there should be more for safety's sake, and the probabilities are that several more big arc lamps will be installed.

THE REVOLT IN WESTERN EGYPT

Attacks on Frontier Posts Led To Rupture. Prestige Is Regained. British Expedition Against the Senussi Restores Influence in Affected Region.

London, July 26—In a despatch to the War Office, Lieut-General Sir J. G. Maxwell, commander of British forces in Egypt, gives the following reasons for the outbreak of hostilities on the Western Egyptian front: "Early in November, during my temporary absence from Egypt, the situation on the western frontier, which had for some months been a subject for anxiety, became suddenly acute, and a series of acts of hostility committed against our frontier posts at Sollum and Bahariya made final rupture with the Senussi inevitable. "As early as May, 1915, signs were apparent that steadily increased pressure brought to bear upon the Senussi by the Turkish party in Tripoli, under the leadership of Enver Pasha, was beginning to take effect. For some time even after the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and Turkey in 1914, the anti-British influence of this party was not strongly felt, and the attitude of the Senussi toward Egypt remained friendly. It was not until the advent of Gaafar, a Germanized Turk of considerable ability, who arrived in Tripoli in April, 1915, with a considerable supply of arms and money, that this attitude underwent a change. From that moment it became evident that the Turkish influence was gaining weight, and it was only by means of great forbearance and by careful handling of a delicate situation by Lieut-Col. Snow, commanding the western desert, that a rupture was so long deferred. "The first incident of importance occurred on Aug. 16, 1915, when two British submarines sheltering from the weather near Has Lick, on the coast of Cyrenaica, were treacherously fired upon by Arabs, under the leadership of the Senussi, resulting in the death of one of our submarines. The incident was, however, closed by the acceptance of the Senussi's profuse apologies, and his assurances that the act had been committed in ignorance that the submarines were British. A period of quiet followed, but the beginning of November a series of events occurred which placed beyond all doubt the insincerity of the Senussi's continued assurances of friendship. In the first week of that month (November) the crews of H. M. S. Tara of H. M. S. Moorina, torpedoed by enemy submarines on the 5th and 7th, respectively, were, on landing in Cyrenaica, captured and held prisoners by the Senussi, who, in reply to strong representations for their immediate release, merely feigned ignorance of their occurrence, which he pretended to discredit. Negotiations Collapsed. "Even then a last effort was made to preserve peace, and Sayed Mohamed el Idris was sent to arrange negotiations whereby the Senussi should get rid of his Turkish advisers in return for a sum of money. But before any decision could be reached matters had got beyond control, and the negotiations collapsed. On the 9th an Emergency Squadron of the Royal Naval Armored Car Division was sent to strengthen the post at Sollum, which three days earlier had been shelled by enemy submarines, the Egyptian Coastguard Cruiser Abbas being sunk at her moorings, and another, the Nur el Bahr, receiving considerable damage from shell fire. "On the night of the 14th-15th two Egyptian sentries at Sollum were rushed by Mohallia (Senussi regulars), were severely handled and their arms carried off; the following night the camp at Sollum was systematically sniped, though no casualties resulted. On the 17th the Zawia at Sidi Barrani (fifty miles east of Sollum) was occupied by a force of some 800 Mohallia, and on the 18th the Coastguard Barracks at that place were twice attacked during the night, one coastguard being killed. This was followed on the 20th by an attack on the Coastguard Outpost at Sabli, a small post about thirty miles southeast of Sollum, though in this case, as at Barrani, the attack failed. In view of these circumstances there was clearly no alternative but to recognize a state of war and to take action accordingly. "The events recorded above had caused a spirit of great unrest to prevail throughout the country, and the possibility of internal disturbances was a source of greater anxiety than the external danger. This unrest was especially evident amongst the Arab population inhabiting the western edge of the cultivation—amounting in the Behera Province alone to over 120,000. The religious influence of the Senussi is great amongst these people, and their natural sympathies are inclined toward their brethren in the western desert. The above considerations made it imperative on the one hand, that the sphere of hostilities as far as possible to the west of the Delta, and, on the other hand, to

BRITISH NAVY BATTLE FLAGS TO THEIR LAST LONG-HOME

"Belgium Under The Surface"

Prominent New York Banker's Investigation Into the Results of German Occupation—Influential Opposition in Berlin to the Measures of Relief—Supplies do Not Reach the Germans

A. J. Hemphill, chairman of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, one of the most powerful banking institutions in the United States, has just left London after a visit to Belgium and Germany. He was also received by King Albert.

Mr. Hemphill, who acts as honorary treasurer of the neutral commission for relief, crossed the Atlantic to see for himself the conditions in the German-occupied part of Belgium and to investigate the distribution of the relief supplies to which the American people have generously contributed.

When I got to Brussels my first impression was that everything was normal, except for the absence of vehicles owing to the scarcity of horses and the prohibition of raw materials and food and pay for their food by export of her manufactures.

This vital current is stopped by the war and 60 per cent. of Belgium's work people are idle. A large part of the commercial class are also idle and reduced to dependence upon charity.

I went to the relief stations where the wholly destitute—amounting to a large proportion of the population—get their soup and other provisions, I saw, in the waiting queues, not only the needy class that one would expect, but well-dressed men, women and children.

In Brussels and elsewhere throughout Belgium the human lines that daily wait for the small ration provided by the charity of the world are marked by this same sad feature. Destitution is not only widespread, but there are now dependent upon relief thousands of the upper classes who never dream of coming to such a pass.

"Another criticism levelled at the German government is that the policy it is only after being in Brussels for a little time, and after visiting Charleroi, Malines, Antwerp, Liege and other places that one realizes how misleading are first impressions of life in Belgium as it is today. The outward appearance of normality is sustained only by the fact that relief to the value of over $1,300,000 is, so to speak, injected into the country every month. The external calm is an amazing tribute to the efficiency of the system whereby the relief organization provides and distributes to this whole nation the supplies without which there would be chaos and unthinkable suffering.

Relief Reaches the Belgians "Both in America and England a good deal of uneasiness somewhat naturally exists as to the relief supplies actually reaching the Belgians. I discussed this point thoroughly with responsible Belgians throughout the country and with the Americans who are supervising the distribution, besides keeping my own eyes open for and indications of confiscation by the Germans. As a result I am convinced that the relief supplies sent into Belgium reach, in their entirety the Belgians people. Except for trivial local incidents, which are invariably remedied, I heard of no instance whatever of the Germans breaking their guarantees to respect the food which the Allied governments allow to be brought through the blockade.

As regards the home-grown produce there are, probably, still some leakages—almost inevitable in a country partitioned by a foreign army—but I can safely say that 99 per cent. of the native food supplies go towards feeding the Belgian people. The inappreciable leakages to which I refer are always made the subject of negotiations between the Relief Organization and the belligerent powers.

"You ask me as to what the Belgian people really think. They don't think. They just hope. They live from day to day in the undimmed expectancy of regaining their independence. They might also say they live on hope, because if that wonderful spirit were not there, the needy ration, which is all the relief organizations can supply, would be inadequate to prevent increased disease and mortality.

High German Wages Refused "Under ordinary circumstances the population would be impoverished by free feeding of the unemployed. This is not the case in Belgium. In the first place, a daily diet of soup, bread, sometimes potatoes and a little bacon, and occasionally rice and beans, continued over two years, does not offer many attractions. It is only the indomitable spirit of the people themselves that makes it bearable. They will be glad enough when peace comes to exchange the free meals of such a kind for the food they can earn by work. At present, a souidier gets a few days' work weekly in local industries, such as the enamel, glass and coal trades, at a few francs per week. These meagrely reduce wages of from 15 to 25 francs a week which they could obtain by working for the Germans. Glass and enamel ware, by consent of the Allies, are being exported in small quantities, but the payment for such exports are retained in Allied countries until the conclusion of the war. The German assertion, that the whole Belgian nation has organized a passive resistance strike on an unprecedented scale, is undoubtedly correct.

"In one relief canteen which I inspected a man came up and made a complaint. There was no meat, he said excitedly, in his soup. He had long given up the idea of receiving meat as part of his daily meal, but if he was to live, he declared he must get some of the nourishment that meat provides. He was right. There was practically no meat in the soup. But what is one to do? Such meat as there is in the country is six shillings per pound.

The Flight of the Children. "There are 600,000 children in Belgium entirely dependent upon the tenderness of the outside world. A large percentage of the remaining two million children, up to the age of sixteen, are partially dependent upon relief. The problem of bringing them up and even of keeping them alive is becoming more and more grave. The relief organization has just started an extraordinary interesting experiment to meet the emergency of short milk supplies in industrial centres. They have asked the peasants to lend, free of charge, for one year, one cow from each of their herds to a communal herd which will provide milk for the children. In Antwerp the herd now numbers 400 cattle. In other centres the peasants are repudiating the year the cows will be returned to their owners, who will be compensated for the loss of any of their cattle.

"A Marvel of Efficiency "My visit to Belgium gave me my first opportunity to see for myself the actual working of the relief system. It is a marvel of efficiency and devotion. As an American I am proud not only of my fellow-countryman, Herbert Hoover, to whose genius for organizing the relief work, but of those Americans who, without self-interest and self-effacement, are devoting themselves in the occupied territory to keeping the Belgian nation alive. Mr. Emile Francqui, head of the Belgian Comité National, has also achieved wonders, and his army of Belgian workers is the most striking instance in history of volunteer collective action. The work, both of the Americans and Belgians, could not be carried out without the humane and effective backing of the American and Spanish ambassadors in London, the American ambassador in Berlin, and the devoted American and Spanish ministers, who remain at their posts in Brussels.

"All Americans admire the magnificent generosity with which the British Empire, despite the many other calls upon its benevolence and resources, has contributed, through the National Committee for relief in Belgium, to the support of the relief work. After seeing that that work for myself, I venture to say that it is the duty of every humane individual to help these helpless civilians in Belgium—especially the children—who, for nearly two years have endured sorrows and privations that would try the soul of any nation in the world, and yet still remain heroically true to those traditions of liberty and freedom which they have inherited through centuries.

HEARING HOW THEY WON THE VICTORY

Picture shows a hospital nurse reading to two of the wounded heroes of the great offensive. Many of the wounded men, when they reach hospital, are unconscious and of course can know of what occurred only immediately around them in the great battle. They are always eager for the "big news" when they "wake up."

Wounded Soldiers in Training

The Government's New Scheme; Allowances For the Men and Their Families

Canadians are absolutely unanimous about one thing in this war—that justice and reparation must be secured for those who have suffered. The men who have volunteered to fight for us, while we have stayed safely at home—these men, coming back shattered and torn, with health in any way impaired by their service, must have reparation, and from us.

From the beginning of the war it was recognized that a man offering his body to defend our cause should have compensation for any injury his body might suffer in the carrying out of that task.

A scale of pensions was adopted both for disabled soldiers and for their dependants, in proportion to the degree of disability. A revised scale, involving a large increase of expenditure, was lately agreed to by a parliamentary committee and is already in force.

A pension alone, however, will not restore the injured man to his place as an active and useful member of the community; and that has to be done, by some means or other, both in the community's interest and in his own.

A very few of the injured will be found so totally helpless that this restoration is impossible. On the other hand, judging by experience so far, a large majority, in spite of their injuries, will still be fit for their former work. But between these two classes will be many men with injuries either handicapping them seriously in their old occupations or leaving them out altogether.

Such men must not be condemned to perpetual uselessness. They would not thank us for that. They are not of the backboneless kind, or they would hardly have thrown themselves into the war. They did not enlist to be "coddled" or spoon-fed, and they will not want to be coddled and spoon-fed now. Having recovered their strength, they will naturally expect to use it. The question simply is—How?

To begin with, their disability can often be lessened by what is called "functional re-education." By special exercises, with or without the aid of ingenious apparatus invented for the purpose, the muscles mutilated by wounds and operations, and weakened by compulsory disease, can recover some of their strength and become once more accustomed to exertion. Then, by "vocational re-education" the men can be enabled to return to their original trades, or, when that is impossible or undesirable, they can be helped to fit themselves for another occupation. There is no intention, by the way, to provide re-education for men who do not need it.

The parliamentary committee decided that the cost not only of pensions and artificial limbs, but also of this vocational training should be paid by the dominion government.

The Military Hospitals and Convalescent Homes Commission, with Sir James Loughheed at its head, has already given a great deal of consideration to the matter, and has taken steps to organize the training required in many parts of the country. The complete establishment of the system may be expected very soon for the government, by order-in-council, has just adopted a report of the Military Hospital Commission, of which we are enabled to give this summary:

The report begins by explaining that the commission aims at benefiting not only disabled members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, but also disabled

NEW SERBIAN ARMY IS READY

100,000 Men Transported Without Loss of One

Enemy Watching for Them

Now Escaped on Plains and in Valleys Near Saloniki—A New-born Army, Fresh and Smart

London, June 28.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The Reuters correspondent at Saloniki writes of the successful transport of the Serbian army from Saloniki to Saloniki.

"The Allies have another wonderful feat to their credit. Over 100,000 men have been brought through seas infested with submarines, with never a mishap or the loss of one man. It is an astounding performance, especially if we take into consideration the means the enemy undoubtedly possessed of knowing all about every departure and arrival of the Serbian army.

"The vessels have been entirely French transports, and great praise is due to skippers and crews for the manner in which they have accomplished their duties, but both French and Serbians gladly and gratefully recognize that their achievement would not have been possible without the British navy; that only the constant vigil and unceasing patrolling of our warships has made these Mediterranean seas clear and safe.

"Over a hundred thousand Serbians are now encamped on the plains and in the valleys somewhere near Saloniki. A fine lot of men they are. Perhaps it has been a case of the survival of the fittest, but these tall, thick-set fellows show no traces of the hardships and sufferings of the retreat and exposure in Albania. Four months' recruiting in Corfu has sloughed away all marks of sickness, toil and privation. These Serbians soldiers look to go anywhere and do anything. And the men are as eager as they are fit. It is a new-born army, and it is well equipped with new French and British uniforms; the men look exceedingly smart and soldier-like. Very proud are they of their new clothes, especially of the general service buttons on the British uniforms. It speaks well for the moral stamina of a people that can come through such trials without losing courage or becoming embittered.

These soldiers are as cheerful and confident as though the tragic part were not still implicit. They are sad when they think of their homes in Serbia and of the women and children they have left behind. Few have heard anything from their families for over six months. But there is a grim determination about them and an enthusiasm at the thought of an advance on their enemies.

"Visitors are made very welcome at a Serbian camp. The whole talent of the regiment is mobilized in order to entertain the guests. The Serbians are a muscular people, and some of the soldier choruses were very stirring, even though the martial words were not understood. At one camp where I missed the other day several of the men had really first-class voices and one soldier who accompanied himself on the violin had a tenor under the maximum age may be given the maximum allowance of $55, less pension and allowances.

All these allowances for wife and children will be paid direct to the wife, unless otherwise thought fit by the commission.

A married man living at home will receive $50 a day. (This of course is in addition to the allowances for wife and children.)

A widowed mother, if dependent entirely upon the unmarried son who is receiving training, and if the son made an assignment of his pay to his mother and also arranged for her to receive separation allowance while he was on service, may be paid at the same rate as the wife of a married man with no children.

The parents of a man undergoing training, if both are old and past work, and entirely or partially dependent upon him, may also be paid at that rate.

The guardian of a widower's children (under the maximum age) will be paid monthly—for one child, $10; for two, $17.50; for three, $22; and $3 for each child in excess of three, with a maximum of $35.

Payments under these regulations will be continued for one month after the completion of vocational training, whether the man has secured employment or not.

It is clear that this system of allowances will enable many men to take advantage of the training offered, by providing for their families while the training is being given.

The president of the Military Hospitals Commission asks us to say that any further information desired by our readers will be gladly given on application to the secretary, at 22 Victoria street, Ottawa.

THE WEDDING OF JOHN MCGOWAN AND MISS MARGARET MCGOWAN

The Portland Press says of the wedding of John McGowan of the Inland Revenue Department here and Miss McGowan of Portland, Me., last week: A Cathedral Beld! In the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception on Wednesday morning the marriage of Miss Margaret McGowan of Portland, formerly of St. John, New Brunswick, and John McGowan of St. John, was solemnized in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. Fr. Keenan performed the ceremony and for attendants there were a bridesmaid, Miss Alice M. McGowan, a niece of the bride and Joseph McGowan, brother of the bride whom the groom chose for his best man. The bride wore her traveling costume of blue silk, with hat of the same tone trimmed with down and faced with pink maline. Her bouquet was of bride roses. The bridesmaid was in blue hat, rose trimmed. She carried pink roses for flowers. Immediately following the impressive service a wedding breakfast for the bridal party was served at the Congress Square, after which Mr. and Mrs. McGowan left on the noon train for the east where they are to spend their honeymoon in camp in New Brunswick. There were many beautiful presents for both the bride and groom and well known in Portland and have a large number of friends. Mr. McGowan is a former newspaper man and is in the inland revenue department of the Canadian Customs House in St. John, in which city he and his bride are to make their home. Farewell Dinner At the Lafayette on Tuesday evening the Mactoshmac Fish and Game club gave a farewell dinner in honor of John McGowan of St. John, New Brunswick, whose marriage to Miss Margaret McGowan was an interesting event of the week. All the appointments were very beautiful and elaborate, with every course offering a surprise to the honor guest. A feature was the presentation of a magnificent chest of silver to Mr. McGowan. In the party were Dr. Edward F. Timmins, Dr. T. V. Tooley, Dr. Charles Shay, and Arthur McCarthy, all of Boston. For several years they have been at Mr. McGowan's camp in New Brunswick, for fishing and game and all have become much attached so that it was quite to be expected that they should come to

NO HEAVY FIGHTING ON CANADIANS' PART OF FRONT RECENTLY
Ottawa, Ont., July 28.—The weekly eye-witness report from the militia department relates several minor incidents. There has been no heavy fighting on the Canadian front. It reads in part:
"General during the last week hostile artillery fire was unusually light, but on two occasions sections of the Canadian front were subjected to an intense bombardment by the enemy guns and trench mortars. Our batteries responded vigorously.
After one of these dull, several small parties of the German infantry attempted to approach the trenches held by battalions from Montreal and Vancouver. At all points they were met with rapid machine guns and rifle fire and driven off.
The Canadian corps was visited by a party of Canadian parliamentarians, consisting of Sir George Foster, Senators Landry, Belcourt, Ross and Dennis, and Messrs. Rhodes, Nickle, Shepherd, Knowles, and Armstrong. Another visitor at the front was N. W. Rowell of Toronto."
