DISTRICT AND GENERAL

Empire Day will be observed in the schools of Canada on Tuesday, May 23rd.

The Government will install an electric light service at Rondeau Provincial Park this season.

For selling imitation maple syrup as pure maple syrup a resident of Ford City has been fined $50.

Only four passengers were killed on the Canadian railways last year, out of a total of fifty-one million carried.

A horse owned by Wm. Berry, Petrolia, stepped on a live wire and was instantly killed. It cost the hydro commission $204.

The Bell Telephone Company purposes adopting the automatic switching system, first in the cities and then in the smaller places.

Ingersoll business men will try to boost Saturday night trade by having band concerts at various points in the business section of the town.

Mrs. J. N. Dodd, of Sarnia, died at London last week. She was formerly Mrs. A. E. Ketch, of Alvinston, and the funeral took place in that village.

Within the limits of the city of New York there are 800 farms, valued at $35,373,780. The principal products of the farms are hay, corn and potatoes.

Society women in England are said to be having their small toes amputated in order to accommodate their feet to the latest fad—the narrow, pointed-toe shoe.

Wilbur Prouse, of Tillsonburg, had a miraculous escape from instant death when a large tractor upset backwards, pinning him between the engine and the disc harrows.

Mrs. Sarah Sims, aged 82 years and 8 months, passed away at the residence of her son, T. W. Sims, West Lorne, on Friday. Mrs. Sims fell and dislocated her hip six weeks ago.

The thirty-ninth annual session of the London Methodist Conference will assemble in Centennial church, Dundas street east, London, on May 29 and the sessions will continue until Tuesday, June 6.

At a meeting of Bothwell town council, $2,000 was voted for re-seating the school. The school has been greatly improved during the past year, steam heat, indoor lavatories and hydro being installed.

The clerks of Ontario municipalities have been notified by the department that they must notify the department of every case where the attending physician fails to report births inside of 48 hours.

Work has begun on the county road between Bothwell and Florence. Five carloads of stone have arrived at North Bothwell and many men and teams are employed unloading the stone and hauling it to the road.

Word has been received from Lockport, N. Y., announcing the death of John F. Campbell, eldest son of the late Duncan D. Campbell, of Adelaide township, and brother of Archie F. Campbell, who occupies the old homestead on the 4th line.

Twelve boys from the Dutton high school, comprising senior and junior teams, will compete in the annual field day tournament at London on Saturday, May 20. Most of the high schools and colleges of Western Ontario will be represented at these games.

Sterling S. Tobias, age 36, of Petrolia, is in Victoria Hospital, London, suffering from an absorption. He was being treated by a nerve specialist who poured fluid over Tobias' back, intending to rub him with it, afterwards discovering that the fluid was carbolic acid.

As the result of investigations which showed that more than a score of school teachers drawing city money and refusing to pay city income tax were residents of Middlesex county, the London Board of Education demands that all public school teachers move into the city by September 1st or resign.

A London paper says:—"Should Minnie Harris, former assistant matron at the Middlesex county jail, fail to make immediate preparations to vacate her living quarters at the county buildings in favor of her successor, application will be made to the county judge for a court order to authorize her removal by force if necessary."

APPOINTED A CORONER

An Order in Council has been passed appointing Dr. L. W. M. Freele, of Glencoe, a coroner in and for the county of Middlesex.

"I would not take $1,000 for what that wonderful Tanlac medicine has done for me," said Mrs. Mattie Lutes, of Lexington, Kentucky. Sold by P. E. Lumley.

TOURIST CAMPING GROUND

A tourist camping ground, the first to be approved by the provincial government, is being prepared by Nathaniel Currie on his farm on the Longwoods Road in Mosa township. The opening of the grounds will take place on Wednesday, May 24th, when a garden party will be held under the auspices of the Major-General McRae Chapter of the I.O.D.E. in aid of the soldiers' memorial building to be erected in Glencoe.

Lunch will be served from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m., and an evening program will consist of drills, speeches, etc., and a band concert by the Ridgeway band.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL

Plans Prepared for Glencoe Building to Be Commenced in July

It was announced in a London paper on Thursday and on the movie screen at the opera house here Saturday night that plans had been completed for the soldiers' memorial building at Glencoe which the Daughters of the Empire have had in contemplation for some time, and that construction work would begin about July first.

It is proposed to erect the building on the property recently acquired by the I.O.D.E. cornering on Main and Symes streets, opposite the post office. It will be a two-storey structure, 36 by 50 feet. The basement will be fitted up as a gymnasium. The ground floor will contain a reading room for veterans and parlors for women and an emergency sick room. The upper floor will be used for lodge rooms, meetings and similar purposes. The building will be of red brick and will be one of the handsomest structures of its kind in any of the towns in Western Ontario.

The Daughters of the Empire have received many warm congratulations on their enterprise and hearty support, not only from the citizens, but from many in the district.

RUSSIA AND GENOA

The purpose of the Genoa Conference is primarily to effect such conditions as will enable Russia to get back into the world family and help to restore the equilibrium which has been so upset by the chaos resulting from the war.

Mr. Lloyd George, representing his Government, is firmly of the belief that it will be necessary to restore Russia to normal or something approaching normal before world conditions will settle down.

Some Canadians who do not sense the significance of these world events are prone to speak lightly of the harrowing conditions which confront many innocent people in Russia, in condemning Russia for her failures these same people forget that the masses of the Russian people are not responsible for the insane acts of some of their leaders.

The Save the Children Fund committee is concerned only with the human question of rescuing millions of innocent children from the plight in which they find themselves by reason of the drought of last year and the breakdown of the whole economic system of Russia. What Canada has done so far has been the means of relieving the distress among only 75,000 children. There are millions more in actual want—dying by inches because there is no help. Canadians must not rest until the greatest measure of relief has been given.

FARMERS RECEIVE LOANS

Ten applications totaling $6,000 were passed on by the Ekfrid Farm Loan Association at the first regular meeting, held in Appin Tuesday afternoon of last week.

The Ekfrid association was the first one formed in Middlesex county under the farm loans act, passed by the Ontario government.

"The applications of ten farmers for loans were received and O. K'd by the directors," stated R. A. Pinn, of the local department of agriculture, who is one of the government representatives on the board of directors. "The smallest loan was for $150. The amounts loaned were for general farm work."

Richard Coad, president of the association, presided at the meeting.

ODDFELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY

The members of Glencoe Lodge No. 133, I.O.O.F., observed the 103rd anniversary of their order by attending divine service in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon. The sermon was preached by the pastor of the church, Rev. R. J. Garbutt.

The choir of the church led very efficiently in the service of praise, and solos by Mrs. (Dr.) George, of London, and Stanley Humphries, of Glencoe, were much appreciated.

At the present rate of Tanlac sales it is estimated the grand total will reach 24,000,000 bottles at the end of the present year.—P. E. Lumley.

WIN WEST LORNE CUP

Glencoe High School Athletes Lead in Field Day Events

Our high school added another eventful day to its already lengthy list when on Wednesday of last week the pupils practically "en masse" took themselves to West Lorne to take part in the field day exercises of the West Lorne school.

Glencoe athletes, both boys and girls, showed up to splendid advantage against competitors from Rodney, West Lorne and Wardsville. Those boys who contributed largely to the success of the school were C. McPherson, R. D. McDonald, Delbert Hicks, H. Beales, J. Munroe, W. Anderson and H. McDonald, while among the girls were found Jessie Currie, Olive Black, Florence McEachern and Alma Watts.

A feature of the day was two basketball games—first, Rodney vs. West Lorne, the latter winning by a good score; then Glencoe played the winners, noosing them out by a narrow margin after a hard fought battle.

The citizens of West Lorne had presented a beautiful silver cup as trophy for the day and at the close of the events Glencoe boys and girls were found leading respectively and collectively. The score in points was—Glencoe, 116; Rodney, 28½; Wardsville, 19; West Lorne, 46½.

At an evening concert the reeve of West Lorne presented the cup to the winners. After R. D. McDonald had made a suitable reply the G.H.S. bunch hiked for home with their treasure.

Thursday morning, however, found them carrying it up town for exhibition, it being placed in the window at J. N. Currie & Co.'s store.

West Lorne pupils are to be congratulated on the splendid impetus to clean amateur sport their field day provided.

TO IMPROVE LIGHT HORSES

Canadian Racing Association Places Noted Sire at Glencoe

Of eight horses being placed in the Canadian Racing Association's list this country for the improvement of light horses, saddle horses, hunters and horses required for the military forces, Middlesex county has been fortunate in securing "General Probyn" for service in this district.

General Probyn was bred by H. H. Majesty King George V. and is one of the largest and finest types of thoroughbreds ever brought to Canada. He was unloaded off the car at Glencoe on Tuesday morning and attracted the admiration of all who saw him.

This magnificent sire will be handled for the season of 1922 by Thomas McDonald, Route 3, Glencoe, and his stable will be on lot 21, first range south Longwoods Road, Ekfrid. His route will be announced by posters and folders. In the meantime any further information may be had on application to Charles R. Willey, Route 3, Glencoe.

VISIT OF BOTHWELL LEAGUE

The Bothwell Times says:—"On Monday evening the Bothwell Methodist League accepted an invitation given by the Glencoe League to visit them and furnish the program. About thirty availed themselves of the privilege, and a very pleasant and profitable time was spent. Miss Edith Kerr, president, presided in an able manner. The following comprised the program: Solo, 'I May Sinner'; reading, Miss Gibb; speech, Miss Veronica Joyce; solo, Mrs. J. A. McRitchie; solo, Mrs. Rhodes, and selections by the Bothwell orchestra. At the conclusion of the program the visitors were delightfully entertained by the Glencoe League with games, dainty refreshments being served."

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Anniversary services will be conducted in Tall's Corners Presbyterian church on Sunday, May 21st, at 2.30 and 7.30 p.m., by Rev. George Weir, B.A., of Ridgeway. Special music by the choir. On Tuesday evening, May 23, the annual tea meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea served from 6 to 8 o'clock. Afterwards, in the auditorium, a first-class program will be given by the Londonian Mixed Quartette, in quartettes, duets and solos, readings, character monologues and Scotch comedy numbers. Adults, 50c; children, 25c.

Read the "Special Notices."

Soils and Crops

Address communications to Agronomist, 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto

Potato Culture.

Potatoes are easily grown. They are a very valuable cheap food. In one form or another they are wanted on everybody's table, every day, everywhere throughout the civilized world. Potatoes have been cultivated by Europeans for a little over three hundred years. They now require over thirty-five million acres of land and produce over five billion bushels of food annually. The average yield of this crop is about 144 bushels per acre. The average yield in Canada is about 161 bushels per acre. The following suggestions are given from experience and experiments on "Spud Island."

Soil—Potatoes do best in a warm, rich, deep, sandy loam soil. They require a lot of moisture and should have good well drained soil.

Seed—Like beets, like. The seed potato trade asks for Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain. They are recommended as among the best. Grow the potatoes that people want. Get seed free from disease. It is obtainable. Select it rigorously. Treat it with fungicides before cutting. Use large fresh sets.

Seed bed—Potatoes require a lot of work and attention and like other worth-while things, pay back most when they receive it. Plow and work the soil, make it friable, work it thoroughly until the necessary tilth is obtained. A chisel soil, top-dressed with 10 tons of barnyard manure, plowed in early autumn and thoroughly spring worked makes a good seed bed for potatoes. Should your land need more fertility feed it with potato fertilizers.

Planting—Plant as soon as the land is warm enough. Do not allow the seed to get chilled before covering. Planting machines are satisfactory. Make the rows straight and from 30 to 35 inches apart. This will lighten your cost of production. Plant the seed about 4 inches deep and from 12 to 14 inches apart.

Cultivation—Harrow the potato field with something harrow before the young plants appear and once after they are up. Cover the plants with three inches of soil when three inches above ground. The rear disc on the potato planter do this best. Use horse cultivation after every rain and at least every ten days until the plants crowd out. Throw soil towards plants with each cultivation, hilling them so that the tubers are all well covered.

Spraying—Spraying is safe insurance that pays its own premiums. Start spraying in July and keep all the foliage covered with Bordeaux and poison or dust fungicides throughout the season until the first frost kills the disease spores.

Harvesting—Harvest immature plants for seed. Dig potatoes in dry weather. When disease is present leave them in the ground until a frost occurs if possible. When the soil is very dry have the digger move a lot of clay so that the potatoes may not be injured by the machine. Handle all potatoes as carefully as eggs. Every bruise lowers their value and renders them more susceptible to disease. Allow them to sweat in the open and give them good ventilation and cool quarters for storage. Potato tubers must have air to live.

Scaly Legs—How to Treat Them. There is nothing more unsightly in the appearance of a fowl than scales on the leg. No matter how attractive a fowl may be otherwise, these scales condemn it.

This condition is due to a mite which burrows under the scales, causing the scales to lift up gradually. There is a theory that this is due to a deficiency of oil in the skin parts affected, but I am rather inclined to believe that "poor housekeeping"—unclean quarters—has more to do with it than anything else.

It is generally considered that the condition is contagious and that a scaly-legged fowl will soon transmit the disease to the rest of the flock; but this is not always so. I have had several badly afflicted hens in a flock and not one of the others caught the disease. But where there are such exceptions I have noticed that the immune hens were exceptionally vigorous. And there may, too, be something in the theory that they had an abundance of oil in skin and feathers.

The scales become raised and loosened due to the accumulation of a crusty substance that works beneath them, after the mite has done its burrowing. A scaly-legged hen should never be set, if one wishes to avoid the trouble with the chicks. I believe that the disease is transmitted more rapidly in this manner than in any other.

The sovereign remedy seems to be grease or oil. A very satisfactory treatment is to wash the legs and feet with hot water and castile soap-suds. When dry anoint the affected parts with a mixture of equal parts of melted lard and kerosene. Rub this in well. Repeat daily until cured. While being treated the fowl should be kept in a clean cage bedded with cut straw, to keep out all dirt. Other recommended cures are: Fill a tin quart measure nearly full of water, with one tablespoonful of kerosene oil floating on the surface. Tie or fasten the measure to a box to hold it firm. Dip the legs, both at the same time, into the liquid, holding them there one minute. Repeat this after three days.

Another remedy is to dip the feet and legs up to the hocks in a mixture of coal-oil and linseed-oil, the proportions of which may be varied according to the number of treatments to be given. The larger the proportion of coal-oil the more effective is the mixture. Except in hurry cases, not more than half coal-oil should be used, while for cases so little developed that the treatment is as much preventive as active, one part coal-oil to two parts linseed-oil is preferred.

place tacked on rustless or galvanized mosquito wire netting. In this way the breeding and hiding places of the fleas were eliminated, the nests were made cooler, and the dust that usually collects sifted through the bottom of the nest instead of accumulating as formerly. Besides, fewer eggs were broken at laying time, by being dropped upon a board that had been temporarily barred.

Iron Sulphate for Dandelions.

Many people are not impressed with the beauty of the dandelion in their lawns and seek its eradication. Iron sulphate spray is recommended to rid lawns of dandelions.

The spray solution is prepared by dissolving in one gallon of water one and one-half pounds of the iron sulphate, also known as green vitriol or copperas, and is obtainable at most hardware or drug stores. This amount of spray will cover about one and one-half square rods of lawn. While fairly good results are obtained when the spray is applied with the ordinary sprinkling can, much better results will follow when put on with a fine mist nozzle that carries the liquid well down into the foliage of the plants.

The solution should be made in wooden or earthenware vessels, as it corrodes metals. Care should also be taken to keep the solution from wetting cement or stone walks, the foundations of buildings, clothing, etc., as it leaves a stain which is extremely difficult to remove.

The spray should be applied in May just before the dandelions start blooming, and should be repeated once or twice at intervals of three or four weeks. One or two additional applications can be made late in the summer and fall if necessary. Where properly done, spraying every third year will keep the lawn practically free from dandelions.

The blackening of the grass immediately following each application should occasion no alarm, as this will soon disappear where the grass is growing rapidly. Bare spots, which are due to the killing of the dandelions, should be reseeded to grass.

Well sown, half grown; Well heed, full head.

Picking the Good Heifers.

Recently the writer had a dispute with a young breeder who seemed to be possessed of more enthusiasm than experience or good judgment. We were looking over a bunch of his northern yearlings and two-year-olds. On the whole, they were a good lot and we commended them. There were, however, at least two, and perhaps three, that did not look to us as if they had "any milk in them," and we mentioned the fact. Their owner entirely disagreed with us. He told us that the dams of the heifers in question were really good milkers and that their sire was of record breeding.

Our friend, like many breeders, has yet to learn that the breeder has not yet been born who can make every one of his heifer calves into a good milkers. Why is this? Apparently every heifer is born either a good or a poor milkers and subsequent conditions have very little to do with her performance.

Professor Eckles carried out a series of expensive experiments covering several years, to determine the influence of feed on the milking qualities of cows. Some heifers were fed extra well; others were reared on short rations. As a result of these experiments, Professor Eckles decided that while good feeding would increase the size of dairy cattle, and, therefore, increase their capacity to handle feed, their ability as milkers was not affected materially by their feeding from birth to milking age. Some of the best and poorest milkers were found in all three lots. It is possible to cull the heifers when they are only a few months old, taking out those that give little indications of milking ability.

The promising heifer will early show mammary development and will carry that somewhat indefinite character known as dairy quality; this will be particularly in evidence in the head. When animals are old it will be easier to pick out the profitable milkers but the only real test is the pail test. By the first milking period, if records are kept of individual production, the dairy farmer will be able to select fairly accurately.

Marketing of Live Stock in Ontario.

A statement issued by the Live Stock branch at Ottawa covering the last four months respectively of 1921 and 1920 shows that while the number of cattle shipped to stock yards last year from four of the live stock shipping provinces, namely, Quebec, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, was fewer than in the preceding year, the number shipped from points in Ontario was greater, the figures showing 130,861 in 1921 compared with 94,455 in 1920. The same was true of the number shipped direct to packers, but to a far less extent. The store cattle shipped in last year numbered 20,193 compared with 31,885 in the same period of the preceding year. There were also more calves shipped to the Ontario stockyards but fewer to the packers. More hogs were shipped last year to both stockyards and packers but fewer sheep to both. The statement also gives the number of live stock shipped from the different counties of each province. This shows that of the 51 counties or districts of Ontario enumerated, the largest shippers in the last four months of 1921 of cattle were Middlesex, Bruce and Renfrew; of calves, York, Hastings and Frontenac; of hogs, Kent, Simcoe, Essex and York, and of sheep, Grey, Simcoe, Renfrew, and Wellington. Ontario shows an increase in the handling of cattle, calves, and hogs, but a decrease in sheep; Quebec a decrease in cattle, but an increase in calves, hogs and sheep; Manitoba an increase in hogs alone, and Saskatchewan and Alberta an increase in both hogs and sheep.

To prevent crows from pulling up corn, put a tablespoonful of turpentine into the planter box, and stir each time the planter box is filled. This will not harm the seed.

Parents as Educators

Give Commands Rarely—By Edith Lockridge Reid

In a well-ordered household where the children are properly trained, it is surprising how few direct commands are necessary.

Such remarks as "Close the door," "Stop your noise," "Don't throw pillows," "Eat with your fork," and "Be careful of those books," are unnecessary because they have been implied all through the lives of the children. A baby two years old has learned the fundamentals that control actions resulting from these and similar commands. He has been taught to close doors and do it quietly until the action is reflex. He doesn't need to be told to stop his noise, because he has learned that any excessive uproar has unpleasant consequences. The very first time he threw a pillow he was shown that it nearly hit the lamp, and that it also tore a corner of the pillow. Yes, there was a reason why pillows should not be thrown about, and without any effort from us.

So we will find in a well-trained family, that the direct commands are few, and because of this fact when they are given, obedience is almost assured. But like a powerful machine that we admire because it runs so smoothly and noiselessly, someone behind the scenes has been doing the work, and in this case, SOMEONE is Mother.

How to Pick Strawberries.

Pickers should be taught the proper method of picking strawberries. Large quantities of desirable berries may be ruined by careless picking, indifference, or inexperience in picking. Picking is done best by the use of the thumb and forefinger, each berry being pinched off with a stem about three-eighths to one-half inch long, and placed in the box carefully, not thrown, tossed, or dropped into the box. To gain speed, there always is a tendency for the picker to pull or snatch off the berries and toss them into the boxes. Some pickers crush, bruise or squeeze much fruit while picking, by holding too many berries in the hand at one time; others pile up berries on full trays which must later be taken off and placed in other boxes. Such practices result in bruised berries as well as many without the hull or cap. Damaged berries and berries without hulls do not carry well to the market, and in proper picking are not allowed in the boxes. Unless each row is picked clean of all berries that are ready at each picking, the next picking will contain overripe fruit.

Growing Delicious Sweet Corn.

The Golden Bantam is the sweetest sweet corn I have ever eaten, and forms the basis of all our planting. One year I found that by planting a row of other later and larger corn near the Bantam the ears would be increased in size by the mixing of the varieties and yet I could not see that the quality was lowered much. This is a simple thing to do and well worth trying by all lovers of this splendid variety. If the tassels of the Bantam are removed early to prevent their fertilizing the ears it might be a further improvement, but it would be essential to be sure the other crop had pollen at the same time as the Bantam or you might fail to get any corn at all.—A. H.

Saved a Frosted Garden.

My very best garden stunt happened one morning when I was up before sunrise and found a heavy killing frost covering everything in the garden. Even the radish leaves were frozen stiff.

Good thoughts came to me in a hurry. I had often sprinkled house plants with cold water when frosted. And, I thought, why not try the cold water plan on the garden. I filled the sprinkling pot several times and went over the entire garden and saved everything, even the beans, which is the most wonderful of all.

The neighbors' gardens were ruined, potato tops black to the ground. I hope this may benefit others.—Mrs. K. Jones.

Killing a Willow Clump.

Grub out the roots of the willow as thoroughly as possible. Continue persistent spraying at regular intervals until winter, not allowing any willow sprouts to remain long above the ground before cutting them off. Repeat the spraying next year and so long as necessary until the willow clumps are filled out. If you do not object to making the soil sterile you can soak the soil about the clump with hot water in which you have dissolved two or three pounds of salt per gallon. Then, repeatedly chop out all the sprouts as suggested above.—V. A. G.

Fender Cracks.

Very frequently small cracks make their appearance on the edge of the fender or other sheet metal parts which will rapidly become big breaks unless they can be attended to as soon as they make their appearance. Drill a small hole through the crack, near its outer end. Slip a rivet through the hole, run on a washer and then rivet the head firmly. This method prevents vibration of the edges of the crack which causes the spreading of the crack. A brushful of enamel or paint will render this repair invisible.

Writing for the Local Paper

BY HILDA RICHMOND.

One of the pleasantest and most instructive things a country family can do is to write for the local or county newspaper. This work does not always pay in actual cash, but usually the newspaper will furnish stamps and paper for the work, and often gives a subscription to the paper in addition. The profit in the undertaking lies in the fact that writing is an education, and that it is almost impossible to undertake this little weekly task without branching later into wider and more enjoyable fields of journalism. Add to all this the habit of news gathering, the ability to put news into pleasing form and the regularity with which the job must be done, and you have many reasons why it is a pleasant and profitable task.

First of all, the country correspondent must not be satisfied with the deadly dull monotony of some news gatherers, but must seek to improve week by week and cause people to look for his items the minute the paper is received. If you will take up any country newspaper, you will see the work of those correspondents who never improve: "John Smith has purchased a new wagon." "The rain interfered with the oats harvest last week." "Mrs. Abner Penrose is very ill at this writing." "Miss Jessie Blake called at the home of Julia Thompson last week," and so on through the uninteresting list. Now it isn't that there are no local happenings, nor that people are not interested in reading news, but that the correspondent has never set down to consider the real value of improving his work.

Suppose instead of putting in that John Smith has a new wagon, which certainly is not interesting to any one but John Smith, the writer had given some item about the fine cattle or sheep or hogs owned by Mr. Smith. A wagon is a useful and necessary thing about a farm, but does not interest any one so much as an account of fine stock would. If any one has had an unusual crop of clover seed, a big yield of oats, a record-breaking corn crop, or some such item of interest, it is well to record it. If John Smith had purchased the latest model of a threshing outfit, or a farm truck of the latest make, those things would be more worth telling about than a commonplace wagon is.

Children's Activities Make Good Reading.

All club, church, social and school activities make readable items. School children are delighted to see their names in print, and often fathers and mothers who are unprogressive enough to refuse to take a paper for other reasons will subscribe because the children beg for the privilege of seeing their little school entertainments nicely written up. The country correspondent must be ambitious to help the publishers increase the circulation, for in a sense the writer of local items is a stockholder in the paper.

Little novel features about the entertainments should be emphasized, rather than such general statements as, "A very large crowd was present," or "The usual interesting exercises were carried out by the school." It is possible to tell of the large crowd in connection with some item, such as: "The children of Rose Corners School delighted a large crowd with the little play 'Red Riding Hood' on Wednesday evening." This combines the place, character of the entertainment and the time, pleasingly, and gives the reader the desire to know more about it.

Do not say that the hostess served a delicious and appetizing luncheon at the close of the meeting at her home, and then go on to name the articles she served, but condense to: "Delicious ice-cream and cake were served by the hostess," and save your space for the fact that the oldest member of the society was present for the first time in years, or that there were visitors from California, or that the six-year-old daughter of the home recited very nicely, or that the ladies served for the poor and were able to give several quilts to a missionary school as a result of their work that day.

Refreshments are pretty much alike the country over, and unless there is something specially new the space should not be given to enumerating cake, pickles, coffee and sandwiches. If the hostess had been able to serve something novel, then the ladies would eagerly read the item.

Death notices should be brief and dignified. The old habit of writing many stanzas of poetry and long flowery notices has gone out with the best papers. Wedding notices should tell of the bride's dress, in which all women are bound to be interested; who performed the ceremony; where the young folks are to live and the wedding journey, if there is one. Give a brief description of the affair as interestingly as possible. Try to pack into every sentence something interesting and attractive.

News Is Never Partial.

In some way try to notice each and every family in the neighborhood at one time. Many country families, particularly the children in the families, are timid and backward in the extreme, yet their little social affairs and items of interest please them immensely when reduced to modest news notes in the paper. Try to be impartial and fair to your neighbor. Often it is easy to find two-thirds of the local items dealing exclusively with one or two prominent families while the rest are ignored.

If the writer really enjoys the work, it will not be long until something more ambitious will be undertaken. Crop reports for the agricultural papers, answers to prize contests, letters to editors commending or criticizing certain articles, church items for the religious weekly, letters to the Open Forum of the daily papers, and many other small opportunities are eagerly embraced to "break into print," as some writers term it. And when the day comes that the first cheque is received for something the editor thinks is worthy of pay, the thrill that that little slip of paper gives will never be forgotten.

The memory of the first cheque I received for writing is as fresh and vivid as though it were yesterday that it came. I am truly sorry I ever cashed the cheque, for it would be worth far more than its face value as a souvenir of that happy hour if I could have it now.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

What The Runt Did.

Mr. Watkins owned some choice white hogs that were registered stock and he was very proud of them. Among the last litter of pigs, born in March, there was one that would not grow. They were old enough to wean but this little fellow was no larger than it was when only a week old.

Ben, a fat of fourteen years, was as much of a hog fancier as his father, and when Mr. Watkins decided to kill the runt of the March litter, Ben begged so earnestly for the little life that his father gave a reluctant consent upon the conditions that the pig must be removed from the rest of the litter and be cared for by Ben.

The boy fashioned a small pen from some boards six feet long and of varying widths. They were nailed together in the form of a triangle which he could easily move around. It was placed out in the old orchard and a box was placed in one corner to furnish a warm bed.

Every morning Ben would turn a couple of shovelfuls of sod so the little pig could get some fresh roots, move the pen over to a new place, give it all the sour milk it would drink up, and plenty of fresh water.

At noon he would give it a slop made of milk, corn meal and bran, and the same at night, adding a teaspoonful of flaxseed meal every other night. He began by feeding one teaspoon of corn meal and one tablespoon of bran in each feeding of milk, and increased the amount until he was feeding a half cup of the corn meal and a cup of bran a day at the end of two months. This was not increased until the first of September, when Ben made a self-feeder and gave it all of the bran and corn meal mixed that it would eat until fair time, when his pig not only weighed sixty pounds more than any other pig of the same litter, but brought him three times the prizes, one for the best pig in the

Grinding Away or Rusting Away

There are two fellows in this world that I have been wishing would meet and talk things over. They both live in my community; and they both live in yours. One is the farmer who is wishing he might retire and move to town, and the other is the fellow who wishes he hadn't.

They met the other day at the railroad station, so I understand—or maybe I dreamed it—anyway, this is what I understand they said to each other:

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Retired Farmer; I certainly would like to be in your shoes."

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Still-on-the-Soil, but you would not enjoy my shoes. They are about as aimless a pair of old brogans as you ever saw. They manage to take me to the post office for my mail and to the corner grocery for my staples, but for the rest of the day they don't seem to know what to do with me."

"But out on the farm, Mr. Retired Farmer, it is grind, grind, grind! I am getting ground to nothing!"

"Grinding is better than rusting, and if properly done has a tendency to sharpen, while rusting ruins any edge. I know I am rusting to nothing."

"But, Mr. Retired Farmer, you are in a position to take it easy and really live."

"Take it easy and live! That's impossible unless a fellow is old or getting well from illness. As soon as a strong man starts taking things easy he starts to quit living. I didn't used to think so, but that's my revised philosophy."

"But your time is your own, while I am driven from dawn to dark."

"True enough, Mr. Still-on-the-Soil, but here is the joker in that: when a fellow's time becomes all his own it loses its flavor. It seems as if it tastes better when part of it belongs to the other fellow. Mortgage time is the stuff service is made from, and service is the stuff real life is made from."

"But, Mr. Retired Farmer, with me it is go, go, go—all the time, go!"

"Yes, I know that well enough, but it is all right to go as long as you are going some place. Your 'go' has a goal; it always has something at the end of it—a hungry calf bawling for its milk, a thirsty calf that needs slaughtering, or a shock of fodder corn that ought to be chained in to the feed yard. My 'go' has nothing in sight except a chance for me to walk home again and wonder why I went."

"But you are free from responsibility, Mr. Retired Farmer, and that means a heap, I assure you."

"Free from responsibility is right, but the man who is free from responsibility is free from something else, and that is an object-an interest."

"Well, I see your point of view, which of course has its merits, though I think you are wrong. Good night—I must rush home, or I won't get there in time for milking."

"Good night to you, old boy. You'd better stick to the job. I must wonder home myself now, as slowly as I can, finish whittling that stick, and mourn for the good old days when I had a job like yours."

To Sow Tiny Seed.

Before sowing tiny seed, such as poppy, lettuce or grass-seed, mix it thoroughly with cornmeal, sand, or some grainy material. This may be done in a bowl or pan, and the scattering of the mixture is a simple matter. It is especially important that these tiny seeds be evenly sown, yet it is a really difficult thing to do when there is a large plot to be covered.

Broodiness in Hens.

Three days is the time we usually take to change our hens from broody into laying hens. Our jail has a slatted bottom and the hen cannot warm it. She is right close to the scratching floor and sees other hens busy. She is provided with plenty of corn and water and eats and drinks, having nothing else to do. Result, she soon lays.—Agnes Hico.

8-Hour Rail Law in Spain.

The eight-hour law applies to all railway workers in Spain. Where contingencies require overtime the workers are paid a bonus of from 20 to 50 per cent.

Old Danish Stock.

The inhabitants of Jutland are believed to be the most genuine specimens of the old Danish stock.

To decorate our lawn last spring, my husband placed three large sewer tiles on end and filled these with earth. I sowed some nasturtiums for a border and in the centre some asters, and my husband, who was sowing some vetch in a field near by, put in some vetch seed, just to have it handy to show this plant to neighbors. The vetch grew splendidly, falling over in a thick mass of green that entirely covered the tiles, and from a distance gave the effect of a beautiful fern.—Mrs. E. Burke.

"Plant the seeds and use the hoe. Rainy be the weather. Growth is sure, though it be slow. And the harvest-time we'll know, If we work together. Cheerful heart and willing hand. They make plenty in the land, Working all together."

If corn fails, try a small patch of sunflowers for silage.

SPROUTED

The hen stood on the garden lot, Whence all but she had fled; And didn't leave a planted spot. In the early onion bed. With vim she worked both feet and legs, And the gardener said he "bets She was trying to find the kind of eggs."

On which the onion sets."

Cremation is the best way to dispose of dead, diseased fowls. If buried, dogs may dig them up, no matter how deeply they may be covered.

My remedy for a fowl that is gasping for breath is to dip its head in kerosene oil. Do it quickly. If after a reasonable time the fowl repeats the gasping, give it a second dip. I have never known this cure to fail.

Litter which is damp or filled full of droppings is a menace to poultry. It is a warning, too, that somebody's pocketbook is going to grow thin from want of eggs to sell. Put the two hints together and they point the way to a good house-cleaning.

Some of the grit that we get for our birds has not much grit to it, and so it does not help digestion as it should. The sharper the grit the better. Sharp grit aids in crushing and wearing the food into fine particles and really helps things, for digestion does not take place until the feed is soft and fine in the hen's gizzard.

Feather-plucking is a disgusting vice, and generally caused from lack of exercise. To prevent trouble from feather-plucking put a teaspoonful of Epsom salts in the drinking water for every twelve hens in the flock, and anoint the bare spots of the victims with a mixture of sulphur and vasoline, or bathe with quassia-bark solution.

Fleas in the hen-house were my annual summer trouble. I found that the box nests were the breeding places for them. The heat from the bodies of the laying hens evidently was a contributing factor. Frequent changing of the nesting material would reduce the number of these pests, and the use of tobacco dust would keep them under control. But I discovered a better way: I removed the bottom boards of the box nests, and in their

IN THE FACE OF DEATH

The nameless hero of the Grontoft, the radio operator of the Norwegian steamer who jettied with death as his ship sank in a mid-Atlantic hurricane this spring, has caused several millioners to ask themselves how much nerve they have and what their words and actions will be when it at last becomes evident to them that the fight is flickering.

"Well, the steward is making sandwiches for lifeboats. Looks like we were going on a picnic," wired the Grontoft operator in one of his jesting comments which were picked up by the Danish steamer "Ester". "We were sinking stern first," came the final message. "The boats are smashed. Can't hold out any longer. Where did I put my hat? Sorry we can't wait for you. Pressing business elsewhere."

During the great war it was frequently observed that the British soldiers were wont to die with stoic calm, that the emotional nature of the Frenchman often expressed itself, not unmanfully, in tears, and that the Americans in many cases were known to die with a laugh or a joke on their lips.

History shows many varieties of emotion during the last hour, and the bitter jest does not seem to be confined to any nationality.

Thomas Hood, the English poet, is said to have remarked that he was dying out of charity to the undertaker, expressing himself in a lowly pun. He referred to the undertaker as wishing to turn a lively Hood.

The scarf of the executioner was the scene of many bitter last-minute observations. "No, no; you can get them off more easily afterward. Make haste! Make haste!" said Louis Philippe Joseph to his executioner who attempted to pull off his long and handsome riding boots, which fitted tight to his legs.

"It is small, very small, indeed," said Anne Boleyn, clasping her neck. Robert Burns remained true to type till the end, expressing himself with blunt Scotch wit: "Don't let that awkward squad fire over my grave," he is reported as saying.

Lord Chesterfield's last words conformed properly to the social amenities which his life exalted. "Give Davy a chair," he said.

The maxim expressing the utility of earthly possessions, "Shrouds have no pockets," was recognized with frank regret by Rachel, the French actress. Fondly contemplating her jewels, she said, "And must I part with these so soon?"

While even the basest of monarchs usually commended their spirits to God when the hour of death approached, there were some who with their last breath gave voice to a regret or even a curse. "O shame! shame!" exclaimed unhappy Henry II. "I am a cursed king—a conquered king!"

Curse be the day on which I was born and cursed be the children that I leave behind me!"

Alexander Pope at the last uttered a good-natured paradox. A friend called to see him as he sat in a chair, dying; just after his physician, who had spoken encouragingly of his condition, had gone out. In answer to the friend's inquiry relative to his death, he said: "I am dying of a hundred good symptoms."

Hundreds of dying people, whose words have been recorded, have spoken of the pleasantness of death. "If I had the strength to hold a pen," said William Hunter, "I would write how easy and delightful it is to die."

"I feel the daisies growing over me," said the poet Keats.

Among the dying words most frequently quoted are those of William Sidney Porter (O. Henry), so typical of the man himself. When he was expiring in a New York hospital in 1910 he said to the nurse: "Turn up the lights. I don't want to go home in the dark," applying the words of the popular song which was then being whistled in the streets.

Housman, not unlike O. Henry, asked for more light, bidding his wife to open the window that he might see once more the magnificent scene of nature.

There is certainly nothing of irreverence in most of the bitter, laconic expressions of those who have "business elsewhere." It is of such stuff as well as prayers and humble confessions that the human drama is made. The courageous mariner who enters the greatest of mysteries with a stout heart and a smile on his lips is a worthy example for us all.

Goods Returned.

An American traveller was being shown over Warwick Castle.

An old guide explained eloquently, and at length, the beauty spots of the old ruins.

At last they came to a particularly fine old tower, the guide explained expressively, "goes back to William the Conqueror."

The American looked at it critically and carefully for a moment, and then asked:

"Goes back to William the Conqueror? Why, what's the matter with it? Ain't it satisfactory?"

About fourteen thousand persons visit the British Museum every year to see Magna Charta, our most popular national manuscript.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

When the Blood is Out of Order the Nerves Are Starved.

The nervous system is the governing system of the whole body, controlling the heart, lungs, digestion and brain; so it is not surprising that nervous disturbances cause acute distress. The first stages of nervous debility are noted by irritability and restlessness, in which the victims seem to be oppressed by their nerves. The matter requires immediate attention, for nothing but suitable treatment will prevent a breakdown. The victim, however, need not despair, for even severe nervous disorders may be relieved by improving the condition of the blood. It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood that this medicine has proved beneficial in nervous disorders. The nerves thrive on the better blood made by these pills; the appetite improves, indigestion is better, sleeplessness no longer troubles the nerve-shattered victim, and life generally takes on a cheerful aspect. The value of these pills in cases of this kind is shown by the experience of Mrs. John W. MacDonald, Cardigan, P.E.I., who says:—"I have much cause to be grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was suffering from nervous breakdown, and my condition gave alarm to both my friends and myself. I suffered almost continuously from nervous headaches, my appetite was poor, I hardly got any sleep, and in every way I was badly run down. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after I had taken them for a while there was a noticeable improvement in my condition. I continued using the pills until I had taken twelve boxes, when every symptom of the trouble was gone, and I have since enjoyed the best of health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Surnames and Their Origin

PENNIMAN.
Variation—Penman, Penman, Penman.
Main.
Racial Origin—Welsh.
Source—A locality.

Knowing how easily family names have developed from nicknames and occupations, one is tempted to believe that that of Penniman and its variations made their first appearance as surnames descriptive of an occupation, say that of the maker of pens.

While this origin is not an impossible one and, indeed, in some cases may be the true one, the medieval records and tax lists offer pretty good indications that it is a family name which has developed from a locality. Such a form as "Roger de Peneman" must not be read to mean "Roger the Penman," notwithstanding the fact that in certain criminal circles of our own day "Louie de Dip" would be more correctly rendered as "Louis the Pickpocket."

The "de" found in medieval English names is not the same as the "de" which is a dialectal variation of "the," nor yet the Dutch variation of the German "der," which, strangely enough, happens to correspond with it in both spelling and meaning. It was, of course, the French word for "of," which was nearly always used in descriptive surnames indicating localities. Pennman is a place name in Wales. Those who bear this family name are either Welsh in descent or else trace their ancestry to early Saxon or Norman settlers in Wales.

Such a clan or sept name as this would develop naturally from the surname of some chieftain, whether with some Danish blood in his veins or not, who might have been surnamed, according to the Danish-influenced dialect of the locality, "the cottager."

The Blind Side.

"I'm afraid, doctor, that religion doesn't mean anything to me," the boy said with embarrassment. "I'm reluctant to say it, for you've been kind to help me with this Greek I made a mess of last term; but I guess my attitude is a family tradition. Though my father never made light of religion, he said that it had served its purpose when people couldn't think for themselves, and he'd no more ridicule it than he would snub an old, tottering, gray-haired man who had outlived his usefulness. That's how father looked at it. He was bitter against some of the old doctrines—the Trinity, for instance, future punishment, and the idea that no one had a chance of being saved unless he was in the church. He said that those doctrines had made men narrow and intolerant and uncharitable. They've been laid on the shelf as curiosities—that's how he expressed it; and he said that a religion was headed the same way."

A smile showed on the minister's face, elderly face. "You've remarked that these rooms are pleasant and easy in the evening," he said, speaking slowly. "When you proposed reading Greek with me that morning over at Preston you didn't know where I lived, and you may remember that I gave you minute directions how to find the house. It was late when you got here the first evening; it was almost nine o'clock. Suppose I had instructed you to come up the street over across, through Mayhew's backyard and up against the blind side of the house; you'd have found a solid brick wall, four high windows and not a glimmer of light. That rear wall is an integral part of the building—the house wouldn't stand a minute without it—but it isn't a good side for a stranger to get in at."

"I've been wondering, Henry, whether you haven't approached religion on the blind side. So many people do just that; they accept all the mysteries of the Christian faith, all the hard, stern elements of God's moral government, and everything between the covers of the Bible that seems to make it an antiquated book. It never occurs to them to go round to the front entrance, where there's a porch lamp and such cozy lighted rooms as righteousness and goodness and love and hope and God's tender fatherhood. Those things aren't out of date; they never will be. If men should lay them on the shelf as mere curiosities, our old world would be headed for chaos."

"The blind side of religion is a part of it, exactly as the dark rear wall is a part of this house; but we've got to approach by way of the lighted rooms. That is God's invariable rule. He offers love as the royal interpreter of things that are hard to understand. We've got to be at home in the cozy, lighted rooms before we can appreciate the utility of the rear wall."

"The blind side," the boy spoke the words softly. "Yes, it might be." He looked up brightly. "Thank you, doctor, for giving me a new clue. Secretly I've wanted to find one for a long time."

SATISFIED MOTHERS

No other medicine gives the same satisfaction to mothers as Dr. Williams' Own Tablets. They are equally good for the newborn babe or the growing child and are absolutely guaranteed to be free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are a mild but thorough laxative and cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Achas, Colesburg, N.B., writes:—"I think that Baby's Own Tablets are a marvellous medicine for little ones. I gave them to my little girl with such good results that I now strongly recommend them to all mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Thankfulness.

If, when the evening shadows fall around me,
I can look deep within my heart and
I have been true unto the best within me,
Have tried to live just as I should to-day."

I can be glad, though failures press upon me
And doubt and grief oppress and weigh my soul,
And know that some time, though the way be weary,
I yet will reach a noble, worthwhile goal."

The Big Wheel Falls.

The "Grand Rue"—Big Wheel—or "Ferris Wheel," as Canadians know it, is no more a part of the Paris skyline.

The big wheel of Paris which has stood in the Champ de Mars for more than twenty-two years, sharing attention with the Eiffel tower as one of the happy sights of the French capital, was condemned in November, 1920, as unsafe and the work of demolition started. Before long, engineers found that tearing down the big circle was a greater engineering task than the erection of it in 1900 as one of the wonders of the Paris exposition.

The cars were first detached and sent to the devastated regions for homeless families. Next came the very dangerous operation of detaching great girders of steel weighing tons, and lowering them to the ground. As the structure had been erected with a comparatively delicate balance, it became impossible to continue the demolition except by intricate mathematical precision, which might be termed "balancing the balance." Pylike workmen, therefore, ascended with paraphernalia to cut off several thousand pounds here and several hundred pounds there, according to the instruction of experts. Little by little Paris has watched the great "roue" disappear. The sons and daughters of a hundred thousands of tourists who have already marvelled at or "gone up" on the big wheel will now find a more sombre Paris skyline than their fathers and mothers found.

The question is now, How many years before the Eiffel tower, rising nearly 1,000 feet, will be found unsafe and condemned to destruction? M. Eiffel, the famous engineer who constructed the lofty pile of structural steel, lived to see it perform valuable service during the war as an observation station and wireless post. He is still living to-day to announce that it is almost as sound and safe as the day it was completed and with proper repair from time to time, will continue so for decades.

The Eiffel tower—pays its way by admission charged visitors. Elevators are constantly climbing to the top with an average of 1,000 persons daily. To see Paris lying at his feet costs the tourist five francs.

BITS OF HUMOR FROM HERE & THERE

The Highest Form.

Teacher—"Now, Willie, in what does animal life reach its highest form?" Willie—"The giraffe, ma'am, I guess."

If Not Up, Down.

Tourist (in mining town)—"Is this a good healthy place to settle in?" Hotel-keeper—"It is, stranger. Fact is, ye can't get away from here alive unless ye do settle."

Can't Fool This Boarder.

Fisherman—"Don't you want to buy some fine crabs, sir? Look—they're all alive."
Summer Boarder—"Yes, but are they fresh?"

No Place to Stay.

(Little Helen breaks in on her newly engaged sister and her beau.)
Big Sister—"Why, Helen, haven't I told you to stay in the kitchen with Jessie till mamma comes home?"
Helen—"Yes, I know; but Jessie's sweetheart just now came, too!"

What the Reindeer Does.

The teacher had been giving an account of the reindeer, its habits, habits, and uses. One little urchin was not paying the slightest attention so the teacher asked him:

"Now, what is the use of the reindeer?"

"The startled urchin looked up, and said:

"It makes everything in the garden lovely, teacher."

Smart Boy.

"Here, boy," exclaimed the excited little man, as he rushed up to a page in a big hotel. "Run up to my room and see if my umbrella is there. Hurry now, because I've just got five minutes to catch a train."

Three minutes later the boy came tripping down the stairs.

"Yes, sir," he said, "it's there all right."

Matrimonial Shrinkage.

It was a well-known writer of verses, to whom a lady said: "I have just seen your wife for the first time since your marriage; but I had supposed she was a taller woman. She seems shorter than when I saw her last."

"Certainly," said the writer, solemnly. "She has married and settled down."

Against the Sergeant.

An Irish soldier was crossing a barrack square with a pail in which he was going to get some water. A sergeant passing at the time noticed that Pat had a very disreputable looking pair of trousers on, and, wishing to make a report, stopped the man and asked:

"Where are you going?"

"To get some water."

"What, in those trousers?"

"No, Sergeant, in the pail."

Short.

"Hair cut, please," said the customer, dropping into the barber's chair. He had that tired look that stamped him as an over-worked editor.

"I don't know, sir," began the barber, "whether you have heard the story about the man who—"

With a sudden attention to his job, he broke off and said:

"Like it short, sir?"

"Yes, please," answered the customer wearily. "A brief synopsis will do."

How He Remembered.

A man went into a cheap restaurant and asked for the menu. The waiter said:

"We ain't got no menu, boss, but I can rattle the grub list off for you out of my head, if you like."

"All right," said the man. "Let's have 'em."

So the waiter rattled off a list of dishes about three yards long. The man said in astonishment:

"You must employ a very remarkable memory-training system. How on earth can you remember all that?"

"Easy enough," said the waiter. "I just look at the tablecloth."

A New Sensation.

Little Alice had visited one of the larger summer amusement parks for the first time, and with the courage possessed only by those girls whose playmates are boys older than themselves, she had not hesitated, when invited, to take a ride on one of the "thrillers" that abound in such places.

To her mother, on her return from the park, she confided the emotions she had experienced as she swung round the curves of the "figure eight" with her elder brothers.

"Mother," she said, "when I went round those awful turns so fast I felt just as if I had freckles on my stomach!"

TOOK ALL HIS GRIT TO HOLD ONTO HIS JOB

Was Afraid to Eat, Grew Weak and Dizzy, But Tanlac Soon Ended His Troubles, Says Quebec Citizen.

"Tanlac has done me a world of good and I am a firm believer in it," said Narcisse Descombes, 79 Franklin, Quebec, Que.

"For over a year my stomach was badly out of order and I didn't relish a thing, in fact, I was almost afraid to eat, because I knew of the suffering that was sure to follow. At times I was so weak and dizzy I could hardly stand up and while I managed to hold on to my job, it took all my grit to do so. Indeed, I was almost a nervous and physical wreck."

"I took only a few bottles of Tanlac, but to-day I feel better, work better and sleep better than I have in years. It has just made a new man out of me."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Adv.

Flight of Pigeons.

Experiments have shown that pigeons are able to outstrip the fastest express trains, although on the average they fly at the rate of only thirty-four miles an hour. A French expert expresses the opinion that they can attain a velocity of more than seventy miles an hour. They are said to be unable to fly long distances in a perfectly straight line; apparently they are easily driven aside by shifting air currents.

HEAD COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Itched Badly. Baby Cried At Night. Cuticura Heals.

"My baby's head was covered with hard, red pimples. They itched so badly that she scratched them until they developed into sore eruptions. Her hair began to fall out, and at night she cried and kept me awake. I tried different remedies without relief until I started using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After one week's use I saw a great improvement, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. M. De Stefano, 76 French St., Bridgeport, Conn., May 11, 1921.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing the merit of this well-known medicine.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and a weakness and at times was obliged to stay in bed. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he couldn't understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."—Mrs. MARY SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

FORMER GLENCOE LAWYER ELEVATED TO BENCH

David A. McDonald, of Vancouver, who has been appointed to the bench of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, is a former Glencoe lawyer, practising for some years with J. C. Elliott, ex-M.P.P. Afterwards he was associated with the law firm of Meredith & Fisher, at London, going from there to Vancouver. Mr. McDonald enlisted for service in the Great War, and served at the front with more than average credit. He is a native of Ekfrid township, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. McDonald of Appleton. His wife is a daughter of the late James A. Younge, who was a prominent dry goods merchant at Glencoe.

In announcing the appointment the Vancouver Daily Province says: "Mr. McDonald received his early education at Glencoe high school, and before studying law he taught school for three years. He formerly practised in London, Ont., and in Port Hope, B.C. In Vancouver he was first a partner in the firm of Craig, Bourne & McDonald, but since 1913 the name of the firm has been Borne, McDonald & Desbrisay. Mr. McDonald is a man of the highest integrity and held in much esteem not only by his brother barristers but by the public at large. He served for three years overseas, being adjutant of the 10th Battalion Canadian Railway troops, under Major-General J. W. Stewart. He is a member of St. John's Presbyterian church, is married and has one child five years of age.

GLENCOE TENNIS CLUB

The Glencoe tennis club opened the season Monday evening with two double courts in use. A tournament of mixed doubles is being played and a ladder system of singles is to be started. Three nights a week, Monday, Tuesday and Friday, have been reserved for the playing of tournament games.

A special tournament is being arranged for May 24th, in which it is hoped that all members in town will take part. A tennis tea will probably be an attractive feature of the afternoon.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Imperiss, May 15.—An automobile driven by D. C. McIntyre, of Glencoe, collided with a steel girder at the south side of the Thames street bridge Sunday and overturned. The driver and two other occupants of the car escaped injury. Trouble with the wires caused the town to be in darkness, and McIntyre did not see the girder, which separates the road from the sidewalk. The injured ones, Miss Alice Flood and Jack Glover, both of London, suffered severe scalp injuries.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. ## 50,000 More Starving Russian Children have been allotted to the Save the Children Fund workers in the famine area about Saratov, by the All-British Committee.

At present, the generosity of the Canadian people has enabled the Canadian Committee of the Save the Children Fund to provide sufficient food for 75,000 children in Russia, who would otherwise have died from starvation.

Now that the Russian Relief Fund (including the British Red Cross), the Friends Relief Mission and the British and Canadian Save the Children Funds have been united under the direction of Sir Benjamin Robertson, more work is being undertaken and there is a corresponding increase in the demand for funds.

There is absolutely no hope that Russian children can be helped by Russia itself, until the harvest which comes at the end of August. So it is imperative that money and food continue to be sent through the Canadian and British Organizations right through the summer.

Will you give something?

25c. will feed a child for a week. $1. will ensure sufficient food for one child for a month. $500. will establish a kitchen in the famine district and feed 100 children until the next harvest.

Cheques and money orders may be forwarded through the local committee, your bank or sent direct to Sir George Burn, Treasurer, Save the Children Fund, Elgin Building, Ottawa.

All subscriptions are expended in Canada on Canadian Foodstuffs.

rounding. The music was all that could be desired and many are hoping that the "Happy Four" will come again.

The frame buildings on the corner of Main and Symes streets, formerly owned by Miss Riggs, are being moved by the purchaser, Mr. Lucas, who recently came to Glencoe from Middlemiss, to a lot in the McCracken survey, corner of Main street and Apple Road, to be converted into a dwelling house.

The annual meeting of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Tuncumseh District No. 5 was held at Glencoe on Wednesday of last week, when T. A. Craig, past grand of Glencoe lodge, was elected deputy grand master for the district. A number of members of the order from the defunct lodge at Alvinston were present and decided to amalgamate with the Glencoe lodge.

In Armprior when the auditors' report is published, the list of all the owners of dogs who paid their tax is incorporated. While this is a somewhat expensive method of giving information out to the public, it should be a pretty sure check that no dog owner has been overlooked. Many of us have often felt that very little over half the dogs of Glencoe are carrying a "tax paid" tag.

Miss Mary Fletcher, a former resident of Melbourne, died suddenly of acute indigestion at Detroit on Thursday morning, and the funeral took place from the residence of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Alex. Fletcher, at Melbourne, on Saturday afternoon. Miss Fletcher had been residing in Detroit for the past six years. She leaves one brother, Dr. Hugh Fletcher, of Cleveland.

Mrs. Holmes, formerly Miss Nellie Dymock, of Aldborough, died on Friday, May 12th, in Detroit, aged 47 years. The remains were brought to Glencoe on Monday afternoon, and a short service was conducted at the G. T. R. station by Rev. D. G. Paton of the Presbyterian church, after which interment was made at Oakland cemetery. Deceased was a sister of Robert Dymock, who resides south of Glencoe at the river.

The summer meetings of the West Middlesex Women's Institute will be held as follows: Delaware, town hall, Wednesday afternoon, May 17; Mt. Brydges, community hall, Thursday afternoon, May 18; Napier, town hall, Friday afternoon, May 19; Kerwood, home of Mrs. E. de Gex, Monday afternoon, May 22; Appleton, town hall, Monday afternoon, May 22; S. At a meeting held in the Anglican church on Friday evening with a view to taking steps for the organization of a Boy Scout troop in Glencoe, a committee was appointed representing the three churches, to arrange for a meeting to be held at which an organizer of the Boy Scouts would be present and give an address on the preliminaries necessary to be taken for organization. This committee is composed of Fred Gough of the Presbyterian church, C. G. Yorke of the Methodist church and Horace Lidington of the Anglican church. It was expected that an announcement of this meeting would be made this week, but this has been delayed until another issue.

Mother's Day was observed in the Methodist church on Sunday morning in a very attractive and pleasing manner. In the Sunday school there was a record attendance of 184, when Mr. Yorke, superintendent, gave a most entertaining and instructive address, and excellent musical numbers were given by the school. The regular church service in the auditorium was conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. J. Garbutt, whose address was especially good and in keeping with the occasion. A children's choir of 32 voices was a pleasing feature of the service, the special feature being a solo by Miss Ethel George, accompanied on the violin by Miss Carrie Smith. The floral decorations were profuse and arranged with fine taste.

The body of W. Ross Ellison, former principal of the Prince Edward public school at Windsor, was found in the Detroit river last Thursday evening. Mr. Ellison had been missing since November of last year, when his hat and coat were found on a Walkerville ferry boat. Prior to his disappearance Mr. Ellison had been ill for a number of months with nervous trouble. Funeral services were conducted at the residence of his widow by Rev. Dr. H. W. Crews, pastor of Central Methodist church, of which Mr. Ellison was a member. Among the pallbearers were principals of the Windsor schools and members of the board of education. Deceased leaves besides his widow two young girls. He was a brother of Mrs. A. H. Copeland, of Glencoe.

A dance given by the "Happy Four" orchestra at the town hall last Friday evening was an enjoyable function for many of the young people of Glencoe and community surrounding.

WHAT CAUSES SO MUCH SICKNESS

Constipation Responsible for 90% of Disease

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Contracts It

It is generally recognized among the medical profession that Constipation or Insufficient Action of The Bowels, produces more disease than any other one cause. Constipation is responsible for at least 90% of the disease in the world today—because Constipation is responsible for the Indigestion and Dyspepsia—the nervousness, Insomnia and Rheumatism—the Eczema and other skin troubles—the Headaches and Backaches.

Why is this? As you know, it is the duty of the bowels to carry off the waste matter in the system. If the bowel muscles are weak or the liver inactive, then this waste matter remains in the body and poisons the blood. As a result, every organ in the body is poisoned by this waste.

"Fruit-a-tives" has been wonderfully successful in relieving Stomach Troubles, Nervous Troubles, Liver Troubles, Kidney Troubles, Skin Troubles and Blood Troubles, because "Fruit-a-tives" positively and emphatically relieves Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Constipation, even though the trouble has been chronic for ten, fifteen and twenty years. Thousands of grateful users proclaim "Fruit-a-tives" the greatest remedy for Constipation that the world has ever known.

DUNLOP TIRES

Ensure HIGH-MILEAGE—DOUBLE-LIFE

- Q Dunlop leadership in Tiredom is most manifest. Mileage records almost unbelievable are piling up all over Canada.
- Q The Special Mileage-Making Process, which is the basis of our Fabric Tires, has worked wonders.
- Q Perfect shape and balance, stronger side walls to resist curb and rut abuse, special wear-resisting anti-skid tread, etc., add the last touch to popularizing to the full a tire that has long stood in high favor.
- Q Dunlop "Cords" made good from their inception.
- Q These tires taught motorists to expect more resiliency, greater air space, larger amount of material, better carrying capacity—in short, bigger mileage; and that is the standard by which all Cord Tires are judged to-day.

No Disappointments in Appointments

If You Use Long Distance

If you are a Salesman or a Buyer, why gamble valuable time and the cost of railroad fares that the party you wish to see will be in when you call on him?

The high cost of personal interviews is materially reduced and many more calls can be made per day if you make a definite appointment by Long Distance.

Avoiding disappointments by making appointments over Long Distance is one of the most profitable uses Salesmen can make of it. ALMY'S, a leading Montreal Department store, tell us their buyers always call up manufacturers before leaving town to call on them, to make sure their trip will not be in vain.

Station-to-Station rates reduce the cost of telephoning, and if you can telephone after 8:30 P.M.—to a man's home, perhaps—the evening rates are only about one-half the cost of day-time messages.

CHAPTER I.—(Cont'd.)

Dave led into the old ranch house, kicking the door wide open with his heel as he passed. A musty smell fell on the senses of the girl as she entered, and she was conscious of the buzzing of innumerable flies. A partition from east to west divided the house, and another partition from north to south divided the northern half. In the north-east room they set the stretcher on the floor.

"Now," said the boy, "I'm going for the doctor. It's forty miles to town, and it'll likely be mornin' before I'm back, but I'll sure burn the trail. You'll have to make the best of it," he continued, impersonally addressing the much-spotted window. "There's grub in the house, and you won't starve—that is, if you can cook." (This was evidently for Irene. There was a note in it that suggested the girl might have her limitations.) "Dig in to anything in sight. And I hope your father's leg won't hurt very much." Irene wondered afterwards why the hope concerning her father should have been expressed to her. Did he already feel—that was it?—better acquainted with her?

"Oh, I'll stand it," said Doctor Hardy, with some cheerfulness. "We medical men become accustomed to suffering—in other people. You are very kind. My daughter may remain in this room, I suppose? There is no one else?"

"No one but the old man," he answered. "He's asleep in the next room, safe till mornin'. I'll be back by that time. That's my bed," indicating a corner. "Make yourselves at home." He lunged through the door and they heard his spurs clanking across the hard earth.

The girl's first thought was to assure as much comfort for her father as the circumstances would permit. She removed his boot and stockings, and, under his direction, felt the leg of his trousers above the injury. It was bleeding a little. In the large room of the house she found a pail with water, and she bathed the wound, wiping it with her handkerchief, and mingling a few drops of the warm blood that dripped from it.

"You're good stuff," her father said, pinching the fingers of her unoccupied hand. "Now, if you could find a clean cloth to bandage it—"

She looked about the place, somewhat helplessly. Her expedition to the main part of the house, when she had found the water pail, had not reassured her as to the housekeeping of the Eldens. Her father read her perplexity.

"It seems as though you would be in charge here for a while, Reenie," he said, "so you will save time by getting acquainted at once with your equipment. Look the house over and see what you have to work with."

"Well, I can commence here," she answered. "This is Dave's room. I suppose I should say Mr. Elden's, but—what was it he said about 'mistering'? It would be splendid if it were cleaned up," she continued, with kindling enthusiasm. There were logs, here floors, here rafters—were gone back to essentials, anyway. And that's his bed." She surveyed a framework of spruce poles, on which lay an old straw mattress and some very grey blankets. "I suppose he is very tired when he goes to bed, even this, as though that could be the only explanation of sleep amid such surroundings. And the walls give one a clue to the artistic side of his nature." A poster advertising a summer fair, with a prodigious bull occupying the centre of the picture, hung on one wall, and across from it a lithograph of a young woman, with very bright clothing and very abashed of it, and—horrors—reveling in it. Then she looked again from the open window, this time with eyes that saw the vista of valley and woodland and foothill that stretched down into the opening prairie. Suddenly she realized that she was looking down upon a picture—one of Nature's obscure masterpieces—painted in brown and green and saffron against an opal canvas. It was beautiful, not with the majesty of the great mountains, nor the solemnity of the great plains, but with that nearer, more intimate relationship which is the peculiar property of the foothill country. Here was neither the flatness that, with a change of mood, could become in a moment desolation, nor the aloofness of eternal rocks towering into cold space, but the friendship of hills that could be climbed, and trees that lapped in the light wind, and water that bubbled playfully over gravel ridges gleaming in the August sunshine. The girl drew a great breath of the pure air and was about to dream a new day-dream when the voice of her father brought her to earth.

"Can't you find anything that will do for a bandage?" he asked. "Oh, your dear Daddykins," she replied, her voice tremulous with self-reproach. "I had forgotten. There was a spell, or something; it just came upon me in the window—that's a good idea, blaming one's negligence on a spell. I must remember that. But the bandage? Dear, no; the only cloth I see is the kitchen towel, and I can't recommend that. But what a goose I am! Our grips are in the car, or under it, or somewhere. I'll be back in a jiffy." And she was off at a sharp trot down the trail along which she had so recently come in Dave Elden's wagon.

At the little stream she paused. A single log was the only bridge, and although the water was not deep it ran swiftly, and still with the violence of its glacier source. She ventured along the log, but near the centre she slipped with an acute sense of her temerity. Perhaps she had been foolish in attempting this passage without the aid of a stick. A stick, which could be shoved against the gravel below that blue water, would have been a very practical aid. Suddenly, the wavering of the log was arrested, and she felt an impetuous desire to fall up-stream, which she resisted so successfully that she promptly fell down-stream. The water was deeper than it looked, and colder than it looked, and when she scrambled up the farther bank she was a very wet young woman indeed. She was conscious of a deep annoyance toward young Elden. A fine bridge, that! She would tell him—

But this thought died with a birth with the consciousness that Elden would be amused over the incident, and would be at little pains to disguise his merriment. And then she laughed, and ran along up the road. The grips were duly found, and Irene congratulated herself that she and her father were in the habit of traveling with equipment for over-night. She had even a spare skirt along, with which she was able to disguise her mishap at the stream, although she took the precaution not to make the change until she was safe back over the narrow bridge. And this time she used a stick. Arrived at the house, she deftly wrapped a bandage about her father's injury, and set to work at the preparation of supper—a task not strange to her, as her mother considered it correct that her daughter should have a working knowledge of kitchen affairs. Her equipment was meagre, and she spent more time scouring than cooking, but her heart beat high with the spirit of adventure.

Once, during the evening, she took a glance into the other room. It was even less inviting than Dave's, with walls bare of any adornment, save dirty garments that hung from nails driven in the logs. On the rude bed lay an old man; she could see only part of his face; a grey moustache drooping over an open mouth, and a faded cheek turned to the glow of the setting sun. On a chair beside the bed sat a bottle, and the room reeked with the smell of breath charged with alcohol. She gently closed the door, and busied herself through the long evening with reforms in the kitchen, and with little ministrations designed to relieve the sufferings of her father.

The sun sank behind the Rockies, and a darkness, soft and mystical and silent, stole up the valley, hushing even the wilderness day. Presently the glow of the rising moon burst in the ruddy effulgence over the foothills to the east, first with the effect of fire upon their crests, and then as a great, slowly-whitening ball soaring high into the fathomless heaven. The girl stood framed in the doorway, and the moonlight painted her face to the purest ivory, and toyed with the rich brown fastness of her hair, and gleamed from a single ornament at her throat. And she thought of the young horseman galloping to town, wondering if he had yet set out on his homeward journey, and the eerie depths of the valley communicated to her a fantastic admiration for his skill and bravery. She was under the spell. She was in a new world, where were manhood, and silence, and the realities of being; and moonlight, and great gulfs of shadow between the hills, and large, friendly stars, and soft breezes pushing this way and that without definite direction, and strange, quiet noises from out of the depths, and the intense of the evergreens, and a young horseman galloping into the night. And conversations had been swept away, and it was correct to live, and to live!

(To be continued.) Japanese Shipbuilding. At present there are fourteen Japanese shipbuilding establishments capable of constructing ocean-going merchant vessels as compared with fifty-three in 1918. Of these fourteen plants only nine are actually engaged in new building. The estimated output of Japanese yards for 1921 was forty ships of 130,000 gross tons. The maximum output was in 1919, when 136 ships of 821,513 tons were built.

Woman's Interests

Canning Times Comes 'Round Once More.

With the return of dandelion and other greens, rhubarb and small fruits, canning activities are resumed, although many housewives claim that they can food all the year 'round. Whatever plan may be pursued, now is the time to look over the supply of jars and other equipment, replacing or adding to one's canning conveniences and making ready for the season's work.

Jars can be sorted and fitted with lids, the wide-mouthed jars being set aside for the large fruits, pickles and for meat and poultry. Jars having a small opening should be used for greens, small fruits and for vegetables. Imperfect rubber rings should be discarded and a supply of new ones obtained. Paring knives should be sharpened, strainers, kettles, steamers and pressure cookers inspected and needed repairs attended to. A good supply of towels and holders is much to be desired, and the force-handled woman will provide herself with cover-all aprons and low-heeled comfortable shoes.

A screened porch where much of the preparation of fruit and vegetables can be done is highly desirable, as it enables the housewife to work out-of-doors in comfort, allows the space in the kitchen to be used to greater advantage and keeps all waste matter out-of-doors.

A successful method of canning rhubarb is to weigh the rhubarb, add sugar in the proportion of one pound of sugar to two pounds of rhubarb, place in a baking dish with a cover and bake until tender. Add no water. When tender, fill sterilized jars with the mixture. Place the jars in a hot water-bath, boil for five minutes and seal while hot.

In order to preserve the mineral salts and volatile oils, greens should be blanched in a steamer, not thrust into the boiling water. If a steamer is not to be had, a good substitute can be made by putting the greens in a colander which can be closely covered, and placing this over a kettle of boiling water.

The following greens are common: Swiss chard, kale, Chinese cabbage, leaves, upland cress, French endive, cabbage sprouts, turnip tops (young and tender), New Zealand spinach, asparagus, spinach, beet tops, cultivated dandelion, wild dandelion, dandelion sprouts (tender), mustard, lamb's-quarter, purslane, pokeweed and milkweed sprouts.

Can greens the day they are picked. Wash clean and remove all dry, decayed or diseased leaves. Place greens in a square of cheese-cloth, blanch (by steam) for 15 minutes, remove and plunge into cold water. Cut into convenient lengths, pack tightly in hot jars or tin cans, add sufficient hot water to fill the container, and season to taste. A few slices of boiled bacon or chopped dried beef improve the flavor. If using glass jars, place rubbers and tops in position and partially seal. If using tin cans, cap and seal completely. Sterilize for the length of time given below:

Water-bath, home-made or commercial ..... 2 hours
Water-seal, 214 deg. .... 1 1/2 hours
Pressure cooker, 5 lbs. pressure, 1 hr.
Pressure cooker, 10 lbs. pressure ..... 40 minutes

Strawberries are best made into jam or preserved, as they do not hold up well under canning. They lose color, too, and the berries become soft and unattractive. Canned by this recipe, however, strawberries will not rise to the top of the syrup. Use only fresh, ripe, firm, and sound berries. Hull and rinse the berries and add eight ounces of sugar and two table-spoonsful of water to each quart of berries. Boil slowly for 15 minutes in an enameled or acid-proof kettle. Allow the berries to cool and remain several hours (or overnight) in the covered kettle. Pack the cold berries in hot glass jars. Put the rubbers and caps of glass jars in position, not tight. Sterilize for the length of time given below:

Water-bath, home-made or commercial ..... 8 minutes
Water-seal, 214 deg. .... 6
5 pounds steam pressure ..... 6
Remove the jars; tighten the covers; invert the jars to cool, and test the joints. Wrap the jars with paper to prevent bleaching.

Strawberries may be combined with rhubarb in an excellent sauce, made thus: Three quarts of rhubarb, cut into small pieces; one quart of strawberries; two quarts of sugar. Mix the fruit with the sugar, and boil until the liquid forms a heavy syrup. Pour it into sterilized jars and seal immediately.

The Baby's Sleep.

The babies who grow into the healthiest men and women are those who have the proper amount of sleep. The sleep habit should be formed in early infancy. New-born babies should sleep twenty out of twenty-four hours. At six months they should sleep twelve at night without interruption, except, perhaps, for one evening feeding. At this age they will probably sleep two hours both morning and afternoon, but should not sleep after 3 o'clock, so that they may be ready to go to bed at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The long period of night sleeping should be kept up throughout childhood, but the day naps may be gradually shortened. At one year of age the baby may need one long and one short nap during the day. In the second year one nap is enough. This may be taken for an hour or two in the middle of the day. Even if the child does not sleep all this time, it is good for it to get the habit of resting in a quiet room.

The babies should, if possible, sleep by themselves. Not a few young babies have been smothered while lying in bed with an older person, some part of whose body was thrown over the baby's face during heavy sleep.

The room where baby sleeps should, if possible, be quiet and not too bright, though a baby should be taught to sleep through ordinary household noises. It should not be necessary to walk on tiptoe or to talk in whispers so as not to disturb it.

Making Surs.

One morning a negro sauntered into the office of a white friend. "Good mornin', Mr. Withrow. Kin I use yo' phone a minute?" he asked.

"Why, certainly, Sam."

Sam called his number, and after a few minutes' wait, "Is this Mrs. Whiteside? Well, I seen in de papeh where you-all wanted a good culled man. Is you still wantin' one? Then the man youse not is puttin' satisfaction, and you doesn't contemplate makin' no changes soon? All right, ma'am. Good-bye."

Mr. Withrow called to Sam as he left the phone. "Now that's too bad. Sam, that the place is filled."

"Oh, dat's all right, Mr. Withrow. I see de nigger what's got de job, but I see jest a wantin' to check up."

A woebegone-looking traveller reached the river-side, and approached the old boatman who operated the ferry across the pretty stream.

"Dad," he whined, "I'm broke, and I must get across the stream. Will you trust me for it?"

"Pore's only a penny, mister," said the old ferryman.

"I know it; but I haven't got a penny," replied the woebegone traveller.

The old ferryman placidly resumed his pipe.

"Mister," he declared, "if you ain't got a penny you won't be none the better off on the other side of the river than you are on this."

Land Ruined by Reckless Tree Cutting.

When by reckless tree-cutting the forest cover is removed from hills and mountains, nothing is left to hold the rain—no layer of living roots, mosses and other vegetable growths mixed with decaying leaves, to act as a sponge and retain the moisture. Thereafter, in consequence, the rainfall runs off in torrents, and the streams to which it should afford a regulated supply throughout the year are flooded in winter and dried up in summer. Incidentally the soil is washed away and the hillsides, once beautiful with fresh growing verdure, become so much barren desert.

In this way the water supply of great areas of country has been practically abolished. The forests of the hills and mountains are natural storage reservoirs. Destruction of these reservoirs means ruin to the farmers in the valleys.

To illustrate the idea, the United States Forest Service has constructed for exhibition a model showing water from two sprinklers falling upon two mounds of earth which represent hills. One mound is bare and the water (representing rain) runs off it as fast as it falls. The other is planted with growing vegetation, and the water that falls upon it from the sprinkler, far from doing any mischief, makes the plants grow, only the surplus being discharged gradually and regularly to supply a little stream in the miniature valley below.

During the war 500 ships were recovered from the sea by the Admiralty salvage section.

SIR ROSS SMITH LOVED HIS AIRPLANE

AS A THING ALIVE, WITH LUNGS, VOICE, POWER!

Interesting Light Thrown on Mental Attitude of Gallant British Aviator.

There was a gallant ship which set out on a voyage of 14,000 miles, for a prize of $50,000 and the honor of being the first man-carrying vessel to follow the highways of the air between England and Australia. The ship was the Vickers Vimy, a sister of the British airplane which flew the Atlantic last summer. Months ago the cables carried the story of how the four air adventurers had completed their journey halfway around the earth within the time set by the paper which offered the prize. The pilot for the expedition, Capt. Sir Ross Smith, who was killed just previous to starting from Crofton, England, on a trip around the world, wrote the story of the long cruise and it has been published, illustrated with photographs, under the title of "14,000 Miles Through the Air."

"Lyons-Rome," "Cairo to Bagdad," "In the Clouds Above Burma," "Siam to Singapore"—so run some of the chapter headings. The gallant pilot had more than a sporting interest in the flight, it may be gathered from many suggestive passages in his journal. He loved his machine. This tribute to it appears in the chapter which records the start of the flight: "The machine was flying stately and steady as a rock. All the bracing wires were tuned to a nicety; the dope on the huge planes glistened and glistened in the sunlight; I was filled with admiration. The engines, which were throttled down to about three-quarters of their possible speed, had settled down to their task and were purring away in perfect unison and harmony."

"A small machine is ideal for short flights, joy-riding the heavens, or sightseeing among the clouds; but there is something more majestic and stable about the big bombers which a pilot begins to love. An exquisite community grows up between machine and pilot; each, as it were, merges into the other. The machine is rudimentary and the pilot the intellectual force. The levers and controls are the nervous system of the machine, through which the will of the pilot may be expressed—and expressed to an infinitely fine degree. A flying-machine is something entirely apart from and above all other contrivances of man's ingenuity."

Almost a Living Thing.

"The airplane is the nearest thing to animate life that man has created. In the air a machine coaxes indeed to be a mere piece of mechanism; it becomes animate and is capable not only of primary guidance and control, but actually of expressing a pilot's temperament."

"The lungs of the machine, its engines, are again the crux of man's wisdom. Their marvellous reliability and great intricacy are almost as awesome as the human anatomy. When both engines are going well and synchronized to the same speed, the roar of the exhausts develops into one long-sustained rhythmic boom—boom—boom. It is a song of pleasant harmony to the pilot, a duet of contentment that sings of perfect firing in both engines and says that all is well."

"The melody of power boomed pleasantly in my ears, and my mind sought to probe the inscrutable future, as we swept over the coast of England at 90 miles per hour."

GENOA DEBATES END IN FAILURE SO FAR AS RUSSIA IS CONCERNED

Soviet Delegates' Reply to Powers is Considered Unsatisfactory—Question of Prolonging the Conference is Now Being Argued by Britain, France and Italy.

A despatch from Genoa says:—The entire month's work of the Genoa Conference was wiped out on Thursday when, after the powers had refused the demand of the men from Moscow for a billion-dollar loan, the Russian delegates sent a reply to the powers' conditions which makes it practically impossible to effect a financial and economic settlement with Russia at Genoa.

The Russian reply is not a flat "no," but it is a "90 per cent. no." The 10 per cent. "yes" consisted in a proposal that a commission of experts be named to review the Russian financial situation, and in a nervous proposal that the Russian delegation should nevertheless remain at Genoa to discuss other questions of the agenda, including the compact of non-aggression. Not one of the conditions imposed by the powers as the price of resuming commercial relations with Russia was accepted.

What turn the conference will now take cannot be told at present. Mr. Lloyd George is desperately hoping to make something out of the conference, and would continue it for the discussion of other than the Russian financial and economic problems. The Italians agree. The French, on the other hand, see no use going on, and declare they do not wish to treat political questions with Russia if Russia refuses to shoulder her obligations. As for Mr. Lloyd George's wish to go on toward the compact of non-aggression, the French quote the British Premier as saying that the non-aggression compact depended absolutely on a Russian settlement.

The French have asked Premier Poincaré for instructions. If he orders them home they will leave at once and expect at least five delegations to go with them. If he orders the delegation to stay, they will remain as long as Mr. Lloyd George wishes the conference to continue.

Will Attempt to Recover Lusitania Valuables

A despatch from Newport News, Va., says:—A little black steamer, Blakeley, pulled in her lines at municipal pier here and headed for the sea on the first leg of her run to the British Isles where, off Kinsale Head, she will attempt to recover gold, silver and jewels which went down with the ill-fated Lusitania seven years ago. At Philadelphia she will take on equipment, including what is said to be a special deep sea diving suit for use 40 fathoms below the surface.

This is a summary of the Russian reply:

1. Russia must have a loan.
2. She is willing to negotiate for compensation of confiscated private property, although not recognizing the principle.
3. She refuses to stop internal propaganda, but will abandon it in other countries where it is against the law.

A later despatch from Genoa says:—A truce while Russia's future and European frontiers are settled. A truce perhaps for six months while a Commission appointed by Genoa examines credits, debts and private property in Russia. A truce which everybody will sign and which will be a foot inside the door of Russia and prevent its being closed again.

This is the revivifying thought which has been worked out by Premier Lloyd George with the help of Foreign Minister Schanzer of Italy. It looks now as if the idea of a truce will go through and prevent what was feared might be a complete failure. For the Genoa conference is finished. It took some hours before this essential fact ran through all the delegations. Then Premier Lloyd George, with the necessary buoyancy, did what a member of the British delegation termed "making the corpse do a somersault." What he did was to place a new hope before the conference that a deadlock which would only grow worse before that body could be solved imperceptibly in a Commission.

The French announce officially that they will agree with the British and the Italians in whatever they suggest. It was reported earlier that they intended to object to the presence of the Russians on the Commissions. This would have meant an immediate break, but during the day it was reported that the French had received a telegram from Paris telling Vice-Premier Louis Barthou to finish on friendly terms with the British and the Italians.

POWERS TO REASSEMBLE AT THE HAGUE TO CHOOSE COMMISSION

Genoa, May 14.—Trying to build something up on the ruins of the Genoa Conference, Premier Lloyd George to-day succeeded in having the convening powers agree to a proposal for another attempt to reach an agreement with the Russian Government, to be begun at The Hague on June 15.

It will, therefore, be proposed to the Political Commission to-morrow by Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium that the Government represented at Genoa send delegates to The Hague next month to choose, by a panel, a commission of experts of the powers. For a period of ten days, that is, up to June 26, these experts would try to draft a common memorandum stating the attitude of the powers toward Russia.

This memorandum would then be submitted to the Governments of the powers and, if approved, a Russian committee of experts would meet the powers' commission of experts and negotiate up to October 26 in an effort to reach an agreement on the issues of Russian credits, debts and private property owned by foreigners in Russia. Should an agreement be reached, acceptance or rejection of its terms would be put up to the Governments.

All the powers here would pledge themselves to conclude no separate treaties with Russia up to October 26, nor support their nationals in any effort to obtain property or rights in Russia which were not theirs before the inauguration of the Soviet regime.

The action of the Governments upon the agreement, if reached at The Hague, would determine whether or not there would be another conference of the powers' statesmen.

It was also decided by the convening powers to make an effort to get the United States to co-operate in The Hague plan, and a draft of the plan was handed to Ambassador Child to take it to Washington, and ask what would be the attitude of the American Government toward the proposal.

The decision reached by the convening powers has the inconvenience of meeting the opposition of the Russians, whose acceptance, of course, is necessary to make it work. The proposal, not having been submitted to the Russians, they cannot yet refuse it but Mr. Tchitcherin said in an interview to-night that he did not think much of it. He made three points:

"In the first place," he said, "we protest against these decisions relative to Russia taken by statesmen without Russian participation. That has been, all along, the trouble with the Genoa Conference. In the second place, we resent five nations sitting down in Lloyd George's villa and deciding that the sovereign State of Russia shall not make any treaties for four or five months. In the third place, if the proposed commission is to be a sort of tribunal to pass judgment on Russia, we will have none of it."

FLOODS ALONG THE ASSINIBOINE RIVER

Families Obligated to Vacate Homes—Hay Land Under Water.

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—The floods in the Poplar Point and Reburn districts show no signs of abating, and the general opinion among farmers who have farmed for twenty years and more is that the peak of the flood will not be reached for some days. At any rate, they believe, not for four days after a definite decline is found at Brandon as it takes the flood waters 96 hours to travel that distance.

For six miles south of the Canadian Pacific Railway main line east of Reburn a huge lake stretches south for four miles to the Assiniboine River on the south. On the north side the water is rapidly covering the land as it finds an outlet through culverts.

No estimate of the damage to seed-lands is available, nor is any estimate of the acreage affected. A large portion of the flooded land is used extensively for hay and will benefit from the soaking. One report gives the flooded area as twenty square miles at Reburn.

The flood still has not reached the high water mark set either in 1902 or 1882. It was more than a foot higher then. Land marks are still visible which were completely under at the time of the former floods. Several farmers expressed the opinion that the river still had "a foot to go" before the peak.

No loss of life has as yet been reported, but many families in the Reburn and Irberville districts have been forced to vacate their homes. Marquette is sheltering about a dozen families from Reburn.

Hundreds of head of cattle, driven to the hill lands, may starve, as hay and feed have been swept away and there is little grass on the ridges.

PRINCE OF WALES ARRIVES AT MANILA

Philippine Government Welcomes
Heir to British Throne.

Manila, May 14.—The Prince is said to be the first heir to the throne of a world power to visit the Philippines.

When the Renown, which was escorted into the harbor by United States destroyers, dropped anchor, the national salute of 21 guns was fired and Governor-General Leonard Wood made an official call on the Prince aboard the cruiser. Later the Prince disembarked, and was received by Vice-Governor Gilmore on behalf of the Philippine Government. Thousands cheered the Prince as he drove through the city.

New Plane's Speed 100 Miles Per Hour

A despatch from Paris says:—The world's greatest biplane has just finished its final tests in the aerodrome at Orly and soon will commence trans-European flights. Probably it will be used in a new attempt to cross the Atlantic late this summer. It is a Farman construction, with four propellers and four 400 horse-power motors. The wing spread is more than 100 feet.

According to Aviator Bousset, its pilot, it will maintain a speed of 100 miles an hour while carrying twenty passengers and baggage—a total load in excess of seven tons.

ARMENIANS AND GREEKS OF PONTUS SUFFERING FROM TURKISH CRUELITIES

A despatch from Constantinople says:—News of the ill usage of Armenians in the neighborhood of Pontus, Asia Minor has reached the United States Commissioner here. A member of the Near East Relief Committee, working in the neighborhood of Pontus, reports that during the atrocities against Christian residents, several Armenians suffered at the hands of the Turks. Especially roughly treated was a Dr. Owen of Washington, Director of Relief at Charpout; Dr. Markward, of New York; Dr. Ruth, of Boston, and Miss Charley, Manager of the Orphanage at Charpout. After roughly using the Armenians, the Turks expelled them from Charpout. The report confirms the news that the Turks have reduced the Armenians and Greeks of Pontus to slavery, many being deported and dying by the way. The Greeks state that 2,000 Greeks and Armenians have died at Charpout alone and that 3,000 are perishing while being deported by the Turks, their bodies lying unburied at the roadside. The Turks kill the men and seize the women and girls. Others are being cast into prison, so that the Turks may make money by extorting a ransom from the parents. The Turks have openly declared their intention of exterminating the Christians of Asia Minor; the Greeks also state that the American buildings have been seized and that their hospital at Charpout has been closed, but it is impossible to confirm this information.

HUTTERITE COLONY SUFFERS IN FLOOD

Thrifty Settlement Cut Off
From Other Districts.

Winnipeg, May 14.—Disaster overtook the colony of Hutterites 15 miles west of here on Saturday night when the temporary dike constructed by them to stem the encroaching flood of the Assiniboine River went out during the hours of darkness, allowing the water to cover about 1,000 acres of wheat-sown land immediately to the south, threatening thousands of other acres of low-lying spots, and cutting off the colony from easy access to other districts.

Day after day and night after night the colony had fought the flood, only to have their efforts go for naught. Should the river rise any more, only superhuman exertions will be able to save the results of months of toil from complete ruin. The flood situation for miles along the south side of the river is serious, but the consequences would have been more serious if a large quantity of water had not made its escape to the prairies north of the river.

Brandon, Man., May 14.—The flood situation is improving here. The water has dropped from the high mark about a foot. First street is now passable, and Eighteenth street is almost clear.

A Patriotic Innovation.

The biggest thing that has happened in university circles for some time was the creation last week of the School of Postgraduate Studies at the University of Toronto. It is a regrettable fact that each year graduates of Canadian Universities have gone to the United States to secure more advanced education than was obtainable in this Dominion and that many of these brightest of young men and women have not returned to Canada but have remained in positions of various kinds across the border. This has been a serious loss to this country. Now, with the establishment of the new School at Ontario's Provincial University, no student need leave his native land for more education. Graduates of Universities in Western and Eastern Canada will be encouraged to pursue their postgraduate studies in Toronto, and Canada will be able to keep her intellectual giants at home. Nor will the new school interfere with the work of any other university. Relatively little postgraduate work is attempted in Western or Eastern Universities in Canada and these institutions will, no doubt, encourage their graduates to utilize the postgraduate facilities offered at the University of Toronto.

Soviet Telegraph and Postal Rate Schedule

A despatch from London says:—The new Soviet postal and telegraph rate schedule has been announced as follows: For a postal within the city, 20,000 rubles; a letter in the city, 30,000; in Russia, 50,000; registered letters, 100,000, and telegrams 50,000 rubles a word.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR CROPS IN WEST

Alberta Farmers Rejoicing
Over Abundant Supply of Moisture.

Calgary, May 14.—Old-time farmers of Alberta have never been more sanguine of a good crop than they are this year. Generally speaking, these men, who in the majority of cases have gone "through the mill" from the pioneer stage, are not given to throwing needless words away as to prospects.

At Letham, just east of Bassano on the Canadian Pacific main line, on Wednesday there was an occasion when farmers from a radius of more than 80 miles met and opportunity was taken by the writer of sizing up their opinion of crop prospects in that section of the province. Each one had practically the same story to tell; that since 1915 had there been such abundant moisture, that this was ample to carry the crops well into June, and that with rain during that month Alberta would most assuredly come into its own again.

The great outstanding fact is that there is more moisture in the soil than has been known for years. And here lies the optimism of the farmers of that section of Alberta at this particular juncture. It is not unreasonable optimism, but sheer confidence of a big crop this year.

King George Cables Canada From Vimy

A despatch from Ottawa says:—From Vimy Ridge on Friday came the following message from King George, addressed to his Excellency, Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada:

"I have just spent the night at Vimy. My thoughts were with you. Your Majesty's extremely kind message most deeply appreciated by the people of Canada and myself," is the cabled reply sent by Lord Byng to King George.

U.S. SEEKS TO ENTER GENOA CONFERENCE

Americans Ask for a Member on Russian Commission.

A despatch from Genoa says:—The United States is injecting itself into the Russian muddle at the conference. The move is veiled in official secrecy but the correspondent is in a position to state that Premier Lloyd George has received from influential Americans a proposal that an American be put on a commission to go to Russia to superintend the giving of credits, capital and concessions.

In effect this means that the United States has entered the conference just as the failure to find a general solution of the Russian problem here seems inevitable.

Back of this proposal is the fear that Russia is going to make separate agreements once Genoa is off the boards.

The Russians are not convinced of Premier Lloyd George's true position. They held a conference about this at Rapallo on Friday night. All this is but an indication of the confusion which can be seen through the half-open door which the Russians have left in their memorandum. The United States' proposal contains four clauses, the most significant of which is the agreement among the powers here that no separate treaties with Russia will be signed.

Translating Shakespeare's Works Into Siamese

A despatch from London says:—Among the outspoken admirers of Shakespeare inspired by the recent anniversary celebrations at Stratford is the King of Siam who, according to a letter written by his secretary and received by Sir Sydney Lee, chairman of the trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace, is translating Shakespeare's works into Siamese.

Buri Navarath, the secretary, sent in behalf of the King a cheque for $500 as a personal contribution to the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust and $250 for the memorial theatre fund. He says that his Majesty is an ardent admirer of the British national poet and is doing his utmost to induce the Siamese to study him.

Bath and Violet Rays Cures Insomnia

A despatch from Paris says:—There is a boon to the insomnia stricken business man in the advice of Dr. Livet of the Paris Faculty of Medicine, who announced this week that in lieu of narcotics that is needed is a lukewarm bath every night, followed by the application of subdued blue and violet rays.

Experiments have shown, he says, that deep slumber is induced, even in the worst cases, within half an hour. Dr. Livet insists that subdued light in a bedroom is a better guaranty of rest than total darkness.

Chinese Flying School Opened at Esquimault

A despatch from Victoria, B.C., says:—Headed by a group of Chinese of British nationality, mainly of the younger set, a Chinese flying school is to be opened in Esquimault. The first machine, a Curtiss, with pontoons, is to be ready for service on May 25.

The object of the flying school, which will follow one in operation in Kamloops, for the last two years, is to train pilots for aviation, so these men, when trained, may return to China to carry on the flying services of that land.

Some persons seem to think that life is a moving stairway: that all a man has to do is to step aboard and be carried to the top.

It looks as if there would be no old boys' celebration this year and a great many people are disappointed. If anything of the kind is contemplated, the local old boys will need to get busy soon and lay plans for the best one yet.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very serviceable medicine for children in regulating the infantile system and maintaining it in a healthy condition. There is nothing in their composition that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be given to children in the full assurance that they will utterly destroy all worms.

MELBOURNE

Mrs. Wm. Teeple, nee Miss Carrie Tanner, passed away at her home here early Friday morning. She was 52 years of age and leaves a husband and two daughters. The funeral took place on Monday, with interment at her old home, Arkon.

The Young People's Society of the Presbyterian church held a social evening in honor of Mr. Walker, teller of the Union Bank here, who has been moved to Toronto. The young people presented him with a pair of gold cuff links. The presentation was made by Miss Anna McGugan, and the address was read by Arthur Elder. Refreshments were served. The members of the Methodist church held their annual banquet on Friday evening, with a good attendance. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Brown, acted as chairman and J. E. Cornille was toastmaster. Reports for the year were given from the different departments, showing splendid work done during the year.

Mother's Day was observed in both the Methodist and Presbyterian churches on Sunday morning. In the Methodist church the pastor, Dr. Brown, had charge, the choir doing their part as usual. Clarence Beattie, Laura Collier, Ronald Lewis and Jennie Robinson took part in the service in a way that was not only a credit to themselves but to the school and their parents. Two of the members of the school united with the church. At the Presbyterian church Rev. Mr. Rose, of Delaware, took charge of the service. The children formed a choir and furnished suitable music. Miss Stella Long and Miss Mildred Campbell sang a duet. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers.

The evening service was a union service as usual and was held in the Presbyterian church. Rev. Mr. Rose preached an excellent sermon to the large gathering. The choir, assisted by Mrs. Sparham, who sang a solo, added greatly to the services.

Miss Constance Howell has accepted a position in an office at Dunnville.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.
