POISON IN THE COFFEE-POT. New Haven, Conn., April 27 .- A sensation in the trial of Mrs. William Rathbun, for the murder of her husband, was the production by Coroner Mix of his stenographic notes of the story told by Mrs. Rathbun to him, in which there was a confession that her husband told her to buy the poison, and that he said, laughingly: "It is a good chance to get Johnnie out of the way." The state authorities do not place credence in her statement placing the blame on the dead man. and are trying to show that Mrs.Rathbun put arsenic in coffee with the intention of killing John F. Owellers at St. Clair Flats Can Go as They Please-Remarkable Effect of the Ice Jam.

[Detroit News Correspondence.] St. Clair Flats, Mich., April 24.—This has been the most remarkable spring in the memory of the oldest resident. The water is the lowest ever known here. There is from 100 to 300 feet of dry ground in front of the cot-tages on the river front, where there is usually one to five and six feet of water in the summer time.

The bays are nearly empty. What little water there is in them is slowly drying up, and they are now higher than the water level of the river. People are walking all over the Flats. Boats are not needed at present. People are bringing out their bi-cycles and riding on the hard white

One can walk from the Old Club to Grande Pointe on the beach, excepting the big dredge cuts. TUNNEL TO THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

Company is All Ready to Begin When Allowed by Parliament.

The bringing of the Isle of Wight into closer communication with the mainland by the construction of a submarine tunnel has been proposed. The idea is by no means an original one, since it was first suggested over fifteen years ago. The scheme, at that time, was to construct a tunnel beneath the Solent, from of Wight. It was, however, abandoned, principally owing to the many engineering difficulties that would have been encountered, the most serious of which was the provision of a suitable approach to the tunnel at Cowes, owing to the abrupt descent which the shore makes into the water.

The present idea, however, is to penetrate the bed of the Solent near Hurst castle, and to emerge upon the island at Totland Bay, near the Needles. The channel at this point is two miles in width, and the preliminary surveys have revealed the fact that the soil through which the tunnel will extend is favorable to the rapid completion of the work, so that no unusual engineering difficulties will be experienced.

The enterprise is well supported financially, and the application for the ties will be experienced.

The enterprise is well supported financially, and the application for the necessary powers will be made during the coming parliamentary session. It is estimated that the total cost of the project will amount to $3,750.000, and it can be completed within two and one-half years.

The first section of the tunnel will The first section of the tunnel will be constructed of circular iron plates, similar to the Central London Electric Railway, only of larger dimensions. When the tunnel has penetrated well beneath the sea bed it will be constructed of brick. The total length of the tunnel and necessary approaches is to be seven miles, and the line will be continued inland to Freshwater, where a junction will be formed with the insular railway system. railway system.

NEW USE FOR HABEAS CORPUS. "One of the most amusing men who ever sat on the bench in a district court," said G. J. Stedman, of Washington, to a writer in the New York Tribune, "was Judge Carter. It was not only the apt and pertinent remarks that fell from the bench that alone made the proceedings before him amusing, but the spirit of fun in the judge seemed as well to communicate itself to the learned counsel who appeared before him. "In his court many were the witty sayings and epigrams that were spoken, and so famous did his dingy court room become that is was always crowded when Judge Carter was to preside. When Davidge and Merrick were the leaders of the district bar they were rivals, and neither missed a chance to get in a dig at the other. A case was being tried before Judge Carter, and, as was not unusual in

No Surgical Operation, No Pain, Trifling Expense A Simple, Harmless Rem-edy, But It Does the Work.

There are some people who have piles as regularly and frequently as other people have colds. Any little bowel trouble will bring them on, any extra exertion, as in lifting, will produce them, and in fact will often appear without any apparent provocation. Piles, however, is much more serious than a cold, as the tendency is always to grow worse until the trouble be comes deep seated and chronic, or de-velops into some fatal rectal disease. While there are many pile remedies which give relief, yet there is but one which not only gives instant relief but at the same time makes a permanent cure, and that is the well-known Pyr-

This remedy is composed of simple, harmless vegetable ingredients, but combine so, effectively and act so promply and thoroughly that it cures every form of piles, whether itching, blind, bleeding or protruding. In long-standing cases the Pyramid Pile Cure has proved to be the only certain cure except a surgical operation, and its advantages over an operation are many, as it is painless, causes no delay or interference with daily occupation and, last but not least, is cheaper than any surgical operation could possibly be, costing 50 cents a package at any drug store. The cases that the Pyramid Pile Cure will not reach are so few that physicians are doing away with operations for piles and depending on this cheap but effective remedy to accomplish a complete cure, and it never disappoints except in cases beyond the reach of medical skill. The Pyramid Pile Cure is prepared by the Pyramid Drug Company, of Marshall, Mich., and is for sale by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. A thorough examination of the affairs of the Bank of British Columbia was made by the officials of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and this proving entirely satisfactory, the amalgamation was finally completed on the 2nd of January. It has 62 branches throughout Canada; five branches in the United States, namely, at New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland (Oregon), Skaguay (Alaska), and one in London, England; 68 establishments in all. The acquisition of the London office is an important step in the progress of the bank. The bank's transactions in sterling exchange in the United States and Canada each year amounts to many millions of pounds, and the ability to handle this business through the bank's own London office will result in an important addition to the earning power of the bank. The Boxers who are reported active in these districts are composed of the worst characters in the province. WORK OF A MOUSE again." There was no doubt that in 1891 no less than 75,000 French-Canadians were not counted in the census, as shown by one of the Conservative leaders of the senate in the debate of 1892 or 1893, because of their temporary absence. All he contended for was that every French-Canadian who was entitled to be included in the census should be enumerated, and not one would be counted because of the circular that ought not to be. ANOTHER REGIMENT.

Ottawa, April 27.—The militia department has received a cable from the colonial office asking that Major Merritt's offer to raise a regiment of 600 men for service in South Africa be kept open until the end of the month. From this it is inferred that the imrial authorities are still considering the offer, and there is yet a possibility of it being accepted. This belief is borne out by the fact that the colonial office has forwarded a plan of organization for the proposed regi-ment, which it has received from the

Mr. Fisher replied that in the settled portions of the Dominion it was practi-cally completed, but in the unorganized sections it was not so far advanced. As to the work of preparing the returns, Mr. Fisher stated that the department has already received eight times as many returns as were received in the whole month of April in 1891. It was only fair to state that there were two and a half times as many enumerators employed as in 1891. The work of calculating the population was the first undertaken in the department, and would be pushed as rapidly as possible, but it would be some time yet before any definite information! could be given. Mr. Barker also called attention to the circular issued by Mr. Thomas Cote to the cures of the parishes of Quebec, which was marked confidential, and which pointed out the importance of having every citizen of Canada counted, as if the whole fate of the Province of Quebec depended upon this being done. The circular also asked the cures to make a return to Mr. Cote of the name, occupation, age, etc., of those who had gone to the United States within a year, together

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier assured the house there was no desire to have in the census anything but the truth, but if they were to have an accurate, exact statement of the population, French, English and every other race, should be properly enumerated. He belonged to the race which was in the minority in this country, which, from the fact that they were ceded to England in the eighteenth century, have lived isolated for a long time among themselves, and who only since the union of the two Canadas have come to share in the national life of Canada. When the census was first introduced among them it was looked upon with susplicion, and from time to time they had improved greatly, and have been reconciled to the idea that the statutory census meant no harm to anybody, but was simply taken in order to have accurate information in relation to the population. Perhaps all the prejudices which at one time existed have not been altogether removed, and there is one class of the population with which it has been difficult to remove this prejudice. In order to have the census fairly and accurately taken it was determined to ask the assistance of the cure, who, with two wardens of the parish, every year, in the month of January, takes a census of the parish, and who, therefore, is thoroughly acquainted with the movement of all the parishioners, and how long they have been absent. That was the reason the circular was issued, simply to obtain the information. It would, he added, have been better if the circular had been signed by Mr. Blue instead of Mr. Cote, because it would have removed altogether than the real object. Mr. Clarke would, he thought, agree with him that there was not the same necessity for the circular among the English-speaking population, and that in the English-speaking districts the enumerator would be able to obtain all the information of serving any other purpose except to obtain accurate information. ing all around, box-pleated, lace on top, muslin ties..... Just as we have been telling Mr. Borden, Hon. Clarke Wallace, Mr. Maclean, and the other leaders of the Conservative party, who have been bewailing the failure of the British Government to "aim at protection by a

It is the British public that needs to be educated," as the London Daily News shows, and if Mr. Borden and Mr. Clarke Wallace think they are equal to the task, and can talk down the expressed convictions of such men as Lord Salisbury and Sir Michael high schools. Hicks-Beach on the one hand, and Lord Rosebery, John Morley and Sir William Vernon Harcourt, there is no reason why they should not enter the field. But to ask us in Canada not to grant a preference to British goods until such time as Great Britain, in a measure, agrees to tax a portion of her importation of breadstuffs, and revolutionizes her trade policy, is to ask us to wait for what appears very like the Greek Kalends.

It pays our Government, representing the people of Canada, to establish a preferential tariff for British goods, and not to huckster for terms. The late Government undertook to do that and achieved nothing. These are the days when men and nations move fast, and Canada has led the way in a new departure, under the Government But strong we bend the sturdy oar toward of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that is fraught with much importance in the consolidation of the Empire, and that has obtained for her many and great benefits that are but precursors of benefits yet to come.

If the Opposition leaders think they can achieve more—and we do not believe that they do so think, but they must grumble; it is their trade-they should adopt our advice, let Parliament get through with its work soon, and let them spend three months endeavoring to convince Lord Salisbury, Lord Rosebery and their shrewd fellow-Britishers that they are all wrong, and that they ought to turn a handspring at the dictation of Canada. They will not take this course, because long before next session Parliament would be summoned we would have the weary aggregation of Wandering Willies (including he of East York, if he were uncautious enough to be coaxed into the mission) returning home and secretly, if not openly, declaring that the jig was up, and that these British statesmen, whatever other shortcomings they had, did not lack political sagacity, and that they could not be coerced by threats from Canadians into taking a position that their own good sense of present British needs did not dictate.

French and English.

The relations of these two peoples to each other must always be of great interest to themselves and others; they are so near to each other, and yet in some senses so far away; in peace they minister to each other's life, and a war between them, at this stage of the world's history, would be a calamity to both. August Breale, a well-informed Frenchman, writing in The Contemporary for January, discusses in an entertaining and instructive manner the relations of the two peoples. He looks upon their distrust or aversion for each other as proceeding largely from ignorance. "The Frenchman's ignorance of the English can always be compared with the Englishman's ignorance of the French. He says: "The best way for an Englishman who blindness of the leaders of men."

such a war would be banished. "The man who in former time would have predicted the union of the various provinces of France would have been considered utopian; and the difference was greater then between a native of Calais and a native of Toulouse than it is today between a citizen of Havre and a citizen of Southampton. It depends on the peoples to recognize that they must not hate, but that, on the contrary, they will be ready to love as soon as they shall know something more of one another than a few ad-

Few Minutes Wi' the Scotch.

In another part of this issue will be found the first of "A Few Minutes Wi' the Scotch," prepared by the Rev. Wm. Wye Smith, now of Brantford. Mr. Smith is quite an expert on all Scotch. His "Matthew" was published in 1898, while the "New Testament in Broad Scotch" is just about to issue from the presses of Gardiner, of Paisley, Scotland. Mr. Smith, we may mention, was Scotch expert of the Standard Dictionary. Old-time readers of The Advertiser will remember many contributions from his pen in these columns in years past. Mr. Smith is also a poet of no mean merit. One poem that has been very popular was published in The Advertiser some years ago, "The Canadians on the Nile." which we now reproduce. The prophecy in the last stanza has been wonderfully fulfilled in the Canadian contingent in South Africa last year. We understand the Education Office in Toronto has asked permission of Mr. Smith to reproduce this poem in the new reader now in preparation for the

"Who but a Grit ever said that a country could be run on a free trade basis?" asks an Opposition contemporary, and having once more set up the bogey, it takes a tilt at it. Our complaint has never been that anyone wanted the impossible to be undertaken in Canada, but that the Conservative party leaders so represented their Liberal opponents. The contention that the Liberal party ever declared for "abstract" free trade, or that it promised to establish it if put in power, we have again and again proved to be false. But still we see the old untruth made to do duty, under some new guise, almost as frequently as the moon changes. It is as well to be honest about these matters, for the country found out the Opposition, when it attempted to ride into power, under such an unfounded cry, with Sir Charles Tupper at its head, and we venture the belief that a continuance of the same tactics will not help Mr. Borden's chances.

PARAGRAPHS ABOUT PEOPLE.

A. R. CREELMAN, K. C. The Canadian Pacific Railway adopts the policy of securing the best ability possible for the conduct of its affairs, and of being willing to make it worth the while for men of ability to enter its service. This is illustrated once more by the appointment, as its Chief Solicitor, of Mr. A. R. Creelman, K.C., who, with his family, will shortly remove from Toronto to Montreal. Mr. Creelman was born at Richibucto, N. S., Sept. 21, 1849, and received his early education in the province by the ounding sea. Leaving New Brunswick n 1870, he came to Ontario, and began studying law in the office of the late C. Gamon, of Collingwood. He went to Poronto in 1873, and entered as a student in the office of Crooks. Kingsmill Cattanach, with whom he remained during the balance of his term as a student, and in whose offices he was managing clerk for about a year. He was called to the Ontario bar in 1876, and in May, 1877, took part in the formation of the firm of McCarthy, Hoskin & Creelman, his partners being the late D'Alton McCarthy, Q. C., and Dr. Hos-Kin, K.C. In 1882 the late B. B. Osler, Q.C., joined the firm, which since ther continued under the name of McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Creelman, Mr. Creelman was appointed a Q. C. in 1889. His duties as a lawyer have for many years been chiefly consultation work, principally for banks, loan and insurance companies, municipal corporations, and railway companies, and ever since the formation of the firm he has been its business manager.

Fond of athletics, as one would judge from his quick, alert walk, he has many a time and oft wielded an effective cricket bat, and was for years president of the golf club of Toronto.

Denominationally he is a Presbyterian. It is hardly necessary to say the same is true of his wife, seeing that Mrs. Creelman, the admired center of a devoted circle of friends, is the daughter of a former eminent Presbyterian divine, the late Rev. John Jennings, D.D., of Toronto.

Mr. Creelman is a man of marked quickness of intellectual perception. with notable capacity for hard work, Pull, pull, pull, as we track the batteaux and unusual powers of organization. He is one of those men the journals of whose minds seem to work easily, without heat or friction. No man could have been better appreciated by his colleagues than was Mr. Creelman by the late D'Alton McCarthy, K.C., and the late B. B. Osler, K.C., with whom the tie was more than profes-

The position Mr. Creelman has accepted is one of great importance and ample emolument. Mr. Creelman and the Canadian Pacific Railway are equally to be congratulated.

Tolstoi's Appeal.

Count Tolstoi, who has been bar ished from Russia, has made an appeal to the Czar, which speaks right to the point, as the following excerpt shows: "Again we see murders, again street slaughters, again executions. again, on the one hand, the terror of false accusations, threats, and spite, and again hatred, the desire for vengeance, and the readiness for self-sacrifice on the other. Thus all Russians are divided into two conflicting camps, and are committing, or preparing to commit, the greatest crimes." Even supposing it possible to quell this sad state of affairs, Tolstoi warns the Czar that they will continue to spread in a concealed form. He does not attribute blame to the populace. "The blame." he declares, addressing the Czar, "does not lie with evil, turbulent men, but in you rulers, who will not regard anything at the present moment save your own comfort. The problem lies not in defending yourselves against enemies who wish you harm. No one wishes you harm; but if, in recognizing the cause of social discontent and removing it, men are at present disturbed and seem to wish you harm, it is only because you appear to them as an obstacle, depriving them and also millions of their brothers of the greatest human good. freedom and enlightenment"

The atmosphere of freedom conduces to national and racial development as no other circumstances can. The Russians have never enjoyed that full measure of freedom which has become associated with our ideas of British liberty. It is scarcely more than half a century since serfdom was abolished, a system which put the peasant upon nearly the same level as the slave. And even today, under from its resources so many millions, what is known as the Russian mir. the peasant is practically in bondage to the land he occupies. He cannot sell nor get rid of it; if he wishes to enter some other calling, he must still pay his share of the taxes on the land of the village community or mir in which his lot has been cast. This and similar aggressive usage from the ruling classes has been productive of mutual distrust. The morals of both peasantry and beaurocracy are extremely low. Skillful lying is looked upon as a virtue. In fact, some of Count Tolstoi's novels, for example the 'Kreutzer Sonata," which mirrors to a large extent the actual conditions of life in Russia, show how loose the morals are, compared with Anglo-Saxon standards.

The Russians are, however, potentially a great race. Their capabilities would be to a large extent latent, ex- sider to be the original defect? Strange Adventures of a Second Contingent Soldier.

Experiences of a Life Time Crammed Into a Twelve-Month.

Sergt. Wrendell, a member of the Strathcona Horse, passed through this city yesterday on his way to his home at Kelly's Siding. He is a splendid type of the men who went to the front from this city, and the experiences that he had during the war were varied and unusually interesting.

The sergeant was originally a private in D Battery, having gone from London with the second contingent, and he accompanied it on the roundabout trip Durban way and back across country to meet Buller, whom they joined before he and Roberts Wrendell missed no engagement but fought at Belfast, Orange River, Lydenberg, Pretoria, and in many other battles, without being injured; but apparently he was not sat-isfied with the number of fights he had been in, for when his comrades returned he stayed behind and enlisted in the Strathcona Horse. He acknowledges now that the step was probably the most momentous that he took, and subsequent events yould seem to prove that it was so. With the Strathconas chased ebels, traveling many hundreds miles, and fighting frequently. In one serious engagement—the last that it was possible for him to be in—he received wounds enough to satisfy him with war for all time to come. Four times he was shot, one bullet entering his shoulder, one passing through the thigh, a third entering the abdomen, and finally he was knocked from his horse by a piece of a pom-pom shell. When he recovered the Strathconas had left for Canada, and as soon as ossible he followed. He spent only a few days in England for he was anxious to get back to Canada to see his father and mother, whom he had not heard from since he left. Rather than wait in England he sailed on the Wassan from Liverpool, and thereby fate was given another opportunity to display her eccentricities. On the ship were Swedes, Danes and Hungarians, Italians and had his manly form considerably distorted last week while endeavoring to move a wheelbarrow full of Petrolia clay.

A FISH STORY THAT IS TRUE.

A Muskallonge That Weighed Over Twenty Pounds.

Twas Speared at Byron and Legal Prosecution Will Follow—Prospects for Fishing About London.

That the energetic efforts of Col.

Leys to secure and protect the fishing interests of the upper reaches of the River Thames are destined to make London within a few years an angler's paradise, would seem evident from Thursday's occurrence at Byron, when a 20%-pound muskallonge, measuring over three feet in length, was speared by a young man. As this is the first specimen of this fine game fish caught in this vicinity for a score of years, it should create a great interest among local sportsmen. A muskallonge was taken in a dip-net at Blackfriars bridge, about twenty years ago, while Byron residents say it is 25 years since one was caught there. However gratifying to fishing enthusiasts, the capture may be, it may prove to have unpleasant consequences for the taker of the fish, for an act passed last year prohibits the taking of the fish until June 15, and Local Inspector Ed Jury has the case in hand. Muskallonge may be exposed for sale before July 1.

young man who took the fish handed it over to Mr. John Bowie, of Byron. The latter, elated at the magnificent size of the prize, was preparing to bring it to London, and with it gladden the eyes of Col. Leys, the champion of the fishermen, when the emissaries of the fish inspector descended upon and confiscated the fish. It was found to be full of spawn. Frank Elson, the young man who speared the fish, has been summoned to appear before Squire Lacey at 3 p.m. tomorrow, THE INSPECTOR TALKS.

An Advertiser representative located Fishery Inspector McVean, and asked him for some information about muskallenge in particular, and Thames River fish in general. Mr. McVean is the head inspector for this district, his "beat" extending from London to the outlet of the Thames in Lake St. Clair. Mr. McVean was asked how the big fish got up to Byron, in spite of the Cashmere dam. He replied: "It must have been spawned between the Cash-mere dam and Byron, though it might have come over the dam when the water was high enough. You see, the fish begin to run up the river when the ice breaks up, but by the time they reach Cashmere the water is too low over the dam for them to cross it." "When is the close season for lunge'?" asked the reporter. "They must not be exposed for sale till 1903, but the season for sportsmen will open on June 15.

THE BASS SEASON. "Speaking of bass, most people do not know that there are only two kinds of bass for which there is a close season, they being the large-mouth and small-mouth black bass. speckled bass, rock bass, sun bass and silver bass may be taken at any time. I think myself that silver bass should be protected, as they are a gamey fish, but the others do not matter so much, as they do not grow to any size.

"What are the prospects for fishing around London?" Very bright. With the construction of fishways in the Cashmere dam and the enforcement of the fishery laws, should be excellent fishing here. By the way, there was a salmon captured at Chatham a short time ago, the first known in the river.

ABOUT SPEARING. "What do you think about spear-"I think it should be abolished," said McVean. "When a man is spearing Mr. at night with a jacklight, it is absolutely impossible to tell what sort of a fish he is spearing until the fish is drawn into the boat. Of course, spearing kills the fish, and if it is one that should not have been taken, it is use-less to replace it, as called for by the regulation. When a fish is hooked during its close season, it can be replaced gently in the water, and so no harn

Several Firemen Among the Victims-Flames Break Out Again-Railway Service Suspended.

Frankfort, April 26.-A number of children, who were hurled by an explosion into the River Main, were drowned before the rescuers could reach them. Several firemen were among the victims. A special train, with relief firemen and additional doctors and nurses, was sent to the scene of the disaster this morning. A number, whom it was feared had perished, reported themselves this morning.

Noon—There has been a recrudes cence of the flames among the ruins at Griesheim, which revived apprehensions, and after the explosion of a great benzine reservoir at 11 o'clock this morning, orders were issued that everyone in the village of Griesheim and its vicinity should vacate forth-with. The inhabitants fled paniestricken with such possessions as they could hastily collect, most of them coming to Frankfort. Even the firemen, salvagers and soldiers left the scene of disaster. The railroad service to Griesheim is suspended on account of the danger.

1:30 p.m.—It transpires that during the terrorized flight this morning, a number of women and children were thrown down and trampled under foot. The danger of fresh explosions ne essarily retards the drawing up of correct death roll, but later reports do not indicate that this is so large was at first reported.

Toronto, April 26. — The provincial board of health has decided to place a quarantine fence about the Indians in Brant county, and not a red man crosses the boundary of the reserve unless he has a certificate of physical fitness and the vaccination mark fresh on his arm. The reason for this action is that smallpox, which exists, was concealed on the reserve for three weeks, and many of the residents have been exposed. The board of health also discussed the drafting of a bill to regulate smallpox in unregulated dis-ers, for there was little haggling over prices. Exchanges from wagons to baskets were made with gratifying rapidity, and both parties were satisfied. The regular staples were offered in large quantities, but sales were most frequent in the vegetable, provision and flower departments.

The amount of butter and eggs that changed hands was enormous. The usual sales of small quantities were made, but an unusual trade was conducted in large lots of 50 to 100 pounds or more. Pound lots of butter retailed at 16c and 18c, and in store lots from 14c to 16c; crock lots sold for 14c to 15c.

Quite a considerable trade was carried on at the poultry stands, and chickens, ducks and turkeys sold at quotations.

Large quantities of vegetables were offered, and most of them sold early. In this department business was keener than in any other.

STUCK FAST. St. Johns, Nfld., April 27.-It is feared that the sealing steamer Virginia, with 270 men on board, may be frozen in amid the ice floes in White Bay, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, for the next six weeks. The Arctic ice fields are now packing in upon the floes which have inclosed her for the past month. A sister ship of the Virginian Lake, the Kite, with 150 men on board, is similarly situated in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The owners are apprehensive that both ships may be driven ashore.

ASHORE. Victoria, B. C., April 27 .- The steamer Dolphin, which arrived at Union, brought the news that the Colorado, loaded with a valuable cargo of concentrates from the Radwell mines for the Tacoma smelter, went ashore in Wrangel Narrows and broke her deck. There is no information as to whether the steamer can be saved. The vessel belongs to Messrs. Dunsmuir & Sons, of this city.

RETALIATION. Washington, D. C., April 27.—Inquiry into the protest, cabled from London, of Sir Christopher Furness, head of the Furness line of steamers, that tonnage dues are charged in the case of British vessels entering American ports, while Dutch and Danish vessels enter free, discloses the fact that tonnage dues are imposed upon British shipping entering American ports because the British levy a corresponding duty on American shipping under the guise of lighthouse dues. If the British Government will remit the lighthouse dues it may secure the advantage in the remission of tonnage dues on British shipping in American ports.

About the New Catairh Cure. The new Catarrh Cure is a new departure in so-called catarrh cures because it actually cures, and is not simply a temporary relief,

It was there the girlhood days of Miss Turner were passed, subject to the trials and disadvantages of the early settlers of that time. She was maried in early life to F. J. Horner, and settled near Princeton, on the Governor's road, about 70 years ago, near the old Horner homestead, where she resided until the death of her husband, whom she has survived

A HOUSE OF ROYALTY.

What Guests at "The Queen's" Hotel, Toronto, May Expect.

Extensive Alterations and Improve ments Have Been Made-Luxurious Fittings and a New Dining Room-Increased Accommodations.

[From Toronto Globe, April 16.] That during this coming season more pleasure and commercial travel will center in Toronto than perhaps ever fore is now apparently beyond doubt, and the hotel accommodation to provide for all this expected additional business is a matter of some moment. The many wealthy tourists who will visit Toronto desire to find combined in a hotel not only every home com-fort, but luxury. In the past the "Queen's," so well known over the continent, has represented all that is to be desired in the way of comfort, elegance, and perfect hotel service, but visitors this year will find a still further improvement in the historic house where members of the Royal family have been the guests, and where the most celebrated men in Canadian history have met and talked over the Recognizing the increased demands that would be made upon their resources this year, the management of the Queen's have erected an additional wing to the building, containing some forty new rooms. These rooms are all of them furnished most handsomely, the fittings, modern and rich, being such as would grace the boudoir of the most costly mansion. There are several suites of rooms, consisting of two edrooms and a sitting-room, that for convenience and comfort could hardly be surpassed. The tiled bathrooms some thirty-five in all, decorated in bright tones, are an added convenience to the guests. Throughout the entire hotel the rooms are being redecorated, and refurnished. The old has given way to the new, and soft carpets, rich hangings, artistic pictures, make the Queen's today an ideal stopping place. To most travelers perhaps the din ng-room presents some features of in terest. The former dining-room is gone, that is, so far as the interior fit tings are concerned, and another and a better room has taken its place. The rearrangement of the dining-room has een of a most happy character. The walls and ceiling are tinted in a ros pink which harmonizes admirably with the rich coloring of the turkey red carpet. Green velour hangings, lined with rose pink silk, are in keeping with the general plan of the decora tions. There is an innovation, too, in the arrangement of the tables. the sides of the dining-room are tables for couples, while in the center the tables are laid out for parties of fours and sixes, so that everybody may be suited. Adjoining the main diningcom there is another small banquetting hall, which may be used for select dinner and supper parties. A magnificent sideboard of silver stands in this all, the contents of which is brought out for special guests, or when supper parties are served in the rooms upadditions and improvements that have been made to the Queen's this year should enhance the popular of the hotel, and it is understood that it is the determination of the management to carry out further improvements as rapidly as possible, so that it can be said in the future, as in the past, that the Queen's reputation will be thoroughly upheld.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Some Interesting Facts as to How Catarrh Starts and How It Is Permanently Cured.

Did it ever occur to you what Catarrh really is? You know how it affects you, that dropping in your throat, constant clearing the nose, pains over the eyes, hawking and spitting, until the disease often becomes as disagreeable to one's friends

Now Catarrh is caused by the catarrhal germ, scientists have proven this, so there is no doubt about it. This Catarrhal Germ is harmless to membranous tissues in their normal state, but after or during a Cold or La Grippe is its favorite time. It causes inflammation, and finally ulceration of the mucous membrane, and there is no end to the trouble this little Germ can do if left to itself. It will take away the sense of taste, smell, hearing, and, if allowed to spread to the lungs, kidneys, and liver, life itself. There is no cure for Catarrh of the Lungs, which is really Consumption, but there is a cure for Catarrh of the Head or Throat. There are a hundred and one so-called cures, but there is one that really does cure; that is Japanese Catarrh Cure. The great curative Properties of this most successful remedy lie in its wonderful penetrating, antiseptic, and healing powers. It is placed up the nostrils, where, by the very act of breathing, it spreads itself over the entire ulcerated or inflamed portion, kills the Catarrhal Germ, heals every diseased part, and permanently cures Catarrh.

Mr. John McKenzie, of Elgin, N. S., had Catarrh in a very severe form, but Japanese Catarrh Cure cured. Here is what he writes: "For some years I have been a great sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. My nose was a complete mass of ulcers on the inside, and for months I could not breathe through my nostrils. None of the remedies did me any good until I got Japanese Catarrh Cure. In a short time it completely healed the ulcers, and in less than two weeks completely cured my Catarrh. I feel it a pleasure to recommend a genuine remedy, as I know many people have been continually fooled with so many worthless so-called cures." Japanese Catarrh Cure is sold by druggists everywhere, 50 cents. Trial size 10 cents, by mail from the Griffiths & Macpherson Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada. Berlin, April 26.—Emperor William, who, in company with Crown Prince Frederick, attended the inaugural commers of the Students' Union in Beethoven Hall at Bonn last night, at which he presided, remained in the presidential chair until 1 o'clock this morning. According to custom, the inauguration of a new member of the union is attended with cries of "Fuchs" ("Fox"). This was done to the crown prince, whereupon the emperor laughingly clapped the crown prince on the back, and was greatly amused at the jocular allusions made upon the occasion. Emperor William and the crown prince are looking pale after the banquet and celebrations of after the banquet and celebrations of last night. PECULIAR OCEAN RACE. London, April 26.-Interest has culminated in an ocean race between the Hamburg-American steamer Deutschland, which left New York on April 18, and the Majestic, of the White Star Line, which sailed from the same port on the day before. The Deutschland passed Eddystone at 10 min-utes after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the Majestic was sighted twenty minutes later at Queenstown. Decatur M. Sawyer, of Montclair, N. J., sailed on the Deutschland, hoping to reach Liverpool before the Majestic arrived with his wife and daughter, so that he mighe be the first to break the news to them of his son's death by drowning at Lakeville, Conn., owing to the overturning of a canoe.

Mr. Sawyer reached Plymouth at 3 o'clock, and learned that the Majestic had been sighted off the Irish coast. Making close railway connections he reached Liverpool at midnight, where he awaits the arrival of the Majestic, now due at any time. She was re-ported at Queenstown at half-past 2 o'clock, and proceeded toward Liverpool after her mail had been delivered. Mr. Sawyer saw his wife off by the Majestic on April 17, and returning to his home at Montclair, N. J., learned of the death of his son, Otis Sawyer, at Lakeville, Conn. The boy was in a canoe with George Inness, grandson of a famous painter. When about six hundred feet from shore the boat was overturned, and both boys were drowned. Inness' body was recovered, but Sawyer's has not been found. Both boys attended the Hotchkiss Preparatory School, in Lakeville.

Two men on shore saw the overturning of the canoe and ran for help. When they returned Sawyer was trying to help Inness to keep affoat, but before a boat could reach them both

As soon as he heard of the accident, and without waiting to learn the result of the search for the body, Mr. Sawyer engaged passage on the Deutschland. Officials of the steamship company assured him that, barring accidents, he would be able to reach Liverpool before the Majestic, and could meet his wife at the pier. The statement of the officials was fully carried out, as Mr. Sawyer reached Liverpool before the Majestic was sighted there.

Mr. Sawyer's sailing was sensational. He reached the steamship pier just as the lines were being cast off, and succeeded in scrambling aboard at the very last minute. He sailed without a change of clothing, and wearing a business suit and an overcoat. The Deutschland had been held at her pier gaurog, on the Sea of Azof. Incidents by a telegram sent by Mr. Sawyer

> COUNT TOLSTOI'S LETTER.

Berlin, April 27 .- The National Zeltung prints Russian special correspondence, which contains another version of the letter of Count Leo Tolstoi of April 10, addressed to the czar and the cabinet. The letter protested against the system of forcibly suppressing intellectual and political progress, counseling the liberation of the peasants from despotic treatment, the removal of all barriers of enlightenment, and the free profession of any faith. The letter concludes: This appeal have I, Leo Tolstoi, written, not as a personal conviction, but as the conviction of millions belonging to Russian intelligence." The correspondent adds: "The letter has made the deepest impression throughout Russia."

The Rice Murder- A Curious Case at Brantford-Rogues' Gallery for Atlantio Liners.

THE GROGAN TRIAL. Cambridge, Mass., April 26.-After three days given up to what may be called "eye-witness" testimony in the case of Charles R. Eastman, the Harvard instructor, who is charged with the murder of Richard H. Grogan, the government this morning directed attention to the revolvers which figured in the tragedy. The courtroom was crowded, as has been the case since the beginning of the trial, and a notable feature was the presence of a number of law students from Harvard University. Eastman, the defendant, appeared quite cheerful. Karl A. Loudin, jun., an employe of the Clarke lens factory, who knew both Eastman and Grogan, identified all the revolvers which have been submitted in connection with the case as those he had seen and handled on the Clarke estate.

STRYCHNINE IN HIS STOMACH. Brantford, Ont., April 26.-The adjourned coroner's inquest to inquire into the cause of the death of the late Chas. Recorder Goff postponed the arraignment gulation of the liquor traffic, which is until Monday morning. The grand the primary object of the act, may projury returned an additional indictment today against Meyers and evils of drunkenness and preventing Short, charging each with perjury. This charge is based on the testimony Meyers and Short gave before Justice Jerome, when they said that they saw Rice sign the will to which their names were signed as witnesses. After a conference between the attorneys for Patrick, Short and Meyers, pleading went over until Wednesday next at the request of Mr. Moore, their counsel. He said section 271 of the code requiring the names of witnesses to be placed on the book of an indictment against the defendants had not been complied with.

DISCREDITED STORY.

Toronto, April 27 .- On Nov. 15, 1899, the body of Wm. McMillan was found Avonmore, Dundas county, several tions." trains having evidently run over it. The case was set down as clearly one of accident until a short time ago before Finley McNaught, of Finch village, one Samuel Gilmour swore that Thomas MacLeod, now resident in New York State, killed McMillan and put his body on the track to destroy the traces of crime. Gilmour, asked why he kept silent so long, said he was to get $500 for saying nothing. Inspector Murray, of the provincial detective force, has just returned from investigating the matter, and reports that he considers the story to be a fabrication. The real reason for Gilmour's strange declaration, he says, was a desire to be revenged on Mac-Leod for the breaking up of his home. The department states that no evidence has been found to warrant Mac-Leod's extradition.

"BLACK JACK" HANGED. Clayton, N. M., April 27.—Thomas E. Ketchum, alias "Black Jack," the train robber, was hanged yesterday at 1:21 p.m. The rope broke, but the fall jerked Ketchum's head off.

Thomas Ketchum, alias "Black Jack," has been the most noted desperado in the southwest for many years, and although he was credited with having taken the lives of his fellow beings, his execution today was for an attempted train robbery in which nobody was killed. This crime was committed near Folsom, N. M., Aug. 16, 1899. Single-handed, Ketchum held up a Colorado and Southern passenger train. He ordered the engineer and fireman to uncouple the engine and leave the train. The conductor and the mail agent opened fire. Ketchum received the contents of a double-barreled shot gun in the right arm, but quickly changing the rifle to his left shoulder, he succeeded in wounding both conductor and mail agent. He was captured the next day, tried and given the extreme penalty. Owing to rumors or organized bands making preparations to rescue their comrade, evtreme precautions had been taken to hold the prisoner, who was removed from Folsom jail Clayton this week by special train under a heavy guard of deputies.
"Black Jack" is said to have been the leader of a band of outlaws who committed many train robberies and raids in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. This band has been scattered since his arrest, seven or eight having been killed. Twenty deputies guarded the jail throughout the night. Hundreds from the surrounding country, arrived during the morning, but no demonstration occurred. Ketchum talked visitors, cooler than any man who met him. He declared death preferable to imprisonment. Ketchum told of rob-beries of which he was concerned, but declared he had never killed a man, ing that if a fight results, the Boers account of the Stein's Pass robbery, exonerating the men who were convicted of that crime, Ketchum said "Bud" Upshaw was innocent of the murder of A. P. Powers in Texas, of which he is accused. This killing, Ketchum said, was the result of a conspiracy to which he was a party. ROGUES' GALLERIES FOR AT-LANTIC LINERS.

THE LAW MUST BE STRICTLY OBSERVED

Special Notice Sent Out to the Ontario License Inspectors.

Toronto, April 27 .- A circular is being sent out to all the license inspectors in the province by Hon. J. R. Stratton, provincial secretary, respecting political influence in relation to the admin-istration of the law. The circular, after referring to the charges, more or less vague and indefinite, made in the legislature, and in the press that political pressure is exerted in securing licenses and in evading prosecutions, goes on to say:

"Under these circumstances I feel it my duty to call your attention to the fact that such statements have been made in the house and reported in the press; and to specially impress upon you that it is the policy and the intention of the government and of the Meyers were brought before Recorder license department to firmly insist upon hours and by unlicensed dealers.

"This applies both to the issue licenses, which should be granted to meet local requirements as provided by law, and also to the administration of the law in respect of license holders and unlicensed vendors.

"Whether or not the accusations referred to have any foundation, it is to be distinctly understood that in the event of irregularities, neglect of duty or improper conduct on the part of license officials coming to the knowledge of the department, or in the event of charges being made, strict investigation will promptly follow, and should such investigation show neglect of duty, partiality or incompetence, the cut to pieces on the C. Egmondville, April 26.-Miss Sarah Stewart has rented her residence to Mr. John Torrance, of Hay. Our people are pleased to welcome him and his amiable family, and trust they may long remain among us. Mrs. C. R. Van Egmond has moved her family to the large brick house formerly occupied by her father-inlaw, the late C. L. Van Egmond. Our people were agreeably surprised last week to find that a tribe of wanderers, who had been staying in the village for several weeks, had decamped during the night. No doubt they have gone to seek pastures new. Such able-bodied nomads, who have no visible means of support, should be put in confinement at hard labor, and thus be prevented from preying upon the public. Miss Bell Van Egmond returned last week from a lengthy visit to Toronto. The people of this vicinity are much pleased at the prospect of the flax business being revived during the present season. It would certainly be of great benefit to the neighborhood, and should our worthy Mr. Geo. McEwen be instrumental in making it a success, he will have conferred a boon on this part of his constituency. Our census man, Mr. H. Chesney, has about completed his work, and so far we have not heard of any very serious trouble encountered by him in the discharge of his duties.

During the late session of our local legislature law reform was a discussed topic, and no doubt beneficial changes could be made.

HOW IDEAS GROW

Sowing the Seed for a Universal System of Good Roads-Practical Hints and Object Lessons.

This month and the next comprise the period of the year when most of the repair work on country roads is least in the northern half of the United States. The National Good Roads Association has therefore chosen an opportune time for an enterprise in which the Illinois Central Railroad is engaged.

Some time in April special "good roads train," carrying government en-gineers, road-making machines from various firms, with expert operators, and representatives of the association, is to make a trip between Chicago and New Orleans, stopping at fifteen or twenty places on the way, and constructing at each place a mile section of good road to serve as an illustration of what can and should be done. The service of the train, machines, operators and civil engineers is free; but each community is expected to furnish other labor, and teams and

As the purpose of the enterprise is principally educational, a convention will be held at each stopping place. Printed matter pertaining to good roads will be distributed, and practical hints given upon such matters as drainage and available materials. The experts will consider the conditions peculiar to each region, and suggest the method which will give the best results at the least expense. Also, wherever it is possible, a permanent organization will be formed to con-tiue the work thus begun. Since this expedition was projected, several other railroads have offered to perform a like service for places along their own lines, and the League of American Wheelmen hopes to send out a similar train during the sum-

The work promises important sults. Every mile of good road calls new attention to the elongated mud puddles and corrugated dust-heaps which now unite village to village; and by and by it will be understood that poor means of communication cost the dweller in the country more money than good roads, and that they deprive him of comforts and advanwhich he need not forego .tages which he ne Youths' Companion.

visited Toronto and heard of the Canadian merchant's high standing and public credit. In his letters Mr. Taylor was sympathetic in the belief that the scheme for robbing him would develop more quickly. He has not yet, however, been asked to put up any money, and as the last letter came some time ago it is probable the Spaniards became alarmed and moved their quarters. The last note is from Antoine Burgaise, the "parish priest" of Chafarinas, and there is a stamp on the paper of the parochial church. It states in excellent French that Don Ricardo Taylor died in the military prison on the pre-vious day. "Some days before his death he made his will, leaving as sole heir for the sum of a million francs his only daughter Marie, and to you as tutor and curator of his daughter the sum of 350,000 francs, and to me (the priest) as testamentary executor, he sum of 50,000 francs." The papers were to be prepared in fifteen or twenty days, but the only paper Mr. Taylor has got yet is a copy of the Brooklyn Eagle, dated Monday last, from a friend who knew of the correspondence. It shows that correspondence. It shows that practically the same fraud, with different names, was recently tried on a prominent Spanish resident there, who was asked to send $600 cash for the passage of the heiress and the fortune. He was like Don John Taylor, of Toronto, rather cautious, and the Spanish heiress still awaits her kinsmen in her castle in Andalusia. her castle in Andalusia.

A DECLINE IN THEOLOGICAL

Causes for the Decreasing Namber of Students for the Presbyterian Ministry.

[Knoxonian in The Westminster.] The decrease in the number of students for the ministry, especially for the Presbyterian ministry, is now adthe Presbyterian ministry, is now administry. In Scotland the decrease has attracted attention for some time. Every Presbyterian who pat-ronizes Sabbath evening shows does just so much to keep self-respecting week before last. Judging from many young men out of the ministry.

Indications the decrease will extend to the ministry.

The "hired man" theory of the minindications the decrease will extend to Canada, if it is not here already. We have not the figures from all our col-leges and cannot be accurate, but people who ought to know say we are on the down grade now, so far as students of divinity are concerned.

Of course there is the usual amount of speculation as to the cause, or causes, that have produced what Dr. Stalker calls a "perplexing phenome-non." Some of the alleged causes may be dismissed "with a light heart" in Canada, and perhaps in all America.
We doubt very much if the higher criticism has kept one student out of Canada. Anybody who knows anything of the homes from which divinity students usually come in this of little cliques, who manage things to country, must be aware that German suit themselves. It is not so long ago theology rarely or never reaches these homes. Let any man think of the homes from which any ten students he knows have come and ask himself to his pulpit on Sabbath! how much good pious homes like these have ever been affected by German rationalism. Of what may happen in the university between the home and the theological classes we cannot speak, but so far as we know it has never been asserted that any considnever been asserted that any considerable number of young men left Godly homes to study for the ministry who had their faith shaken, and their purpose changed in Toronto University or in Queen's, or in McGill. Here, as everywhere, clergymen suppose that the problems which interest them interest everybody. Outside of city bookstores and clergymen's librahow many copies of the Encyclopaedia Biblica and George Adam smith's lectures are to be found in all

On the whole we think that the decay of piety theory may be dismissed. Considering the increased liberality in the giving of the church, the increased interest taken by the young in the work of the church, the marked decrease in church quarrels, that used to disgrace the cause of Christ, and vex the souls of the church courts, the missionary operations of the last few years, the decrease of the drink habit, considering these things and other good signs that might be mentioned, we doubt very much if there has been any decay in practical religion. The type of plety may have changed somewhat, but it does seem pessimistic to say that there has been any serious decay. The military theory may be dismiss-ed with a laugh. How many of the young fellows that fought for the United States against Spain, or went to South Africa to fight the Boers, ever entertained any serious intention of studying for the ministry?

Dr. Warfield, of Princeton, is of the opinion that the present industrial development is one of the causes that have reduced the number of divinity students. Possibly it has had some effect, but the United States was always a good country to make money in, and a good many people, not usually considered stupid, think a man of considered stupid, think a man of limited means had a much better chance to get on years ago, when there were no millionaire "trusts" in not much chance against a millionaire

If Dr. Warfield would examine the matter more closely, he might find that "the dead-line of forty"—it used to be fifty—keeps a hundred young men out of the ministry for every one that is kept out by the present industrial development. Discussing this matter the other day, the Interior said, with its usual point: "When a young man sees that the period of his usefulness is cut down to a time only about equal to that required in preparation for it, he very naturally looks about for something less unreasonable. He does not think he is called of God to a service from which he will be arbitrarily deposed in the prime of his life. There is not going to be any scarcity of minis let going to be any scarcity of limit isters. There will be, we hope, better use made of those we have." And who can blame the young man if he does "look about him for something less unreasonable." His brother who studies law or medicine is doing his best work at the time the minister of the family is cast aside as an old shoe. Who can blame his father if he does not spend from one to two thousand dollars in Oducating a son who is to be pushed out of his life work in his prime. Learned professors may theorize about the higher criticism, and industrial development and the military spirit and other alleged causes, but the stern hard facts are just as the Interior puts them.

There are other causes, and prominent among these we might put the unreasonable, and often unjust treatment given to public servants of all kinds on this side of the Atlantic. where you'd better draw it!

Joseph Parker says the public is "an infinite baby." In some of its moods the baby becomes an infinite tyrant. GRADUATES the baby becomes an infinite tyrant.

It is often difficult, sometimes impossible to induce citizens of a high class to enter political life. The unreasonableness of the public, the abuse of the yellow journals and the attacks of filthy opponents make them dread the public service. The state is God's as well as the church. Service in one is needed as well as service in the other. needed as well as service in the other. Now if unreasonable, unkind, unjust criticism keeps good men out of the service of the public in one department, may we not expect that it will hinder them from taking service in the istry does much to deter young men from becoming preachers. The essence of that theory is that a minister has neither rights nor feelings that his congregation is bound to respect.

The candidating system keeps many young men out of the Presbyterian whole candidating business is absolutely repugnant.

The great gulf that is becoming fixed between the theory and practice of Presbyterian Church government is another cause why young men who have seen the gulf shun the pulpit. The theory is that the church is governed by a regular gradation of courts in which the people are represented. The practice in too many churches is that the government is in the hands of the colleges in the whole Dominion of Canada. Anybody who knows any-"congregational bully," or in the hands

A Confederate Captain Who Deserted to See His Dying Mother

[From the Louisville Courier-Journal.] "In the four years I served in the army of Northern Virginia," said the old Confederate, in a reminiscent mood, "I saw more men killed than I'd care to count, In the course of the war, three out of the four men who were tent-mates with me were killed. Each one went down within ten feet of me, one with his head torn away by a shell, the second with a minie ball that tore a great hole in his jugular vein, and the third from an overdose of bayonet, when we got at close quarters with the Yankees one afternoon at Seven Pines. My command lost 58 per cent in one battle, and we usually came pretty near evening things up with the other fellows. I have been a witness at a pretty fair share of violent demises.

"In battle, after a man gets over his first scare at going into the line of fire, the brute in him usually makes him forget that he is a coward. When he sees the fellow next to him fall, he sorter feels sorry and has a pretty strong desire to come to close quarters with the man that did it, and let a little daylight into him. Fighting as we had to, I got so that I could see a man killed in battle with as little worry as if he had been a partridge.

"One morning I left my command and started over to talk to some old friends in a Mississippi regiment. I got about half of the distance, when I ran into a little body of men. Two of them had their eyes blindfolded and their arms tied behind them. The first fellow couldn't have been more than twentyfive. He was tall, straight as an arrow, with dark, curling brown hair, and his face was the handsomest and saddest I ever saw. He was walking quietly and steadily. I couldn't see his eyes, but not a muscle of his face was twitching, and his feet were planted fairly and squarely on the ground. I noticed that he wore the uniform of a captain.

"The second fellow had to be held up by four men. Every few steps he would fall to the ground perfectly limp, and it seemed, lifeless. When the men would get him up he would scream and cry like a scared child. He was a great, big rawboned North Carolinian, and his terror would have been disgusting if it hadn't been so pittable.

"I followed the little procession for a hundred yards to where the line of crosses stood. The captain was to be

THE BABY ON THE TRAIN

Wholesome Advice Regarding Its Proper Usage.

[Hearst's Chicago-American.]

This is written for those superlatively happy individuals who possess very young children, and at the same time have means sufficient to take them about, moving to the country where they can get fresh air and fresh

At the beginning of warm weather the fortunate among the world's inhabitants move from the city to the country and the little babies get their first horrible experience of "riding on the cars." Many children are permanently injured by a comparatively short railroad journey.

Sometimes the foolish nurse or mother dandles the little one up and down on her knees, adding piledriver humps to the irritating motion of the train. Sometimes the little one is kept looking out of the window and poked up to admire this or that, while its eyes roll in its head, and its poor little brain is congested, confused and in a You will see foolish mothers sitting solemnly and proudly with a section of the Pullman car "all to myself and "Myself" sits on the rear seat, riding forwards, and baby is stretched out at full length on a pillow on the opposite seat. Baby sinks into the pillow, and gets into it deeper with every fresh motion of the train.

Every jolt of the car wheels is a Jolt to baby's brain and body. This is bad for the brain and a thousand times worse for the liver. The liver, as mothers ought to know, but don't, is abnormal in size during early infancy, when a milk diet is to be disposed of, and the derangement of the abnormal infantile liver causes much sickness and death.

There is no better way of deranging the liver than putting a child on his back for hours on a train, to be shaken up constantly.

All long journeys should be avoided for young children. When they are taken, this rule should be followed: Hold the child in your arms and allow the elasticity of your muscles to counteract the jolting of the car. Never mind if you get tired. When you get too tired, give the baby to its ather, or to any man in sight who looks reliable.

No man living has anything more important to attend to than to hold a small baby on the train, and no mother need hesitate to ask him for help when she is tired.

If this is not clear to your mind, try this experiment the next time you get on a train: Fill a glass with water and put it on the floor of the car. You

THE CANADIAN DRESSED POULTRY COMPANY, Limited

CAPITAL STOCK - - - -$450,000.

HEAD OFFICE, HAMILTON, ONTARIO. PRESIDENT-MR. GIBSON ARNOLDI, Barrister-at-Law, Toronto, Ontario.

MANAGER-MR. WILLIAM S. GILMORE, Merchant, Hamilton, Ontario.

OBJECT OF THE COMPANY:

THIS COMPANY is formed to advance Canadian trade with England in dressed poultry, ducks, turkeys and geese, dressed meats and other farm produce that the Company may deem it advisable to deal in. THIS IS THE GREAT OBJECT OF THE COMPANY. IT WILL BE NO MONOPOLY, AND IT CANNOT BE MADE ONE; ITS SUCCESS MEANS THE FARMERS' SUCCESS. The farmer who wants to make money must first become a shareholder in this Company, which is the only company of its kind, and by so doing show that he means businesss, as his money being invested, his interests, and the interests of the Company are the same, and then raise poltry, turkeys, ducks and geese for the Company. This Company will buy ONLY FROM ITS OWN SHAREHOLDERS; therefore, with care and attention, every farmer and every farmer's wife, and every man, woman and child of ordinary intelligence in Canada, who has fifty dollars, can buy ten shares and become a shareholder, and by beginning in a small way and saving his profits, make himself wealthy, like Mr. Taylor has done. Who Mr. Taylor is is explained in the following extracts from a story told by Professor Robertson, the well-known Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying in Canada, to the standing committee of the House of Commons:

"WELL-TO-DO FARMERS FATTEN CHICKENS. I LEARN ALSO THAT THERE IS MONEY IN THE BUSINESS. I had got the name of Mr. Samuel Taylor from one of the leading poultry dealers in London. When I got to his place I found Mr. Taylor was a successful farmer. HE HAD BEGUN LIFE AS A FARM LABORER WITHOUT CAPITAL. When I visited him he had a fine farm steading, and was doing a prosperous business. I would not like to say how much money the chicken-fattening business brought him in, but I would not be surprised to learn that his annual net balance was over a thousand pounds (five thousand dollars a year)."

This man had begun life as a farm laborer and by sticking to his business had made money out of it.

THE PROMOTERS ARE NOW ARRANGING TO ESTABLISH not less than twelve receiving and shipping THE PROMOTERS ARE NOW ARRANGING TO ESTABLISH not less than tweive receiving and snipping stations in Canada, to be fitted with plants necessary to make the exported article as perfect as possible. The number of stations in each province will be as nearly equal as possible, having regard for the size of the province, and the number of shareholders in each. The operations of the Company to be confined for the present to Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. The Company is also engaging the most experienced help to be found in Canada and England, and making arrangements in England to get the very highest price for its shipments. price for its shipments.

THE BUYERS OF THIS COMPANY will commence operations, it is expected, on or about the first of June, June, 1901, when they will call on the shareholders and arrange with them as to the continuous supply—that is, the number each shareholder will raise and supply each month to the nearest receiving station of the Company. It is therefore necessary that all intending shareholders send in their subscriptions for stock at once, as the Company will only buy from its shareholders, and the lists will be closed.

THIS IS A GRAND CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY, for either farmers or THEIR WIVES, and those who either cannot afford to keep up a large farm, or who, through some infirmity or poor health, are not able to attend to the heavy duties of heavy farming. PRICES TO BE PAID.—This Company will pay the very highest prices to its shareholders, so as to encourage the raising of first-class poultry, and, as it will year in and year out be selling at the high prices to be obtained in England, it can afford to pay more than the best prices now paid for birds now sold on the Canadian

GREAT PRICES IN ENGLAND.-Chickens shipped to Liverpool, England, met with a ready sale at eightpence (sixteen cents) per pound. As they weighed eleven pounds per pair, they sold for one dollar and seventy-six cents per pair. JUST THINK FOR ONE MOMENT—one dollar and seventy-six cents for a pair of chickens in England, and yet it is only a fair market price there, and the profits are equally as good, if not better, ducks and geese. The consignee wrote as follows about the shipment: "I was agreeably surprised at the all-round excellence of your small experimental shipment of Canadian capons (chickens). On opening the cases, the birds were found to be in beautiful condition, and presented a most saleable appearance. After the birds were uncased I hung one to find out how long it would retain its bright appearance, and found that it became milky white as goon as it had dried out of the chilled state; today, five days later, it is as nice looking as a fresh killed bird. I think the price obtained will both please and pay you. It is a fair market price."

Three Firms Alone Intimated Their Ability and Willingness to Handle About Two Thousand Cases Per Week at Good Prices.

RAISING POULTRY PAYS.—It pays better to fatten them, and it pays best to ship them to England. The shipment sent to Liverpool, England, above described, brought one dollar and seventy-six cents per pair. The farmer sold them to the shipper for fifty-four cents per pair, which is above the average price, as often he does not get more than thirty cents per pair; can anything be clearer than that the farmer is failing to make enormous profits? By becoming a shareholder you will commence putting the money in your own pocket.

SUCCESS.—This Company is a natural outgrowth of the great and wonderful cold storage system. fore "cold storage" became known it would have been an impossibility to carry on this great business. But now the great success of cold or chilled storage is the maker of this enormous business, which will prove a money-maker for its shareholders. Space will not permit giving a description of the great arrangements to be made, of the many receiving and shipping stations, abattoirs, cold storage plants, offices and agencies this Company will establish the description of the great arrangements. lish in the different Provinces of Canada and in England, or of the numerous employes it will engage to do the buying, killing, plucking, packing and shipping; the instructors the Company will engage will give to the working shareholders such directions and assistance as they may desire.

THE HEAD OFFICE WILL BE AT HAMILTON, ONTARIO, and from there MR. WILLIAM S. GILMORE, THE EXPERIENCED MANAGER, will direct its affairs. Mr. Glimore is already well known to many Canadians, but for those who do not know him and who would naturally like to know something of the man who is to direct the affairs of the Company in which they intend to invest their money, the following extract from a letter written by the celebrated firm F. "Gentlemen: At the request of Mr. W. S. Gilmore, I write to advise you that we have known him for years, and have had during that time continuous dealings with him as one of our customers. He is a practical provision dealer and butcher of many years' experience. He is about fifty-five years of age, but active and progressive, and as a judge of poultry, live or dressed, he is certainly the equal of the best in Hamilton. As to his personal character, respectability and integrity, we believe he is fully to be relied on anything he will undertake."

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Every shareholder in this Company is not obliged to raise poultry simply because he is a shareholder - anybody can buy stock in the Company, and the net profits or dividends will be divided between all shareholders alike, and it is safe to say they will get large dividends for their money.

EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGE.—The Company extend an exclusive privilege to those who hold ten shares or mere of the Company's stock to raise poultry, turkeys, ducks geese, etc., for the Company, to supply the great demand, and to this class of shareholders the Company will pay the very highest prices for their birds. They will be given the great advantage of careful instruction, free of charge, in the art of raising and fattening poultry, as well as receiving their share of all the profits of the Company, and, as the promoters wish to make this a Comi pany by the farmers and for the farmers, all the servants and employes of the Company will be chosen from among the shareholders and their families.

THE CAPITAL STOCK of this Company is divided into shares worth five dollars each, and of this only a limited number of shares are offered for public subscription, but no subscription will be accepted for less than ten shares ($50). If you wish to become a shareholder, lose no time, but send in your subscription at once, as the stock will be allotted in the order in which the applications are received, and no stock will be held open for anyone. Fill out the APPLICA-TION FORM, given below, be careful to state how many shares you want, and the amount of money you inclose, sign your name to it, and then fill in your address, and send it by registered letter to Mr. Gibson Arnoldi, the President of the Company, 9 Toronto street, Toronto, Ontario, accompanied by a marked check, postoffice order or express order, for the full amount of your subscription, payable to the order of Mr. Gibson Arnoldi, President of the Company. The promoters reserve the right to change the name of the Company if the Government requests them to to so as a condition to the granting of Letters Patent under the Great Seal incorporating the also at the same time to ask incorporation with any other amount of capital stock than named, in their discretion.

The ancient Chapel of the Pyx at Westminster is to be thrown open to the public. It was used in early Norman times as a royal treasury, and a robbery from the chapel in the reign of Edward I. of treasure valued at

We have received a brochure on the subject of "Christian Science" by the Rev. J. P. Sheraton, D.D., LL.D., principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto. This little work was originally an address, which has since been revised and enlarged, and is now published at the earnest request of many who heard it, both clergymen and laymen. The author attacks the principles of Christian science, and discussing his subject under the heads of (1) "Philosophy of Christian Science," (2) "Therapeu-· tics of Christian Science," he endeavors to reveal the weakness of the doctrine. Regarding Christian Science as a curative agency, the author says: "It is the practical side, rather than the theoretical, which is most in evidence, and which is the source of whatever influence it wields. It is not by its philosophy that men are at-long and be prospered!—has that gift tracted, but by its claims to healing which is the most priceless possession power, and by the cures it is said to effect."

MYSTERIES OF THE SOUTH.

British Expedition to Investigate the Secrets of the Antarctic Regions.

The discovery of the south pole is not alone the prompting motive of the British polar expedition which is to start this year for the Antarctic re-gion. There are many important features in that unknown land which require investigation, one of which is the tides. One need only glance at a map of the world to see that the Southern Hemisphere contains twice as much area of ocean surface than does the Northern Hemisphere, and it is this great southern ocean that is really the center of the tidal system of the globe, says the London Express.

The tide which carries the barge up the Thames today was really born in this vast ocean expanse some days ago. Evidently, then, something should be done in this direction, and conclusperhaps in the ive facts obtained, for case of England's coa considerably reduced her people may have to turn to the tides for the generation of power for their manufactures; in fact, such a scheme, for the sake of economy alone, is only comparable with the harnessing of the Falls of Foyers or Niagara for the supply of motive power. These and many other points have not been lost sight of by those planning and undertaking the expedi-

Two others, dealing with the scientific side, may be mentioned; first, that of the geology. From the nature of the rocks it will be possible to say whether the Antarctic continent, be it of large area, or only one made up of small islands, is a connecting link between South America and Australia. Should this be so, and it is highly probable, there is no reason why the land should not be rich in minerals, but whether the ditions than those prevailing even at Klondike would remain to be seen.

The second is meteorology. The study of the weather in the Southern Hemisphere is of necessity in a less satisfactory state than that of the Northern Hemisphere, on account of the fewer stations; but at the same time atmospheric as well as oceanic circulation is such a complicated machine that our relatively warmer climate, compared with others of the same lati-tude, is dependent upon processes taking place some thousands of miles

Surely an area nearly as large as Australia, unexplored, unknown, must make its impression somewhere other countries, but what this function is remains still to be solved.

Hanging For Burglars.

[Pittsburg Press.]
There is not a more heinous offense in the whole criminal calendar than burgary. The man who breaks into a house at night does not do so merely to rob. He is prepared, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred—indeed, in one hundred cases of out a hundred—to commit murder in addition. The only difference between him and the other variety of murderer is that the ordinary murder is half the time the result of passion aroused by some real or fancied provocation. Burglary is always without provocation, and deliberate. The murderer is often a man possessed of some of the finer instincts. The burglar—the ablebodied brute who in absolute cold blood chooses plunder and bloodshed as his profession, can never be anything else than an abandoned brute. It is a question to be left to the moralists and the psychologists whether it would not be an act of mercy on the part of the law to take such a person out of the world and enable him without unprecessory.

an act of mercy on the part of the law to take such a person out of the world and enable him without unnecessary waste of time to enter some other sphere and begin all over again.

There is another phase of the matter. The theory of the law being that the administering of punishment for crime is designed not so much to gratify the spirit of reprisal and revenge as to vindicate the right and to warn all men that it must not be violated, the question rises whether the present penalties for housebreaking are such as to exercise the proper deterrent influence.

April Weather.

Soon, ah, soon the April weather, With the sunshine at the door, And the mellow melting rain-wind Sweeping from the South once more.

Soon the rosy maples budding, And the willows putting forth, Misty crimson and soft yellow, In the valleys of the North.

Soon the hazy, purple distance Where the cabined heart takes wing, Eager for the old migration

In the magic of the spring. Soon, ah, soon the budding wild flowers Through the forest white and frail. And the odorous wild cherry Gleaming in her ghostly veil. Soon about the waking uplands The hepaticas in blue-Children of the first warm sunlight, In their sober Quaker hue.

All our shining little sisters Of the forest and the field, Lifting up their quiet faces. With the secret half revealed.

Soon across the folding twilight Of the round earth hushed to hear, The first robin at his vespers,

Calling far, serene and clear. Soon the waking and the summons, Starting sap in hole and blade, And the bubbling, marshy whisper Seeping up through bog and glade. Soon the frogs in silver chorus Through the night, from marsh and swale.

Blowing in their tiny oboes All the joy that shall not fail. Passing up the old earth rapture,

By a thousand streams and rills, From the red Virginian valleys To the blue Canadian hills.

Soon, ah, soon the splendid impulse, Nomad longing, vagrant whim, When a man's false angels vanish. And the truth comes back to him.

Soon the majesty, the vision, And the old unfaltering dream, Faith to follow, strength to 'stablish Will to venture and to seem,

All the radiance, the glamor, The expectancy and poise, Of this ancient life renewing

Its temerities and joys. Soon the immemorial magic Of the young Aprilian moon, And the wonder of thy friendship

In the twilight-soon, ah, soon!

THE LOST GAINSBOROUGH

Story of the Famous Picture's Recovery After Many Years-Mystery Still Surrounds Its Disappearance

The mystery surrounding the stolen portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire by Gainsborough, which has just been reported found after a disappearance of a quarter of a century, threatens to become as extended a subject of controversy as the kidnapping of Charlie

Robert Pinkerton told what he knew of the recent whereabouts of the artistically inclined thief. "The only condition which the thief imposed," said Mr. Pinkerton, "was that before the picture was delivered the cash reward should be 'n the hands of my brother, William Pinkerton. There was no promise made to refrain from pro-secution. Indeed, the thief demanded none, because the crime was already

He said, however, that the thief had made his early reputation in New York by picking pockets, and doing clever turns of burglary. In England he and his gang began a series of forgeries which led up to the theft of the Gainsborough portrait from the art rooms of William Agnew & Sons, in Old Bond street, London.

That Old Pain Again

It's an old enemy. You thought you had shaken it off, but the winter winds and the variable spring weather find the weak spot, and the old pain is back again---perhaps even worse than before.

If you have severe pains in the joints and the muscles---pains aggravated by cold and damp, so that you find it difficult to walk, or your shoulders ache so that it is a torture to get into your clothing, it is RHEUMATISM. not neglect it or your joints may grow so stiff that you will be permanently crippled. Liniments and outward applications are of no use.

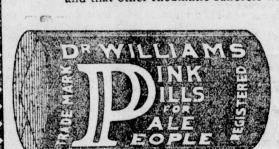

Rheumatism is a disease of the blood and must be treated through the blood. There is only one always reliable, permanent cure for Rheumatism, and that is

These pills have repeatedly cured the most severe cases of Rheumatism--cured even after doctors and other medicines had failed. They go direct to the cause of the trouble, drive it from the system and thus make permanent cures.

HERE IS THE PROOF.

Mr. Moise Laframboise, St. Scholastique, Que., says :- "During the years 1897 and 1898 I suffered very much from rheumatism. The disease settled in my knees, and I often endured the greatest agony in going about. I tried several kinds of medicine, but did not find relief. In the spring of 1899 I decided to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and purchased six boxes. Before these were all gone the disease had disappeared. As a sort of preventive I took a few boxes more the following autumn, with the result that I have not since felt an ache or pain. I naturally think there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for rheumatism."

Mrs. A Huscroft, Pittston, Ont., says :- "For several years I was very much afflicted with rheumatism, which at last became so bad that I was unable to move about or do any housework. I was treated by one of the best doctors in this locality, but the results were far from satisfactory. A neighbor who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit urged me to try them, and after using four boxes I found myself restored to good health and have not since had the slightest return of the trouble. As my experience occurred over two years ago, I think I may safely say the cure is permanent, and that other rheumatic sufferers will do well to try this medicine."

Goat Milk In Athens.

[Scribner's.]

[Scribner's.]

Nor do the men who sell milk and its various products lie in bed till the sun rises. There are a coupie of European dairies in Athens, whose proprietors keep cows; but they do business mostly with the foreigners and with those Greeks who ape foreign manners. Your genuine Athenian believes the goat to be the proper milk-producing animal, and he regards the cow in this connection about as we Americans do the mare. The milk-man takes his animals with him, jangling their belis and sneezing. "Gala!" he shouts, a quick, startling cry with a "g" whose guttural quality is unattainable by adult learners, and usually unperceived by them. When a customer comes to the door he strips the desired quantity into the proffered receptacle before her vigilant eyes, selecting one of the goats and paying no attention to the others, who understand the business as well as he does. Patiently they stand about, chewing the cud or resting on contiguous doorsteps. When their master moves on they arise and follow, more faithful than dogs. powering temptation to which the milkman is subjected affects him in Greece as in America. In Greece it is taken for granted that he cannot resist, and he is therefore obliged to take his animals with him. But even thus he is not above suspicion, for they tell of a rabber water-bag carried inside the coat and provided with a tube reaching to the palm of the hand. Each time the milkman closes his hand over the udder he presses the bag between his arm and his body.

A GREAT GUN. A new 30-ton wire gun will be tested with shells at Sandy Hook some day soon, General Miles and the board of ordnance being present. This gun, which is intended for coast defense work, is able to hurl a 575-pound projectile 2,800 feet per second. Its makers claim that, from its pit at the Hook, this gun could easily drop shells into Forty-second street, more than eighteen miles away. The gun contains 75 miles of wire and cost $33,000, being the most expensive piece of ordnance along the Atlantic coast.

One Brother's Keeper.

There was a medical student a year or two ago who was half way through his course when it dawned upon him that he had lived for himself, and he he could find anyone to help. And he found an old chum who had gone to the dogs. He had fallen to pieces, given up his work and his exams, and was living aloof from other students and drinking hard. No. 1 went and found him lying on the floor drunk. He paid his debts and took him to his own rooms, gave him supper, and put him to bed. On the next day he had a talk with him. He produced a piece of paper and they made a contract to keep them both straight:

"1. Neither of us to go out alone. Twenty minutes only to be allowed to go to the college and return; overtime to be accounted for. "3. One hour every night to be given over to reading other than studies.

4. That byegones be byegones." Both men put their names to this and for weeks they lived, No. 1 doing all he could to help No. 2. After a time No. 2 saw that the odd evening hour was spent by No. 1 in reading his Bible. No. 1 never spoke to him about Bible. No. 1 never spoke to him about it; he simply sat and read. . . At last No. 2 changed. What he changed he was making plans to go again to the North, to explore the four new the last I heard of the North, to explore the four new classics. to I need not say. The last I heard of them was this: No. 1 is filling an appointment of great importance in London. No. 2 passed his exams, that year with the highest university distinction, and is now in private practice.—"Prof. H. Drummond's Life," by Dr. G. A. Smith.

"Can anyone in this room tell me of a perfect man?"

There was a dead silence.
"Has anyone," he continued, "heard

What He Would Do.

In a Scotch Sunday school the superintendent had occasion to notice an absentee, and proceeded to inquire of his brother, who also attended the school, the reason of the non-appearance. It turned out that the delinquent had taken offence at his transference to a class which he supposed to be beneath his merits. The superintendent asked the brother to tell the absentee to be sure to be in his place next otherwise, continued the superintendent, "I will call and see his mother about it." Thus ended the interview, whereupon a classmate was heard to say to the boy who had got this message to deliver, "I say, Jock, if he wants to see your mother he'll hae a lot o' howkin' to dae." "Ay," chimed in a second companion, "an' even then I doot he'll no' see her." The poor mother died some years ago.

Poetry Its Own Reward.

Coleridge declared that poetry had been to him its own exceeding reward, and when offered a half-share in two London newspapers, which would probably have yielded him an Income of £2,000 a year, replied: "I will not give up the country, and the lazy reading of old folios, for two thousand times two thousand pounds!" 'Patience!" Southey used to exclaim when occasionally weary of his en-forced and ill-paid drudgery at literary ephemera. "It is, after all better than pleading in a stinking court of law, or being called up at midnight to a patient; it is better than being a patient; it is better than being a patient."

Du Camp declared that he knew of no more beautiful occupation than that of an independent and unselfish author, "I owe to it the best joys of my life and the peace of my age." Hawthorne loved his calling, though for twenty years in America, and had no incentive to effort in a reasonable prospect of fame or money-nothing, indeed, but the pleasure itself of literary composition. -The Saturday Evening Post.

Where Neckties Are Unknown.

[From the Memphis Scimitar.] "While I was over in the Arkansas mountains last winter on a hunting trip, my guide and I came across a sugar maple orchard, where two men were collecting and boiling down the sap," says a Memphis man.

"We sat around with the natives a while and ate maple sugar. When we started to leave, one of the men, who had been regarding my tie very decided to change and go and see if closely, asked the guide, in a low voice, why I wore that rag around my neck. "That's to keep his nose from bleeding,' replied the guide, who was a man of some humor.

"As we walked away I heard the natives telling each other how sorry they felt for me on account of my Discovery of the Muir Glacier.

For twenty-five years John Muir has made out of doors his realm. For more than half this time he lived and wandered alone over the high Sierras, through the Yosemite Valley, and among the glaciers of California and Alaska, studying, sketching, climbing. At night he sometimes rested luxuri-ously, wrapped in a half-blanket be-side a camp fire; sometimes, when fuel was wanting, and the way too arduous to admit of carrying his piece of blanket, he hollowed for himself a snug nest in the snow. He is no longer Harriman Expedition.

"'What do you come here for?' two Alaskan Indians once asked him, when they had accompanied him as far, through perilous ways, as he could hire or coax them to go.

"To get knowledge,' was his reply. "The Indians grunted; they had no words to express their opinion of this extraordinary lunatic. They turned back and left him to venture alone across the great glacier which now bears his name. So trifling a matter as their desertion could not deter him from his purpose. He built a cabin at the edges of the glacier, and there he settled to work, and to live for two long years. He made daily trips over that icy region of deep gorges, rugged descents and vast moraines, taking notes and making sketches, until he had obtained the knowledge, and the under-standing of knowledge, that he was after. Muir Glacier is the largest glacier discharging into the wonderful Glacier Bay on the Alaskan coast. Being the most accessible one in that region, tourists are allowed to go is a thrilling experience to the globe trotter, but to dwell there beside the glacier, to study the phenomena, en-counter perils, alone and unaided, is an experience that few besides John Muir would court."—Ainslie's Magazine.

The Lecture Abruptly Ended.

An Oxford professor was giving his pupils a lecture on "Scotland and the Scots."

"These hardy men," he said, "think nothing about swimming across the Tay three times every morning before

Suddenly a loud burst of laughter came from the center of the hall, and the professor, amazed at the idea of anyone daring to interrupt him in the middle of his lecture, angrily asked the offender what he meant by such unruly conduct.

A Nautilus for North Pole.

Jules Verne's remarkable journey to the north pole in the submarine boat Nautilus is to be paralleled in fact, unless the plans of Herr Kampe, as recently outlined before the Vienna Geographical Society, miscarry. Herr | money. Kampe's project involves going under the ice when necessary and coming up occasionally, like a walrus, to breathe, either in open water, or a hole blasted in the ice. As the boat will but carry air for fifteen hours, the plan suggests plenty of peril. Should the unbroken ice floes prove more extensive that the five miles Herr Kampe believes is the limit, and thicker than his vessel could butt through, there is good prospect that he and his crew would meet the fate that the crew of the Nautilus caped only through the inventive genius of Jules Verne. Herr Kampe's boat, which is now building at Wilhelmshaven, is ellipsoid in form, 70 feet long and 26 feet broad. Petroleum will be the motive power. Capt. Bernier, the Canadian, plans to use a strictly modern device in his polar expedition. After leaving his vessel will keep in communication with her us long as possible by means of wireless telegraphy.

Origin of "The Old Oaken Bucket."

Samuel Woodworth was the author of "The Old Oaken Bucket." A printer by trade, who served his apprenticeship at Boston, in the office of Major Russell, the publisher of the Centinel. Russell, the publisher of the Centinel. The beautiful and popular ballad had its origin under the following circumstances: He was employed in an office on the corner of Chestnut and Chambers streets, New York. One day, with a group of typos, he dropped into Mallory's in Franklin street, for the purpose of taking "some brandy and water," for which the place was noted. The liquor was excellent, and noted. The liquor was excellent, and Woodworth seemed inspired by it, for, after taking a draught he set his glass upon the table, and smacking his lips, declared that Mallory's eau de vie was superior to anything he had ever tasted. "No," said a comrade, "you quite mistake, there was one thing

No Comparison Between Them.

At the close of a lecture to the members of a certain literary society the following dialogue between a Scotsman and the lecturer took place: "Ye think a fine lot o' Shakespeare, doctor?" "I do, sir," was the emphatic reply. "An' ye think he was mair clever than Robbie Burns?" "Why, there's no comparison between them." Maybe no, but ye just told us it was Shakespeare who wrote 'Uneasy lies | If the soil is quite free from weed the head that weare a group,' Now | seed, warm and moist, so that the seed the head that wears a crown.' Now, Robbie would never have written signonsense as that." "Nonsense, sir!" thundered the indignant doctor. "Ay, jist nonsense. Robbie would ken fine that a king, or a queen either, disna gang to bed wi' the crown on his head. They hang it ower the back o' a chair." The doctor's face dropped, for he realized that his lecture had been given in vain.-Scottish Ameri-

The Growth of Character.

You cannot make a character in a day. You cannot hasten the development of character. The element of time enters into the value of reputation. Not the man who has been good for three days or three years, but the man who has added year to year, decade to decade, and who, winter and summer through, has been faithful. We are to infer that little things are often difficult things. It is sometimes easier to pay money by a check than to find coin for it. Many a man has less difficulty in drawing a check for fifty pounds than in finding some fractional sum under a sovereign. Many a rich man is often short of small coins, and has to borrow of men who are ashamed to ask for their return. We should be careful about all these things. Never borrow without meaning to pay back. Never injure what are called the minor moralities of life, the little flowers in the garden; but be strong there as elsewhere, and if we take care of these little things it will be wonderful to see how we advance and grow in things that are greater.-Rev. Dr. Parker.

Shakespeare and the Bible.

In a paper read recently on this subject, the Rev. J. B. McGovern said he had seen the statement that Freethinkers claimed the works of Shakespeare as their Bible. As a general principle, however, he might submit the proposition that Shakespeare thoroughly knew his Bible and used it well. In support of his view he quoted many authorities whose testimony he urged, proved conclusively that Shakespeare was saturated with the Bible. There were in his time three principal Christian Bibles, but that which was the favorite of the English Church and people during the latter part of the sixteenth century was undoubtedly that known as the "great Bible." That was the Bible with which Shakespeare was most familiar. Indeed, his knowledge of it was vast, and his use of it extensive. The poetry of Shakespeare was derived from the Bible, and its tone and colorings pervaded his writings. The references in Shakespeare to human life and thought were also, he said, tinged with Biblical color. There was evidence enough, he thought, to place the Freethinker in the assailable position of claiming Shakespeare as his Bible, and yet of scornfully rejecting the Bible itself.

An Irish Will.

The following is a copy of a will made by a miser in Ireland:

"I give and bequeath to my sister-inlaw, Mary Dennis, four old worsted stockings, which she will find underneath my bed; to my nephew, Charles Macartney, two other pair of stockings, lying in the box where I keep my linen; to Lieut. Johnson, of his majesty's Fifth Regiment of Foot, my only pair of white cotton stockings, and my old scarlet great-coat; and to Hannah Bourke, my housekeeper, in return for her long and faithful services, my cracked earthen pitcher."

Hannah, in anger, told the other legatees that she resigned to them her valuable share of the property, and then retired. In equal rage, Charles kicked down the pitcher; and, as it broke, a multitude of guineas burst out, and rolled along the floor. fortunate discovery induced those present to examine the stockings, which, to their great joy, were crammed with

Fresh Air Will Be Left on Your Doorstep.

A few years hence we shall have liquid air left at our houses in the granular powder which is completely morning, just as we have our milk brought to us at the present time.

Now, supposing that the time has actually arrived, and you have given your order for a quart of liquid air. What will you do with it?

First, how will it be supplied? How can it be kept? and is it safe to handle? It will be brought to your house, like milk, in protected cans, containing the desired quantity, from a quart or two up to twenty or thirty gallons. The style of the cans will doubtless vary. The simplest are Journal. nothing more than tin cylinders, closed at the bottom, but open at the top and heavily felted. In these liquid air can be kept about twenty-four hours.

You will use some of the liquid air in your refrigerator, where it will do the work of a big cake of ice. It will waste away, but the product is just air—and cold. If you want a glass of cold lemonade in summer, you have only to pour the liquid in a glass, and drop into it a half a teaspoonful of liquid air. Then watch it a moment, for it is a beautiful experiment. After dancing and bubbling and showing all manner of jewel tints for about a minute, the liquid air disappears. Your Rape Growing.

Rape requires rich land made into a fine, firm seed-bed. We find our orchard a good place for it, and as long as the rape lasts the hogs do not root to any extent. We plow the orchard shallow so as not to hurt the roots, and work the ground down fine and solid, and we usually have our best rape there. To fit the ground properly plow early at the usual depth, and drag and roll frequently till from the first to the middle of May. See that the ground is fine and firm. It should be worked over as soon after every rain as the ground will work well. This frequent working will kill nearly all the surface weeds.

will soon germinate, sow broadcast at the rate of four or five pounds to the acre, and cover with a fine harrow. If you are afraid of weeds and the ground is not as satisfactory as you like, sow in drills far enough apart so it can be cultivated in its early life. Sow from two to three pounds to the acre if drilled: twenty inches to about two feet apart is right for drills. This will depend on how awkward your horse is about cultivating. Cultivate until it is about six inches high. Rape comes up quickly on moist, warm ground, but does not seem to grow very fast until four inches high. From this on it grows very rapidly. Its slow growth the first month gives the weeds quite a start. If weeds come up too thickly so as to do harm, it is best to clip them down with a mowing mawhen the rape and weeds are about six inches high. Then the rape will come on more rapidly than the weeds and will crowd them out. This. of course, refers to sowing broadcast. In drills, the weeds are kept down by cultivation.

Do not turn live stock of any kind in till it is six or eight inches high. We think it more suitable for hogs and sheep than for other stock. It is not fit for cows, as it taints the milk. It requires a little care in turning sheep on it, as it will be likely to scour unless fed up to it gradually. It will also cause bloat in sheep or cattle if too much is fed at first. The same caution should be used as when turning on clover. We have never had hogs injured by turning in at any time, but it would do no harm to work them up to it gradually. Then you will be on the safe side. Rape is not a fertilizer, but, on the contrary, is necessarily hard on land, as all the elements required to grow it are taken from the soil, and none from the air, as with clover and peas, but as it is pastured down on the land where it grows, it leaves the soil in no worse condition for growing it, but, perhaps, leaves it a little better on account of shading and the rich manure from sheep and hogs so evenly scattered over the field.—Correspondence Country Gentleman.

Rapid Transit Garden Growth.

Successful experiments have been made recently in the forcing of the growth of asparagus in the field in winter by the help of steam. Narrow trenches about four inches deep are dug between the rows and covered with boards so as to form little tunnels. tunnels through a hose, penetrating the soil and keeping the latter moist and warm. The process has to be performed only once a day, for five minutes at a time, and the results have been quite remarkable. Within recent years salad plants, tomatoes, muskmelons, green corn, beans, and other garden products have been added one after another to the list of greenhouse crops, rendering these delicacies available for winter use and glving delight to epicures, while putting much money into the pockets of the producers. Necessarily such products are expensive, and no little interest attaches therefore to efforts which the department of agriculture is making to find means whereby persons in modest circumstances force some kinds of garden truck for their own use during the cold sea-

Plasmon, a New Dairy Product. Many new industries have been developed in the British Isles at the close of the last century. One of the most novel, and its birth is in the vicinity of Buckingham-namely, that of the manufacture from the milk of creameries, after the butter has been extracted, of the substance known by the classical name of plasmon. This substance takes its name from the Greek, meaning "that which gives

The fresh milk as it comes from the cow is put into a separator, all the cream being removed by this method. The separated milk is afterwards treated so as to coagulate all the pro-teids of the milk; and this coagulated mass is then kneaded and dried at a emperature of 70 degrees centigrade under an atmosphere of carbonic acid gas. When perfectly free from moisture, the plasmon is ground into a soluble in hot water.

As to the economic value of plasmon there can be no doubt, when it is known that the German government supply it in very large quantities to the army and navy. As a portable, concentrated nutrient, according to the German government department for the investigation of food stuffs for the troops, it has been found that one ounce of this powder is equal in nourishing and sustaining properties to three and a quarter pounds of finest beef-steak, or to about ten or twelve pints of milk.—Chambers'

Growing Cabbage After Cabbage.

It is true that cabbage after cabbage is not usually successful. This is because soil on which cabbage is grown is likely to be infested with the fungus which produces club-root. This bad disease will ruin the crop. Like the scab on potatoes the germs or spores of this disease remain in the soil and attack the succeeding crop. For the reason cabbage should not follow cabbage, turnips, or rape. In some cases the use of lime has prevented or reduced the trouble from club-root, but it is safer to plant on new ground. Cabbage is a heavy feeder, and uses up the soluble nitrogen in the soil rapidly, but if this is supplied other crops can be grown exempt for this disease.-Rural New Yorker.

Poultry Fed On Milk.

While poultry sells at a higher price than veal or pork, will it not be profitable for those who have chickens, and also have skim milk or separator milk, to use a part of it for feeding the chickens? Many experiments have proven that when used as it should be, mixed with the morning mash, it promotes growth, and if chickens are for table use it gives a very white and very fine-flavored flesh. For small chickens it should be perfectly sweet, though when they are half-grown sour milk does not seem to hurt them. It seems to be in part a substitute for meat food, and we think mixed with grain it gives better result than when given as a drink. It also seems to assist the hens or pullets in egg produci tion.

Garden Crops.

Two things are absolutely necessary in order to obtain good garden crops, within everybody's grasp, are more valuable than the riches which so many one being the use of good seed, and the other a thorough preparation of Hawthorne. the soil. When there is a failure in either of these, neither liberal manuring nor cultivation while growing will enable the gardener to get a good crop, while under these conditions we have seen very fair crops grown on land that was not very heavily manured, or cutlivated very carefully after planting. Of course, it is better that the four requisites should go together, yet the two we deem most important Steam from a boiler is forced into the the least and are the mose frequently neglected.

Fetilizing Orchards.

We always prefer to use ground bone on crops which allow it to be worked into the ground. Much bone meal is not ground fire enough. A finely powdered bone will elevate the control of the contr bone will slowly work into the ground on sod carried down into the mud by rains. It would be slow to reach the tree roots. For orchards in sod, we prefer the forms of fertility that are soluble in water, so that the plant food may be washed down past the roots of by MINARD'S LINIMENT. the grass. All forms of potash are soluble. Nitrate of soda is, we think, the best form of nitrogen for these sod orchards, and dissolved rock or bone black is better than bone, because the phosphoric acid will wash or leach down below the grass. With raw ground bone of ordinary fineness, on that sod, we should expect that the grass would get most of the phosphoric acid, the trees getting their share six months or a year after it was applied. There would not be this difference in a cultivated orchard, where the bone was thoroughly worked into the ground.-Rural New Yorker.

Conserving Soil Moisture.

Good cultivation and conserving the moisture of the soil is really producing a crop, for water is what the farmer sells mostly. With every gallon of milk the farmer sells about three and a half quarts of water, and with every ton of potatoes sold goes 1,500 pounds of water. A ton of onions contains 1,700 pounds of water; a ton of tomatoes, 1,800 pounds; a ton of squash, 1,900 pounds, and other crops contain it in various quantities. Water costs nothing, but is a very valuable substance, as the farmer cannot always get as much as he requires on his farm. The best thing he can do is to hold on to all that he has, and in order to do so must not allow weeds to have any of it, and must not permit the water to escape from the soil. If the soil is loosened after every rain so as to form a dirt mulch, the moisture in the soil will be held in check and thus reserved for crops. If the top soil is hard, not only does water escape, but weeds come up rapidly.-Philadelphia Re-

Too Much Pistol Everywhere.

[New York World.] Hardly a day passes but the crack of the pistol is heard in some part of this city, with more or less resulting mis-

In no case was there an allegation of accidental shooting, or of the "didn't know it was loaded" excuse. The pistols were out for business, and the "didn't know it was loaded" excuse. The pistols were out for business, and while one of them was in the hand of a policeman, whose plea of justification may be valid, the other two were held without license and fired with fierce intent

"Humph! so I am living wholly for myself, am I?" tartly queried madame.

"And yet I cannot believe that Lord Wallace is really unhappy," Shirley thoughtfully answered. "Of course, it must be a great trial to him that his son is a cripple, and the loss of dear ones is always a heavy grief; but I am sure that he has an inward consciousness of content that is very comforting to him. And I believe if he were to die today he would have lived a nobler, more complete, more satisfactory life; that he would step upon a broader, higher plane in another sphere than many another who has lived out the three-score and ten for himself alone."

As she concluded she turned a look of reverence toward the grove of pines where only a few hours before she had met the man of whom she was speaking. Madame eyed her curiously for a moment, then she abruptly changed the conversation, and the master of Ivyhurst was not referred to again that day. It was evident that she had never given much time to meditation upon the graver questions of life and its responsibilities, and wished to ignore them still.

It seemed as if strange incidents were destined to crowd thick and fast upon Shirley that day, for, a little later, as she was passing up the stairs on some errand, a servant handed her a card to be given to his mistress.

It bore the name of a woman of whom she had heard madame speak in no very flattering terms, and she feared she would not prove a very welcome visitor.

Proceeding to her room she gave her the card, and then stood waiting for further instructions.

"Mrs. Sandland!" exclaimed madame, with a frown of displeasure. "What brings her here, I should like to know?" Then, turning to Shirley, she said, with sudden decision. "You can go down and tell her that I am not at home."

Shirley lifted an amazed glance to the woman's face. She had never been asked to take such a message to anyone before; she had never expected to be asked to do so.

"But, madame, that would be a falsehood," she gravely remarked.

"It is a polite way of telling people that you do not wish to see them," retorted madame, irritably.

Shirley stood irresolute for a moment. Then, looking straight into madame's eyes, she said:

DAN COSTELLO'S

LAST DAY.

The Old Clown Died Singing Songs of the SIMMERS' Circus Ring.

[New York Correspondence, Pittsburg Dispatch.]

One of the little tragedies of a great city was enacted recently in a dingy saloon patronized by longshoremen near the East River. Poor old Dan Costello, the broken-down clown, died in a chair as he was singing "Garry Owen," happy that he was about to go back to the old life. Old Dan was a famous clown 30 years ago. He received the highest salary at one time of anyone with Barnum's circus. Thenmisfortune overtook him. At last he sank to the Bowery lodging-house level, with never more than the price of one meal in his pocket, and no fu-ture. Last night he wandered into Madison Square Garden, where Forepaugh's circus was opening its annual season. He met the old cronies of his younger days and the old life was upon him. The manager knew Dan, and when he had listened to his story promised to give him a chance. old fellow trudged back to his East-side haunt, almost too happy for words. He had no money for a bed, and sat in a chair in one corner of the barroom, humming "Garry Owen." Early this morning the bartender noticed he was strangely silent. A longshoreman shook him on the shoulder, but old Dan was past waking.

Forest, Ont., April 26.—(Special)—Probably the best-known man in the townships of Warwick and Bosanquet is Mr. Robt. Hall, of Arkona. Mr. Hall says:

"Five years ago last April I was kicked by a horse in the left kidney. The doctor who treated me said the kidney had turned out of its place, and I passed blood for several days.
"I did not get quite well from that until I got another kick, which caused me to pass blood again from my kid-

"I lost the power of my legs, and had to be lifted in and out of bed. I was so low that I was not expected to live from one day to the other.
"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and from the first I commence to improve, and by the time I had taken five boxes I was quite well. Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved my life.' No more startling case has ever taken place in the neighborhood of Forest, and many questions have been asked of Mr. Hall, in explanation of the very startling statements made above.

He has but one answer-"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life, and that after all the doctors had told me could not get better, and that I must Interesting Social Customs of the Spanish Colony in New York City.

Among the many foreign colonies in New York, including Greeks, Syrians, Turks, Russian Jews, Italians, Armenians, and a score of others hardly less interesting, the Spanish colony is said to be one of those most worthy the attention of the author in search of "local color." According to a write in The Evening Post, the members of this colony number about 20,000, and have their headquarters in the neighborhood of Pearl street and Maiden Lane. In the course of a study of their social customs, the writer mentions one which is of interest both from the literary and sociological standpoint. All through this Spanish quarter, he says, are cigar factories which employ large numbers of operatives, more completely organized in trades unions than the operatives in American establishments of the same nature. 'The discipline is strict, and the loud talking or hard swearing of many American factories is not tolerated, because the employes themselves would not tolerate it. But the distinctive feature of these factories is the "shop-reader," of which every stablishmnt has at last one. The

The Husband Meant Well, But He Found the Work Uncongenial.

When the general superintendent of the household department is sick there is no amount of goodwill on the part of the rest of the family that will induce things to run smoothly. In this "This functionary may be classed as a professional. He must have a good voice, a clear enunciation and an expensional as she was most needed. She was paid what was coming to her one evening, and the only notice she gave appeared in her absence next morning. Then the husband came out at his best and declared himself.

Five were accumulated in short order, and the eldest daughter suggested that he "run out with them" two at a time. He looked at her pityingly, and piled the five up like boxes. He had rubbers over his slippers, and his hat was pulled down to meet the upturned collar of his coat. "Just put that sieve full of dry garbage on top," he directed. Un-fortunately there is strong reason to believe that the lively but imaginative Frenchman never crossed the Orange river at all. An old Boer lady, who lived toward the Orange, and knew Le Vaillaint well, and who survived far into this century, always stoutly declared that the Frenchman neither crossed the river nor shot a giraffe. As these animals were never in modern times found south of the Orange. ern times found south of the Orange, it is clear that if Le Vaillant never crossed the river, he could never have shot a camelopard. He has been convicted of deliberate untruths and gross "faking" in regard to his birds and bird-skins, and his own evidence on giraffe hunting is, therefore, scarcely to be received without corroboration, which it entirely lacks. It is a pity, for Le Vaillant could write well and is always amusing.

one of these creatures, the Masarwa has, however, to exercise infinite patiways of this game, as of all other beasts of the veldt, by heart; it is to lies in ambush, or, with the greatest care and stealth, stalks up to the giraffe, and, when close at hand, discharges his little bone-tipped arrow, well smeared with a deadly poison, into the softest part of the giraffe's skin, usually the under parts of the animal, or between the legs. On so huge a frame—a giraffe stands 18 feet high and weighs a ten—the poison takes some time to do its work; but presently it begins to tell. Hour after hour, sometimes for a day or two, the bushman follows on the spoor of his prey; until at length he finds it dead or dy-ing, and with his spear hastens its last moments. Then ensues a glut of flesh, and the Masarwa and his family and friends are for days in a seventh heaven of delight.

Marriage should add to woman's happiness, rather than subtract from it. If women understood how intimately the general health is related to the local health of the womanly organs, they would appreciate the fact that there is no need to suffer from weakness and backache. The use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. It regulates the periods, heals inflammation and ulcera-

GIRAFFE HIDE VERY TOUGH. GIRAFFE.

There can be no doubt that, by means of pitfalls and other contrivances, African hunters in various parts of the Dark Continent have for ages been in The strong scent of giraffes noticed chase. Horses that have not been accustomed to giraffes are at first much scared by it. I remember in my first giraffes. Even down to the present time the Masarwa bushmen of the Kalahari desert manage to kill these gigantic and extremely thick-skinned animals by means of bows and poisoned arrows. To effect the downfall of they raced away in front scared him for a time very uncomfortably. How-ever, I got him straight at last, and he He knows that the habits and went very well afterward. More often than not they are, when found by the hunter, browsing amid thin woodlands of Kameeldoorn acacia, interspersed with thorny bush. If the sportsman wishes to secure his game he must follow the tall beasts as they go plunging into these fastnesses, dodg-ing trees and ducking their long, swan-

> A MIGHTY NIMROD'S YARN. I shall never forget the sight of my hunting comrade at the conclusion of his second gallop after giraffes in the forest country of the North Kala-hari. Led by bushman hunters we were spooring these animals a mile or so apart. I heard my friend's rifle go twice and made my way in his direction. I came upon him presently, in an open glade, standing over a gigantic old bull giraffe which he had brought down. He himself had suffered frightfully from thorns; he had no coat on (we usually rode in our flannel shirts with the sleeves rolled up); his chest, shoulders and arms were bleeding from fifty deep thorn wounds; his torso was practically naked, and his shirt hung about him in lamentable rags. Thanks to the excitement of that triumphal moment, however, he recked little of his wounds, and as I rode up and dismounted, gazed from me with pleasure to that gigantic dappled form stretched at his feet. His horse, knee-haltered, and grazing close by, was also much punished by the cruel thorns. No one who has not hunted in Africa can have any conception of the immense shoot ruthlessly giraffe after giraffe, strength, sharpness and variety of the as Boer and native hunters do, merely thorns with which the various acacia bushes and trees of that country are furnished. The Boers classify them as "wait-a-bit," hook thorns, stick thorns and hook and stick thorns. The stick thorns are the long, white, pointed weapons of the acacia, horrida, often three or four inches in length, and of terrible sharpness. There are other varieties.

SCOTCH COSTUME IN THE BUSH. How Gordon Cumming could hunt, as he undoubtedly did, in a kilt and bare knees, is a matter of wonder to all South African sportsmen. I have seen old natives in Secheli's and Khama's countries, in the Bechuanaland Protectorate, who well remembered that mighty Nimrod, his kilt, his red hair and beard, his courage and his marvelous exploits. He had a glorious time, indeed, in a country practically virgin to the white hunter, and in those days teeming with game, a country which never till then had heard the sound of a rifle. We ourselves, after suffering considerably from thorns in these headlong gallops after giraffe, used to put on our cord coats the giraffe on horseback, one of the most glorious and exciting of all forms of hunting, properly known and appreciated. Harris, after an unsuccessful attempt in which he and his horse were left behind, soon discovered that the secret of giraffe hunting is to force animals beyond their pace, to ride right up to them, and firing from the saddle, bring them down at close quarters. To do this one must urge one's horse to its highest speed, and as the wonderful troops of long-necked creatures go sailing away in front, stick to them until the pace tells and they begin gradually to come back to the horse, an animal naturally more adapted for a long and fatiguing gallop at a tremendous pace. These tactics told, and presently after a number of discharges—firearms were but feeble weapons in 1837—Capt. Harris brought down his first giraffe. "Bowing his graceful head from the skies," says the hunter, "his proud form was prostrate in the dust. Never shall I forget the tingling excitement of that moment. Paterson, a British officer, slew his first giraffe just beyond the Orange River, in the country of the Namaquas, in 1777, this animal was looked upon by most as fabulous, a mere chimera to be relegated to the regions of fiction.

Le Vaillant, the French ornithologist and traveler, followed Gordon at an interval of about six years. He found and shot, so he says, convey to the sportsman what it is to ride in the midst of a troop of gigan-tic giraffes; it must be experienced to be understood; they emitted a power-ful perfume, which in the run came hot in my face reminding me of the smell of a hive of hearther honey in September. The greater part of this chase led through bushes of wait-a-bit thorn of the most effective description, and my legs and arms were covered with blood long before I had finished the giraffe." Mr. F. C. Selous well indorses Gordon Cumming's enthusiastic description. "It struck me as a glorious sight," he says, "to see these huge beasts dashing along in front, clattering over the Edouard Beaupre, the young Canadian giant, who is at present giving exhibitions in Montreal, is a most remarkable specimen of humanity. is only 20 years old, but already measures seven feet eight inches, weighs 387 pounds and wears a number 27 boot. This remarkable man was born at Willow Bush, Assiniboia, N. W.

at Willow Bush, Assimbola, T. His father, a farmer of that district, was only five feet eight inches in height, and his mother's height was five feet four inches. While there was nothing remarkable about the parents, Beaupre has a brother who, while only eight years of age, measures already five feet, and it is believed he will in time exceed his brother's height. Beaupre, since the age of the research and the same of the same o of ten years has been employed as a cowboy in the northwest and western states, and is proficient in the use of the lasso and a splendid shot. Medical men who have examined him are of the opinion that he will grow still taller. His great height is not at first very apparent, as he is very round-shouldered, but when he throws his shoulders back and draws himself up to his full height his appearance is re markable. When he arrived at the hotel in Montreal it was impossible When he arrived at the to find a bed large enough to accommodate him, and two matresses had to be placed end to end for him to sleep on. He showed his great strength by having three men sit on his left arm and then raising them to a height of seven feet and replacing them on the ground. Beaupre was injured internally by being thrown from a horse in Kentucky last summer, and is in Montreal for medical treatment. He is giving exhibitions to defray his

DINING ROOM SPLENDOR

London's Latest Table Decorations-Scarlet for Color, Gold for Plate-All Very Fine.

The dinner table for gala occasions this spring will be the most magnificent seen for many a long day. Not only is scarlet to be the favorite color for flowers, but gold is to be used instead of silver plate. The fashionable flower is nerine, a spiked scarlet blossom on a tall stem, says the London

Daily Mail. Only on the tables of the very wealthy will this magnificence be met, though even in moderately dowered houses little touches of gold, in the shape of salt celiars, pepperettes and mustard pots will certainly be the spring novelty, so many and so lovely are the ones being sold in the shops The reason gold is coming into fashion again is that silver is so very inexpensive that people who afore-times were satisfied with it as a possession now order gold intead. At a less ceremonious party-for example, at luncheon one sees all sorts of quaint conceits designed to make the table look novel, and also to en-courage conversation of a sprightly and effervescent character. For example, a west end firm is at this time sending out groups of negroes hold-ing big baskets full of flowers in their arms. That once favorite ornament, the swan in full feather, has been resuscitated in the form of a brooding dove, of which it is smart to order quite half a dozen of varying sizes to be arranged at the corners of the table, or in groups around the center-piece The doves hold colored bonbons and flowers alternately.

The old method of using a center spread has rather revived again, and for this season military scarlet is to be the rage, decorated with gold braid. One firm is going the length of using real military cloth instead of silk or

Mahogany dining-room tables of an antique type are still in great demand and both luncheon and dinner are often served on the bare table, with mats for the dishes and plates. Any amount of ingenuity may be lavished upon these mats, and an exceedingly charming notion is to make them resemble red autumn leaves, and lines and veins are worked in em-broidery silk to make them look as natural as possible.
