RESPONSIBLE PARTY IN DUBLIN SHOOTING "OUGHT TO BE HANGED"

Declared Members of the Nationalist Party in the House of Commons Yesterday Dealing With Sunday's Tragedy

CHIEF SECRETARY PLACES THE BLAME

On An Assistant Police Commissioner, Who Requisitioned the Military On His Own Responsibility

London, July 28.—Information as to "the shocking occurrence in Dublin on Sunday," as John Redmond, Irish Nationalist leader, put it, was demanded immediately after the opening of the session in the Commons.

Redmond was so dissatisfied with the meagre information given him that he moved an adjournment of the House in order to debate the matter. Chief Secretary Birrell threw the blame for the conflict between the troops and the public, on an assistant police commissioner, who, he said, had requisitioned the military on his own responsibility. The official had consequently been suspended, while an enquiry was being held. The Nationalist members shouted: "He ought to be hanged."

Without Orders? Birrell said the major in command of the King's Own Scottish Borderers had denied he had given orders to fire on the people. The soldiers, Birrell continued, became exasperated after several of them had received severe injuries. The officers stopped the firing immediately, but three people had already been killed and thirty-two injured. He added there would be a full enquiry immediately. The Lord Mayor of Dublin telegraphed Redmond as follows: "It is my opinion that the people responsible for the orders to fire should be indicted by the Crown, and that their defence should be made before a jury."

Redmond's Speech. Redmond compared "this monstrous business" with the parades of armed volunteers in Belfast, to such a state of impotence has the British Government been reduced in Ireland. He said that subordinate officials are able to call in soldiers without consulting the Executive of the country.

"I expect and hope that the Irish people will not blame the troops too much," he concluded amid cheers. Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, blamed Deputy Commissioner Harrell for his astonishing lack of discretion.

Harrell has assumed the whole responsibility, but the Chief Secretary put the question up to Commissioner Ross as to whether he associated himself with what had been done, and declared that if he did, he would be suspended also.

Blamed Government. Andrew Bonar Law declared the Government's policy was responsible for the tragedy. The Government should have enforced law in Ulster from the outset, or if it doubted its authority to do so, it should have gone to the people for that authority. The Prime Minister defended the Government's impartiality in the attempts to prevent the importation of arms. Since the proclamation had been issued, he said, the number of arms imported into Ireland had been infinitely small.

Harrell's action in summoning the military after arms had been landed was an entirely new departure. He concluded, "The difficulties in Ireland are due to attempts in this House to govern a people they cannot understand by a Parliament imperfectly equipped for the task."

He warned Opposition who were hoping to come in power that the Government of Ireland would prove an impossible task until the Home Rule Bill became law.

Miss Jean Mott left by the Fogota to-day, on a visit to friends at Bay de Verde.

DUBLIN AFFAIR QUEERS PLANS OF THE GOV'T.

And Has Forced Asquith To Delay Consideration of Amending Bill

IRISH MEMBERS ARE EXASPERATED

And in No Mood to Consider Further Concessions of Ulster

London, July 27.—The first effect of the Dublin tragedy has been to smash Asquith's plans for taking up the Amendment Bill to-morrow.

The Premier announced to-day the matter has been indefinitely postponed. Irish members are so exasperated over the killing of four persons and the wounding of thirty others in the clash yesterday between the regular troops and Nationalist volunteers, that they are in no frame of mind to grant concessions to Ulster Unionists. Many Liberals support them.

Been Suspended. The Government announced in the Commons to-day that Deputy Police Commissioner Harrell, who ordered out the troops, had been suspended, that the superior commissioner, Sir John Ross, who expressed a desire to share the responsibility, had resigned his office. A special inquiry will be held, probably by a judicial commission. Meanwhile the demand for the removal of the Scottish Borderers from Dublin was not granted, largely because any attempt to march them out would be the signal for an attack by mobs. They will remain prisoners in barracks until the anger of the people has cooled.

Are Much Irritated. Nationalist members of Parliament held a meeting this afternoon and showed more animosity against the Castle than the Government, considering Viceroy Aberdeen's official family prejudice against the Nationalists. A heated discussion was started in the House of Commons by John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, who demanded an impartial inquiry into the conduct of the troops and their punishment if the shooting was not justified. He demanded also that the regiment should be removed from Ireland and said that the proclamation against the importation of arms into Ireland should be withdrawn because it constituted a serious danger that the law be not administered impartially.

He called for the suspension of Sir John Ross, police commissioner at Dublin and said "We had an experience of him in the Larkin riot. He is unfit to hold his office, as he is a well-known political partizan."

SERIOUS RIOTS NOW IN DUBLIN

Dublin, July 28.—Serious rioting began here last night, and the city is in a state of intense excitement. The authorities fear it will be necessary to call upon the militia, which will mean much bloodshed.

COMMISSIONER WAS SUSPENDED

Dublin, July 28.—Assistant Commissioner Military was suspended from duty pending an enquiry.

Sixteen policemen, suspended for refusing to obey orders, have been placed under arrest, and ordered to remain in barracks, but they refused to obey.

CABOT SECURED 5 WHALES ONLY

The whaler Cabot which arrived from Balena Saturday has sailed for Snook's Arm. She was unsuccessful at Balena, securing only five fish.

RUSSIA TELLS THE GERMANS TO KEEP OUT

Mobilises the Part of Her Army on the Borders Of Austria

FURTHER MOVE, IF GERMANS ACT

Generally Believed Austria Will Hesitate to Push Matters to Any Extreme

London, July 28.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says the Russian Emperor left Monday night for Finland, and adds "That matters have become calmer, I may quote the sentence used by the Emperor at the close of a Grand Council on Saturday.—'We have stood this sort of thing for seven and half years, that is enough.'"

Thereupon His Majesty authorized the issue of orders for a partial mobilization confined to the fourteenth army corps on the Austrian frontier, and at the same time an intimation was given to Germany that orders for the mobilization of the Russian army would follow immediately upon the mobilization by Germany.

These words and acts are believed to be largely responsible for a sudden change in the international situation. The general impression in diplomatic circles is that Austria has gained so much by Serbia's acceptance of the terms of the ultimatum, that it is difficult to believe she would risk war with Russia and a European conflagration by driving Serbia to the wall.

SERVIA EXPECTS HELP OF RUSSIA

And This Expectation is Encouraging King and People to Resist Austria's Demands to the Last—Both Sides Prepare for War

Berlin, July 27.—Reports circulated throughout Serbia that King Peter is assured of Russia's support in war with Austria, have aroused a greater determination to resist to the last the demand contained in Austria's ultimatum.

The entire Serbian army is being mobilized. Crown Prince Alexander will take command in the field. All preparations are being made for the defence of Nish, which is now serving as the capital of the Kingdom. The Parliament, Court, National Bank, in fact the entire Government has been transferred to Nish.

Austrians Mobilizing. Across the Danube the Austrian troops are mobilizing for attack. Austrians have been moving up and down the Danube carrying materials for bridges, and other equipment necessary for the invasion, while large forces of the army are massed at Semlin.

Belgrade is all but deserted. The panic-stricken inhabitants poured out of the city, following the withdrawal of the garrison, fearing that the Austrians would bombard the town at any moment.

RUSSIAN STRIKE IS NOW BROKEN

And All The Workmen Have Gone Back To Their Jobs

St. Petersburg, July 28.—Workmen in the capital, who had been on strike for a week, have decided to resume work.

In order to emphasize their approval of the Government's support of Serbia, they made patriotic demonstrations at the streets and sang the Russian National Anthem.

WEATHER REPORT

Toronto (noon)—Fresh westerly to north-westerly winds; generally fair and comparatively cool.

RUN NEW LINE OF BOATS SOUTH FROM NEWFDLAND

London, July 28.—David Campbell of the Elder Dempster Line, gave out in an interview that he had been discussing with the London management of the line the advisability of inaugurating a service between Newfoundland, Brazil and Argentine, with the object of extending the salt fish trade from Newfoundland.

The movement is considered especially timely, now that the Norwegian Government has subsidized a service in that trade between Norway and South American countries.

It is proposed that the Elder Dempster line seek a Government subsidy for the purpose of extending the Newfoundland trade.

HOPE TO LIMIT HOSTILITIES

German Papers Find Reason To Believe That Field of War Operations Will Be Localised—France Trying To Keep Russia Out

Berlin, July 27.—Berlin papers are disposed to find grounds for hope that the Austro-Serbian conflict may be localized.

News that Austria is delaying the crossing of the Danube has awakened hope that interchanges of views between the chief capitals of Europe may result in checking an outbreak of hostilities, until Serbia finds means of satisfying Austria's demands.

Much attention is given to alleged expressions by French diplomats that France means to hold aloof and leave Serbia to her fate, unless Russia is attacked by another power. The fact that France is making strong exertions at St. Petersburg, to dissuade Russia from interfering, is regarded as promising.

INTERNATIONAL INTERVENTION

London, July 28.—The Governments of France and Italy have accepted the proposal of Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, that a conference be called with the object of finding a solution of the Austro-Serbian situation.

NO PRESSURE FOR AUSTRIA

Germany Won't Agree to the Powers Bringing Any Undue Influence to Bear On that Empire in Present Dispute

Berlin, July 28.—Berlin morning papers note the significance of the fact that Sir Edward Grey's proposal contemplates only mediation between Austria and Russia, not between Serbia and Austria.

Well informed circles assume that Germany is disposed to regard the British Foreign Secretary's proposal sympathetically, but to act only within limits wholly agreeable to Austria. Any scheme of mediation distasteful to Vienna will forthwith be rejected as an attempt to exert undue pressure on Austria.

HOLLANDERS GET ON THE JOB

The Hague, July 28.—The chief of the general staff of the Dutch army and the Minister of Marine have decided to cut short their holidays and returned to the capital, where active steps are being taken by the authorities for the maintenance of Holland's neutrality, in the event of war.

RUSSIA FACES PROBABILITY OF A REVOLUTION

Great Deal of Unrest Marks Affairs in Big Northern Empire

MUCH OF IT DUE TO LABOR TROUBLES

And the Recent Big Strikes Have Been Political as Well as Industrial

London, July 26.—The news reaching the outside world regarding the strike at St. Petersburg and other big cities of the Czar's dominion, according to the Russian correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, failed to give an adequate idea of its dimensions or its true character.

Those who have had an opportunity to follow at more or less close quarters the developments of Russia within recent years know that the present great strikes, attended as they are by street demonstrations under the red flag and by sanguinary conflicts with the police, are but one phase of the recrudescence of the revolutionary movement.

This recrudescence has been noticeable since the assassination of Premier Stolypin, and is daily acquiring new force and new impetus from the thoroughly reactionary policy of the government.

Warned Government

Such moderates as Greutchoff, the leader of the Octobrists, men of such political and social standing as Baron Rosen, former Russian ambassador to Tokio and Pekin, and such leaders of the commercial world as Falazkin, chairman of the association of Russian Chambers of Commerce, have all in turn, within the last year or two, loudly warned the government that persistence in its present policy would lead to a second and still more formidable revolution; but the autocracy, inspired by Rasputin and men of the Purishkevich type, sees no further than its own nose, with the inevitable result that discontent is growing in all classes of society.

The Lena massacres, the forcible suppression of strikes, the persecution of the labor press, the dissolution of trades unions—all this, and much more add to the exasperation of the members of the working class, with whom political strikes have therefore become the order of the day. Every year the number and extent of these strikes increases at an amazing rate, and two-thirds of them are purely political.

Reflex of Strike

In the present instance the movement is a reflex of the general strike at Baku, where fearful conditions of labor, coupled with the tyranny of the police authorities, have brought about a general revolt of labor, which has now lasted for several weeks. Many other industrial cities have proclaimed a general strike, which has a sinister resemblance to those of 1905.

The present movement may run out its present course without immediate results. But the general lines of the working class movement in Russia cannot be obliterated and these lead straight to a renewal of the national struggle against irresponsible government.

START 30 MILES S. OF ST. JOHN'S

This Was Place Chosen By Porte's Representative While Here

New York, July 24.—A site thirty-three miles south of St. John's, Nfld., has been selected as the starting place of the transatlantic flight of the air boat America. Walter D. Walker, who went to St. John's three weeks ago to select a place for the departure of the America, returned yesterday. The site selected, he said, was near Cape Broyle, on a long stretch of sand and so sheltered as to provide ample protection against adverse winds.

Mr. R. A. Mathieson, Supreme Secy. of the Forresters will arrive next week on a visit to the Courts in St. John's.

COSSACKS FIRED ACROSS BORDER

Into Germany At a Group of Officers and Germans are Annoyed

Eyathkunen, Germany, July 28.—Shots were fired by a Cossack Patrol across the German frontier on the alleged ground that an attempt was made to cross the border at the wrong place. Germans say that the group fired upon by the Russians were army officers.

Much feeling has been caused by the incident.

OROZCO TO GIVE UP THE FIGHT?

Mexico City, July 28.—General Orozco, Jr., has abandoned his independent revolutionary movement and intends shortly to leave for Canada, according to messages intercepted here.

RUSSIA BOUND TO BE IN MIX-UP

Washington, July 28.—The gravity of the European situation, is reflected, in an official despatch from St. Petersburg, saying that the Minister of War has expressed himself that war between Russia and Austria is almost inevitable.

OCEAN LINERS IN COLLISION

London, July 28.—The British steam siph Missouri passed Gravesend last evening with her bows damaged, and reported having been in collision with the Red Star steamer Zealand, the damage to which vessel is not known.

GREAT POWERS WILL ARBITRATE

Conference of Their Representatives to be Held in London to Attempt a Reconciliation of Serbia and Austria

London, July 28.—Lack of confirmation of the reports of a hostile encounter on the Danube between Serbian and Austrian troops, and Sir Edward Grey's efforts to obtain consent of the leading European nations to mediation, led to the belief to-day of the possibility of avoiding an armed conflict between European nations.

Germany Agreeable

Germany and Italy are said to have agreed with the principle of the British Foreign Secretary's proposal of a conference between the Ambassadors of the leading powers, in London.

Attention of the Chancelleries of Europe has been turned to the attitude of Emperor William after his conference with his advisers on his return to Germany, and also the activities of Russian preparations.

N.S. LUMBER CO. HAS ASSIGNED

Yarmouth, July 27.—David Saunders, one of the biggest lumber operators in the Province of Nova Scotia, has assigned.

ST. PETERSBURG STILL HOPEFUL

St. Petersburg, July 27.—In spite of the generally unfavorable symptoms in the situation between Austria and Serbia, a better feeling is noticeable here to-day, as the result of yesterday's diplomatic conversations.

PASTOR TO HELP OUT BASHFUL

Muskogee, Okla., July 26.—Rev. E. D. Cameron, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, has offered to take upon himself the duty of proposing marriage to any young woman of the congregation in behalf of any young man in the church who desires to marry her.

The same proposition applies to the young women if they desire to submit such proposal to the young men. Utmost secrecy in all negotiations is promised by the pastor.

VILLA TO SET UP NEW REPUBLIC IN N. MEXICO?

This is Prediction of American Army and Navy Authorities

PRESIDENCY NOT FOR CARRANZA

If Villa Has His Way—Doesn't Want Military Man in the Job

Washington, July 25.—That General Villa would break finally with Genl. Carranza and his followers and proclaim a republic in the northern portion of Mexico within six weeks is the prediction of army and navy officers. Reports have reached Washington that this was the underlying cause for the first break with Carranza, the settlement of which Villa has agreed to postpone until the constitutionalists are in possession of Mexico City.

Villa Against It

It is deemed almost certain that Villa will not agree to permit Carranza or any of his generals to assume the office of provisional president of Mexico, or to be candidates in a general election to be held later.

Villa, it is declared, will proclaim a new republic in the north consisting of the States of Chihuahua, Coahuila and Sonora. Substance is given the report by Villa's peculiar actions since the taking of Zacatecas. His return to the north with the bulk of his followers instead of following up his victories, with the certain prospect of capturing Mexico City, is admitted even by rebel representatives here to have ominous significance.

COMMISSIONERS REACH THE CITY

News of The Outports

WEATHER POOR FISHERY BAD

Strong Breezes of Wind Hinder the Fishermen of Joe Batt's Arm

Joe Batt's Arm, July 17.—Weather conditions here are very poor indeed, which greatly hampers the progress of our fishermen.

Strong breeze W. S. W. wind, which cause a strong tide and greatly hinders our people from working traps. Fish very scarce with traps; little doing with cod nets. Extreme heat to-day, thermometer registered 85 degrees in the shade.

Constable Shave here to-day collecting taxes from dog owners on account of sheep and goats being killed by them in the past.

Strong Wind and Tide
Saturday, July 18.—Wind S. W., strong breeze. Only few traps hauled to-day owing to strong tide; fish scarce. Thermometer registered 86 in the shade. Business brisk and lively at the F.P.U. premises to-day.
Monday, July 20.—Moderate winds and variable. Fish scarce with cod traps; little doing with cod nets; Caplin plentiful.

President Arrives
Tuesday, July 21.—Foggy at early morning, but afterwards became beautiful and fine. President Coaker arrives in the 'F.P.U.' Immediately everything and everybody becomes bright, brilliant and cheerful. Bunting flew in all its brilliancy and music sounded in full force, which indicated a joyous welcome to our esteemed President. After an hour's stay he left for Little Fogo Islands, the clerk of the Union store accompanying him as pilot.

Union Meeting
After visiting there and Barr'd Islands he returned again to Joe Batt's Arm and held a Union meeting in the S.U.F. Hall. The building was thronged and all present had the pleasure of listening to the greatest of all addresses delivered by our President. Most certainly did every Union man come forth from that building with greater and more renewed vigor and ambition to push onward and ever upward the glorious and noble work of the F.P.U. in every and all respects.

Visited Tiltling
Wednesday, July 22.—Weather dull, wind S. E. President Coaker left here for Tiltling; many Union friends accompanied him. Fish very scarce with traps and trawls. President returns from Tiltling and inspects store and leaves again on his business career with all the hearty good wishes that our people can bestow.
Thursday, July 23.—Moderate winds E. to S. E. Weather dull; fishery prospects very discouraging. Traps averaging 35 qtls.; hook and line men about 9 to date.

Friend John Cannings & Sons of Birch Bay, has just arrived, and intends putting in some time at the fishery. We understand that Friend Cannings contemplates going into the fishery on a large basis next season.

WORST FISHERY FOR SOME YEARS

Catch Short and Business Naturally Dull at Winterton

Winterton, July 20.—No improvement in fishery to date; one trap this evening about 4 qtls. Hook and line nothing; won't average 2 qtls. per boat. Worst fishery around here for some years.

Friend Luther George arrived to-day from Baccalleu Island with small catch and reports fish very scarce around there, nothing like other years. He takes supplies and sails again to-morrow. We hope he will find fish plentiful this trip.

Schr. Hagar, Capt. J. Seaward, called here to-day to land freight for Mr. E. J. Sansom and left again this afternoon for New Perlican.

Business Bit Dull
Nothing new in business circles, still a little dull, but the F.P.U. store is doing its part of the trade. Glad to see some of the friends from Hant's Harbor visiting the store on Saturday.

July 22.—Hook and line nothing; some traps about 2 qtls., others none. Dogfish numerous, and some of our friends are trying to catch some turbot which we hear will find ready market at a fair price.

S.S. Ethie called here to-day and landed some freight for the F.P.U. store.

We hear lots of our friends cooperating this week, making barrels, for which they find a ready sale.

FOG HORN GROANS AT GREENSPOND

May be Troubled about Poor Fishery—Things Brighten When Coaker Comes

Greenspond, July 24.—Since President Coaker's arrival here the fishery has increased somewhat; just as many of our men expected.

Something like the F.P.U. is the quality of the fish here at present, for the size is something worth looking at, although the quantity is not compared with the many thousands that the F.P.U. now possess.

Trawls from 3 qtls, some two qtls. per day. Those who buy fish from the North Side of Bonavista Bay this year can depend on getting the No. 1 article which should fetch $8.00.

Fog Alarm.
The thing that was promised for five years has now made some heavy groans, and should have been there for twenty years past. This is a great advantage to our fishermen and sailors in this bay, especially to strangers making the land in thick weather.

Lobsters very scarce—not enough to mention.
Salmon. There has been no salmon fishery at all this year, but the had-dock has made its appearance and promises for a fairly good catch of codfish if the best is available. The bait depot must be the next thing for our fishermen.

If there are any men in the world who need the sympathy of the "land-lover" it is the fishermen. Will the Governor as well as the President of the F.P.U. show sympathy?

To Be Launched
Mr. A. J. House's new vessel is expected to be launched on August 6th. It will be a hot day for those in charge, as the place for launching is very difficult. Her name is yet unknown.

The F.P.U. is about to build a new store on the premises now occupied at present and intends building another block to the wharf so that the s.s. 'Can't Lose' can discharge coals and provisions.

There are promising signs of a big rush this fall. Everybody is doing it now! What? Talking about the advancement of the F.P.U. and Coaker.

Winds southerly and easterly, but moderate. —Cor.—

ONE COAL CARGO SAVED PLACE $400

And Twilligate Folk Are Duly Thankful to Coaker And the F.P.U.

Twilligate, July 20.—Last week we heard a steamer's whistle blowing away out in the fog. Some of the folks were wondering what steamer it was. As I was standing near I heard a Union man say "That is the 'Can't Lose,' formerly the 'Kintail,' coming with a load of coal."

Our hearts beat with joy to think we were going to get our coal at a reasonable price.
Sure enough we saw her head break in through the fog and commanded by Captain Martin Phillips, one of Twilligate's brave captains and formerly a great fish killer.

The next morning quite early you could hear her winches going; and horses and skiffs rushing to get a share of coal, as they were saving a dollar and ten cents on a ton.

Save Them $400

Over $400 were saved to Twilligate people on this one load of coal. I suppose that was what was worrying the prominent business man that I saw by Saturday's Sun informed Billy that the 'Can't Lose' didn't pay the regular fee for discharging at the coastal wharf. But I can inform Billy and all other Union haters, that the Trading Company can pay wharfage as well as they.

I can also inform our readers that Billy would have been glad to get his coal from her if he could have got it. So you see he is a bit jealous because Magistrate Scott got his at such a bargain.

I think Billy and the prominent business man had better mind their own business or else they will both be dealt with before very long.

Worried About It

I also see by the Sun that Billy and others want to know what becomes of the money that is collected for wharfage. Can Billy inform us what becomes of the dog taxes?

I see by The Advocate that our worthy President has left the city for a visit down north. We are looking forward for him to call at Twilligate.

We have closed our Council for the summer as most of our members are away at the fishery. We are hoping they will return with bumper trips, as fish is very scarce around here at present. Hope it will be better later on.

We have had a very good herring fishery—quite a few dollars earned at it.

COAL FOR THE POOR

The "Can't Lose" will bring a load of coal from Sydney for disposal at St. John's in about 10 days. Orders now booked. Price $6.50 delivered. Orders should be left at the office of the Trading Co. The quantity is limited and this chance may not offer again before Christmas.—jy1,tt

TRAPS DO LITTLE AT FOGO NOW

But There Is No Great Improvement—President Got Rousing Welcome

Fogo, July 16.—Fishery same as last report no improvement with hook and line. Traps doing a little. The schr. Northern Light, has discharged her load of salt at J. W. Hodges, and left again.

The Bank of Nova Scotia has a branch started here. We wish them every success. It is in the house occupied by Mr. Critch, the cooper, who is removing his family to St. John's, and Mr. Mann, the manager, will take possession of the house.

A Hustler

July 12.—J. W. Hodges' coaster Maggie Sullivan, Capt. Baxter Cheater, arrived from St. John's with a general cargo. Capt. Baxter can't be beaten as skipper of a coaster, for when he's not to put her head under her wing Baxter is all there.

Rev. J. O. Britnell, who was attending the Synod, has returned. We are pleased to have him back again.

Capt. A. Roberts, schr. Springdale, has arrived and is discharging salt to Earle, Sons & Co. When discharged she will proceed to Horwood to load lumber for the Horwood Lumber Co. Heavy thunder and lightning last night with rain, which kept up till this morning. Weather more summer-like now. Wind S. W. fine.

Mr. Thos. Humphries took 8 qtls. of fish out of his cod nets to-day. Traps 2 to 6 qtls.

July 21.—President Coaker arrived here last evening. He came unexpectedly, but the news quickly spread around and the friends began to muster round the Union store with their guns and soon the whole harbor rang out with the sound of musketry. Our ranks are small but the President is always assured a ready welcome when he arrives.

On landing the President was met by our worthy Chairman, Charles Woolridge, and after inspecting the Union cash store took tea with the Chairman, after which he walked to Seal Cove and inspected Morris's monument, the Government wharf.

Glad to See Him

All the friends were glad to see our President. He held no meeting as only a few of our friends were at home. He left this morning for Joe Batt's Arm and Fogo Islands.

May God speed our President and return him safe back to town, is the wish of all Fogo friends.

Friend Thos. Peckford, of Union cash store, Change Islands, came with the President on the "F.P.U." and returned home this morning in his brother's motor boat.

No So Bright

Fishery outlook not so bright to-day. Schr. Springdale has discharged her salt and left to-day for Horwood to load lumber.

July 22.—Wind S. East, strong breeze. Traps doing nil. Cod nets doing a little.

Mr. Samuel Churchill has passed away to the Great Beyond. He has been ailing for a long time. Cancer of the lip was the trouble. He was a member of the S.U.F. and L.O.A.

Mr. Wm. Earle, of Earle, Sons &

Co., has returned from St. John's and his business seems to be rushing now. We hear that the Union fish buyer, Mr. Hickman, will buy his fish this summer.

SOME ARE TAKING UP THEIR TRAPS

Newtown Fishery This Season Little Better Than A Total Failure

Newtown, July 24.—Some of our people are taking up their traps today thinking that the trapping season is over, and the result is a very poor voyage. A few of the lucky ones have reached their four score; but many are yet in their "teen's." A little better would have been done if the weather had not been so stormy. The westerly winds of the 17th and 18th made things far worse and did big injury to the fishery in those shallow waters.

Friend Jesse Stokes, Humphries Brothers, Darius Vincent, Sam Perry and a few more of our good unionists are among the high liners with traps.

The hookers and trawlers have done very poor as yet. Many are of opinion that a nice bit of fish will be got with the cod nets. Some of friends have done well the last few days. But Mr. dog fish has made his appearance on the grounds and you may be sure he is not a welcome guest. Some people lost good hauls in their nets today and yesterday owing to his unwelcome attention.

Almost Total Failure

Anyhow, on the whole, it is a little better than a total failure; the worst for many years up to date.

Some of our people have had letters and messages from their friends away in schooners and not many have been successful as yet. A few in the Straits have got a little.

We hear that friend George Bishop the union hustler at Wesleyville, is coming with 300 qtls., and his brother Noah with about the same catch.

The lobster fishery is not as good as last year, yet our lobster men are expecting to do well as the price offered is far above that of last year.

One buyer here is offering $30.00. I wonder what the buyers at St. John's, that wanted to fix the price at 22.50, think of this.

Nice Hauls

July 23.—Most of the traps at Cape Island did a little today, and some at Newtown that have them on the outside ground had nice hauls.

Friend R. Hiscott, of Greenspond, and others, working their nets at Pouch Island, did well today, from two to nine quintals.

July 25.—Traps today from two to eight quintals; morning hauls. Nets not as good as yesterday.

Mr. Dogfish very troublesome. Caplin now off from the shore and lying in deeper water. If weather is suitable the netters expect to do a little for a few days.

Rev. Cotton took away one of our young ladies to be his partner on a matrimonial voyage. He left here on the 21st to take up his circuit work. One and all wish them every success and a happy life.

TALK IS CHEAP—

Advertising is also very cheap, if carried in the right medium. The Mail and Advocate is the Can't Lose paper now. Must be true. Everybody's talking. It's not the price you pay but the returns you get.

FISH SCARCE AT NEWMAN'S COVE

Traps Average About Thirty Quintals — Interesting General News Notes

Newman's Cove, July 24.—Fish very scarce here. Hook and line men don't average two quintals to date, while traps average about thirty. There is an abundance of caplin and everybody seems to be well supplied with them at present.

Now is the time for Morris to open up the branch railways of Fortune and Bonne Bays, for employment is all we fishermen want.

Hon. P. Templeman keeps his store well supplied with provisions in spite of the dark times (for it is looking black enough here now), for it is hard for the fishermen and it is also hard for the merchant who gives him his supplies.

Mrs. Archibald Cool, who was here on a brief visit, left again for Boston yesterday. While Mrs. J. Tindall, Mrs. Mrs. W. Wiseman, arrived here today from New York.

New Store

Hon. J. Ryan is building (under the supervision of Mr. John Roumaine) a large store. In fact it is the largest mercantile establishment in this place.

Mr. W. Terry, the noted fish trapper of this place, has done nothing as yet. Have patience, Terry, your time for trapping is sure to come.

Lobsters as well as codfish are very scarce. Mr. John Abbott, sr., hauled twenty lobster pots this morning and only secured one small lobster.

Good Haul

Mr. W. Brushett had twenty quintals of fish this morning out of his trap, while Mr. J. Ryan had about 8 quintals. If there were no traps here the fishermen would be more despondent than they are, for to get a fish with hook and line is just as much of a rarity as an egg of the Great Auk.

Mr. Editor, what about this enquiry into our late sealing disaster? If there were spurs to sell or money to waste on agriculture or some other Morris fit, they would be fine fellows; but when it comes to safeguarding the lives of us fishermen they are 'not in it at all'!

New School Building

Our C. of E. friends are getting a new schoolhouse built under the supervision of Mr. Arthur Edmonds.

Mr. J. Squires caught a fine string of trout one day this week. He is an old hand at the game, and where he don't get them it is not much use for anybody else to try.

Recently there was a big forest fire here which came out about a mile from the place.

The men attacked it with axes and water and after a hard fight put it out. The Tilley Bros. are getting their "bully" ready for the fall. We wish them success with their new boat.

Came to Nothing

Some time ago a meeting was called for the purpose of electing a Road Board for this place and as some of the people wanted the meeting conducted "this way" and more wanted it conducted "that way" no good came and the result of this meeting was only a lot of talk.

Rumor has it that another such meeting will be held soon. Better late than never. Well done boys; keep her going.

BIT BRIGHTER AT CAT HARBOR

Trap Men Get Some Good Hauls—Dogfish a Great Nuisance

Cat Harbor, July 24.—During the past week our men have been fairly successful with fish. The trap men had from five to thirty quintals a haul yesterday. Trawlers haven't done much owing to dogfish and poor weather.

Lobsters are very scarce at present, still some of the packers have done well during the summer.

Very Busy Place

The F.P.U. store is a very busy place these days, taking oil. The clerk is kept rushing all along. The store is well stocked now; ready for customers.

Miss Clara Meadus, of Greenspond, came here by the Fogota on Wednesday. She is spending a few days with her friends.

The "Coaker" and "F.P.U." engines are doing splendid work. Everybody seems to be struck on the "Coaker."

The Seabird, Capt. Richard Hounsell, came here yesterday with salt for our men. She left again this morning.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

CALAMITOUS.

SUNDAY'S incident at Dublin, when three unfortunates were shot dead by soldiers, was more than unfortunate—it was absolutely calamitous.

There is always something terrible to the mind of the British subject about the shedding of blood in civil strife and there is ever the impression that it might have been avoided. And in this case, however varied our opinions as to the desirability of Home Rule as Assquith would apply it to Ireland, we are all one in condemnation of the shooting down of British subjects in a British city.

Such happenings may be usual to internecine strife in Russia and in other autocratic countries where the people have no say in the Government and where men freely render up their lives as an eloquent protest against tyranny, but they are utterly out of place in any portion of the British Empire, where all men have a say in the making of the laws.

More than this, we have yet to learn that lives of the soldier were in such jeopardy that they were forced to fire a self-defence and anything less makes their action little better than sheer murder.

But there is another and an even graver aspect of this calamity to be considered.

This occurrence may unfortunately be the spark which will set the whole of Ireland ablaze over the question of Home Rule. Men's passions have been inflamed and it will be practically impossible to arrive at a satisfactory settlement on a basis of peaceful compromise.

This is the last thing that adherents of Home Rule or sympathisers with Ulster would desire for it now brings us face to face with the unfortunate possibility of seeing the Home Rule question arranged without any satisfactory result. There has been created a feeling of bitterness that is bound to last for years and to render it difficult to unite all classes and parties in Ireland under any system of government.

All moderate men will strongly condemn the attitude taken by the News of this morning regarding the Dublin tragedy. The situation in Ireland is tense, but if Irish newspapers on either side adopt the same tone as the editor of our morning contemporary the result could not fail to be additional and unnecessary bloodshed.

And as at the seat of the trouble itself, so in all parts of the British Dominions Over-Sea, British subjects have lined up with one side of the Irish controversy or the other. Some favor Nationalist Home Rule in its entirety; others believe that it should be modified to suit the representations of Ulster—but at present we are as one in our sorrow for the slaying of fellow-Britons and in our condemnation of the hasty hot-headed conduct responsible for the tragedy.

Then, where's the sense or reason of drawing such invidious comparisons between the treatment of Dublin and Belfast. Not for one moment would any sane man argue that the British Government or the British Army authorities would condone the firing of rifle bullets into a street crowd in Dublin and condemn the outrage if perpetrated in the streets of Belfast.

High and low, however diverse our religious or political beliefs we of the British Empire are a mourning brotherhood where such a calamitous event is concerned.

Up to now we have been arguing Home Rule pro and con, on an academic basis. Some for Home Rule principles as Redmond represents them, others for Home Rule with the modifications demanded by Ulster. To continue such discussions just now would be sheer insanity. It would amount to no less than actual incitement to violence.

For men's passions are now aroused and to oppose is to enrage—you can't argue with a man in a temper, however poor his case may be, and no man in the same frame of mind, however good his case, is liable to be as broadminded and tolerant as he would in his calmer, saner moments.

We have sufficient faith in the British justice, The News sneers at, to believe that whoever was responsible for the Dublin outrage will be given full measure of punishment for the terrible offence.

Meanwhile it behoves us all to be moderate and cautious in word and deed. Nothing whatever is to be gained by any attempt to set class against class or creed against creed however zealous any of us may be in any particular cause we may espouse.

MADAME CAILLAUX CASE.

THE case of Madame Caillaux now being tried in Paris for murdering M. Calmette, editor of the Figaro, calls attention to the differences that distinguish the French judicial system from that of Great Britain or the United States.

Under the rules of evidence in the French Assize Courts many things are accepted as evidence that would be ruled inadmissible in the court of England or America. Statement of eye-witnesses, hearsay testimony, personal opinions—practically any thing and everything is admitted.

One thing they do not have in French courts and that is the presence of 'alienists' so-called experts who, by bearing testimony to some mental peculiarity—real or imaginary—of the prisoner often secure a favorable verdict or at least the imposition of a sentence much lighter than the offence seems to call for.

By adopting direct methods of procedure and eliminating the time-consuming alienist, the French Courts handle their cases a great deal more expeditiously than the tribunals of English-speaking people.

In the United States, for instance the cases of Thaw and Becker have been before the courts for many months—and the end is not yet in either connection.

Madame Caillaux's trial will probably be concluded in a week or less and thus, despite the far-reaching political and other ramifications, the case seems likely to open up.

MOONLIGHT.

SCIENCE has striven its hardest to disillusion the human mind of traditions long-cherished and enjoyed. And very matter-of-fact the world is fast becoming as a consequence.

Santa Claus, fairy stories and the thousand and one other traditional means of amusing the younger generation are fast being reasoned into the limbo of things ignored and forgotten and have left us very much the poorer.

And then, in the world of the grown-ups, how many pleasing or striking tales were related and more than half believed about the moon and its rays. This planet, in conjunction with the other members of the solar system, was of old time popularly supposed to exert a powerful influence in shaping the destinies of the men of the earth.

LOG OF THE "F.P.U."

Pres. Coaker's Story Of His Trip To The North

July 21st.—Left Fogo at 6 a.m. for Joe Batt's Arm. Foggy and calm.

At Joe Batt's Arm people had no idea of our whereabouts, but soon all were astir and bunting soon decorated the numerous flag poles. Musketry also did good service.

Mr. Alex Coffin and James Freaque came on board and I decided to proceed to Fogo Islands. I had not visited the Fogo Islands before and as the fog cleared and the sea was smooth we proceeded.

We conversed with several old friends who were there fishing. Examined some of the Islands which have become famous because of the large quantities of fish and seal's and there. We also visited the famous cave known as "The Cellar" which probably was formed by an earthquake and is a most interesting spot.

At Barr'd Islands

After dinner we proceeded to Barr'd Islands where a splendid welcome awaited us. Women, men and children flocked to the waterfront as the boat arrived. Bunting display was very profuse and musketry added to the excitement.

Charlie put an F.P.U. engine in working order and instructed the operation of it. We left for Joe Batt's Arm amidst scenes of greatest enthusiasm. At Joe Batt's Arm the people's delight was manifested in every conceivable manner and the women were not far behind the men in their devotion to the Union.

ng the destinies of the men of the earth.

This old-time belief is responsible or the use of the term lunatic—literally a moonstruck one—in connection with a person of unsound mind, for it was commonly held that the moon's rays, especially when the planet was at the full, often unhinged the reason of persons exposed to their influence.

But alas for hoary-headed tradition! The scientist squelches all romance about "The cold, chaste moon, the Queen of Heaven's bright isles," by assuring us, with the necessary proofs, that this orb is but a dead world, a mere speck of dirt in space; that it masquerades in borrowed plumage, owing the very glory that has inspired the rhapsodical poetry of all ages to its passive role as a mere reflector of the light of the sun.

Well, what if the moon is merely a barren waste—a howling wilderness wherein there is nothing animate? She still casts her spell over the human mind and no scientific reasoning can loose the imaginative from her enchantments.

Wonderful beyond expression is the majesty of a night whose gloom has been silvered and subdued by "a lovelier, purer light than that of day," when "reigns the full-orb'd moon."

Then:
"All is gentle: nought
Stirs widely; but, congenial with the night,
Whatever walks is gliding like a Spirit."

Shakespeare, who found sermons in stones and books, in running brooks, came under the universal spell and with eloquence unsurpassed paid his graceful meed of praise to the glories of a moonlit night.

"How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!
Here will we sit and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears; soft stillness, and the night
Become the touches of sweet harmony."

Look, how the floor of Heaven
Is thick inlay'd with patterns of bright gold;
There's not the smallest orb which thou beholdest,
But in this motion like an angel sings."

A Union meeting was held at 9 p.m. in the S.U.F. Hall which was chanced, every possible inch of space being utilized. I spoke for an hour and a half and if those present were not enthused in Union principles and prouder than ever of their Union, it was not the fault of the address. Wonderful enthusiasm was aroused and the meeting closed at 11.30 p.m. with ringing cheers for President, Council and Halfyard.

Fairly Good Fishery

The fishery at Barr'd Island is fairly good for traps, the hand liners averaging 10 qtls. per man. At Joe Batt's Arm very few traps have secured fair catches, some traps have taken only a few quintals, while hand liners average about 5 qtls. Last year Joe Batt's Arm traps did exceedingly well. Although Barr'd Island traps have secured fair results the fishery for Fogo Island, which embrace Seldom, Tilting, Joe Batt's Arm, Barr'd Island, Fogo and Fogo Islands are fully 40 per cent. below last year's catch to date.

Was Kept Busy

As usual Charlie was kept busy attending to the wants of the motor engines. There are several "Coaker" engines operating here and every engine is working satisfactorily and a delight to their owners. From all quarters comes the regret that they don't own a "Coaker," and many would exchange engines for a "Coaker," if such was possible.

One engine is installed in a decked fishing smack large enough to carry 30 qtls. of round fish, and the 6 h.p. "Coaker" engine can propel this boat, towing a skiff and punt against a strong head wind at a rate of speed that is amazing. As towing engines they certainly give surprising results. Many more "Coaker's" will be installed here next year.

Sent Presents

Mrs. John Lewis sent a present of a nice mat, while Mrs. Alex. Coffin and Friend Simon Coffin sent cakes, eggs and bread.

July 22nd.—Left Joe Batt's Arm at 11 a.m. for Tilting, having occupied the morning in attending to motor engine requirements and an inspection ashore. Several friends went to Tilting with us.

Tilting received us royally. Bunting was abundant and musketry was also freely used. The harbor contained a large number of craft, and many of them were manned by Union men, who aided the men ashore in the firing of the guns, and for a time the fusillade was deafening. The cheering would arouse the most indifferent to activity.

Great Gathering

Lunched with Chairman N. Green. Opened a Union meeting at 2.30 p.m. in the F.P.U. Hall, which was chanced. Many present from fishing schooners in port. Spoke an hour and a half. Sang the National Anthem. Ringing cheers for the President, Halfyard and Tilting closed the first meeting.

Outsiders withdrew and a private meeting of Tilting Council was held to arrange about Union store, which will be opened in August. Meeting closed at 4.30 p.m.

Called to see Friend Burke's family and went on board and started for Joe Batt's Arm.

Splendid Satisfaction

Charlie examined the "Coaker" engines in operation at Tilting and adjusted them. They are giving splendid satisfaction and are the general favorites. We took Friend Burke's motor boat, which was bound for Fogo, in tow.

Reached Joe Batt's Arm at 7 p.m., made an inspection of the Union store, adjusted a "Fraser" engine belonging to Friend Simon Brown and

TO THE EDITOR

SOME FIGURING

(Editor Mail and Advocate)

Dear Sir,—In relation to your conundrum "How Much Money Had Willie," I figured it out for Willie to have Ten Dollars and Eighty Cents ($10.80).

If Tom's cousin spent one third of her pocket money to pay for half the box of chocolates Willie sold, she would pay fifty cents; therefore at first she would have had $1.50. And of Tom's sister had one quarter of $1.50 she would have thirty-seven and a half cents.

Now, it is understood that Tom had thrice as much as his sister would have, there he would have $1.22 and a half cents.

Walter said he had half as much as Tom; therefore he would have sixty-one and a quarter cents.

Willie said he would have four times as much as Walter, if Walter had four times as much as he did have; therefore Willie had sixteen times as much as Walter; therefore Willie had $10.80.

Please let me know if I figured it out right or wrong.

Arrived at Fogo 8.30 p.m. quite unexpectedly and remained there for the night.

The fishery at Tilting is about the same as last year to date. Many of the floaters have done very little. Hook and line men average about 5 qtls., traps about 20 qtls.

The Daily Short Story

HIS WELL LAID PLOT

By Gertrude Mary Sheridan

MRS. SUSAN ROBERTS was a chronic invalid. She knew it herself. She had influenced the more impressive of her friends with the conviction. As to her devoted but unfortunate husband, whatever his opinion he fully realized that she was making home life about as wretched and uninviting as it could well be.

What had started well and healthy Mrs. Roberts on the downward road to despair and dissolution, was the visit to the town of a quack. This irresponsible individual scattered a pamphlet describing his nostrums and dwelling gravely upon the dangers of "wasting away." Just at that time Mrs. Roberts had lost ten pounds. It was warm weather that had reduced her flesh, and when she began to worry over her fancied ailments she lost ten more.

Young Dr. Allen was called in. At the outset he told his patient that there was nothing in the world the matter with her. It was of no avail. She adopted all the languor and self-pity of a confirmed invalid. She mourned over the ultimate bereavement of her husband.

"If Lucy Day was only married off," she was wont to say lugubriously, "I would rest more easily in my grave from a sense of duty done."

Dear Lucy! the saving grace of the situation. She was pretty as a picture, and loved company and pleasure as well as any live healthy Miss of eighteen. She felt great gratitude, however, towards the aunt, who had taken care of her since she had been left an orphan. She had learned to take most of the household work on her own young willing shoulders when her aunt was well. When her fancied ailments came upon her there were added the duties of a patient, untiring nurse.

Lucy therefore had little time to think of beaux parties. As to love, her practical life banished romance. It was true she had flushed and her heart beat a trifle faster when, in assisting Dr. Allen to prepare a bandage for her aunt, their hands met and he gave her a kindly smile. Later he had invited her to a local entertainment.

"I dare not leave my aunt, Dr. Allen," she said plainly. "Only make her well, and it would be a great pleasure to accompany you."

Dr. Allen looked at her as though he cherished the promise. Their friendly intimacy grew stronger after that, and Lucy was glad whenever the doctor came to the house.

One day Dr. Allen met John Roberts on the street. He had not called on his patient for several days, and he naturally asked her husband how his wife was getting along.

"Poorly, doctor, very poorly," replied John gloomily. "Declares the end is pretty close. She has lost five pounds more, won't eat because it distresses her, and now she insists she is losing the use of her limbs."

"Indeed, how is that?" questioned the doctor.

"Fell over a chair and lamed her foot. It's pretty well bruised, but she says a foot doesn't count when her whole system is going to pieces."

A speculative look came into the doctor's face. He smiled slightly and his eyes brightened.

"See here, Roberts," he observed briskly, "we've got to circumvent that quack who put such nonsense into your wife's head."

"But how can we do it?" submitted John, doubtfully.

"The opportunity has arrived," pronounced the doctor confidently. "Somehow we have got to get your wife's mind away from her hobby. The bruised foot will do it."

"What do you mean?"

A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN

Every successful business man can give reasons for his prosperity. Most essential to any success is a careful and ceaseless attention to details. Every well conducted office or store in the world finds that simple and effectual filing systems are an absolute necessity. No employer will waste his own time or allow waste with his staff by using old fashioned methods. The benefits derived from the time and money-saving system which "Globe-Wernicke" devices encourage are self-evident. Not a paper can go astray when the "Safeguard" method of this Company is used. And no matter how complicated your filing problem, no matter how peculiar, no matter how small or how large, the "Globe-Wernicke" can provide you with the equipment that will place every record at your finger tips. Why not investigate? Mr. Percie Johnson represents the "Globe" in Newfoundland.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

"This evening insist on calling me up, telling her you are worried about that foot, but don't let her know you told me about it."

"All right," agreed the pestered husband, but hopelessly.

Dr. Allen arrived at the Roberts home that night to find the invalid occupying her customary couch downstairs. He had to listen to a new list of symptoms. Mrs. Roberts declared that in walking about she had stumbled over a stool. She doubted not that she was losing the use of her limbs. The doctor finally got to the point of inspecting the injured foot.

The grave way his face drew down at once attracted his patient's attention. She became interested as he pronounced the mystic words, "pedallic obstruction of the oblongata," then alarmed as he said seriously:

"This is a vital case, Mrs. Roberts. Your foot must receive the most careful treatment."

"Why, doctor," hurried the invalid, "it scarcely pains me."

"That may be due to the deadening effect of a local poison in the blood," advised the crafty and scheming practitioner. "I shall have to poultice and bandage it. You must not expose it to the air. If there is farther discoloration, it may indicate a grave complication."

Dr. Allen opened the medicine case. He saturated a bandage with some specially prepared liquid. His face expressed some satisfaction as he left his patient worrying over all kinds of new trouble.

"We've got her mind on the foot," he whispered to Lucy as he left the house. "Keep it there and we'll outwit the 'wasting away' hallucination."

When Dr. Allen came the next morning and uncovered the bruised foot, Mrs. Roberts nearly fainted away. It was as black as ink to the ankle. Then there was a great ado. More scientific long-sounding words, renewed injunctions as to its care.

Inside of two days Mrs. Roberts had forgotten all her wandering aches and pains. The doctor nursed her fears. He hinted at a possible operation.

"Dr. Allen, isn't it a little cruel to keep up this farce?" remonstrated the gentle-hearted Lucy one day.

"What! When I am satisfied that it will lead to your accepting that invitation of mine?" smiled the doctor.

"Why, my dear little friend, your aunt is eating anything and everything to counteract the toxic influence of that oblongata, isn't she? That's all she needed—good solid nourishment. She was simply on the verge of a nervous breakdown. When I get through with that foot she will be her old hearty self once more. Then—"

Dr. Allen looked meaningfully—lovingly—at the brave little nurse, and Lucy's pretty pink ears tingled.

One day the doctor placed a metallic strip in the bandage around his patient's foot. When he took it out the next morning he dropped it into some liquid. It hissed and sizzled, as he intended. Some more scientific hocus pocus. Then he washed off the coloring and said the toxin was all out of his patient's system.

"You are a well woman—get weighed," he advised.

When Mrs. Roberts tipped the scales at 165 pounds, showing her loss regained and five pounds to the good, she screamed in joyful hysterics. Then she laughed, danced, and—no more wasting away!

Dr. Allen made a call—not professional this time—on his patient next day.

"Mrs. Roberts," he said, "you used to worry a good deal because Lucy was not married off, do you remember?"

"Why—yes," she admitted, wondering what was coming next.

"Well, I want to take her off your hands," smiled the doctor. "We are engaged, and that 'change' I ordered for you can include a pleasant shopping trip to the city, selecting her wedding trousseau."

POLITICS NOW FIGURE IN TRIAL

Of Madame Caillaux at Paris and Politicians are Worried

Paris, July 22.—Politics was the pre-dominating factor today in connection with the case of Madame Caillaux on trial for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro. The French government was understood to be greatly concerned in regard to the diplomatic documents mentioned at yesterday's hearing as having been in the possession of the assassinated editor, and later handed over to President Poincaré, who passed them on to the Foreign Office.

On Job All Night
Senator Blenveu Martin acting foreign minister of foreign affairs, was up most of the night, and an active interchange of telegrams took place between him and premier Rene Vivanti, now in Russia with the President.

Joseph Caillaux, the prisoner's husband, and Ferand Labori, her counsel, made a vehement demand that the documents should be produced "in court. It is understood that the premier, anticipating such a demand, left instructions with his substitute at the foreign office as to what course should be pursued with the papers, which are in the foreign office archives.

Attack on Victim
While the court was assembling newsboys were shouting around the entrances to the Palais de Justice an extra edition of Lebonnet Rouge, one of the journals in sympathy with M. Caillaux, which contained a part article denouncing the murdered editor, Gaston Calmette. It affirmed that he had been in the pay of German interests and had in the eleven years preceding his death been engaged in political and official intrigues by means of which he was able to leave $2,600,000.

MAGIC RITES PRACTISED BY AFRICAN FOLK

Some of Them Claim The Power to Raise the Dead From Their Graves

AND GIVE THEM RENEWED LIFE

But They Find it Impossible To Cast Any Spells On White Men

A correspondent at Kano, Africa, in an article which appeared in the London Times recently, describes the weird ceremonies which accompany the employment of "magic" among the natives of Nigeria. Among the people of Anang a very strange superstition obtains. Neighboring tribes credit the inhabitants with going in new made graves and there making sacrifice to ensure the aid of evil spirits. After this they beat upon the mound with a plantain stem—the African tree of life—calling at each stroke on the name of the corpse till at length the dead man rises from his grave. Then the sorcerers bind him at once and sell him into captivity far away.

Dreamy Acts.
Such strange wanderers from another world never seem quite to regain possession of their right senses, but go always as in a dream, speaking little, and in very low voice, and moving "softly, softly."

One night we were told that celebrated "diviner" was in the town at which we were staying, and we asked whether he would be willing to consult the oracle on our behalf. He agreed, and, after stewing some fresh scraped bark, which left a pinkish sediment, at the bottom of a white bowl full of clear water, and shrouding his head in a white cloth, he began to speak in a voice which sounded as if it came from far away. "I see three men," he said, "who hate the 'white man' very bitterly. Many times they tried to take your life, but, as each attempt failed, they went to the magician priest and bought strong 'medicine.' I see them on the path burying the 'magic' in places over which you will tread. I see them in the Court House pointing 'juju' to his grave. Then the sorcerers bind you that you may fall down dead; but all is of no avail, because there is a power behind you which is stronger than any of theirs."

Many natives say sadly that black men's magic has no power against Europeans; yet though most of their rites would be regarded by scientists as more meaningless superstition, some of nature secrets are undoubtedly known to them which are hidden from or forgotten by their white rulers.

Their knowledge of drugs, simples and poisons is little short of marvellous, and only a few weeks ago one of our most brilliant scientists assured me that results were brought about by some of these which the cleverest practitioner of our own day would regard as impossibilities, were not the facts scientifically tested and vouched for by unimpeachable witnesses.

REMAINS IN PENITENTIARY BY OWN CHOICE

Prisoner Was Sentenced for Twenty Years for Murdering His Wife

BUT WAS LET OUT ON GIVING PAROLE

Came Back Again Because He Was Too Weak to Resist Temptation

Philadelphia, July 23.—Mr. "Bob", an energetic little German, who is listed on the roster of the Eastern Penitentiary as 5297, is again occupying his old cell, a voluntary prisoner and may spend the next sixteen years within these four walls of the penitentiary.

That he is happy and better off as a prisoner than he would be at large is the admission he makes. The story of Mr. "Bob" is perhaps the most remarkable that ever emanated from a penal institution in this country.

Briefly, Mr. "Bob" was paroled eight months ago after serving four months of a twenty-years sentence in the penitentiary. But he returned to the prison gate and surrendered. He had violated the conditions of the parole and insisted that he should be locked up. His wish was granted and the prison gates once more closed upon him. After eight months of sobriety he fell. For four days he drank heavily and then, fearing that he would murder his boy, he surrendered.

Need Protection. "There is a little manhood in me yet, Warden," he said when taken back into the prison. "Old rum has got me again. It was the cause of my being here you know for four years. I killed my wife and paid the penalty."

"Society gave me another chance, but I failed to make the most of my opportunities. If I remain out and continue drinking, I will probably kill my boy or do something equally as bad. I am not bad but merely need protection. Society protects me from the rum evil in this prison, but fails to do anything for me on the outside."

"And there is another element that must be considered. The parole system has worked well for hundreds of men, but suppose that while on parole

I committed another murder. I would not only come back for life, but penologists might shake their heads and doubt the parole system. My case would be pointed out as an example. The old argument might be made that once a murderer always a murderer. Then some good chap, who has more will power to fight rum and its influence, would be blocked from a parole if he was serving time for murder."

Drunk When Killed Wife.

A little more than five years ago he was prosperous. With his wife he conducted a small restaurant in this city and was making some money. Then he began to drink. At first he drank with moderation, but in a few weeks he had developed such a craving for whisky that it became common gossip in the neighborhood. Business began to get dull, and one afternoon as he returned to the cafe he accused his wife of ruining the business. She denied this charge and told him that if he would let whisky alone the business would return.

This angered the drink-crazed man and snatching a big bread knife from a table, plunged it into the body of his wife. Again and again he plunged the knife into the prostrate body of the woman. The police arrested him and a judge, after his conviction by a jury, sentenced him to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of twenty years with the proviso that he could be paroled at the end of four years.

GOVERNMENT WILL GO AHEAD

Birrell, Chief Secretary For Ireland, Says Liberals will Now Go Ahead With Previous Proposals for Home Rule for Ireland

London, July 25.—Augustus Birrell, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, said the Government will go forward with its previous proposals in regard to the Amendment Home Rule Bill. This will enable each county in Ulster to vote itself in or out of Home Rule.

His forecast was that the counties of Antrim, Down, Armagh and Londonderry would vote to remain outside of the provisions of Home Rule measure, while Fermanagh, Cavan, Monaghan, Tyrone and Donegal will vote to come in under a Home Rule Government.

Birrell warned the public not to be bamboozled by the newspapers into believing that there would be civil war in Ireland. He said he was convinced that no such thing would happen; if it did the Government would inevitably interfere.

What do you think of the Muscle as an article of food? Excellent. Only recently a famous professor of one of the American Universities, who had been experimenting with the Muscle for six years, handed down his report, which says that it is just as good as the Oyster. He goes on to say that in view of the high cost of living it would be a grand thing if the nation would realize the value of this excellent shell fish, as ten persons could be fed for 25c. He further states that the opinion widely held in the United States as to Muscles containing a poisonous part is erroneous, simply a superstition introduced by the Indians in early days.

Is there more business done by mail in Newfoundland today than there was twenty years ago?

Yes! twenty times as much.

Well, there are several mail order houses in St. John's, but one house that figures largely in this line is J.M. Devine, The Right House.

Household Hints

Rice Secrets of Famous Italian Chefs

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN in Rome do as the Romans do," is not a difficult injunction to heed when eating is the point involved.

Most Italians are excellent cooks. They are also economical to a degree which would make the average American housewife wide-eyed with astonishment. They seem to have an intuitive knowledge of food values, and they are delightfully wise in not overeating.

To those who have spent much time abroad the wonder of how they can eat so little and such plain food and be well and strong is never ceasing. Even the Italian feasts are not designed for the delight of gluttons.

When you are invited to dine with a Venetian the literal translation of his invitation is, "Won't you take four grains of rice with me?"

Rice does, indeed, form the staple of diet of the average Italian, but the ways of cooking rice are apparently infinite and the Italian cooks have a most pleasing way of making it the accompaniment of many of their most elaborate dishes.

For example, those who have never tasted rice and mushrooms, cooked in the real Italian way, have missed a gastronomic treat. One of the most interesting old characters I have ever known, an Italian chef, gave me the recipe.

Rice with Mushrooms.

Take 1/2 cup mushrooms, 1/2 cup rice, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup salt, 1/2 cup pepper, 1/2 cup onion, 1/2 cup celery, 1/2 cup carrot, 1/2 cup parsley, 1/2 cup sage, 1/2 cup thyme, 1/2 cup oregano, 1/2 cup basil, 1/2 cup rosemary, 1/2 cup marjoram, 1/2 cup dill, 1/2 cup fennel, 1/2 cup chervil, 1/2 cup tarragon, 1/2 cup anise, 1/2 cup fennel seed, 1/2 cup caraway seed, 1/2 cup coriander seed, 1/2 cup cumin seed, 1/2 cup mustard seed, 1/2 cup poppy seed, 1/2 cup flax seed, 1/2 cup hemp seed, 1/2 cup sunflower seed, 1/2 cup pumpkin seed, 1/2 cup sesame seed, 1/2 cup walnut seed, 1/2 cup almond seed, 1/2 cup hazelnut seed, 1/2 cup pecan seed, 1/2 cup cashew seed, 1/2 cup pistachio seed, 1/2 cup walnut, 1/2 cup almond, 1/2 cup hazelnut, 1/2 cup pecan, 1/2 cup cashew, 1/2 cup pistachio, 1/2 cup walnut, 1/2 cup almond, 1/2 cup hazelnut, 1/2 cup pecan, 1/2 cup cashew, 1/2 cup pistachio.

The polenta of the Italians is nothing in the world but our Indian meal mush. Just before it is ready to serve they add grated cheese and a lump of butter. They also make the mush thick and slice it as we do for frying, and serve it with a most greasy and gratified cheese. This is a substantial meal for a family.

They also have a most delicious way of serving polenta with sausages. For this the polenta is cooked and sliced.

The sausages are removed from the skins, chopped fine and fried in butter. When they are nicely browned, but not crisp, a little beef stock and some tomato sauce is added and they are cooked in it for 15 minutes. Then the sausages are used for the sauce for the polenta and Parmesan cheese is sprinkled over each layer.

Polenta with chicken is another delicacy. There is a delicious polenta cake which somewhat replaces our "Johnny cake."

Migliaccio di Farina Gialla. To make it take two cups of Indian meal, half a cup of raisins, three tablespoons of granulated sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and three table-spoonsful of lard.

With a big wooden spoon the Italian cook mixes the meal, salt, sugar and raisins in a bowl and pours in boiling water slowly, stirring all the time, till there is a stiff paste which uses all the meal.

A cake tin is greased well with half the lard and the meal mixture spread over it with the wooden spoon. When it is all patted in place the rest of the lard is spread over the top and it is baked in a slow oven till it is a golden brown, then eaten hot. The American palate may wish to add syrup to it, but it is delicious broken off and eaten with butter.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie: I have been chumming with a girl a few months older than I am for about two years, and we have been the best of friends. Since the first of the year I have been going with a boy friend, and now my chum seems to think she is not wanted, although I have repeatedly told her that I want her company now more than ever; but it seems to have no effect on her.

Is there any other way besides giving up my friend to let her know that I mean it, for I do not feel that it would be right for me to turn the boy down just because my chum does not like him? PERPLEXED C. I.

WELL, Perplexed, it seems to me that you are burdened with a rude, disagreeable, overbearing, "bossy" friend, and if I were you I'd get rid of her—just as quickly and just as neatly and just as consistently as I could.

Why shouldn't you have a boy for a friend, if you want to, and why should your girl chum act like a goose about it? There's nothing mysterious and deep and dark and romantic about her behavior. She's just jealous, that's all—just plain, old-fashioned, small-minded, green-eyed jealousy.

If your boy friend is a nice chap and you like him and your people like him and he likes you, that's all that's necessary. Let the girl friend see that she will either have to come to her senses or say farewell to you.

AND so," writes home Mrs. Newbridge, "we are settled in our little nest, and SO happy! When Jack gets into his slippers and house coat, lights his pipe and settles down to the sporting pages, and when I get my chocolates and the fashion news, and settle down somewhere near him, you'd just grin to see how COMFORTABLE we are."

"Our little NEST!"—that's the word. How charmingly suggestive of two startlings in the Spring! No matter how little the nest is, no matter whether it's that cottage they thought of, or a four-room flat. It's the nest. He hasn't a "den"—yet. That comes later—when he has learned to stay away from her for a sufficient number of consecutive minutes.

If you're a sour person—or of either sex—don't give a second glance at this picture. It will annoy you. But if you rather like birds and nests and brides—if you have FAITH in life, give it another look. Even faith can smile, you know.

Beauty's Chance for Real Happiness

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THEY had her picture in the paper this morning, the beautiful scorchita whose sweetheart was following her from Mexico all around the world because he loved her so.

The scorchita doesn't want to marry the sweetheart; she doesn't want to marry any one, she says. What she really wants to do is to take the veil and retire from the world, and never see any men any more.

But the sweetheart won't hear of such a plan. He sends her roses and violets and great velvet anemones. And cunningly concealed in the violets, and sweetly hidden among the roses and carefully cloistered in the clusters of the orchids, are quaint gifts of ancient jewelry, handed down from old Castle.

Across the continent the sweetheart has followed her, and over the mountains and upon wild seas; and now they say, the scorchita says—perhaps—maybe—if the sweetheart is very, very good, and if she can accustom her mind to the idea of marriage at all—some day!

Come now, let's talk about it—the beauty business and the love business, you and I.

Who is the prettiest woman you know? Is she married? Is she happy? Is her husband dead in love with her, or has he shown distinct signs of quite a positive interest in the latest beauty in the latest theatrical success?

Who is the cleverest woman you know, the wittiest, the most sparkling, the one you'd choose for a companion for a long rainy afternoon? Is she married? To whom? A man or a mere imitation? Is her husband still in love with her, or does he run after every insipid little goose he sees?

Now the other women—the plain ones, the positively ugly and the merely dull. Who is the plainest woman you know? Is she married? Isn't she happy? Doesn't her husband tell everybody in the world what a perfect treasure he has for a wife, and doesn't he believe every word that she says?

The man who marries the plain woman is in love with the woman and not with the woman's looks. He knows what he wants and he gets it—and that's all there is to it.

The plain woman doesn't grow plainer; she grows better looking as the years go by. And there is no jealousy and no vanity wounded and no egotism hurt—and the plain woman lives for her husband; she doesn't expect him to live for her.

The beauty does expect husband to live for her, and for her alone. So many men have offered to do it, you see; and she can't get over thinking that they really mean it.

It is a fine thing to be pointed out as the accepted sweetheart or the acknowledged admirer of the wonderful Miss So-and-So, but the same man who will glow with pride at being so pointed out will writhe in humiliation when somebody calls him the clever Mrs. Somebody's husband.

Why? Why isn't it just as fine to be married to a woman who is cleverer than you are as it is to be in love with her? Ask the great actress's husband—perhaps he can tell you the answer. A woman loves to shine by reflected glory; the average man wants all the glory himself.

Don't be discouraged, little Miss Plain—you haven't so many admirers as your sister, Miss Beauty—but you stand ten chances to her one for being happy when the man with sense enough to choose you for what you are, and not for how you look, marries you and makes you happy for life.

Here's looking at you, scorchita. I hope you'll wear the violets and the amethysts and the roses and the garnets and the orchids and the pearls—and wear with them in your heart of hearts the love and devotion of a true man who knows what he wants and how to take care of it when he has got it.

Partially Arranged.

"Have you planned your suburban house yet?"

"No, but I have the furniture. It will be installment."

Different Speeds.

"How fast can your auto travel?"

"Eighty miles an hour running from a policeman; 10 miles an hour after I am caught."

Pleasure Gone.

"I wouldn't want to be a king."

"No?"

"Not a bit. There would be no fun in being a king."

Obviously.

Gobang—What is the plural of brandy and sodas?

Brandies and sodas or brandies and sodas?

Ukerdek—Neither. Plain drunk.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Care of Your Teeth Will Insure Your Health

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

HOWEVER cherry-ripe in show the prettiest of lips may be, they are the more tempting and enchanting if lustrous white teeth glint and dazzle their way between them.

Priceless, pearly, pretty teeth over-washed with the moistened dew are like the lovable pallor of the lily. No snow or frost can be fairer. Each breath renews the feathery gloss on the enamel.

Why do teeth decay? For the same reason that Carthage and Tyre, Athens and Rome, Memphis and Nineveh decayed and because Paris and New York are now decaying.

"Westward the course of empire takes its way; The four first acts already past, A fifth shall close the drama with the day; Time's noblest offspring is the last."

That is to say, the decay comes more from the inside than from without, though external influences are gigantic and only exceeded by those within.

Before decay's effacing fingers have swept the lines of the ivory mouth-guards, the little dark speckled and polka-dotted areas must be vigilantly anticipated.

It is not altogether true in the brief span of human endeavor that all bright things must fall. Nor is all that was made sweet to be lost when sweetest.

A sane discretion in physical play and work, with a modicum of care for the enamel hedge-row of your inner meads and forests, will insure you sound teeth throughout five score and ten.

Where Germs Abide.

Even though "all human things are subject to decay," and "when fate summons monarchs must obey," the double borehole of oral ivory may remain, like the dragon's teeth of Cadmus.

Oddly enough, though much of the decay of teeth has its source within the body, "dental caries," as dentists are prone to call it, seems eternally to begin on the outer parts of the enamel.

Your mouth swarms with a Saragossa sea of bacteria and other perma. Even the pneumonia microbe is always loading around the mouth looking for odd jobs, such as to cause ulcers, tonsillitis, caries of the teeth, and a host of similar baby pneumonias.

These demons of disease—there are scores and scores of different kinds—live and have their happy being in meat fibres and other particles of victuals which lodge in your teeth crevices and in the tonsils.

The saliva is like soap or ammonia. In brief, it is an "alkali." As long as you are in health, if your tissues are sound, and all your internal machinery is well lubricated, carbureted and ignited, just so long will you have no trouble with your teeth.

On the other hand, the instant too much fuel chokes up the engine, or some stomach, liver, kidney or other derangement interferes with combustion, then the saliva loses its anti-acid—"alkaline"—power, and the germs, which thrive on the bits of food in your mouth, form all sorts of acids and salts (not "uric acid" as you are always told) from candies, sugars, preserves, pastries, jellies and starchy foods.

Causes of illness.

Mets are the least guilty felons and criminals of all the dietary accomplices. Cakes, candies, sugary foods, bread, potatoes and other starchy substances cause more teeth decay than all other ailments.

Adenoids, tonsil enlargements, mouth breathing, neglect to have the dentist polish the teeth every three or four months, gums that recede, overeating, poor mastication of food, chewing on

Answers to Health Question

MISS E. K., Bridgeburg, Pa.—What will develop the bust? Deep breathing and exercise have done no good.

If you will drink two quarts of creamy milk daily, get 10 hours sleep at night and massage your bust carefully with goose grease that has been boiled and cooled your whole torso will develop. Three hours a day in the fresh air and sunshine are also desirable. Drink no coffee, tea or liquors.

MRS. R., Collingswood, N. J.—I am thin and anemic. I have been taking "fat making" tablets. Do you advise them? They claim to make flesh.

The safest fashion by which you may gain weight as well as good blood is to eat liberally of eggs, cream, butter, sweets, gravies, rich meats, olive oil and the various rich fats.

Constant Reader—What is a good diet for acidity of the stomach?

Since even the robust, well stomach makes two-tenths per cent. of muriatic acid and the digesting victuals also become acid, you evidently mean an excess of acid, or "hyperacidity."

Cabbage, chesnuts, sauerkraut, soups, steaks, potatoes and other bulky as well as acid pabulum will neutralize your superacidity. When the stomach makes an overabundance of acid—due to past excesses in highly seasoned foods, too much meat eating and nervousness—it is necessary to take acids by the mouth and heavy foods as well to consume the acid.

Dr. Hirschberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He will not undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally if a stamped and addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirschberg, care of this office.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

TWINKLE, twinkle, little star—" began Brer Rabbit one night, when he was interrupted by his good wife.

"What are you saying those silly little things for?" asked Mrs. Rabbit.

"They are not silly," replied Brer Rabbit. "I like little poems just as well as the children."

"You must remember that you are grown up now," said Mrs. Rabbit. "Never expect to grow up," replied Brer Rabbit. "You just go and tend to the house."

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star. How I wonder what—" "Wait a minute," interrupted Mrs. Rabbit. "Those stars are twinkling too much."

"Never mind about that," said Brer Rabbit. "I am going to say that little piece right through. Twinkle, twinkle, little star—" "That's six twinkles and you haven't finished yet," interrupted Mrs. Rabbit again.

"Your onions are burning!" exclaimed Brer Rabbit. Mrs. Rabbit ran out in the kitchen as fast as she could, and when Brer Rabbit was left alone he laughed softly to himself.

"We are children grown up," he kept saying. When Mrs. Rabbit returned she said to her husband: "How are the stars getting on?"

"They are still twinkling," said Brer Rabbit with a laugh.

Dogfish are still about and causing trouble.

Five large boats carrying six men each and 380 dories and skiffs are fishing. There is no cod on the grounds and prospects are very bad though there is enough caplin for bait. No fish has been taken by the hook and liners and the traps have only an average of about 20 quintals.

July 18.—From N. Simms, Goose Cove to Cape Norman.—Codfishery prospects are very poor, in fact the worst for 20 years. The total catch is about 1000 quintals, but for last week nothing. Caplin is plentiful, but nothing is being done with lobsters.

RAPE SOLD FOR TURNIP TOPS?

Looks Just As Good But Is Not of Equal Edible Value

Rape makes an excellent forage crop, especially for sheep, but it is not to be recommended as human food.

We hear that some of the plants are being sold in this town, for turnip tops.

The young rape plants resemble the tops of Swedish turnips so closely, that only an expert can distinguish between them.

There is, however, a very marked difference in their eating quality, and the difference is not in favor of rape.

The Mail is informed that several persons who have eaten the rape have suffered severely.

We recommend some action on the part of the Health authorities in this matter. Such fraudulent conduct merits punishment.

The other was "The Burning River," which is a fascinating and powerful drama showing how honor triumphs over a terrible temptation. It is the work of the Lubin Co. and was very favorably commented on. There were two comedies which kept the audience in roars of laughter.

Mr. De Witt C. Cairns sang a beautiful love song and was enthusiastically applauded. This evening's programme will be repeated and those who have not seen it should attend. Tomorrow the clever Vitagraph picture in two reels, "The Intruder" will be given.

STARS BLANK THE SAINTS TEAM WITH SIX GOALS

Game Somewhat Disappointing As Vivtors Won Easily

The Saints and Stars were the competitors in last evening's League match. It brought back to memory old times to see these two teams in friendly combat.

Those who expected a close contest were disappointed as the Stars won easily by six goals to nil.

The teams were:

The Line-Up

SAINTS—Dick, goal; Shields and Barnes, backs; Fraser, Burns, Battrick, halves; Munn, Ferguson, Irvine, Peet, Evans, forwards.

STARS—Phelan, goal; Hart, thompson, backs; Christopher, Kavanagh, Vinnicombe, halves; Brien, Power, Caul, Morgan, Phelan, forwards.

During the first half the Stars notched up two goals, Brien and Morgan landing them.

The latter part of the game fog was thick and spectators could hardly see the players on the opposite side of the field.

Four goals more were added by the Stars. Peet of the Saints headed in one while Power, Phelan and Caul notched up the others.

Good Exhibition

Dick, the Saints goaler, gave a splendid exhibition and Nix Vinnicombe of the Stars played an old time game.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, IT'S QUOTE TRUE

A Full Grown Baboon Has All Virtues And No Vices Of The Sailor

Boston, July 24.—Of course, you may not believe this story, but at least you don't have to take anyone's word for it. All you have to do is to take the first train to Boston, hunt up the steamship Canada and ask for Bimi.

Bimi is a young active and well nourished orang-outang, though you might not know it if you met him on the forward deck in the dark, for he wears a full suit of sailorman's clothes, is upstanding like a regular sailor and has the bearing of an old sea crab. When the Canada came to her dock this evening, there was Bimi in the bow, heaving and casting of lines, with the ease and precision of an able-bodied seaman.

The skipper says he is an A. B., too, and one of the best afloat. By token Bimi sits at the head of the crew's table, eats with a knife and fork and does more work on his watches than any other member of the crew. He can lick any other member of the crew also, but that is the way of orang-outangs, and neither the captain nor Bimi is inclined to boast of this accomplishment.

Tell it not to the Seaman's Union, but Bimi doesn't draw any pay. He is satisfied with three squares a day and a place to sleep.

The Alice M. Pike and Effie M. Prior have arrived at Belleoram from the anks, the formers has 500 qts., and the latter 950 qts.

BIG DITCH OPENS ON AUGUST 15TH

And Ships Drawing Up To Thirty Feet Will Be Allowed Through

Washington, July 25.—Opening of the Panama Canal to the world's commerce on August 15 next, is announced by Secretary Garrison of the Washington war department. No ceremonies will mark the climax of the years of toil involved in digging the big ditch across the backbone of the continent. That will wait until the official opening in March 1915, when an international fleet of warships will pass through the waterway and up the Pacific Coast.

Secretary Garrison on announcing the date of the canal opening stated that at this time ships needing no more than thirty feet of water would be accommodated in the passage between the two oceans. A greater depth will be available later.

UNUSUAL CLASS OF STOWAWAYS

Embarked On The Steamer Montezuma, being Whole Swarm of Bees

Montreal, July 23.—The record for freak stowaways belong to the S.S. Montezuma, which made port this morning with a full swarm of bees on board.

Italian bees they were, and it was across a belt of salt water four miles wide they had come when they arrived on board the big cargo boat three weeks ago.

They swarmed round one of the boat davits on the after deck, where

WOMAN OF 84 MADE A TRIP OF 7500 MILES

Took Ten Months To Get From Armenia To Join Son In United States

Philadelphia, July 25.—After travelling ten months to cover a trip of 7,500 miles, Mrs. Jouhar Seronian, 84 years of age, reached this city on the American Line steamship Dominion, and after meeting her son, whom she had not seen for 23 years, she started for his home in Joliet, Ill.

Ten months ago Mrs. Seronian left her native home in Hortaut, Armenia, at the earnest solicitations of her son, Mandoog Seronian, a mechanical engineer. The passage of the woman to this country was painfully slow. Time and again she was held up by the immigration officials of the various countries, who hesitated to permit her to proceed because of her advanced age. Finally, after numerous setbacks and actual hardships, she reached London and embarked for this port.
