VEHICLES ACT. At the 1919 session of the Ontario Legislature the following important changes were made in the Motor Vehicles Act: Rate of Speed. No motor vehicle shall be driven upon any highway within a city, town, village or police village at a greater rate of speed than twenty miles per hour; nor upon any highway outside of a city, town, village, or police village at a greater rate of speed than 25 miles per hour, nor at a street intersection or curve where the driver of the vehicle has not a clear view of approaching traffic at a greater rate of speed than 10 miles in a city, town, village or police village, or 121/2 miles outside a city, town, village or police village, but the council of a city, town or village may by by-law set apart any highway or any part thereof on which motor vehicles may be driven at a greater rate of speed for the purpose of testing the same, and may pass by-laws for regulating and governing the use of any such highway or part thereof for such purpose.

Reckless Driving. Provision is made increasing the penalty for reckless driving whereby anyone found guilty of this offence shall be liable for the first offence to a penalty not exceeding $50, or one week's imprisonment, or both; for the second offence to a penalty not exceeding $100, or one month's imprisonment, or both; and for the third or any subsequent offence to imprisonment not exceeding six months.

Licensing of Chauffeurs.

The rules governing the issuance has brought added enjoyment to him of licenses to chauffeurs have been modified as indicated in the following re-drafted clause:

A license shall not be issued to a person who drives a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain unless he files in the office of the Minister of Public Works and Highways certificates that he is a fit and proper person to be so licensed, having regard to his character, physical fitness, ability to drive, and knowledge of the rules of the road. One of such certificates, touching the applicant's character, shall be furnished by the chief constable of the municipality in which the applicant resides, and one other certificate, touching the applicant's physical fitness, ability to drive and knowledge of the rules of the road, shall be furnished by a member of the Ontario Motor League appointed for that purpose by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and residing in the municipality in which the applicant resides. Reward on Conviction of Person

Stealing Motor Vehicle. By-laws may be passed by the councils of all municipalities for paying, on the conviction of the offender and on the order of the judge or police magistrate before whom the conviction is had, a reward of not less than twenty dollars to any person who pursues and apprehends, or causes to be apprehended, any person steal ing a motor vehicle within the munici-

Prohibition as to Letting or Hiring. No person shall hire or let for hire a motor vehicle unless the person by whom such motor vehicle is to be driven is a person licensed to drive a motor vehicle as required by this Act, or is a person to whom a permit has been issued pusuant to section 3 of this Act, or is a person to whom a certificate of competency has been issued by the Minister of Public Works and Highways. Record of Second-Hand Vehicles

Bought, Sold, Etc. All persons who buy, sell, wreck, or Sen. Pr.-Charlie Hollingsworth, otherwise deal in second-hand motor vehicles shall keep a correct record of all motor vehicles bought, sold or wrecked and of such information as will enable such motor vehicles readily to be identified and shall transmit weekly to the Department of Public Works and Highways on forms furnished by the Department a statement showing all motor vehicles bought, sold or wrecked by him during the week contained, and such information with reference thereto as may be required by the Department.

Prohibition as to Buying Where Serial Number Obliterated. No person shall buy, sell, wreck or otherwise deal with any motor vehicle whereof the manufacturer's seral number or similar identifying mark has been obliterated or defaced or is not readily recognizable. Report to Minister as to Car Stored. Where any motor vehicle is placed in the possession of any person who buys, sells, wrecks, or stores motor vehicles and the same remains in his possession for more than two weeks without good reason, such person shall forthwith, upon the expiration of the said period of two weeks make a report thereof to the Minister of Public Works and Highways. Onus of Disproving Negligence. The Act provided: "When loss or damage is sustained by any person by reason of a motor vehicle on a highway, the onus of proof that such loss or damage did not arise through the negligence or improper conduct of the owner or driver of the motor vehicle shall be upon the owner or driver."

An amendment was proposed that this section should not apply in case of a collision between motor vehicles on the highway, or in case of a collision between a motor vehicle and any other vehicle which is being operated on the highway between dusk and dawn which does not carry a lighted lamp in a conspicuous position. It was agreed by the Legislature that the section should not apply in the case of collision, between motor vehicles, but the balance of the proposed amendment was struck

Amendment Proposed But Defeated. Among the amendments which were suggested but did not meet with approval were the following: The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations to limit or restrict the candle power of any lighting device on a motor vehicle.

Abraham was not in the place where he would have him, although he had gone from I's to Haran, and he called him to leave his country and his kindred and go to the place that he would snow him. The Lord gave him most precious and comprehensive pro n es. He would make of him a great nation He would make of him a great nation. He would bless him and make a bleasing to others. He would afford him protection; for he would bless those who blessed him and would curse those who cursed him. He gave him a promise that the Messiah would come through him, for he said that in him all the families of the carth saould be blessed. Not only did Abraham believe what God said, but he was obedient, for faith leads to obedience. Abraham took his fam 'v and went Abraham took his fam'v and went forth from Haran as the Lord dir-ected. PRACTICAL SURVEY Topic.—Obedience a Test of Disciple

I. Discipleship. II. Obedience the true test.

1. Discipleship. A diciple means literally, a taught, or trained one. As ordinarily used the term has a religious significance and means those who attend upon the instructions of a ligious teacher and seek a knowledge of the tenets of a religious faith. All great teachers have had their diciples, or followers. John the Baptist gathered about him diciples, two of whom became the first followers of Jesus. became the first followers of Jesus. These were also known as diciples un-til at Antioch the name of their Master attached itself permanently to them. Henceforth they became known as Christians. After a night of prayer Jesus selected from the company of his followers twelve, whom he named apostles. These he received into closer fellowship. To them he impart closer fellowship. To them he imparted fuller instruction and to them gave a world-wide commission to "make diciples of all nations" (Matt. 28:19, R. V.). The name Christian, in modern phraseology, has the original significance of "diciple" with enlarged emphasis. A Christian is a learner of emphasis. A Christian is a learner of Christ, and both by precept and example a "taught one" in the Christian faith. The teachings of Christ are their illumination, his example their pattern and his spirit their emulation. They are his representatives in the world

II.—Obedience the true test. The duty of obedience inheres in the exiz tence of authority. It was the first law established for man. We are born subjects and perfectly liberty is found in loving obedience, than which no principle is more noble and none more holy. Of necessity man's first and supreme obligation is to his Creator. Nothing can be permitted to contra Nothing can be permitted to contra-vene this. The apostles before the council declared, "We ought to obey God rather than men." Obedience is inseparable from dicipleship. Without this it is but mockery. The relation as "Lord and Master," and the terms as "Lord and Master," and the terms of friendship did not cancel their obligation. "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatever I command you." The friend of the king is not he who admires his person or applauds his pageantry, but he who executes his command. No profession of attachment avails white obedience is withheld. "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" The call to labor and self-sacrifice which Jesus heard he makes known to his followers. "All things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." He includes his diciples in his great designs and permits them to share in execution. The obedience of rue discipleship is complete. Jesus true discipleship is complete. Jesus demands a whole-hearted service. There can be no partial conscience. It is absolute or nothing. Any intention to disobey at any point violates the whole. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." One discordant string will set the whole instrument ajar. Carnality will obey God as far as it will serve its own ends. A murderous Herod will do "many things," but Paul was in all things willing to live honestly. Obedience is the pathway to knowledge, privilege and power.

The Great Frederick's Joke.

The czar's changing of the name of his second and more modern capital from St. Petersburg to Petrograd may be paralleled by the use of the "new palace," Potsdam, which the Emperor Frederick decreed should henceforth be known as Friedrichskron. This new palace had been built by Freder-ick the Great at the close of his Seven Years' war just to show his enemies Years' war just to show his element that his exchequer was by no means exhausted, and on its cupola are three nude figures, representing his chief female foes—Maria Theresa, Elizabeth of Russia and La Pompadour—with their backs turned toward their re-spective countries, 'supporting his spective countries, 'supporting his crown of glory, hence "Friedrichskron." But one of the first acts of William II. was to restore to the pal-ace its original name.—London Chron-

A DOMESTIC DRAMA.

Tooth, Bread Board, Mother and Son, All Mixed Up.

A tooth, a limousine, a bread board, some Wyckoff noodles, a mother had ner son enter into this drama.

Mother is loyally doing her own work, and on returning from market she drove her limousine to the kitchen door. Lacking room to place her marketing, she temporarily put the bread board, covered with noodles, on the back of the convenient limousine. Just then her son had a fall in such a manner that a front tooth was cleanly removed from its socket. In great excitement she picked up the boy and the tooth and hastened in the limou sine to the dentist. On one of the prin-cipal streets, during the trip down-town, she heard a sound as though the limousine had run over a loose board but gave it no thought. The dentist replaced the tooth, and mother and son returned home. Her husband, who is very fond of noodles, said? "Mar-guarette, what did you do with the bread board and the noodles?" Then she knew. Did she go back after the bread board and noodles? She did

Roller Bearings.

Ball bearings are a German invention, and it is only a comparatively few years ago that they made their appearance on the market. Roller bearings, both cylindrical and conical, are an American invention. The advantages claimed for the rollers over the balls are that they can sustain both the radial and the axial strain and they are more easily replaced when they become worn.

So says Mrs. Fred Wolters, a well-known and highly re-spected lady living here. And Mrs Wolters gives her reasons for making this statement.

"I suffered from kidney trouble for ten years. I felt sleepy and heavy after meals. I was always tired and nervous, and I had a bitter taste in my mouth, especially in the morning I was often dizzy, my memory was failing, and I was very irritable. Stiffness in the joints, backache, headache and finally rheumatism were added to my troubles.

I finally decided to try Dodd's Kid ney Pills and I took two boxes. found them satisfactory in every way

CHAPTER XI

Mr. Beaumont, taking into consideration the circumstances attending poor Jack's infatuation for the Montague family, and armed as he supposed by the intelligence, judged that it might be a propitious time to commence his own wooing, and so the morning after Jack heard that he was a penniless man, with a mountain of debt upon man, with a mountain of debt upon his back instead of twenty thousand a year, the wily barrister paid particu-lar attention to the brushing of his hat, and surveyed his gloves with critical satisfaction.

"Yes," he mussed, as the hansom rattled him toward Lady Pacewell's villa; "yes, I will strike while the iron not. There can be no doubt that acting people have thoroughly netted Jack, and Lady Maud's hopes in that quarter are quite wrecked. I'll break it to her, and so gently that at the moment of pique which must follow she shall jump at my offer to show Mr. Hamilton that there is still anoth-

Arguing thus, with that strange fatuity that clings to all who argue with themselves, he alighted from the cab and found Lady Maud at home.

Now if he had been a man of genius in the way of discrimination he would have seen that Lady Maud showed evi dent disappointment when he entered having taken his knock for that of a better man. But Mr. Beaumont was so full of his object that he forgot lit-tle circumstances, and, nothing daunt-ed by lady Maud's look of surprise when he entered, took his seat and commenced the usual small nothings which generally open the conventional Lady Maud responded, and Mr. Beaumont began to grow nervous.

This was said with the pleasantest smile possible, but Lady Maud hid a malicious smile behind her handker-ckief, and did not reply.

Mr. Beaumont grew more nervous. He had expected a little help from the queenly beauty, but Lady Maud refused to help him.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. father and visits at their house."

Lady Maud shrugged her shoulders.
"I think you are misinformed," she

"No," said Beaumont, "I think not "No," said Beaumont, "I think not.
It is a strange affair, and I am not

Mr. Beaumont drew a little nearer.

"Lady Maud," he said, in a lower voice, "I did not call this evening to talk of poor old Jack's affairs, but my "Yes," she said, pulling at a hothouse flower, "your own."

"My own, he repeated. "Dear Lady Maud. I am like that flower in your hand. You can pull my life to pieces and scatter it to the winds, or with a word preserve it to love and adore you. Oh, Maud, forgive me if I speak abruptly. I have rehearsed these few words a hundred times. Each time my heart has throbbed near you these my heart has throbbed near you these words, I love you, have trembled on my lips. If they have not spoken from my lips it is because I dared not oftend you by uttering them even in a glance. Maud, I love you. I have loved you ever since the first moment we met. I have worked hard and patiently that I might not bring my love empty headed. Lame a rish may love empty-handed. I am a rich man, or nearly so, and I can give you, Maud, a position, far beneath your worth, 'tis true, but one in which you will shine gloriously. I lay my life, my love, all I possess, my ambition, my hopes of future success at your my hopes of future success, at your feet. Will you stoop and take them?"

Now, that was a very pretty speech, and Mr. Beaumont knew it; had he not rehearsed it, as he had said, a hundred times? It was a speech that would have awed a jury to tears; it awed Lady Maud to smiles. Looking up into the bent face, Mr. Beaumont detected the smile and turned pale.

"Well," he said, huskily, "will you not give me a reply? Say yes, dear Lady Maud! Say yes."

He attempted to take her hand, but He attempted to take her hand, but with a haughty gesture she drew it from him.

"Mr. Beaumont," she said, "I ought to have stopped you, but I really did not know what you were going to say. How could I? You were so sudden. What you ask is impossible.

'Impossible," he echoed, "why?"
"Because," she said, slowly, fixing her eyes upon him and enjoying his look of consternation and chagrin, because I am engaged to marry Mr.

Mr. Hamilton has taken some interest in Mr. Montague, it is true, but the motives, far from being those you suppose, spring simply from his benevolence. I trust you will let slip no opportunity that may occur of denying supplying the property of the supplying the su emphatically any repetition of the presence.

Mr. Beaumont was literally stagger ed. Her ladyship had no doubt discovered the pretty little plot and turned the tables upon him.

He little suspected that her ladyship had been indulging in a little plotting on her own account, and that the contest between them had stood thus: whether he should win Lady Maud or Lady Maud should win poor old Jack, and that her ladyship's tact had won the battle.

It was a heavy blow for him, and he showed that he felt it. He took up his hat and looked around the enjoyed the picture of this gentleman struggling in the pit he had himself dug, but she little contemplated the grave to her own hopes which was or ad been already dug.

She waited complacently for Jack's appearance, but he did not come.
The fact was that, although anything but deficient in courage, Jack Hamilton could not summon up fortitude enough to carry him around to the villa and be the bearer of his own bad news. He knew, or had some slight mews. The knew, of that some single suspicion of the manner in which Lady Maud would take them, and overwhelmed by the prospect before him, our hero sat and stared at the fire, not even venturing to ring for soda and brandy, reflecting that that cheer the relative with the beautiful that the contraction of the source of th ing mixture, with the horses, etc., was really not his to ask for. So he sat over the fire late into the night, stirring only to get a piece of paper and reckon up the debts which he had incurred in the belief that he was a wealthy man.

The magnitude simply stunned him. "Why," he groaned, "I can never pay these, and there still remains the ac-cumulation of the interest, which I

Then, with the poor girl's face in his mind's eye—notwithstanding Lady

There was a short note as well, run ning thus:

"Mr. Pacewell begs to enclose the cheque which Mr. Hamilton was good enough to offer him. Mr. Pacewell would also add his thanks for the loan would also add his thanks for the loan and the other kindnesses which Mr. Hamilton was good enough to show him; but Mr. Pacewell can only refrain from just censure of the interested motives which prompted Mr. Hamilton's actions."

Jack read this two or three times slowly, then its hidden meaning flash ed upon him.

Why, that scamp Shallop actually proposed the very thing, and I was so savage with him that I never saw I had done it."

It was a galling reflection and worried poor old Jack more than the actual loss of his fortune.

But more was to come. Within half an hour a large bouquet came in with another note.

FEEDING STUFFS VARIABLE.

When it becomes necessary for stock raiser or dairy farmer to purchase feeding stuffs, it is important that he has a reasonably accurate knowledge of the relative feeding value of the feeds that are available. Bulletin No. 26, second series, of the Dominion Experimental Farms, obtainable from the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, states that while many of for baling. Instead of 100 per cent the well known feeds have been kept up to their standard quality, there have been upon the market n t a few that are exceedingly poor, some practically worthless, and these sold at prices, little if anything, below those, of gods far superior in nutritive value. Dr. F. T. Shutt. Dony.—New Bedford Standard. tive value. Dr. F. T. Shutt, Done inion chemist, who is the author of this publication, recommends that one buying feed stuffs should insist on the vender furnishing a gurantee as to protein, fat and fibre content in products as the Commercial Feeding Stuffs Act provides are to be sold under guarantee. According to analysis made at the Experimental Farm Laboratory, the composition of screenings as produced at the elevators and resulting from the cleaning and grading of wheat and other grains, is extremely variable according to the relative amounts of broken wheat and weed reeds contained. Many weed seeds, if not actually harmful are at least so pungent and distasteful to stock as to render the meal made from the screenings unpalatable. Screenings that have been purified of what are known as black seeds are shown to be both nutritive and fattening. This is shown not only by laboratory test, but by feeding experiments with cattle, swine and poultry.

HARVEST FROM UNDER OCEAN

Kelp Has Been Proved of Such Value in Industry That It is Now Carefully Gathered.

A good deal has been written about the use of the seaweed, kelp, for the production of potash, and a good deal of extravagant dreaming has been in-dulged in. However, the kelp industry has put itself on a solid and prosperous footing, and gold in the shape of the indispensable potash is being harvested from the waters of the Pacific. The cutters or harvesters are ocean-going boats and stay out at sea all the time, while the barges carry the mac-erated kelp back to the wharf, where it is pumped from the holds into fermenting tanks. Foreign matter such as bolts, nuts, etc., brought in with the kelp are removed by electromagnets before the pumps are reached.

Harvesting consists in cutting the plant about six feet below the surface of the water. It has actually been found that this treatment improves the growth and stand of the beds to such an extent that they may be cut over about every 90 days. The area cut at present extends from Point Conception south to the Mexican line.

The potash is all used for chemical purposes, owing to its unique purity. and there is not enough of it to sup-ply this demand. The total quantity of the pure product is not great enough to be considered seriously for fertilizer purposes. There are, however, a number of residues produced containing potash which amount to quite a ton-

NOW SHORTAGE OF CANDLES

British Food Ministry Seeks Method by Which It May De Enabled to Regulate Supplies.

News is coming from many parts of the country that the shortage of candles is increasing owing to the fact that many people who did not use them before are now supplementing their gas and electric light rations by their use. It is becoming more clear every day that some means must be adopted to insure that householders in rural districts, where there is no gas or electricity, have an adequate supply of illuminants. Important national industries which cannot well be carried on without an adequate candle supply must also be protected. A scheme for controlling candle supplies is engaging the attention of the ministry of food.

During and since last winter there has been a candle shortage. The oils and fats branch of the ministry of food, within whose view this matter comes, have received numerous complaints from rural councils and individuals of the difficulty of getting supplies and of retail prices going up by leaps and bounds. There is evidence of a new demand having sprung up within the last six weeks, accentuating last winter's shortage and making a candle famine imminent.-Manchester Guard-

War Coinage in Germany.
Due to metal shortage Germany has instituted iron coinage. The fractional mark coins are no longer of copper and nickel, but are forgings of Siemens-Martin steel. The coinage of copper was discontinued in 1917. Aluminum had been coined to a small extent before the war; the smallest coins, one and two pfennig pieces, are now made of aluminum, which is more attacked by ordinary water, soda, salts, etc., than by distilled water. Zinc coins have recently been intro-duced. Zinc coins had been used in French Indo-China; they are again more apt to corrode, especially when impure with lead, cadmium and iron, in distilled water than in ordinary water; they turn yellow-brown, but as ne a pleasant gray tint in soda and salt. On the whole, the cheapest iron coins have answered best.-Engineering.

New Textile Material. Textilit, said to be used in 23 of the largest German factories, is a substitute material that is predicted to outlast the war as a permanent addition to the textile industry. It consists of a paper thread and a fiber thread twisted together and, though the percentage of long fiber is very small, it is claimed to have yielded products that the uninitiated cannot distinguish from the former linen and jute fabrics. The fiber gives a firmness that paper fabrics do not possess. The material is made into weaving and sewing yarns and webs of all Patrol Leader Griggs and Pirate Have Adventures Which Would Seem to Furnish Quite a Number of Thrills.

"Me and Pirate saw, her first," said Patrol Leader Griggs, when asked to recall the most recent maritime mishap of which, as a boy scout, he had official cognizance. "It was only the other day, and we'd been sent on special patrol along the cliff, two one way and two t'other, the sea fog being so She was quite close in, but you could only just see her in the mista fair-sized steamer, and not moving, so I knew she was on the sand."

Griggs sent the Pirate back post haste, says "A. E. C." in London Daily Chronicle, that a rocket apparatus might be sent and the nearest lifebont warned.

"The strange part was she didn't hoot or nothing," said Griggs-"not a sound. I holloa'd, but they wouldn't be likely to hear. Also I took off my jersey and waved it, just to let 'em know help 'ud be coming, but I don't think they saw."

Within 45 minutes Pirate returned in company with the rocket apparatus

"And what do you think!" exclaimed Griggs indignantly, "at first they wouldn't take his word for it up at the station. Was he quite sure he hadn't made a mistake, if you please! Just as if I don't know a stranded steamer when I see one!"

The rocket was successfully fixed and the tackle made fast on the steam-But crew and vessel owed their rescue to the alternative aid brought by the boys' summons.

"When the lifeboat" came up," explained Griggs, "they passed her a warp, and she put an anchor out, and the steamer hauled herself back into

I asked about the scar on Griggs'

"It was a beastly dark night," he replied, "when that happened. There was a parcel for the next station and I was taking it half-way, to meet one of their boys coming up—both on our bikes. I was going at a fair lick, and ran into a big biscuit tin that some silly ass had left in the middle of the road. At least it sounded like a bis-cuit tin, but I didn't go hunting round to find out what it was. The blood wasn't half running down my leg, so I got back as quick as I could."
"Do you find bicycles useful in coast

"They're all right to anyone used to them. I lent my bike to Pirate once -but never again! A mine was re-ported ashore a mile and a half along the coast. Pirate was told to hurry there and stand watch over it till the motorboat came to make it harmless. There's some sand holes and deep cuttings along the cliff, and being in too much of a hurry to see where he was going Pirate fell into pretty near all of them. Then he stuck the bike into a hedge and ran the rest."

"Have you ever had a mine come ashore and explode?" "One did. It made a most tremen-dous loud noise, only I didn't hear it myself, being asieep at the time."

"Did it do much damage?" "Depends on what you call much," replied Griggs judicially. "A man's shoulder put out of joint and about a thousand quids' worth of broken win-

CRADLE SONGS

So Old as to Be Literary Curiosities.

Almost all popular cradle songs are very old, some of them so old that, were they not familiar, they might be considered the veriest curiosities of literature. Through all the changes of language they have held their own upon the lips and in the hearts of the people, observes a writer in Kansas City Journal.

From mouth to mouth they have come down through the years with an irresistible swing of rhythm and patter and fingle of words till they seem to have been rather a natural growth than a human invention.

In all the melodies there is a cer-tain likeness of rhythm with a national, I might say a temperamental. tional, I might say a temperamental difference of movement and of meter from the slow assured major of the German to the wild planitive minor of the Scotch, characterized by the short accented notes of the weirdness of the Hungarian with its sudden

That these old songs should have embodied and retained the characteristics of the people among whom they originated gives them an importance which their crude words and the elementary character of their melodies scarcely seem to warrant. The words often seem a mere meaningless jumble the melody is always within the easy compass of home voices. No doubt both express, in some supernally wise way, the one unalterable senti-ment of maternal love.

It may be that even the words of these baby songs had originally some significance they have since lost. The mother little thinks that "Bye Baby Bunting" was once a tale full of ver ity. To her'the rabbit skin is indeed a "fairy tale," for she much prefers dainty muslins and silks and laces. While, though, "papa" may be a mighty hunter, it is well known that the game he bags is dollars. But in that time, antedating civilization. when this song was first sung, the rabbit skin was an important part of he baby's wardrobe.

It was then that it became crystallized in song so that muslins and laces have never been able to supersede it, and it has become one of those incantations that set baby off on journeys of his own through dreamland It is but one of his many illusions.

"City of Gotham" is a nickname of reign origin with no particular applicability. Gotham is the name of an ancient village in England, whose an ancient village in England, whose inhabitants, according to tradition, once escaped a burdensome duty about to be put upon them by feigning stupidity. This smart trick in pretending to be fools gave rise to the expression "the wise men of Gotham," and the story of "the three wise men of Gotham who went to see in a of Gotham who went to sea in a bowl." The name was first applied to New York City in a humorous maga-zine called "Salmagundi," started in 1807 by Washington Irving and two or three others, in which they made fun of the pretensions of some of the "wise men of Gotham," meaning the New York of that day. The magazine was read, the fun-making approved and the nickname became apparent.

Exports From Forests.

Reports of the Trade and Commerce Department show that, for the year ending November, 1918, Canadian ex-ports of primary forest products totalled $64,281,861. This is an increase of 22 per cent. over the previous year. The exports from the forest were very nearly double those from the fisheries, and were 85 per cent. of those from the mine. In addition to the primary forest products, consisting mainly of lumber and unmanufactured wood in various forms, wood-pulp was exported amounting to $32,580,619. which wood in manufactured form, not otherwise covered, totalled $826,-551. Immense Indian Food Dishes.

The largest food dishes in the world were recently bought of the Indians of Vanncouver Island, British Columbia, for the museum of the American Indian, New York City. These dishes were purchased from a tribe named Kwakiutis, which in English means 'Smoke of the World." They are used for special festivals when great numbers of Indians gather to celebrate some religious or ritual festival. The dishes are carved out of wood and soups are brought to a boiling by dropping hot stones into the food The carvings represent the clan to which the dish belons, which in one instance is the "Wolf" and in another the "Eagle" clan.

The statement then details long objections to the proposed treatment of the Saar region, Malmedy, Morosnet and Alsace and the eastern frontiers, and argues that the worst manifestation of the disregard of the right of self-determination is the separation of Danzig from the German Empire. FRESH CATASTROPHE.

If such a treaty came into force, it is declared, it would mean a fresh catastrophe for the whole world. The German statement adds:

"A dying philosophy of imperialistic and capitalistic tendencies is here celebrating its last terrible triumph. We appeal to the innate right of men and nations under which the British state developed, the Dutch people liberated themselves, the North American nation established its independence and France shook off absolutism. The Old Order Changeth

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newsp Syndicate.)

"You may be only a poor typist," smug little Aunt Caroline had told her niece Babette, "but don't forget that you are a lady-or are entitled to call yourself one so long as you don't do any things that are unworthy of a real

Aunt Caroline had never done any of those things; in fact, she had worked at rather trying odds for the last ten years in the uptown flat where she kept house for her own four sons and daughters and her niece

And they had all remained ladies—she and her daughter and the niece, and the three boys had, so far as the mother knew, remained "perfect gen-tlemen"—in spite of the three flights up and the dingy, bare, painted walls of the kitchen where Caroline's work never seemed to be done, and in spite of the debts there had been to pay ofter the husband's long illness.

On the parlor table there was a copy of a well-known book on so-called social usage, and although the chapter on caudle parties and the advice the writer of the book gave on "how to act when meeting the English royal family," and how to write to the archbishop of Canterbury had been of little real use to Caroline, she found much of it immensely helpful to her in her task.

The fact was that Caroline had, as she said, seen very much better days in the years when she and her cousin, Babette's mother—for Babette was not a real niece-had, for one brief season mingled in a society that never found its way to Caroline's poor little widow's flat.

Then came the marriages of Caroline and Babette's mother and the death of both Babette's parents, the death of Caroline's husband, the bring-ing up of the five children in the ways of gentlefolk, and then, a year ago, Babette's engagement to Caroline's eldest -who, to be sure, was only a sort of third cousin.

The courtship was conducted along lines that would have been approved by even the author of that book on social decorum on Caroline's parlor The young people, reminded that it was not well-bred to go to the theater unchaperoned, never went to the movies on a Saturday night without Caroline in tow, though poor Caroline sometimes endured all kinds of torment fearing that she was a hin-drance to their good time. And Caroline remembered that when Babette's mother and she had been engaged they had not permitted their lovers more than the meagerest kisses, and those on the cheek.

Engagements are sometimes broken, they had been told, and a "real lady" would never cease regretting the fact if she had ever allowed any more passionate salute from a man who did not become her husband. So Caroline had told Babette and her son and, though they had been engaged a year, there was but one salute a day, and that very decorously upon the cheek.

When the first Christmas of their engagement came about Caroline had reminded her children that "well-bred engaged people did not give personal The young man, besides the engagement ring, should give nothing but flowers, books and candy." Her own husband had given her a copy of Tennyson's poems on the Chr they were engaged, and the Tennyson now reposed beneath the book on good form on the parlor table.

He had given her roses on all holicandles every week-end. There was no reason, Caroline said, why her son should not do so much for Babette. He could afford it, for he was now getting a generous salary. Babette didn't often protest, but she was a practical bit of a girl, and when she might have been making a collection of useful household things given her by her husband-to-be—as other girls she knew did—she took small pleasure in the little bunch of roses that faded on her bureau after every holiday nor in the candles that she shared with her cousins every week-

From her own slender earnings she might have bought things that would eventually have helped feather the nest, too, but Caroline assured her that would not have been in good The great authority especially cautioned young women against giving anything of a personal nature to Books, desk accessories, accessories of sport—a riding crop, or something of that sort—were the things suggested. And as Caroline's eldest son, Stephen, had no desk save the office one he toiled at eight hours a day, and knew no sports save struggling with the crowds on his daily trip to and from that office, Babette's choice was limited to books.

He liked the Stevenson and the Kipling she had given him, but how much sooner they could have been married if instead of those books she could have given him something that would do for the little flat—chairs and tables, or a rug, perhaps!

It was three weeks before Christmas and Babette and Stephen had each secretly decided to linger after office hours to make the Christmas purchases. Unknown to each other they were both part of the great throng that swarmed one of the department vail in the army.

Gardner came back from New York the next morning and in the afternoon he took Amy to tea at the most fash ionable hotel in town. Gardner liked to be seen at smart places—especially in company with a good-looking girl.

"Billy's sailing tomorrow," he said, casually, in the course of conversation. "Where to?" asked Amy, with apparent indifference.

"France. He's going in aviation over there. That's really why he came east, you know. I've got to go down town and fix up some things for him as soon as we leave here—you won't mind if I send you home in the car alone, will you?"

"Of course not, Gardner." Amy was trying hard not to choke on the de-licious piece of French pastry which she was doing her best to swallow. Then she received another shock, Gardner leaned over the table and began to speak in a lowered voice.

-will you marry me? "Is this a surprise party?" gasped

"I shouldn't think you would be surprised-I made up my mind some time

"But I didn't know that, and as much as I've seen of you lately, it never entered my head that you loved me. I like you, but I don't love you any more than you honestly love me. And I want to be friends-you're a better friend than you would be husband-don't you truly think, Gard-

Gardner smiled in spite of himself. "Where did you learn so much bout being in love, little Amy?"

"I learned the little I know from a very poor teacher who didn't even want me for a pupil. I'm sorry, Gardner, but I do care for someone else. He doesn't eyen know I exist-hardly. Forgive me, but it's the truth. And you'll still be my friend, won't you?"

"You can be perfectly sure about that," returned the rejected suitor promptly.

Amy waved her hand to him and then turned and walked rapidly in the opposite direction from her own house. Her head was dizzy and her feet seemed to travel too slowly. dragged herself wearily up the steps of a familiar house and rang the bell.
"Is Mr. William Lane in?" she asked the man who answered her ring. "In the library, miss."

"Don't announce me, then-I'll go

Billy was sitting with his back to the door writing. Amy walked across the room before he saw her. Then he dropped his pen and sprang to his feet in amazement.

"Amy!" he cried. "Has something happened? You want Gardner?

"No, I don't want Gardner-I've just refused to marry him. I just want to know why you are going away without saying good-by to me. It's unbeliev-

"Do you mean to tell me you're not going to marry Gardner? Why not?" "It's really none of your business, but I'll tell you. For the simple reason that I don't happen to care for him-not in the marrying way of caring, I mean.'

"What way is that?"

"Iddidn't come here to talk to you about marriage, Mr. William Lane. I think you are-I think I almost hate Billy covered the distance between less time than it takes to mention it. Then he caught Amy in his arms and held her till she had eased to struggle.

"And I love you, love you, love you," he told her for about fifty times in as many different ways. "Look me in the eyes and tell me you hate me."

But Amy was too comfortable to look up, so she didn't even answer him

After a little while Billy looked at his watch and found it was a quarter "Will you go to dinner with me this time, Amy darling?" he asked her. "It looks as if I'd have to. You don't know how much I wanted to go with you that day, Billy. Let's get out of the Rouse before Gardner comes. "Would you marry me tomorrow if I could get a special license?" "Yes, any time at all."

"Anywhere. You won't be able to lose me now. And Billy, 'my husband and I' will be glad to come and visit. you on your wild and woolly farm as soon as you come back to us."
"Then, I'll have something worth fighting for now-that's what helps a man to do his duty even if it is hard work, too. I'm the luckiest person in the world today, Amy dearest."

"With the exception of one other," corrected Amy, and was immediately deprived of the power of speech again.

One Thing at a Time; General Foch, under whose splendid strategy our army in France is proved to serve, is a "one thing at a time" man. When he gives an order it is an order to do one thing and one thing only-never to even think of two things. . He insists that this rule pre-
