Some time ago we pointed out that on the 30th of June last a balance of over 230 thousand dollars remained to the credit of the depositors in the a great and statesmanlike measure Savings Banks at Chatham and Newcastle. If we add to this what his invested in Daminion stock, and in other Government securities we do not think we are far astray in estimating about $300,000 to be locked up in these investments. The greater small portion five per cent., and a still smaller proportion perhaps six million dollars should be invested in rate of interest is not entirely satis-

We need only point to Moncton, with its splendid sugar refinery, and the various other industries about to be started in that enterprising town. The people there do not intend to be of the tariff slip by, and invest their surplus capital at four per cent. Not Moncton alone, but various other towns throughout the Dominion are settling to work, and manufactures of various kinds are being established. The proposed cotton factory on the St. Croix when completed will give employment to as many men as are now engaged in lumbering on that river.

DREAD TREACHERY News of a desperate atter to rob a ranch, in wh a cowboy was shot throu the lungs and a h breed killed, reached Chic from Fort Mobrara in Nebras Saturday morning. The r bers were believed to be deserters, who had with th four horses stolen from the ca alry stables. Major Upham d patched Lieut. Cherry, of Fifth Cavalry, with eight a and five Indians, with orders capture the robbers. Che struck the trail, and soon for one horse tied to a tree, bloody garments lying abo He rode on the entire day, a losing the trail, camped Next day he started eastward reach the rations sent to from the fort. Meantime brother of Bordeaux, one of robbers, had come over from agency, and with a party of diers and Indians followed Lie Cherry's general direction. about 10 o'clock Cherry, had divided his party, retain three men with him, saw i at a distance on the bluff. W. riding along with Serge Harrison on his right hand Thomas Locke and James C roy in the rear, a shot was fi behind them. The Lieuten at ouce turned in his saddle asked what that meant. Lod with his pistol in his hand, within a few yards of Che declared that his weapon gone off accidently, and im: diately shot Lieutenant Che through the heart, death be instaneous. Locke then turn and fired on Conroy, at wh it appears, he had directed first shot. Conroy was wou ed and knocked from his ho Harrington, seeing his off shot down and strange men idly advancing on them, bel ed Cherry and himself had b betrayed by the other soldi and that the men advance were the robbers. He at o fled, and, after riding down own horse and Lieut. Cher which followed him, reached post last night. Lieut. Cher party were scattered over sev miles, and it was afterw learned that the men whom H rington took for robbers w indeed the gang which the n itary were pursuing. From fact that no one could comp hend the situation, Locke, p ting spurs to his horse, escal The murderer's motive can be divined, and the whole at has a very mysterious aspec
