ROME LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent).

Rome, May 18th, 1912.

It may be said, without fear of exaggeration, that the formation of a body for the avowed purpose of carrying out a bigoted program against the Catholics of America has lowered the United States considerably in the eyes of European countries. That such a foundation as that calling itself 'The Guardians of Liberty' should be established in a country that prides itself on the title of the 'Home of the Free' in the twentieth century, look most Europeans by surprise, though it was quite well understood that the spirit of the group of botches was anything but that of America, and the group of bigots had no such thing as a status in the Republic.

However all this has not prevented the United States from being pulled down from the pedestal of freedom and liberty on which three-fourths of Europe had placed the great Republic of the West. To the few who have seen that vile rag styled the Menace, the sheet seems to be nothing else than the Asino of America. Nothing is too sacred, too manly, too noble for attack in its lurid pages. And all in the name of liberty! Even the degraded Asino of Rome which lives on Masonic gold stealthily handed to it is more straightforward than this.

Over the signature of His Eminence Cardinal Gennari, Prefect of the S. Congregation of the Council, the following appears in the present issue of the Acta Apostolicae Sedis:—'Supplicating letters have reached the S. Congregation of the Council from many quarters praying earnestly that all or some of the feast days of the holidays of obligation which were suppressed by the Apostolic letter of July 2nd, 1911, might be restored to their former condition in order to satisfy the devotion of the people petitioning for it, and on account of other reasons peculiar to each locality. It was particularly asked that the Feast of Corpus Christi might be observed with a solemn procession and ceremonial, as before, on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday, and this in a special way, because the people, who have been accustomed to hold this day as particularly solemn and to celebrate it with all due pomp, seemed to suffer the absence of the procession with a certain sadness of soul and spiritual detriment. Moreover Our Most Holy Lord Pope Pius X, to whom these facts were mentioned by the undersigned Cardinal Prefect of this S. Congregation, in his anxiety, lest, from a false interpretation of the letters referred to above, the piety of the faithful and the worship due to God should suffer in any way, and actuated by a desire to see both increase as far as possible, has commanded the following to be made public, ordered and conceded:—

(1) When after considering the circumstances that exist in this progressive age, the Sovereign Pontiff suppressed some of the holidays of obligation, just as had been done on more than one occasion by his predecessors, nothing was further from his mind than the suppression of the festival side of these days. His Holiness even wishes those days to be celebrated in the sacred edifices with a degree of solemnity not inferior to that which existed before, and, if possible, with no falling off in the attendance of the faithful. But it was and is His Holiness's intention to relax the obligation by which the people were bound to hear Mass and abstain from servile works, in order to prevent transgressions being committed against a precept of frequent occurrence, and also lest it should happen that whilst God would be honored by many he would be at the same time offended by some with grave injury to souls. Accordingly His Holiness has enjoined upon all having the care of souls to make these dispositions known to their flocks, and to earnestly exhort them to manifest even on those days their love for God and veneration of the saints, as far as they possibly could, especially by hearing Mass and taking part in other holy practices.

(2) And that the faithful may be more drawn to observe more piously the festival days mentioned above, the present letter concedes special facilities to all Ordinaries of dioceses to dispose their subjects from the law of fast and abstinence as often as a day of fast or abstinence should happen to fall on a feast, which, though not one of precept, is devoutly celebrated by a due number of people.

(3) Moreover, this letter enables Bishops of dioceses, when they think it is expedient, to celebrate the Feast of Corpus Christi with a solemn procession and accompanying ceremonies as heretofore on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday, although it is not a day of obligation; all things to the contrary notwithstanding. Given at Rome from the Secretariate of the S. Congregation of the Council, May 3, 1912. (Signed) G. CARDINAL GENNARI, Prefect. O. GIORDA, Secretary.

Notwithstanding the hostile manifestations against the war with Turkey that have characterized Socialist gatherings in Italy for some weeks, the enthusiasm of the people for victory daily increases. The public subscription opened in aid of the families of dead and wounded soldiers has passed five million francs; while that intended for the purchase of an aerial fleet to be presented to the Italian army has come to two millions. For the people of Italy are determined upon the humiliation of that anachronism of the age, the unspokeable Turk, whose hands the blood of so many Christians have reddened for the past fifty years. Though plenty of scope is given to the Socialists, 'the Turks of Italy,' to let off steam on the question, they are occasionally given a lesson on their absence of patriotism. Replying a few days ago to the Socialist group in the municipality of Venice, the Mayor voiced what may be termed the sentiments of all true Italians, 'Apropos of the war which Italy is carrying on against the Turks, said the Chief Magistrate of the Queen of the Adriatic, 'let us not unite with the Turks. Let us rather unite with our brothers and express a hope that the struggle may end gloriously with victory for the Italian arms. Let peace of course come; but let it spell greatness and prosperity for Italy.' And though the Premier of the Chamber declared himself ready last week to form an alliance with the Socialists against the Catholics, he may feel quite certain that the people will for the future look with profound suspicion on that nationless organization, the Turks of Italy.

Information has reached Rome of the death of one of the most venerable figures in Europe, in the person of Bishop Mayer, confessor to the Emperor of Austria, chaplain to the Court of Vienna for fifty years and tutor to the family of Francis Joseph. Surrounded by his life-long friends the grand old priest has passed away in his eighty-fourth year, and with him die numberless secrets of public and private life in the Austrian Empire, for the knowledge of which the world would give a great deal. Bishop Mayer became chaplain to the Court of Vienna in 1866. From the outset the young Emperor showed much confidence in the young priest, whom he chose as his confessor and to whose care he confided the education of his children. During the long period passed by the Court Chaplain in the palace at Vienna his life was spent in retirement, and confined almost entirely to the bosom of the Imperial family; for he felt convinced the secrets he held precluded him from the general intercourse he could otherwise have enjoyed. Inscrutable as the Sphinx he fulfilled his duties day by day till the end came. For the Crown Prince Rudolf, whose suicide caused such consternation in Austria-Hungary, the aged tutor preserved a lasting affection. 'The letters written by the Prince as a boy, his toys and the pen with which Rudolf had learned to write were jealously kept by the chaplain. And perhaps the happiest hours in the twilight of his life were those when the Archduchess visited him in his room to listen to an anecdote of their brother and of their mother whose life the archbishop's dagger so cruelly ended at Geneva.

Only one constantly watching the official promulgation from Rome of new dioceses, the division of old ones, the creation of vicariates and abbacies in various parts of the world can realize the wonderful progress made by the Catholic Church throughout the five continents. This week the Vatican bulletin proclaims the elevation of the Apostolic Vicariate of Brownsville, U. S. A., into the diocese of Corpus Christi, which shall cover the same extent of territory as before. It also defines the localities which the new diocese of Kearney, formerly part of Omaha, comprehends. These are Kearney, Rock, Garfield, Valley, Sherman, Buffalo, Cheyenne, Kimball, Banner, Scotts Bluffs, Sioux, Dawes, Box Butte, Morrill, Garden, Sheridan, Cherry, Grant, Hooker, Thomas, McPherson, Logan, Ouster, Blaine, Loup and Brown; included are parts of Dawson, Lincoln, Keith and Deuel.

At its meeting on Sunday, the Superior Council of the Celebration of the Centenary of the Feast of Constantine discussed several important matters in connection with the carrying out of the solemn event.

HEADACHE

Seems To Be Habitual With Many People.

Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually and wondering why they can get no relief. Headaches are generally caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both. Burdock Blood Bitters removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect circulation of pure blood to all portions of the body, thereby curing the headaches by removing the cause. Mrs. L. Maguire, Kilmount, Ont., writes:—'I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I used to be greatly troubled with headaches, but after using two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was completely cured. This was two years ago and I have had no return of the headache since.'

The Name of God in Shakespeare.

M. Micolet, in his 'Jeanne d'Arc,' says: 'I do not recollect to have seen the name of God in Shakespeare. If it is there at all, it is very rarely, and without a shadow of religious sentiment. A writer in America answers: 'This is unparadiseable. The most superficial glance ought to save any one from writing such nonsense. Mrs. Cowden Clarke and Mr. Bartlett, in their concordance of Shakespeare's plays, quote nearly one thousand passages where the name of God may be found in a Christian and devotional sense.'

The second error: 'If it is there at all, it is very rarely, by chance and without a shadow of religious sentiment,' is as bad as the first. What, for instance, could be more pious, humble, reverential and thoroughly Catholic in its sentiment than Henry's prayer before the Battle of Agincourt? O God of Battles steel my soldier's hearts; Possess them not with fear; take from them now The sense of reckoning, if their opposed numbers Pluck their heart from them!—Not today, O Lord. Oh, not today, think not upon the fault My father made in compassing the crown! Richard's body have I interred new; And on it have bestowed more acornite tears Than from it issued forced drops of blood! Five hundred poor have I in yearly pay, Who twice a day their withered hands hold up Towards heaven, to pardon blood; and I have built Two chantries, where the sad and solemn priests Sing still for Richard's soul.'

'After the victory is won he gives all the glory to God: * * * O God, thy arm was here, And not to us, but to thy arm alone, Ascribe we all * * * Take it, God, For it is none but thine. * * * Come, go we in procession to the village; And be it death proclaimed through our host To boast of this, or take that praise from God Which is his only * * * Do we all holy rites: Let there be sung 'Non Nobis' and 'Te Deum'; The dead with charity enclosed in clay. * * *

FRANCE.

The remaining members of the band which has terrorized France have been slain at a little villa called Le Petit Robinson. Their destruction was accomplished in a manner which is usually resorted to in dealing with savages. Seven hundred soldiers were employed to keep order while nineteen police officers did the shooting of the two bandits in the cottage. The previous encounter with their terrible leader, the demon chasseur, Bonnot, was on the grounds of a millionaire Socialist named Proustina. It was in Proustina's garage that Bonnot took refuge.

A coldness is beginning to manifest itself between Russia and France, and there is talk of a recall of Ambassadors, or at least of the individuals serving in both countries.—America.

'Father,' asked eight-year old Alice, returning home from school, 'are you good at punctuation?' 'Yes,' replied the father. 'Well, tell me, please, how would you punctuate, 'The wind blew a five-dollar bill around the corner?' 'Why, daughter, I would simply put a period at the end of the sentence.'

'I wouldn't,' said Alice mischievously. 'I would make a dash after the five-dollar bill.'

Mistakes made over the telephone are sometimes as humorous as they are serious. One last involving the subway has woman and her husband. 'You know,' she said, 'I wanted to persuade our benzo to lay in the neck we had provided for them. So I telephoned my husband to bring home a couple of artificial eggs with him.'

'Well, and didn't he?' 'Didn't, he?' He brought home a pair of pork legs.'

BACK WAS SO LAME!

LIFE WAS A BURDEN FOR TWO YEARS.

Mrs. Joseph Throop, Upper Point de Bute, N.B., writes:—'I cannot speak too well of Doan's Kidney Pills. For two years I was so tired life was a burden and I got up more tired than when I went to bed, and my back was so lame I could hardly straighten up. I took different kinds of medicine, but none of them did me any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so, and to-day I don't know what it is to be tired, and my lame back is all gone. I can recommend them to any person suffering with lame back, and that terrible tired feeling.'

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any ill after-effects. Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all druggists or mailed direct on receipt of price, by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Car Ferry.

It is officially announced from Ottawa that the Car Ferry connecting this Island with the mainland is to be established between Carleton Point in this Province and Cape Tormentine in New Brunswick. This is what by usage has been called the Capes Route, as it is hereabouts the crossings have been made by iceboats in mid-winter. This is the site chosen by the Federal Government on the report of Professor Kirkpatrick, of Queen's University, who had been commissioned by the Government and sent by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, to study conditions in the Straits of Northumberland with a view of the establishment of this car ferry. After the Professor had submitted his report and the same had been duly considered by the Minister of Railways and the experts of his department, the decision was reached to adopt the site above described. It is expected that tenders will be called for without much delay for two carrying steamers of the latest type and the work of constructing docks commenced as soon as possible.

The distance from shore to shore on the ferry route chosen is ten miles; this is the shortest distance between this Province and the mainland, and it is expected that it will be possible to keep up daily steam communication for the greater part of the year.

The establishment of the car ferry involves the broadening or standardizing of the gauge of the Prince Edward Island Railway and the acquisition, by the Government, of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Railway, running between Sackville and Cape Tormentine in New Brunswick, which will become part of the Intercolonial Railway. All this calls for the expenditure of large amounts of public money. No one should take exception to the circulation in our midst of a few millions of money from the Federal treasury, so long as it is honestly expended and applied for the advancement of the interests of our Province.

By the establishment of this car ferry we shall become attached to the mainland of the Dominion more closely than ever before. Passengers starting from here can go through to their destination without change, and freight shipped at any point on the Island Railway may be billed through and arrive at the point desired without transhipment. All this will be of the greatest advantage to our Province which has hitherto suffered in consequence of isolation.

Without any doubt this car ferry will be the greatest boon this Province has enjoyed, and Premier Borden, the Minister of Railways, Messrs. McLean and Nicholson, the Dominion members for Queen's County, and all who have assisted in bringing about this desirable consummation are to be congratulated.

The fine residence of Mr. Isaac Lane, Brighton, was sold the other day to Mr. Leonard Wood for $3,000. The household effects, etc., all brought good prices. B. Carter & Co. were the auctioneers.

Considerable valuable information regarding our fisheries was presented at the meeting of the fisheries committee of the conservation commission at Ottawa on the 4th inst. Mr. W. A. Found declared that our lobster fishery despite of serious depletion is the greatest and most resourceful in the whole world. He further stated that more than 50,000,000 lobsters are annually taken in Canada, and with sufficient protection such as the department of marine and fisheries intends to apply, this important industry bids fair to maintain its present important status. Mr. Found in his address outlined the technical side of lobster culture, and pointed out where conservation methods can and should be adopted. In view of the decline of the shad fishery in Eastern Canada in the last ten years, Professor Prince said the Dominion Government would this year operate for the first time a floating hatchery which will accommodate 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 shad eggs. That the Canadian Atlantic oyster can be transplanted and propagated in British Columbia waters was one of the statements made by Dr. Joseph Stafford of McGill University, Montreal. Hitherto it was believed that the large Atlantic oysters would not reproduce themselves on the coast, so that this announcement is of very great moment to the oyster fisheries of British Columbia.

"The Round Table," a London quarterly review of the Politics of the British Empire, which sizes up men and things impartially, refers to the late session of the Canadian Parliament and says that the Administration handled the session with skill, patience and sagacity. There was nothing sensational in its performances, nor was there slovenliness or feebleness in its management of the public business. Meeting Parliament with much friction, irritation and uneasiness among its supporters, at prorogation there was real cohesion in the ranks and a settled and solid loyalty to the cabinet. This result is attributed chiefly to the quiet force and conciliatory temper of the Prime Minister in Council and to the resource in strategy and power in debate which he displayed on the floor of Parliament. Whether or not Mr. Borden was a successful leader of Opposition it is certain that he has revealed a signal fitness for the leadership of Parliament. If he lacks something of the distinction and magnetism of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he commands equal respect and inspires a genuine affection and confidence amongst his associates. In Canada as elsewhere the possession of high office enhances personal authority. This has been conspicuously demonstrated since Mr. Borden became leader of the Government.

There has been some controversy of late in the capital as to the actual flag of Canada. The matter is settled by the following despatch received at Ottawa from the secretary of state for the colonies, by His Royal Highness the Governor General: "Sir,—I have the honor to transmit to your Royal Highness a copy of a letter in regard to the flag which should be used by private persons who are British subjects. I should be glad if you would be good enough to cause the public to be informed that the Union flag is the national flag of Canada, as of all other parts of His Majesty's Dominions, and may be flown on land by all British subjects, and that the red ensign with the arms of the Dominion of Canada in the flag is intended to be used only by Canadian merchant vessels. I have the honor to be, sir, your Royal Highness' most obedient humble servant. (Signed) L. HARCOURT.

The Canadian Government party, including Premier Borden and Hon. J. D. Hazen, who are going to England to confer with the Imperial Government on the question of Imperial naval defence and other matters of Imperial moment, has arranged to leave by the Royal George on the 26th of this month. This is two days in advance of the original dates. The party will include Admiral Kingsmill and Mr. A. E. Blount, secretary to the Premier. Mr. J. G. Desbarats, Deputy Minister of the Department of Naval Affairs, is already in England.

Yesterday was nomination in the by-election for the House of Commons in South Simcoe, Ontario, rendered necessary by the appointment of the sitting member, Haughton Lennox, to a judgeship. W. A. Boys, K. C., the Conservative candidate, was declared elected by acclamation, no Liberal candidate offering. This is the second Conservative election by acclamation within a few weeks.

The All Canadian Route To Montreal.

Via the Intercolonial Railway Maritime Express is the only All Canadian Route to Quebec and Montreal from the Maritime provinces. The Maritime Express is generally admitted by experienced travellers to be the most comfortable train in America. This is especially true in regard to the dining and sleeping car services. The diners of the I. G. R. are rosy and well ventilated and furnished in the best of taste. The most excellent meals are served Table d'hote at a price away below the a la carte rates prevailing on the company owned lines. The sleeping coaches are up to date in every particular, and the smoothness of the road bed makes the long journey easy and pleasant. Being popular with a class of travellers who are generally found to be the some of good company, the through journey is never found dull, and even during the winter months there is much of scenic interest in the day's ride through the Province of Quebec. Montreal is reached at the convenient hour of 6.30 p. m. and connections are made at Bonaventure Union Station with the through trains of the Grand Trunk Railway for Toronto, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago and other points in Western Canada and the United States. Connecting train for the Maritime leaves Picton at 14.30—14.

LOCAL & OTHER ITEMS

The result of the Plebiscite as to whether or not the city would grant a bonus of $1,000,000 to the British-Canadian Shipbuilding Company for the establishment of a shipbuilding plant in Sydney was that the affirmative was carried by a vote of 7 to 1. The actual vote was 1074 for and 172 against.

A twin wireless station having communication direct with London is to be built along the New Jersey coast within a year, according to an announcement made in New York by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. of America. The first station, the announcement states is to be erected within a few months in New Jersey, on a site of 558 acres purchased recently.

The Canadian Government schooner Advocate, 80 tons, is being fitted out as a training vessel. She is in charge of Capt. Cowie, and the crew will consist of about twelve Niobe cadets. They will be taught the first elements of navigation and will do all the work on board the schooner, which will be ready in a few days. They will cruise along the Nova Scotia shore a week at a time, and will thus have a course in seamanship which they might not be able to obtain on board a man-of-war.

Magistrate McMicken started the Court Room at Winnipeg the other morning by declaring if he carried a loaded revolver and an automobile ran into him he would shoot the driver. "I think my life worth something," said the Magistrate, "and I would not allow anyone to threaten it without impunity. You automobilists should consider that the automobile inspector is protecting you against such men as myself, which keeps you from breaking the law." Four cases of speeding were before the Magistrate that morning and small fines were imposed.

To save the religious orders, particularly of the Catholic Church, which are threatened with disintegration, attorneys of the Order of St. Benedict of New Jersey have asked the Supreme Court of the United States to review the decision of the eighth United States Court of Appeals that the agreement of a monk to convey all his property to his Order was void as against public policy. The decision was made about three weeks ago in the case of Father Augustine Wirth, for fifty years a member of the Benedictine Order, at his death a priest of a German Church, in Springfield, Minn. The court held that his relatives, rather than the Order in which he had made his vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, were entitled to a $5,000 property in his name when he died.

Speaking at Staffordshire Norton Griffiths said that he endorsed to the full the First Lord's suggestion, which emanated from some of Canada's leading journals, for the creation of a great imperial fleet controlled by a special board of the Admiralty, composed of representatives from the Dominion and the Mother Country. Such a board would gradually absorb the present Board of Admiralty and lead to the creation of the greatest and most powerful fleet within the power of the British Empire to create. Were a spot like Malta chosen as headquarters it would be an excellent base from which at chosen times they could visit the different dominions and pay those visits of courtesy to foreign countries which the great trade of the Empire demanded.

A plague of caterpillars is working havoc among fruit trees near Ottawa in the province of Ontario and it is feared the losses to the farmers will be very heavy. So serious is the situation that trains on the Gatineau division of the C. P. R. have had difficulty in running on almost every trip outward from Ottawa last week. There is a heavy grade about five miles north of Ottawa, and at this point the tracks are strewn with insects. In some cases, owing to the slippery condition of the rails three engines have had to be used on a train of four cars.

Republican Convention.

Publicity will govern the Republican National Committee in its deliberations upon the contests for seats in the national convention at Chicago on the 18th, inst. This was decided without opposition at the opening session of the committee on the 6th, in accordance with the expressed wishes of President Taft and Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

The public and the newspapers will be represented by the five press associations recognized by admission of their reporters to the floor of the National House of Representatives at Washington. Two men from each press association will be permitted to be present during all deliberations and decisions of the committees. There will be no executive decisions.

The committee also elected Victor Rosewater of Omaha permanent chairman and adopted the rules of four years ago which are to govern the hearings preliminary to the National Convention which begins June 18.

Opinions differ as to significance of the only vote taken during the meeting which might be construed as a test of strength in the committee as between the Taft and Roosevelt adherents in the committee. That vote of 39 to 13 was on the question of confining the representation of the newspapers to the press associations.

The Roosevelt people contended for a complete "removal of the lid" by admitting also at least one representative of every newspaper having a recognition in the press galleries in congress. This was urged by Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota as a substitute for the recommendations of Committee Chairman Hart of Iowa, but it was defeated, as stated above, and the roll call showed the success of Mr. Hart's motion.

The only other vote of a significant character was on the proposal of Senator Borah that eight members should be sufficient to order a roll call. This was defeated and the old rule providing for twenty for this purpose was re-enacted.

The Taft adherents did not object to the widest publicity, but argued that the committee did not have facilities for admitting all and urged that while no part of the committee's sessions should be practically executive, stenographic reports should be given to press. With two hundred and thirty-eight contests pending it is plain that the committee will need every available hour from now until the convention meets at noon on Tuesday June 18.

Senator Dixon, Col. Roosevelt's manager, had the proxy of T. L. Flanagan of Nevada, but declined to use it because of his partisan interest in the committee's activity. He handed this proxy over to Representative Lucius T. Littauer a Roosevelt delegate from New York but the committee declined to admit Mr. Littauer without a direct proxy from Mr. Flanagan.

The Presidential Possibilities.

The working out of the political situation in the United States in connection with the forthcoming presidential election will be watched with keen interest. Thus far the political prophets on the other side of the line when the opinions are not tinged by prejudice, confess that it is a difficult guessing proposition. It is now taken for granted that unless something unforeseen happens, Col. Roosevelt will carry the Republican nominating convention, but whether he does not, the Republican party as an organization, is likely to emerge from the nomination fight in a more or less shattered condition. Under ordinary circumstances the Republican nominee, whether it be Taft or Roosevelt, would offer a fine opportunity for a Democratic victory. Should Roosevelt be the nominee, the opportunity is likely to be enhanced because he has succeeded in so violently antagonizing the Taft wing that personal feeling is likely to overcome party loyalty. Besides that if the allegations by Taft's supporters are to be believed there are many thousands of respectable voters in the Republican party who regarded Roosevelt as a "dangerous man" and might conscientiously adopt the attitude of "anything to beat Roosevelt."

But should Roosevelt be nominated even under these adverse conditions, and the political prophets cast their eyes over the array of possible Democratic nominees, another large international point looms up. There are four names prominently mentioned, but there is little choice between them when it comes to selecting a political champion to go up against the Man With The Big Stick.

Woodrow Wilson is able and eloquent, but he is not a politician. Champ Clark is a politician, but he is neither very able or eloquent. Harmon is well spoken of by those who know him, but he is not well known. Underwood may be regarded as a negligible quantity. That the weakness of these prospective candidates is realized by their political party is tacitly admitted by the tentative suggestions in the Democratic press that W. J. Bryan the hero of so many defeats, may yet become the white man's hope of the Democratic party.

Much speculation is aroused by the evidences of lavish financing in the Roosevelt campaign. Ostensibly Col. Roosevelt places his trust in the plain people, but among the plain people of his political entourage is a highly ornamental gentleman answering to the name of G. W. Perkins, who is supposed to represent the malefactors of great wealth, and through him the sinews of war are reputed to be pouring into the war chest of the colonel. Whether these offerings are of a propitiatory character, or whether, like the pessimistic definition of gratitude they represent "a lively anticipation of future benefits," is not yet apparent—Ottawa Citizen.

A VILLAGE TRAGEDY.

(By Gerard A. Reynolds.)

It was a poor little church, with room for at most a hundred worshippers. The grey sandstone walls outside were weather-worn, and inside the plaster that covered them was damp-stained and sadly in need of a fresh coat of paint. There was an aisle on one side divided from the nave by three round arches. On the altar were some artificial flowers. There was a side altar with a statue of Our Lady. Close to it, set in the wall, was a small marble tablet, below which hung a faded laurel wreath.

When I entered the church I knelt for a while, and it was not till I walked up the aisle to take a closer look at the monument that I found I was not alone in the village sanctuary. I then saw that beside the nearest pillar to the altar a very old woman was seated on a chair, leaning forward, with her head on her hands. She was poorly dressed. I could not see her face, but I noticed the grey locks that escaped from under the black scarf that was drawn over her head.

She did not move as I passed her. I stopped before the altar and read the brief inscription on the tablet. Translated into English it would run thus:

Erected by his compatriots of the village of Serpigny aux-Bois, to the memory of Pierre Godard, who died for France, Nov. 17, 1870, in the Army of the Loire, R. I. P.

I felt a touch on my arm; I turned. The old woman stood beside me, beaming over a stick with which she supported herself.

'Read it for me if you please, Monsieur,' she said.

I read the inscription aloud. She looked up at me and I saw that her eyes, half hidden by the drooping eyelids, were glittering, shining out of the wrinkled face from under the silvery eyebrows.

'Yes,' she said; 'that is so.' You read it rightly. I know it by heart, but I like to hear it. He was my son, Monsieur—my only son. Come out into the sunlight and let me tell you about my Pierre.

She turned, and began hobbling toward the door, passing for a moment to bend low toward the red lamp before the altar. I followed, walking slowly, so as not to hurry her. Outside in the porch of the church there was a stone bench; the western sun shone warmly upon it, and as I sat down beside her there, I found that from this spot one could just see the white tablet shining brightly amid the gloom of the aisle.

'Your son was one of the heroes of the great war?' I said.

'Yes, Monsieur. He was killed in the campaign of the Loire. He died bravely. They all said no one could be braver. He was always brave, al most reckless. When he went away, I knew he would get himself killed. Pierre was not one of those who would hide when bullets were flying; he was a fighter. When he was even a little fellow here, no boy in the village could stand up against him.

'That is the kind of a man that makes a soldier.'

'Precisely, Monsieur. He loved adventures—dangers; so that when the call came for volunteers he went among the first. I was a widow and he was my only one. He might have stayed if he wished; but he said all who could should fight.

'So he fought in a pocket and drew out a little frame with a photograph in it.

'There is his portrait. Look at it. My eyes are failing, and soon I shall not be able to see it.'

'I took it in my hand. It was a portrait of a very young soldier—not twenty years of age. The kepi was set sideways on his head, to give the wearer a swagger look; a slight mustache showed over the heavy lips the face looked rather dull; but there was a twinkle in them—eyes that might have meant fun or conceit, or both. It was not a heroic expression.

'He sent it to me from the army,' she said. 'It was done when they were at Orleans. He was in the great victory when they took the city. It was after that he was killed—not in a great battle, but every day men lost their lives at the outposts. Monsieur le Cure broke the news to me. Not the cure that is here now, for it was many years ago, Monsieur, and there have been a great many changes. I thought I should have died of grief.'

'Yes. It must have been terrible. But it was a glorious death, and would have been a good end to any life.'

'You are right, Monsieur. Still it was heart-breaking; I thought I should die. But I live on, and all I know—nearly all are gone. The neighbors have been good to me. Monsieur le Baron at the chateau over there said I should not feel my boy's loss, so far as any need of mine went. He gave me my pension. It is enough for me; and the neighbors were good. They put up his monument in the church. And Monsieur le Cure told me my boy was safe; for he made his confession the night before he was killed—a good fortune that I should not always have. And I was glad; for here at home I was not easy to persuade him

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

'I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply indebted.' Miss FARRIS SHER, Prescott, Ont.

'I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless and suffering from rheumatism. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life.' M. J. McDONALD, Trenton, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Removes the cause of rheumatism—no outward application can. Take it.

to confess. Boys will be wild. But there, where there was danger of death every day, no doubt he was more serious, and when the chance came he went to some good priest. So he was prepared for death. But still I come every day to think of him and pray for him. You will pray for him, Monsieur. He was wild, but he was a good son to me, and we shall meet again.'

'She took back the little photograph, kissed it and placed it in her pocket.'

'I am glad to have met you and heard your story,' I said.

'Yes. It is kind of you to be so sympathetic. I like to tell people of him. And now, sir, I go back to finish my Rosary; so adieu and God bless you!'

I watched her making her way slowly back to her post beside the memorial of her soldier son. I would have wished to do her some kindness, but I had hesitated to offer her anything. It occurred to me that I might see the cure, find out if she needed help, and leave him a few francs to buy her some small comforts.

Looking across the rows of green mounds with their blackening wreaths of immortelles, I saw beyond the churchyard wall a whitewashed cottage, only differing from the other houses of the village by an air of neatness in its tiny flower garden, and with a wooden cross above its porch. This must be the presbytery. I walked toward it; and as I approached the door it was open and there was the cure, a man of middle age, with grey hair on his temples, a round, smiling face, and a sadly patched soutane. He asked me to come in.

The cure seemed pleased to have a visitor and I was soon seated in his parlor—a small room looking out upon the narrow garden in front of the cottage. At the window was a table covered with books and papers. One wall was fitted with bookshelves some cheap religious prints hung on the others. On an oak table in the middle of the room a cloth was spread, and a candelabra stood on a tray with a spirit lamp alight under it. The room was evidently study, parlor and dining-room all in one—a room of all work. The priest produced a second cup from a cupboard and invited me to share his coffee accepting a cigar from my case. We then began our talk.

He told me something of the place. The apprentices' church had a history, and there were some treasures of art in its sacristy, which he promised to show me. Then I spoke of my talk with the old Madame Gondal, my interest in her story, and my desire to give him the means of helping her if she needed it. He remarked that thanks to the generosity of the late Baron de Servigny, she was not badly off; but still any trifles I entrusted to him could be used to provide some extra comforts.

'Here is a sad story,' I said.

'Yes, Monsieur—even sadder than she imagines,' replied the cure.

Then, in response to my look of inquiry, he went on to tell more, prefacing the story with a request that I would not say a word of it to any one in the place. He told me he had never spoken of it before to any one. He told it to me only because I was a stranger from a far country. It is out of respect for his confidence that I have obseged the names here.

I shall not attempt to tell it in my own words. It will be enough to give the plot of it. He had learned it from his predecessor and from the late Baron, who was interested in Madame Gondal's case. She had married, as a young girl, one of the foresters employed on the estate, and he had died while their only son, the future soldier of the Loire, was still a child. The family at the chateau had taken care of her, found her work, and assisted her out of charity.

She was quite right in saying that Pierre had always been fond of adventure. At the village school he was continually in trouble for playing truant for he liked bird-nesting and rabbit-snaring better than learning the three R's. She would excuse his absence from school by saying he was not well and needed the open

There is no better cure for a cough or cold than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It is rich in the lung-healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and is a pleasant, safe and effective medicine that may be confidently relied upon as a specific for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Quinsy, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

Mr. S. Monaghan, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—'I certify that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is an excellent medicine for coughs and colds. Last winter I contracted a heavy cold which left my lungs and throat very sore. I had to give up work and stay in the house for two weeks. I used several cough mixtures, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Three bottles entirely cured me, and I can recommend it as the best medicine for coughs.'

'Don't be imposed upon by taking anything but "Dr. Wood's" as there are many imitations of this sterling remedy on the market.'

'Dr. Wood's' is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

if he had a year or two of barrack life he might have learned discipline; but he had only three months as a soldier, and scant time to learn his new trade.

What makes you think the baby is going to be a great politician? I asked the young mother anxiously.

'I'll tell you, answered the young father, confidently; he can say more things that sound well and mean nothing at all than any kid I ever saw.'

A Sensible Merchant.

Milburn's Sterling Headache Powders give women prompt relief from monthly pains, and leave no bad after effects whatever. Be sure you get Milburn's. Price 25 and 50 cts.

A girl went to India, and at the first New Year's away from home she wrote to her devoted mother:

'It is now very hot, and I perspire a great deal, but you will be pleased to hear that I am still a member of the Church of England.'

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp held at Tasset Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for colic and toothache.

Farmer—I see you're painting these old trees. Artist—What's that got to do with you? Get on with your work. Farmer—Well, since my work is to cut them down, you'd better get on with yours.

HAD WEAK and DIZZ YSPELLS COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHT.

People all over this land toss night after night on a sleepless pillow, and do not close their eyes in the refreshing slumber that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right.

The sleeplessness comes entirely from a derangement of either the heart or nerves, or both, but whatever the cause Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound refreshing slumber. They do this by their invigorating effect on the heart and nerves, and will tone up the whole system to a perfect condition.

Mrs. A. E. Martell, Rockdale, N.S., writes:—'I was troubled for a long time with my heart, had weak and dizzy spells, could not sleep, and would have to sit up the greater part of the night, and it was impossible for me to lie on my left side. At last I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and they did me so much good I got another, and after taking it I could lie on my left side and sleep as well as before I was taken sick. They are the best medicine I ever heard of for heart or nerve trouble.'

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
