Of the retiring members we believe that Dr. Richardson is a good representative, not only of that faculty of which is the candidate, but also of graduate feeling in general, and should be re-elected.

Mr. Gibson is a typical university man. He can never be accused of illiberality in college affairs, and will of course again find a seat in the senate.

Mr. Bethune, we are convinced, does not take that interest in the university which the position demands, and which should be a sine qua non in electing a member. This has been shown clearly by his abstinence from the meetings of the senate.

The graduates have mustered courage enough to nominate a fourth man, the Rev. Mr. Cameron of Brantford, and although we do not advocate the election of a clergyman as such, yet an infusion of new blood is so desirable, as regards the senate, that we favor his candidature in preference to that of Mr.

A PEER OF THE REALM

A PEER OF THE REALM. A Lah-de-dah sort of a Chap He Was, but Thoroughbred for All That.

From the Philadelphia Times.

"I got badly left in forming a hasty opinion of the lah-de-dah captain of an English ironelad," said Capt. Ormiston of the British steamship Effective, now lying at this port. "During the recent war in Egypt I took out supplies to Alexandria, and, after discharging, received order to go to Berwickport for a charter. I knew nothing of the place, and had no chart of the north coast abourd t'e steamer. None of the merchant captains could supply me, and I finelly concluded to apply to the captain of the ironclad Invincible, that lay close alongside of us as a last chance. I pulled up to the gangway, and was met by one of the officers, who said I would have to wait a few moments as the crew were going to 'quarters.' As he spoke the boatswain's whistle was heard, clear and sharp, above the hoarse call of his mates. Immediately, as if by magic, yards began to come down and to go aloft, the blue jackets rushing to and fro on deck, and of a sudden, bang! off went one of the eighty-ton guns, fit to take your head off. After the men were 'piped down' I made my way up to the bridge, where I found a little light-haired man trotting up and down. His hat was cocked rogueishly on the side of his head; he wore long side whiskers, and an eyeglass dangled from a gold chain about his neck. As I approached he halted suddenly, whirled about on one foot, screwed his eyeglass into his eye, and in a sweet

"" My deah fellah, what can aw do faw you!" He cut such a figure that I was tempted to laugh in his face, but, controlling myself, I stated my errand. Immediately the little man had all the quarter-masters running to find his sub-officers, and in a jiffy they returned, and, couching their caps, they began to report that Mr. A. was ashore on liberty, Mr. B. had gone to Cairo, and that Mr. C. was away in the first cutter—and so on. He then turned to me and rubbing his hands said: "My deah fellah, Berwickport is a very fine place, aw assuah you; you will find no trouble in getting in; aw was there once myself, Thinks I, what an ass this man is, and touching my hat I was about to go, when a big, sailor-looking officer appeared and informed the captain that there was no chart of the British north coast aboard the ship. WEST TORONTO JUNCTION PROPERTY

Plan of Building lots on the Old Carleton Race Course lands, at West Toronto Junction, extending from Bloor Street, opposite High Park, to Dundas Street, where the Ontario & Quebec and Credit Valley Railways (Canada Pacific Syndicate) have just purchased 40 acres for depot, shops etc., also near stations of Grand Trunk, Toronto, Grey & Bruce, Northern, and Great Western Railways. The proposed Mid-land extension, east and west, will tap the Grand Trunk between these lands and Carleton, making this a centre for the Grand Trunk system, east, west, north and south. The Ontario and Quebec will be finished this year to Ottawa and Montreal, and forms a link in the Canada Pacific and Vanderbilt combinations, making Toronto one of the most important points on each of these great competing lines between the Canadian and American North-West and the sea board. Proposed passes through this property. The situation is high and dry, affording good natural drainage and abundance of pure air and spring water, and commanding a view of Lake Ontario across High Park containing nearly 400 acres Large factories and works are in course of construction, and others proposed within easy distance, but not near enough to be any nuisance. The Street Railway propose to extend their line into High Park this summer at some point near Bloor Street. Taxes low. In fact all the surroundings point to this locality as one of the most desirable around Toronto in which to select a Permanent Home. If you failed to buy lands in West Toronto 8 or 10 years ago that have since paid from 500 to 1500 per cent. and are still increasing in value, don't let the present opportunity pass of acquiring an interest at bottom prices in one of the most promising cities of the Dominion. At no time since the Toronto Land Boom, during the years of 1873 and 1874, has such an opportunity as the present been offered to parties to invest small or large amounts to good advantage. Toronto during the past few years of hard times has held its own, and although Real Estate could at times be got at a price below its real value, yet such opportunities seldom arose, and when they did shrewd speculators of means were always ready to purchase, and property if worth having could always find a purchaser at a reasonably fair value; besides the city has continued to increase in population and wealth, very many new buildings have been erected and hundreds are now in course of erection; vacant land has steadily increased in value, and so in the future as in the past must the population of the city increase, its limits extend and its real property increase in value. must the population of the city increase, its limits extend and its real property increase in value. But a few years since Parkdale was a vacant commons and land could be had at less than $100 per acre, now an acre cannot be purchased at less than from $2,000 to $3,000.

The building of the Ontario and Quebec Railway in connection with the Credit Valley and Syndicate Roads with its junction at West Toronto Junction, is giving employment to a large number of men and expending, it is said, about $2,000,000 within the limit of Toronto and this unction.

WEST TORONTO JUNCTION

Is a new suburban Town adjoining Parkdale and within two miles west of the present limits of Toronto and so called (like Chicago and Detroit Junction) because all the railways entering and leaving the city by the West do so at this point.

The Ontario and Quebec railway have purchased 40 acres here, part of the Runnymede Estate, for their workshops, which when built, with the other railway facilities will make this a larger and more important point than Parkdale, and accordingly properties which can be now purchased at a low price, must before many years be very many times more valuable.

We have sold by private sale a number of these lots 50 x 160 each to a lane, which are now being

There are churches and a good school besides a number of dwellings here. The location is high, dry and healthy, and has every advantage required to make it a popular and growing town. Commutation tickets can be had from the railways, by which return tickets to the Union Station will cost less than 8c each (4c each way) and the drive into the city by the Davenport Road or Dundas Street is always attractive.

We are instructed to sell the balance of these lots (being part of the block of land purchased by the railway) and known as the Runnymede Estate during the month of April at $125 each lot.

Galliard took the lead at the start, but was soon pilled back, and Auctioneer and Highliand Chief went to the front. A club has been formed which meets in the hall in Hunter's block, corner King and Church stree's, for the practice of that healthiest and most harmless of indoor pastimes—fencing. Fencing is an art that sharpens the eye, quickens the senses, gives every muscle equal play, and is peculiarly adapted to persons leading a sedentary life, as without being too violent and exhausting, it gives just the exercise best calculated to promote physical development and those most admirable of all qualities—patience, forbearance, and a well-balanced temper.

Nothformerly his townsman, but now of this city. Nothing definite has so far be n dene. Pulljames some dava ago issued a challenge to Gilmore to fight for a big stake within one hundred miles of Jersey City—a stipulation that in iself took from the defithering of true metal, and which was in consequence not accepted. Gilmore, who is evidently in dead earnest, sends us the following communication from Chambers' "Champion's Rest."

Philadelphia, April 28, 1883

EDITOR Chipper.—Dear aftr Please grant me space to explain my position. Some time ago George i ulljames of New York sent to a gentleman in Toronto. Ont., a letter in which he proposed that I should go to the former city for the purpose of flight-THOMAS E. PERKINS, ing him, distinctly stating in said letter that he could raise a purse of five hundred dollars for "us to contend for. He a'so said that he was anxious to meet me, as he did not want me to be licking him with my mouth, etc. On seeing the letter alfuded to I at once made arrangements to come to the States, and arrived in this city some days ago. In company with Arthur Coambers, I went to New York on the occasion of Charles Mitchell's recent benefit, and during our visit we called upon Fulliamss in reference to the matter, presuming that he would be prepared to arrange for the meeting proposed by himself. We were disappointed, however, Fulliamse declining to do as he had promised, on the plea that it was not a good time to get up a match. A ter arguing the question for some time we took our departure, satisfied that for some reason he had altered his mind and did not intend to fight. Shortly afterwards he pub ished a challenge to me to fight for one thousand dollars a side within a certain distance of Jersey city. It is hardly necessary to say that in doing this he showed that he did not mean fighting, as he knew it would not be accepted, for the reason that no such fight could be brought off in that locality. I am ready and anxious to meet Fulljames for a purse of five flundred dollars, according to his own proposition, and whenever he notifies me that he has screwed his courage up to a noint where it will stick I will be prepared to do what I came here for.

Respectfully, Harry Gilmore.

No. 1 LEADER LANE,

American circles across the line by the publication of an apology for dynamite as the leading article of the New York organ of tashionable society, the Home Journal. The following is the singular production:

We may denounce dynamite with righteous indignation, but we must acknowledge the revolution it is effecting in the arts of offence and defence. As gunpowder and fifled cannon and railroads changed the former methods of war, so this new agent has shifted again the balance of power, reducing still further the supremacy of brut force and mere numbers. Great armies and vast cities are, indeed, a source of weak ness in dynamite warfare, furnishing as they must, the mest vulnerable points of attack for its wholesale destruction. A barren rock in the secret mountains of Switzer land, with its dynamite laboratory and con voys by air or land, may set at naught the standing armies of the proud Gern the standing armies of the proud German empire, and drop annihilation unon its walled cities at any hour by night or day. At this moment a single warefarer, with dynamite in his pocket, throws the cities of Enlgand in greater terror than would an army of a hundred thousand men landing at Dover, with only the ordinary weapons of guns and sabres. A handful of hunted, homelees nihilists are able to terrorize all the Bussians forcing its emperor to live the homeless nihilists are able to terrorize all the Russians, forcing its emperor to live the life of a fugitive and making his very coronation a problem of chance. Jupiter with his lightnings was scarcely more a master of the ancent world than is the mob with its bomb of dynamite, the avenging Fate of modern monarchies.

At first glance the dynamite bomb seems an implement of fiends, but a closer view discovers in it a potent minister of good. All triumphs of science and invention work inevitably in the end for the people. It is

All triumphs of science and invention work inevitably in the end for the people. It is these scientific victories which have made the populace of to day other than the slaves and chattels of the ancient civilizations. But for these "the divine right of kings" would still dominate the world, and the great mass would be but cheap material to build the tombs for the Pharaohs. Every edwares in science has given the people an advance in science has given the people an additional hold of the sceptre of power. Sometimes by an increase of the general wealth, as in the case of the steam engine, the loom, the sewing machine, sometimes by a general multiplication of the means of destruction, as in the invention of gunpowder, cannon, and fire-arms, making a single man often more formidable than a phalanx of ancient swordsmen. Every increase in the destructiveness of weapons of war has brought increased respect and im-portance for the individual war-maker. Thus to-day the poorest nihilist with his dynamite is an object of more consideration from the czar and his nobles than would be forty thousand serfs of the olden time armed simply with staves and forks. As a direct consequence the case of these poor malcontents would be more heeded than it has been heretofore. Not even proud England can escape the alternative. She may resist for a time and try laws of excessive rigor, but at last she will come to respect this hidden force and find it wiser and cheaper to cultivate the Irishman's good will than his ill will. Thus it will be der and destruction has cleared away, that there will follow throughout the world a more ready disposition on the part of governments to listen to the petition of the hunblest classes of the community and see that no burdens of unjust laws are maddening them to revolt. The consequence will be an era of comparative peace and good will, greater stability and less frequent revolutions in governments, and the eventual abolition of the lumbering armies of the past, and finish in a few days, perhaps hours, what in olden times would have been a thirty years' war. These effects will be observed wherever the dynamite wave reaches; horror and attempts at repression at first, then the better counsels of discretion and humanity, and at last a genuine recognition of the brotherhood of the despised classcs, and a sincere purpose to relieve their estate and remove from them all unjust discriminations. We say unjust discriminations, for it is incredible that all this discontent, this unanimity of outry, should appear through all Europe without some serious justification in bad laws. It is not human nature to wince without pain; and in all ages the common people have been more ready to accept and endure impositions than to rebel without cause against fair and equal institutions. It is a weakness in all governments to favor the rich at the expense of the poor. Monarchies are the expense of the poor. Monarchies are avowedly governments of privilege for the few; but even republics cannot quite counteract the tendency of power to gravitate to the powerful. Here is New York, which has been a hundred years perfecting its system of free meriseriminate against the poor in plain de flance of principle? Happily the case is not one to call for the interposition of evidently be achieved most directly by some agency like the perfected dynamire bomb and electrical battery, which will make great armies useless, make them mere targets for destruction en masse, instead of reserves of strength. In the future, little corps of engineers with telescope, bat-teries and balloons, will take the place of dynamite, but the discriminations are irritating to the classes discriminated against, and tend to alienate them from the state which they should look up to as a sure protector and love as a second father. Without such regard from the humblest, from the great mass of the people, no government can stand in entire security. And i will be well for our legislators to beed the warning that comes to us from England, and to give due diligence to lunting our from our statute books all traces of viciou, partial, and supe fluous law, and especially such as tend to keep up the old antagonism between the poor and the rich.

A Young Man Drowned. Yesterday afternoon Frank Copley, son of Mr. tepben Copley of 105 Bathurst street, and another young man named James Grizzle, were sailing a yacht over near the island, when his craft ups t. Jack Hanlan saw the accident from his boathouse, and put out to the rescue. Copley was drowned, but by dint of great bravery on the part of Hanlan. Grizzle was saved. The remains of paer Copley were subsequently recovered and removed to the house of his sorrowing friends.

IN BRONCHITIS—Inhalations perform wonders by restoring the mucous membrane to a healthy action; also immediately southing the cough, and effecting entire cures in the most obstinate cases, whether in the acute or chronic forms.

IN ASTHIMA—Inhalations immediately arres the paroxysma and effect entire cures in every case by removing all unnatural obstructions, and by restoring the delicate mucous membrane of the air cells to their normal condition. The cures are usually permanent.

IN CONSUMPTON—Inhalations dosen the phicgm, case the cough, increase the circulation of the blood, assist assimilation, remove consolidation of the lungs, empty and heal cavities with wonderful pramptness, arrest hemorrhages, stop all wasting away of the lungs, soothe pain, overcome all shortness of breath, and in fact cure all the earlier and ness of breath, and in fact cure all the earner and very many of the later stages of Consumption after all hope by other means is past.

We would therefore advise all those who are afficted and hey failed in obtaining any permanent relief from other systems, that this is the only means by which permanent cures may be effected.
