

Miramichi and the North Shore, etc.

McCARTHY MURDER TRIAL.—See first page.

NEW MAGISTRATES.—Messrs. John Marony and Thos. McLaughlin have been gazetted as Magistrates for Northumberland.

SCHOONER SALK.—The schooner "Albatross," 44 tons register, built at Richibucto in 1877, has been purchased by Henry Q. Esq. The price is understood to be $1,000.

A JUVENILE CATERING.—The children of the Methodist Sabbath School and some of their little friends of other churches enjoyed a tea in their school room, Chatham, on Monday evening.

THE BOYS for the Miramichi Tract Society, having just arrived at Halifax by the last mail steamer, are expected to be ready for sale at the Depository in Chatham by Monday next.

DEPARTURE.—Dr. Clark will return to Chatham on Tuesday, 20th November. After that date he will be found at his office, ready to attend to all who require his professional services.

A FRAUD.—The Grant Remedy Manufacturing Company of Worcester Mass., extensively advertised in many of the papers, we are enabled to state, is a fraud, pure and simple.—See Correspondent.

CHRISTMAS SALK.—We are sorry that we are obliged to hold over a large Christmas salk of Messrs. W. B. Howard, Esq., extensive stock, in which an excellent line of goods suitable for the Holiday season is offered.

STYL ANOTHER.—Gordon Livingston, Esq., of Richibucto, has entered the married state, as will be seen by announcement elsewhere. We hope he may be so happy in his new relationship that his only regret will be that he did not get married several years ago.

HOLIDAY SALK AND TEA.—The ladies of the Methodist Congregation, intended having a salk of useful and fancy articles, in the Masonic Hall, on Thursday 19th inst. Sale to commence at 2.30 p.m. A first class tea will be served at 6 p.m. Admission 10 cents, tea 30 cents.

MEMORABLE MESSAGES.—The Rev. Dr. D. Carr, of Moncton, will preach in the Methodist Church, Newcastle, Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock, and will hold the Annual Missionary Meeting for Chatham in the church at that place on the same evening at half past 6 o'clock. Other speakers will address the latter meeting. Collection morning and evening in aid of the Mission Fund.

"BARNES' NEW BRUNSWICK ALMANAC." We have received from the publishers a copy of this old and reliable publication for the year 1879. Besides the Calendar, Sun, Moon and Tide tables, Weather Predictions, etc., it contains a great quantity of very useful information relating to Dominion and Provincial public matters, Societies, etc., which render it especially valuable. Indeed, it is now the only first class New Brunswick Almanac published. We understand that it is sold for only ten cents.

FRUIT EXHIBITION.—We are indebted to the Chatham Custom House for the following statement of Fish exported from the port of Chatham from 30th Nov. 1877, to 30th Nov. 1878.

Table with columns: Description, Quantity, Value. Lists various fish species and their market values.

AN "EDITOR."—When we observe Mr. W. H. Stevens' spiteful little attacks on the editor of this paper through the Moncton Times we can only understand G. K. Philander Doesticks' essay on the influence of the press, as exemplified in the columns of the Moncton Reporter. If Mr. Stevens lived in a city, his own tastes, combined with public appreciation of his qualities would probably make him a valued member of what is known in fiction as the "Brighton Artillery," but as it is his lot and the community's misfortune that he should live in Moncton he is an "editor." Poor Moncton!

PERSONAL.—Hon. Attorney General Fraser was in town last week. While coming from Newcastle on Saturday last in company with Hon. Mr. Kelly, the axle of the carriage in which they were driving broke suddenly at the collar, and both were thrown out quite violently. Mr. Fraser, who was quite shaken, was, however, able to proceed to St. John on Monday morning, as well as Mr. Kelly, who escaped with slight injury.

A. R. Dohp, Esq., the popular manager of Messrs. Dun Wiman & Co's business in New Brunswick, visited the Miramichi last week.

Rev. J. C. Murray, of Woodstock, N.B., has been on a visit to his old friends in Richibucto.

THE "NEW ERA" AND "ANSWER" are being laid up for the season. Capt. Bell, who had charge of the latter vessel during the past season has succeeded Mr. Stevens on the Chatham Railway. Capt. Charles Call ran the New Era until Saturday last, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. Both Newcastle and Chatham people recognize his obliging disposition, for though he is not ostentatious in the performance of his duties, he meets the requirements of the boat's patrons none the less willingly and effectively. His exchange is followed by the hands in his charge and we hope that they will be enabled to receive the service that is provided as early in the spring as the date of their discontinuance was late in the season just closed.

THE "HEATING RINK" The Chatham Skating Rink was opened for the season on Monday evening. The admissions were free and by special invitation and the attendance was large. The 78th Battalion Band furnished excellent music, the Rink was well lighted and the ice in excellent condition, though hardly thick enough to entirely withstand the great moving weight upon it. The water, however, was only forced through there by so small as to offer very little inconvenience to the skaters. Good order prevailed both on the ice and among the numerous promenaders and the angry for the season was decidedly favorable. We hope the attendance of Monday night, though large, was not more than that of other fine evenings during the season will be. It is no small undertaking to establish and maintain a Skating Rink, and it is the duty of the public, for whose amusement and benefit it is provided, to support it well. It is especially calculated for children and suitable recreation for the necessary of both sexes free from objections and dangers which are a drawback to winter sports for young folks in places where Rinks are not established. No more suitable place for ladies and gentlemen to assemble for exercise in the evening can be found, especially as the curlers have two rinks within the same enclosure and are always sure to enliven the exercises with their vocal music.

Nelson Notes.—A DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT.—Mr. A. Underhill of the office of J. Flett, Esq., while dusting his desk a few days since, found a small cartridge which he put into his stove. The ball passed out punched two holes in his hat and grazed his scalp. The moral is obvious.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Although hard times are felt here as well as elsewhere, Nelson is improving a little. The Ambrose has erected a large dwelling 22x32 ft. and a barn 22x32 ft. 14 ft. high. E. Flett, Esq., has erected a large barn 28x50 ft., 15 ft. post. He is about getting a steam engine to assist in carrying on the "Sawing" business on a large scale.

John Hilda, Esq., has improved his property by building a barn 72x30 ft., 16 ft. post. He is about to put in his mill one of the excellent Double Enders manufactured by Mr. Fraser of the Miramichi Machine Works.

Mr. Michael Baldwin has erected a dwelling 22x25 ft., 14 stoves. Mr. Daniel Baldwin has almost finished his house 22x30 ft., 14 stoves.

Mr. Mathew Carroll, one of Nelson's most enterprising young men has built a store and dwelling 22x25 ft., 14 stoves.

"High Tea." A very pleasant entertainment, to which those who got it up gave the name of "High Tea" was the chief public attraction in Chatham last Thursday evening. It was in the Temperance Hall under the auspices of the Methodist church here, and ladies of that congregation deserve no little credit for the success they realized.

Geo. Whittaker, Esq., was called the chair and when there was a good humored address by Rev. Mr. McKown, followed by a solo and chorus, the former by Mrs. Kelly, Misses Beattie McKown and Flora Kelly, then sang "The Sisters," excellently and Miss Phipps rendered the touching solo "Tired" in good taste. The little Misses Harland gave one of their attractive instrumental duets, after which Rev. Mr. Campbell responded to a call by the chairman for a speech. Miss Annie Shirreff then sang a solo, which highly pleased the audience.

Everybody was next called upon to discuss the spread provided by the ladies, and though there were two long tables ranged on either side of the hall, they were not quite equal to the accommodation required. The bill of fare was a capital one, the ladies who waited on the guests seemed very anxious to please them and it is needless to say they succeeded. This part of the programme was enlivened by music, both vocal and instrumental and a few pieces were being performed after the regular tea quite a respectable number patronized the oyster table supplied by Mr. Fountain. The entertainment appeared to be one which with all concerned had good reason to be well satisfied. The net sum realized was between fifty and sixty dollars.

Entertainment of the Dutch Reformers.—On Tuesday evening the entertainment of the Chatham Dutch Reformers was held in the Masonic Hall. A. D. Shierref, Esq., occupied the chair and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. McLean. Miss Charlotte Johnston presided at the piano.

Chorus—"Rejoice the Perishing" by the Choir. Address—By the Rev. Mr. McLean. Solo—"Praise God, make room for a little boy," by Miss Vaughan; accompanied by Miss L. Landon.

Instrumental Music—By Mrs. Paterson. Chorus—"Yield not to Temptation," by the Choir. Address—By J. T. Tweedie, Esq. Solo and Chorus—"My Little Alley Home" by Miss Gertie Goggin and C. Johnston.

Chorus—"Precious Promise" by the Choir. Solo and Chorus—"Sweet Chiming Bells" by Miss M. Johnston; accompanied by Miss L. Landon.

Trios—"Oh my heart goes pit a pat," by Miss Anne Davidson, Jennie Shirreff and Etie Landon.

Address—By Mr. James D. McKay. National Anthem.

Mr. McKay, in his remarks said that with regard to the report of the Committee of five appointed at a previous meeting to take action in the introduction of the Canada Temperance Act into this County, he was not in a position to say anything, as he had not communicated with his colleagues. He thought however, that as soon as the committee had conferred with the different societies their work was done, and he recommended that the Chatham society should appoint two delegates to the convention and that this be done next Tuesday evening.

From over the Continent.—We were very much pleased yesterday to receive from Geo. J. Forbes, Esq., whose tales of trans-continental as well as home scenes, have interested so many of our readers, a letter written on 30th Nov. at Mission San Gabriel, Los Angeles, California. It will be remembered that we announced, a short time since, the fact of his having been hospitalized a million or more of dollars by a relative. He says very coolly "your report of my good fortune was true, only I was left much more than the figure you named." He keeps up his literary labors and as a proof thereof sends us the manuscript of a story, which we will soon publish.

He starts in March for Yokohama on a trip round the world and promises us a call on his return, and also some sketches of travel, in the meantime. He says "I think I will settle in New Brunswick, yet, as I like its people better than those of any place I have yet seen." After referring to the tropical character of the weather in Los Angeles—the orange-trees, the etc.—he turns to the subject of business and says "trade is dull and it would not be advisable for any working man to come this way now in hope of bettering his condition. In nine cases out of ten it would be for the worse. Every voyage is crowded to repletion. An advertisement for a book-keeper in San Francisco was answered by 130 applicants. No rain here yet. People are looking for it with interest. New potatoes—second crop—are coming in now. Honey is worth 34 cents per pound, which will be 3 cents, net."

We hope Mr. Forbes will send along many of his sketches, as his numerous friends here will, no doubt, be much interested in them.

The Sy John "News." The ADVANCE appears to be the especial target of a number of ill-natured and unsuccessful press writers in New Brunswick who find a place for their spiteful little efforts in the columns of papers distinguished for the purity of their editorial talent. We had begun to think that our nondescript contemporary, the News, had almost ceased its habit of employing non-journalists and newspaper flingings as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the same of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE which we find in its columns last week. We are not aware of having published anything to entitle us to the name, "Smug" or "not yet to call down our own reflections on the "brains" employed on our staff, yet the News applies to us the one and also reflects savagely on the quantity of the other which we possess; then it charges us with having "checked" and "dashed" in the "wrong place" next, it says our "style" is more disagreeable than our "bite," further, we have the "feeblest capacity" for "sober discussion" and our method is of the "naustic kind," again, we "can differ from no other journal without recourse to offensive personalities and insolent blackguardism." Now, we are quite well acquainted with a gentleman who is supposed to be and, no doubt, is the proprietor of the News. We know, also, that his political associations require that much of his time should be devoted to public matters, to say nothing of duties of a social character, in the discharge of which he has gained much distinction and at times—notoriety. Still, he can hardly be excused for so neglecting the supervision of his paper as to have permitted its editorial chair to be occupied, sometimes during the week, by the evidently low and vulgar person who penned the language to which we have referred. We feel quite sure that Mr. Willis will endeavor to be more watchful in future, for although he cannot very well prevent the News from being weak, wavering and almost entirely editorial department, yet it is probable that he would not wish it to be vicious, if any one were to direct his attention to the fact that it was so. We, therefore, over-look the News's offense this time and sincerely hope that it will not give us occasion to make good one of its charges—that of being personal.

An interesting Social Event at St. Andrews.—The Telegraph and Courier notice a recent interesting event as follows:—"A very interesting ceremony took place here a large assemblage of interested spectators in All Saints' Church, St. Andrews, on Wednesday morning, when E. Lee Street, Esq., of Newcastle, was married to Miss Jennie Whitlock, daughter of the late Henry Whitlock, Esq., for many years collector of the port and county treasurer. At 7.30 o'clock the bride, leaning upon the arm of her brother, Mr. Harry Whitlock, of Houlton, and followed by her bridesmaid (her sister) Miss Florence Whitlock, entered the church and walked up the aisle to the chancel, where the bridegroom, E. Lee Street, Esq., and his groomsmen, Master Walter Leonard, and the necessary documents, signed, the bride party, to the wedding march, walked down the aisle, and on emerging from the church, took the carriage in the carriages in waiting, and were driven to the railway depot, from whence amid the plaudits and best wishes of their assembled friends, they took their departure for their future home in Newcastle. St. Andrews has thus lost one of its fair and most amiable daughters. The happy pair carry with them the best wishes of the entire community. Mr. Street, while a resident of the shire town for a few years, gained the good will and respect of every one who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and his bride, who is loved by a large circle of friends and relatives, for her many amiable qualities. She was the recipient of very many tokens of the regard and esteem of her friends." As the bride party left the church a merry play was rung on the bell, and in honor of the occasion, the St. Andrews Company, of which Mr. Street, while a resident of St. Andrews, was a member, made a display of bunting from the flag staff on the engine house.

THE FIRST CURLING of the season took place at Fredericton on Monday last, on a beautiful piece of ice near the Mt. Assin Club house. The Telegraph says of the two sides that played were composed of married and single men, and some splendid playing was done by each rink on perfectly level ice. Mr. George Dibble opened the game with a fine draw, which is perhaps the first shot played in the Province this year. The single men were again the victors, as follows:—

Single Married G. L. Wetmore. G. Y. Dibble. M. J. McLaughlin. James Goodwin. E. H. Allen. J. B. Grievies. T. G. Loggie, skip-10. A. F. Street, skip-12.

That Boy.—Dramatic person.—A young American in roundabout and legging, perched upon the fence devouring a huge piece of mince pie, and a maiden of five summers, in pantaloons, looking very wishfully at the gourmand on the fence. Young America—"Isay, why does you eat so much pie? If she does I'll bet you ain't so good as my mar's. Little Miss (timidly)—"I like mince pie awful well." Young America—Well, now that's funny! I just look'd drawin' a quarter of a pie out of his jacket pocket."

"Aint my mar good?" (carefully stuffing it away in his pocket). That boy "is father to the man" who must have his cigars and any other masculine luxury his contemptible selfishness craves, while his poorly wifed must do the work of two women ("I gits waste more than they earn," he says), and for the want of a little money to purchase a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the sovereign remedy for female diseases and weakness, masculine selfishness that would not divide the childish luxury with his playmate, and now facility refuses his wife the luxury of wealth.

Inoubation at Ottawa.—(From the Toronto "Globe.") In conclusion assembled the Ministry at Ottawa with the pale of objection: The dignified Premier kept on his hat, As proof he believed in protection. While just underneath him the egg called N. P.—Awaiting its full incubation—He carefully gazed and anxious to see, A crack in its shelly formation. Each Minister gravely looked down at the nest, Beheld Sir John sitting unsteady, Who, turning to Tupper, his friend thus addressed: "Your instrument—Charles—are they ready?" "Oyes, they are here, sir; I came quite prepared To render assistance if needed; The efforts of nature may sometimes be shared, And even sometimes superseded."

"That's good! I'm not certain what we may require: I fear there's some malformation—Oh, how I do long with increasing desire To bring forth a boon to the nation." Each Minister anxiously looked in his face, While Atkins was visibly mistaking, Sir John clasped his hands, saying "Let us say grace, I feel in its shell it is working!" He muttered, "For what we are going to receive," "Thin Tupper moved forward and strained, Exclaimed with surprise, as he rolled down his sleeve, "Why, sirs! The N. P. Egg is added!" Logan, Lindsay & Co.

Some time ago, the commercial public here found it surprising and regret that this firm found it necessary to ask an extension of time in order to meet their financial obligations. It was a work of some difficulty to get an answer from all the creditors of Logan, Lindsay & Co., but the work has been completed, and the answer, in every case, has been satisfactory. The result speaks volumes for the credit and solvency of the firm. It is a matter of honor to meet all engagements in full, and it is certainly most honorable to the creditors, any one of whom might have defeated the arrangement, and refused the extension asked.

The object of this notice is to give public notice, removing as it does an obstacle in the way of confidence in banking circles, and because it will enable one of our most respected firms, with an extensive list of transactions to go on with an extension of time, without the least interruption.—Telegraph.

INVALIDS, do you wish to gather flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to increase the vitality of your system, to be invigorated and renovated? If so, commence at once and curing Thursday last, by the evidently low and vulgar person who penned the language to which we have referred. Canada Temperance Act. At a regular meeting of the Dutch Temperance Reform Club, held at Chatham, on Tuesday, the twenty-sixth day of November, 1878, the following Resolutions were moved by Mr. John Shierref, seconded by Mr. E. A. Strang, and unanimously adopted:—"Resolved, That a Committee of five be appointed to take the necessary steps to have the said Temperance Act brought into force in this County, and to see that it is properly carried out throughout the County, to be held on Friday, the 27th DAY OF DECEMBER, 1878, at 10 o'clock, a.m., at the Temperance Hall, Chatham, to consider the propriety of submitting the Act to a vote of the Electors."

THE FOGGY NIGHT AT OXFORD.

CHAPTER I.

It was the height of the London season—now, not, but, and a drawing-room, all sun, and light, and heat, looked out on a fashionable square in an exceedingly fashionable locality.

It was said of spinal complaint—of general debility—of a sort of decline: friends and doctors equally differed as to the exact malady.

Once, when very young, she was engaged to be married to a Mr. Mair. She thought she liked him; she did like him; but one, higher in the world's favor, some score her path.

Very, very soon was her illusion dissolved, and she found she had thrown away the substance to grasp the shadow.

How had you look! It was his remark, his eyes, noting the unusual hectic on her cheeks.

"Make haste, then," he replied, impatiently pulling out his watch. I have not much time to waste.

"You are careless as to keeping your word; promise you forget as soon as made; but an oath imposes a solemn obligation, and must be binding on the conscience. I want you to take one."

"That I will not marry again," he responded, in a tone of suppressed mockery. "Can, yourself, it is not my intention to do."

"So far as my will is good, he is welcome to grow up an angel," observed Mr. Raby; "but as to taking an oath that he shall, you must excuse me. We shall do no good together. The boy will do well enough; what is there to hinder it? And do you get out of this depending it, Maria, and let me find you better when I come home at night."

good, not to evil! And you surely will hold sacred your words to the dying!"

"I promise you that the best shall be done for the boy in all ways, Maria, so far as I can do it."

"You may come, dear," Raby Vermer, a child of seven, who had inherited his mother's beauty, drew towards her on tiptoe. He was too intelligent for his years, too sensitive, too thoughtful.

"Raby, I was just thinking of you. I must tell you something."

"As if he had a dread presentiment of what was coming, he did not speak, but bent his face where she could not see it, and slightly shivered."

"I read a pretty book, Raby, once. It told of the creed of some people, far away from our own land, who believe that when they die—they die in God's love—they are permitted to become ministering spirits to those whom they leave here; to hover invisibly round them, and direct their thoughts and steps away from harm."

"My dearest, how I should like to find this, to be really the case! I would come and watch over you."

"His sob could no longer be suppressed, though he strove for it still. They broke out in a wail."

"Raby, dear, you have heard that this is a world of care. All people find it so: though some more than others. When it shall fall upon you hereafter—as it is sure to do—remember God sends it only to fit you for a better land."

"The child looked up his large eyes swimming, 'Mamma, have you had much care?'"

"A great deal; more than many have. But, Raby, that care has taken me home; it has shown me the way to get there. It will show you. I shall be there waiting for you. Carry always with you, through life, the hope to come there, and you will be sure to come."

"What more she would have said is uncertain. Probably, the child was not like a child of seven; he was more like one of fourteen, and he understood well. It was Mr. Raby who interrupted them."

"Raby! crying, sir! What for? Has your mamma been talking gloomy stuff to you, or saying that she fears that she is wrong? It is not true, boy, either of it. Dry up that face of yours. Maria, you are not worse; if you were, I should see it. Run away into the nursery, sir."

"The boy drew away choking, and Mr. Raby continued— 'It is not judicious of you, Maria, to alarm the boy. I cannot think what has put these ideas into your head. He will be in tears for the rest of the day.'"

"Alfred, something seems to tell me I will be destined to sorrow. It is an impression I have always felt, but never so forcibly as now. Shield him from it wherever you can. Oh that I could take him with me!"

against it. Raby determined to turn to it with a will now.

A gentleman stood one morning in the studio of a far-famed painter, the great Coran, as the world called him. The visitor was Sir Arthur Saxony, one of those warm patrons of art all too few in England. Rich, liberal, and enthusiastic, his name was a welcome sound, not only to the successful, but to the struggling artist. The painter was out; but, in a second room, seated before an easel, underneath the softened light of the green blind, was a young man, working assiduously. Sir Arthur took little notice of him at first; he supposed him to be a humble assistant, or color-mixer of the great man's; but upon drawing nearer, he was struck with the exceeding and rare beauty of the face that was raised to look at him. But for the remarkable intellect of the high, broad brow, and the flashing light of the luminous eye, the face, in its sweet and delicate symmetry, in its transparency of complexion, might have been taken for a woman's. Sir Arthur, a passionate admirer of beauty, wherever he saw it, forgot the pictures of the living one; gazed until he heard the painter enter.

"Who is that in the other room?" inquired Sir Arthur, when greetings were over.

"Ah, poor fellow, his is a sad history. A very common one, though. When did you return to England, Sir Arthur?"

"But last week. Lady Saxony is tired of France and Germany, and her health seems to get no better. I must look at your new works, Coran; I suppose you have many to show me, finished or unfinished."

"Ay. It must be three years since you were here, Sir Arthur."

"Nearly. They proceeded round the rooms, when Sir Arthur's eyes once more fell on the young man."

"He has genius, that young fellow, has he not?" he whispered.

"I could have told it," returned Sir Arthur. "What a countenance it is! Transformed to canvas, its beauty alone would render the painter immortal. His face seems strangely familiar to me. Where can I have seen it?"

"Mr. Coran had his eyes bent close to one of his paintings. He saw a speck on it which had no business there. The baronet's remark remained unanswered."

"I presume he is an aspirant for fame," continued Sir Arthur. "Will he get on?"

"No," said Mr. Coran. Sir Arthur Saxony looked surprised.

"It is the old tale," proceeded the painter. "Poverty, friendlessness and overwhelming talent."

"Talent has struggled through moun, tains before now, Coran," significantly observed the baronet.

"Yes. But Raby's enemy lies here," touching his own breast. "He is inclined to consumption, and these ultra-refined natures cannot battle against bodily weakness. His sentiment is something marvellous. A rude blow to his feelings would do for him."

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs. Such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and CONSUMPTION.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household names, among not only the sick but the healthy, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public for forty years, by a long continued series of unbroken success, and has been tried by millions of people, who have been cured by its use.
