Smart Dressers

Young men are as a general thing the smartest dressers. They know what's what and get it. But good fit, the newest colors, patterns, etc., aren't enough; for unless the snappy, jaunty appearance—characteristics of our clothing—is there, it's not what the young man wants.

Our success in pleasing young men is not just "luck" It's due to our knowledge of what the young men want and

Ability to provide it for them

Then again our prices are always reasonable. Suits at $5.00, $7.50, $10.00 $12.00 and $15.00 that would at once appeal to the taste of the smart young dresser.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of Chatham District Held Here

THIS WEEK

Two Public Meetings Held Strong Addresses Delivered

The annual meeting of Chatham District of Methodist church was held here on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, the ministers in attendance being as follows—Jas. Stothard, Chatham, Chairman.

J. S. Gregg, Derby, Financial Secretary
Hammond Johnson, Newcastle
Richard Opie, Bathurst
Aquila Lucas, Buctouche
J. F. Estey, Richibucto
E. S. Weeks, Tabusintac
H. E. Thomas, Campbellton
J. B. Champion, Harcourt

The ministerial sessions were held Tuesday morning and afternoon at which the usual routine business was transacted.

On Tuesday evening a public meeting was held, presided over by the chairman.

An address on the question Why did Jesus Die? was delivered by Rev J. F. Estey, showing in a most conclusive and scholarly manner that Christ died for the sins of mankind.

Rev J. S. Gregg also spoke on the significance of the Lord's supper setting forth that it was more than a memorial, inasmuch as it was a pledge of Christ's interest in the believer and an acknowledgment on the part of the participant of a desire to enter into vital union with Christ.

The Sacrament was then dispensed by Rev Jas Stothard, assisted by Rev H. E. Thomas

On Wednesday the open sessions of the District were held, there being only two day delegates present T. A. Clark from Newcastle and J. T. Reid from Campbellton. Rev A Lucas was elected Journal Secretary with E. S. Weeks as assistant.

In the evening a public meeting was held addressed by Rev H. Johnson and Rev R. Opie, Mr. Johnson's address was a strong and forceful plea for the old time Pentecostal revival. The so called popular preaching of the day was not accomplishing its purpose of reaching and holding the men of the churches, hence there was urgent need to return to the simple story of the cross. That is the kind of revival we need.

Rev R. Opie's address on the Baptism of the Holy Ghost was also impressive.

After the public meeting the district came to order and took up the routine business, the passing of circuit reports and schedules, the session being continued until well into Thursday morning.

The membership for the district shows an increase of 23 over last year, the total number being 1078.

For the Educational Fund there was collected $61.85, an increase of $11.85, supernumerary fund $134.00, decrease $1.75; Missionary $480.14, decrease $21.28; Sustentation $183.04 decrease $38.58.

A pleasing feature of the Wednesday afternoon meeting was the serving of ice-cream and cake by Mrs Thomas which was very much appreciated by the members.

Wash greasy dishes, pots or pans with Lever's Dry Soap a powder. It will remove the grease with the greatest ease. 36

BONAVENTURE NEWS

Tenders for Extension of New Carlisle Wharf

WORK PROGRESSING

At the Wharves and Breakwaters at Different Points on Gaspe Coast

Mrs. Marcell visited Carleton last week to make arrangements for her summer residence, the pretty house rented from Mr. Charles Cullen which is being renovated for the season. Mrs. Marcell will take possession with her children and her sister Mrs. Pinault of Matapedia at the end of this month. They expect to remain there during July and August. Mr. Marcell will join them immediately after the session which is expected to end some time in July. In the discharge of his new duties of Deputy Speaker and Chairman of the whole House, the member for Bonaventure has had a very busy session and has been unable to leave Ottawa having had to decline a number of invitations which have been addressed to him for points outside of the city.

He has been compelled to decline an invitation to address the public meeting of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers on July 4th at Riviere du Loup where the annual convention is to be held.

He delivered the E. J. Day address at the Protestant Normal school. Dr. McKay, superintendent of Public Schools of Nova Scotia, also spoke on that occasion. He will address a large gathering of 2000 school children of the Catholic schools of Ottawa and their parents, at the Ottawa University Oval on June 24th on the occasion of the festival of St. Jean Baptiste, when prizes will be delivered to the most deserving pupils.

Tenders are being received up to June 7th inst. for the extension to New Carlisle wharf.

Work is progressing favorably on the wharves and breakwaters at Gascons, Port Daniel East, Paspébiac, Bonaventure East, and New Richmond.

An increased mail service has been secured between Matapedia, Lagacy and St. Andre de Restigouche.

New harbors with harbor masters have been created at Maria, Caplin, Bonaventure, St. Godfroy and Gascons.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, and immediate relief for colic and toothache.

FIRE AT NEWCASTLE.

Conflagration Averted. Fire took place at night.

An alarm of fire was sounded between two and three o'clock Friday morning for a serious blaze in the warehouse and bakery of Mr. Wyse's, Castle Street. The fire is supposed to have originated in the bakery and that building was all aflame and the large warehouse to the rear was burning briskly when the alarm was sounded. The firemen were promptly on the scene and soon four powerful streams were playing on the blaze. The stock in the grocery store and furniture in the residence upstairs were removed. This building was on fire several times and the rear end was damaged by fire and water but after a desperate fight the fire was confined to the outbuildings.

The buildings adjacent were badly scorched. It was at one time thought impossible to save the block, and the firemen with the volunteers who assisted are to be congratulated on the manner in which the fire was handled.

After an hour and a half of hard work the fire was under control. The loss was confined to the bakery and outbuildings with stock therein, in all about $300 on which there was no insurance.

The stock and furniture in the store and dwelling was injured by water and removal. This was covered by insurance.

Newcastle narrowly escaped a serious conflagration and it is admitted that but for the fine water service and efficient and prompt fire brigade this fire could not have been checked and thousands of dollars would have gone up in smoke.

The pump at the power house was put in operation but it was found that the too much pressure on the mains and the engineer was asked to slow down as the men at the nozzle could not handle it. After the fire the reservoir was within two feet of being full.

Ayer's

Why is it that Ayer's Hair Vigor does so many remarkable things? Because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair, puts new life into it. The hair cannot keep from growing. And gradually all the dark, rich color of early life comes back to gray hair.

"When I first used Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair was soon all gray. But now it is a nice rich black, and as thick as I could wish."—Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Foster, Fitchburg, Mass.

TWO OPEN LETTERS

IMPORTANT TO MARRIED WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Dimmick of Washington tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well.

It is with great pleasure we publish the following letters, as they convincingly prove the claim we have so many times made in our columns that Mrs.

Mrs. Mary Dimmick

Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., is fully qualified to give helpful advice to sick women. Read Mrs. Dimmick's letters.

Her first letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
“I have been a sufferer for the past eight years with a trouble which first originated from painful menstruation—the pains were excruciating, with inflammation and ulceration of the womb. The doctor says I must have an operation or I cannot live. I do not want to submit to an operation if I can possibly avoid it. Please help me.”—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, Washington, D. C.

Her second letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
“You will remember my condition when I last wrote you, and that the doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I received your kind letter and followed your advice very carefully and am now entirely well. As my case was so serious it seems a miracle that I am cured. I know that I owe not only my health but my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to your advice. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I wish every suffering woman would read this letter and realize what you can do for them.”—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and East Capitol Streets, Washington, D. C.
How easy it was for Mrs. Dimmick to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and how little it cost her—a two-cent stamp. Yet how valuable was the reply! As Mrs. Dimmick says—“It saved her life.” Mrs. Pinkham has on file thousands of just such letters as the above, and offers alling women helpful advice.

TOGO'S SIGNAL.

“The Destiny of our Empire Depends upon this action”

OFFICER'S STORY.

A Graphic Account of the Great Naval Battle by one of the Jap Officers.

TOKIO, June 1.—Rough estimates of the Russian losses in the battle fought in the sea of Japan, exclusive of nearly 4,000 prisoners, vary from seven to nine thousand. It is feared that the majority perished. Calculating the complements of the sunken and captured ships at upwards of ten thousand, seven thousand men remain unaccounted for.

It is possible that the ships which escaped rescued some of the members of the crews of the less fortunate ships. Many bodies have been washed ashore on the islands and on the shores of the neighboring coasts near the scene of the battle.

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 1.—The Japanese Legation today made public the following despatch from Tokio, June 1:—

“Eighth report from Togo, received May 31.—The commander of the K'suga returned this afternoon with the survivors of the Dmitri Donskoi. He reports that the Donskoi on the morning of May 29, opening the Kingston valve, sank, and those on board, including survivors from the Osiabia and the destroyer Douvini landed at Ureung Island. It appears the Buiny took aboard Rojevsky and staff before the sinking of the flagship on the afternoon of May 27, and also 200 from the Osiabia, but finding navigation difficult, transferred Rojevsky and staff to the Biodvry, and while running northward met on the morning of May 28, the Donskoi, to which all aboard were transferred, and the Buiny's sink herself. The Osiabia, according to other survivors had conning tower struck at the first straight shot of the battle of May 27, and Voelkersam was killed, and after a succession of shots the sank about three o'clock in the afternoon. The survivors of the Donskoi say they saw two destroyers sink in the thick of the battle about noon of May 27. This, if true, makes five Russian destroyers sunk.

Rear-Admiral Voelkersam was appointed commander of the battleship squadron of the Russian fleet in July last, and left Cronstadt August 25 with the other vessels commanded by Admiral Rojevsky. It was Voelkersam's squadron, according to report, which fired on the British trawlers in the North Sea, mistaking them for Japanese torpedo boats. It was reported last month that Voelkersam was seriously ill, and it was intimated unofficially that he would have relieved Rojevsky of the command of the fleet had it not been for his own sickness.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 1.—Official reports bearing on the naval battle are beginning to be received by the Emperor and Grand Duke Alexia, the High Admiral, the most important of these reports revealing the fate of the cruiser

“When the Tushima was sighted to the southwest the sea was rough, and the torpedo boats were forced to run for the shelter of the island. Our third fighting squadron, with the Takashibo to port, reconnoitered the Russian course and at 11.30 a. m. informed the main squadron by wireless telegraphy that the Russian ships were passing into the east channel, whereupon our main squadron, changing its course somewhat to the southward, came in sight of Okhotska at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The third division arrived later and joined the main squadron. The first and second divisions, accompanied by the destroyer flotilla, changed to a westerly course, while the third division and the fourth destroyer flotilla headed slightly eastward.

“During the manoeuvre the Russian flagship appeared to the southward at 1.45 o'clock. The Izumrud, being a telegram from her captain, Baron Fernon, dated June 1, saying that he had blown up the cruiser at the entrance of Vladimar Bay, and describing the battle.

The Baron says that before dark on May 27, the Osiabia, Alexander III, and Borodino had been sunk and that the Kuiaz Sonvaroff the Kamchatka and the Rurik had been seriously damaged and were lost to sight. The command then devolved on Rear Admiral Nebogatoff.

In the evening the Mikotai, the Orel, the General Admiral Aparaxine, the Admiral Senevich, the Admiral Oushakoff, the Sissoi Velsky, the Navarin, the Admiral Nakhimoff and the Izumrud sailed northward, the latter being charged to transmit orders to the battleships.

Two other cruisers were cut off from the fleet and were not again seen.

The battleships steaming at four-teen knots were repeatedly attacked by the Japanese torpedo boats, especially at the extremities of the line.

At dawn it was ascertained that the battleship division consisted of the Nikolai I., the Orel, the General Admiral Aparaxine and the Admiral Senevich.

At sunrise, May 28, smoke from the Japanese ships reappeared on the horizon, whereupon the Admiral gave orders for increased speed. The Admiral Senevich and the General Admiral Aparaxine dropped behind.

Towards 10 o'clock the Japanese fleet appeared first to port and then to starboard while the cruiser division manœuvred behind the Russians to starboard. Baron Fernon's account continues:—

“I was cut off from the squadron and finding it impossible to rejoin it resolved to make for Vladivostok. I put on full speed and the enemy's cruisers came on in pursuit. Owing to the insufficiency of my coal supply and the certainty of meeting the enemy's cruisers I subsequently altered my course for Vladivostok Bay where I arrived on the night of May 29. At 1.30 o'clock next morning in pitch darkness the Izumrud ran full on a reef at the entrance to the Bay. Having only ten tons of coal and seeing that it would be impossible to agitate my vessel, I ordered the crew ashore and blew up the Izumrud to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Ten of my sailors were wounded in the battle, but the officers and the rest of the crew are all safe.

The Izumrud was built at the Nevsky yards, St. Petersburg, and was launched in 1903. She was of 3,106 tons displacement, 17,000 indicated horse power and 41 1-3 feet beam and 16 feet draught with a speed of 23 knots an hour. Her armament consisted of six 4.7 guns and she was equipped with five torpedo tubes. Her complement was 340 men.

TOKIO, May 31st.—A Japanese officer who has returned to Sasebo gives the following account of the sea fight off the Tsu Islands.—At 5.30 Saturday morning a wireless message, reading, “The enemy's squadron is in sight,” reached the naval base. This message was transmitted to all our ships by the flagstaff, with instructions to get ready for action. Our squadron left their rendezvous and headed for the east channel Tushima. Our men seemed to be filled with new inspiration, and were eager for the long-delayed fight to begin.

“According to orders previously given for a torpedo attack after dark, all the destroyer flotillas dividing into two squadrons, proceeded to attack the Russians during the whole night. The Russians frustrated the first and second attacks with searchlights. The third attempt was carefully made, and the Yugiri sank a ship of the Borodino type and also hit others. During the night the Russians continued to move and we preserved our enveloping movement some distance from the Russian position. The Russian ships headed northeast after daylight, hoping to reach Vladivostok. Our officers and men were determined that not a ship should escape, and resolved not to relax their efforts until they had succeeded in either sinking or capturing every Russian ship.

“Our ship always kept ahead of the Russians. The battle was resumed at 9 o'clock Sunday morning twelve miles east of Chiyu Bay and lasted all day. Here the Russians suffered their heaviest losses. They seemed unprepared to repel night attacks. During our first night attack the Russians showed nine searchlights and frustrated the attacks, but clearly gave us the location of the fleet, which brought success later.”

ST. PETERSBURG, June 2 4.25 a.m.—According to the despatch from Baron Fernon, the commander of the cruiser Izumrud, the battleship remaining in the fight were still in squadron formation when he was cut off, and this increases the dread resentment felt here at the surrender of ships, the Novoe Vremya even declaring that officers ought to be court-martialed and shot down for hauling down their flag and turning over their ships to the Japanese. The paper cites articles of the naval regulations forbidding a commander to surrender except as a last emergency after taking measures to destroy his ship.

The report from Lieut. Dironevo of the torpedo boat destroyer Bravi, telling how that boat was disabled on the first day of the fight and limped to Vladivostok in the midst of a hostile flotilla of destroyers being obliged even to burn her woodwork to reach the harbor, awakens satisfaction, and though the Izumrud failed to reach Vladivostok, her destruction by her own crew is regarded with almost equal pleasure.

The saddest note for St. Petersburg was struck by the destruction of the battleship Alexander III which was manned by sailors of the guard and officered exclusively by men prominent in society and court. Her crew served during the winter time as a regiment of the Guard.

Headquarters of General Kur-Toki's Army, via Fusan, June 1.—There is every reason to believe that the next campaign of this army will be even more successful than the past. The soldiers have the spirit and discipline of veterans, and nothing is lacking in equipment and supplies. No engagements have occurred east of the railroad for more than a fortnight, and the only shots fired are when the cavalry patrols of the two armies have brushed.

TOKIO, May 31, 7 p.m. (delayed in transmission).—The Navy Department made the following announcement today: “Later reports from the different divisions of the fleet engaged in naval battle of May 27 show as follows:—The Russian battleship Osiabia was heavily damaged in the early part of the fight on Saturday, going down at three o'clock in the afternoon. The first Russian vessel sunk was the battleship Sissoi Velsky.

The armored cruisers Admiral Nakhimoff and Vladimir Monach, after being in the general engagement during the daytime, were still further damaged by torpedoes during attacks by night and were eventually completely disabled. They drifted into the vicinity of Tsu Islands, where they were discovered on Sunday morning (May 28) by the auxiliary cruisers Shilano, Yawata, Tainau and Sado, which were about to capture them, but they both sank. It is expected that the Russian cruisers Almaz and Aurora were sunk by torpedoes on the night of May 27.

(See Page Seven)

“Sundown saw the battle raging furiously. Our shells were evidently telling on the Russians, who showed signs of confusion. Our fifth torpedo flotilla, after destroying the Borodino, followed in the wake of our second division, the signal reading

“Something like the Russians' submarines have been sighted. Attack them.”

“The flotilla followed and located the object, which proved to be a sinking ship, with its overturned bottom showing. Thirty survivors clinging to the wreck crying for assistance. Firing ceased with the approach of darkness.

“According to orders previously given for a torpedo attack after dark, all the destroyer flotillas dividing into two squadrons, proceeded to attack the Russians during the whole night. The Russians frustrated the first and second attacks with searchlights. The third attempt was carefully made, and the Yugiri sank a ship of the Borodino type and also hit others. THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

Repartee Used As A Weapon Offensive and Defensive.

"That is the retort courteous," said the fool in the forest, when he qualified the quip and crank to the lie direct. The man who can accomplish the retort courteous gives splendidly the lie direct to many an awkward accusation, and, if his wit be bitter, so much the more deadly his point.

In the time of Charles II. of England, in an age of wits, the grand master of the art of retort was the crippled first Earl of Shaftesbury, "Shaftesbury," said the King to him one day, "I believe that thou art the wickedest dog in all my dominions." "Of that subject, sire, I believe I am," was the reply. While speaking against the test bill in the House of Lords, the Earl overheard an indolent churchman say, "I wonder when he will have done preaching."

The orator whispered loud enough to be heard by all, "When I am made a bishop, my lord."

Dr. Garth, a witty physician of the Court of Queen Anne, had prescribed a nauseous dose for the great warrior, the Duke of Marlborough. When the Duke objected to following the directions the sharp-tongued Duchess Sarah broke in by saying, "I'll be hanged if it does not cure you."

"There, my lord," interposed Garth, "you had better swallow it; you will gain either way."

Repartee has ever flashed brilliantly from the bench. Lord Mansfield, the famous English judge of the second half of the eighteenth century, listened to an argument of the insolently proud Sir Fletcher Norton upon a case involving certain manorial rights. "My lord," said Norton, "I can instance the point in person."

Now, I have myself two little manors. "We are well aware of that," said the judge, smiling kindly. "Do you see anything ridiculous in my wife?" said a judge to the famous Irish barrister, John Curran. Nothing but the heat," flew back the retort.

Although the law seems to be especially conducive to skill in fencing with words, the Church has supplied a large quota of men who delighted in the give-and-take of verbal warfare. The venerable Dr. Thomas Fuller, author of "The Worth of England," however, met his match once when he propounded the following question to a certain Dr. Sparrowhawk: "Pray, what is the difference between a sparrowhawk and an owl?"

"Why," came the response, "there is a great difference. An owl is fuller in the head, fuller in the body, and fuller all over."

The eloquent Baptist divine, Robert Hall, had a rustic wit. A disappointed young woman having broken to his reveries in allusion to his fiancée, "Madam," he replied, "make me quite easy; if you are not a polished steel, you are at least a polished brass."

"What are you going to do in life?" asked Cardinal Manning a Dutchman, a degenerate at Oxford. "Oh, I'm going to take holy orders," was the airy response. "Take care you get them, my son," came from the prelate.

Horne Tooke is credited with this daring retort. To George III., who had asked him whether he carried cards: "Your Majesty, I cannot tell a king from a knave."

A DICKENS BALL.
Descendants of the Novelist Will Appear in Costume.

A group of descendants of Charles Dickens will represent some of the famous novelist's characters at a Dickens Ball, which will be held at the Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, under the patronage of Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

Every one who attends the ball will represent a character from the pages of the famous novels, and chief interest will naturally center in the "Old Curiosity Shop," and they will include Little Nell, Mrs. Jarley, and the Little Marchioness.

The Dickens family group will dance a Sir Roger de Coverley to gether.

"One lady, for instance, is bringing a large party to represent the principal characters in 'A Tale of Two Cities.'"

"Another party, numbering about thirty, will appear as the chief characters in 'Nicholas Nickleby,' and a third party is taking its costumes from 'Martin Chuzzlewit.'"

"The most peculiar character so far is the Fat Boy from 'Pickwick.' There are at least half a dozen Mrs. Camps, several Sam Wellers and Dolly Vardens, a Mrs. Bardell, and a Micawber."

"One lady will wear the costume of Little Dorrit, the original of whom, by the way, is still alive, and is an old lady of ninety."

Old prints and drawings are serving as fashion plates, and every effort is being made to obtain accurate designs.

When the Hospital is to benefit by the Dickens ball.

She Was Great.

"Say, Dusty, I've just been reading about Charlotte Corday. She was a great woman all right."

"Killed a fellow that was taking a bath."

LITTLE SHIPPEGAN

When the came of the gentleman or lady who used to be corresponding last winter, and who was giving us all the news? "Oh, I'll think he or she'll be left the place, therefore some one must succeed for I know that every one likes to hear from our busy little town."

We have had fine weather almost since the spring commenced and our farmers are about done farming.

These being employed lobster business are doing fair, though the season so far has been a little rough for lobster especially owing to the North West Winds, which were sometimes very heavy.

Cod so far are very scarce which is a great disadvantage to our poor fishermen.

Mr. Adam Sylvia has launched his new boat "John Bull" a few weeks ago and has already made several successful freighting trips.

Mr. W. Cowan from Pokemouche who has taken the contract to furnish all the stone needed for the wharf which is being constructed on Miscou Side this summer, passed through here last week on his way to Miscou having with him quite a number of workmen. They have commenced this task and are doing very well.

The Messrs Leonard Daley and David Miller the former from Clifton and the latter from Jacques River and Miss Maud Daley from this place were the guests of Mr. William Campbell last week.

Mr. James McDougall has left here last week for P. E. Island where he is engaged in the lumber business. He is greatly missed by his many friends.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of the home of Mr. David Jones on Saturday May 27th dancing the chief amusement.

The music was furnished by Mr. David Jones Jr. Taffy and refreshments were passed around about eleven o'clock after which the guests returned to their homes well pleased with the evening's amusements.

A beautiful boat sail over to Miscou last Sunday was enjoyed by the Messrs William Power W. Owin and Joyou Chasson from Tracadie, and the Messrs Mabel Luce and Ellen Ward from Island River and Louis Dorion from Carquet.

Hoping to hear from our old correspondent I'll say "Au Revoir!"

The farmers after they had started got anxious and wired to four different places to have the team stopped, he was of the impression that these gentlemen were strangers, were probably horse thieves, however the team returned in due time, and the ivory man was relieved of his anxiety, and he of course had to put on extra charges. However after some arrangements, he went off rejoicing, later reports say he is going out of the ivory business.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Our citizens are aroused and indignant and justly so. The town and surrounding country has suffered the loss of several thousands of dollars because "fakers", "sharks" or by whatever name they may be called, were allowed to do business in several of the tents on the circus grounds on Tuesday. In fact these fellows were licensed to carry on their "skin" games and the police had no authority to stop them. Some official is or officials are responsible for the granting of the license and the people want to know, and have a right to know who granted the license and why it was granted. If it were only those who were foolish enough to be taken in by the "sharks" that suffered our people generally would not care but everybody is aware that those who will feel the loss of the money the most are our merchants. One case came to our notice. Some years ago our people were "taken in" in just this same manner and one man lost so much money that one of our merchants had to carry him on his back for four years.

A great wrong has been done and some official is responsible—has violated the oath of office—has sanctioned the violation of the laws of the land.

BETTER MAIL SERVICE

Campbellton people have always been slow to insist on their rights and if they were entitled to the term "kickers" they would be treated in many matters better than they are. In the matter of the Montreal papers not being carried to Campbellton by the "Ocean Limited" we are neglected, and there is no excuse for it. The time has now come when we demand it, and we are going to have it. A word to the Supt. of Railway mail service, St. John should settle the matter at once, but we are informed the matter was brought to the attention of the Dept. last year without any results. This train carries the Montreal papers as far as Matapedia, there making connections with the Bay Chaleur train and distributed throughout Bonaventure by noon. More than this a mail clerk is on duty on this train from Montreal to Levis, and from there to Matapedia, the baggage master cares for closed bags. A through bag is also on board for Halifax. If we want to see the Montreal news 23 hours earlier than we would in our own Montreal papers, we have only to slip over to Cross Point.

The only expense would be for the services of the carrier meeting this train, which would be a small amount, and should not for an instant stand in the way. If mails were sent from here by this train leaving here at 7 p. m. they would reach Montreal next morning by 8 o'clock, giving sufficient time to be answered by the Maritime express leaving about noon, and reaching here the following morning. We hope this will be sufficient to waken someone, if not further particulars will be given into.

Card of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Lavelle extend their heart felt thanks to their many friends who assisted them in their recent sad bereavement, also to those who brought wreaths and flowers and for the many kind telegrams of condolence from Dalhousie, Montreal and Ottawa and to the Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital for their kind letter.

H. C. Mersereau Awarded Gold Medal For Graduates in Medicine

The graduate is a son of Inspector Mersereau.

OBITUARY

Miss Cora LeVeille daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. I. LeVeille quietly passed away in the arms of her father at her home here on Sunday morning the 4th inst. She had strong faith in Christ and was quite willing to obey the Lord's summons which called her home. Miss LeVeille came here from Montreal in April 1904, and through her death Campbellton loses one of her most popular young ladies though the end was not unexpected, it casts a gloom over a large circle of friends.

She was a talented musician and Campbellton audiences have had several treats of her masterly performances on piano and violin. The respect that she and her family were held in was shown by the large and representative gathering at her funeral, which took place on Tuesday morning the 6th inst. at 9 o'clock, all the denominations of the town being represented including Rev H. E. Thomas and Rev A. F. Carr.

Rev. Father Wallace assisted by Fr. Gauvin received the remains at the church and a grand requiem mass was celebrated after which Rev Fr. Wallace gave an eloquent and impressive sermon on death finishing his discourse with a very consoling allusion of her happy death after which her remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents in their sad affliction.

Listen For The Bronchial Wheeze

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Nothing half so certain in bronchitis and throat trouble as "Catarrhoxone" it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flees under the magic influence of Catarrhoxone which cures so thoroughly the disease never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but "Catarrhoxone" cures bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come. Sold everywhere.

BOOM TROUBLES SETTLED

St. John N. B. June 5.—The Van Buren Lumber Company has extended the olive branch, and hereafter Mr. Pond and his fleet will be able to pass up and down the St. John in peace. Mr.

Pond and Solicitor Fred Laforest proceeded to St. Leonards on Saturday, and interviewed the Van Buren Company, with very satisfactory results. The company, through Allen Hammond the general manager, agreed to meet the wishes of Mr. Pond rather than prolong the strife, which both sides realize has not been conducted to their best interests. Mr. Hammond assured Mr. Laforest that booms would be tripped, thus allowing a clear passage for Mr. Pond's boats. If it becomes necessary for the company to use their sheerboms again before Mr. Pond has finished his driving operations, the company has agreed to anchor them some distance from the shore, so that there will always be a clear passage for the boats of Mr. Pond. This arrangement is satisfactory to Mr. Pond, and he will leave Edmondston to-day to bring down another drive.

Cuban Diarrhoea

U. S. soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban Diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by all druggists.

SOLDIERS' ANECDOTES.

From Mr. Settle's New Book, Just Published by Methuen & Co.—Determination of Edward the Crusader.

When he became King of England, on the death of his father, Edward I., the greatest warrior, Sir Roger who has ever ruled over these fortunate isles was away in the Holy Land conducting a crusade.

Though surrounded by many difficulties and though his small force of soldiers seemed to melt away through disease and desertion, Edward still marched on to the aid of the king. When his nobles wished him to turn back, he angrily said, "I will go on, if I go on with no other follower than my servant!"

Oldest Regiment.

"Pontius Pilate's Body Guard" used to be the extraordinary nickname given to the 1st Foot—now the Royal Scots—which has the distinction of being the oldest regiment in the Army. The name originated during a dispute between the regiment (then known as the "Regiment de Douglas," or "Douglas Eccosists"), when in the French service in 1637, and the Picardy Regiment, as to the antiquity of the two corps.

The Picardy Regiment laid claim to having been on duty on the night after the Crucifixion. To this the 1st Foot wittily rejoined, "Had we been on duty, we should not have slept at our post!"

A Better Joke.

When General Oglethorpe was in Holland in his youthful days serving with the army of Prince Eugene, a prince of Wurtemberg, at an entertainment, dined some wine into Oglethorpe's face.

The latter turned his eye on him and remarked, "That was a good joke, but we do it better in England," and thereupon threw a glassful of wine into the face of the prince!

Witty Reply.

In the day of Marlborough, one of his generals, on a short holiday in England, was dining at the Mansion House one day, when an alderman sitting next to him remarked, "You, sir, must be a very laborious profession!"

"Oh, no," replied the warrior, "I am not; I am a soldier, and I am sitting here for four hours in the morning and two or three hours after dinner, and then we have the rest of the day to ourselves!"

Badly Shot.

At the siege of Badajos a cannon-shot, fired by the French, struck the ground first, and then hit one of the British artillerymen on the back, felling him to the ground. He was thought to have been killed on the spot, but in a moment, to the surprise of his comrades, he jumped up unhurt, the shot having glanced off his knapsack. It is recorded that the fortunate soldier was afterwards known as "the bomb-proof man."

In the same engagement a British soldier, having fired at one of the enemy without orders, was reprimanded by his colonel, who asked the man why he had so offended. "Why, your honor," replied the soldier, scratching his head at the same time, "I ain't nought to eat this 'ere two days, and I thought as how I might find summat in his knapsack!"

Fuzzled Russians.

In connection with the 93rd Regiment at Balaklava a rather amusing story is recorded. The odd appearance of the Highlanders in their national kilts attracted the attention of the Russians who came into the camp under a flag of truce.

After discussing the matter among themselves for a little time, one of the Russian officers asked, "What sort of soldiers are those in the petticoats?"

"Those," replied a waggish British officer, "are the wives of the soldiers who ride on the grey horses!"

The allusion, of course, was to the Scots Greys, who were in the vicinity.

Useful Ballad.

There is an admixture of comedy and tragedy in the following incident, which took place at Elandslaagte: Major W. Sampson, of the Imperial Light Horse, observed a man lying down, and ordered him to go on. The poor fellow retorted that he was perfectly willing to go on, but at that moment was too paralyzed with fear.

Major Sampson galloped on, but shortly afterwards was surprised to see the trooper charging past him. "What's the matter?" shouted the major. The trooper showed that his moustache and part of his upper lip had been carried away by a Boer bullet, and yelled fiercely, "Where are the devils? Let me get at them!" With that he galloped on, and was in the front of the charge the whole way.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS SICK?

Let your morning urine stand for 24 hours in a glass or vessel, and then if it is milky or cloudy, or contains a red-dish brick-dust sediment, or if particles or germs float about in it, your kidneys are diseased. If the kidneys are well they filter just so much blood, but if they are sick or weak from any cause, they leave the poison in the blood, and this poison affects the entire system.

It is natural to pass urine three times a day, but many who regard themselves as healthy are obliged to pass water six to ten times daily and are obliged to get up frequently during the night. They have sick kidneys and bladder and don't know it. Smith's Buchu Luthia Pills cure Rheumatism and all Kidney and Bladder diseases, and make new, rich blood.

We will send you a generous sample post paid Free, together with our large book on the above mentioned diseases. Address, W. P. Smith Co., 185 St. James Street, Montreal, Canada.

CHAPTER XL
MR. ROSS SCHOFIELD was engaged in decorating the battered chairs in the Herald editorial room with blue satin ribbon, the purchase of which at the Dry Goods Emporium had been directed by a sudden inspiration of his superior, Mr. Parker of the composing force. It was Ross' intention to garish each chair with an elaborately tied bow, but as he was no sailor and understood only the intricacies of a hard knot he confined himself to that species of ornamentation, leaving, however, very long ends of ribbon hanging down after the manner of the pendants of rosettes. Mr. Schofield was alone at his labor, his two confederates having taken themselves to the station to meet the train from Rouen.

It was a wet, gray day. The wide country lay dripping under formless wraps of thin mist, and the warm, drizzling rain blackened the weather-beaten shingles of the station, made clear reflecting puddles on the unevenly worn planks of the platform and dampened the packing cases too thoroughly for occupation by the station lounge. The bus driver, Mr. Bennett, and the proprietors of two attendant "cut under" and three or four other worthies whom business or the lack of it called to that locality awaited themselves of the shelter of the waiting room, but the gentlemen of the Herald were too agitated to be confined save by the limits of the horizon.

They had reached the station half an hour before train time and consumed the interval in pacing the platform under a big cotton umbrella, addressing each other only in monosyllables. Those in the waiting room gossiped eagerly and for the thousandth time about the late events and particularly about the tremendous news of Fiske. Judd Bennett looked out through the rainy doorway at the latter with reverence and a fine pride of townsmanship. He declared it to be his belief that Fiske and Parker were waiting for her now.

For all Carlow knew why Fiske had gone to meet the strange lady at the station when she had come to visit the Brissons, who he had come with her to the lecture why he had taken supper at the Brissons' three times and dinner twice when she was there. Fiske had told the story to Parker on a melancholy afternoon as they sat together in the Herald office, and Parker had told the town. It was simple enough indeed, and Fiske's past was a mystery no longer. It might have been revealed years before had there been anything in particular to reveal and if it had ever occurred to Fiske to talk of himself and his affairs. Things had a habit of not occurring to Fiske.

Mr. Parker, very nervous himself, felt his companion's elbow trembling against his own as the great engine, reeking in the mist and sending great clouds of white vapor up to the sky, swooped down the track, rushed by them and came to a standstill beyond the platform. Fiske and the foreman made haste to the nearest vestibule and were gazing blankly at its barred approaches when they heard a silvery laugh behind them and an exclamation. "Upstairs and downstairs and in my lady's chamber! Just behind you, dear!"

Turning quickly, the foreman beheld a blushing and smiling little vision, a vision with light brown hair, a vision enveloped in a light brown rain cloak and with brown gloves from which the handles of a big brown traveling bag were left fall as the vision disappeared under the cotton umbrella, while the smiling Judd Bennett reeled gasping against the station.

"Dearest," the girl cried to the old man, "you should have been looking for me between the devil and the deep sea, the parlor car and the smoker! I've given up cigars, and I've begun to study economy, so I didn't come on either!"

The drizzle and mist blew in under the top of the "cut under" as they drove rapidly into town, and bright little drops sparkled on the fair hair above the new editor's forehead and on the long lashes above the new editor's cheeks. She shook these transient gems off lightly as she paused in the doorway of the office at the top of the rickety stairway. Mr. Schofield had just added the last touch to his decorations and managed to slide into his coat as the party came up the stairs, and now, perceiving, proud, embarrassed, he assumed an attitude at once deprecatory of his endeavors and pointedly expectant of commendations for the results. (He was a modest youth and a conscious one.) After his first sight of her as she stood in the doorway it was several days before he could lift his distressed eyes under the new editor's glance or, indeed, dare to avail himself of more than a hasty and fluttering stare at her when her back was turned.) As she entered the room he sidled along the wall and laughed sheepishly at nothing.

Every chair in the room was ornamented with one of his blue rosettes, tied carefully and firmly to the middle slat of each chair back. There had been several yards of ribbon left over, and there was a hard knot of glossy satin on each of the instandards and on the doorknobs. A blue band passing around the stovepipe lent it an antique rakishness suggestive of the chariot, and a number of streamers suspended from a hook in the ceiling encouraged a supposition that the employees of the Herald were contemplating the intricate festivities of May day. It needed no ghost to infer that these garlands had not embellished the editorial chamber during Mr. Harkless' activity, but, on the contrary, had been put in place that very morning. Mr. Fiske had not known of the decorations, and as his eye fell upon them a fairly good deal of pain passed over his brow. But the girl examined the room with a dancing eye, and there were both tears and laughter in her heart.

"How beautiful!" she cried. "How beautiful!" She crossed the room and gave her hand to Ross. "It is Mr. Schofield, isn't it? The ribbons are delightful. I didn't know Mr. Harkless' room was so pretty."

Ross looked out of the window and laughed as he took her hand, which he shook with a long up and down motion, but he said nothing. He was by no means unconscious of the fact that the decorations were for her. "Oh, it isn't much, I reckon," he replied, and continued to look out of the window and sigh so pretty.

She went to the desk and removed her gloves and laid her rain cloak over a chair near by. "Is this Mr. Harkless' chair?" she asked, and Fiske answered that it was, she looked gravely at it for a moment, passed her hand gently over the back of it and then, throwing the rain cloak over another chair, said cheerfully:

"You know, I think the first thing for us to do will be to dust everything very carefully!"

"You remember, I was confident she would know precisely where to begin," was Fiske's earnest whisper in the willing ear of the long foreman. "Not an instant's indecision, was there?"

"No, sir," replied the other, and as he went down to the pressroom to hunt for a feather duster which he thought might be found there he collided with Tipworthy, the devil, who, not admitted to the concourse of his superiors, was whistling on the rainy stairway.

"You hustle and find that duster! We used to have, Bud," said Parker. And presently as they rummaged in the nooks and crannies about the machinery he melted to his small assistant. "The paper is saved, Buddie—saved by an angel in light brown. You can tell it by the look of her."

"Gee!" said Bud.

Mr. Schofield had come, blushing, to join them. "Say, Gale, did you notice the color of her eyes?"

"Yes, they're gray."

"I thought so, too, show day and at Kedge Hallway's lecture. But say, Gale, they're kind of changeable. When she comes in upstairs with you and Fiske they were just as blue—near matched the color of our ribbons."

"Gee!" repeated Mr. Tipworthy. When the editorial chamber had been made so neat that it almost glowed, though it could never be expected to shine as did Fiske and Caleb Parker and Ross Schofield that morning, the lady took her seat at the desk and looked over the few items the gentlemen had already compiled for her perusal. Mr. Parker explained many technicalities peculiar to the Carlow Herald, translated some phrases of the printing room and enabled her to grasp the amount of matter needed to fill an issue.

When Parker finished the three incompetents sat watching the little figure with the expression of hopeful and trusting terriers. She knit her brow for a second, but she did not betray an instant's indignation.

"I think we should have regular market reports," she announced earnestly. "I am sure Mr. Harkless would approve. Don't you think he would?" She turned to Parker.

"Market reports?" Mr. Fiske exclaimed. "I should never have thought of market reports, nor do I imagine would either of my—my associates. A woman to conceive the idea of market reports?"

The editor blushed. "Why, who would, dear, if not a woman or a speculator, and I'm not a speculator, and neither are you, and that's the reason you didn't think of them. So, Mr. Parker, as there is so much pressure, and if you don't mind continuing to act as reporter as well as compositor until after tomorrow, and if it isn't too wet—you must have an umbrella—would it be too much bother if you went around to all the shops—stores, I mean—to all the grocers and the butchers and the leather place we passed, the tannery, and if there's one of those places where they bring cattle, would it be too much to ask you to stop there—and at the flour mill, if it isn't too far, and at the dry goods store—and you must take a blank book and a sharpened pencil, and if there's a chance, a pen, and a notepad, and how much things are?"

Orders received, the impetuous Parker was departing on the instant when she stopped him with a little cry. "But you haven't got an umbrella!" And she forced her own, a slender wand, upon him. It bore a cunningly wrought handle, and its fabric was of glistening silk. The foreman, unable to decline it, thanked her awkwardly, and as she turned to speak to Fiske he bolted out of the door and ran down the steps without unfolding the umbrella, and then as he made for Mr. Martine's emporium he buttoned it securely under his long Prince Albert, determined that not a drop of water should touch and ruin so delicate a thing. Thus he carried it, triumphantly dry, through the course of his reportings of that day.

When he had gone the editor laid her hand on Fiske's arm. "Dear," she said, "do you think you'd take cold if you went over to the hotel and made a note of all the arrivals for the last week and the departures too? I noticed that Mr. Harkless always filled two or three—sticks, isn't it—with them and things about them, and somehow it read very nicely. You must ask the landlord all about them, and if there aren't any, we can take up the same amount of space in the Herald, just as he has used to. You see, I've read the Herald faithfully. Isn't it a good thing I always subscribed for it?" She patted Fiske's cheek with her soft hand and laughed gaily into his mild, vague old eyes. "It won't be this scramble to 'fill up' much longer. I have plans, gentlemen, and before long we will print news, and we must buy 'plate matter' instead of patent insides; and I had a talk with the Associated Press people in Rouen, but that's for afterwards. AFTER TRAFALGAR.

One Cruiser of Modern Type Could Destroy the Whole of Nelson's Fleet—An Interesting Comparison.

For close upon a century, says The London Express, Britain has enjoyed, undisputed, the supremacy of the sea won for her by Nelson's glorious victory at Trafalgar ninety-nine years ago. Nothing is more remarkable than the complete revolution which naval construction and naval warfare have undergone in the intervening years. If the great Admiral's fleet could be restored as it was in 1805 a single cruiser would blow it out of the water in an hour without ever coming within range of its guns.

Steam, propelled vessels were, of course, unknown in Nelson's time, and the issue of a battle depended to a great extent upon seamanship and the vagaries of the wind. The range and destructive power of the guns were then so small that officers and men were often killed by rifle fire from picked shots placed in the enemy's masts, and, as all know, Nelson himself met his death in a decisive battle may be fought, as at Chempulup, without the combatants coming within four miles of each other.

If we compare the navy at the commencement of the nineteenth century with the navy to-day, the following interesting comparison is obtained:

	1805.	1904.
Number of ships...	450	472
Tonnage	481,000	1,807,226
Gun	2,500	4,425
Men	180,000	131,000
Cost	$90,000,000	$184,000,000

The actual average number of guns to each ship, it is interesting to note, has fallen from fifty-five in 1805 to about fifteen this year. In striking this average torpedo craft are taken into account. This reduction, of course, has been rendered possible by the enormous increase in the range and destructive power of the modern gun. Comparing Nelson's flagship Victory with the newest 18,000 ton battle ship of the King Edward VII. class, it will be found that while the Victory's heaviest shot was sixty-eight pounds, the twelve-inch gun of the King Edward VII. will fire a projectile weighing 860 pounds.

With the invention of armor plates, the first of which was made for the Crimean War, the cost of warship construction has increased enormously. A 100-gun man-of-war in Nelson's time, equipped, masted and rigged, but excluding armament, cost $200,000. The King Edward VII., with its guns and ammunition, cost the immense sum of $6,842,000, or twenty times as much as Nelson's Victory.

Britain's naval predominance over other Powers was much more pronounced five years after the battle of Trafalgar, than it is to-day. It has been seen from the appended table that in 1810, so far as gun power is concerned, she could have made a good fight of it had all the other naval Powers in the world combined against her. The strength of the fleet of the British Powers in that year was as follows:

	Ships.	Guns.
Great Britain	450	24,800
France	212	6,000
Russia	346	4,425
Spain	346	4,425
United States	131	520
Other countries	217	4,900

But in the unlikely event of Britain being at war with the combined nations of the world in 1905 she would stand a poor chance of victory. Coast defence ships are here included with battleships:

	Battle Ships.	Armored Cruisers.	Cruisers.
France	45	23	21
United States	35	23	21
Russia	35	23	21
Germany	35	23	21
Italy	35	23	21
Japan	35	23	21
Total	168	77	126
Great Britain	35	23	21

If the ships and the guns of the navy have undergone a revolution since Nelson's day, so also have the men. So difficult was it to obtain sufficient seamen to man the ships toward the close of the eighteenth century that bounties amounting to as much as $350 had to be offered to induce men to serve. This naturally led to the introduction of the rif-raff and ne'er-do-wells of every class.

There is a striking difference, indeed, between those ruffians and the smart, kind-hearted men of King Edward VII.'s navy. Though men were difficult to obtain in Nelson's time, the supply of officers was seldom deficient. So great, in fact, was the competition among the upper classes to enter the navy that the names of children were often entered in the ship's books before they were out of the nursery.

A striking instance was Sir Edward Hamilton, who was born on March 12, 1772, and was entered as midshipman on May 21, 1779, while he was only seven years old. It is stated that he actually took part in an action on board his father's ship, the Hector, one year later.

The famous Thomas Cochrane, tenth Earl of Dundonald, whose name is associated with as many daring and successful exploits as that of almost any naval officer, was born in December, 1775, and entered as captain's servant when five years old. Nelson himself entered the navy at the age of twelve and immediately went west on a voyage to the West Indies.

It was the custom in those days, whether in the navy or army, for young gentlemen to serve their apprenticeship as page to some man of note or position and work their way up, partly by influence and partly by talent, to the higher grades of their profession.

A preliminary training on land was no less important for Nelson's officers as it is to-day, when a battleship is filled with complicated machinery from end to end and manual labor has been reduced to a minimum.

Didn't I keep them all. How it—How many meals did you have on the voyage? Jewett—Gross or not?

TOGO'S SIGNAL.

"Later reports show that during the night of May 27 our torpedo boats numbered thirty-four, thirty-five and sixty-nine were sunk by the enemy's fire. Comrades rescued the majority of their crews. Besides the above there was no damage worth reporting. No warship nor destroyer suffered any loss of fighting or navigating power.

"We anticipated a heavy loss of life but find that our casualties were comparatively slight. They do not exceed 800 killed and wounded. The casualty reports will be rendered as speedily as possible in order to reassure families and friends.

Nagasaki, June 1.—Russian torpedo boats from Vladivostok captured the Japan steamer Daisheh of 700 tons off Hokkaido and placed a prize crew of thirteen men on board with orders to take the vessel to port. By mistake the Russian commander of the Daisheh headed for Gensan (Corea) and met a Japanese transport. The latter, seeing the Russian flag flying from the Daisheh intended to recapture the vessel, when the Japanese captives aboard the steamer on seeing their comrades attacked the prize crew, recaptured the vessel and eventually took her to Gensan. The Russian prize crew have been taken captives to Sasebo.

Nagasaki, June 1.—Fully 3,800 Russian naval prisoners have been landed.

Tokio, June 1.—The necessity for secrecy no longer existing, the Navy Department confirms the reports of the loss of the Japanese battleship Yashima off Port Arthur in May, 1904, and announces other naval losses heretofore withheld. The list is as follows:—

Battleship Yashima, sunk by a mine May 15, 1904, while engaged in blockading Port Arthur.

The torpedo-boat destroyer Akatsuki sunk by a mine May 17, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

The gunboat Oshima, sunk in collision May 17, 1904, while co-operating with the army off the Lizotung peninsula.

The torpedo-boat destroyer Hayatori, sunk by a mine September 3, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

The protected cruiser Takasago sunk by a mine December 12, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

Tokio, June 1, 2, 15 p. m.—Admiral Togo, responding to the Imperial receipt commending the Admiral and his sailors, expresses his appreciation, and further says: "That we gained a success beyond our expectation is due to the brilliant virtue of your majesty and to the protection of the spirits of your Imperial ancestors and not to the action of human beings.

"We shall be faithful to your Imperial will."

London, June 2.—The Tokio correspondent of the Daily Express sends a story of the battle, told by an officer of the battleship Borodino who is now at Sasebo. The officer says:—

"Admiral Rojestvensky came on board early in the battle and directed the fighting from the Borodino's flying bridge. At 3 o'clock the Japanese battleships Skikishima and Fuji opened every gun upon us. A projectile struck the forward barbette, in which I had charge of a 12-inch gun, and this rendered us all insensible.

"I groped out of the smoke-filled barbette to the deck, and found there a rain of projectiles. Dozens were lying dead or wounded at every turn. I returned to the barbette, but was only able to fire two rounds, when two projectiles struck us simultaneously, wrecked the barbette, disabled both the 12-inch guns and killed eighteen officers and men."

The officer proceeds to describe how the Borodino now became a veritable shambles, successive shells destroying the steering gear and ammunition hoists so that the shells end to be carried by hand. Admiral Rojestvensky was wounded and transferred to a destroyer, and as the destroyer left she was assailed by a hail of small arm ammunition.

"It was now 4 o'clock," the officer continued. "The Borodino had been repeatedly struck in the hull and was setting down with no hope of saving her. The Japanese had broken our battle formation and were closing in concentrating their fire on our fighting tops of whose crews hardly one escaped. Five had now broken out in several places adding to the horror of our situation and it was decided to withdraw from the firing line for the purpose of repairing our steering gear.

"But we were surrounded by eight Japanese ships and bombarded on every side. We still fought desperately with our 12-inch guns and what was left of our smaller guns and with about half our complement of men. But the Borodino sank lower and lower toward evening, after we had lost 400 men, we noticed the Japanese destroyers coming toward us. We sank one with a well directed shell. The other launched a torpedo, which missed us. All the men in the engine room were driven on deck by the flames of the spreading fire. Finally a Japanese torpedo flotilla bore down upon us and an explosion caused the Borodino to turn turtle. I, with forty others, was rescued from the sea by the Japanese armored cruiser Kasuga and was transferred to the shore."

Tokio, Wednesday, May 31, 2.15 p. m.—The serious wound of Admiral Rojestvensky, who was taken to Sasebo on a Japanese battleship is a bruise in the forehead and a slight fracture of the skull. The nature of his internal injuries is not known. The Admiral's temperature and pulse are normal and there is no sign of brain trouble. He has other wounds, but they are not serious.

It is reported that it was necessary for Admiral Rojestvensky to change his flagship five times during the battle. He finally took refuge on the torpedo boat destroyer where he was captured. Admiral Togo's later despatches, given up to the public early this evening, created the highest enthusiasm. High officers of the army and prominent officials hurried to the Navy Department and offered congratulations.

The entire staff of the Bank of Japan, headed by a band marched to the Navy Department and cheer in honor of the victory.

No Difference

No distinction is made as to the kind of Piles that Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid cures.

The names Internal, External, Bleeding, Blind, Itching, Suppurating, etc., are simply names of the different stages through which every case will pass if it continues long enough. Piles are caused by congestion or stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal remedy to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally. It is a permanent cure and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure. Money back if it does. A guarantee with every package. Price $1.00 at any druggist's, or the Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

LAMENT OF THE IRISH EMIGRANT.

By Lady Dufferin.

Lady Dufferin, poet, who was born in 1807 and died in 1887, was the author of many popular songs and ballads, of which the one given below is the best known. She was the granddaughter of the dramatist and orator, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and mother of the late diplomat, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava.

I'm stittin' on the wille, Mary,
Where we sat side by side,
On a bright May mornin' long ago,
When first you were my bride.
The corn was sproutin' fresh and green,
And the lark sang loud and high,
And the red was on your lip, Mary,
And the love-light in your eye.

The place is little changed, Mary,
The day is bright as then,
The lark's loud song is in my ear,
And the corn is green again.
But I miss the soft clasp of your hand,
And your breath warm on my cheek;
For I've kept holdin' for the world,
You nevermore will speak.

'Tis but a step down yonder lane,
And the little church stands near;
The church where we were wed, Mary,
I see the spire from here.
But the gravestone gone, Mary,
And my step might break your rest—
For I've kept holdin' for the world,
You nevermore will speak.

I'm very lonely now, Mary,
For the poor make no new friends;
But O, they were the better still
The few our Father sends!
And on yonder hill, Mary,
I bless you for the pleasant word,
When your heart was all and sure,
O, 'tis thankful you are gone, Mary,
Where grief can't reach you more.

I'm hidin' you a long farewell,
When your heart was all and true;
But I'll not forget you, darling,
They say there's hard work for all,
And the sun shines all the time,
And I'll think I see the little stile
Where we sat side by side,
And I'll keep holdin' for the world,
You nevermore will speak.

Like Old Times.
"Afternoon tea" is not quite such a modern institution as people generally suppose. Dr. Alexander Carlyle, the eminent Scotch divine, in his autobiography, in describing his mode of living at Harrogate in 1768, says: "I had a regular afternoon tea in their turns, which coming but once in four or five weeks, amounted to a treat."

Best in Her Ambition.
In the Copyright Register of Stationers' Hall is the entry: "Edward White, entered for his copy, etc., a ballad, showing how a fond woman falsely accused her self to be the King of Spain's daughter, and being found a liar, was for the same whipped through London the XIII. jay day of December, 1592, being known to be a butcher's daughter of London, vid."

Quer Us for a Royal Tomb.
In the Right Hon. William Windham's diary, under date July, 1785, is the entry: "Took in the morning to Peterborough to see the Cathedral tomb of Mary Queen of Scots removed to the dean's garden, and used as a summerhouse."

The Sign of a Deadly Crime.
According to local tradition the sign of the Sturdy's Castle, on the road between Woodstock and Banbury, has a very quaint origin. The story goes that in the long, long ago, while the house was being built, and approaching completion, a resident of the district named Sturdy was murdered by another whose name was Castle. The hanging of the latter on a gibbet near by and the opening of the hostelry coming near together, one of the earliest customers of the house flippantly called it Sturdy's Castle, and it has been known by that sign ever since.

Good Business.
In Grantham there is a tavern called "The Living Sign." Before the house is a small tree, in the branches of which is established a well-populated beehive, and over the entrance to the hostelry is inscribed the couplet:
"Two wonders, Grantham, now are thine,
A lofty steeple and a Living Sign."

Religious Awakening in England.
There are not wanting signs that we in England are on the eve of a great religious awakening, as the result of a profound revulsion of feeling against the worldliness and materialism that have for so long held baneful sway. A most remarkable wave of religious emotion is passing over Wales. The public houses are closing their trade, football clubs are experiencing a depression as profound as it is unwonted and meetings for prayer and praise are carried on by night as well as day.

His Income.
"Does Rapidity live within his income?"
"Yes, within a few thousands of it."

THE TWINS.

We're twins, an' my name's Lucy Brown,
An' her name's Lulu, I'm called Lou,
An' ever body in 'is town
By call my sister 'at name too,
An' folks 'ey come to see us here,
An' we let have the moostes fun,
'Cause ever body say: "Oh, dear!
"W'y, 'is one is the nuther one!"

My papa sometimes look at me
An' say: "Well, Lulu, how you grow!"
An' 'nen I laugh, an' 'nen w'y, he
Say goodness sakes, he'll never know
Which one is which. An' 'nen I say
No one can tell us twins apart
'Cause we're together anyway.
An' 'nen he holles: "Bless you heart!"

My mamma never gets us mixed;
She always knows my twin fun me.
An' papa, say she's got us fixed—
Our clothes or hair so's she can see.
But mamma hugs us both up tight
An' kisses us an' puts our curls
An' says a muvver's always wise
An' always knows her preshus girls.

But nuther folks 'ey let can't tell,
An' 'onen when Lulu clumb a tree
An' couldn't hold, w'y, when she fell
The doctor thought 'at she was me.
'Nen we all laugh, an' he let say
It's all in how the notions strike,
'At 'at 'at 'at 'at 'at 'at 'at 'at
But 'at I look the moost alike!

—Willbur D. Nesbit in Harper's Magazine.

The Great Question.
Fond Young Mother (with firstborn)—
Now, which of us do you think he is like?

Friend (judiciously)—Well, of course, intelligence has not really dawned in his countenance yet, but he's wonderfully like both of you!—Punch.

Easy When You Know How.
"It's remarkable," said the doctor, "how much excitement a bean or some equally small object can cause when it is lodged in a baby's nose. This morning a frantic mother rushed into my office and implored me to extract a bead which her baby had put into its nose. Improvising a suitably bent probe from a hairpin I borrowed from the hysterical woman, I succeeded in removing the head in less time than it would take to count six. And the first thing the woman said was:—
"Why, I could have done that myself!"—New York Press.

Repairs.
"If they ever get to venting the truth in epigrams," said the man with the angry eyes, "I hope I may live long enough to write what will go on your tombstone."
"If they ever put the truth on 'em," retorted the man with the aggressive chin, "I hope I'll live long enough to read what goes on yours."—Judge.

Accent on the "Man."
"Well," he said during their quarrel, "I suppose you'll be wanting a divorce next?"
"Really," she replied coldly, "I don't see why it should be necessary in a case like this. A woman doesn't need a divorce unless she has been married to a man."—Philadelphia Press.

Under Suspicion.
"What do you think of that college professor who says he never 'kissed a girl'?"
"Possibly," said Miss Cayenne, "it is the simple confession of an unworried soul, and then again it may be very sly way of advertising for bids."—Washington Star.

A Palatable Hit.
Bunker—You've seen Miss Dash on the links, eh? Then you must have noticed how recklessly she approaches the ball.
Newcome—Yes, that was the first thing to strike my eye—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Forecast.
Little six-year-old Dot while conversing with her mamma the other day asked, "Mamma, if I'm alive when I get married may I please live with you and papa?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Wash greasy dishes, pots or pans with Lever's Dry Soap or powder. It will remove the grease with the greatest ease. 36

Mrs. Alex Melanson returned from Vermont this week accompanied by her grandfather, Mr. Wm. Barclay who is quite an aged gentleman.

Some time ago a few of our energetic young people made an attempt to beautify the town square commonly known as market square, and for this purpose the insufficient sum of $146 was realized at the time from which a wire fencing 1000 feet amounting to $200 was purchased, the balance, $54, being loaned the committee.

It was then plainly seen that more money was needed to carry out our plans, which desired sum was unobtainable and therefore the fencing could not be attended to. It remained untouched when all further attempts proved unsuccessful. Since then, however, the committee have talked the matter over and think it a good plan to dispose of the fencing at a reasonable price and hold the proceeds until further considerations when it can be beneficially used for some public purpose. This fencing can be seen any time at Messrs Adams Burns & Co.'s store where it is now being advertised for sale at a very low rate. Anyone desiring to ornament their home with this style of fencing would do well to profit by the bargain above referred to.

We hope the building of a rink so much talked about during the past skating season has not been forgotten by people who propose building it as it is being looked forward to for the coming winter. George Carter and Willie Gammon left on Tuesday for a cruise to Sydney.

Leo Connolly left on Wednesday for a trip to Millanack, Me.

Mrs. Percy Wilbur and her daughter Miss Rita returned on Tuesday from an enjoyable visit to friends in Quebec.

Fire destroyed the home of Philix Bertain in St. Annes last week. The family escaped the flames but were unable to save any clothing or furniture leaving them in very poor circumstances as there was no insurance and a family of thirteen. The children are all being cared for at the home of Dennis Comeau until they are able to rebuild.

Three oil tanks have been placed near the I. C. R. Station here this week each holding 1000 gallons of oil and in short time they will supply the town with the required oil.

Terrible Back Pains

They fairly agonize your life. Something powerful and penetrating is needed. Doctors know of nothing so swift to relieve as Nerviline, a strong, penetrating liniment made to cure such pains as yours. Nerviline is very concentrated, about four times more powerful than ordinary liniments. In the worse cases Polson's Nerviline is extraordinarily good. All muscular pain flees before it. Nearly fifty years in use—a good recommendation, surely.

OAK BAY

The weather has been fine this last few days. The people has finished farming.

Mr. L. Bigold had very narrow escape by falling out of boat into the water but was rescued by Mr. J. B. Sowerby and Dan McKee.

Miss Martha Mann and Mr. Harvey of Matapedia are visiting friends here. Mr. Russel Flanagan and Earnest Foster have returned home after spending a few days in Fall River.

We understand that Mr. B. Ray and Leslie Flanagan are off for vacation. Mr. Anez is visiting his sister here.

ESCUMINAC FLATS

The sarcastic remarks of one of our residents by the name of Mr. James Mann are of a rather amusing nature by attempting to call the attention of the public to the fact that I have been guilty keeping $5.00 which I was trusted with by a certain party in Dalhousie I gave the money to him and hold his receipt and now I am made a target for his effusions. It would be better for him (Mr. Mann) to confine such visions as he describes to his own door, for it may be said remember those in houses of glass should seldom throw stones.

Fire at Buctouche

Buctouche, June 6.—Another blaze occurred at Buctouche, in which seven buildings were burned. At 1.30 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the store occupied by John Sayre. His loss will be a heavy one as he carried little or no insurance. Those out are

John Sayre, general store
John L. Cormier, Hotel and bar.
J. P. Gogan, confectionery store.

M. L. D. Cormier, hotel and barn just completed.

G. S. Richard, general store. Fortunately it was a calm morning, otherwise nearly the whole business part of the town would have been swept away.

Mr. Sayre would carry probably $3,000 or $4,000 worth of stock. The total loss in stock and buildings would be $20,000 or more.
