The AFull Stock of Confectionery on hand winter, so far, has been the finest I have ever experienced in America. With the exception of a few days, which were more severe than in common in New Brunswick, the weather has been very moderate and always day. You may form some idea of what it has been from the fact that a school house 40x53 two stories high, 12 ft. ceilings, was commenced and finished in the moath of December and since that time little children have been able to go on foot to school every day. Last winter is said to have been the same. Dr. Rice, of Winnipeg, after describing the weather to me finished up by saying that it was perfectly delightful, I am very well satisfied with the change I have made. By simply investing in a very moderate way, I believe I have done more for nivself in six months than I did during my residence in Sackville. During the past two or three years settlers have been subjected to agreat deal of loss of time and trouble owing to the mixed up and ever changing nature of the land regula-tion and considerable loss and worry has also been occasioned during the last year by the incomplete arrange ment, and in some cases prematur advertisements of the Syndicate terms of sale. The only way to make sure of what you wanted was to stay of it all the time and watch and work it. This did not suit many good settlers. Every thing is now better defined and settlers will be shie to secure land in a business like The conditions of the Syndicate are stringent, no doubt, but at the same time necessary to check injurious speculations, as there are some here who not only understand their business thoroughly but are mean enough to sacrifice everything when they can for their present benefit. I do not know that they have special privileges granted them, but some of them know exactly how to obtain the advantage over more honorable men and I believe are not particular sa to the means they em poy to get such advantage. I be-heve the Homestead jight is prosti-tuted, for this end by some of our leading mea using mea whom they can buy to hold homesteads of their selection for a time for them. this means they having the inside track, secure the patent homesteads of the country for themselves. This being being contrary to the spirit and intent of the homestead law, is a positive injury, as it cuts off one of the inducements spirited men have to come into the country. It is a very bumiliating thing to find that one man, perhaps, has secured by such means, an undue influence over quite a number of town sites: in such a case men feel that they small fish and that some one else is a LOCKS, KNOBS, HINGES, LATCHES, big Shark."
