Tasmania's Upper House Vetoes Universal Suffrage-England's Attitude on the Armenian Question.

UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE VETOED. Hobarttown, Tasmania, Sept. 5.-The Legislative Council has rejected the Universal Suffrage Bill, which was recently passed by the Assembly.

THE GERMANIC. Queenstown, Sept. 5 .- The White Star

Line steamer Germanic, from New York, arrived off this port last evening, but did not communicate with the shore, owing to the dense fog. She will proceed to Liverpool, THE SULTAN "CONCERNED."

London, Sept. 5.-The Post publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the demand of Great Britain, France, and Russia that they be represented on the permanent committee controlling the execution of reform in Armenia causes the Sultan much concern. He prefers to accept the original scheme of reform proposed by the powers. He has given greater latitude to the Grand Vizier in order to facilitate his efforts to arrive at a settlement of the pending questions.

MISS STANLEY GOES TO PRISON. London, Sept. 5.—Mabel Stanley, alias McLean, alias Millett, alias Vaughan, the American woman who was arrested at Liverpool on Aug. 10 as she was about to sail for New York on the steamer Etruria at the instance of Mrs. Gibbons, her landlady, who charged her with stealing jewelry valued at 1587, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment Tuesday. The woman pleaded guilty, and the prosecutrix pleaded for of the court in the prisoner's behalf. Miss Stanley was removed from the dock in a hysterical condition.

PRESS CENSORSHIP IN GERMANY. Berlin, Sept. 4.-Herr Pfund, editor of the Vorwaerts, has been arrested and two editions of his paper have been confiscated by the police, upon the ground that the paper contained ar-ticles insulting to Emperor William. In the original prosecution of the editor of the Vorwaerts and the seizure of the edition of his paper the initiative was taken by the Emperor himself after seeing the objectionable articles. The semi-official press make haste to deny that the action taken against the paper implies a project to renew exceptional legislation in the Reichstag.

GERMAN BIMETALLISTS TROU-BLED.

London, Sept. 5.-A Berlin dispatch to the Times says that German bimetallists are making desperate attempts to deprive the statement of Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, in the House of Commons to the effect that an international currency conference would probably not come to any agreement on the ratio of the value of gold and silver of its uncomfortable meaning. Dr. Arende, editor of the organ of the bimetallists, declares that if Germany continues her policy of indecision, the extreme silver party will arise, demanding free coinage of silver.

AGAINST ROYAL PAUPERS. Cardiff. Sept. 5 .- At the session of the Trades Union Congress today, the parliamentary committee was instructed to urge upon Parliament the passage of a bill declaring for the principle of payment of salaries to members of the House of Commons. Mr. Sexton, a delegate from Liverpool, in seconding a motion for the adoption of a resolution in favor of the prohibition of the landing of pauper aliens, said that he wished to include within the scope of the resolution royal paupers, who are arriving without visible means of subsistence, but who soon found them. These, Mr. Sexton said, were the men controlled the empire, while the poor British taxpayers had no rights at

ABOLITION OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Cardiff, Wales, Sept. 5.-The 28th annual Trades Union Congress of Great Britain is in session in the town hall here, with David Holmes, president of the Cotton Spinners' Association, in the chair. The chairman announced that there were present 344 delegates, representing over a million members of various unions. Mr. Holmes said that though differences might arise during the sessions of the congress, he felt sure that all the delegates were actuated by one motive-the welfare of the working classes of the United Kingdom.

The congress proceeded to the election of a president, the balloting resulting in the choice of Mr. Jenkins, a shipwright.

Samuel Gompers, ex-president of the American Federation of Labor, and P. J. McGuire, vice-president of the federation, are fraternal delegates from the United States.

The Trade Congress unanimously adopted the resolution demanding the abolition of the House of Lords. BRITAIN AND TURKEY.

London, Sept. 5.-The Hon. N. G. Curzon, Under Secretary for the Foreign Office, replying to a question by Mr. Bowles, M.P., in the House of Commons, said that several communications had been received from Turkey upon the subject of the proposed reforms in Armenia. Unfortunately, he said, the communications were unsatisfactory. The project of reforms which had been suggested by Russia, France and England, had not received the official support of Germany, Austria and Italy. But the powers last named, Mr. Cur-zon said, he believed were in sympathy with the reforms proposed. As to whether the Government would undertake any action beyond diplomatic representations or negotiations withcut previously informing Parliament of the grounds upon which the action would be made, he was unable to say, nor could he make any declaration regarding the course the Government would find themselves called upon to pursue in regard to the Armenian

In reply to an interrogation by Mr. Luttrell, member lfor the Tavistock division of Devonshire, relative to the case of W. H. Rickard, an Englishman now under sentence of 35 years' imprisonment in Hawaii for complicity in the recent royalist rebellion, Mr. Curzon said that as Mr. Rickard had surrendered his British nationality, the Government had no locus standi in the matter. THE KU CHENG MASSACRE. Shanghai, Sept. 5.—The inquiry into the massacre at Ku Cheng is proceeding to the satisfaction of the British and American consuls. There have been a number of important convictions. Among those condemned are some of the ringleaders of the riot. BRITISH CLAIMS IN MADAGAS-CAR.

London, Sept. 5 .- In the House of Commons today, replying to a question by Sir Albert Kaye Rollit, member for the south division of Islington, as to whether or not the Government were prepared to make representations to the French Government with reference to the claims of the subjects of Great Britain, which the Malagassy Government has refused to recognize, owing to the British recognition of the French protectorate over Madagascar, the Hon. George H. Curzon said that he was not aware of such a refusal, or of any such case as the member had described. Mr. Curzon added that this is an inauspicious time for the presentation of claims, while hostilities are in prog-ress in Madagascar.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

London, Sept. 5.—In the debate in the House of Lords today on the second reading of the Irish Land Purchase Bill, Viscount Clefden (Conservative) said that the measure appeared to him to be one for the relief of evicted tenants, who, he said, were the scum of their classes who amused themselves by cutting off the hair of women and shooting old men. He hoped that the bill would be rejected. Baron Halsbury expressed regret that such language should have been employed in this debate. The only question at issue, he said, was on continuing in operation an act which otherwise would expire with the lapse of time. The bill passed its third reading. The House of Lords has passed, on first reading, the bill to remove doubt as to the validity of the act of the Dominion of Canada respecting the Deputy Speaker of the Canadian Senate

SUMMONED BEFORE A HIGHER COURT.

London, Sept. 5.-At the South Londen, or Newington, sessions, George Henry Dewey, sometime sanitary inspector in the parish of Camberwell, was duly summoned to take his trial for lifting his hand to a woman other than in the way of kindness. But he came not. "George Henry Dewey," cried the usher three times, "come forth and save your recognizance," and the constables in the corridor echoed and re-echoed the cry, but no response was forthcoming. Clearly there was something wrong, for the witnesses had been before the grand jury, who had sent down a true bill. Soon it transpired that Dewey did not appear, not through contempt of court, but through sheer physical inability-being dead, inquested and duly buried. Feeling unequal to the task of pleading his case before an earthly judge, he had rashly gone to lay his defense before a higher tribunal, where the justice meted out is only exceeded by that mercy that never fails to the truly When Dewey's fate became known in court, Sir Peter Edlin was naturally enough extremely surprised that no intimation of the fact had been conveyed to the clerk. "It is preposterous," he said, "that witnesses should be called before the grand jury when the prisoner is dead." What was to be done? Sir Peter did not for the moment know; but he promptly released the witnesses from further at tendance, and suggested that probably the indictment should be quashed. It matters little to Dewey now whether anything or nothing be done. So far as he is concerned, the indictment may remain on the file or off; it may be quashed or framed as a judicial curiosity, for whatever becomes of it his account is irrevocably settled. SENSATION IN IRISH CIRCLES.

Dublin, Sept. 4.-The campaign in South Kerry is attracting much attention in Irish politics. A new election was rendered necessary by the decision in the case of Mr. Daniel Kilbride (anti-Parnellite), who was returned from South Kerry and North Galway to represent the latter constituency in the House of Commons. The anti-Par. nellites at a regular convention selected Mr. Farrell as their candidate, but Mr. Murphy, who is ostensibly a member of the anti-Parnellite party, is contesting the district as an independent candidate. Mr. Justin McCarthy, the head of the party, issued a manifesto to the electors on Monday in which he denounced the candidature of Mr. Murphy as treason against party discipline, and said it was due to a eonspiracy. For three years, he added there had been an incessant campaign against the unity of the party which reached a climax in Mr. Healey's baseless falsehoods uttered at Omagh, where he charged that the anti-Parnellite committee had sold seats in the House of Commons for English gold. Mr. Wm. O'Brien, formerly one of the anti-Parnellite leaders in the House, spoke at Kerry today in behalf of Mr In the course of his speech he said that Mr. Healey proposed after the election in 1892 that the Irish party should not put Mr. Gladstone in power until he gave written pledges to appoint Nationalist magistrates and sheriffs and to promote policemen from the ranks. Mr. O'Brien further said that the night before Mr. Gladstone ntroduced the second Home Rule Bill. Mr. Healey, like the other members of the committee, was informed what the provisions of the bill were.

Mr. Healey declared that Mr. Gladstone had swindled them and proposed that when Mr. Gladstone stood up to propose the bill the next day the Irish party should rise and quit the chamber. The speech has caused a sensation in Irish circles. Count Tolstoi's "Anna Karenine" has been dramatized in French. In the last act the heroine is run over by a railroad train in full sight of the audi-

Yet Showing Good Results.

Foreign Physicians Tell of Wonderfully Decreased Mortality.

New York, Sept. 5 .- Prof. Herrman M. Biggs, pathologist and director of Bacteriological Laboratory of the Health Department of this city, has just returned home from a two months' sejourn abread. His principal object in visiting Europe was to attend the 63rd annual meeting of the British Medical Association, which was held in London during July and August. He had been invited to take part in a discussion of the "Sanitary Management of Diphtheria," with particular reference to the use of bacteriological examinations in the diagnosis and sanitary surveillance of the disease. Dr. Biggs said to a reporter last night that the methods which were adopted by the Health Department of this city for the sanitary surveillance of diphtheria are now employed in London and the larger cities of Great Britain. They were adopted by the sanitary authorities of London after Dr. Biggs had read a paper explaining the New York methods before the Congress of the British Institute of Public Health in 1894. They have met with success wherever adopted and the results have been excellent.

"But the most interesting discussion during the meeting," said Dr. Biggs, "was on the subject of the treatment of diphtheria by anti-toxine. Several of the most eminent physicians of England and Germany took part in the discussion, and the results which they reported following the use of anti-toxine in the treatment of the disease were simply marvelous. "Prof. Van Ranke, of the University of Munich, reported that the mortality from primary diphtheria in his clinio from 1887 to 1894 ranged from 42.2 per cent to 57 per cent. Since the commencement of the serum treatment, from Sept. 24, 1894, to July 1, 1895, the mortality had been reduced to 17.7 per cent. The mortality had been reduced to considerably more than one-half, compared with the best years, and to two-thirds, compared with the worst

"Prof. Van Ranke also stated that under the influence of the serum treatment diphtheria loses its progressive character, and he gave it as his firm opinion that the serum treatment is a most powerful and specific remedy against diphtheria.

"A very interesting statement was that made by Prof. A. Baginsky, of the Iniversity of Berlin. He said that during the last year he had treated 525 diphtheria patients with serum. Previous to the introduction of this form of treatment the mortality during four years averaged 41 per cent, but by the serum treatment it had been reduced to 15.6 per cent. The serum treatment was said by Prof. Baginsky not only to reduce the mortality, but the whole condition of the child was Improved by it.

"A recent paper by Dr. Richet, of Paris, was quoted during the discussion, which stated that in Paris from 1884 to 1894 the smallest number of deaths from diphtheria in fourteen days had been 30, while the highest number had been 145 in the same per-

"There is more of the antitoxine used in Paris today than in any other city in the world, and the result has been that during 1895 the highest figure of mortality for fourteen days was 27, and the lowest was 4. No better evidence of the efficacy of the serum treatment is needed to establish its value and extend its use."

Dr. Biggs, in taking part in the discussion, dwelt at length on the importance of antitoxine in preventing the spread of the diphtheria, by rendering those who were exposed to the infection immune. He said: "In one institution in this city there had been a large number of cases of diphtheria, 107 cases having occurred during the 108 days preceding the injection of the serum. The antitoxine was then injected, 200 units of Behring's preparation being used in each case. During the next thirty days only one very mild case occurred. In the following thirty days another case was reported, and shortly after five more patients were attacked. Two hundred and twenty-five units were then injected, with the result that no more cases occurred. The same result was obtained in three other institutions, showing the extreme value of the immunizing power of the serum. The protective period is a short one, probably not extending over 30 days, but within this time it is almost absolute. In over 800 patients which I have treated for the purpose of rendering them immune, in no case have I discovered any unfavorable symptoms as the result of the injection of the serum. "It was the concensus of opinion among the eminent physicians in attendance at the meeting, who had devoted much time to the practical observation of the treatment by antitoxine, that the experimental stage has long since passed, and that the remedy had proved its claim to be far above all other remedies for the cure of diphtheria, and that not physician would be justified in neglecting to resort to this course of treatment in any case of diphtheria that he is called upon to attend."

MET THEM WHILE TRAVELING. When Lord Longford came in, I escaped from cribbage and heard many entertaining things. One was of his meeting a man in the mail coach who looked as if he was gouty and could not stir without great difficulty, and never without the assistance of a companion, who never moved an inch from him. At last Lord Longford discovered that this gentleman's gouty overalls covered fetters; that he was a malefactor in irons, and that his companion was a Bow street officer, who treated his prisoner with the greatest politeness. "Give me leave, sirexcuse me-one on your arm and one on mine, and then we are sure we can't leave one another." A worse traveling companion this than the bear, whom Lord Longford found one morning in the coach opposite to him when day dawned—the gentleman in the fur coat, as he had all night supposed him to be. - Maria Edgeworth's Letters.

Marvels of Anti-Toxine Told by Caught at the Hips in the Elevator.

The Only Remedy for This Disease Held in that Position for Thirty Minutes,

> While Workmen Saw the Victim Out-Wm. Doyle's Terrible Ordeal-He May Recover,

Caught at the hips and pinioned against the floor for over half an hour, his back broken and suffering horrible agony, was the position in which a young man who worked at McCormick's factory found himself in shortly after noon yesterday.

The McCormick Company does not allow its employes to use the elevator in question, retaining it entirely for shipping purposes. Sometimes as a joke on the shipper, an employe, if he can do so unobserved, will set the elevator in motion.

It was a practical joke of this sort that led up to this terrible accident. Some one started the elevator on its upward trip shortly before 1 o'clock. Wm. Doyle was coming out of the dining-room on the second story when it passed that landing. It was nearly on a level with his shoulders when the idea came to the lad to jump on and ride upstairs, instead of taking the stairway. The approach to the elevator is guarded by a gate which begins to rise as the elevator reaches the top of it. This gate interfered somewhat with the boy as he tried to climb on the ascending platform. Before he could draw himself completely on the ceiling was reached, and a terrible shriek told the employes throughout the building that the accident had occurred.

The shipper had been looking for the erpetrator of the joke, and arrived at the bottom of the chute just as the boy gave the yell. He immediately threw the belt controlling the machinery off the pulley. This action but a mo-ment before would have meant the boy's salvation. As it was, it only increased the horror of the situation. With the belt off the power controlling the motion of the elevator was gone. The platform could be moved now nelther up nor down. And the slow recourse of sawing out the frame work of the elevator had to be resorted to. Every motion, every slight jar, registered with awful force against the and, as if to make the punishment even more severe, nature lent a hand, in that the boy retained consciousness throughout. The McCormick Company were kind to the boy. Two of the city's leading doctors were present during the ordeal, and by the use of drugs alleviated to a certain extent his sufferings. They said his back was broken.

Even with the doctors' assistance to deaden the pain the lad cried piteously during the 30 odd minutes that it took to saw him out. At intervals he told those who were working around him how the accident happened, and when he was free at last, gentle hands assisted him to the waiting ambulance and the doctors accompanied their charge to St. Joseph's Hospital. There the boy is resting quietly.

Wm. Doyle is 17 years of age. He is the son of James Doyle, a moulder at Wortman & Ward's, and lived at 875 William street. He had only been at the factory for three months, and was employed in the cream department. Although his back is broken at the hip bones, the chances are that the boy will live. If he does he will be a paralytic. There are as well serious internal injuries to the bowels, which may cause complications that will mili-

Engineer Graydon Will Not Permit Electric Cars to Run

Until the Work is More Complete and the Roadbed Ballasted.

It was the intention of Manager Carr, of the street railway company, to run the first electric car on Dundas street on Saturday, but the City Engineer refused to sanction the proceedings because the ground wires were not up or the span wires insulated. The engineer states that he will not give the required authority to run while the roadbed is in its present unballasted condition. The laying of the second track on Dundas street east of Wellington commenced last night, and transfers are made by means of 'busses. The first trolley track has been completed to the Fair grounds and the loop laid. It is not probable that the line will be continued any further east until after the Fair.

Today work was commenced stringing the wire to convey the power from the power house. The workmen engaged in enlarging York street bridge finished putting down one of the iron cylinders. All the bridge material has arrived. The rail intersections for the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets have been brought down.

A LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I children as they wished. procured the medicine, and less than half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

"Odoroma" is the name of the latest thing for the teeth introduced into Canada by the Aroma Chemical Company. It seems to be meeting with the appreciation of the elite in Toronto at any rate, owing, no doubt, to its having been indorsed by wellknown professional experts as much as to recommendation from one to another. FINANCE REPORT.

The finance committee reported that the secretary-treasurer's books were kept in a neat and orderly manner. The attention of the Congress was directed to the very material reduction in receipts, owing, no doubt, to trade depression. It was necessary that the receipts and expenses should harmonize. It was pointed out that the cost of printing 500 French reports of the Congress proceedings was only $3 less than that of printing 1,500 English reports, and the committee recommended that the reports be printed in future at one office and by tender.

"We recommend that the secretarytreasurer (Mr. Geo. Dower, Toronto) be indorsed in saving the Congress the cost of printing his financial report, that he be commended for so doing," the report read in conclusion.

The report was adopted. THE SCHOOL SYSTEM.

W. L. St. Pierre, Ottawa, pressed his motion to urge the Provincial Govnon-secernment to establish terian schools. Mr. St. Pierre is a Frenchman and a Catholic, and he asked his confreres to discuss the question coolly and intelligently, and to nervous system of the unfortunate vic- leave race and creed questions out. tim. The process was necessarily slow, His resolution was the same that had after itself. You look after the labor been given a six months hoist at the Ottawa Trades and Labor Council recently by one vote. and this course was adopted simply because it was thought best, owing to the agitation over the Manitoba school case. Mr. St. Pierre gave as reasons for the establishment of non-sectarian schools and compulsory education: "First, We want to make a great nation of Canada. Second, It will create a better and national feeling. Third, It will give a working man's child the same chance as the millionaire's so far as education is concerned. "Wherever sectarian schools exist," said Mr. Darlington, of Montreal, who seconded the resolution, "the people are the most ignorant and the kept down." He claimed that 47 per cent of the people of Quebec were illiterate, and only 16 per cent of Manitoba, and a smaller ratio of Untario.

> "free compulsory" system of educa-What freedom was there in compulsion? Mr. Darlington-By "free" school I mean free of cost.

President Jobin held that the resolution was inconsistent. It called for INDUSTRIAL LIBERTY. Mr. Jobin asserted that the cost of maintenance would have to fall upon the people, therefore the system could not be free. Further that compulsory education infringed upon the liberty of the individual. In reply to the assertion that the people in Quebec were more illiterate than in other Provinces, Mr. Jobin pointed with price to the high place taken by that Province in the educational exhibit at Chicago.

T. Laforce Langevin, Quebec, opposed the motion and defended the Separate schools in Quebec mainly from the standpoint of religious liberty. M. Powell, jun., London, a Catholic who was educated in the city public schools, said that when a boy h e had been turned away from the old Adelaide street school because of faith. He believed that religion should be taught to a certain extent in all schools. The children would be the better for it.

R. H. Hessell, London, said that probably the reason Mr. Powell had been sent home from school was not so much because of his religion as because the taxes paid by Mr. Powell's parents went to the support of the separate school. He cited the nonsectarian schools of the United States as an evidence that such institutions were successful.

Toronto, stared that D. A. Carey, the Congress had touched upon a matter that soon bid fair to disrupt the labor organizations. He strongly the existence of separate schools.

C. C. Stewart, Winnipeg, said that since the non-sectarian schools had been established in that Province the educational standard had progressed rapidly. A BURNING QUESTION.

John Scott, Montreal, expressed great surprise that such a burning question should be touched upon by the Congress. It was too young to deal with such a problem. He maintained that a great deal of the sectarian hatred aleged to exist in Quebec was merely imaginary, and that all men should have the privilege of educating their

Marks, London, was both arnrised and gratified that the matter had been broached. He favored the establishment of entirely non-sectarian schools, and did not think it right that Protestants should seek to force unwelcome prayers upon Catholics as they were doing in Manitoba. J. W. Patterson strongly advocated a national school system, and said that the pastor of any denomination could be brought in and introduced after 4 o'clock.

H. B. Ashplant moved in amendment that the Congress express no opinion in the matter, and that it confine itself strictly to ameliorate the condition of the working classes, as laid down by the constitution. P. J. Ryan, Montreal, asked Mr. Darlington whether he had been authorized by the body he represented to bring the matter up.

WHOLE NO. 12290.

"Did you get authority from the same source to oppose it? asked Mr. Darlington in reply.

Mr. Ryan asserted that it was tacunderstood that the question should not be raised. UP THE WRONG TREE. Geo. T. Beals, Toronto, held that it was not the laboring class that was stirring up religious bigotry. It was those who sought by this means to climb into power that they should get after. R. G. Hay, Ottawa, strongly favored a national school system. D. J. Marson, Quebec, speaking in French, maintained that the separate school system in Quebec was the most suitable under the existing circumstances, and that the establishment of non-sectarian schools would tend to have a bad effect upon the religious in the manner most compatible with their religious ideas. D. J. O'Donoghue twitted the advocates of non-sectarian schools for showing their generosity by trying to force a disagreeable opinion upon the minority. "The church is the natural enemy of the people at the present time," said Mr. Darlington, of Montreal. never was the friend of the people. It lacks Christianity." Mr. O'Donoghue-That is what every athiest says. "I would like," said Mr. Darlington, continuing, "to see a resolution passed today declaring the church—I don't care whether Protestant or Catholic to be the natural enemy of the laboring classes." MANY OPINIONS. John Flett, Hamilton, favored a non-sectarian school system, but thought that the motion should be voted down as a matter of expediency.

A. K. McDonald, Ottawa, asked in the name of harmony, peace and good-fellowship that the resolution should be voted down. If it carried he asserted that the Congress would never get another delegate from Ottawa. John Tweed, Toronto, asked with what authority the delegates came prepared to deal with the matter? He thought that the feeling of the diflabor bodies should be first ascertained. Frank Plant, London, said that he had not come armed with the opinion of the body he represented, and as it was composed of mixed creeds he would not vote for the adoption of the resolution, although personally he favored national schools. that the only way to settle the question was to educate the people to the required standard. He further believed that an endeavor ought to be made to unite the church and the Labor Congress. Delegate Flett-The church will look Delegate Plant-That may be, we cannot afford to lose any friends. A. W. Holmes, Toronto, said that he would vote for the amendment for the same reason given by Mr. Plant. Delegate Hawthorne, London, said that he would oppose the motion, as being detrimental to the interests of

GENERAL BOOTH'S SCHEME.

The committee on standing orders reported adversely on Gen. Booth's colonization scheme. It was proposed to establish a colony of reformed sinners and others on 100,000 acres of Canadian land under such conditions and regulations as would preclude any of the members becoming the owner or direct occupier of the land. fore, be it resolved," the report read, "that this Trades and Labor Congress hereby protests against granting the public lands of Canada to Gen. Booth, or any other social or monopolistic corpration for socialistic purposes."

The resolution was introduced by C.

C. Steuart, Winnipeg, who regretted to say that the affliction was about to fall on Manitoba.

H. B. Ashplant seconded the motion, but admitted that the army was doing a noble work, and exception should not be taken to the unfortunates who were forced into their position through the present wage system. Joseph Hawthorne opposed the immigration scheme, and thought it would ventually tend to enrich Gen. Booth alone. If there was land to give or money to spend, it should be given to the laboring classes of Canada, and not to the "scalawags" of the old country. Delegate O'Donoghue opposed of necessity the principle of the colony. would be giving these men," said he, under the guise of creating a colony, 100,000 acres simply for the enrichment of one man and his family." H. L. Langevin asked what was the se of bonusing anybody to bring in impoverished immigrants and reform-Government that gave him the most Canadians on the verge of starvation. Wm. Darlington, Montreal, said that the result of establishing such an autocracy would permit Gen. Booth to command the votes of the members for the Government that gave him the most money. "If they create criminals in England," said Mr. Darlington, "let them support their criminals. Where the wage system prevails there, criminals are created only too fast. Keep them where they are manufactured, and let them reform them there. We want no criminal colonies any worse than we have now." Delegate Flett-Won't you give these men a further chance. Delegate Darlington-There is lots of coom in England for that, The resolution was then adopted.

Resolutions praying for a more stringent gambling law in Quebec and for Government inspection of steam boilers were adopted.

AN EXPLANATION. Mr. Darlington, Montreal, was credited in last evening's "Advertiser" with having said that he would shoot the men who assisted in importing the Chinamen, rather than the Chinamen themselves, as had been done in the United States. What Mr. Darlington did say was that he had heard some one tell how twenty Chinamen had been shot because of their interference in a strike. He deprecated this, and said that the proper course to have taken would have been to shoot the parties responsible for them being in the country, being careful to add the words, "which I do not advocate." The last few words escaped the reporter, hence the misunderstanding. Mr. Darlington is not interested in the shooting of anybody, and wishes to be not decided where he will go, having several offers. Moffatt & McGregor, of Tilbury, shipped the largest elm raft the other day that ever crossed Lake St. Clair, there being 3,253 logs, containing 700,-

000 feet on the float. Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson inspected the car shops at Stratford Wednesday. Before leaving Sir Charles made a handsome donation to the G. T. R. Institute in the form of two f10 notes.

The Woodstock customs returns for August are: Value of imports for duty, $24,238; duty collected, $9,612 64; free goods, $14,210; exports, $96,698. The imports show an increase of $500 over the corresponding month last year. James Lamont, of the Chatham Gas Company, has entered suit against the Chatham Waterworks Company, claim-

THE DURRANT TRIAL. San Francisco, Sept. 5.-At the Durrant trial yesterday the taking of the testimony was begun, The first witness was Dr. Barrett, who performed the autopsy on Blanche Lamont. It is said that Clarence Wolfe, who was a close friend of the prisoner, will swear that on April 2, one day before Blanche Lamont was murdered, he and Durrant held a conversation, when Durrant commented upon the beauty of Blanche. and said that he intended to rob her of her virtue. The source of this evidence is one of the strangest proofs of its reliability, as its sponsor is one who possessed the student's confidence, shared his pleasures, and took part in much of the daily routine of his life. Turner's house in Chelsea, from the roof of which he painted his pictures of the Thames, is to be torn down.

One of Them Made a Bluff to Skoot a Constable.

Another Roughly Handled—Twenty Days in Limbo-Other Disorderlies.

James Doyle and Robert Inman, two of the very seediest looking of tramps, were arrested in the north end of the city last night by P. C. Smith. They had been in company with two other members of their fraternity, and with the assistance of some bad whisky were making things very uncomfortable for residents in the neighborhood. When Smith came on the scene near the C. P. R. track the gang was going to thrash him. Their flow of abusive language was plentiful, and finally Smith put the bracelets on Doyle. Inman didn't like this a little bit, and, stepping back, he threatened to shoot the constable. As though he meant business, he placed his hand to his hip rocket and drew out something which glittered in the electric light, but which may have been a flask of whisky. Smith made a pretense to unlock the handcuffs, but excused himself from doing so, saying he would get another key a few blocks away. Inman was gulled by the story, following Doyle and Smith until Sergt. Crawford was met, when he was placed under arrest. Doyle objected to getting into the patrol wagon, and continued his objecttions when he reached the police station. He came out second best, and when he appeared in the Police Court this morning he looked much the worse for wear. His face was covered with bruises and cuts, the left eye was almost closed, and the left cheek was badly swollen. Inman came through with only a few scratches.

"Inman swore that if I did not release Doyle he would shoot me dead," said P. C. Smith, as he related the above facts to the magistrate. "And he shoved his hand into his pocket as though he intended to do it. He also tried to take my baton from me.

Inman did not deny having made the threat, but claimed he had no revolver. "But as he jumped back he passed something to the two men who got away," said P. C. Smith. Both prisoners were fined $5 or twenty days. Peter McCann and John McPhail were charged with being drunk and disorderly at the foot of Talbot street. They claimed to have been only "knocking off hats." McPhail, who was bailed after his arrest, was fined $2. McCann, who spent the night in the cells, escaped with $1. John Taylor, of the East End, was fined $5. He had acted disorderly in the Duke of York Hotel on Labor Day, street, were too drunk to appear in court and were remanded for a week.

WHITECAPS IN GREY Lash a Doctor-Two Farmers Committed

for Trial. Owen Sound, Sept. 5 .- One of the most sensational cases in the annals of this county was advanced a stage yesterday by the investigation of a genuine case of Whitecapism. On the night of August 10 last Dr. J. H. Bull, who resides at Holland Center, in the township It was apparently all right, and ran of Holland, Grey county, was decoyed from his home on the pretence of being wanted to visit a sick woman, and taken about three miles from home, a rug being thrown over his head and fastened there. He was then tied to a tree and beaten most unmercifully by persons who claimed to be friends of his wife, and who asserted that it was done to make a change in his treatment of her, but in the court to-day she displayed the constancy of a true wife to a touching degree, swearing that the doctor had always been good and kind to her, and that their only trouble had been caused by her so-called friends. The result of the proceedings was that James H. Howey and Samuel Lowry, two farmers of Holland township, were committed to stand their trial at the Fall Assizes on the charge of conspiracy, and also on the charge of assault and wounding. The prisoners gave bail for their appearance to the amount of $4,000, themselves in the sum of $1,000, and four sureties, viz., Wm. Norton, Wm. Howey, Jas. Christie and Henry Norton, in the sum of

The Governor-General Offered $50 for the Arrest of the Scoffers. Victoria, B. C., Sept. 5.—Lord Aberdeen, Governor-General of Canada, and the Countess of Aberdeen were members of a distinguished party, which had been attending the water carnival and concert at "The Gorge," a favorite pleasure resort about two miles from here. On returning at night, their launch, the Eileen, landed with a crash on the rocks known as Twin Sisters, about a mile from the city, which flood-tide had enabled them to pass safely on the upward trip. All efforts to extricate the launch proved ineffectual, and a passing boat, laden with pleasure seekers, was hailed for assistance. "Come at once," was the imperative command. "This is the Governor-General's party, and wish to be taken to town." "The deuce you say," was the laughing reply. "Why don't you walk?"

"But it is the Governor-General,"

"Come and take us off immediately. We are fast on the rocks." Another laugh come back over the water, with the vexatious advice to "stay there and keep cool."
But his Excellency did not keep cool and his voice was heard the next to Remove the Insects. Center Moriches, L. I., Sept. 5.-This village is being held up by a swarm of hornets that have a nest in the branches of a tree on one of the main streets. They hold possession of the thoroughfare for more than a block, and Justice George T. Osborne has been asked to take steps to have them taken into custody. Apparently the justice is in as much of a quandary as are the residents of the place. He is anxious to have the pests removed, but so far has been unable to find any one brave enough to undertake the job.

In the meantime the pests go humming about and stinging at their own sweet will. The other day they attacked Miss Louise Benjamin and her cousin, who ventured within the block. The two women were badly stung. Other unwary pedestrians have met with similar receptions. Unless the pests are soon removed, the villagers say they will appeal to the Government to call out the militia.

It is certain that the American husband has an international reputation. "He is good, but stupid," said an English critic; "the men seem to be of secondary importance, and an American woman makes one feel humble and hen-pecked."

One's thoughts fly at once to the gentle, winsome, beloved women of more to the point, on our backs. one's acquaintance, and we are ready to repudiate such a charge with scorn and indignation. Some of our compatriots are responsible for the reputation, however.

That, hitherto, the American men have not regarded themselves as quite reduced to the condition of serfs and slaves is proven by the fact that they rarely marry any but their own country women. The position claimed by the American husband is that of "primus inter pares," where an Englishman assumes to be 'lord and master."

I once read an English novel of which the closing words were: "And now we will take leave of our heroine, sitting at her husband's feet-a loving wife's true position." I made merry over it with a friend, who remarked, "Even an English lover would admit that his position was rather at his sweetheart's feet, if any such attitude were in question. What changes marriage must make! The woman must then deteriorate by association with the man, and her society must elevate him!"

It is the old story of the Arabian woman who naively complained: "Before he was my husband, he kissed the print of my footsteps; now he harnesses me to the plow,"

Mrs. Oliphant, in one of her charming stories claims to have detected a peculiarity in the American woman's mouth. She says: "The mouth of the American woman has a character specially its own-the under lip protruding beyond its fellow by a hair's breadth. It is the result, I suppose, in the young feminine subject, of having things too much her own way."

The child not yet is lulled to rest. Too young a nurse, the slender Night So laxly holds him to her breast That throbs with flight.

A novel pincushion for a young man's room is made of a couple of briarwood pipes, tied together with ribbon, and the bowls stuffed and covered over the top with velvet or satin the color of the ribbon. Into these receptacles the scarf pins are thrust.

A famous Brooklyn clergyman was once addressing a Sabbath school on the lesson of the day, which happened to be "Jacob's Ladder." He got along swimmingly until a little urchin in one of the back seats squeaked out, "Why did the angels have to have a ladder, when they had wings?" After the inevitable laugh had substited, the clergyman said, "Well, that is a fair question; who can answer it?" There was a pause, and then up went a pudgy fist. "Well, my little man" asked the clergyman, "Why was it?" "I guess mebbe they was a moltin'," was the astonishing reply.-Presbyter-

A certain code of manners controls the cyclers of swell society and distinguishes them from the common herd. First, they never call their steed of steel by any other name than the "cycle," the bicycle, wheel and "bike" are words which never pass their patrician lips. Second, they ride in a bolt, upright position, with the chin well elevated, and a certain vere de vere composure which is never allowed to be ruffled by any accidents, no matter how starting. Third, the bell is never rung except upon absolute necessity. Fourth, every article of their apparel harmonizes exquisitely, consequently the rider attracts little or no attention so far as anything outre in costume is concerned. Fifth, the fair devotees never ride unchaperoned, the groom or maid often riding in the rear. -Boston Tribune.

The fashionable world went mad for a year or more on the subject of crepon, and silk seemed to have lost favor forever, but it is impossible for such great popularity to last. Intensity of interest in anything is usually in inverse proportion to the length of time over which it is distributed. Hence we see silk returning to its old place in our hearts, and, what is inch stripes. A Dresden silk with a red figure in it made a pretty concert dress for a distinguished lady who is blessed with a magnificent voice. It is trimmed with red velvet ribbon and duchess lace. The gown that is shown here has a glace taffeta skirt, trimmed at the bottom with two immense bows with long loops. The bodice, like so many others that are worn this summer, is of cream lace. The yoke is of rose-colored silk, edged with sil tabs that resemble flower petals more than anything else. Ribbon forms the collar, and is notted at the back of the neck in an immense bow-a device of which the French are very fond, because it makes the head look small. The sleeves are shirred down a few inches below the shoulder, with a puff at the elbow, headed with loops of ribbon.

LOOK OUT FOR MOTHS.

The Best Means to Protect Furs and Clothing From the Pests. This is the time to put away the heavy furs, for the moth millers are already beginning to fly. People rush about buying all sorts of expensive moth preventives. when they are not of the least use. If furs and clothing are put away with the moth egg in them all the odors in the world, good bad or indifferent, would not keep them from hatching. The time when the eggs are laid and the fatal damage is done is usually before housekeepers think of putting them away at When the warm spring days come the heavy fur coat or jacket is hung up in the closet lest it may be needed again, and perhaps it is worn once or twice and then hung up again, and in the hurry of spring work forgotten until somebody sees moth millers flying about frequently. Then the furs are taken out, smothered in camphor or in something else that is as useless as it is expensive.

In the fall, when the clothes and furs come out, there is weeping and wailing, for the hair flies from the furs, and holes, always in the very worst places to mend, are found in the clothes. Then there is any amount of wondering and "I can't imagine how it happened, for I put them away so carefully and used such a let of moth stuff." The proper way is to lay the heavy clowing in a chest as soon as the use is not daily, and then it can be taken out and worn when the cold days come and extra wraps are needed. When the cold weather is fairly gone, then every separate article should be taken out and hung on the clothes line on a clear day; if there is a wind, so much the better, as the dust will blow away from you as you beat it out. After beating with a light switch of some kind -it should be both tough and elasticbrush the clothes carefully. Never put clothes away with soiled spots upon them; scour them all out first. It is a very good plan to have them all thoroughly mended, for the children's clothes are always needed in a hurry in the fall, and if put away in order it is a great gain in every way. When all the clothes are thoroughly beaten and brushed and care as to the folding. Do not leave them on the line to air, for that is the very time that the moth miller takes to lay her eggs. They are very plentiful outdoors just as soon as the weather becomes mild, and are waiting for a chance to get into the house, and no article of woolen is safe if left out half an hour. Then see that your chests are absolutely tight, that there are no cracks in them anywhere. If there are, paste newspapers over the cracks, wherever they are, and see that there is not even the most infinite small crevice for the moth miller to enter, for if there is one she will find it. Wrap up each article separately, either in old sheets or in old towels or in papers. See that all are scrupulously and absolutely clean. Pack them in with care, so that they will not be crushed or wrinkled, and spread a sheet over the top and tuck it in closely all over the things. Close your chest, and if you are sure that you will not need to open it during the warm season paste paper over the edge of the cover. But if it closes tightly there will be no danger from moths.

Odds and Ends.

Every particle of soup and gravy should be saved in clean cups, as a small quanity of either adds a great deal to many little dishes.

A small, stiff, cheap handbrush will be found very convenient in the kitchen for cleaning potatoes, turnips, beets, or any vegetable to which the earth adheres.

The fat in which doughnuts, fritters, etc., have been fried, can be used several times by careful straining and setting away in a stone jar. A good plan, when with pared peaches in halves or the store in then strain.

Men, Women, and Things.

Mrs. Humphry Ward, in a paper in the current Idler on "Woman on Wheels," confesses to a prejudice against bifurcated garments, but thinks, however, that the time is not far distant when the skirt will be the exception rather than the rule. One of Mrs. Ward's reasons is that some kind of sliding seat is on the eve of invention, or has been invented, that is going to revolutionize cycling, and this cannot be used with a skirt.

Many physicians, according to a lecturer on dietetics, are ordering thin bread and butter for delicate patients, especially those suffering from dyspepsia, consun.; .ion, and anaemia, or any who need to take on flesh. This thin bread and butter insensibly induces persons to eat much more butter than they have any idea of. It is extraordinary, says the lecturer, how short a way a pat of fresh butter will go if spread on a number of thin slices of bread. This is one advantage, and a great one, in the feeding of invalids, for they are thereby provided with an excellent form of the fat which is so essential for their nutrition, in a way that lures them on to take it without rebellion. But the thin bread and butter has another advantage equality ally great—it is very digestible and easily assimilated. Fresh butter made from cream is very much more digestible when spread upon thin slices of bread than the same amount of cream eaten as cream, per se, would be.

An embarrassed best man at a recent wedding offered the groom at the critical moment a cigar instead of the ring.

. . . . How did trade ever begin? Think of the difficulties of bringing the buyer and the seller in communication, and in the primitive period there were no brokers. "When the historian talks of trade," says a writer in Macmillan's Magazine, "he conceives it on a large scale, as an affair of ships and caravans, and neglects its humbler origin." To swap, to barter, to exchange one commodity for another, say three arrow-heads or stone knives for a stone hammer, must have been the begin-ning of business. Then very much later started the man who must have been the middleman, and then something like a fixed standard of value was invented, and the peddler had his raison d'etre. Division of labor is one of the concomitants of industrial progress. There must be the makers and the sellers. You never can do away with the middleman, for then comes distribution. If, as the writer in Mac-millan presents it, later on by the increase of peddlers fairs were instituted and to supply fairs there were great merchants, and ships were built or caravans organized, nevertheless the functions of the peddler were always in demand. With imperfect methods of transportation, in the early period, it was the peddler who, with his pack, worked his way on foot into the interior of the country. "Itinerant distribution" must have taken place in the prehistoric time.

A society girl, one of whose great attractions is a soft little musical laugh, entertained an interested group lately with an account of how that prominent charm of hers was acquired. 'Very few persons have, as you all know." said she, "an agreeable laugh. I had simply nothing that could be called such in my possession. The lack made me seem grim and too far from merry to be a successful companion. So I took lessons of an actor and learned the mechanism of forced laughter. This I practiced, and improved by myself until I had the art to perfection, and it became second nature. It cost me $50 to buy my laugh, but I wouldn't part with it for many thousands. You can't guess what a boon it is when the social atmosphere is full of ancient Joe Millerisms.

"That is my luck penny," a great many intelligent people will tell you, showing you a piece of silver money in their portemonnaie. The luck penny is the most venerable of all superstitions and the commonest. It has more to do with the metal than with money. In Normandy, according to Melusine a bit of steel does the business. In Montenegro no cow can give milk or be safe against sorcery, without some quicksilver. In Brittany, a piece of small money is held in the hand for luck. In the dairy business, to make the butter come, as much as of. in silver must be hidden somewhere. In Bohemia, a small piece of money must be carried in the right stocking. A piece of money has great advantages providing it has a hole pierced through it, and this may account for much mutilated coin. In middle Italy, the piece of money with a hole through it is a sure preventive against the evil eye. We have all seen those Chinese swords, made of brass coins, which bring luck. There are, however, certain pieces of money of old date, which are worn in Hungary and in cleansed, fold each article separately, with Spain, to which peculiar and singular virtues are attached. In Soudan, a true and original piece of money of the time of Maria Theresa, is worth more than its weight in gold, because of the good luck which it is supposed bring. The crooked sixpence! We all know how really valuable it is even outside of Scotland:

ALARMING DEVELOPMENTS IN THE EAST.

Is the dismemberment of Turkeythe long-threatened dispatch of the Moslem power, "bag and baggage," from Europe-at hand? It almost seems so from the present aspect of affairs. In the past, when the subjects of the Sultan were guilty of outrages on the Christian population unworthy of a civilized nation, the Turk carefully set to work to get the Christian powers of Europe quarreling among themselves. It has been a comparatively easy thing to arouse international jealousies, and thus postpone those reforms which are necessary to the security of the life and property of that section of the people with whom Europeans naturally have strong sympathles. Even the present British Premier journeyed to Berlin, on one occasion, to shield the Sultan from the full penalty of his defeat. But the recurring atrocities which are traced to Turkish savagery, and the failure to reform after many promises, have even Lord Salisbury view that no ordinary promises of amendment can again be acceptable, and that the strongest possible security for good behavior in the future must be provided, under the supervision of the powers, or the Turkish empire must be dissolved. This attitude has the backing of France and Russia, as in Great Britain.

Premier Salisbury's declaration in the House of Lords, the other day, was unequivocal. His admonitions to the Sultan was even more menacing Gladstone's utterances at Chester, and were, perhaps, the strongest ever addressed by a British Prime Minister to a foreign power. In reply to the well-founded plea that the appointment of a Christian governor over the eastern provinces of Anatolia would impair the independence of the Porte, Lord Salisbury bade the Sultan remember that his so-called independence was of a peculiar kind, resting as it did solely on the agreement of the Christian powers. The powers, he continued, had come to feel that there was a danger lest, in giving an artificial stability to Turkey, "they should be upholding a mechanism which did not work for human happiness and progress." Lord Salisbury admitted that it seemed to him more doubtful than it did sixteen years ago how long the present state of things in the Turkish dominion would be suffered to "If." he said, "for generation after generation cries of misery come up from various parts of the Turkish empire. I am sure the Sultan cannot blind himself to the probability that Europe will at some time or other become weary of the appeals that are made to it, whereupon the factitious strength that is given to his empire will fail lit." This was sufficiently explicit and alarming, yet still more eminous were the concluding words of the Prime Minister. "The Sultan," he said, "will make a grave and calamitcus mistake if, for the sake of maintaining a mere formal independence, for the sake of resisting a possible encroachment on his nominal prerogatives, he refuses to accept the assistance and to listen to the advice of the European powers in extirpating from his dominions an anarchy and weakness which no treaties and no sympathy will prevent from being fatal in the long run to the empire over which he rules."

The Sultan may well regard, this etatement, further emphasized as it is by the attitude of Lord Salisbury towards the Turkish ambassador, in the interview in London yesterday, as nothing short of the knell of doom. The Turkish ruler is indeed between the devil and the deep sea. If, in obedience to the joint demand of England, France and Russia, he is compelled to renounce the policy of exterminating the Christians of Armenia, and to place the provinces under the control of a Christian governor, his troubles will but begin. The process of disruption thus begun cannot be shecked. In Thrace, in Macedonia, in Crete, and in the isles of the Aegian, wherever in Turkey there are compact bodies of Christians, the signal will be given that the long delayed hour for emancipation from the hated infidel has arrived. Would it be possible to refuse to these Christians, in their extremity, the same freedom to live and to worship in security as is decreed for their fellow-citizens in Armenia?

To the Sultan all this must be apthe great powers who are prodding of argument will astonish no one.

him up to some sense of right-doing see what is coming. But have they calculated on what must follow the emasculation of Turkey? There will be stirring times if the Moslem, after hundreds of years domination, is finally driven out of power at Constantinople. When his territory comes to be apportioned among the land-hungry powers, can the great "divide" take place without resort to war?

HOW POISON IS DEVELOPED. It is stated that in recent cases of poisoning from eating canned goods, the symptoms only developed after those seized had partaken of salmon or beef which had been permitted to remain in a can for some hours after it was opened. Herein lies the great danger. When a can is opened, its contents should be at once removed, and should be placed in an earthenware or glass dish until such time as required for consumption. It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that if canned fish, beef or other product is exposed in the can for any length of time after it has been opened, the action of the air sets at work certain chemical agencies that develop poison, and render it most dangerous for anyone to partake of the contents. This fact cannot be too widely known. When canned goods are marketed in cans absolutely airtight, as all good brands are, and when the contents are wholly removed so soon as the can is opened, the danger is averted.

One has to go far from home for news at times. Lieutenant-Governor Mackintosh of the Northwest Territeries told the Legislature assembled in Regina, the other day, that the Ottawa authorities have resolved to give distinctive names to the several regions of the vast unorganized territory that composes so much of the larger portion of the Dominion. The region adjacent to Alaska will be named Yukon, and to the east embracing all the territory to the Atlantic there will be the districts of Franklin, Churchill and Ungava. Is Labrador to drop out as a territorial name?

THE TANNERIES IN EVIDENCE. The latest discovery of the graspers at straws is that the tanneries only exist because of the "N. P." This will be news to the old residents of Ontario, who have known of tanneries being successfully conducted by enterprising Canadians long before the high tax system was devised as a means of misleading the electorate. The tanning business, like carriage and wagon building, agricultural implement manufacturing, stove-making, engine building, biscuit and confectionery manufacturing, prospered in this country under a revenue tariff, and would remain prosperous under like conditions, if reestablished. In London tanning has been a staple industry for 50 years, the father of Mr. Hyman, M.P., having established it.

It is a foolish thing to adduce the tanning business as an "N. P." infant; but it shows at what straws of comfort the advocates of the monopoly rule grasp when in extremity.

The following is the unique but incendiary notice which was the signal for the outbreak against the Canadian and other missionaries in the city of Chentu:

"Notice is hereby given that, at present, foreign barbarians are hiring evil characters to steal small children that they may extract oil from them for their use. I have a female servant named Li who has personally seen this done. I therefore exhort you good people not to allow your children to go out. I hope you will act in accordance with this."

This large placard was posted up all over the city. The flimsy lie was not signed, but it had the intended effect. The next day a mob numbering thousands collected and first gave their attention to the finest missionary property in the city, that of the Canadian Methodist Mission, and the whole of it, including the hospital, was first looted and then torn down. The property of the two other Protestant societies and the Roman Catholies was next given over to complete destruction. The missionaries appealed to the magistrate of the city, but he told them he was powerless to help them. With the aid of some friendly natives they left the city that night and effected their escape.

MR. HOWLAND'S LATEST IDEA. O. A. Howland, the Toronto barrister, who came here to help to elect Mr. Essery, the Conservative candidate in the last election, now asserts that only a lawyer can be a statesman. What of Gladstone, of Disraeli, of Rosebery, of Salisbury, of John Morley, of Lord Aberdeen, and of hundreds of other leaders in British statesmanship? Our own country has produced statesmen who were not lawyers, or such men THE BIG FOUR as Alexander Mackenzie, the stonemason, and George Brown, the printer, would not have been successful moulders of public opinion It would be foolish to contend that because a man is a lawyer, he cannot take front rank as a statesman; but it would be equally futile to argue that the man who is a lawyer can alone be a statesman. But after Mr. Howland's remarkable pilgrimage to this city, and his extraorperent. Hence his frantic attempts to dinary contentions on the Opera House ad off or postpone action. No doubt | platform, we are sure his present line

OIL IN THE NORTHWEST.

Lieut.-Gov. Mackintosh, of the Northwest Territories, as a native of this city, which was the pioneer in the development of the oil industry of Canada, has been much interested in the search for petroleum in the Athabasca region. In his recent speech to the Legislature, however, Mr. Mackintosh does not present a very roseate view of the future prospects of oil development in the Northwest region. He

"The coal oil tests being made at Athabasca Landing, are still in the experimental stage, and it is far from likely that any definite results will be announced for some months, as there yet remain six or seven hundred feet to be bored, or a depth of two thousand feet reached. Dr. Dawson left this week for Athabasca with the object of expediting work. At present the character of the shale beds encountered, causes a great deal of delay, and may eventually necessitate the abandonment of the present site and the sinking of another shaft. The concensus of expert opinion is that petroleum wells will be discovered in the neighborhood, whether or not in paying quantities, it would be premature to express an opinion."

As there are indications of on at other points on this great river, if the tests are unsuccessful at the Landing, borings will be made elsewhere. It would be a fine thing for the Northwest if an oil region could be established there, but many old oil men in this district have their doubts.

THE HISTORY OF A WEEK.

What is a good newspaper but a review of the most important events just transpired? Such is the "Western Advertiser," our big sixteen-page weekly edition, and this week's issue is replete with concise reports of the doings and sayings all the world over. Besides all the news there is a large amount of the usual entertaining reading, stories, etc.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE NORTH-WEST.

to his paper, says: "It is not my purpose to speculate as to the issue of the next contest. No one here who speaks with candor will deny that public sentiment is running against the Ottawa Administration, and a common opinion is that if the railway adheres to its determination to keep out of politics and the presence of the Patrons does divide the free trade forces protection will hardly carry a seat in Manitoba, and that at least two o the Northwest constituencies will pronounce against the old policy of taxation. The visit of Mr. Laurier and his associates had a marked effect on public opinion in the west. As a result the Liberal leaders and the Liberal policy are better understood, prejudices have been softened and confidence established. In many of the western towns there is now an active fighting organization, where a few years ago a Liberal would not speak above his breath, and in not a few cases Conservatives have openly withdrawn from their old party alliances. The west needs new men and new methods at the seat of government, a new inspiration to progress, an open way to prosperity. In freedom of trade is the best hope of Western Canada."

THURSDAY MORNING. Just as the debate at this morning's session of the Trades and Labor Congress had taken a very interesting turn on the question of representation at the congress of the executive of the Patrons of Industry an adjournment was made in order to allow the delegates to enjoy the carriage drive about the city, which rain had interfered with yesterday. Tonight the delegates will be banquetted at the City Hotel, and the election of officers has been made the first order of business for tomorow morning. The following telegram was received this morning from the Patrons of Industry: "P. J. Jobin, President Trades and Labor Congress of Canada,-We regret that in consequence of no meeting of our executive being held after receiving the circular of invitation to be represented at your congress until after the date of its meeting, it was impossible that delegates should be sent this year. We, however, appreciate very highly the fraternal feeling which prompted the invitation, and will endeavor to take such action as will insure the presence of our representatives in future. We wish you a most harmonious meeting and continued success. C. A. MALLORY, L. A. WELCH."

The communication was on motion received. The question of proposed change of constitution was then taken up with the reading of the report of the special committee dealing with the matter. The first clause, which recommended that the name of the congress be changed to "Canadian Federation of Labor," evoked much discussion.

Delegate Darlington urged change, which, he said, would make the body a national one, instead of being representative of only a few different bodies. Delegate O'Donoghue, while not opposing the change very strongly, advised the congress not to change its name too often for fear of losing its Finally, on motion of Mr. O'Donoghue, the question of name was allowed to stand until the other clauses were con-

The following clauses were adopted with very little discussion: "Its object shall be to unite all the labor organizations of the Dominion, so as to secure the repeal of existing laws, the enactment of new laws or amendments to the existing statutes in the interest of wage-earners, to formulate and discuss all subjects pertinent to the cause of labor, and to fur-ther, by every honorable means, the welfare of the working classes. "It shall form organizations in localities where none at present exist, either into local unions or assemblies of the Knights of Labor, but in no case shall any body of workingmen belonging to any trade or calling at present having an international or national union be granted a charter. In the event of the formation of an international or national union of the trade being formed, it will be the duty of the proper officers of the cong see that the said union becomes a member of said international or national union "Unions so organized by the congress shall be known as 'Federal Labor Unions,' and shall hold regular meetings at least once a month for the purpose of strengthening and advancing the labor movement. The fee for charter shall be $5."

This clause raised a warm discussion: The congress shall be composed of delegates duly elected and accredited from trade councils, central labor unions, trades unions, federal unions, and district and local assemblies of the Knights of Labor, and the executive of the Patrons of Industry in the Dominion of Canada."

Delegate St. Pierre, Ottawa, moved in amendment that the Socialist labor party and the Industrial Brotherhood be admitted by representation at the congress. Also that the Patrons of Industry be debarred. Joseph T. Marks, London, seconded, Continuing, Mr. St. Pierre held that it was ridiculous to admit the Patrons to the congress. They were against the interests of the working classes and were only dissatisfied politicians. At this point Mr. Marks withdrew support from the amendment, which he had seconded without knowthat it was derogatory to the Patrons. He spoke very highly of the stand taken by the Patrons in the political affairs of the country.

H. B. Ashplant, London, seconded the amendment in place of Mr. Marks. Charles Marsh, Toronto, defended the Patrons for their independent stand, and Delegate Beales, of Toronto, criticised Mr. St. Pierre very sharply for having attacked the Patrons. D. A. Carey, Toronto, also defended the Patrons and said that they could teach the Labor party a lesson when it came to marking their ballots. 'Is their cause our cause?" asked Mr. St. Pierre. Mr. Carey-Yes; the cause of humanity is our cause, and the cause of humanity is their cause as well as it is (Applause.) At this point the carriages were announced, and the delegates left for their drive around the city.

DIED FROM FRIGHT.

A Child Is Shaken by a Dog and Death

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 5.—Charles S. Bottomley's 3 year old daughter Elsie was teasing her father's bird dog eight days ago, and the dog became angry and sprang at her. He evidently did not intend to injure the child, but simply seized her by the dress at the back of the neck and shook her rigorously. The little girl's cries of alarm rought her mother, and when the child was released it was found that the was apparently uninjured. She had been badly frightened, and the shock brought on an attack of nervous prostration. This was followed by convulsions, and yesterday the child erdered the police to fire, and the com-mand was obeyed. Ten Mohammedans that her death was due to the fright she

MINISTER DRYDEN'S TRIP.

About the Ontario Experimental Farm in Algoma.

Fine Agricultural Section Being Developed-Next; Year's Work.

Toronto, Sept. 5 .- Hon. John Dryden, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, returned yesterday morning from a visit of inspection to the new experimental dairy farm recently established by the Provincial Government in West Algoma, on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Dryden is personally much improved in health by his trip. He is an untiring worker, and the close and assiduous attention which he had paid to the duties of his position in the earlier part of the summer pulled him down in health, so that he really needed a change in order to recuperate. He has come back bronzed in feature, and with renewed vigor, and is enthusiastic in his praises of the northwestern climate and of the health-giving properties of Lake Superior air. While away he enjoyed a short period of camping and fishing at St. Ignace, and had some good sport. His chief interest, however, was centered in the progress made on the dairy farm, and of this he spoke most hopefully. "What has been done this year, Mr. Dryden?" asked the reporter.

The farm has so far turned out as well as, and even better than I expected," replied the Minister. "Of course nothing much has been acomplished in the way of crops, though what we have sowed have turned out very well, as you can see by this," and he picked up a fine-looking sheaf of barley which he had himself cut from the field. good deal of plowing has been done; a substantial log-house has also been erected; and while I was there I located the side of our barn and let the contact for the work on it. The work has so far been to a great extent of a preliminary nature, but we are now in good shape to go ahead with more extensive operations next year." "What do you intend doing during next season?" "We will keep on breaking land and getting it tilled this fall, and by the spring we will have forty of fifty acres ready to put under crop in hay, oats, barley and wheat. We will also send up some head of cattle this fall, and will put in a crop of fall wheat for next year. We tried a crop of corn this season, but it was spoilt by the wet weather, and so, to a large extent, were the potatoes. The quality of the soil in the district has been quite a surprise to those who have seen it. Mr. Sivens, a surveyor, who is working on the second concession line, about two miles north of the Government property, said to me that he had not for years seen

I began using Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, feeding it to him and rubbing it into his body. He began to fatten and is now a beautiful dimpled boy. The Emulsion seemed to supply the one thing needful.

Mr. Dryden showed the reporter a sheaf of timothy, sown on May 20, and cut by himself on Aug. 14. It was over two feet nine inches in length, well filled, and in every respect good-looking. Judging from the impressions gained by the Minister of Agriculture during his visit, there is every reason to believe that the work so far done has been in every respect satisfactory, and that the farm will do a great deal of good by illustrating in a practical manner the resources of a portion of the Province which has in the past been too little known.

Tacoma. Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 5.—The mountain climbers, who have returned from Mount Tacoma, report steam, smoke and gas belching from the foot of the Nisqually glacier, where the Nisqually River has its source. They are much alarmed by the strange phenomenon. At the rim of the crater, southeast of Columbia Crest, the ground is quite warm, notwithstanding the Arctic atmosphere of the summit. Steam comes out of the crater at this particular point more freely than at any other PERILS OF BALLOONING. Blanchester, O., Sept. 5.—The thousands of persons at the fair yesterday missed the best part of the balloon ascension. Prof. Tolbe t, the aeronaut, had a narrow escape from being gored by a bull in the field in which he descended with his parachute. The beast descried his red tights and the parachute before he reached the ground. As soon as the professor alighted the bull charged him. Tolbert flew for his life and scrambled over the fence just in time to escape the horns of the bull.

Detective Rider, who was looking for a stolen horse from the country, came across Brande-burg's outfit, but it did not answer the description. Detective Nickle also inspected the animal, and thought he recognized it as Ald. Dreaney's. His opinion was confirmed and the horse returned to its owner. Brandeburg was locked up. UNHAPPY TORONTO.

Her Citizens Will Have to Drink Diluted Sewage

For Months-A Break in the Water Pipe.

Toronto, Sept. 5.-The conduit pipe across the bay went all to pieces this morning, and the citizens of Toronto will have nothing now but dilated sewage drawn from the middle of the bay delivered through the city mains for months to come. The pipe is in a much worse condition than when it rose in the winter of 1892. It began to come to the surface in Blockhouse Bay about 8 o'clock this morning, and from that hour till 9:30 it kept rising in sections. At the hour stated 200 feet of the pipe rose to the surface directly opposite Hanlan's Point, where the water is very low and particularly foul.

The cause of the accident is not yet determined, but it is supposed to have been due to air getting into the pipe in consequence of the low water.

The water is only about half pressure all over the city, and the health officer has notified the public of the necessity of boiling all water intended for domestic use. The opinion largely prevails that this will necessitate prompt and radical action being taken in improving the waterworks system.

UNCLE SAM WILL TRY HIM. Holmes Will Be First Tried in Philadelphia for the Murder of Pietzel.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 5.-H. H. Holmes, the multi-murderer, will be placed on trial here shortly for the murder of Benj. F. Pietzel, the father of the two little girls, whom Holmes is alleged to have murdered in a St. Vincent street cottage in Toronto. In the event of a failure to convict Holmes in Philadelphia, he will be handed over to the Indianapolis authorities, and will only be brought to Canada after all attempts to convict him in the United States of a capital offense have proved abortive. The Philadelphia district attorney will today lay an indictment against Holmes, charging him with Benj. Pietzel's murder. The evidence against Holmes, is, it is said, even more substantial than is generally believed, and important disclosures are expected when the case comes up for trial.

The most simple inventions are frequently the simplest. The father of the famous Sir Robert Peel was a cotton spinner, in a comparatively small way, until he went straight ahead of all his competitors. The earliest cotton spinning machinery gave serious trouble through filaments of cotton adhering to the bobbins, thus involving frequent stoppage to clear the machinery. The wages of the operatives were affected by these delays, but it was noticed that one man in the works always drew full pay. His loom never stopped. "The onlooker tells me your bobbins are always clean," said Mr. Peel to him one day.

"Ay, they be," said the man, whose name was Dick Ferguson.

"How do you manage it, Dick?"

"Why, you see, Mester Peel, it's sont o' secret! If I towd you, you'd be as Canada Southern Division-Going Wes wise as I am."
"That's so," said Peel, smiling in response to Dick's knowing chuckle. "I'd give you something to know. Could you make all the looms work as smoothly as yours?" "Ivery one of 'em, mester." "Well, what shall I give you for your secret, Dick?"

The man smiled and rubbed his chin. "Well, Dick, what is it to be?"
"Come, I'll tell thee," was the reas I'm in the mills, and I'll tell thee all about it.' "Agreed," said the master.

"Well, then," returned Dick, beckoning to Mr. Peel to come close and let him whisper in his ear, "chalk your bobbins." That was the entire secret. Machinery was soon invented for chalking the

The Secret Out.

Cold as stone, and with a heart like lead, Dr. Cameron stepped by her and approached the bed. Good God! was this the same man he had parted from yesterday? He could not believe his eyes, he could not believe his understanding. He stared at the poor, ollow-eyed, delirious creature before him, and had neither words nor thoughts. He was only conscious of hopes that went down, down, down. "It is a bad case of acute pneu-monia," whispered a soft voice in his ear. "If he rallies again it will be only for a few minutes; nothing short his own skill could save him, and that he will never be able to exercise again. Don't you agree with me, sir? His pulse is so and so, and his tem-

If answer was expected it aid not come; Dr. Cameron did not even know who spoke to him.
"Julius?" he whispered, "Junus, do you not know me, Walter Cameron?" But the wild, feverish eyes had no understanding in them, and neither turned nor softened at this passionate appeal. Frantically the doctor rose to his feet and approached the inspec-

"He is slipping from us," he cried, "and we shall never know what secret he conceals in that heart of his. Will you stay with me till this belief becomes certainty, or can you trust me to watch by his side alone?"

"Gryce is here," answered the inspec-"He has been with him, I believe, all night. He will stay with you."

The doctor hastened at once to the telephone. Having been put in com-munication with his own home, he asked for news, and receiving answer that his wife's condition remained unchanged, gave orders that he was to be informed if she showed any signs of returning consciousness. Then he went back to Molesworth's side.

"He does not know you," whispered Mrs. Olney, "and yet he seems quieter since you came in. Hark! there he is calling your name again." And sure enough, a piteous "Walter! Walter Cameron!" broke that moment from the sick man's lips, and going to the heart of the watcher, brought the tears to those stern eyes, which all his own woes had not been able to call and thus, for a couple of hours, when without warning there came a change, and the dying man looking up, knew Cameron, and breathed a soft sigh that sounded so natural that the latter took heart, and bending over him, said: "You have something to tell me, Julius, It will take but one breath and will make me your debtor forever. Which sister did I marry?. Answer me that, dear friend, and I will ask you nothing more." And for a moment, it seemed as if the sick man would answer, for he cpened his links and enddavored to speak, but failed.

"O God! O God!" cried Dr. Cameron, in despair; "must I see him die with that one word unsaid? Jullus, Julius, you can lift your hand. If it is Genevieve Gretorex who is now my wife, raise your right hand." It did not move.

"If it is Mildred Farrey, raise up

That did not move. "Cannot you tell me," pursued Cameron, wildly, "or will you not? You say you love me, show it now. Your right hand, Molesworth, or your left, Gene-vieve or Mildred, which is it?"

But though a strange, yearning look came into the dying man's face, he did not stir; and the doctor seeing it desisted from his efforts and put as it were all selfish thoughts away from between them, and bending down, reverently kissed the forehead, damp now with the dews of death.

A thrill that seemed to have nothing but happiness in it passed through the outstretched form. The hand he had refused to move passed slowly towards Walter, and gave it one earnest pressure, then the deep, unreadable eyes faintly closed as it were forever, when Dr. Cameron, stooping nearer, murmured in his ear:

"Bridget Halloran walked the length of the ward for the first time today, and you have received the credit." Instantly a smile shone out on those pale lips, and the eyes opened again with a look that Dr. Cameron was in vain trying to read, when a well-known voice murmured slowly and solemnly in

"It is all over, doctor; we must find some other way of getting at the truth you want."

CHAPTER XL.

"Some other way? what other way?" A little time had passed, and Dr. Cameron stood in the parlor alone with Gryce.

The detective meditated. He had passed his prime, but he was the great Gryce yet. How should he find his way out of this difficulty? cannot wait," pursued the doctor, the slow process of comparison and investigation. I must know at once and without a doubt whom I have been cherishing in my bosom.' "And we," subjoined the other, "must also know." And his tone became curt and business like. "What was the last word from your home?" he asked. hat my wife had moved again, but

What is this? Have we not left Mrs. Olney's and have we not returned to Dr. Cameron's house and entered Mrs. Cameron's room? Yes, but something has occurred here—changes have taken place, unaccountable changes to one who has not the clew to the situation. For while the walls, the ceiling, the fire-place, and doors, are those we have been accustomed to see in Mrs. Cameron's apartment, the carpet which has been laid between the window and the bed, the curtains which shut off the light, and made a semi-darkness in the room, even the bed with its coverlets and pillows are not only different from those in use here before, but are so strangely out of keeping with the general furnishing of this house of dainty appointments that we are dazed, and do not know what to make of it all till we suddenly recognize a picture that has displaced an exquisite madonna on the wall directly opposite the bed, and perceive that we have the surroundings and almost the look of that room in Mrs. Olney's house which we have been told was the one which had formerly held Mrs. Farley and her daughter. The illusion is so complete, owing to the use of a screen which has been placed at the side of the bed in a way to cut off a view of the fire-place and such portions of the room as were out of harmony with this idea, that we are not at all astonished to see Mildred's little stand, with her favorite books and knickenacks upon it, and close by, with her plain, benevolent face turned toward the silent form still stretched in its old quietude on the changed bed, the figure of Mrs. Olney herself, gazing with watchful eye and eager interest at the countenance which to all glances but her own, looks out of place upon these coarse pillows, and amid belongings so poor and common.

For in the dimness made by the curtains and the fast-approaching nightfall, two other forms can be faintly seen, waiting, as all things in the world seem to wait at such a moment, for the renewed stir in those quiescent limbs and fallen eyelids, which would tell of life returned to this long un-conscious body. They were those of Dr. Cameron and Mr. Gryce, and it would be hard to tell which countenance betrayed the most intent interest, though there would have been no ifficulty in determining which had husband's anxiety at heart and which the detective's. The hour was 6. and the silence something appalling. In it you could hear but one soundthe beating of the doctor's heart. "You said that the powder you gave her would lose its effect in 40 min-utes," whispered Mr. Gryce, in the ear of his companion, as he quietly replaced the watch he had just consulted. "Those minutes are up, sir." A long drawn sigh answered him.

It came not from the doctor who had imply shivered, but from the bed. Mrs. Olney leaned forward till her lips almost touched the sick woman's forehead, and the word she uttered was: "Mildred?"

The beating of Dr. Cameron's heart stopped, he strained his ears for the answer or exclamation which was to

"Mildred?" Mrs. Olney again breath-"Oh!" came in a soft, lingering note from the bed; then two dark eyes suddenly unclosed, and fixing themselves upon the face bent over them, slowly smiled, as much as to say, "I am here." But in another instant a shudder went through that exhausted frame, and those two eyes, wild now, and unutterably searching, flew from object to object about her, then back to Mrs. Olney, who, perfect in her lesson, gave her an affectionate look, and remarked quietly, "You have been ill, dear, very ill."

At which Mrs. Cameron looked again at the bed, then at the little faded shawl which had been pinned about her shoulders, and lastly at her hands, from which all her rings had been taken, and cried in sudden anguish: "Is it a dream, then? Is there no Genevieve, no Walter, and am I only

Mildred Farley?" The sound of a step, the smell of some ungent odor about the bed-head, and Mrs. Olney found it unnecessary to answer: unconsciousness had settled again upon the partially awakened

HUDSON BAY PROBLEM.

Is This Canadian Route to Europe

the sisters you have under your roof | Two Opposing Views Which Will be Read With Interest.

> The scheme for the opening-up of a new route from British North America to Europs via Hudson Bay and Straits, by means of a line of steamers to ply between Liverpool and other English ports to Churchill, on the northwest coast of the Bay, and the construction of a line of railway from that port to a point in the interior of the country, that will command the transport trade not merely of the province of Manitoba, but also of the extensive and fertile northwest territories of Assiniboia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Athabasca, and possibly a large share of the trade of Minnesota and Dakota, is enthusiastically advocated by Mr. Duncan Macarthur in The Westminster Review for August. Mr. Macarthur says that it will readily be understood that this scheme must have opponents both in Eastern Canada and in the United States, inasmuch as it will be a formidable competitor for the carrying trade of a large tion of the vast interior of the North American continent, against the St. Lawrence route on the one hand and the American water system of transport on the other, but that the objections of such opponents as to the uncertainty of navigation in the Straits and the shortness of the season of open water are not defensible. closing his argument, Mr. Macarthur quotes the following anonymous poem, which he says contains sentiments that are "echoed and re-echoed by almost everyone in the great Canadian Northwest":

'Open the Bay, which Hudson-doubly crowned By fame-to science and to history gave, This was his limit—this his utmost

This old scheme of a northern outlet to Europe has been revived by the voting of a bonus by the Dominion Par-liament for the first section of the railway to the Bay. A contributor to the New York Observer—a well-known American who was for many years United States consul at Winnipeg, and who is familiar with the whole region in question-thinks that the scheme is impracticable. He writes as follows:

"Up to the Saskachewan, a distance 300 miles, the route through a fairly arable country, but from thence to the bay the region is largely a wilderness of rocks and swamps, unfit for settlement and incapable of contributing any local traffic to the maintenance of the road. While not a favorable region for railway construction, lying far to the north and remote from civilization, the surveys made a decade ago show it to be entirely feasible, with no formidable engineering difficulties to be overcome. The chief obstacle to the success of the project lies in the water section of the route, that is, in the apparent impossibility of securing a reliable outlet from Hudson Bay to the sea, the bay itself being, in a greater or less degree, open to navigation all the year round. It is claimed that if an open channel through Hudson Strait can be secured for five months in the year, the route will prove a paying one, but testimony thus far seems to show that navigation for specially constructed ships can only be depended on during four months, and for ordinary steamers only three months in the year. The expedition sent out by the Dominion Government in 1884 to test the practicability of an outlet from the bay to the Atlantic, reported that the bay is never safe, owing to fogs, ice, snowstorms, etc., and that the straits cannot be navigated at all for more than four months in the year; a report confirmed by the Hudson Bay Company, which for two centuries has sent vessels into the bay. Lieut. Gorringe, who, in 1881, investigated the region on behalf of the Northern Railway, pronounced any successful traffic by the route wholly impracticable, fogs and ice barely leaving an average of six weeks for safe navigation, and even this period varies greatly with the season. Admitting, however, that three and a half months could be relied on, there are other difficulties serving to diminish the value of the route, notably the fact that one year's crop could not be moved until the next year, outlet through the strait only being possible from July to October, and that as steamships could only make two or three round trips, the large fleet engaged would have no employment during most of the year. The chief advantage presented by the route, and that which is expected to draw trade

A NEW CAT THEORY.

Grace Greenwood, who was famous as a story and sketch writer as long ago as I can remember, is spending the summer with a niece at Hastings-onthe-Hudson. She must be 70 by this time, but she still keeps up her literary work, and is a very original and interesting character. She firmly be-lieves that cats and dogs see spirits. She says that in the old paintings of the "Nativity" St. Ann's dog is always shown with an expression on his canine countenance that plainly indicates that he sees the group of angels in the air, whereas the people in the picture are evidently wholly unaware of any such supernatural presence. We all how dogs howl about a house in which someone is dying, but I never heard the theory extended to cats. Grace Greenwood has a favorite old tabby, which she is sure possesses the gift of dairyoyant vision. PROTECTION FOR POLICEMEN. The Montreal policemen will find themselves well equipped this year for facing the raw, damp air and chilling winds of the autumn season, in which they must needs be out. Their uniforms are to be lined all through the body and sleeves with Fibre Chamois, an interlining which is warranted to be absolutely wind proof and impenetrable to the cold, while its light weight and porous nature, which will absorb the natural moisture, makes it far more healthful than anything else which could furnish the same amount of warmth.

The use of Fibre Chamois to add warmth to clothing is an innovation which will be greatly appreciated by every man, woman and child, and especially by those who follow out-door pursuits in the cold weather.

Kindness will soften the heart of the most obdurate, if patiently persevered in. Even an enemy may be won over by oft-repeated acts and words of real sympathy and love. Our own happiness greatly depends upon our endeavvors to promote the happiness of others.

If clergymen, lawyers, scholars, merchants, or any one with over-worked and tired brain would use Dr. Story's Five-Minute Headache Cure they would be relieved wonderfully. It builds up the nerve centers, cures sleeplessness, headache, backache, sideache, neuralgia. It will cheer up strengthen and cure poor tired woman quicker than anything in the world.
