ROGERS TRIES TO ROUGH HOUSE

Parliament Has Now Been in Continuous Session For Seventy-Two Hours.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, March 6.-The Liberals have kept the Union Jack flying over the parliament buildings for 72 hours. At 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Monday sitting of Canada's Parliament completed its third day of continuous sitting. It is evident now that the struggle is bound to end in election or closure. The Government within a few weeks must make a choice between these two alternatives. It has been demonstrated that the Opposition is easily able to continue speaking indefinitely and to the point.

[Canadian Press.]

Cologne, Germany, March 5.- The new derman military bill will add 84,000 reruits to the annual contingent called up for service in the army, according to the well-informed Volks Zeitung. The total strength of the peace footing of the army will thus be increased by 168,000 men, bringing it up to 806,000, excluding of-

HE strife for the ideal in dress. When fashions come and go so rapidly it's hard to know which star to follow, yet go so rapidly it's hard to know which star to follow, yet you must have some guide to lead you to perfection. Our part in helping you in this is in bringing to you, as they appear, the work of the best artists in women's dress of all the countries, and show it in the ever-changing exhibits of the ready-to-wear salons. We are asked, Show me a dress for the lakeside, a gown for the races, a wrap for the steamer; will this be new at Old Orchard Beach? or, what shall I wear in New York?

It does seem a little far ahead of the day for you to choose the gown that is to be worn, but the properly costumed women who will be seen at the summer resorts are taking time by the forelock and seizing the originals of the newest models as they appear. Watch the ready-to-wear and millinery salons for the new things.

THE BATTLE.

The fight goes on at Ottawa. Some Government journals gleefully assert that many members of the Opposition are already nearly in a state of collapse; that some have lost their voices, and all are sure to lose their health unless they surrender within a week. But the Opposition must have counted the cost before it determined on these tactics, and must have felt able to pay it. There is good reason for crediting the reassuring dispatches sent out by Liberal correspondents. In committee of the whole House members may talk as often as they choose. There is no need for any one of them to overstrain his larynx in a single speech Except for the necessity of keeping the oratorical ball rolling, the Opposition has an advantage over a Government in an affair of this kind. By the system of four shifts, three-fourths of the Opposition members may safely be off duty and go where they please for eighteen hours a day, but the Government must keep all its supporters within call, against a snap division. If all the Liberals, by a preconcerted arrangement, suddenly appeared in the chamber, and the Liberal member on his feet ceased talking, the Government whips would have to put up men to carry on the debate until the highways and byways could be scoured for reinforcements. As the Government has position becomes more untenable every it will be seen that the Opposition is more likely to wear down the Government than the Government is likely to wear down the Opposition. There is talk of closure, but the Government cannot effect it against the will of the Opposition unless by defying existing parliamentary rules. The deputy speaker, the notorious Mr. Blondin, who talked of shooting holes in the Union Jack in the Drummond by-election, is a pliant tool, but he might shrink from the physical violence which might have to be employed to ride rough-shod over the present rights of the Opposi tion. Even if he ordered the expulsion of members so that a closure act could be carried, these Cromwellian methods might not prevail. Though some of the incidents in the House lend themselves to jocular treatment, the Opposition is engaged in a serious business in a serious mood. All Canadians who value their hard-won constitutional liberties will be grateful to the men of Ottawa who are ready to sacrifice time and comfort, and perhaps their health and strength in defence of Canadian self-

THE CHAMPLAIN TERCENTENARY

The lapse of a few weeks will bring us to the 300th anniversary of the first recorded visit of a white man to the soil of Ontario. In the summer of 1613 Champlain ascended the Ottawa probably as far as the Chaudiere Falls. Two years later he returned, and crossing by the Nipissing waterway, he discovered Georgian Bay-Mer Douce, as he called it, the Fresh Sea-and coasting southward pitched his camp in the heart of the Huron Indian country in the present county of Simcoe.

Being a politician, he naturally followed the Trent Valley route in crossing the country to Lake Ontario with his Huron allies in an unfriendly visit to the Iroquois villages at the foot of that lake. Returning to Lake Simcoe he spent the winter with the Indians. making his headquarters at the village of Ca-hi-ag-oo-wa, situated somewhere to pay the Farmers' Bank losers out in the township of Orillia. probably of his own pocket is not credited at quite near if not on the site of the St. Thomas. present town of the same name.

Thus did Champlain, the first and greatest of Canadian explorers, in the name of the King of France and for the sake of Christianity, take out the title-deed of this province, and homestead it, so to speak, by his year's things without waiting. teaching and exploration conducted from the Huron Indian capital near the foot of Lake Simcoe. The tercentenary of the event is approaching; the province owes to its self-respect and regard for its history the duty of commemorating the event in some appropriate manner.

The Government of the province might naturally be expected to take the lead in the discharge of this duty and to invite the National Government to share in the credit and cost of the undertaking. In this, as in most other matters of non-partisan import, it walts unity while uniformity has been disable to initiate effective action, and it unity in trying to regain uniformity? possesses citizens wise and publicspirited enough to recognize the duty and to be willing to give the time and tator says that "it is well known, or direction of such action. ional high court judges, in response to a recommendation of the bench, dated Oct. 25, 1909. The act remained in abeyance for two years, and in the session of 1912 Mr. Rowell moved for its repeal, contending that under the enlarged powers given to county courts the necessity for the additional judges had disappeared. Mr. Rowell's assertion that only one of the seventeen high court judges favored new appointments was contradicted by Sir James, who alleged that the bench had not changed its mind. Mr. Rowell's motion was voted down by a mechanical majority, and the Ontario Government last fall caused the Dominion Government seled Mrs. Goodman. to put Messrs, Lennox and Leitch on the bench

Mr. Rowell's demand last year for the production of all the correspondence in the matter has just been complied with. The public now learns, what the bench and bar have known all along. "So you are going to start that, are that Sir James deliberately misrepre-sented the attitude of the judges. Im-Mother never was a very good breadmediately after his speech in the maker." House-twelve of them-Sir John Boyd, Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, Sir William Mulock and Justices Maclaren Magee, Britton, Latchford, Sutherland, Kelly, Teetzel, Riddell and Middletonsigned a statement assuring Sir James that he was mistaken. They explained that so much additional work was done supplies only till the end of March, its by the county courts under their increased furisdiction, that the number of high court cases had dropped from 1,143 in 1909 to 696 in 1911, or 40 per cent. Sir James acknowledged their ommunication and then flouted it. Not only this, but a month before Sir James able articles of feod. In 1912 the total told the House that the judges were value of the commerce in frozen food inanimous in demanding assistance. the Attorney-General was in possession of the following letter from the late

Chief Justice Moss: "From views I have heard expressed by some of them (judges), I gather that they are not all still of the same opinion, but I have no warrant for making any statement on their behalf. There is no doubt, I think, that a great change in the conditions has occurred since the rec. ommendation of the 25th of October. 1909, and there is, as far as I car gather, a feeling that what then appeared to be an urgent necessity, by reason of the legislation increasing of two judges, with salaries of $7,000 government and Canadian national not partisan railings at him; the facts speak for themselves, and cannot be

LONDON INTERMEDIATES ARE IN THE O. H. A. FINALS

FLYING DUTCHMEN TIED LONDON ON LOCAL ICE LAST NIGHT, BUT TECUMSEHS WON THE ROUND

Two-Goal Win at Berlin on Monday NightEnabled London to Enter Finals by That Margin, Despite Berlin Team's Plucky Fight.

HAINESWORTH IN BERLIN NETS PLAYED A REMARKABLE GAME

Only for His Good Work, London Would Have Run Up a Big Score on Visiting Seven-Berlin Led at Half-Time by 3 to 2.

There was a serious obstruction in the way of the London intermediates in their journey to the O. H. A. finals last evening. Its name was George Hainesworth, and for a time this chap Hainesworth plunged nearly two thousand London fans into forty-seven different varieties of heartache. This Haines worth person is the small net guardian of the Berlin intermediate team, and that explains why London only managed to hold Berlin to a tie, 6 to 6, in last night's game. However, the two-goal advantage gained at Berlin was sufficien to proclaim the London team winner of the round, the total score on the two contests being 13 to 11.

But to get back to Hainesworth. If ever the title, "Wizard of the Nets," is tacked on to a goal-minder, Hainesworth is the man. His work in last evening's game was so good that London fans gazed on him with awe and admiration. No exhibition like it has been seen in London for some time. Shot after shot were rained in on him by the London players, and only six passed him. He stopped the other ten thousand and six that came his way with the greatest of ease. No matter from what angle, no matter how difficult, no matter how fast or how crooked or how wicked, he stopped them. He guarded the Berlin-nets as though his life depended upon the result of that contest. And that is the simple story of last night's game. That is the reason London did not win. Mr. Hainesworth would not let them. He knew his business too well. It may come as a big surprise to many that London did not beat Berlin on local ice after trimming the Dutchmen on the German stamping ground. But then, they Berlin Led at Half Time by Score of Three to Two.

It was not a good game until the second half. At half-time Berlin was feading by the score of 3 to 2, and there were many who believed that the sausage-makers looked good enough to grab the round. London started out strong, the first goal coming in the first minute of play. But Berlin tied it up soon after and then went into the lead. It was not until 20 minutes of the period had passed that London again located the nets behind Hainesworth. That tied the score again. But Berlin was not to be denied, and two minutes before the half ended they scored again.

But the second half was different. In this period Berlin started the scoring in the first minute, But after that, London got going. That brilliant fourman onslaught began to take shape, and with Jimmy Grannary feeding the forward line continually, London gradually overtook the visitors and climbed into the lead. From a one-goal lead the margin was increased to two. It remained this way until four minutes from full time. With London leading by four goals on the round, all doubt as to who would meet Collingwood in the finals was removed. It even looked as if London would win the game by the same two-goal advantage that divided the teams after the Berlin game. But by a heroic rafly, the Dutchmen ran in two goals in the dying moments of the game and tied it up. It was a game finish, and the lads from Berlin died fighting for all that was in them. Berlin should be proud of them. They are undoubtedly the best aggregation of hockey players seen in London this season

Rink Was Crowded Long Before

The Princess Rink was packed long before the game started. Every available seat and space for standing room was taken up, and it is estimated that a little over two thousand people saw the game. The Berlin special train arrived in London about 8 o'clock, and 133 fans accompanied it. No seats had been reserved for the visitors, but they all got into the rink and no doubt saw a good bit of the game.

Referee Gren. Caldwell, the best official the O. H. A. has produced, faced the puck shortly after 8:30. The Berlin team appeared on the ice first, and indulged in a light workout for about ten minutes. The London team then came on, and had been on the ice for about five minutes before the game started.

The Berlin line-up was slightly changed from Monday's game. Solomar was moved from left wing to centre, and N. Seibert took his place. However the change did not last long, and a few minutes after play started the players were shifted back to their former positions.

London Scores First Goal, McAvov Turningthe Trick.

The puck was rushed into London territory at the start, and London chased it back to the Berlin end. Laurie Gillies went off for tripping Boettger, and he had just nicely gained the penalty box when McAvoy notched the first alon had just nicely gained the penalty box when McAvoy notched the first alon ing the game, McAvoy notching the goal and putting London into the lead by a nice scoop in front of the nets on a pass from Waiden. The goal was scored in the first minute of play.

The game now became fast, end-to-end rushes were indulged in by both at this stage, and they could not take advantage of the small number of London game players pitted against them, the work of Grannary and Gillies showing out prominently. Reid came back on and Borland soon followed. Several attacks were made on both goals, but few shots reached in as far as the goal-keepers.

Wardrope Figures in Fine Piece of Goal Minding.

It was at this stage of the contest that Wardrope pulled off a pretty piece of net guardianship. Berlin crowded in on the goal, and George stopped the shot. The puck bounced out in front of him, and in a jiffy a couple of Berlin players pounced on it. Wardrope beat them to it, and did a little stick-work on his own account. He kept the puck away from them while the London players jammed in close, and then he shot it down the rink. The Berlin players had been making frantic efforts to score in the meantime, but Wardrope seemed to stick to the puck like adhesive plaster.

Nelson Seibert was sent off for loafing, and while he was on the fence at London made a particularly hard effort to score. Several shots were made on far Hainesworth, Walden, McAvoy and Reid all making an effort to land a goal, but the Berlin youngster was right on the job, and he made some remarkable stops. The famous London combination was set in motion, and only the good work of the opposing net-minder saved a goal. Ufflemann drew a penalty at this stage for slashing McAvoy while chasing him around the rear of the goal. When he came back on again he scored Berlin's first goal. Seibert had rushed, and Wardrope stopped the shot. He passed it out to the wing, and Ufflemann pounced on the disc and batted it into the nets before Wardrope could get back into his position. Berlin scored another goal, and went into the lead four minutes later. Ufflemann was again the offender. He scored on a pass from Seibert, the latter bringing the puck down the ice.

London Tries Hard to Get the Combination Working.

N. Seibert went off for tripping Gillies as soon as play started again, and Berlin was forced on the defensive. Captain Jimmie Grannary started some combination, and the London forward line began to line-up. The puck was taken down the ice, but Hainesworth was there to block the shot. The game became very strenuous at this stage, both teams making a frantic effort to locate the nets. London was having much the better of the play, but could not bore in close enough to beat Hainesworth. Much of the shooting was done from the wings at some distance out. Reid was penalized for tripping Soloman as the latter was rushing toward the London goal, and while the little centre man was off the ice, McAvoy evened up the score for Lendon, after Grannary, Walden and Gillies and McAvoy had combined in a pretty rush down the ice. It was beautiful combination, and it seemed the only way to leat Hainesworth. The little Berlin cage-minder was called upon to do some of the most brilliant work of the night following this goal. The London team braced up, and repeated attacks were made on the Berlin defence. Gillies fined in several wicked shots, but Hainesworth was score-proof, and they did not find the nets. Borland broke through once and went right to the Berlin nets but failed to score. The half was rapidly nearing an end and both teams were tiring. The play had slowed up some, and only occasionally bursts of speed were made. With two minutes to play, Berlin went into the lead again, Ufflemann scoring his third goal on a pass from Soloman, who had wormed his way through the greater part of the London team. The shot was a pretty one, and it went past Wardrope at some miles per minute.

The Game as Seen by The Advertiser Artist

rover. The goal tied up the round, and the London crowd was silent. the least, London fans were surprised, painfully surprised. However, the hopes of the London fans were raised again when, after six ninutes of play, Reid scored on a shot from the front of the nets. The pucl was passed to centre ice from Walden's corner and Reid made such a heave put it into the nets that he fell down with the effort. London was again eading on the round. True it was only by one goal, but a one-goal margin looked pretty good, and it was better than no goals at all. A minute later the London crowd went into paroxysms of joy, for Grannary located the Berlin nets and netted the goal that tied up the game and gave back to London the two-goal margin on the round. The goal was scored on a puck-off in front of the Dutchmen's goal. Reid passed the puck out to Grannary, who was playing right in front of the nets, and Jimmy slammed it in.

Hainsworth Was Lucky at This Stage of Game.

London pressed hard after this, and only the good work of Hainesworth revented several scores. The Berlin lad had quite a bit of luck. One shot t this stage struck his skate and fell at his feet. He did not see it, and hought that it had glanced off. The puck lay right in the mouth of the goal exposed, and McAvoy, Walden and Gillies all made a dive for it. Hainesworth repared for a shot, and in doing so unconsciously skated in front of the This was all that saved a goal for McAvoy hit Hainesworth's skate in els attempt to but the puck in and the goalkeeper then located the disc and pushed it out of the danger zone. It was a lucky moment for Berlin.

McAvoy and Soloman collided at the boards near the penalty box, and the latter was laid out for a moment. It was his own fault, as he tried to get Mac, and was caught himself. When play was resumed, Borland, and Ifflemann took a couple of minutes on the fence for playfully jabbing each other during a mix-up in a corner. Grannary was also sent off for tripping Soloman, the trip being unintentional. With Borland and Grannary off, it ooked bad for London. Gillies and McAvoy played on the defensive for minute, then the latter carried the puck down, and combining with Walden MARITIME CHAMPIONS and Reid, gave the Berlin defence a busy moment. The three London forwards managed to keep the puck in Berlin territory for nearly a couple of ninutes and before the Dutchmen could start anything, Borland had returned to the ice and Grannary was just preparing to come back. When Jimmy did cme on, he jumped right into the game, and for the next few minutes he and Borland gave the Flying Dutchman the hardest battle of the night. They combined in two-man rushes and Hainesworth was kept busy.

London Jumps Into Lead and Big Crowd Goes Wild.

McAvoy notched the fifth for London on a pass from Walden in 18 minutes, and the crowd Went mad with joy. This put London in the lead for the first time since early in the first half, and it was sure a time for much gladness. Gillies went off, and when he came on again, combined with Mc-Avoy, Reid, Grannary and Walden, for the prettiest piece of team work dur-

The local players did not cease their aggressive tactics, however, and teams. Berlin was forced on the defensive, however, and Hainesworth was they kept hammering away at the Berlin goal. The time narrowed down to called upon to get in some of his fine work. Reid was sent off for loafing, the offence taking place close to the Berlin nets. Berlin then rushed the puck to play lagged at times. But Berlin soon braced up, and F. Seibert scored on WINGHAM CURLERS London's end, and Wardrope made a nice stop. Borland then drew a penalty a pass from Ufflemann in 27 minutes. Two minutes later, while only one by tripping Soloman, and with Reid and Borland off, London was forced to play minute remained to play. Ufflemann scored again, and tied up the game a defence game for a moment. Berlin did not appear particularly dangerous The full-time bell rang with London making a determined effort to win the

For Berlin, much of the credit must go to Hainesworth. It was undoubtedly his work that kept London from making a runaway of it. Outside of im, however, Ufflemann and Soloman were the best players. The former scored four of the goals, and he was the most dangerous man London had to watch. He is remarkably quick for a lad of his build, as he inclines to stoutness, and his shooting is particularly effective. He played the combination all the time, and Gillies had a hard time keeping track of him.

Soloman was not as good as in the Berlin game, probably because he vas more closely watched. However, he got away several times, and although he did not figure in the scoring he assisted on one or two occasions in notching goals.

Boettger also played a nice game, While F. Seibert and Trushinski, on the defence, played sensationally at times. They are big fellows, and can use their weight effectively. N. Seibert, at centre, was also good. The Berlin team displayed more team play than they did in the game at Berlin, and this in a measure enabled them to keep pace with London as Grannary Played Best Game He Has Shown So Far.

Every man on the London team worked hard with Grannary, Gillies and orland showing up prominently. Wardrope played a great game in goal, and he is quite capable of putting up as good an exhibition as Hainesworth He was not called upon, however, to work as hard as the latter, although he was kept fairly busy.

Grannary played the best game he has played on local ice this season. His work in the second undoubtedly saved London from a beating, and, perhaps, losing the round. Borland played his usual good game, and his rushes were a feature. He broke through the Berlin team time and again and passed the puck, but often there was nobody there to get it. He had outskated his forward line.

Gillies played the game of his life. Both in the game at Berlin and a Princess Rink last night, Laurie's work was of the stellar variety. He a hard man to check, but he acquitted himself well. McAvoy played his usual good game, and his back checking, together with speedy rushes and wicked shooting, were features. COLLINGWOOD AND LONDON ARE PRETTY EVENLY MATCHED

What do you think about it, anyway? Are all these stories about Collingwood being able to hogtie and throw London to be believed, or is it just the Oriental imaginings of some fans who would be wise?

Last night all the conversation parties Last night all the conversation parties and debating societies were laying claims to inside information.

"Met a traveller who saw 'em play Whitby, and he says they have London beat a block," one would say.

The last man to contribute a selection claimed that he knew by Bill Borland's inscrutable smile that there was nothing to fear, and that accordingly he had plunged to the extent of forty cents in pools at the office.

But there are a few who know something, who have seen Collingwood in action, say that the teams are matched, when going properly, to a remarkable degree. That it will be the struggle of struggles for Intermediate honors, is the expectation.

"Won't it be hard on you fellows jumping into the game after a stiff match with Berlin?" a player was asked.

"Just what we wanted," he answered.

"We don't want to get stiffened up, and we are in shape to stand the grind."

London Plays in Collingwood First

London goes to Collingwood first. The toss-up was made in the Princess Rink office last night following the game. The northerners were represented by a gent named Hall, The coin was tossed by Kenny Casselman, who likely borrowed it from "Scotty" Hogg. Jimmy Orr was on the firing end, and while the currency was suspended in mid-air he shouted "Head." coin fell tail, and it was Collingwood's choice.

Then the gent named Hall from Collingwood did a funny thing, or was it a gentlemanly piece of sportsmanship. We rather think it was. He said. "Well, I really do not know what we want, what do you fellows wish?" And Jimmy Orr answered him saying, "We'll play in Collingwood Friday night and here next

"That suits us," said Mr. Hall, and so the matter rested. London plays the first game in Collingwood.

This should give the locals an advantage, as Collingwood has a big rink just suited to London's playing.

GUTHRIE ROUSES HOUSE

Charges Civil Servants Are Writing Editorial Threatening to Introduce Gag.

Ottawa, March 5 .- Charles Wilson, the nember for Laval, carried on the debate for the Liberals this afternoon. He dwelt principally upon the constitutional took up the strain from 3 o'clock till 5. ssues involved, quoting from British and Canadian statesmen as to the gradual development of colonial constitutional rights in the matter of providing for their own defence, both military and naval. His argument was that the bill was unconstitutional in that Parliament inder the British North America act ad no right without mandate from the people to contribute such a huge sum o another Government.

In reply to Hon, H. R. Emmerson, the Minister of Marine, who was temporarily leading the House, said that if it required $39,000,000 to build the three battleships which Canada was to present to Great Britain, as was evident from the latest admiralty memorandum as to cost, the present appropriation of $35,000,000 would be supplemented by another vote of Parliament.

Misrepresented.

Mr. Levi Thomson, of Qu' Appelle, who began at 5 p.m., read to the House an article appearing in today's Conservative papers stating that the Liberals were adopting anarchistic methods of obstruc tion, and were voting now one way and now the other way on the naval issue. He referred somewhat scathingly to this deliberate misrepresentation and "petty haggling and quibbling" as a substitute for real argument. Mr. Thomson, in the course of an effective and succinct summing up of the basic arguments of the whole debate, declared that since both sides had agreed that Canada must do something towards Imperial defence only two courses were open. Either the Do-minion must contribute indefinitely toward a central Imperial fleet or else must organize her own naval force. It followed that the present proposal of contribution must be continued indefiit not be the part of statesmanship to ome at once to the ultimate policy and to that end? He also drew attention to a feature of the problem not yet presented to the House. Recent developments in international politics pointed both to an endeavor between Germany and Great Britain to reach an understanding as to the limitation of armaments, and also to desire on the part of Japan to effect an alliance with Germany. In either case the obvious moral for Canada was to provide for her own defence upon the Pacifis. What would be the situation if Japan and Germany formed an alliance and Canada was left undefended on the Pacific with the whole British fleet centralized in the North Sea.

"We don't object to threats," said he, "but we do object to highly-paid civil servants writng articles to the newspapers containing hese threats."

Some of the Conservative members. particularly A. C. Boyce (West Algoma), demanded the name of the culprit, and called Mr. Guthrie to order for making such statements.

"I am not giving any names at present," said Mr. Guthrie. He then deliberately repeated the statement. Deputy-Speaker Blondin, after considerable uproar, declined to sustain the

Mr. Guthrie emphasized the fact that Premier Borden had gone to England with a cut-and-dried policy, and that the Cabinet had already come to a decislon, and Mr. Monk had retired before the admiralty memorandum, upon which he policy was based, had actually been received. vas liberally interspersed with questions or the Government benches, and the Governmental obstruction prolonged the North Wellington man's speech for at least a full half hour, much to the amusement of the Liberals. One of these interjections came from Col. Sam Hughes -his first contribution in the whole debate. He seriously suggested that the German Empire was in league with the Liberals, and was deliberately making temporary peace proposals to the British Government with a view to adding force to the Opposition argument that there was no emergency, and with a view to weakening the Government's case. The House laughed and the minister went GETS JUDGMENT

Mr. Shrimplin, whose moods were likely of the critical and censorious, realized that here was something personally offensive on the fact that Archibald McBride had shosen to disregard a holiday which his lellow-merehants had so very generally of Mr. Shrimplin's alarm, took that gentherword.

there was something personally offensive in the fact that Archibald McBride had chosen to disregard a holiday which his fellow-merchants had so very generally observed.

"And him, I may say, just rotten rich!" he thought.

Mr. Shrimplin further discovered that though the lamps were lit they were burning low, and he concluded that they had been lighted in the early dusk of the winter afternoon, and that McBride, for reasons of economy, had deferred turning them up until it should be quite dark.

"Well, I'm a poor man, but I couldn't think of them things like he does!" reflected Mr. Shrimpin; and then even before he had ceased to pride himself on his superior liberality, he made still another discovery, and this, that the store door stood wide upen to the night.

"Well," thought Mr. Shrimplin, "maybe he's saving oil, but he's wasting fuel."

Approaching the door, he peered in. The store was empty, 'Archibald McBride was nowhere visible. Evidently the door had been open some little time, for he could see where the snow, driven by the strong wind, had formed a miniature snowdrift just beyond the threshold.

"Either he's steped out and the door's blowed open," muttered Mr. Shrimplin, "or he's in his back office and some customer went out without latching it."

He paused irresolutely, then he put his hand on the knob of the door to close it, and paused again. With his taste for fictitious horrors, usually indulged in, however, at his own warm freside, he found the present time and place slightly disquieting; and then Bill's singular and erratic behavior had rather weakened his nerve. From—under knitted brows he gazed into the room. The storm rattled the shuttered windows above his head, the dingy sign creaked on its rusty fastenings, and with each fresh gust the bracketed lamps rocked gently to and fro, and as they rocked their trembling shadows slid back and forth along the walls. The very air of th plac was inhospitabl, forbidding, and Mr. Shrimplin was strongly inclined to close the door and beat a hasty retreat.

Still peering down the narrow room with its sagging shelves and littered counters, he crossed the threshold. Now he could see the office, a space partitioned off at the rear of the building, and having

Here, as he knew, stood Mr. Mc-Bride's big iron safe, and here was the high desk, his heavy ledgers—row after row of them; these histories of commerce covered almost the entire period during overed almost the entire period during hich men had bought and sold in Mount

Hope.

A faint light burned beyond the dirty glass partition, but the tall, meagre form of the old merchant was nowhere visible.

Mr. Shrimplin advanced yet farther into the room, and urged by his sense of duty and his public spirit, he directed his steps toward the office, treading softly as ong who fears to come upon the unexpected. Once he paused, and addressing the empty air, broke the heavy silence.

"Oh. Mr. McBride, your door's open!" 'Oh, Mr. McBride, your door's open!"

The room echoed to his words. "Well," carped Mr. Shrimplin, "I don' "Well," carped Mr. Shrimplin, "I don't see as it's any of my business to attend to his business." But the very sound of his voice must have given him courage, for now he stepped forward briskly.

Mr. Shrimplin saw and grasped the meaning of it all in an instant. Then with a feeble cry he turned and fled down the long room, pursued by a million phantom terrors. His heart seemed to die within him as he scurried down that long room; then, mercifully, the keen fresh air filled his lungs. He fairly leaped through the open door, and again the storm roared about him with a kind of boisterous fellowship. It smote him in the face and twisted his shaking legs from under him. Then he fell, speechless, terrified, into the arms of a passer-by.

PASS LEGISLATION TO FOIL SUFFRAGETTES

Hunger Strikes Will Be of Little Use if These Bills Go Through.

London, March 5. — It is understood that the Government has decided to introduce two bills in Parliament at as early a date as possible, dealing with the suffragette difficulty.

The first will empower the Home Secretary to exercise the same licens ing control over persons committed to prison as he now does over convicts Thus a suffragette prisoner adopting the hunger strike would be sent to a hospital or a home until her health had been restored and would then be recommitted to prison. This method would be repeated until the prisoner had served the full term, in which the time out on license would not be counted. The second bill will provide a better procedure for recovering fines and damages from suffragettes convicted of attacks on property, and will otherwise modify the criminal law in the desired direction.

GIVES ANNUAL TREAT

MR. PETER BIRTWISTLE

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Some days ago I noted an article your paper re electric and steam road operation on two of the lines running out of Detroit and operated by the Retroit United Railroad. The greater part of my electric railroad experience was with the above company, my duties taking me daily on the two lines under discussion. I therefore feel I cannot let the assertions made by your informant pass without comment. We will take the article in the order in which it appears.

While it is quite true that the M. C. R. opposes any arrangement whereby the electric line should handle their cars, the electric company operates a standard steam engine and box cars over their line between Oxford and Ortenville, a distance of 18 miles. Carload lots of coal, lumber, sawlogs, etc., are handled on this line, and it is the cost of handling this freight, which is transferred at Oxford to the M. C. R. the shippers are trying overcome.

"What does he want to leave me like that!" wailed Shrimplin, and his panic threatened a return.

He dragged himself to the door. Here he paused, since he could not bring himself to enter, for before his eyes was the ghastly vision of that old man, huddled on the clood-stained floor. He heard the colonel's step echo down the long room, and when their sound ceased he knew he was standing beside the dead man. After what seemed an age of waiting the steps sounded again, and a moment later the colonel's tall form filled the doorway.

"Andy!" said the colonel.

Mr. Shrimplin turned with a start. At his back, within reach of his hand, shood Referring to the steam road operated in conjunction with the electric road between Chesterfield and Marine City, the number of miles covered by this steam service, instead of being four, is 34, or about one and one-third times the length Mr. Shrimplin turned with a start. At his back, within reach of his hand, stood Andy Gilmore. He had been utterly unaware of the gambler's approach, but now conscious of it, he dropped in a miserable heap on the door-sill, while the white and unfamiliar world reeled before his bleachblue eyes; it was the very drunkenness of the London and Port Stanley Railway As in the case of the Flint division, there is maintained a complete equipment o switching engine, box and flat cars, round house, water tanks, etc.

From twenty cars up are handled nightly, including the entire output of severa of the salt plants located along the line The above service is in addition to severa electric express cars, which handle the package business entirely. The import ant point to be noted is that this service is given on standard electric railroads with ordinary 500-volt direct current construction, with trolley wires only 18 feet 6 inches from rail, whereas the Lon-Remembers Aged People of His don and Port Stanley overhead equipment would doubtless be of the catanry construction, and 22 feet from rail. Yours very truly. F. R. DARK. very truly, F. R. DAR 625 Adelaide street, London, Ont.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Goderich, March 5. - The funera

Traunche had retired from active sailing the last few years and had been living with his daughter in Detroit. He was one of the earliest captains who was engaged in the shore trade of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, when Ontario was a primeval forest, and railroads were unknown, and nothing but a blazed trail through the woods existed between Hamilton and Goder-

There is a city bylaw which says pigs must not be harbored within the city limits, and when Ealing, Pottersburg, Chelsea Green and Knollwood Park were made part of the city a number of residents of those sections were owners of the meat that is tabooed by Jews. The health officials of the city got busy, and notices were sent to the owners that the animals must either be deported from the elty or killed.

During the past few weeks, butchers have reported that pork has been a drug on the market, and what was hard luck for some men proved fortunate for others, because the price was lowered a little. The city will also benefit in other ways. For one thing, there are a number of dogs in the newly-annexed districts, and the owners of these will have to drop into Inspector McCallum's office and do-

"Baby Mine" has to its credit one solid year's run at Daly's Theatre, New York. It is the radiant and glorious fun and hilarity that obtrudes at every point throughout the play that holds an audience throughout, and justifies the verdict that "Baby Mine" is the most eminent mirth-impelling comedy the present generation of theatre patrons has ever seen. Most enthusiastic admirers of the play, whose opinions are considered those of experts, emphatically assert that "Baby Mine" is the very best comedy that has been

THE SILENT HUDSON

Beauty style and comfort are all incorporated in the 1913 Hudson "37," which is selling for $2,425 this year, and which is being displayed at the Auto Show by Mr. Edward Bernard. The manufacturers of the Hudson car keep a corps of employees whose duty it is to watch the trend in styles and forecast popular designs, years in advance. The old lights and crank starters are now a thing of the past, and in their place on the Hudson are the electric lamps, which can be lit by simply pressing a button, and the self-starting appliance which is operated in the same way, eliminates the necessity of climbing through mud to start the car and the danger of being injured by the crank backing Last year noise went out of fashion and the motor of this year's Hudson was cast en bloc, and the cut-out eliminated. This did away with the reports from the engine, and the Hudson today is not only a car of beauty

TUDHOPE CAR MAKES TRIP FROM TORONTO

Ploughs Its Way Through Roads Deep in Snow and Considered Impassable.

Mr. George D. Bindner, of the firm of Bindner & Morrison, automobile agents for the Tudhope Automobile Company, had an anxious afternoon on Wednesday, when an automobile he had chartered to be on exhibition during auto show week, did not turn up. His fears were allayed, however, at about 5 o'clock, when he discovered the expected car on Dundas street, completely covered with snow, and though it made a journey of scores of miles over the roughest of wintry roads, the motor was working like a charm, and not a fraction of the car was out of gear.

The last Mr. Bindner had heard of the car was at Toronto on Tuesday, and that it was bound for London. He was also aware that it was being driven by Messrs, Radermacher, Murton and Samuels, connected with the "Gyp" Company in Toronto, but where its location was in the middle of Tuesday afternoon he had not the slightest When 4 o'clock had arrived and no car from Toronto, Mr. Bindner determined on a tour of investigation, and discovered the missing Tudhope, which was a brand-new one. He secured one of his own autos, and started east. He had gone but a short distance when he found the absent auto, but so loaded with snow that he would not have recognized the Tudhope bonnet had not he seen the Tudhope pennants decorating the car, and observed a crowd surrounding three people, who appeared like Arctic explorers. They had stood the journey well, but the automobile had stood the test even bet-

The motorists had a story to tell. They had left Toronto on the previous day in a new Tudhope and had plowed through the drifts to Hamilton, where the night was spent. Tuesday morning in the face of heavy gales they turned towards Brantford, which was reached after many hardships. The worst was still to come. At one o'clock in the afternoon they started in their Tudhope from the Telephone City, the machine demonstrating a remarkable test of endurance. machine left Brantford feeling At places the occupants were forced to descend from the car and shovel the road. AUTOMOBILE SHOW ON OPENING NIGHT PROMISES SUCCESS

The Cars Range in Price From $600 Away Up Into Thousands.

Distinctive Features of 1913 Season-Bodies, Engines, Lighting, Etc.

Opening night at the second annual show of the local Automobile Dealers' Association augured well for the success of the exhibition. Not all the cars and other difficulties, but the array Land Is Owned by the Governthis morning was complete. The value of the care shows a second to the care shows a secon of the cars shown aggregates closely o $200,000.

There are cars as low-priced as $600 and quite a few to tickle the modest-man's fancy without overstimulating his checkbook at from $700 to $1,200. Then for the more fastidious motorists and for all others who can afford it, there are handsome, luxuriously ap-pointed cars, running away up in the thousands.

An Italian Car. For instance, there is one handsome, talian-built, six-cylinder, touring car which heads the list at $6,800. If you are an old-timer in the genle recreation of skimming the long, dusty highways at a rate of speed that makes your license number look like a Greek alphabet upside down, you will be most of all interseted in the new self-starters, the new gasoline-economizing carburetters, the long-stroke motors, the sliding sleeve motors, and other things that the uninitiated know

THE FIAT CAR.

The greatest attraction at the auto show for 1913 is undoubtedly the Flat car, in the exhibit of the McLaughlin. Motor Car Company, in the southeast corner of the armories. This splendid seven-seated touring car is a veritable palace and is worth $7,000.

It is the highest grade of car ever seen in London and vicinity, and all day Wednesday visitors thronged around it, inspecting and admiring its many qualities. The McLaughlin Motor Car Company are the sole agents for the Flat car in Canada, and announce it is one of the best sellers on the market today. From the day of the intitial announcement of the Fiat car from its factory in Turin, Italy, until the present, the name of the Fiat has been more or less closely associated with speed events in two continents. But while the car has attained the highest honors in road races through special motor types, the company has been steadily developing its touring models and incorporating into them from time to time those designs and materials which the strenuous speed speed campaigns have dictated as val-

Large annual importations have been made to America, but in order to avoid some of the 45 per cent duty the Amerlean importers and the parent factory united in building the branch at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The car on exhibition in London was made in Italy, and was put together in America. It has electrical self-starters. The big feature is the assembly of the rear axle, allowing perfect alignment of the parts. Another feature of the Fiat is the

Its compactness is the most pleasing feature I've seen in any car today."

The men in conversation were stand-ing in front of the Overland and Chalmers exhibits, placed by the local agent, Mr. J. C. Beemer: This booth is reached just as you enter by main door and turn to your right. In front of a stage setting of national colors and flanked with palms, this ex-hibit of splendid cars lends tone to the whole building, and a glance in their direction means that obeisance is sure to follow to this excellent manufacture, unsurpassed in motordom, In Detroit, it is said that more motor cars are built than are produced in all the other American cities together. Wherever one goes in Detroit one sees motor cars and hears the names of motor cars. But no name is heard more frequently than Chalmers. Its name possesses magic, and wherever you hear of it, an accompanying remark is made to the effect, that here is a car which will take you to your journey's end and return without a let-up. The exhibit of four Chalmers cars in Mr. Beemer's exhibit is undoubtedly one of the features of the auto show for 1913. There are four fine Chalmers and two Overlands, one of these being a delivery vehicle, attendant with all the modern devices used in motors. All the cars are electrically lighted and have mechanical starters.
