The Protestant Reformation has surely been a blessing to the world. It has given us the freedom which we have. It has given us religious freedom, civil freedom, and intellectual freedom. The intellect before the Reformation was in a kind of dungeon through a long and dreary night, like a caged eagle beating his bleeding pinions against the bars of his prison flung open the cage and gave us the great tlessings which we have to day.

"HOW TO GET RELIGION." Those who want religion get it; for those who really desire saving grace put themselves in a way to obtain it, and God meets all such. It is natural to seek the gratification of our desires. If a man wants money, he seeks it; if he wants political preferment, he seeks it. If a boy wants an education he proceeds to meet the conditions of its attainment ; if he wants social enjoyment, he adjusts himself to his social opportunities. So, if a man wants religion he spontaneously puts himself in a way to get it; and if he wants it very much he will seek it first and more ardently than he seeks anything else. Then, as we have said, he gets it. We are positive on this point, because there are no contingencies between an earnest soul and God: nor is "God slack concerning his promises." We read: "All the promises of God in him [that is, in Christ] are yea, and in him amen.' (2 Cor. i. 20). AN ESCAPE.

An incident related by Bishop Soule, many years ago, shows that he was not without strategy in an emergency: The bishop said that during a Conference session in New York in the earlier years of his episcopal career, he was earnestly importuned by the official board of one of the city churches to give them as pastor a certain preacher. The Bishop enquired "Do you know the man ! Have you heard him preach?' They replied that they had only heard of him, but from what they had heard they were confident that he was the man for their church, and he alone of all the

LETTERS TO GIRLS.

TRUTHFULNESS AND SINCERITY.

"Must we, if we want to succced in life, be always frank and truthful?" is a question a girl asks. "Or, in other words," she adds, "must we not be often insincere if we want to be thought amiable and polite?"

I suppose there is a certain sort of surface insincerity, which deceives no one, which politeness and comfort demand. We are in heart savages and it is only the suppression of our untamed feelings that prevents our acting like the uncivilized. Because we treat a person well does not prove that we love and admire the person. It would be barbarism to tell every one just what we thought of him or her. We want to be ladies and it is never lady-like to make others uncomfortable.

Still I think we could and should always be frank and truthful. Lying is never necessary. The essence of lying is not in words but in the desire to deceive. Words are not necessary to tell a lie; silence has often told one; or the glance of the eye.

Many ease conscience by thinking, "I only deceive," when a half lie is the basest and worst kind of a lie. A "white lie" is just as bad in God's sight as any other kind.

"Is God so particular?" hear some girl say. Do you remember reading where God told Saul to slay the Amelekites and destroy all their possessions, and he returned and said he had done this?

"What means this bleating of sheep and lowing of oxen in mine ear?" "Oh, as to those," Saul replied, "I thought God wouldn't mind if I did spare a few sheep and oxen. I shall use them for sacrifice to the Lord." Saul thought this a little matter—only a little sin-but he lost his kingdom by it.

You know what the root is to the tree; truthfulness is to your character what that root is to the tree. If in your life there is deceit, untruthfulness and sham the root is somewhat rotten. I know people who only show their real self in company by some unconscious look or expression. They are of the class who keep all their smiles and kind words for others than their own family. Be your real self everywhere and make your self the grandest possible conception of a lady. Dare to always be honest and true, not only in words but in acts.

No, there is no need of telling all your thoughts or exactly what you think of others. I tried that once. It did not prove successful. A schoolmate, in a fit of goodness. desired me to tell her of her faults and then she would tell me of mine. After much urging, I began, "Well, Lizzie, your great back twice five years seems but a Taking the officer, he rode to est fault is your quick temper. It you would become all you are capable of becoming the first step you take must be to put away all sham, all pretense; do the best you know how in every act of life and speak truthfully every word. Take moments every day to think over these things, Say each morning, "I will be true, honest and grand to-day." You will have the same disagreeable duties that came to you yesterday, but now they have a new meaning! they are to be the means of disciplining you into a noble woman at thirty. see no great change in a day, a week, a month and you think no one knows you are trying, for you fail so often. So do we all fail every day in reaching the mark we have set. We are like children learning to walk. Don't be anxious to run before you can take the first hesitating steps.

Let friends meet after an absence of ten years who were once on the same plane intellectually. The evils of a state other for the children yet to be. of anarchy affect every relation of life, and prevent all advancement in civilisation and comfort. 3.—"Rulers are not a terror to good works." No one knows this better than children. The boy at school who keeps all the rules is never afraid to meet the master's eye; but the other one, who tries how far he can disobey without being found out, is always afraid. The boy who is going home from school quietly, and behaving properly, has no fear of the tall policeman just coming round the corner; but the one who has been performing mischievous tricks, and the one who has his pockets full of stolen apples, both take to their heels. In verse 4 the apostle states the divine intention in regard to all civil powers-they are ministers of good to those who do well, and ministers of punishment to those who do wrong. The divine intention in this sinful world of yours may some imes be frustrated by human infirmity, or human wickedness, but these are exceptional cases. St. Paul would have us make obedience to the laws a matter of of which we do not approve, which press hardly on ourselves or others, ed; but, while they remain, our duty as Christians is to obey.

6-7.—Here the apostle touches the sore point in submission to even the best government. How very few people pay taxes cheerfully. The most unpopular man is the tax-gatherer, and the people are always grumb ling at the amount they have to pay in taxes. But how unreasonable. The government must be supported, and in many respects, the better the government, the more costly it will What any have to pay is very little compared with the privileges we get in return. The apostle goes on to a wider range of meaning when he says that we are to render "honor to whom honor is due." The thoughtful Christian will, indeed 'honor all men;' he will treat even the humblest and poorest with respect, recognizing the value, the transcendant importance, of our common human nature. And he will recognize in his whole deportment, the claims of the higher relations and offices of human life. Without abandoning his self respect, or ceasing to maintain his own legitimate independence, he will treat with deference and honor all invested with authority by the arrangements of God- from a height of three feet. thus acknowledging Him on whom all the varied interests of human society are dependent. 11 14.—The apostle seeks to enforce all previous exhortations by drawing our attention to the prospect before us. "It is high time to awake out of sleep," i. e., to be active and aleri, "for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." "The night is far spent," etc. "We are in the dawn of a bright and eternal day. The shadows of our present state are passing away, and will soon give place to the unclouded sunlight of the Saviour's presence. Our 81,400 from one acre of strawberries 37. "A. L. O. E. (Miss C. M. Tucker) may be termed a writer of sanctified fiction. There have been many of these, yet, judging by the hold her stories have had upon the youthful mind, she has been queen of them all. Gifted with the genius and possessed of the arts of the popular novelist, she knew comfortable living as purchasing how to catch attention and hold it. Her productions were characterized by ingenuity of plot and happiness of diction. But she was not content with endeavor simply to entertain. The spiritual profit of the reader was the prime purpose, and all else was bent Wash your fruit trees with soap to that end. Her work shows that she and lye and water in June and again | acutely comprehended child nature. Some in September. FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1884.

SEVEN MONTHS FOR ONE DOLLAR.

To lead to the introduction of the WESLEYAN into the families of Methodists who do not now get it, the Book Steward offers to send it from this date to the end of the year to any new subscriber for ONE DOLLAR-thus giving it free for one month. Please mention this offer to your neighbors.

WYCLIFFE AND TYNDALE. One of the healthiest signs of the day in Britain is the interest taken in the heroes of the Reformation. It is necessary, at times, to stoutly denounce evil, but there are other times when the interests of truth may be most effectively served by reminding the world how our enslaved fathers prized liberty to worship God, and at what cost they purchased our freedom from the fetters and tortures of those cruel agents of Rome whom she still glarifies on her high places.

The Luther celebration of last year was successful beyond expectation. In all parts of the world Protestants delighted to do honor to the memory of the great Reformer, and the impression made upon the minds of youth was such as Romish tactics cannot soon efface. Already this year a quincentenary celebration of Wycliffe has been held in England; and only the other day the venerable Earl of Shaftesbury unveiled a fine bronze statue of William Tyndale in a prominent place on the Thames Empankment, London. It cannot of course be expected that any celebration of the career of these men can be so extensive as was that of Luther, but it may be hoped that wherever Protestants of British origin are found their names will be recalled, so as to be held henceforth not only in lasting, but in general, remembrance.

The names of Wycliffe and Tyndale are connected with the early translation of the word of God into the Eaglish fongue. A priest himself, Wycliffe had the boldness to with. stand a foreign sacerdotal dominion, and to resist the interference of the Pope in the affairs of England. The world to-day, in the despoiling of the Papacy of its temporal authority and in its loss of direct influence, sees only the extension of a line which centuries ago Wycliffe's finger distinctly traced out. After his day England was never again fully subject to the Pope. Slow has the world been to adopt his views; but it nevertheless has adopted them.

Like all other great Reformers. Wycliffe believed that the entrance of the Word of God giveth light, and he used earnest effort to lead the people to read it. And two hundred years before Luther arose to assert the right of private judgment. Wycliffe had asserted that right for the reader-a daring proposition from his lips, as a contemporay remarks, though a commonplace in the great world of to-day. But beyond this he could not go very far. He cave Englishmen the whole Bible in the vernacular, but it could only be circulated in manuscript, and had therefore but a secret life. In spite of Papal bulls and repeated efforts at his destruction, this brave assailant of monks and friars died a natural death; but, fifty years later, in accordance with a decree of the Council of Constance, his bones were taken up and burned, and the ashes cast into a little brook whose waters run into the Avon, thence to the Severn and finally to the ocean. Thus fared at the hands of Rome, the body of the man who is known to-day as "the Morning star of the Reformation."

With the invention of printing came a great thirst for truth, and with the need came the man-an agent of Providence, thoroughly fearless and perfectly fitted for his work. The passion of Tyndal's life was set forth in his declaration to an ecclesiastic at the table of Sir John Welsh: "If God spares my life, ere many years I will | would not be wise to copy a significant make a boy that driveth a plough to sentence which appears in the Year know more of Scripture than thou dost." MOUNT ALLISON.

As we laid aside our pen last week, haste and hurry were seen on all hands at Mount Allison. Both teachers and pupils were preparing for a summer flight-not driven by lack of health, but rather drawn by the attractions of home and friends. A more healthy and cheery representation of young men and maidens could nowhere be found. Their appearance spoke volumes for the air of Sackville. and for the care of the managers of the institutions.

At the station we observed an unusually large number of ministers. The presence of these at the exercises of the previous days is to be accepted, we think as a promise of increased interest in these schools of the Church. To them and to all persons interested in the growth of a Church which God has so greatly blessed, and which has just entered upon a new and most important era, we advise the reading of part of an editorial from an American contemporary to be found in another column. The lesson is one that no intelligent Methodist should hastily dismiss. What our Church shall be in these Maritime Provinces, depends in great measure upon her treatment of her college and academies. It is no small proof of their importance that some of the keenest been ready to lay their thousands and tens of thousands down before the managers of our educational institutions.

claim to priority in the admission of ladies to degrees in Arts. The graduates of the Ladies' Academy by their thoughtful and finely-read essays certainly proved the other day their right to stand side by side with their hitherto more highly favored brothers. A glance at the results of the examination and prize lists shows that a young lady has won enviable destinction. It is to be hoped that our Ladies' Academy will soon be sending scores to occupy places in the various college classes. By ladies who are thus coming to the front, the silly compliments on which ladies have been fed in the past will soon seem contemptible, and, shall we not add, such criticisms as we happened on a recent occasion to hear from thoughtful women on gaiety of dress, will soon be averted.

At this season the usual number of witty paragraphs anent "degrees" are floating through our exchanges. Mount Allison has, very wisely, been sparing of her honors, and has shown great care in her selection of the men upon whom to confer them. The names recently selected form no exception to this statement. Upon John Lathern-one of our first preachers and writers: Lieut. Governor Richey-the eldest son of a distinguished minister who was the first Principal of the Upper Canada Academv. now become Victoria University; and A. A. Stockton, Esq., Ph. That gentleman took charge of the Academy at a period of embarrassment, and now withdraws from it when prospects have grown brighter. The his suffocation was a prayer for his kindly remembrances of many pupils and parents will follow him elsewhere. No successor will be appointed at present, but T. T. Davis, A. M. who has excellent qualifications for the work, will fill the post of head-master, while the general management will be in the hands of the college authorities. Competent teachers will assist Mr.

Allison, will mark a long step in advance upon the old building. How many such steps have been taken since 1843, when at the suggestion of Enoch Wood the youthful Humphrey Pickard was called to take the management of the Male Academy just erected! After years of hard work, much of which the world would call drudgery, Dr. Pickard is yet a deeply interested spectator, and to some extent a director, of the movements at Mount Allison. May he yet long be spared Methodism should have a history of her educational movements from his

UNITED.

Sunday, the first day of June, 1884, will long stand out as a red-letter day Canadian Methodism. Reports of various union services, including those in Halifax and St. John, occupy six and a half columns of the Toronto Globe of the 2nd inst, and notices more or less extended appear in al most every paper in the Dominion.

We are indebted to a friend for Belleville papers of the 2nd inst., with business men of our country have full accounts of the services in that Belleville the final decision was given in favor of union, and that there the arrangements were made which became of legal force on Sunday last. On By this time the Dominion should the morning of Sunday the congregabe ready to recognize Mount Allison's / tions met in the Tabernacle, where the Union Conference commenced its sessions. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Williams, Bible Christian. the Rev. Dr. Jaques, of the M. E. Church, read the Scripture lessons, and the Revs. J. B. Clarkson and Dr. Carman, and Mr. R. Richardson gave addresses. The church was crowded, and even camp stools and benches had to be brought into the aisles to accommodate the vast throng that sought admission. In the Bridge street church, where at midnight on a certain date in September last, amid breathless silence, a vote was taken for which Methodism the world over waited, and which finally settled the question of union throughout the Dominion, a most impressive service was held in the evening. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Carman, one of the General Superintendents, the lessons were read by the Rev. Dr. Badgley, and brief addresses were given by Revs. Mr. Williams and Drs. Meacham and Jaques. The combined choirs provided music of rare excellence. The Lord's Supper and a prayer-meeting of the "shouting" kind concluded a Sabbath which a friend describes as a "grand day." our Maritime circuits. In St. John.

No special tidings have reached us respecting the services of the day in as in this city, a large gathering took place in the afternoon, but there the preachers for the day seem to have brought the topic more prominently before than hearers from their pulpits. From Charlottetown we have heard little of special services, probably because the union from the first has been treated in the Island quite as a matter of conrse. In other places a sermon adverting to the topic alone marked the passage of a day the issues of which must be mighty in their influence upon our church and country in the future.

It now seems probable that the To the friends of the Institutions it policy of the Gladstone government

OBITUARIES.

The Book Agent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, speaks vigorously on the subject of obituaries, in the Nashville Christian Advocate. In this large official paper one rarely, if ever, finds such lengthy notices as are forwarded from time to time to our comparatively small WESLEYAN. Dr. McFerrin asserts:

Biographical sketches, well written, of conspicuous persons, noted for good and long service, are read with profit and pleasure; but, ordinarily, short, pertinent notices are all that any one should expect of his departed friends. More than this does injustice to tens of thousands of the readers. Obituaries of private persons are read generally by a few of the friends and acquaintances of the deceased, but the thousands pass on and look for other matter. Most of the obituaries of the patriarchs and saints of olden times take but a few lines.

Brief notices will give all a chance; and will allow the editor to give space for each, and to insert them in time. As it is, too much space is taken for these notices, and they are often delayed, and then necessarily cut the People's Church, Boston, in May, down by the editor; feelings are injured, and the editor blamed. As publisher of the Christian Advocate, must interpose, and insist that not more than a reasonable space be allowed them in this department of the paper. The composition in small type, the paper and the press-work. cost the House large sums of money for which we make no charge. But while we are thus liberal as publisher, l insist that so much space should not be taken each week to the detriment | ing to the beauty of this well-known of the paper, the rights of the subscribers, and the love we have for the memory of the worthy dead. Ordinarily, twenty or twenty-four lines should contain an obituary of any Christian man or pious woman.

A VITAL MATTER.

Under this title the Richmond Christian Advocate points out a danger which our people will do well to watch against. That paper says, in reference to the retrogression of Methodism in Kentucky:

In an evil hour, years ago, our Church, then in the van, allowed their college to fall into decay and death. Others saw the vantage ground and fostered their schools. They began to educate Methodist children. The communities by this means came under the influence of rival denominations. These Churches gained on us and after awhile took the lead. We by degrees fell to the rear. As the years went, the men of culture and nfluence were in other communions. Methodist boys at the best schools received a slant from the faith of their

Israel sounded the lowest depth f degradation when there was no smith, nor forge, nor anvil, throughout its territory. When "all the Israelites went down to the Philisines, to sharpen every man his share and his coulter, and his axe, and his mattock." Of course they were defenceless. And "it came to pass in the day of battle, that there was neither sword or spear found in the hand of any of the people."

The Church that allows hostile neighbors to control and monopolize schools, where the wits of the youth are hammered and sharpened, soon finds itself as impotent and ignoble as the base Jew, without a weapon

Beware, brethren, lest a dry-rot beginning now at the core leave us, in the years to come, a fragile, withered shell of dust. Kentucky Methodism eceived blood poison from their dead college. May the Virginian Church profit by their example."

The Calendar of the Presbyterian Theological College is a neat pamphlet of 36 pages. The Professors at present engaged in the training of the coming ministers are Drs. MacKnight, Currie and Pollok. Students have to take previously a regular course in Arts at Dalhousie College, Fredericton University or some similar institution. They are strongly recommended to take the degree of B. A., and a three years' Greek course. Those who do not take a regular Arts course are required to submit to a special examination. city, in which the Conference is to be held, has undergone extensive repairs. The roof has been ceiled with wood, the whole of the interior painted, the platform newly carpeted and the aisles covered with linoleum, the whole addchurch. Only one regret is felt as one glances at it—that arising from the fact that, with the exception of the small mission chapel at Coburg road, it is the only Methodist church to be found among the fileen thousand or more persons residing in that part of the city south of Jacob street. Any one giving a moment's consideration to this strange fact cannot fail to see the need of aiding the movement to erect a church at once on the beautiful lot purchased a few months since on the corner of Cobourg and Robie streets. It is to the colonies sent out from time to time by the Brunswick street church, at the north of the city, that we in great measure owe the growth indicated by the last census. The south should do its part, and that

Two sad cases of mortality among little waifs have been reported of late. One was brought before the public through the discovery of twenty-one | " had a keen scent for covetous bodies which had been buried without any formalities in the yard of a so-called sanitarium in New Jersey, which is said to have been founded by the lady whose name it bears from purely benevolent impulses. The other scene of the dance of death is in our own Dominion, and at the Grey Nunnery hospital for foundlings at Montreal. From a statement in the Star it appears that altogether. during 1883 703 infants were admitted the institution and that during that same year 664 died. It is further said that the mortality of last year was not exceptional, the admissions and mortality mentioned being about the average. In spite of the difficulty of bringing children through all the perils of infancy, even under the most favorable conditions, it cannot be supposed that 95 per cent of these unfortunates must die as a matter of necessity. An inquest was held in the first case; into the second some searching inquiry should certainly be instituted.

The Christian Visitor remarks that 'it is fallacious to argue that an institution, having great numbers in attendance, has an advantage over a college like Acadia. The thorough acquaintance of the students one with another, the facilities of constant contact and handling by the professors, give the college of moderate size a great advantage over the institution attended by large numbers." We were struck with the forcible manner in which a statement to the same effect was put the other day by President Inch, of Mount Allison.

The London Methodist thinks it worthy of notice that there is not unanimity among English Methodists as to the advisability of holding the second Œcumenical Conference in the United States in 1887, and that any proposal made in the Wesleyan Conference to promote the movement will, it is said, be opposed in that Conference." No reason is given for this probable opposition. English Methodists have nothing to fear and something to learn from their American brethren. Each can benefit the other. It Assembly. We understand that the is to be hoped that there is little foundation for this statement.

The well-known foreign policy of James G. Blaine, the chosen candi. The Grafton street church in this date of the Republicans of the United States for President, causes already some anxiety in English circles. The progress of the electoral campaign will be watched across the ocean with deep interest. An English paper, the Pall Mall Gazette, says that Blaine's nomination is the most notable event for England since the death of President Lincoln. He is supposed to be a hater of England. and to be largely indebted to Irish influence. But men in office and out of office are often seen to act differently.

> Resolutions have been passed by the American General Conference to establish evangelizing agencies among th Roman Catholics of the United States. Bishop Harris's ruling at the Wilmington Conference, that a Roman Catholic priest's ordination could not be recognized as equivalent to that of an elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as the Church from which he came is not an "Evangelical Church" within the meaning of that term in the Discipline, was sustained without dissent by the General Conference.

The anniversary of Acadia College took place last week. A single lady graduate, Miss Marshall, appeared among the other graduates. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. Prof. Welton, Ph. D. Several other degrees were bestowed. In the afternoon a tablet was unveiled to the memory of the late Prof. Hartt, who died while engaged as chief of the Geological Survey of Brazil. An address on the occasion was delivered by Silan Alward, D.C.L.

The outcry of Charles Francis Adams and some other clever men against the compulsory study of Greek has had some weight in Canadian celleges. Mount Allison is not the first to make the study of that language. optional. Several years ago in Queen's College, Kingston, and two years ago in Dalhousie College, Greek ceased to be a necessary subject for the B. A. degree.

The net increase of the membership among the Weslevans of England is, 3,316: that in Ireland as reported at the recent District meeting is 480. The candidates for the ministry of the English Conference are 69 in number. It is thought the supply will hardly equal the demand. But, says the Recorder, "no requirements of the Conpexion can make it desirable to accept feeble men."

DEAR MR. EDITOR, - Allow me a at the recent clesing exercises of the Institutions. 'In the mouth of two or established.' We would add our testhe exercises.

Comparing the present with the past we would say that Mount Allison shows signs of improvement rather than of decadence. Though there have been changes in the professorial staff the teaching has been thorough. following statistics showing the In the examination the students gave strength of the united Church are progress and of mental development. We can have every confidence in recommending our Institutions as places where our young people may with safety and economy be sent for education. Parents may be assured that every attention will be paid to the training of their children mon-tally, morally and spiritually. Full reports have already been given concerning the exercises in connection with the close of the academic year. We would simply endorse all the good things that have been said of them. One criticism only would we make; and in making it we know that we are but voicing opinions freely expressed by many of the visitors who were present. For the last year or two we have been pained to notice among the young ladies an increasing tendency to display in dress, in the costliness both of the matter and of the make up. Time was when the style of dress was charmingly simple yet none the less becoming. Now it is neither. Native beauty is hidden by the art of the milliner and dressmaker. Apart from the love of display engendered we object on account of the heavy expense to parents. If allowed to continue it must end in excluding from the academy all but the daughters of the richest. We are jealous for the reputation and usefu ness of our Ladies' Academy and in a spirit of friendship venture this criticism. We might say much more but refrain, hoping that the authorities will receive these remarks in the spirit in which they are given and will give the matter due consideration.

Wishing the Academy and the institutions generally, many long years of prosperity, I subscribe myself, A LOVER OF MT. ALLISON.

[The above note reached our office when we had not space for any remarks of our own upon the important topic it suggests. Some reference quarters. EDITOR.]

MOODY AND SANKEY.

The series of missions of these American evangelists, which began on the 4th of November last in Islington, is about to come to a close. Yesterday afternoon the last of the missions was opened in the large iron structure which has done duty throughout | which was the whole campaign, and which is set up on the space of unoccupied ground close to the City of London schools, Thames Embankment. The structure, which is capable of seating about 6,000 persons, was almost wholly filled, the majority of the congregation consisting of ladies. But on the platform there was a large number of clergymen, and in the reserved seats were many distinguished personages, amongst whom Were Earl and Countess Cairns, Lord

It is thought that the present mission possibly up to the end of June, but it degree at an earlier date. cannot last longer, for Messrs. Moody and Sankey have made arrangements for their return to America in the first week of July. The opening meeting was a ceremony of a highly impressive devotion. The proceedings commenced with prayer, offered by the Rev. mittee will meet in the Preachers' James Corven, Church Pastoral Aid Society, after which several hymns, Tuesday evening, June 16th, at 7.30 in which the company joined, were sung, and other prayers were offered at intervals between the singing. Many of the musical pieces were rendered with considerable skill by the soloists, whilst Mr. Sankey presided with his usual effect at the harmonium. At the close of this part of the proceedings Mr. Moody delivered

MEMORIAL NOTICES.

WILLIAM MOUNCE.

Bro. William Mounce was born at Nictaux, Annapolis Co., about the year 1818, and removed to the township of Newport when but a lad. Here he spent the remainder of his life, very port that he learned his trade, and so thoroughly did he apply himself, that during all his subsequent career, his skill and fidelity as a workman, together with his untiring industry, led his services to be in constant demand. By the divine blessing upon his various enterprises he gradually obtained a position of wealth and corresponding influence. Between the one and the other it is true, there need be no absolute or necessary connection. Bro. Mounce had a character independently of means, and this character, apart from these mere accidents of life, was framed after the approved model of the Incarnate Word. When quite a young man, about forty-three or forty-four years ago, and probably under the ministry of the late Rev. W. Croscombe, he was led to decide for Christ. By the grace of God the covenant then entered into was maintained ever after.

Exceedingly distrustful of self, and humble in spirit, he was nevertheless ready at the call of the church, to do what in him lay towards the advancement of the Master's kingdom. Not to mention other qualities, his acknowledged integrity and reliability marked him out or active usefulness, so that for many years the Avondale circuit has benefitted by his services as trustee and class-feader. Taking a very humble estimate of his own powers, it was a fixed principle with him to lay them ever at the disposal of his Lord Though he might often and with good reason have pleaded the trailties induced by chronic disease and advancing years, Bro. Mounce was no stay-athome Christian. In the public sanctuary three times a week did he appear before God. We will not intrude upon the sacredness of the home-communings. Enough to say he 'grew in grace" and "walked with God."

He who thinks he can do without the world deceives himself; but he who thinks the world cannot do without him is still more in error.

If you have a good preacher, good treatment will increase his efficiency. If you have one of inferior quality, bad treatment will make him worse.

Earl Derby is quoted as saying that a speech costs him two nights' sleep-one beforehand in thinking what he should say, and one afterward in thinking how much better he might have said it. In London a lady's outer garment was

Washington Irving once told Mr. Labouchere that he had gained his beautiful ease and precision of literary style from Addison, and that he was accustomed to read one of the Essays, write it out from memory, and then compare his draft with the original.

A flower has been discovered in South America which is only visible when the wind is blowing. The shrub belongs to the cactus family, and is about three feet high, with a crook at the top, giving it the appearance of a black hickory cane. When the wind blows a number of beautiful flowers protrude from little lumps on the stalk.

"Madam, you have destroyed $5 worth of merchandise," angrily remarked a dude to a ladv as she seated herself in a chair in which he had deposited a new Derby hat. "Serves you right," she replied, slowly rising from the ruin; "you had no business to buy a $5 hat for a 50-cent head.'

It was in a country church, and the vicar, before morning service, told the curate to give out a notice about baptisms and another about some new hymn-books. In reading the notices the curate reversed their order and gave them as follows: "For the future Hymns Ancient and Modern will be used in this church." "There will be a baptism of infants held in this church on Sunday next. All parents wishing to have their children baptized must send in their names to the vicar before Wednesday." The vicar, who was somewhat deaf, heard the curate's voice cease, but did not observe that the order of the notices had been reversed. so he rose and said: "And I should further like to mention that those who wish to procure some of the latter can obtain them on applying at the vicarage for one shilling, or with extra strong before you buy all the extensively advertised nostrums of the day which have made no genuine cures, and have nothing to commend them to the public, but false praise from the vendors, who instead of manufacturing an article of worth, which would cost money, give to agents immense profits to ensure their sale, and the sick who have been induced to try them, only find out when too late that they are really no better, and often worse than before using them, then in the

A Sa result of Methodist Union, the Sun-day School periodicals of the United Methodist Church shall be adapted to meet, to the fullest degree, the highest requirements of every Methodist school. Neither money nor labour shall be spared in making them the best, the most attractive, and the cheapest Lesson Helps and Sunday School Papers in the world. The last year has been the best in their history. It is determined

The Sunday School Banne

Was never so popular and so useful as it now. We shall adopt every possible im provement to keep it in the very foremos rank of Lesson Helps. In order that every teacher in every school of the Methodist Church may have the aid of this unsurpassed Teacher's Montily, from seventy-five to sixty-five cents single or copies and from sixty-five to cents on all copies more than one to any aldress. This gives the school which can take only two or 27 50 three copies an equal advantage with the school which can take a large number. Thus will place in the hands of a teacher twelve times thirty-two pages-384 pages a yearof rich, full, concise, practical Lesson Notes and Teacher's Hints, adapted for the several grades of the Sabbath School, and well printed in clear type on good paper. The Scholar's Quarterly Has been enlårged from twenty to twenty four pages a quarter—ninety-six pages a year—for eight cents! It will give full text of the lessons for every Sunday in the Quarter, Golden Text, Home Readings, Connecting Links, Outlines and Questions, Brief Explanations, Questions from the Methodist Cate-chism, Opening and Closing Exercises, The Creed, Ten Commandments, and Form of Temperance Pledge. Frice, two cents a quarter, or eight cents a We cannot send single numbers of this. nor less than five, as the postage alone on a single number would be half the subscription

The Berean Lesson Leaves Contain the substance of the Scholar's Quarterly, but not quite so fully. They will be sent in quantities of ten and upward to any address at five and one half cents a year each or $5.50 per hundred. The Quarterly Review

Service Gives Review Questions, Responsive Reading, Hymns, etc. Very popular. By the year, twenty-four cents a dozen; $2.00 per 100; per quarter, six cents a dozen; filly cents per 100. The above rates are all post paid. Speci mens will be sent free to any address. Send orders early, that we may promptly meet the increased demand. Schools sending new or ders for the year now will receive the mun bers for the rest of the year gratis, including the special Luther and Christmas numbers
