Kenny is a favorite in the House for his manly bearing and genial way. He showed that on the very first occasion that way. He showed that on the very first occasion that Jones, when minister of militia, appeared to the people of Halifax, he was defeated by a large majority. Knowing it would reach the constituency they both represented he would say here that from 1878 to 1880 Jones had never said one kind word of the militia of Canada, nor for that matter a good word for Canada in any way. (Admiring cheers.) Kenny told the story of how Halifax responded to the call for arms at the outbreak of the Riel rebellion, and showed that the one man who had only sneers for Halifax patriotism on that occasion was his colleague, the ex-minister of militia (Mr. Jones.)

There was such an undisputable ring of truth in Kenny's utterances that not one friend of his "Pull-down-the-flag" colleague attempted to interrupt the speaker. The debate was continued by Lister, Hesson, Hickey, Col. Tyrwhitt, Prior and Dennison. While the members were being brought in, Conservative benches sang "Waiting," and the "Red, White and Blue" to crowded galleries.
