The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XXXIV.

He could not be cruel to her. He must take care that she never knew, never suspected the truth. He must endeavor to make her happy, although he could never be so. How well she loved him—and oh, the pity of it!

"Leah," he said, taking her hand in his, "I will not talk to you now. The general told me that you will not remain much longer at Dene. You will return to Brentwood in a few days; and then you will let me speak to you about our marriage? I want you to fix a date for it, to tell me when you think it can take place. It seems uncertain, and I am tired of uncertainty."

A look of unutterable relief came over her face. Ah, Heaven be thanked! It was of her, of their marriage and their future, that he had been thinking lately with so grave a face. A great tearless sob rose to her lips—she had been so unhappy about him, and all without reason, his silence had been caused only by his anxious thoughts of her. They were alone in drawing-room. She looked up at him, all the love that filled her heart shining in her dark eyes. She put one fair arm around his neck.

"Basil, I have been so unhappy about you," she murmured. "People said that you looked preoccupied and dull. I could see for myself that you were not the same; and I wondered if you had ceased to love me."

"Ceased to love you, Leah!" He tried to speak carelessly, but his whole frame trembled and his lips grew pale. "Ceased to love you! Leah, tell me what you would do if that happened."

The face radiated to his was full of earnestness and truth.

"What should I do?" she replied. "There would be but one thing on earth for me to do, and that would be to die. When all that made life worth living was gone, how could I live?"

"Life is very precious," he said, drawing her closer to himself; "and it is not easy to die."

"It would be easy for me," she declared. "I have let all my desires and interests merge themselves in yours."

asked myself that question. If you were in a fellow's cell to-morrow, I would share it with you. I would go to the scaffold with you."

"Dear," he said, gently, "that is a great love, but is it not a blind love?"

"Yes," she answered, "and in this world a blind love is best. You have made me very happy, Basil," she continued. "During these evenings, while you have looked so thoughtful, I have watched you anxiously."

"Why did you not tell me that you were troubled?" he asked.

"I did not like to do so. Although I know how much you love me, Basil, there are times when I feel timid and almost afraid of intruding on you."

"I thought," he said, jestingly—only too pleased to jest—"that in perfect love there was no fear?"

"There is fear in every love," she replied. "I must know, for I feel mine so strongly. Ah! me, I am happy to-day, Basil! In future, when you look thoughtful, I shall say to myself that you are thinking of me."

She raised her face to his; and, bending down, he kissed the loving lips and the tears from the happy eyes.

"My love," she murmured, "I could almost wish to die here and now, while I am sure that you love me."

And it would have been well for her if she had died.

The sound of her voice, the clasp of her arms, the kiss from her lips, the memory of her loving words, went with him as he got out to say farewell to the girl he loved. Just that one half-hour from a whole lifetime should be his. He would take Hettie's hand, look into her face, and say "Good-by," never to meet her more, his first, last only love; and then the rest of his life should be given to duty.

It was the close of an autumn afternoon when he sought Hettie Ray. The light was dying in an amber sky, and he walked with swift footsteps up the green hill that he would never climb again.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Hettie Ray was watching the amber light. The king of day was setting in royal splendor. He had donned new colors this evening; he had dispensed with crimson and gold, and had surrounded himself with clouds of deep amber and purple—kingly colors that, falling upon the sea, gave a weird gleam to the waves. The light of a dauntless sky was there in full perfection, but the green earth looked strange under it; a curious glow lay upon the hills, upon the trees and the grass. To Hettie's loving eyes it seemed as though Nature was waiting, and that, when the sun had set, something would happen. The sun was sinking lower and lower; the amber clouds seemed to touch the water's edge. From the waves on the shore came a musical murmur, from the birds in the trees an evening hymn. Hettie, in her old seat by the try-covered wall, was tranquilly watching the lovely scene.

Her father had fallen asleep. He was very ill, and she was anxious about him. She had decided that if he were not better on the morrow, she would call in a doctor. She had been up with him all night, and she had been hard at work all day; she was tired and anxious—yet there was a look of happiness on her fair face. In the midst of the gloom and the darkness there was a ray of light for her—"Glen" loved her; she felt sure of it. She was so shy, so modest, so completely without vanity or coquetry, so simple and sweet; in her busy life she had had but little time to think of love and lovers. Deep in her heart lay a dim vague knowledge, half hope, half fear, that some day or other this beautiful dream would come to her.

She could not be unhappy while thoughts of "Glen" pierced the gloom. All the fatigue of the night and the labor of the day had been as nothing to her, because of her thoughts of him. She did not own to herself that she loved him and was ready to give her love unsought; but she knew that if he loved her, as she had now some reason to believe he did, she would be the happiest girl on earth. How handsome he was, how noble, how good! What a knightly face was his, what a courtly manner! She could understand now the true meaning of the word "gentleman." And, while she was thinking of him, while the amber clouds rested on the water, he stood suddenly by her side. No rose ever blushed more sweetly; her whole face changed; her eyes welcomed him, and said what her lips could not utter.

Wilderness of Sand.

GREATEST ARMY BASE REVERTS TO NATURE.

CAIRO (Associated Press)—What was once considered the greatest military dump in the world El Kantara, the British army base on the east side of the Suez Canal, has now almost entirely reverted to the wilderness of sand and silence whence it came. Its passing marks the demise of one of the most important "war baby" soldier cities. In 1914 El Kantara was merely the name of a "place" on the Suez Canal, 45 minutes by train from Port Said. With the beginning of the Palestine campaign, the transformation began. Pioneers, engineers and army service corps detachments mapped out a town. There were erected enclosures for cattle, horses, mules, donkeys, fodder, for great guns and small line-bar carts. Later there appeared enclosures for prisoners and the miscellaneous of cantons, contractors' huts, officers' quarters and barracks that made up a great war center. When the armistice was signed, El Kantara's stores included quantities of every appliance of war. Its dismantling began in 1920. Contractors rushed in and secured great bargains. Gradually, the vast accumulation of supplies, a few days ago, the Disposal Board finished its work and the site was handed over to the Egyptian Labor Corps—a delapidated, empty hulk.

"Laying on of Hands."

HEALING MISSION IN ABERDEEN.

Widespread interest was shown in Aberdeen in a mission of spiritual healing by the laying on of hands, which was carried on by Mr. J. M. Hickson in the St. Andrew's Episcopal Cathedral. At the opening of the mission a congregation of over 500 assembled in the Cathedral.

Some 350 people—men, women, boys, and girls, blind, lame, deaf, mutes, and those suffering from heart weakness, epilepsy, and mental weakness—went to the altar rails, where the missionary laid his hands on their heads and invoked divine assistance to those seeking healing. They also received the blessing of the Church, while the remainder of the congregation engaged in prayer.

Mr. Hickson also prayed for a number of people who on account of infirmities were unable to be present at the church. There were no cases of instantaneous relief, but several who went to the altar stated that they felt the power of healing at work.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Your Face.

You might search the world without finding a face that is perfectly symmetrical. The eyes are almost invariably different. We are all either right-eyed or left-eyed. You will notice that when you are shooting or looking through a telescope. Just as you are right or left-handed, so you are right or left-eyed. Are you aware that the nose is shaped largely by the character? At the age of ten, a boy's nose may be snub; at fifteen it may be straight, and at twenty-five Roman. It all depends upon his character. People with artistic or poetic tastes have straight, well-chiselled noses, but the great general or man of affairs has a Roman nose. Look at pictures of Alexander the Great, Caesar, Napoleon, Wellington, Washington and you will realize how true this is. A firm, square chin indicates strength of will and perseverance under difficulties. A strong-willed person keeps his mouth tight, and the constant exercise of the muscles of the lower part of the face gradually moulds the shape of the chin. A short forehead with prominent brows indicates the man of action; a very sloping forehead may belong to a poet or an inventor, while a high, broad forehead with a wrinkled skin is frequently the mark of a born fool or even of an idiot.

The Missing Link is Found.

John Daniel is dead, but his peroneus tertius goes marching on—and science stands, head reverently bared, doing homage to a monkey that, except for the lack of a few wigs, might have been a man. Famous in his day as the best educated gorilla which ever abandoned the jungle for the big top, John's shade has returned from the grave to confound those who assail the Darwinian theory of evolution. One of the strongest arguments against the proposition that monkeys and men had a common ancestor always has been that evolution of gorilla feet into human feet is an impossibility. Now science has found a crushing answer. It's John Daniel's big toe. The toe took on the most amazing tendencies of the human big toe in the months during which John was eating with a fork, sleeping between sheets, learning to talk, and generally ridding himself of jungle habits. Since his death, a year ago, John's remains have been subjected to the closest scrutiny by Dr. Dudley J. Morton, of New York, and other eminent men of science. And now comes the announcement to members of the Academy of Science that John's genealogy traces clearly back to the same old, sturdy stock that has made this nation what it is to-day. In other words, if you go far enough into the past you will discover your great-great-grandparents sitting in the same arboreal world as John's, yet Mr. Bryan saw what he will. The proof is in the peroneus tertius and the big toe. The peroneus tertius is a muscle which holds up the upper portion of the human foot, and never has been found in a monkey foot until along came John. And John's big toe had markedly lessened in length during the months he lived as a groundling.

In making his report to his fellow-scientists Dr. Morton paid John the due tribute. He referred to John not as "it" but "he," not as "which" but "who."

"These findings," he said, "definitely remove what has been considered an insurmountable obstacle to the theory of Darwin."

Radium Klondikes.

Men have dreamed and gone mad over gold and diamond mines. Will there ever be "radium rushes" to attract adventurous speculators to fortune, or failure?

If so, the rushes will probably be in the direction of Brazil, where rich mineral substances producing radium have lately been discovered.

Large lumps of brown mineral were found buried in the soil of a hill. These mineral lumps are named euxemite, and they contain from six to ten per cent. of uranium, appearing in the form, when the euxemite is broken open, of a brilliant black substance. The uranium, in its form, produces the radium.

Uranium oxide is worth from $140 to $250 per ton and some twenty tons have been taken out of the hill. If the hill produces all that is expected by the small syndicate working it, it will be a hill of fortune.

Afraid of the Bank.

No amount of persuading will get the natives of Dutch Guiana to put their savings in the bank.

Somehow, they have a dread of banks. Not that they fear robbers, or that the money would not be there when wanted. But once a native has saved money, he likes to look at it all day long; to keep it within easy reach, and be able to show his friends how successful and thrifty he has been. This could not happen if he banked the money as we do.

Because the average Guiana native does not believe in banks, he does not burden himself with his wealth. Instead he makes his wife his banker. Then the women carry upon their person all the family savings in the shape of heavy bracelets, anklets, necklaces, rings, and even crowns of gold and silver, inset with precious stones.

Of course, the more prosperous a man is, the greater burdens his wife must bear. But she seems quite happy, in spite of the extra care. Sometimes the joints of her fingers are so bedecked with rings of gold and silver that she finds it quite impossible to make use of her hands. Even her ankles are sometimes so laden with ornaments of one kind or other that it is almost impossible to walk. The jewelry holds the muscles of the legs so rigid and stiff. To attempt to use the legs causes much pain.

It frequently happens that as a man becomes more successful, he exchanges his jewels for others of a higher quality. Consequently, this system of exchange is always going on. Thus when one person meets another, and recognizes some article of adornment that once belonged to himself, he informs his friend of the fact, saying it belonged to him when his wealth stood at 1,000 dollars, 5,000 dollars, or as much as it happened to be.

Auto-Suggestion.

BLIND OFFICER WAS NOT CONVINCED.

LONDON.—In the course of a lecture which M. Coue, the advocate of the theory of auto-suggestion, was giving here recently a blinded officer seated in the front row of the audience rose and exclaimed, "I am blind. Make me able to see. I have tried to make myself believe that I can see but I can't. Now you try." M. Coue endeavored to explain that there were limitations to auto-suggestion, but the blind officer was not to be appeased. He insisted that his eyes were still there and that therefore M. Coue ought to be able to work the miracle and let his sat down obviously sceptical of this new faith.

Do This

Then see if your friends notice prettier teeth

Make this pleasant ten-day test. See what it does for your teeth. Then judge for yourself—by the clear results—how much this method means.

Millions of people have thus found a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. And you will also find it.

It fights film

This method combats the film on teeth—that viscous coat you feel. Film is the teeth's great enemy. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Brushing in the old ways does not end this film. And most tooth troubles are caused by what is left.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Very few people have escaped these troubles caused by film.

Two new methods

Dental science has now found two methods to fight film. Many careful tests have proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Other factors, now considered essential, are included with it.

Pepsodent

THE NEW-DAY DENTIFRICE

The scientific film combatter, approved by modern authorities and now advised by leading dentists everywhere—to bring free desired effects. All druggists supply the large tubes.

It gives a filmy protective covering to the skin.

An indispensable accessory to the Toilet.

Medical Use of Eggs.

To cure that "run-down" feeling, especially if accompanied by a cough, beat an egg in a little milk, put into a tumbler, fill up with hot milk, and a teaspoonful of vanilla flavouring. There is no better restorative in ordinary cases. As a remedy for diarrhoea, an egg beaten up lightly and swallowed at a gulp is excellent; two by day may be required and, as the egg is food as well as medicine, the lighter the diet otherwise the better for the patient. For burns and scalds the white of an egg poured over the wound is more cooling than sweet oil, and soothes the pain, whilst preventing inflammation.

Harnessing the Tide.

The first experiment in harnessing the tides will be made in France, if the proposed Bill now being introduced by the Minister of Public Works is passed. The Bill provides for the construction of a tidal power station at Aberystwyth. This is the first village in the extreme west of Brittany, on a long and narrow peninsula, through which the tide pours with tremendous force. It is proposed to construct a reservoir to store the water from the drive turbines of 4,500 horse power. The main difficulty and cost of the power so that it may be available at all stages of the tide.

FREE

This Ten-Day test costs you nothing. Simply mail the coupon. Then watch the delightful effects.

Pepsodent combats the film on every application. It keeps teeth highly polished, so film less adheres.

It also stimulates the salivary flow. That is Nature's great natural protecting agent. It multiplies starch digestant in the saliva, often cling and forms acid. It helps neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus every use brings free desired effects which old methods failed to bring.

The modern way

Pepsodent is based on modern research. It does what antiseptics now regard as essential. It whitens, largely by dental methods.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how white as the film-coats disappear.

Watch all the good effects. The book we send will tell the story for them. Then decide if you prefer the old, outworn method, in your family, or supercede the old. Cut out coupon now.

"The male defendant said he did not want the cat. In reply, the Magistrate's Clerk said that he would give the cat a big chance of getting another home."

"The Magistrate's Clerk's sporting chance. Why didn't he let the cat go?"

"The female defendant thought of that when it was ordered to pay £2 2s. solicitor's costs."

"The male defendant said he thought there was any obligation to keep the cat."

"The Magistrate's Clerk said keep a cat, you must look after it. It is the proper way to make it."

JASPER'S DEFENCE.

GENOA, May 9. M. Jasper, Chairman of the Belgian delegation, continuing his statement on the Russian difficulty, said, "I must recall that I compiled the section of the Cannes resolution respecting foreign property in Russia, and that all, including Mr. Lloyd George, agreed to interpreting it in the sense that the Soviet Government must return foreign property, except when physically impossible. Mr. Lloyd George expressed himself in the same sense in the House of Commons on April 3. My amendment to clause 7 is the textual reproduction of the section approved by the British experts in London. Therefore it is not I who have changed."

Shakespeare Revived.

"AS YOU LIKE IT." (By Our Dramatic Critic.)

The ability to play a Shakespearean part is believed to be the test of a good actor. Not only does it demand more than ordinary dramatic talent, but also an almost exceptional memory. I was therefore greatly surprised at the very creditable presentation of "As You Like It" which was given last night at the Casino by the pupils of Bishop Spencer College. The play is the most popular of Shakespeare's comedies and gives ample scope for the display of dramatic talent. Local audiences are not often afforded an opportunity to see productions of the plays of the immortal "Bard of Avon" and in any case, the modern taste is in favor of lighter work. Nevertheless, I am sure that all who were present last night thoroughly enjoyed themselves. As "Rosalind," Miss Trilix Noseworthy gave an excellent performance. The part is the heaviest of all and the enunciation, memory and action of the youthful young player were admirable. "Touchstone," as played by Miss Rosie Goldstone, was also a difficult part well done. The faithful clown provides the greater part of the broad humor of the play and it was no easy task to keep up the buffoonery and amusing antics which the part calls for. Miss Rita Butler portrayed "Jacques," the incurable cynic, in a most realistic manner and her delivery of the famous "Seven Ages" speech was particularly good. Miss Mary Robertson made an admirable "Duke Senior" and the love-sick "Orlando" of Miss Grace Watson was so good that it brought my mind, as it must have done others, back to the days when I was passing through that melancholy stage of "the lover sighing like furnace, with some woeful ballad to his mistress' eyebrow." To attempt to select individuals for special praise where all were so good is impossible, but I cannot refrain from reference to the winsome "Celia" of Miss Maxie Butler, the humor of Miss Maxie Blandford's "Audrey" and the splendid "Hymen" of Miss Shirley Green. Many of the scenes were most realistic, and I wish that I knew as much about wrestling as did "Orlando" and "Charles" who in their bout in the first act, showed no mean knowledge of some of the holds in that ancient sport. Several dances were introduced during the performance and all were heartily enjoyed, as they well deserved to be. To single out any for special reference would be invidious, but I must give a particular word of praise to the Classical Dance of Hymen's train, which was performed by Miss Bremner's pupils. The four songs were also quite good. To Miss Richards and those who assisted her in producing the play, I offer my hearty congratulations. To train such young performers to act so well in a few short months is an achievement which does them the greatest credit and they may well feel pleased with their success. The play will be produced again to-night when His Excellency the Governor will be present. Many well known people were in the audience last night and His Lordship Bishop White, Mrs. White and Sir William and Lady Horwood, occupied a box. The characters were as follows:

Duke Senior, living in exile—Mary Robertson.
Frederick, brother to the Duke—Ethel Hancock.
Amiens, Jacques (lord attending upon the Duke in his banishment)—Doris Wilkes, Rita Butler.
Le Beau, a courtier—Vera Miller.
Charles, wrestler to Duke, Frederick—Mollie White.
Oliver, Jacques, Orlando (sons of Sir Rowland de Bois)—Muriel Earle, Phyllis Rennie, Grace Watson.
Adam, Dennis (Servants to Oliver)—Ruth Davidson, Florence Pitcher.
Touchstone, a clown—Rosie Goldstone.
Sir Oliver Martext, a vicar—Jean MacDonald.
Corin, Silvius (Shepherds)—Muriel Butler, Helen Thompson.
William, a country fellow in love with Audrey—Doris Curlew.
A person representing the goddess Hymen—Shirley Green.
Rosalind, daughter to the banished Duke—Trilix Noseworthy.
Celia, daughter to Frederick—Maxie Butler.
Phebe, a Shepherdess—Gertrude Bolt.
Audrey, a country wench—May Blandford.
Court Lords, Court Ladies, Foresters, Pages, Shepherds and Shepherdesses, Hymen's Train, Children, Boys made up the ensemble. The orchestra was arranged by Mrs. Brian Dunfield, and added greatly to the success of the play by its delightful accompaniments to the various songs and dances.

MAE MARSH STARS IN "NOBODY'S KID." "Nobody's Kid," the Robertson-Cole production which is the principal attraction at the Crescent Theatre to-day is a film adaptation of Kate Langley Bosher's popular novel. In the screen version, Mae Marsh has a role which allows her full scope for the expression of that pathetic appeal and sympathy of her quaint personality which won her lasting fame as a screen star. It is a beautiful story of a quaint little girl, who is an inmate of an orphan asylum, but whose heart is of gold, and whose love brought sunshine and comfort to others, teaching that there is a nobler understanding of life through suffering and sympathy. In addition to this, Miss Betty Donn will treat her hearers to an excellent vocal programme consisting of "Tell Her at Twilight" and "Love's Old Sweet Song." Here is something worth hearing, and doubtless this opportunity will not be missed by the music-loving public.

The Unemployment Situation.

DISSATISFACTION OVER RELIEF WORK.

Yesterday afternoon the Committee of the Unemployed began the selection of 50 men to work on the Sanitarium pipe line, but they had scarcely commenced when a large number of men, who had assembled in front of the Employment Bureau began to express their dissatisfaction over the arrangements. Apparently the men wanted employment for 500, and they would not consent to work on a contract job. When the first few names were called out a rush was made to get into the Militia Building, and the police had a trying time to prevent the crowd from getting through. Mr. Bennett, one of the Committee men, coming out of the building urged the men to be orderly and satisfactory arrangements would be made. The men, however, were not assured and doubting the intentions of their representatives they called a new committee. With this end in view a large number left the scene and assembled in Bannerman Park, where they were addressed from the Band Stand by Mr. Caleb Robins. He urged the men to restrain themselves and allow the 250 men to go to work. In the meantime he promised to investigate the conditions of the contracts and see that the Committee did not show favour. He said it was not fair to expect men from the East End to be compelled to go as far as the Water Works or Waterford Bridge for employment, and they should see that work was given them in their own end of the district. Efforts to form another committee, however, failed and the men returned to the Militia Building. The work on the pipe line starts to-day and Mr. John Davy has been given the contract. As soon as tenders have been accepted another 150 men will be given work on the Asylum Road, and an additional fifty will be engaged making preparations for the new cash stands.

"The Road of Ambition"

From a labourer in the steel mills to a power in the financial world is the feat accomplished overnight by Conway Tearle as Bill Matthews in "The Road of Ambition," the new Selznick Picture, which will be the feature attraction at the Majestic Theatre to-day.

The story which is by Elaine Sterne, is that of a young man, who, through an invention for the betterment of steel output, is lifted from sordid surroundings to a world wherein he becomes a great power. He has phenomenal success with every venture he embarks upon, but finds himself handicapped by lack of the fitness and polish of the people he associates with. He is educated and introduced into society by a young woman to one of the best families, who is in need of money. In spite of having riches and everything he had dreamed of all his life, Bill finds himself unhappy because of his inability of being able to win the love of the girl he adores. However, she marries him to save her father from financial ruin, telling him frankly that she does not love him. But in the end she realizes his true worth and grows to return his affection.

William P. S. Earle, the director, has woven the story into one of the strongest pictures of the year, and Mr. Tearle is ably supported by Florence Dixon, Gladden James, Tom Brooks, Tom McGuire, Adolf Millar, and Florence Billings.

Copper Eskimos.

The least known and most primitive denizens of the far north are the Copper Eskimos, who make their home at Coronation Gulf. The strange lives and beliefs of these people are made known in the report of Dr. Jenness, ethnologist with the southern party of the Canadian Arctic expedition of 1913-18. According to Mr. Jenness, who spent a year with the Copper Eskimos, they believe the earth to be a great expanse of land and water at whose four corners stand wooden columns supporting the heavens. On the surface of the sky is another world like our own, across which wander the semi-spiritual beings—the sun, moon and stars. The sun is a man, save his woman, and the moon is a man, and the mountains on the moon are the man's dogs. The stars were once human beings, and animals and the constellation which we know as the "belt of Orion" they believe to have been a party of sealers who never returned to camp. They think that their land is surrounded by races of men who are only semi-human. Their main recreations are singing and dancing.

NEW PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED.

Last night was a busy one at the C.L.B. Armoury. There was a large attendance in both companies and the recruits.

The following officers were present: Lt.-Col. Goodridge, O.C.; Major R. H. Tait, M.C., Adjutant; Major Williams, Capt. Miles, Snow, Lieut. P. B. Rendell, Perlin, Mott, R. G. Ash; Geo. Hunt, the last two being in mufti.

After prayers had been read by the Duty Chaplain, Rev. J. Brinton, the Battalion was sent for a route march under Capt. Snow.

Two squads of recruits were examined by the Adjutant, Major R. H. Tait, M.C., and a large number were ordered to be posted next week.

Lieut. Ash was on duty with the school. His work is making rapid progress.

During the evening, Lt.-Col. Goodridge and other officers visited the rooms in the Armoury where Mr. F. L. Southgate conducts his wireless school, and were afforded an opportunity of hearing a concert broadcasted from the headquarters in St. John's of the Marconi Company. Mr. Southgate has already erected an aerial on the C.L.B. Armoury at Bell Island and established communication. He hopes Major Dawe will establish a wireless on the Armoury at Bay Roberts and Major Anderson will erect an aerial at Heart's Content for the education of C.L.B. lads and to keep in touch with C.L.B. headquarters in St. John's. It is hoped the idea will spread, as the cost is very small, until all C.L.B. Companies over Newfoundland will have the benefit of securing an education in wireless telegraphy and in this means be able to secure good positions as wireless operators—as the lads could practice by signalling between stations besides learning the news of the day.

The Athletic Association are holding their annual indoor sports on May 18th and many lads are practicing hard for the various events. An excellent programme has been arranged and is sure to please all who attend. C.S.M. B. Colton is receiving the entries.

On Monday next the Warrant and N.C.O.'s are holding their annual at Home in the C.C.C. Hall. The Band will provide the music and the evening should prove most enjoyable. The Ladies' Auxiliary is looking after the catering.

Last Thursday the exams for the Outerbridge Shield competition took place. The exam, consisted of manual, physical and gymnastic marching with further points given for attendance, payment of lads' dues and general appearance. The judge was Capt. Jeffrey, of C Co., assisted by Major R. H. Tait, M.C., Adjutant. The various items were keenly contested and much interest and anxiety prevailed as to which section commander and section has carried off the prize. Announcement will be made about 1st.

An N.C.O.'s class has been formed under Regt.-Sergt. Major Kniffell, Company Serjt.-Majors Best, Andrews, Colton and are seen "hard at it" after evening parades. These lads will be examined for the promotions to Lance-Corporals, Corporals and Sergeants shortly and will receive their stripes if they are entitled to them the first June.

Orders last night announced that the following officers were promoted to the rank of Lieutenants: Second Lieuts. Mott, Harold C. Hayward, George Hunt, A. B. Perlin and Fred Reid.

A large number of Old Comrades were in their rooms last night. Treas. White, Albert Blackler and others were present. Another group of hilliards were busy at the game and their favorite cue in use was the "Sonny Whittier" on account of its convenient size. They hope to start building their addition for a nicely furnished reading room.

Recent visitors to the Armoury were Mr. H. King, an ex-naval man who is the enthusiastic drill instructor at L'Anse-au-Loup where Rev. H. Kirby, Chaplain, is organizing a C. L. B. Company. This detachment had a shipment of kits sent along lately and Mr. King was arranging for further supplies to go "up the line" to his outpost. Mr. King was warmly received by Col. Goodridge and officers and shown through all the departments. Bandman Sheppard of Bell Island visited Headquarters last night and was shown around by Major Williams. Bandman Sheppard has been invalided to the Depot for medical attention. Badges have now been ordered for the Ladies' Auxiliary.

WORK.
Work is always hard to do. Every one of us prefers roses under skies of blue. To the briars and cockleburrs.
But there is no beauty here. But is born of someone's toil. For the rose which blossoms near. Someone had to till the soil.
Work is father of the smile. On a glad child's morning face. Every joy that is worth while. Work has fashioned in its place.
Work has builded all we know. Stitched the clothing that we wear. Set our houses in a row. Leveled every thoroughfare.
And that sometimes we may pay. By the laughing river's brink. Sweet with all the blooms of May. Even God must work, I think.

Whispers That Start Avalanches.

Avalanches are sometimes started by the most trivial causes. Even a whisper has been known to set them off, and many a life has been lost by a climber shouting to his comrades while crossing a snow slope. The tinkle of sleigh bells was said to be responsible for a terrible fall which swept away a caravan of sleighs crossing a dangerous Alpine pass some years ago. Now the use of bells on this route is strictly forbidden. Visitors to Switzerland often ask what purpose is served by the little wall-like objects dotted about the great scars which mark many of the steep mountain slopes in summer.

These are avalanche breakers, without which traffic on many of the Alpine lines and passes would be impossible.

Experience has shown that it is futile trying to stop an avalanche by placing obstructions, no matter what their thickness may be, across the foot of its track. One the mass has gained momentum it will obliterate with the greatest ease walls, forests, and anything else that gets in its way. In a recent case in the Rhone Valley entire fields over an area of four hundred square yards were displaced by a huge fall of rock, turning the flat plain into an elevated plateau. To prevent these great masses of snow and rock from "getting a move on," thick stone barriers are built across the tracks usually taken by an avalanche, sometimes up to its starting point on the summit of the mountain.

This is both arduous and dangerous, as much of the material has to be transported on the backs of labourers along slopes affording only a precarious foothold. Some valleys, however, are too steep for work of this kind, so other measures have to be adopted.

This is the case with the famous Lotschberg line, which just before it enters the Rhone Valley at a height of 4000 feet runs through a series of rock tunnels. Over the tops of these the great spring avalanches thunder harmlessly down to the valley below. Visitors to Zermatt in the early summer often enjoy the experience of passing through the "snouts" of several avalanches which annually drop across the railway line in spring. As the mass has spent its force, however, there is no longer any danger.

Avalanches are nothing if not regular in their habits, and when and where they are likely to fall can be told to a nicety by inhabitants of the district. How a case of champagne was lost by an avalanche not appearing to schedule, so to speak, is shown by an incident which happened this winter in the Engadine. Snow of the powdery variety had been falling for two days, and one of a party of Americans was discussing with the hotel manager their chances of crossing the Bernine to Italy on the morrow. "Bet you a case of champagne we get through all right," quoth he. "Done!" said our host, "and if you have to come back I'll put you up free for the rest of the week."

The American won, but by the narrowest of margins, the expected avalanche falling not ten minutes after the train had crossed the danger zone. It took several days to clear the line of snow.

Are We Losing Our Markets?

Export trade in codfish with the Republic of Brazil is a branch of commerce which Newfoundland should make every endeavor to conserve. The history of past trade has shown that our command of that market has been, in a sense, indisputable, and though competitors have made a bid for supremacy, it is nevertheless a country which Newfoundland cannot afford to lose in the struggle for existence.

Referring to the various articles which have appeared in print recently on Newfoundland's early trade with Brazil, we have entered into communication with the successors of the old Jersey firms on the West Coast, who catered to this trade in years gone by, and made a speciality of Brazilian cured codfish, which ever commanded top-notch prices in the markets to which it was sent.

time they never thought of shipping fish to Argentina ports nor yet to Uruguay though a large market was available for fish in these countries, providing the cure and mode of packing was as required. The same applies to-day. Twenty millions of people in Brazil want codfish. Other millions outside the biggest Republic in the South also demand large quantities of fish food.

THE COMMERCIAL ASPECT OF THE SALMON FISHERY.

The title of "The Sportman's Paradise" has so long been associated with Newfoundland that very few realize the possibility of our salmon fishery one of the chief causes for the name, over-diminishing. If this should happen, as it well may if our rivers are not properly protected, the results would be almost disastrous for not only does the salmon fishery attract sportsmen to the country, but it also has a commercial aspect which is generally overlooked.

HIS DIARY. May 9th.—Mr. Cotton takes me for a cruise about the harbor in his new gasolene launch. The weather cold, but the trip a pleasant one. He tells me how he will develop the lead near Hawk's Bay on the North West Coast and will use the launch there. So to wait on Hon. J. Anderson and he gives me a portrait of his son. I did have discourse with Mr. E. H. Cowan of the Rotary Club but cannot go to the luncheon, as he asks me, being that I have much business to do. The House sits on the Cable Resolutions which pass. I meet Mr. W. L. Woods and we did fall into a lengthy discourse on books. So to the C.I.B. Armoury where Lieut. Colonel Goodridge and I hear a concert by wireless in Mr. Southgate's office. A most amusing thing, and such as I did never think I would live to see. Anon to go to see "As You Like It," an old play of Shakespeare's, acted. The house mighty full. The play has great wit, and is good above ordinary plays.

Charged With Larceny.

ONE ACCUSED GETS SIX MONTHS. Four young men were charged before Judge Morris this morning with the larceny of goods to the value of $65 from the shop of Mr. Alex Parsons, Goodridge Street. Among the stolen articles were pickles, tinned vegetables and fruit, an alarm clock, a lamp and cigarettes. Three of the accused pleaded not guilty. The fourth turned King's Evidence and gave an account of the manner in which the shop had been burgled. They had hidden the stolen goods near Westerland Farm and used to go in and eat part of the tinned goods and the sausage. The three other prisoners denied witness' story in the box. The first was sentenced to six months and the other three were discharged.

Looking for Supplies.

PLACENTA & ST. MARY'S MEN INTERVIEW PRIME MINISTER. About 70 men from the District of Placenta & St. Mary's, through their representatives, called on the Prime Minister this forenoon, regarding the matter of fishery supplies. Conditions reported to be critical in the district, and should the fishermen not be able to prosecute the fishery, relief works will have to be given. The Prime Minister, it is understood, is giving the matter his consideration.

Sale and Concert.

ST. THOMAS'S WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION HAVE SUCCESSFUL DAY. A sale of work held by the St. Thomas's Women's Association yesterday in the Canon Wood Hall, closed with an excellent concert last night. The sale was very successful and there was a capacity audience to hear the concert which was one of the best held here for some time. The programme was, as follows: Song, Miss Mitchell; duet, Messrs. Ricketts and Williams; song, Mrs. W. C. Job; recitation, Mr. T. H. O'Neill; song, Mrs. F. J. King; song, Miss E. Herder; song, Mr. Ruggles; song, Mrs. Christian; Terpsichorean Art, Miss Mews; followed by the one-act drama "Pros and Cons." Mrs. Outerbridge and Company, God Save the King.

Paid for Dancing.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Please allow me space to reply to a letter signed Peter Oliver, published in yesterday's issue of your valuable paper. Mr. Oliver has forgotten about the time he had the Thornburn Road to do and the manner in which he paid his men. In reference to the Topsall Road there were nine men employed instead of five as stated and some of them were paid for dancing.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, May 10. Mercolized Wax is well known in this country for both winter and summer use, but it is perhaps in warm weather that it is most valued for night use to remove sunburn and tan, and to preserve and improve the complexion. Those who use it habitually say there is nothing quite like it for its purpose, and praise it highly. We have just gotten in our stock of Mercolized Wax for the coming summer, and recommend it to all who want a specially good cold cream. Price $1.40 a box.

Friend Secured Bondsmen.

THE BURNSTEIN ARSON CASE. Mr. Joseph Burnstein who was yesterday charged with the crime of arson in the Magistrate's Court, secured bail, through the solicitations of a friend in the persons of Messrs. J. J. Murphy and Joseph Sellers, their sureties being in the sum of $3000 each. The Crown is not yet ready to proceed with the case, but a preliminary enquiry will be held within a day or two.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

WILL CONTINUE FLIGHT. LISBON, May 10. The Portuguese transatlantic aviators Constable and Casadura, planned to leave St. Paul's Rocks this morning for the Island of Fernando, Noronha, off the Brazilian coast, in continuance of their voyage from Lisbon to Rio Janeiro, according to advices received last night. The resumption of the flight is made possible by the shipment from here of a new seaplane to replace the one demolished on landing at the Rocks on April 15. From St. Paul Rocks to Fernando, Noronha, is approximately four hundred miles, thence to Pernambuco on the Brazilian coast about 300 miles and thence to Rio Janeiro 1,300 miles.

REPLY PRESENTED.

GENOVA, May 10. The Russian reply to the Allied Memorandum was handed to the Allied Conference here at 10.30 this morning. FAILED. LONDON, May 10. It is reported here this morning says a Central News despatch from Dublin that the Peace Committee of Daily Express which has been endeavoring to find a basis for unity of all factions in Ireland, has failed to reach a settlement.

FOR RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

GENOVA, May 10. Monsignor Pizzardo of the Papal Secretary of State's office, has handed the French delegation, "The Holy See desires that religious interests, which are the basis of all true civilization, be safeguarded in Russia, and consequently the Holy See asks that in the agreement which will be made with the powers, represented at Genoa, there shall be inserted in some manner, but most explicitly following the two first clauses that a full freedom of conscience for all Russian citizens, and foreigners will be guaranteed in Russia. The second is that the private and public practice of religious creeds also shall be guaranteed."

Employment Committee Deny Rumor.

It has been circulated amongst the unemployed that the contracts for the different road work which is now being tendered for will be open to outport contractors. This, however, is not true, as the work will be open for the unemployed of the city only. The men selected for the work will be recommended by the Unemployed Committee to the contractors. This information is supplied the Telegram by Mr. J. Sexton, Secretary of the Unemployed Committee.

SEALING SHIPS DELAYED BY FOG.

Messrs. Job Bros. & Co. received a wireless message last night from Capt. Winsor of S.S. Thetis, stating that the ship was in a dense fog 15 miles east of the Funks. Nothing has been heard from S.S. Ranger, but both ships are expected to reach Westville as soon as the fog lifts.

PELLEWOOD SOLD.

The rumor that all the pulpwood cut last winter for relief work is sold is probably true. It is understood that the sale is being negotiated with a large American concern. The contracts given last winter would probably cover about 250,000 cords, but the returns show that only about 62,000 have been cut.

At the House.
CABLE RESOLUTIONS PASSED.
 The Cable Resolutions were briefly discussed yesterday afternoon and passed through Committee. The House then adjourned until Thursday when the Prime Minister promised to introduce the proposed railway legislation. The most interesting information imparted during question time was the Prime Minister's answer to Mr. Moore's question concerning the amount of money owed by Mr. E. Colishaw to the railway on account of freight. The answer was that Mr. Colishaw owed $11,991.17 and had entered a counter claim of a little over $1000 for lumber, labour and freight overcharges. Steps would be taken to obtain payment, but until Mr. Colishaw returns to Newfoundland nothing can be done in connection with the disputed amount.
THE CABLE RESOLUTIONS.
 When the House went into Committee on the Cable Resolutions, Sir Michael Cashin made brief comment on them. He had already expressed an opinion on this matter and there was little he could add to his former remarks. The Minister of Posts, in introducing the resolutions, forgot to mention the offers made by other cable companies. After hearing the offer made by the Anglo Company in 1919, how could the Minister justify the present contract? Sir Michael read the offer made by the Anglo Company in 1918-19. A contract with this company would be more beneficial than one with any other company, as the Anglo people had fifty offices and over 600 miles of wire throughout the country. Consequently they did three times the business of other companies. Owing to the delay in coming to terms with the Anglo Company, the original offer was withdrawn and for it was substituted one which the country could not accept. Sir Michael then asked if it were true that the British Admiralty had offered the Mount Pearl wireless installation to the Government.
 The Prime Minister said the Admiralty contemplates discarding the station for various reasons. He thought the Government would be enabled to get it very cheaply.
 Sir Michael Cashin impressed upon the Government the fact that messages could be transmitted at a much lower cost by wireless than by cable. Some arrangement whereby wireless could be utilized should be made.
 Mr. Hallyard said the beauty of the contract with the Commercial Cable Company was that there was no monopoly and the Government were free to make a wireless contract when they so wished.
 Sir Michael Cashin said he was glad that something was being done, but he wished it to be made clear that the Government's neglect had lost the Colony $200,000.
 Mr. Hallyard admitted this, but declared the responsibility was on the Government which cancelled the arrangements with the Commercial Cable Company in 1919.
 Mr. Higgins laid stress upon the rapid progress of wireless, and the fact that its commercial utility was fast being recognized. He passed some comment upon the enormous loss due to inaction in cable matters. The Resolutions passed Committee.
 The Prime Minister promised the Railway legislation for the next sitting.
 The House adjourned until Thursday, Mr. Walsh speaking on the matter of supplies on the motion to adjourn.

STORY OF WOMAN'S VENGEANCE TOWARD HER ENEMY.
 One of the strongest melodramatic photoplays seen in St. John's in twenty years is the attraction at the Nickel Theatre to-day. The picture is entitled "Love's Penalty". The sister of Janis Clayton trusts Stephen Saunders and is betrayed. When she finds that he has married another woman, the girl kills herself. Saunders is the general manager of a steamship line. The disgrace of her daughter's suicide kills Mrs. Clayton, and Janis swears to revenge them both. Her lover, Bud Morgan pleads with her to marry him and is met with the answer, "Not until the slayer of my sister and my mother has entered the tortures he deserves. Three years later Janis has become the private secretary of Saunders. He sends his wife and child to Europe and, encouraged by Janis, devotes his leisure time to his secretary. Janis afterwards informs him that he has fallen into a trap and threatens him. The climax of this tremendous story is one that will grip you fast. Don't miss this dramatic story. Mr. Kelly sings, "On the Road to Mandalay" and "Annie Laurie."

 (1) A stay of two days in Southampton.
 (2) A sojourn of about six days in Oxford, where accommodation will be provided in College residences.
 (3) About two weeks will be spent in London whence excursions will be made to Windsor, Eton, Greenwich, Canterbury, etc.
 (4) Some twelve days will be spent in Paris (again in University residences) whence excursions will be made to certain parts of the battlefields.
 (5) On the return journey, visits to the English Lake Districts and parts of Scotland will be made. Newfoundland teachers will travel outwards by the S.S. Digby, leaving here about July 1st and inwards by the same steamer, leaving Liverpool about September 1st. The whole tour will cost about $450.00. This is a grand opportunity. Application should be made to one of the Superintendents of Education, who are members of the Executive Committee of the Overseas Education League.

America's New Radio Station.

SENDS MESSAGES ALL OVER THE WORLD.

The most colossal wireless station ever built is now in full working order and, night and day, messages are flashing through space to all parts of the world.

The station is situated near Fort Jefferson, Long Island, about seventy miles from New York.

It was declared open in an official ceremony by President Harding, despite the fact that he never visited the station.

This is not a paradox: the President sat at his desk in Washington, and pressed a button which set in motion, an automatic sending device which was electrically coupled to the wireless station.

The President's message was received by wireless stations in twenty-nine countries. The writer received it on a home-made wireless set with an aerial erected in a suburban back garden.

Within a few minutes the various countries sent out their replies—from Britain, Germany, Norway, Sweden, France, Italy, etc.

The site of the new station covers ten square miles. The aerial is supported by six steel towers, each four hundred and ten feet high.

THE CENTRE OF COMMUNICATION

The latest transmitting devices which are installed permit a sending speed of one hundred words a minute; by an ingenious arrangement twelve messages entirely different may be sent simultaneously.

The transmitting range is world-wide; there is no part of the globe that the wireless waves, which travel through the ether, cannot reach; and another unique feature about the transmitter is that it is controlled from a head office in New York, seventy miles away.

The receiving station is placed some sixteen miles away from the transmitter. No operators are stationed there either, as the signals are automatically transferred on reception to land telegraph wires and received in New York.

The action is simultaneous from the moment the signals are sent out abroad; picked up by the wireless receiver, to the moment of actual sending by the operators at the New York office.

England has taken full advantage of her geographical position to control European cable lines, and America is evidently going to follow our example; for with the construction of the gigantic radio station, America becomes the virtual centre of the world's wireless communication.

Poland has already contracted for a station. An agreement has also been made with Britain, France and Germany, that a new high power station in Chilt shall be jointly owned and operated.

Another wireless "giant" is proposed for Brazil; and others will soon be built in South America. But of all these, the Radio Central—as the new Station on Long Island is called—will be supreme!

Suede belts in colors are worn with gingham frocks.

Monkey fur appears on many of the black crepe wraps.

Fashion deprecates that buckskin gloves will have a vogue.

Mr. Montagu.

THE MAN WHO HAS HIT BACK.

Mr. Edwin Samuel Montagu, whose exposure of Mr. Lloyd George's methods is the political sensation of the hour, comes from that very orthodox Jewish family which controls the prosperous bullion broking firm of Samuel Montagu and Co. in Old Broadstreet, E.C., whose main business is the buying and selling of silver. His father, the first Lord Swaythling, son of Louis Samuel, a Liverpool watchmaker—the surname Montagu was assumed by royal license—familiar in the city by reason of his patriarchal white beard, left the comfortable fortune of a million and a half to his children on condition that they remained Jews and married persons proposed the same faith. The Hon. Venetia Stanley, the youngest daughter of Lord Sheffield the educationalist and close friend of Mr. Asquith, before marrying Mr. Montagu became a convert to Judaism.

It was probably his friendship with Mr. Asquith that introduced Mr. Montagu to his wife; it was certainly his friendship with Mr. Asquith that gave him his first chance in politics. Educated at the City of London School (as was Mr. Asquith) and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he was president of the Union Society, he entered Parliament in 1906 as Liberal representative for the Chesterton division of Cambridgeshire.

Mr. Asquith struck by his cleverness, made him his private secretary and successively advanced him as Under-Secretary for India, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Chancellor of the Duchy, and Minister of Munitions.

When Mr. Asquith fell, his clever young friend also lost his job, but Mr. Lloyd George with the tempting bait of the Indian Office drew him from the Asquithian camp into his own fold, and only the influence of Mrs. Montagu some time later made it up between the old man and his errant protegee.

Mr. Montagu, who is only 43 years of age, has not yet shed either the appetites of youth or the supercilious manner which accounts to some extent for his unpopularity among the Tories (in his day, equally hostile to young Disraeli).

Tall, loosely built, and addicted to a monocle, he has the gift of getting on, but not the gift of "mixing." Daily Mail.

B. W. I.-Canada Pact Stimulating Trade.

Canadian products are very popular in the British West Indies and the natives have a very warm feeling for the people of Canada, according to Hon. F. B. McCurdy, who has just returned from Trinidad and Jamaica, where he was staying for some months.

"The West Indies have not been immune from the depression so evident in other countries," said Mr. McCurdy, "but the people are facing the future with confidence."

"A topic frequently discussed everywhere among the people there, is Canada. The trade agreement with the West Indies which recently became effective has done a great deal to increase trade between the two countries. There is still a large market, however, which can be developed by Canadian exporters which will solve the question of supplying goods in the form of quantities required. The West Indies is an old country and the established customs should be cultivated if further trade progress is to be made."—Family Herald.

Vancouver Island Grass Always Green.

GOLFERS PLAY AT CHRISTMAS.

Vancouver Island folk pick roses in the garden when Christmas bells are ringing and the golfer is never off his game so far as being able to play is concerned, because there he can drive, approach the green, and putt almost every day in the year. In the fall and during the winter the grass is rich and green, and bloom is perpetual. This is due to the warming influence of the Japan current, which is the Gulf Stream of the Pacific Ocean. Vancouver Island was named after Captain George Vancouver, of the British navy, who discovered it in 1792, and has an estimated area of 15,000 square miles. Its trees, among them the stately Douglas fir, which towers 300 feet above the roads over which the traveler glides by automobile, or by the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway which runs northward through half the length of the island, are magnificent beyond description, some of them being six or seven feet in diameter. Along the road are many comfortable hotels and country chalets, many of them like the Inns one finds on English country roads. Vancouver Daily World.

A Crown of Steel.

A royal crown is associated in the popular mind with gold and jewels. There is one crown at least which is of plain steel, the symbol of an indomitable people who have just regained their freedom after it had been apparently quenched by the Hun. On State occasions it is assumed by King Ferdinand of Roumania.

It was made by command of the late King Charles, from the steel of a Turkish gun captured at Plevna, the siege which won Roumania independence in the Russo-Turkish War. On May 10, 1881, after the steel crown had been consecrated by the Metropolitan King Charles took it in his hands with the words:—

"I assume with pride this crown, wrought from a cannon sprinkled with the blood of our heroes, and consecrated by the church. I accept it as a symbol of the independence and power of Roumania."

To-day this crown remains as a fitting symbol of a brave people and a brave king.

The Great Antarctic Ice Cap.

What will be the end of the world has always been a fascinating subject. Will it come in a fiery cataclysm? Or will heat die away and all life expire under an intense cold? Or will there be a deluge?

Some leading geologists have it, that this last, in spite of the rain-bow's promise, appears to be more probable than either of the others. Maybe history of the earth will repeat itself then.

When the Antarctic ice cap began to form aeons ago is commenced pulling the waters of the world over the equator into the Southern Hemisphere.

There are prehistoric sea margins which to-day reveal that the ocean once stood at a much higher level than it does to-day. In British Columbia and southward—along the Rocky Mountains, Andes, and highlands, and running summits of the Old World, these tidal records are found; and everywhere at an average of a thousand feet higher than at present.

It has been averred the enormous mass of water now missing is contained in the ice cap of the Antarctic. And the ice cap, increasing in immensity and weight, has slowly but surely displaced the centre of the earth's gravity to the southward until it is two or three miles from the position held before the ice cap began to accumulate.

Some scientists deduce more than that. The development, they state, of the immeasurable glaciers at the South Pole is reaching the point which may immediately precede the eruption of them into parts. Then at any time after this danger has come about the breaking up of those many billions of cubic miles of ice will let loose all the accumulated waters of the Southern Hemisphere. And it comprises four-fifths of the entire waters of this globe. These waters, when thus freed, will set in a flow northward.

THE SWEEP OF THE WATERS.
They will surge across the equator, bearing on their surface the gigantic remains of the Antarctic ice caps. This oceanic cataclysm will gradually sweep into Australia and Africa, and invade the low-lying lands of Asia, and the Americas and Europe. These will be flooded, hundreds of fathoms deep, and the ice fields still afloat remold in their passage the higher contours of the deluged lands. Only the mountain tops can escape.

The disintegration of the glaciers and ice ranges of the ice ranges of the Antarctic spells the end of this world to all its inhabited continents, for the water will engulf them. Man-kin will flee to the mountain tops. And where for ages has been all ice and snow, as at this day, a new hemisphere will come into existence and life will slowly evolve itself once more.

But, may not something similar have happened in the primordial past, and proceeding from the Arctic? The Deluge, apart from the Biblical relation of it, is discredited in many quarters to-day. Yet there is no tradition so universal in general terms. It cannot be accounted for on the hypothesis that nations in the same stage of civilization arrive at nearly the same results for the tradition of a deluge has not been—and is not—confined to civilization. Nor is it to be accounted for by immigrant influences from Asia, invading—say, the Pacific region and the Americas.

What did that good scientist, the late Lord Salisbury, once say? That is half imagination. But science is deadlier accurate.

One of the Oddest Houses on Earth.

One of the oddest dwellings in the world is that erected at Yokohama by a noted Japanese bacteriologist. It may be described as a dustproof, airproof, and germproof building of glass, which stands on the open, unshaded grounds of the hospital of Yokohama. The house is forty-four feet long, twenty-three feet wide and seven feet high. Large panes of glass, one-half inch thick and about four inches apart, are set in iron frames so as to form the sides of a cellular building block. Of these blocks the walls are constructed.

There are no window sashes, the air escape being through several small openings around the upper part of the second story, but through which no air from the outside is admitted. The air supply is obtained from a considerable distance, forced through a pipe and carefully filtered through cotton wool to cleanse it of bacteria. To insure further protection and sterilization, the air is driven against a glycerine-coated plate of glass, which captures all the germs the wool spares. The few germs brought into the house in the clothes of the visitors will soon die in the warm sunlight with which the place is flooded.

The space between the glasses of the building blocks is filled with a solution of salts which absorbs the heat of the sun, so that the rooms of the house are much cooler than those protected by the thickest of shades. In the evening the place is heated by the salts radiating the heat they have absorbed during the day. So effective is the system of regulating the temperature that a few hours of sunlight, even in freezing weather, will render the house habitable. It is only when several cloudy days follow in succession that artificial heat is needed. Then it is supplied by pumping in hot air.

Fleischmann's fresh yeast helps digestion and cleans a coated tongue

The familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast is sold

THOUSANDS of men and women have found relief from various digestive disturbances by eating Fleischmann's Yeast.

It is human nature to want to find out "why." So far as science can tell us this is the reason:

Fleischmann's Yeast is a food abundant in certain elements which are necessary to health and life itself. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juice. It has a remarkably beneficial effect on the whole digestive system. It cleans a coated tongue.

Try Fleischmann's fresh yeast in orange juice or, if you prefer, in milk. Men like it in milk shakes and malted milk. Women like it spread on bread or crackers.

Keep your digestion in the pink of condition and your tongue clean and healthy by eating 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast fresh every day before or between meals. Get Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily from your grocer.

Indian Mutiny Began.

On the 10th May, 1858, began the great Indian Mutiny, which was in reality a military revolt, following on general unrest all over India, and a feeling of uneasiness with regard to the future policy of the government. Our setback in the Afghan and Crimean wars had damaged our reputation, and the adoption of greased cartridges in India, which the Hindus regarded as an outrage on their religious sentiments, furnished an opportunity for the outbreak. The native mutineers at once seized Delhi, and set up as their leader the old king of Delhi, Sir George Grey the governor of the Cape, realising the gravity of the situation, sent to India troops, which were on their way to China, while Outram and Havelock opportunely arrived from Persia. The British besieged Delhi, and held the Ganges between Calcutta and Benares. At Cawnpur the English garrison with women and children were massacred, but the defence of Lucknow was relieved by Havelock, and again in November by Colin Campbell. Delhi was captured in December, and the sons of the old king (who was spared) were shot. Early in 1859 Lucknow and the other chief strategic points, having been recovered by the British troops, the rebellion came to an end. The result of the mutiny was the transference of the powers of the East India Company, which had before then been paramount to the British Crown.

A Bad Climate For Blondes.

American men with blonde wives or sweethearts are advised to compel them, if they become too temperamental, to wear dark glasses. The author of the advice is Dr. R. C. Augustine, president of the American Ophthalmic Association, which at its annual convention in Chicago, indulged in a scientific discussion on the rival attractions of blondes and brunettes. The conclusion arrived at was that the American climate is not suitable for blondes. "The glaring sunlight," said Dr. Augustine, "irritates their nerves."

Wedding Bells.

JAMES DOBBIN.

On Monday evening at 8 o'clock the Ven. Archbishop Armitage officiated at his residence, 90 Spring Garden Road, at the marriage of Jack James, of Halifax, and Julia Dobbin, daughter of the late Richard Dobbin, of St. John's, Nfld. The bride wore a costume of sand colored cloth, with sprig hat of blue, and corsage of roses. The groom was supported by Bert Redmond, of Halifax, and the bridesmaid was Miss Mary E. Woods, of Cornwall St. The bride was given in marriage by Mrs. Woods. Mr. and Mrs. James will reside on Duke street.

To Clean Venetian Blinds.

Let down the blinds, secure the cord to its hook, and untie the knots at the end of the blind, slip out the laths one by one, and see that the two cords are hanging straight. This thick lath at the bottom of the blind can be washed without removing it. Wipe the webbing and cords with a damp cloth; wash the laths singly with soapy water, using a soft brush, and dry them thoroughly. Put them back in their places, one by one, re-thread the cord, and knot firmly. If you are putting in a new cord, sew the end of it to the old end, and by this means pull the new piece over the rollers. That done, cut off the old cord, and fasten the new in its place. Then thread the laths.

Ancient's Wisdom.

A great civilization flourished in the valley of the Nile some 3000 B.C. These Egyptians worshipped the dung beetle, the scarabaeus, possibly recognizing its scavenging powers. The well of Joseph, near the great pyramid, is excavated through nearly 300 feet of solid rock. The ancient Hebrews were the founders of real public health. The laws of Moses, who was born about 1600 B.C., the first hygienic code known, apply about as well to-day as when first promulgated.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

EVASIVE REPLY.
GENEVA, May 10.
The Russian reply, says the Central News, requests that clause seven of the memorandum be referred to an International Committee of Experts, with Russia represented. With regard to war debts, the Allies asked what exact discount would be made if debts were acknowledged. On the whole the reply is evasive.

EUROPEAN QUESTIONS.

GENEVA, May 10.
The eighteenth session of the council of the League of Nations will open here to-morrow with the prospect of several important questions, now before the Geneva Economic Conference, coming up for discussion. The possibility, for one thing, of the League going extensively into Russian questions is seen in a request by Norway asking for an independent inquiry into the famine in Russia. The session is expected to last a week. One of the chief features will be the signing of an economic treaty between Germany and Poland, regarding upper Silesia. This treaty, which represents six months work by the League, is more than five hundred pages long. It constitutes in effect a final settlement of the vexed upper Silesian problem.

Comets Plentiful.

Seven comets which have been seen on previous occasions are expected to return to the vicinity of the earth this year. If they all keep their appointments, and the average number of new comets turn up, astronomers will have at least a full dozen under observation between now and December 31. But there is reason to fear that some of the seven old comets have met with mishaps while howling along through space, and they have either been shattered into unrecognizable debris, or diverted into quite different orbits. There is, however, little romance now in comet-finding, as was the case when heroic comet-hunters swept the skies all night in hope of dropping on one. Now they set traps for them—combination of telescopes and cameras turning into unison with the rotation of the earth on its axis—and go to bed until morning, when they develop the plates and examine them from the tell-tale marks which betray any comets that may have entered the region of the sky. ### McMILLAN SAYS HE NOW IS IN BEST OF SHAPE.

Halifax Builder Asserts He Found Full Relief In Tanlac After Ten Years Of Stubborn Stomach Trouble.

"Tanlac put me in perfect health and I can do as big a day's work as I ever did in my life," said Murdoch D. McMillan, a well-known carpenter living at 61 St. Albans St., Halifax, N.S.
"I have suffered from the worst sort of indigestion for the past ten years. All I could take was liquid food and sometimes even this turned against me. At one time I was in the hospital for over two months. There was a fearful burning in my stomach that would come up to my throat. I also had spells of dizziness and my sleep was always restless."
"But Tanlac fixed me up in no time. I eat anything, sleep fine, and never suffer any more pain. In fact Tanlac fixed me up as fine as I could be."
Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Electricity Versus Ignorance.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—I notice in the columns of your paper that the cause of the $150,000 conflagration at the Martello Royal Stores is ascribed to defective electric wiring. As you are probably aware, in the States the Insurance Companies do more than collect premiums, and pay losses. I know of a case where the Insurance Companies clubbed and bought out the entire fire-fighting apparatus in a certain city, and sold it to a smaller city. They then obtained the most modern equipment obtainable and presented it to the city free gratis at a cost to the Insurance Companies in the vicinity of $150,000.00. Whilst I believe we have as good a fire equipment as any town of its size, yet the fact remains that we have recourse to it all too often. What we require is more prevention. In view of the foregoing, a suggestion would not be out of order, and if but one fire were prevented, it would pay for itself many hundred times over. My idea is this. It is agreed that a great many fires are caused through defective wiring. In many cases this fault is not due to the manner in which the electricity is installed, but rather to the house-keeper, shopkeeper, etc., tampering with the wiring in order to get "leads" for electric irons, percolators, sewing-machines, extra light for show purposes and so on. Now then, if the insurance companies were to arrange for an expert on wiring to give a series of lectures on the subject and thus endeavour to educate the public on these lines, it would, in my opinion, go far towards preventing many fires. I feel sure the Inspector General would be only too pleased to place a room in one of the fire stations at the disposal of the public for the purpose, and about the only expense would be the producing of the expert. Electricity, when handled intelligently, is one of the greatest boons mankind can have, but to endeavour to use it without some knowledge of its characteristics is to court disaster. We would not think of dispensing prussic acid in every little huxter, yet we urge one and all to "get in" electricity, which is capable of more damage than all the acids ever manufactured. Why people go to the expense of purchasing revolvers and knives to commit suicide is more than I can understand. All you have to do is stand in the bath and grab the electric light and you won't be long before you see your little wings (or shovels). Of course, it sometimes happens you don't get it (the juice) when you want it, and that is where a knowledge of electricity is useful. Let Mr. Ash or some of the agents think it over.
Yours "Lightly," FUSE.

Creatures Immune to Poisons.

There are many animals and birds which are quite unharmed by the sting of insects, or even the poison of the most deadly snakes. Ducks love to feed on bees, which they will swallow in dozens without any ill-effects. The same immunity is shared by another bird—the bee-eater, and apparently by the death-head moth. The South American ant-eater makes tasty meals off ants of the most poisonous kind. He goes to a hill and proceeds to scratch a hole in it with his powerful foreclaws, then, lying down, he pushes his long tongue into the breach. The ants swarm on the waiting tongue, and as soon as it is nicely covered its owner draws it in. The badger's fur seems to protect him completely against the attacks of wasps. His fondness for honey often induces him to dig out a wasp's nest. Most curious of all are certain birds which delight in eating deadly snakes. The stork lanches, without any unpleasant after-effects, upon an adder or two, although he has swallowed poison enough to kill a man.

Street Kitchens in Paris.

The many queer trades that flourish in Paris, few are more curious than the street kitchen that provides food for the poor. To them the street is the place where they do their business. It is usually found in a side street, not far from a washhouse, to be sure, but you can bring food, if you like, to eat on one of the tables. Along the kitchen there hangs a slate on which the names of half a dozen dishes making up the menu, are written in ink. The price is opposite each. The slate there is what you see like the doorway of a street kitchen. It is very busy in many hundreds during the day. In front of the way is a large charcoal burning stove that furnishes an evidently inexhaustible supply of soup, vegetable and other eatables. On the shelves all manner of restaurant utensils are stored. Two appetizing small portions of vegetables at 25 centimes each and a ragout, the day's work, at 60 centimes, are chosen. The proprietor nods in a friendly way as you pass, and takes a dish of a shelf and dips it towards the back of the kitchen to return with a dish smoking with a movement of the left hand or she sweeps a helping of soup from the plate, and as she transfers the artichokes, cooked in half a sheet of newspaper is held a string of them, and put the steaming plateful, which you pay for, and depart to the wine. There it matters not if refreshment is ordered. You are left free to the wholesome, cheap, meal in and disburse a few sous for a cupful of coffee. You have had a meal, ample as it is, enjoyable, at the price of an "old song."

"Best Men" Once Had to Help Catch Bride.

The "best man" is an essential feature in all our marriages, and can be traced back to the days of "marriage by capture," when the "best man" was the comrade called upon by the bridegroom to assist in the dashing of his bride. The "honey-moon" was not always a pleasure-trip as it is now; originally it was a rapid flight of the newly married couple to escape the wrath of an outraged father. There is no doubt that the bride and bridegroom deemed it advisable to keep out of his way for at least a month, to allow time for his rages of vengeance to cool down.

The custom of giving presents to bridesmaids originated in a form of toll. The bride's girl friends went through the form of preventing the bridegroom and his friends from taking her from her home, a mock battle ensued, each party pelting the other with sweet-meats, and this was finally settled by the bridegroom making presents to all the girls. The custom of throwing an old shoe after the departing couple is another link with the past, but writers on the history of marriage disagree as to its origin. According to one view it originated in the "marriage by capture" days; when, during a fight at the bride's house, the nearest things that came handy were thrown. Another explanation is that it was a symbolic act on the part of the bride's father, signifying that he renounced all authority over his daughter. The throwing of rice was symbolic of abundance and fertility, and clearly expressed the hope that the bride would live in plenty. The wedding cake, still cut by the bride, is one of the oldest marriage customs. The taking of food or drink together by the bride and bridegroom, was always the principal, and sometimes the only, ceremony among primitive people, and this is still the case in many parts of the world today.—Fit-Bits.

Care of the Baby.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

WASHINGTON.—The "care of the baby," a new and enlarged edition of a former publication of the same name, is contained in the recent number of the Weekly Public Health Service and is now being reprinted for general distribution. Its eminent practical character is shown in the section of bathing the baby. Baby, it says, should be bathed at least once a day. During the hot weather one or two extra sponge baths may be given; but as a rule the daily bath should be in a tub bath. It can be done more quickly and thoroughly, and the baby is not so liable to take cold. The room should be warm; an open fire is desirable in cool weather. The water should be comfortably warm but not hot, about 90° to 95° F. It may be tested with the bare elbow, never the hand. However, a bath thermometer is best. Everything needed should be in readiness before baby is undressed. In a small wicker basket, painted white, should be kept a cake of pure white castile soap, a small bottle of olive oil, pure talcum powder, boric acid, four dozen safety pins of assorted sizes, and a roll of absorbent cotton. A clean wash cloth, clean towels, and a full set of clean clothing should also be in readiness. To undress the baby, take the clothes off over his feet. If held on the lap, a large bath towel should be used to prevent its tender skin from coming in contact with the rough or worsted dress and to receive it when lifted out of the tub. More conveniently he may be undressed on the table. Before putting the baby into a tub, wrap him in a small blanket or large towel, and wash his face, head and ears, being careful not to get soap into his eyes and mouth. Very little soap is needed. It is most important that the skin should be rinsed thoroughly. Pat the skin dry with a soft towel, taking care to dry well back of the ears and in the soft folds of his neck. The eyes should be cleansed with absorbent cotton, dipped in boracic acid solution. Squeeze a drop into each eye. The mouth and nose should then be cleansed with an applicator dipped in boracic acid solution. An applicator is made by twisting a small tuft of absorbent cotton upon the end of a wooden toothpick in such a way as to make a rounded pad. If made correctly, the cotton will not slip off readily. Be careful not to injure the ears. It is better to ask your pharmacist or the nurse just how to cleanse them correctly. It is well to lay a bath towel in the bottom of the tub and put in only a small amount of water at first. If baby is plunged immediately into the tub of water, he may be startled and may never enjoy a tub bath; but if the water is added gradually, while baby's attention is diverted to something else, he soon learns to enjoy the morning dip. First soap the baby's entire body thoroughly; then place him in the bath, holding him with the left forearm under the neck and shoulders, the left hand under his arm, and lifting the feet and legs with the right hand. Support him while in the bath with the left hand and arm. Sponge the entire body with the right hand; then lift him out and wrap him in a bath towel. Dry carefully with the soft towel, patting the skin gently. Never rub the baby's tender skin with anything less smooth than the palm of the hand. A little pure talcum powder may be used in the creases and folds of the skin, under the arms, and around the buttocks; but it should not be used so freely, so as to clog the pores of the skin and never should be used until the skin has been dried as thoroughly as possible with the towel. A highly perfumed powder should not be used. The bath should be given as nearly as possible at the same time each day, at least an hour after feeding and at first should be only three minutes; later it may last 5 minutes. As the baby grows older and stronger he may be allowed to play in the water which is beneficial to the system, relaxes the muscles, and aids in overcoming many wrong conditions.—U.S. Public Health Service.

ONE THING SURE.

One thing is true, when other things are lies—the taxes rise, and higher still they rise. I view the past, the golden yesteryear when twenty bones would make my record clear. Yes, twenty bucks would cover all my tax, and yet I yelled like forty-seven yaks. "This Government," I used to sadly say, "just holds me up, and bears my wad away." A hundred bones, where once I coughed up ten, I now dig up for tax-collecting men, assessors come and crouch my bottom plunk, this thing is true, though other things be bunk. And yet, perhaps, if taxes were to shrink, the land we love would soon be on the blink. We're paving roads, and building finer schools, and ornate jails to house bootlegging toils; the money goes, down in with princely grace, to make the world a nobler, better place. If this is true it is not wise to roar because we're cinched for tighter than of yore. If life is true, we should be dead game sports and gladly help our colleges and courts help build the jails and boost the football team, while banners float and eager eagles scream. One thing is true, when other things are lies—if there's no gas the motor all ways dies.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

ARE YOUR THOUGHTS GOOD FOR YOU?

Are you satisfied with your Thought Content? By far the largest part of our life is Mental Life, that is, Thought Life. We may speak a few thousand words a day, we probably think the equivalent of a few hundred thousand. We are thinking all the time from our birth (or a few years afterwards, don't know just what the scientists have decided) to our death, except when we are asleep; and presumably dreams are a form of subconscious thinking.

The Million Thoughts We Think!

While we eat, while we work, while we walk about, while we ride in our automobiles, while we talk, while we dress, and undress, we are all the time thinking, thinking, thinking. Sometimes of course we are thinking about what we are doing, but a great deal of the time a separate Thought Life is going on within us.

What is the nature of this Thought Life in you and me? Is it happy or unhappy, helpful or hurtful, constructive or destructive? Do we allow our Thought Content to be colored by resentments? Are we constantly rehearsing grievances, thinking ever elights, planning how we would like to get back at people?

Imaginary Arguments.

Do we have that foolish habit of mental argument? A woman told me once that she was absolutely aghast when something made her realize how much her thoughts were devoted to imaginary arguments with people. Often, she said, the conditions over which she pictured herself arguing never came to pass, and when they did the people did not say what she had made them say in her thoughts and so her elaborately planned answers were all unnecessary. Here is the sort of thing she meant. She was afraid her mother-in-law would expect her to take the children to her own favorite doctor when they moved to her town and marshalled argument after argument as to why she should stick to her old doctor and get white hot about it in her mind. When the time came, her mother-in-law said that she didn't think her pet doctor was as good for children as for older people and actually advised her not to have him. So all that mental turmoil had been for nothing!

Don't Poison Yourself.

Regret is another mental habit which often poisons out Thought

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

MINER'S CRADLE.

The cradle is a simple appliance for treating "pay dirt" earth and gravel containing gold dust. It consists essentially of a box, mounted on rockers, and provided with a perforated bottom of sheet iron in which the "pay dirt" is placed. Water is poured on the dirt, and the rocking motion imparted to the cradle causes the finer portions to pass through the perforated bottom on to a canvas screen, and thence to the base of the cradle, where the gold-dust accumulates on transverse bars of wood called "riffles."—Rocky Mountain Herald.

Provisions Cashed On Lonely Islands.

FOR USE OF SHIPWRECKED SAILORS.

If shipwrecked crews are washed ashore on certain lonely islands nowadays, they find a snug little store of food and other necessities safely cached by a considerate government.

In some cases these stores contain, in addition to food, everything a distressed seaman would need, such as medicines, bedding, cooking-stoves, flags for attracting the attention of passing vessels, materials for lighting fires, maps, collapsible boats, and even tobacco.

These additional stores are provided only in places where shipwreck occurs with greater frequency. In other parts absolute necessities only are stored, such as preserved beef and ship's biscuits.

Midway between Cape Town and Western Australia, and about 3,000 miles from either place, are the islands of Amsterdam, St. Paul, and Kerguelen, all of which are provided with food-stores.

On Amsterdam Island a large cavern in a hillside is stocked with 1,350 lbs. of beef, 1,125 lbs. of biscuits, ten woolen shirts, ten suits of underclothing, ten blankets, and four packets of matches, all stored in iron-hooped barrels coated with tar and sand to preserve the contents from the weather and possible damage by seawater.

FROM POLE TO POLE.

This store was established by the French Government vessel Euro, and an inscription to that effect is placed over the entrance to the cavern. A flagstaff to mark the spot was also erected.

On St. Paul Island a similar quantity of food and clothing has been established, but in this case it is housed in a hut of rough stones. The S.S. Parisiana was abandoned while off fire in the Indian Ocean, and after a terrible experience the crew reached St. Paul Island.

They found the hut had been damaged by the wind and sea, and a large portion of the provisions and all the blankets had disappeared, while the remaining stores were almost unfit for consumption. Fortunately, the S.S. British Transport arrived at the island some weeks later, and rescued the shipwrecked men from a terrible death.

Altogether, twenty-four islands have these stores of food. Three are established on the most remote corners of Iceland, while the others are all on the smallest of the numerous islands dotted about the South Pacific and Indian Ocean.

The Antipodes, for instance, a group of islands very close to the borders of the Antarctic, is stocked with one ton of beef, half a ton of biscuits, and one hundredweight of tinned fish, as well as blankets, shoes and clothing.

Moorish Superstitions.

One of the first things a traveler notices in a Moorish town are the "hands," painted or drawn, on the walls of many houses and buildings. These are to avert the "evil spirit," the number of fingers, is considered a sacred number. These hands are also worn in the form of ornaments, and serve to keep off the "evil eye." As in Europe, the horsehoe is regarded as a sign of luck and is frequently seen over doorways.

A Moor considers it a great sin to cut bread with a knife, declaring that our hands were given us to break it. The same idea accounts for the saying that "to tread on corn is to tread on angels."

Offerings of food, hair, and other small articles are often placed in the trunks of certain trees, and have a quaint significance. As the makers of these offerings are poor Moors with large families, they firmly believe that Allah will be pleased and will give them means to support their family. Some Moors declare that after this offering their children eat less, and, therefore, cost less to keep.

At another religious celebration spiked balls are thrown into the air and allowed to fall on the throwers' heads. The man who appears the most injured and ferocious is considered the most truly religious.

Moorish marriages are performed at midnight, and the bride is confined to her room for several days after the ceremony. No Moorish woman who is truly religious is seen in the streets at any time, except in cases of absolute necessity. Life is indeed different from that in Europe!

Chinese Use Radio As We Use Phones.

China has put into operation one of the longest commercial radio telephone circuits in the world.

Radio telephone sets have been installed at Pekin and Tientsin, bridging a gap of 90 miles. They have been connected with the regular telephone lines of the Chinese government.

When a telephone subscriber in Pekin desires to talk with a friend in Tientsin, he puts in his call in the usual manner to the operator in Pekin, who signals Tientsin over a radio channel. The Tientsin operator in turn makes the necessary connection and the conversation is on. So far as the operation of the system is concerned, the procedure is in no way different from what it would be if wire connections were provided throughout.

The Clan Thomson.

GAVE MANY MEMBERS TO SCIENCE AND ART.

The Thomson clan which originated in Dunfermline, Scotland, in the Bruce's, Stuart and Douglas times, and which has produced many names in history, still has a number of kinsmen-friends now prominent in the world's learning, science, exploration and political progress. T. Kenneth Thomson is the famous engineer who is enlarging New York Island to include half of N. Y. Bay down to The Narrows. Elihu Thomson is the most famous inventor in the electrical world, ex-President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. James Park Thomson, O.B.E., LL.D., F.R.S.G.S. (Edin.), is Hon. Secy. and Treasurer of the Royal Geographical Society of Australasia, and Hon. President of the Hellenic Association of Australia, (to uphold study of Greek as a basis of classical education). He is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, and donor of the ethnological collection to its museum, said to be the best extant. John Stuart Thomson of New Jersey, Oriental explorer, author of "China's Revolutionized," "The Chinese" (Laurie Co., 39 New Bridge St., London, Eng.), and other books, authority on U. S. Constitution, is being widely recommended in the Chinese and U. S. press for next U. S. Minister to the Chinese Republic. He is a political reformer and a leading authority in the U. S. on China-American relations, and has been honored by both China and Belgium. He led the successful Clark University movement for America's official recognition of the Chinese Republic; is popular with the Republican leaders of China. Hearst's magazine, N. Y., Feb. 1922, p. 54 states that the Chinese Universities have adopted his books on China, and that he is tutoring China in Constitutionalism. China's special lack being Union, Stuart Thomson was born in Montreal and educated there at the Presbyterian College and McGill University, and McCord Museum of McGill has a large exhibit of his writings. His maternal grandfather, Jno. Ryder, was one of the founders and first Crown Surveyor of Kingston; his mother was the talented Elizabeth Ferris, of Kingston (Kingston College, 18, 1917; Who's Who and Why, etc.) Ben. Kanarr and Stuart Thomson on the maternal side are descended from families prominent in U. S. foundational history. All these corresponding kinsmen emulate each other in the public service. Stuart Thomson's father was Francis Stuart Douglas Thomson of Dunfermline, Scotland and Montreal. The author lived in Montreal till his 21st year; his first position was Jr. Secretary to Sir Joseph Hickson, General Manager Grand Trunk Railway, with whom he began his world travels, the first trip being with the Hickson family to Caouana and Gulf of St. Lawrence. Thomson is a worker for political and judicial reform, and union of U.S.-Canada diplomacy in the Far East. At McGill and Presbyterian College, Thomson won the Prof. Stevens prize for public speaking; at Senfor School he won the John Donald prize in chemistry; and while a student he was a regular contributor to Canada's two leading periodicals, Goldwin Smith's Toronto "Week," and Colonel Jno. A. Cooper's Canadian Magazine. He was a track and snow-shoe athlete and won prizes for the Lachine and "Over the Mountain to Dumfries" races. He was Secy.-Treasurer of the old Gordon A.A.A., chief competitor of the M.A.A.A. Stuart Thomson is urging an amendment to the U. S. Constitution, whereby the people will have a half elective share in the federal courts and in diplomacy. Control is now appointive for life generally, which makes the base of the vast Trust monopolies that dominate America at home and abroad. "The Jersey City Review, Jan. 5, 1922, calls Stuart Thomson "New Jersey's Roosevelt." Since '21 he has been a U.S. citizen, and works for the policies and progress of the land where his mother's race originated (N.Y. State-English blood). The history of this Thomson family is a general illustration how intimate is the intellectual, reform and blood bond between the four chief English-speaking nations. Naturally America leads in that type of reform which is Republican, and she possibly is also the leader in general democracy, with Canada a close second. Britain leads in intellectual culture; America in applied governmental literature; for Gladstone stated that the "U.S. Constitution is the greatest governmental document ever evolved by the brain and purpose of mankind." Canada is a friendly bond and blend among the English-speaking, and she has given some great sons to lead special types of progress in other lands; lands that have fostered the character and talent that birth and blood gave them.—Literary Notes.

Smallest Republic.

The Lilliputian republic of Gopet which nestles within the confines of a square mile in the Pyrenees, and is smaller even than the republic of Andorra or San Marino, has had its independence recognized by France and Spain for the past three centuries.

It has a population of about 150. The people are ruled by a council of elders, but they pay no taxes or duties of any sort. This civic unit is so tiny that it has to go abroad for its cure of soul and body. For these it has to go to Laurent, the nearest French town. Even the dead must leave Gopet to find concentrated ground in which to lie; the coffins are slid downhill, out of the republic in the world.

It is so light and small that it can be taken anywhere, and it is so sound and foolproof that it is always in good condition. I have needed a typewriter for years, but I could not find anything sufficiently portable, hardy, willing and easy, until I discovered Corona."

Trade With Brazil.

Newfoundland's Opportunity Never Better.

(By F. SHORTIS)

One of Britain's most prominent business journals, the "Empire" published in London (April), there is an excellent article about the Exhibition to be held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in September of this year. The position of the British pavilion occupied by the journal produces a drawing which is not yet completed. It is intended to be given as a gift to the Brazilian government in commemoration of the occasion from the people of England, and a token of the warm interest which the British Empire attaches to the opening of this Exhibition. It is open to every British subject who can make a journey to that time, and there will be a large number of visitors from all the other South American countries. This grand opportunity to our trade should be availed of at once, and we are sure that all who desire to extend their business relations in that country will be glad to see the leading business journals of the world, visited Newfoundland and at the request of the Board of Trade, give an address to the business of this city. He afterwards reports an extensive and most interesting report as to how new business may be worked out by our merchants in that country so that they could be in a position to know exactly what conditions were not favorable at the time to extend operations as well as good markets in Europe. We could give them. War conditions have made still more changes in our trade with Brazil has suffered. It is the time to start a revival, the Brazilian authorities are anxious to help us. In the year 1920 the imported goods to the value of 6,000,000,000 (six hundred million dollars), and every preference is given to goods of British production. It is no less than Twelve Hundred Dollars of British capital invested in that country exclusive of shipping and telegraph. The Brazilian Republic takes most one-half of the whole South American continent, but our trade, at present, is with only one little corner of the North East of that vast continent, the provinces supplied by bamboo and Bahia, where we get the most of our fish, are very compared with the wealthy provinces to the South, where the magnificent city of Rio de Janeiro is situated. The city is said to have the largest harbor in the world, and from one of the most unhealthy cities on earth about thirty years ago, now said to be the healthiest and most beautiful city to be seen anywhere. Money has not been spared in years to make this city the Capital of the Republic, the attractive resort for all visitors, they purpose to call wide world to the great improvements in advances made during recent years, and the Exhibition to be held in honor of the centenary of the independence of that country, the desired opportunity. WORTH LOOKING AFTER.

COMPETITORS TAKE MARKET.

In my last article I showed how our exports to Brazil had fallen over One Hundred Thousand Quintals within the last few years. I proved to all that Gaspe firms which sent such large quantities of splendid quality fish to Brazil and getting such fancy prices, were receiving their whole supply from the Straits of Bell Isle. Instead of curing this fish "Hard Dried" as the Gaspe firms, our merchants have educated the fishermen to put it up "soft cure," and now they have such large quantities they cannot find markets for it. Not alone is there too much "soft cure," but the customers in the Mediterranean markets do not like this imitation Labrador cure, as it is of different quality of fish, altogether from the plump small Labrador fish caught North of the Straits of Bell Isle. At the present time the fishermen on the French Shore are selling their fish for even less than the price obtained last year. What a great benefit it would be for those fishermen if they cured one hundred thousand quintals of this fish "hard cure" like they did formerly for the Brazilian market and get Eight Dollars, or double their price last year. It would mean over Four Hundred Thousand Dollars more money in their pockets than if they continued their present mode of operations. Why do not our merchants encourage them to do this, and if necessary put up Fish Dryers to make this fish "hard cure," suitable for Brazil like they do in Halifax? I am drawing my conclusions by comparing our conditions of former years with what should be evident to everyone to-day. Let any person who questions my statements about European conditions read thoughtfully the numerous telegrams that have appeared in our daily papers during the past month from the Economic Conference still going on at Genoa.

EUROPEAN CONDITIONS.

The conditions in Europe are unfavorable and there can be no hope for some years to come. The price of fish must be still lower this year as the Mediterranean countries are all preparing masts cheaper than our fish. The only hope in Europe, Lloyd George clearly points out, is to get the rates of Money Exchange with the different countries reduced, but until these countries can produce more goods and food than their own population requires, there can be no reduction in the balance of trade against them—therefore these hopes will be realized very slowly. In conclusion let us look to Brazil and not alone take advantage of opportunities when they occur to push our trade, but lay our plans to give them even larger quantities of our fish than we have done in recent years. Now is the time to make these preparations while our fishermen are starting their summer's work. Depend upon it our competitors in Norway and Iceland are preparing for this Brazilian Exhibition, and unless we make preparations now, we will permit them to get a great advantage over us. Unless we show the Brazilian authorities that we take an interest in their affairs we shall be rated as a "back number," and there will be no use for us to look for any concessions in trade with that country for years to come. Let us get into this Exhibition enthusiastically and show them that we are a live country and determined to increase our business with them, I am sure when we look at this in the proper light, we shall readily perceive that we cannot afford to take a back seat when our best customer is celebrating the Centenary Anniversary of their Independence.

their own population requires, there can be no reduction in the balance of trade against them—therefore these hopes will be realized very slowly. In conclusion let us look to Brazil and not alone take advantage of opportunities when they occur to push our trade, but lay our plans to give them even larger quantities of our fish than we have done in recent years. Now is the time to make these preparations while our fishermen are starting their summer's work. Depend upon it our competitors in Norway and Iceland are preparing for this Brazilian Exhibition, and unless we make preparations now, we will permit them to get a great advantage over us. Unless we show the Brazilian authorities that we take an interest in their affairs we shall be rated as a "back number," and there will be no use for us to look for any concessions in trade with that country for years to come. Let us get into this Exhibition enthusiastically and show them that we are a live country and determined to increase our business with them, I am sure when we look at this in the proper light, we shall readily perceive that we cannot afford to take a back seat when our best customer is celebrating the Centenary Anniversary of their Independence.

Child's Pleading Saves Father's Life.
The pleading of a baby boy on March 26 stopped a bandit bent on murdering a victim who had shown fight. Two youths walked into a Chicago drug store. Thomas Newman, proprietor, was serving Thomas Murphy, who, with his little son, had entered a moment before. The bandit demanded that Newman and Murphy "stick 'em up," Newman complied, but Murphy showed fight. One bandit slugged him. The other's finger tightened on the trigger of his automatic. Just then the baby ran up to him and tugged at his coat. "Don't shoot daddy, please, don't," he pleaded. The bandit looked down at the baby. "All right, sonny, I won't," he said. Murphy handed over $75. The bandit then took pints of whiskey, a quantity of narcotics, and all the cash from the register. They escaped in an automobile.

A River's Eccentricities.
The Colville, the largest river in Alaska, emptying into the Arctic Ocean, for much of its course lies higher than one side of its own valley, and is gradually sliding down hill, writes Robert F. Wilson. The river flows north parallel to an eastern range of hills and actually par-ways up the slope of the hills, so that if the stream's western bank were cut, the water would abandon the present bed and flow down into the bottom of the valley. The western side of the river is deep, where the current is eating into the bank year after year, but the eastern side, shallow, out into a broad, stony beach, which shows by its great width how far the river has already travelled sideways. The explanation of the Colville's eccentric conduct is that after it formed its bed and valley, as a normally behaved river does, there was a later contortion of the earth's crust, lifting the stream bodily part way up the side of the slope. Ever since then the river has been trying to get down to its old level again.
