

THE ONTARIO BANK.

Mr. Blake's Opinion - A Settlement Effected at Last. The shareholders met yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock and proceeded to consider the resolution of Dr. Clarke, namely: "That the proposed resignation of the directors is a sufficient resignation of the directors as required by the motion just passed, and, therefore, this meeting requests them to give the necessary notice of an application to parliament for a reduction of the capital stock of this bank."

Mr. Glass read an opinion from Mr. S. H. Blake to the following effect: "That new directors could not be legally elected at a special meeting called for the purpose. That the only manner in which new directors could be elected was by passing a by-law to provide for such a case as the present one."

A discussion took place on this opinion, but it became unimportant in view of the fact that the only course pointed out by Mr. Blake as perfectly legal, was ultimately taken. Mr. Glass' objection to Dr. Clarke's resolution appeared to be that it asserted that there was "a sufficient proposal for the election of new directors."

It is rumored, and an authority that should be reliable, that the Credit Valley railway is soon to pass into the hands of the Great Western, and that the Canada Pacific syndicate will control the amalgamated lines in its interest, and thus place itself in a position to effectually prosecute its coming war for the conquest of the Grand Trunk.

Women love trails because it flatters them to have something after them. Although great length is the feature of the winter wraps, it is permissible to wear short ones. For all cloth-finished fabrics self-trimmed and machine stitching should be preferred.

My love gave me a rose, I put it to my nose, And then began to swear, For a wasp was hidden there. Women love trails because it flatters them to have something after them.

A PROBLEM ANSWERED.

To The World: The answer to Smiley's problem is to bisect Frank's parallelogram transversely by an imaginary line having either side of the transversing line relatively opposite as to the angles and sides of their respective triangles; trisect his own square longitudinally, and bisect the centre third of the square by the angle opposite the bisecting line of the parallelogram; subtract the same angles of the portions so reduced and add the squares of the extending lines to the similar opposite angles of the bisected parallelogram to the square root bisected parallelogram to the square root of the sum of the square and parallelogram and divide the results by the difference in area of the two original figures, Q. E. D.

TO THE WORLD: The holiday season is fast approaching and it is to be hoped that the different railway companies will act in a generous spirit and favor those who are seldom able to travel a distance to see their friends. If the railway authorities will issue return tickets at a single fare instead of a fare and a third, it doubtless will double the number of people who will go, say from Toronto to Paris, London, Sarnia, St. Thomas, St. Catharines and Hamilton, Kingston, Brockville, Montreal and other places and vice versa.

—Borthwick mineral water, tonic and aperient; 25 cents per gallon at Osgoode Hall pharmacy, 107 1/2 Queen street west, 185. —Those a want of sewing machines ought to inspect the Wheeler & Wilson at No. 89 King street west previous to their deciding to buy elsewhere. A visit to Mr. C. C. Pomeroy's office would not be out of place.

—People have no more right to become dyspeptic, and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

—The Parrell family. That Mr. Parrell is of English and not Irish origin is a fact which the English newspapers are just now taking pleasure in repeating. If the seventeenth century family occupied a good position in Cheshire and were of the commonwealth party during the civil wars. When the restoration came Thomas Parrell, the then head of the family, left England and settled in Ireland, where he purchased an estate. The property descended to his son Thomas the well known author of "The Hermit" and other poems.

MEDICALS AND BATONS.

Are Students to be Chastised When Not Resisting?—Guardians of the Law Beyond the Law.

To The World: Most of your readers are doubtless aware of the fact that during the past week the medical students of the city, aided by Drs. Richardson, Graham, Burns and others, have taken action against the policemen on the Yonge street "beat" for unlawfully using their batons on several occasions during the past month or six weeks, and for refusing to divulge their numbers when asked to do so.

Now, sir, is this a fair state of things? The chief of police, Mr. Draper, must know the men who were on the "beat" the night named, and there can surely be no trouble in getting at the bottom of the affair. It looks very much as though the chief was trying to "pull the wool" over the eyes of the public, and in this respect is not lessened by the following fact: On the night of Oct. 14th the students were attacked by the police and a young man named Bartlett had his head split open. As soon as he was able to leave his room he was taken to Court street in a hack and laid in the information before the deputy chief against P. C. Long, 110. This information was suppressed and the commission never heard of it. Is not that fact alone worth investigation?

There are about one thousand students in this city and it has been proved before the commissioners that the police are in the habit of lying in ambush and on the approach of students rushing upon them and beating them unmercifully knowing their numbers to be hidden by darkness or by their rubber caps. The students contend that, even though they were disorderly (which they positively deny) the policeman had no right to use his batons when not resisted. Are they not correct?

MEDICO.

Toronto, Dec. 2. PUBLIC OPINION.

London Advertiser: Sir John says he would prefer annexation to independence. There's loyalty for you!

Galt Reform: The book returns was a very foolish and narrow-minded piece of business in the first place.

Stratford Beacon: It is quite correct to say that Sir John & Macdonald is the most successful politician of modern times.

Galt Reform: Our opinion about this temperance Northwest colony business is that a large sized and profitably flavored Ethiopian ill-concealed on the premises.

Brampton Banner: What has become of the young men of the party, that those old monies should be made to play the part of the spring chickens of the conservative party?

Grip: The young men of this Dominion have very little sense of their own respectability if they will condescend to soil their hands with the nastiness of either party.

Kingston News: Reciprocity of trade we desire, and we desire it, if possible, on the basis of mutual revenue tariffs, but in default of this arrangement we have no objection of allowing American manufacturers to kill our industries.

London Advertiser: Leading men in Great Britain speak of the future of Canada as unconcernedly as they would of the price of beef. Are they "veiled traitors," or is it only Canadians who are forbidden to speak of themselves and their prospects?

Grip: It is no wonder that the feeling in favor of Canadian independence is growing steadily stronger, as it is manifestly in the least an independent nation Canada would at least have the satisfaction of hearing her name mentioned occasionally—perhaps even with respect.

Mr. Talmage's Sermon on the Modern Plague of the Destroying Angel.

The following is the last sermon of Dr. Talmage on the evil of intemperance.

"I shall continue my course of sermons on the ten plagues of the cities of New York and Brooklyn for several Sundays longer," said Mr. Talmage to a large audience in the Brooklyn tabernacle yesterday morning.

"Exodus, eleventh chapter, part of the sixth verse: 'There shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt.' This," he continued, "was the worst of the ten plagues. The destroying angel at midnight flapped his wings over the land and there was one dead in each house. That destroying angel has led the earth, but a far worse has come, and sweeps through these cities. It is the destroying angel of strong drink. Far worse than the other, and worse in America than in Egypt. Thousands of slain! Millions of slain! I am glad that the decorations of thanksgiving have been retained until to-day, but I shall use them for a different purpose.

"Once upon a time four infernal sat brooding in hell how they might work destruction to mankind. One said, 'I will take charge of the vineyards;' another said, 'I will take the green fields;' and another, 'I will take the dairy,' and the last said, 'I will take the music of the world.' The first fiend came to a vineyard and sat down on the twisted root of a vine, in sheer discouragement. 'I don't know how to bewitch the world,' he said. He clutched a cluster and squeezed it, and his hand was red with the blood of the grape. And he succeeded more of them into a large vat. The people dipped up the blood of the grapes. They drank, and they fell on the way, and when the fiend wished to return to his home he stepped from body to body on a great causeway to hell. The second fiend walked through the field of golden grain. He threw it into the water and let it rot, and then he lit a fire under it by a flame from his own mouth and made the fiery liquor. The fiend was so pleased with it that he changed his residence from the pit to a whiskey-barrel.

"The fiend of the dairy saw the cows coming home from the fields and he saw the dairy-maid milking them. He said, 'I will change that.' He made a milk-panch. The people all took it and gave it to their children, and even some temperance people took it, too. The fiend of music entered the grove-shop and he gathered there the musical instruments of the city. The people thronged in, each with a wine-glass in his hand. They played the dance; the music played more loudly; the dance became wilder. The floor broke and fell into hell. Then the four fiends returned to hell and Satan said it was all right. They filled their glasses and clicked them and said, 'Here's to the liquor traffic.'

"As soon as it is whispered of a man 'he drinks,' he begins to go down. What clerk can get a position with such a reputation as 'He drinks.' When a man is three-fourths gone on the road, he wants to impress you with the idea that he can stop at any time. He can't stop. I had a dear friend who gave thousands of dollars to bible societies and asylums, but he was a slave to strong drink. He had two attacks of delirium tremens. When the doctor told him if he had a third attack he would die, he said, 'Oh! I can stop at any time.' He is dead. Run! The last thing he said was, 'Oh! I can stop at any time.' He could not stop. Sometimes a man is more frank. Such a one said, 'If you said I couldn't have a drink till to-morrow night unless I had my fingers chopped off, I would say, 'Bring on your hatchet!' It is awful for a man to wake up and feel himself a captive. Who will forget that scene in this church a few winters ago of a man who stood up in the church. The ushers led him to the door. Everybody saw that he was drunk. His poor wife took his coat and hat and led him out. He was formerly a minister in a sister congregation, and he preached in this city. Run! Don't tell the inebriate there is no hell. He knows there is. He is in hell now. God only knows what the drunkards suffer! What reptiles crouch around his shivering feet! What demons stand by his pillow! This is no fancy picture. It went on last night. It is a death scene of you will die unless you stop.

"When an inebriate wakes up in the other world he will be thirsty. No matter how poor he was in this world he could get the five cents for a drink. But where will he get a drink in hell? Dives called for water, the inebriate calls for rum. If a fiend came here, would he run into a rum-shop and went back into hell with a drop on the end of his wing, what a light there would be for the drop! The inebriate in hell will not suffer for the loss of God, but for the loss of liquor.

"I don't like a sermon on generalities; I like personalities. I said a man could not stop, but I do say God can stop him. I went into a room in the Fourth ward in New York where a religious service was held for reformed drunkards. Fifteen or twenty men were there giving their experiences. God had not only changed their mode of feeling, but had even taken away their thirst. I tell you, unless you stop, in ten years you will fill a drunkard's grave. I must tell you this or I will have your blood upon my soul. One hundred millions of inebriate souls will assemble on the judgment day, and I want you to testify that I gave you warning when the fiends rattle the drunkard's bones on their wine-cask, playing the dead march to hell.

"Mothers! Mothers! Mothers!! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle.

"The causes of colds are getting over-heated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, mauling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause, Hagar's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

WORLD BALLADS.

WHAT THE PIONEER OF YORK SAID. "O, sweet are the days of my childhood returning. The days when we lived on potatoes and pork. And small was the cabin of logs that we lived in, And small was Toronto, then called Muddy York. 'Twas then when the bear roamed the village came prowling. We never attempted to split Bruin's blood— Oh no, we just stayed within doors and allowed him securely to get himself stuck in the meat! And heavy and sad grew our hearts when we thought of the future would creep in and how rapidly time to the future would creep in and how hated improvements would creep in and how! Fair York's chiefest glory, her stickitive midget. But thanks be to fortune, though York has grown larger, And greater and richer with each springtime's bud, She still keeps her place, and is known all over To hold her original oceans of mud. —J. A. KASS.

Biting It at Last. (From the N.Y. Sun.) A bright-faced, blue-eyed boy, aged 12, named Hugh Burns, was a witness in a case before Justice Walsh in Brooklyn, yesterday. He didn't know what it was to take the oath, but said that he went to St. Ann's, and learned his catechism. "Well, now tell me," said the judge, "whom would you offend if you told a lie?" "The brothers," "No, no, who would punish you if you told a lie?" "The brothers," "Who beside the brothers?" "My father and mother," "No one else? What does the catechism say?" "Oh," said the boy with a bright twinkle, "it's God you mean."

BEST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING. "Brown's Household Panacea," has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external.
