DR. G. H. LOCKE IS AN AGGRES-SIVE CURATOR OF BOOKS.

BUSINESS IN LIBRARY

"oronto's Chief Librarian Has Applied Modern Methods to the Running of the Public's Literary Storehouse and Astonishing Results Have Been Shown—Had Been an Academic and Wanderer.

ous characteristic in the make-up of George H. Locke, Toronto's Chief Librarian. Traditions were shattered when he was appointed, and customary usages have gone by the board ever since. He has completely upset the popular conception of what a librarian should be, and has, for Canada at any rake, established a new idea of the duties of the office. He stands to-day the impersonation of vigorous, up-to-date administration of a highly important public service.

The son of a Methodist clergyman, he had been brought up in cultured surroundings and had the benefit of a university education. He was born on March 29, 1870, when his father was stationed at Beamsville, and as a boy he attended Ryerson Public School in Toronto, and the Brampton and Collingwood Collegiate Institutes, Then he entered Victoria University, graduating in 1893. Following graduation he took up academic pursuits and for several years roved around from university to university. For a time he went to Chicago; from there to Harvard; then back to Chicago, where, in 1803, he became Dean of the College of Education. In 1905 he entered the employ of Ginn & Co., of Boston, the big school book publishers, as head of the editorial department. Two years later he returned to Canada as Dean of the School of Education at Macdonald College, and in 1908 terminated his wanderings

MR. GEORGE H. LOCKE. by becoming Chief Librarian

Dr. Locke may not have possessed the appearance or bearing of the conventional librarian and bookworm, conventional librarian and bookworm, yet his qualifications for the work before him were not limited to one or two items. He had a good knowledge of literature, he was familiar not only with the insides of books, but possessed a useful acquaintance with their production and manufacture; he was a specialist in education, which was a function of library work too little dwelt upon; he was, above all, sociable and well able to take care of himself on a public platform. All himself on a public platform. All these qualities combined weighed strongly in his favor with the Library Board, and he was selected out of a nsiderable number of likely can-

Board, and he was selected out of a considerable number of likely candidates.

Dr. Locke makes no secret of the fact that running a library is a business proposition, however much libraries may impress the public as being places entirely outside and above the business world. He is managing director of the Toronto Public Library Co., Unlimited, and, like the executive heads of more obviously mercantile establishments, he has endeavored ever since he took office to manage the library on scientific lines of efficiency, economy and usefulness. That no dividends are paid, save in the form of gifts of pleasure to those who patronize the library, does not lessen the need for businesslike administration.

Aggression has been the keynote of the Locke regime. It was not sufficient, in his opinion, for a library to be merely a storehouse of books, no matter how well stocked, well arranged and well managed, if it remained passive and walked for the people to come to it. Unless the public were educated into the use of its privileges, it was not serving its highest purpose. This idea has been at the back of what may be called the popularizing movement. First, it was a case of taking down the barriers and letting those who used the library set right's at the books. Then came facilities by means of which those who wanted to read particular books were enabled to put in special application for them. Latterly, a determined, stiempt has been made to interest the children, The installation of juvenile departments, in the new library building, the establishment of book eluba, the starting of the "Story Hour," have all been arranged to stract children, and great, has been the success of the endeavor.

you to muss up your hands on the dirty oafers. I had the right to kill. The were trespassers, and I'd 'a' done i tually assault me," he said, "but it's a bit discouraging to find the town so indifferent over both the breaking of the laws and the doings of a drunken mob. I'm afraid the most of them are a long way from law abiding people yet."

Joe, who did not like the position in which he stood as respecting Lee, here made an offer of aid. "I don't suppose upy word is any good low, but if you'll let me do it I'll go sut and round up Judge Higley. I think I know where he is."

To this Lize objected, "You can't do that, Ross; you better hold the fort here till morning."

Lee was rather sorry, too, for young Gregg, who bore his buffeting with turbable face of the heroes of his class. He had gone into this en-terprise with much the same spirit in which he had stolen gates and mis-placed signs during his brief college placed signs during his brief conego career, and he was now disposed (in the presence of a pretty girl) to carry it out with undiminished impudence. "It only means a fine, anyway," he as-sured himself.

cavenagh did not trust Gregg, either, and as this was the first time he had been called upon to arrest men for killing game out of season he could not afford to fall of any precaution. Tired and sleepy as he was he must remain on guard. "But you and your daughter must go to bed at once," he

Lize, under the spur of her dram, talked on with bitter boldness, berating the town and its people. Gregg listened to her with expressionless vislistened to her with expressionless vis-age, his eyes dreamly fixed on Lee's face, but his companion, the old herd-er, seemed to palpitate with shame and fear. And Ross had the feeling at the moment that in this ragged, un-kempt old hobo was the skeleton of one of the old time heroes. He was wasted with drink and worn by wind and rain, but he was very far from

Lee Virginia, with an understanding of what the ranger had endured, ask-bd: "Can't I get you something to eat? Would you like some coffee?"
"I would indeed," he answered, and his tone pleased her.

Lee returned soon with a pot of bresh coffee and some sandwiches, the light of which roused young Gregg to the impudent remark: "Well, notice that! And we're left out!" But Edwards shrank into the shadow, as if the light burt him.

Ross thanked Lee formally, but here were reported in the control of the light burt him.

there was more than gratitude in his glance, and she turned away to hide her face from other eyes. Strange place it was for the blooming of love's roses, but they were in her cheeks as she faced her mother, and Lize, with fresh acknowledgment of her beauty, broke-out-again: "Well, this settles it. The feet halted. A sharp rap sound and the feet annea. A sharp ray sounds of on the door.

"Who's there?" demanded Lize.

"The law?" replied a wheezy voice.

"Open in the name of the law!"

"It's old Higtey," announced Lize.

"Open the door, Ross."

"Come in, law," she called ironical-

Higley (a tall man with a rusty brown beard, very much on his dig-nity) entered the room, followed by a short, bullet headed citizen in a rum-pled blue suit with a big star on his breast. Behind on the sidewalk Ballard and a dozen of his gang could be seen. Sam Gregg, the moving cause of this resurrection of law and order, followed the constable. Higley opened upon Cavanagh. She did indeed resemble the wreck of a woman as she lay out upon her bed, her hands twitching, her eyes bed, her hands twitching, her eyes closed, and Ross was profoundly alarmed. "You need the doctor," he urged. "Let me bring him."
"No," she said huskily, but with decision; "I'm only tired. I'll be all right soon. Send the people away. Tell 'em to go to bed."
For half an hour Cavanagh remained in the room waiting to see if the doctor's services would be required, but at the end of that time, as she in her eyes, the music in her voice, made him shiver. He stammered: "I —I must return to my duties tomorrow. I should go back tonight."
"You mustn't do that. You can't do

He smiled. "That is true. I'd for-

When they were quite alone Lee said, "You must not go out into the dropping her hand, but his voice husky with its passion.

The old and unvenerable idea that a higher education was only for the select few, for the youth of the better-off classes is now pretty well exploded, to the benefit of everybody concerned. Illieracy in most modern countries has become a Egypt. most modern countries has become a orime, and justly so, for the greater the aggregate intelligence of a nation, the less will that nation be dependent upon individual leaders, their ambitions and their caprices. Besides, it is all important that lack of wealth should not be any bar to the cultivation of intelligence, the description of intelligence, the description of intelligence, the description of intelligence to have their names and biographies appear in "Who's Who in America," seventy-seven per cent. were college graduates, while in Germany there is scarcely a man of any eminence who is not a University graduate. We should say as regard Eastern Canda, at the present stage of its development, college education for our right generation should be regarded as an absolute necessity. To illustrate this let the reader consider for a moment, the marvelous growth of Western Canada—such a growth, by-the-way, as will soon give Western Canada that over-crowding of population which at present prevails in Europe. In that day the Maritime Provinces will get a reflex of population from the Pacific Coast, and should now begin to encourage that trade by placing there its immigration, or rather, transmigration agencies.

"New Freeman" of St. John, N. B., its immigration, or rather, transmigration agencies.

Now who are the leading men in the West in every line of endeavor? They are, as a rule, college men. And Western capitalists say that the best men they can feet for any work are those who have gone through the mill of college training, or, as the saying goes, those who have been "put through their degrees."

The whole routine of college life tends to educate. From his rising at the first stroke of a 5.30 a. m. bell, to his retiring to sleep at 9 p. m., a college youth is under the yoke of healthy disabilities. the yoke of healthy discipline all day long, and if his college career extends over years and if his college career extends over years he has an opportunity of acquiring many branches of knowledge. But the objection is often urged that a college education is good for youths of great talent, who can take full advantage of it; but for young men of everyday talent it is of less consequence. Now, it seems to us to be just the opposite—for boys of slower intelligence may require the stimulation of college training even more than those whose intelligence is greater. To put it all in a few words, a college serves as a spur to the boy of slow intelligence, and it serves as a check rein to the youth of quick intelligence. We know that some whose intelligence is greater. To put it all las few words, a college serves as a spur to the boy of slow intelligence, and it aprus as a check rein to the youth of quick intelligence. We know that some few of the world's greatest leaders were men of no college training—but they were few and exceptional. The general rule is that mon who have been leaders of mean all lines have been leaders of mean that about the self-educated men. It was a theory it cannot be deleaded. A man who acquires great knowledge without ever going to school will have lost the boy who has gone to college can become self-educated in the sense of continuing his college studies after he had graduated. But, as we just intimated, if Eastern Canada wishes to compete against the all-devouring West, such competition must be led by trained lesders; that is, by college-educated men. Any other sort of leadership would invoke disaster. We therefore look to our colleges to supply the men who will head the movement for a greater Canada, and we look to our people of city and country to support our colleges by sending their youths there for a course of studies. Let them do this for the sake of the children and for the Frovince.

It is indeed well with any country when its people come to realize that a higher education is not a luxury for the rich but a necessity for all who can possibly attain

LANGFORD SUBS FOR $5,000.

The secret of Sam Langford's long sojourn in Australia is out. Sam has been busy sueing Hugh G. McIntosh, the promother, for $6,000, a sum that Sam says McIntosh owes him under the contract that took him to Australia. This $6,000 is the balance of a sum guaranteed Sam for five matches, only three of which were pulled off by the Australian promoter. McIntosh alleged in his defence that Langford "prevented certain puglilate from coming from America, the result being that instead of five matches taking place only three came off." He said that because of this he had sustained "considerable loss" which he was willing to set off against the plaintiff's claim. Langford denied that he had prevented any fighters from leaving America, and McIntosh applied for a commission to examine witnesses in America. The court granted the commission and made it returnable in four months.

TORONTO, June 4.-Large audiences con hurch last night. At yesterday after ioon's meeting the subjects were "th roblem of the city," and "rural problems."
"The city must become holy or it will ecome hell," declared Dr. J. G. Shearer, general secretary of Moral Reform Ass the new city population are alien, or of a one-Anglo-Saxon stock, speaking unknown tongues, or following faiths not ours, many of them not-Christian or they are infidel in creed and pagan in life, their national ideas are not ours, nor do they begin to respect our dearly-bought institutions and liberties. These people are easily exploited. No wonder the few wealthy are growing more wealthy, while the number of poor increases. No wonder intemperance in the cities is on the increase and vice flourishes and abounds.

Dr. Shearer declared that the civic environment must be transformed, that the overcrowding must be stopped, and said that the ohurch must take up the challenge of the drink traffic.

Rev. J. A. Clark, of Calgary, pointed out the possible menace of sudden growth of slums caused by the rapidity of the growth of the otities.

One of the chief causes for concern of the church is the amusement of the young people away from home, said he. He deplored the fact that the sources of entertainment for these young people in their leisure hours had been commercialized, which eliminated to a great extent wholesome and temperate ple-saures.

The rights of the child were demanded by Rev. Dr. John McMiljan, of Halifax. He emphasized the harter of mortality in Canada, saying that Montreal's obtid-death rate was realized on the world's lists, being next to the Russian cities. He declared nothing worth while would happen until a bureau was instituted in every city, which would look after the children and mothers.

Dr. A. G. Sinclair, of Winnipeg, spoke on "the material basis of a home." It is time the industries paid proper wages," he said. "An industry which cannot afford to do that ought not live."

Dr. Warren H. Wilson, of New York, spoke on rural problems.

Rev. C. Crozier, of Freepawa, Man., said that the problem of the rural church was rendered more difficult by the depopulation of the city.

The following resolution was adopted by a standing vote:

The following resolution was adopted by a standing vote:

"This congress desires to place on record, and to lay before the Church its conviction that the present situation in Canada, so unprecedented and so urgent, demands the immediate and united action not only of the ministers and elders, but of the individual members of our Church.

"And more especially this congress in terprets the sudden and marvellous trans formation of the ancient and might empire of China into a democracy vivic with life, and open to new thoughts and ideals, as the call of God to the christian nations of the world for a united movement upon the non-christian world with the message of the gospel through the open door of China.

"And that the members of this congress here met for prayer and counsel. "And that the memoers of this con-ress here met for prayer and counsel iffer themselves in solemn dedication the high and sacred cause of world con-quest for Christ, and pledge themselves to oyal support of such action as the genera-ussembly in its wisdom, and under the pirit of our Lord, may devise."

A remarkable demonstration took place to the close of the programme at less day afternoon by defeating Canadian Ordnance Corps at Truro, 3 to 1. It was a keen contest, with the first half ending with each having a score. The Car Works scored after about twenty minutes' play, Swinhoe being successful. The soldiers equalized later from a free kick by Day, and headed through by Haughton.

The second half started at a fierce pace and the C. O. C. put up a remarkably fine defence against a continuous attack by the Car Works, who took full advantage of the strong wind blowing behind them.

At the end of 30 minutes Swinhoe scored for the Car Works from about 20 yards out, with a fine shot. A few minutes after a C. O. C. gave a free kick, the ball struck one of the defenders and went to Swinhoe, who put it in the net. one of the defenders and went to Swinnee, who put it in the net.

The Car Works played a splendid game, fully earning their victory, and their piponenis deserve every credit for making such a gallant fight and proved themselves good sports. The Car Works are to be warmly congratulated on winning the championship. Mr. Boyd, of New Glasgow, was referee. and waved for hearly five minutes. It was a scene which will live in the memory of the delegates.

"The time is ripe for a revival. We shall never meet like this again," declared Dr. Grant, as he fold them to go back to their work, and labor until the Master called them to the place of victory.

"We are here to throw out the challenge to the Church," he continued, "Let us capture China for Christ and we will have won the world for peace. The door is open. The opportunity is there. What are you going to do?"

The administrative committee, through the medium of Dr. R. P. MacKay, chair-HASTING ON HUDSON, N. 1., one in-Melville Haynes, 20 years old, of Union-town, clad only in his night clothes, walk-ed from his home in Uniontown to a pier at this place while aslesp. Without awakening he walked off the pier into the Hudson River, and then awoke. He swam to the shore.

The administrative committee, through the medium of Dr. R. P. MacKay, chairman of the congress, sent the following congratulatory cablegram to King George V on the occasion of his forty-eighth withday. birthday:

"Congress of 5000 Presbyterians, representing the entire Dominion of Canada, send congratulations on Natal day."

At the conclusion, the doxology was sung as it probably has never been sung before. The walls re-echoed with the strain, and after the benediction the audience filed out of the building as quietly and quickly as a Sabbath congregation leaves church, NURSES' TRAINING SCHOOL.

stone wall. The Anthracite Industry is so well "controlled" in the United States that the Coal Companies are able to advance prices regularly ten cents per ton price and we ask our per month from May 1st to September 1st. From customers to give us these advances there is no escape. A vessel reporting at loading dock for cargo on, say June 1st, would not be supplied at May prices, so firmly are the advances adhered to. Dealers have no recourse, because there to occur after the end is no competition in prices. Shippers compete sharply in other respects, but do not break prices. This is only one of the reasons why Dealers are unable to sell Coal in the Winter or Autumn at Summer rates. There are others. We will take them up in succeeding advertisements. Rainey's African hunt. "When I made up my mind to hunt ions in Africa," said Paul J. Rainey, whose pictures are to be shown at Academy of Music next week, "I determined to round up a pack of bear hounds to help me. I had hunted everything worth hunting in North America, and found the dogs invainable.

All my dogs were picked with great care and while the main pack consisted of bear hounds I had others which were mongrel in breed but scrappers of the most victous sort. The latter, forming my auxiliary pack, bore the brunt of the battles with the lions and did the actual tackling, the others confining their work to picking, up the trail and running the beasts to cover. These latter we could call off when we go the lion in close quarters and unleash the mongrels who would plunge into the fray and tackle the king of beasts with the ferecity of buil dogs. J. J. Power, K. C., and Mrs. Power left on the Maritime Express last evening for Ottawa, Toronto, and home by Buffalo, Albany, Boston and New York. They will be away a fortnight or so. Mrs. E. J. Kelly, who has been serious-ly ill with pneumonia, is now convales-cent.

GRADUATION PIANO RECITAL LAST EVENING By Miss Evelyn M. Crowell, assisted by Miss Freda Hattie. St. Paul's Hall was taxed to its utmos capacity last evening on the occasion of the brilliant pianoforte graduation recital of Miss Evelyn M. Crowell, pupil of Miss Bessie Quinnane, assisted by Miss Freda Hattle as soprano soloist.

Miss Crowell, who after last night's exposition of her talented performance must rank among our leading pinalists, was effectively heard in the following programme which speaks for itselfas embracing the most difficult classical music. Every number was played from memory which of itself was quite a feat and all were finely interpreted.

DARTMOUTH NEWS. North Stars won from St. Peter's last night—Wedding bells.

Miss Edith Russell left this morning for Edmonton to attend the tri-annual meeting of the Canadian Women's League Press Association, being held there on the 9th and 10th inst,

The marriage took place yesterday morning, at Chezzetoock, of Mrs. Agnes La-Pierre, of Porter's Lake. to Felix Murphy, of the same place, well known in Dartmouth as a gardener and lawn maker. Rev. Father Terrio, of Chezzetoock, officiated. The bride was attended by her cousin, and the grood; was supported by his brother. Many presents were received by the happy couple, who will, in the future, reside in Chezzetoock.

Miss May Cleary, cousin of the bride, was similarly attired. The groomsman was David Trider, of Bastern Passage.
Both bride and groom are very popular, and in consequence a large number of presents were received. The groom's present to the bride was a pendant and chain, and to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch. The groomisman was presented with cuff links.
After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Mullaley left immediately for St. John, where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside at 167 Hoilis St., Halifax.

The North Stars and St. Peter's played their scheduled game of baseball in the Dartmouth league last night, the former winning il to 3. St. Peter's team was changed in the line-up to a considerable extent, L. Richards being in the pitcher's box and John Martin behind the bat. Richards pitched a very fair game, but the support given him was anything but good, the strong wind in some cases being responsible for missing fly balls. The Stars also had a new man in the box in Baxter, who showed much speed and puszled the betsman with his curves. He also batted well, and was given much better support than Richards. Baxter struck out 8 men and gave one gift to first base. Richards struck out 3 men and gave one gift to first base. Richards is truck out 3 men and gave one gift to hist inning and in the second made 9 more runs; 'thereafter they did not exert themselves. Most of their runs were made on hits assisted by 'errora. St. Peter's scored twice in the second and once in the third.

St. Peter's left fielder missed some easy fly balls during the game, and their 2nd haseman also made some easy misses, but made two good catches in the 4th retiring as many players. M. Matthews in right field also made a good catch in the second from Richards' bat. Both teams show improvement, particularly in their batteries. Smith played a very good game at short for the Stars. Anderson and Richards each made a two base hit in the 2nd. M.S. Regan umpired the game and gave every satisfaction.

EXCITEMENT ON N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE Without parallel since panic of

New York, June 4.—The excitement on the Stock Exchange during the first hour of to-day's market was probably without parallel since the panic of 1907. Stocks were literally poured out regardless of quoted prices with declines greatest in the standard shares.

One of the main factors was the overnight news from W ashington indicating a radical attitude on the part of the administration in regard to the American To-bacco Company and the Standard Oil Co. Another influence was the decidedly lower level of prices quoted by London before Wall Street opened. All advices from abroad indicated increased pessimism, not only in London, but at all the continental financial centres.

only in London, but at all the continental financial centres.

Inquiry among the local banks and trust companies failed to elicit any satisfactory explanation for further slump in prices abroad except the note of extreme conservatism sounded in those quarters. The steady decline of the past few weeks has caused a general calling of loans by financial institutions.

This as yet has made but slight impression upon the money market, but a triffering of rates for both call and time accomodations is expected before the end of the month. month.

Within the first hour sales of stocks amounted to 500,000 shares, and fifty new ow records for the year were

MANY CRIMINAL TRIALS Before the Cumberland County Court which opened this morning.

AMHERST, June 4.—Hon. G. E. Patterson, Judge of the County Court, arrived here this morning and opened court at ten o'clock. A long list of criminal cases are on the docket. Leo Brine, of Joggins, pleaded guilty, and was let off on snapended sentence, hie father and uncle furnishing bonds that he would keep the peace for a year.

W. Mumford, who was charged with entering the Globe Laundry, also pleaded guilty. As this was his first offence, and as he was under the influence of liquor at the time, he was given a suspended sentence, furnishing bonds to the amount of $100 that he keep the peace for a year.

Controller Harris favored two representatives; he did not name any individuals. It was finally agreed that a recommendation be made to the Otly Council to send two representatives to Saskatoon, Saskatohewan. The cost will be in the vicinity of $300 each, which amount will be taker from the city's contingent account.

The Board of Control could not agree or that we representatives.

[How would it do to send the whole Board f]

The Board of Control apparently does not believe in advertising in the city papers for tenders. A report from the City Home superintendent, asked that tenders be advertised for insurance for three years for that institution. The total would be for $55,000 as heretofore. The clerk stated that last term tenders were advertised.

Controller O'Connor thought proper advertised.

Controller o'Connor thought proper arrangements on tenders should be asked for from the newspapers quoting the number of inches required during the year. The prices would then be cheaper.

The clerk of Works was asked how he obtained the recent insurance tender, and reply stated that he had spoken to the secretary of the Fire Underwriters, and called up the local companies for tenders. The Board decided not to advertise.

The North-end mission asked for the use of the city fings for July 1 and 2, but were redused.

Charles St. extension for four weeks, was referred to the Chief of Folice and City Solicitor.

Controllers Hoben, Harris and O'Connor reported having visited the incinerator and the engineer reported that the provisions of the contract were that it should be as oderless as possible.

A communication from Carrick Co., asking for water mains was referred to Controlles Hoben and the engineer.

A resident of Gottingen St., complained of "rowdies" breaking class, etc., was referred to the chief of police.

The Engineer was instructed to ask for prices for an automobile for five persons, to be used by the Works department. The Mayor asked whether a chanffer would be needed, but the Engineer stated that they would operate it themselves. The Mayor remarked, "If I want to use it, there will have to be a chaffeur,"

A letter was read from General Manager Gatellus of the I. C. R. in reference to the terminals, stating that within a week or ten days the engineer's office would be located in Halifax, and Superintendent Engineer McGregor would discuss the details of the work to be done with Engineer Doane, and after that he (Mr. Gutelling) would meet the City Coungli and discuss the alterations. ## Fashions New Veilings

THE supremacy of the small hat for the current and coming season has resulted in a decided revival of interest in veilings.

With the jaunty new shapes the addition of a veil adjusted in a close, precise manner gives the needed final touch of trimness and adds much to the desired snug-fitting appearance

Many striking chenille dotted effects are shown, among which are those having tiny floral motifs developed in fine chenille dots on an inconspicuous mesh. These are especially effective when the dots are black on delicate flesh or white tulle. We have them.

The mesh is given an unusual amount of attention in this season's veilings. The meshes of the most striking novelties are so exceedingly dainty as to be almost invisible and, therefore, by contrast with the dainty ground, the patterns stand out in bold outline.

Their continued success is due to the fact that their soft, silky finish is not only beautiful, but practical. In white, black and colors. 25c. and 40c. the yd.

THE LITTLE CHANCELLOR, Stories of Mr. Lloyd George Show His

Fearlessness.

The second volume of Mr. Herbert Du Parcq's "Life of David Lloyd George" just published, contains some intertaining glimpses of the parate intercourse of famous politicians.

In February, 1900, during the South African War, Mr. Lloyd George made a speech on the Amendment to the Address, which saveness one of the most successful of 's sareer. It won many notables '/. outes from political friends and enemies, and the late Sir Henry Gemphell-Bennerman, in offering his congratulations, told Mr. Lloyd George that a "talented London actress had begged her escort to bring her again whenever the member for Carnaryon was likely to speak."

At that time Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill were fighting on opposite sides of the House. The encounters between the two were much appreciated by both parties. On one occasion during a South African debate, Sir William Harcourt was heard to say to Mr. Lloyd George, "I am going to stey in the House to see the cockfight between you and young Churchill."

Mr. Lloyd George always had a mean terring of Mr. Winston Ohurchil Mr. Lloyd House of Mr. Winston Ohurchil" the cockfight between you and young Churchill."

Mr. Lloyd George always had a great opinion of Mr. Winston Churchill's abilities. When they were political opponents he once said:

"Last week there was a very interesting speech delivered by a brilliant young Tory member, Mr. Winston Churchill. There is no greater admirer of his talents, I assure you, than the individual who is now addressing you, and many a chat have we had about the situation. We do not always agree, but at the same time we do not black each other's eyes."

Mr. Lloyd George has also paid some remarkable tributes to Mr. Joseph Chamberlein. "Undoubtedly," he once said, "for better or for worse, Mr. Chamberlain is the most powerful politician in the Empire today. He is an extraordinary man, who has made his way by sheer strength." Very early in his career Mr. Lloyd George gained a great reputation as a fighter. "He is never happy unless he is up against a brick wall," someone once said. He would not be inone once said. He would not be in-timidated.

The book refers to the exciting timidated.

The book refers to the exciting episode in his career when he visited Birmingham in December, 1901, to address a meeting at the town hall and was ultimately obliged to escape in the disguise of a policeman.

It was the chief constable who, finding his men powerless, at last suggested to the Chancellor that he should pass from the hall wearing a policeman's coat. To quote the words of Mr. Du Parcq:

"This Mr. Lloyd George emphatically refused to do. It was only under great pressure that he gave way, when the chief constable pointed out that it was a last and only chance, and that by doing it he might save his friends from injury. The doors could not much longer be held, and there might be a great inrush of the mob, with terrible results. The fact that his friends might be injured if he persisted in his refusal was the only argument that prevailed with Mr. Lloyd George. That the crowd outside sought his life seemed not to weigh with him."

Ruskin and Restoration.

John Ruskin never was quite satisfied with the interior of any English cathedral; he found in them all too much vergerism, and a great deal too much vergerism, and a great deal too much restoration. Such figures, for instance, as those placed in the old niches of the South Porch of Canterbury, could not but excite his wrath.

The carving of the present choir stalls was in progress during his first visit there, and he found the work meaningless and lifeless, and he was struck by the indifference of the workmen when he talked to them about their work. He asked one man if the animal he was carving was a bear on a log; the answer was, "I don't know." The professor said, "I suppose it is a case of you pays your money and you takes your choice."

He surprised a stationer in Mercery Lane, close to the cathedral, who offered him photographs of the vast building, by saying, in a very sad tone. There is no Canterbury Cathedral now." Of course, he really found a great deal to admire in the magnificent cathedral, and he had a special law for the beautiful old glass of the Becket windows, and he declared the carved wooden canopy over Arch-bishop Kemp's tomb to be the finest he had ever seen.—Claudia E. Gale in Cornhill Magazine.

he had ever seen.—Con Cornhill Magazine. Ironing With Feet. A writer in The Wide World Magazine says that the most curious sight he saw at Cairo was men ironing clothes with their feet! The men were employed in the native tailoring establishments. Except for the long handle, the irons were shaped like the ordinary flat-iron, only larger. A solid block of wood rested on the top of the iron, and on this the men placed one foot, guiding the iron in the desired direction by means of the handle. For the sake of convenience, ironing-boards were raised only a few inches from the ground, and however strange the method may seem to us, the work was done very well and very expeditiously.

Bury Gold In India. There is buried in India by the natives of that country every year a sum of gold which is equal to the sum of gold which is equal to the amount taken yearly out of the mines in South Africa. The amount of gold, jewels and precious stones which lie-buried in India is practically incal-culable.

To Bring Candles. To Bring Candles.
The troubles at Holy Trinity Church, Old Brompton, Chatham, England, are somewhat acute, and the latest proposal of the vicar is that, owing to the gas having been cut off, he will ask each worshipper tobring his or her own candle to even-song.

Why liquid catarrh remedies fail. Why liquid catarrh remedies fail. They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the linings of the nose and throat, and entirely fall to cure. Only by cleaning the air passages, by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of Antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. In breathing it, you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phiegm is cleared out, horse-ness, coughing and hacking are sured. FLYING MEN'S MASCOTS. Curious Beliefs of Aviators Concerning Their Safety.

Curious Beliefs of Aviators Concerning Their Safety.

Luck plays a big part in the life of an aviator, and for this reason most airmen are very superstitious. The majority of aviators carry mascots when they fly; and the cleverer the pilot the more the luck-bringing emblems he seems to possess. Vedrines, the crack French flyer, always has a miniature of the famous picture "Mona Lisa" fastemed to side of his aeropiane when he starts on a flight. He carried this picture on his racing monoplane recently when he won the Gordon-Bennett Oup at a record speed of one hundred and five miles an hour. Grahame white does not trouble about mascots to any great extent, but he invariably wears a pair of check riding-breeches under his flying overalls when he makes a flight. These garments are popularly supposed to be lucky, and many other aviators have adopted a similar flying garb. Notable amongst these is Biolovoucic, the young Peruvian airman, who recently flew over the Alps. Another favorite mascot is a little Teddy bear which is strapped to one of the wing stays on the machine. In naval flying circles a lion's tooth is considered to be a lucky mascot for airmen—a fashion created by the late Lieut. Parke, for with such an for airmen—a fashion created by the late Lieut. Parke, for with such an

for airmen—a fashion created by the late Lieut. Parks, for with such an emblem he came out of many serious smashes unscathed. Lewis Turner, the well-known pilot instructor, who flies the Caudron biplanes, has so many mascots that he is generally in doubt as to which he shall take up with him. He recently remarked that were he to wear all his mascots at some he would be mistaken for a Ludgata Hill toy dealer.

There are many quaint superstitions he vogue at the serodromes. Chief amongst these is that should a pilot have one smash he will have two others on the same day if he continues aying. This belief is so firmly robted in the minds of most aviators that after a mishap they seldom again trust themselves on a machine until twenty-four hours have passed.

machine until twenty-four hours have passed.

Many airmen also have a superstitious dislike of flying in bright sunshine. But there is a substratum of common sense running through this belief. The hot rays of the sun when shining on a damp ground cause heat eddies in the air, which are very dangerous to flying men. These are known as air pockets, which are holes in the air that contain no support for machine and the thirteenth day of the month is in great disfavor amongst the month is in great dislavor amongs many airmen. And this superstition is largely due to the fact that so many fatal accidents have occurred many fatal accidents have occurred to airmen on this date. Last year ten pilots were tilled whilst flying on the thirteen of the different months, and already this year three airmen have been tilled, two on the thirteenth of January and one on the thirteenth of Tebruary.

The Wake of a Ship "Wake" for the track of a ship is a Scandinavian word, preserved in dialect. Its original meaning, as Prof. Skeats tells us, was that of an opening in the ice, especially the passage cut for a ship in a frozen lake or sea, and then, from being, applied to the smooth, watery track left by a ship after its passage through the ice, it came to be used when there was no ice at all. This useful word is one of the nautical terms which the French have borrowed from the English, although it is not easy to recoglish, although it is not easy to reconize it at first its French form "ousiche," and it is still used on the Norfolk broads with its original mean ing of an open place in the ice.

The Sphinx. The word sphinx is from the Greek and means the strangler and was ap-plied to a fabled creature of the Egyp-tians which had the body of a lion, tians which had the body of a lion, the head of a man or an animal and two wings attached to its sides. In the Egyptian hieroglyphs the sphinx symbolized wisdom and power united. It has been supposed that the fact that the overflow of the Nile occurred when the sun was in the constellations Leo and Virgo gave the idea of the combinations of form in the sphinx, but this idea seems quite unfounded. In Egypt the reigning monarch was usually represented in the form of a sphinx.—London Notes and Queries.
