The New St. Mark's Church Completed

A BEAUTIFUL EDIFICE

Old St. Marks Built in 1823 and Consecrated in 1826

St. George is a God-fearing community and each sect is active in its own way...

It would appear to be the aim of the different religions of the town, to devote to the service of God, buildings that are creditable and not ostentatious...

During the past year the Episcopal congregation have elevated the maximum of their efforts to the erection and completion of an attractive new church...

Old St. Marks was built in 1823, at the beginning of the incumbency of the Rev. Samuel Thomson, first Rector of the Parish of St. George.

It was consecrated on July 25th, 1826 by the Right Rev. John Inglis, Bishop of Nova Scotia...

At a meeting of the Corporation held on the 21st of April, 1862, a resolution for further enlarging the church was presented...

Thus the church reached the proportions with which the younger generation of St. George is familiar.

It was torn down in the summer of 1907 to make room for a larger structure.

It will be seen that all the pastors were eminent religious workers of distinction, and the results of their efforts have been manifested by the gains that have been made from their labors.

Owing to the unremitting efforts of Rev. H. I. Lynds, the present pastor, ably aided by N. Meating, A. C. Toy, Jas. Jack, Geo. A. Craig and H. R. Lawrence who constituted the building committee, the present beautiful building has been erected.

The design of the building is awe inspiring in its very simplicity. It is architecturally handsome and pervaded by an air of sincere piety.

From the stonework up, the building is a frame structure, the large roof of the nave being supported by 3 hammer beam trusses, all of Georgia pine.

NEW ST. MARK'S CHURCH, BUILT 1908

Mr. Goodwin Sparks, one of our oldest citizens, talks very interestingly of matters in connection with the old church...

Since undertaking my present mission I have had both churches repaired and modernized. During the first eighteen months of my incumbency the fine rectory in which we live was built...

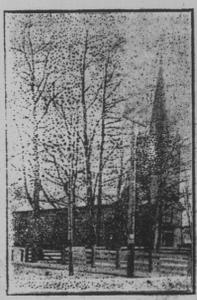

Referring to my record, I find that I have baptised 880 persons; 410 persons have been confirmed; 179 marriages have been celebrated, and I have performed over 420 burials the last sad obsequies of the dead.

For nearly forty years I have been connected as a missionary with the old D. C. S., which has lately been merged into the Diocesan Synod, ten years as assistant minister in St. Andrews, and nearly thirty years in St. George and Pennfield.

MR. E. M. NESBITT

The building has a splendid stone basement, walls are of rubble stonework, 22 inches thick and 12 feet high executed in red granite, with angle quoins, window and door jams in brick.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work.

The proprietors have so much faith in curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

His Most Foolish Action

(From the New York Times)

It is our impression that the very great majority of Mr. Theodore Roosevelt's fellow citizens look upon this libel suit as the weakest and most foolish action of his public career.

He has denounced men as liars, he had proclaimed some of his fellow citizens to be undesirable, he has put whole classes of the industrious people of this nation under the ban by his denunciations.

He has affirmed guilt where the courts have found innocence. Surely a man who has brought the bludgeon down upon so many defenceless heads ought not to holler for the police when he is jabbed with a goose quill.

PLAYING A ROG WITH PATENT MEDICINES

An Old-fashioned, Home-Made Mixture which Cures Kidney and Liver Troubles.

A prominent local druggist states that since the celebrated prescription of a distinguished specialist has become known, it is interesting with the sale of secret medicines. The prescription, which was appeared in a leading health journal, is reproduced here, just exactly as originally written. Fluid Extract Cascara, 1/2 oz.; Fluid Extract Cassia, 1/2 oz.; Fluid Extract Cayenne Compound, 1 oz.; Compound Syrup Sassafras, 6 oz.; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, 6 oz.; Compound Syrup Squill, 6 oz.

Any good druggist can dispense this, or even better, a person can buy the items separately and mix them at home by shaking them well together in a bottle. It is stated that the ingredients being vegetable, are harmless and simple. It has a gentle and natural action, and gradually tones up the eliminative tissues, leaving the kidneys in a perfectly healthy condition.

A merchant well known in public affairs states that this recipe cured his rheumatism. Save the prescription.

Points of Health and Beauty

Children who bite their nails should be treated for nervousness, and no amount of scolding, whipping or coaxing can overcome the fault where it is a physical breakdown.

In extreme cases of emaciation, olive or cod liver oil taken internally are most desirable, but should be ordered by a physician.

A dirty hair brush is unsanitary and harmful to the scalp. Clean it by dipping the bristles up and down in warm water, so which has been added a few drops of ammonia.

Rail cars, which often proceed from the same cause as does a red nose, may sometimes be relieved by bathing the ears in water as hot as can be endured, in which have been mixed a little cologne and borax.

Water is a nerve food. It has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually, as one can test for oneself.

Never on any account should children be allowed to wear boots or shoes which are not wholly comfortable. If boots are too tight or too short, corns, or what is still a greater evil, the child will acquire an awkward gait, which will probably cling to it all its life. Care should be taken, too, that boots are not buttoned too tightly around the ankle, as this will often cause great suffering to the little wearer.

Don't wash the face in hot water before going out for a drive or motor ride. This is a fatal error, as it opens the pores of the skin and makes them more sensitive to dust and dirt.

Busy housekeepers, as well as those young women who earn their livelihood behind shop counters, etc., often suffer from tired feet. In a case of this kind a bath of salt and very hot water will be found wonderfully refreshing. When withdrawn from the hot water the feet should be well rubbed with a hard towel. Those people who are troubled with neuralgia in the extremities will find this of great benefit.

Lemon juice is not a good freckle cure, because it leaves the skin in such a sensitive condition that other freckles accumulate very rapidly.

There is no better cure for tiredness than a glass of milk. It nourishes and strengthens at the same time. Tepid milk is no good at all. It should be sipped when very hot. To drink it fast destroys the good effect.

One of the jokes of which Kentuckians never grow weary concerns Senator Blackburn and his loyal appreciation of the liquid products of his native State. The Senator had gone to pay a visit to a friend of his who lived many miles distant. His friend met the Senator as he alighted at the station.

How are you, Joe, his friend asked. I'm up against it, was the reply. I lost the best part of my baggage en route.

Did you misplace it, or was it stolen? his friend inquired solicitously. Neither, said the Senator. The dog came out.

A CASE OF WOMAN HATING

"I am a philosopher," said Colonel Donovan, "and no man can be that without being a woman hater. A man doesn't get to be a philosopher till he is past middle age. Then he begins to see the shallowness of earthly expectations and enjoyments. It is the same with his views upon women—women who, like himself, have not grown old; of the older ones he takes no account—as somebody so pure and holy that he is unworthy to be her shoe. But when the day comes for him to associate with those who have turned thirty-five he has no use for them. His mother, his sister, his wife? Oh, they are a part of himself. They are not in the world of romance, but of family affection."

Now, the colonel, despite his hobby—this belief that he really hated the softer sex—was an excellent man. He had been fitted in his youth by a girl who was unworthy of him; and, strange to say, she was to him in his maturity the only saint in the lot.

The remarks quoted above were made to the major's wife, who by the way, was a warm friend and admirer of the colonel, preliminary to asking her to get him a housekeeper. It was a month after a promise to that effect that a woman arrived from the east and was duly installed in the position. Her hair was grizzly gray, her cheeks furrowed, her eyes covered by dark brown goggles, and she was dressed in execrable taste. The colonel thanked the major's wife that Mrs. Yorgang was just the thing. No such unattractive creature could possibly have the assurance to try to snare him, and if she did, were she possessed of magic art, her looks would defeat her.

Mrs. Yorgang possessed but one attractive feature, a pleasant voice. At first the colonel would give his orders for the day, to his housekeeper as he would to the adjutant, and when she asked a question or made a suggestion he found himself soothed by the smooth tones at which she spoke. One evening when the fire in her room wouldn't burn he invited her to sit with her sewing beside the table in his living room. He was very much interested in a book he was reading and wanted someone to talk to about it. He found a willing listener in Mrs. Yorgang. For one hour while he talked she listened attentively, but spoke never a word. The next day the colonel informed the major's wife that his housekeeper might be homely, but she was an excellent conversationalist. After this he invited Mrs. Yorgang to use his sitting room whenever she liked.

The next evening the old lady, being again turned out of her room, was pressed by the colonel to sit by his table. Thinking it best that he should inform her of his opinion of women, he did so and with his usual brusqueness when speaking on that subject. What was his surprise when she replied. My late husband was a woman hater, and he got all his points from me.

"You, Mrs. Yorgang! You s—!" Women have all the characteristics natural to their condition. Man's strength causes him to rely upon open methods; woman's weakness tends to duplicity. Then the part nature gave her to perform, the care of children, develops different faculties from those needed by man, who fights the battle of family maintenance. The colonel put out his hand impulsively. Shake, madam, shake! By Jove, you've more sense than any woman I ever met or heard of. I want you to make yourself at home in these quarters—in this room—anywhere you like. In future I shall give you no orders, but a carte blanche to run everything to suit yourself.

From that time forward Mrs. Yorgang was indispensable to the colonel. Gradually he became accustomed to her uncouth appearance and when at the end of the third month she offered her resignation the colonel swore he would put her under arrest and prefer charges against her for deserting her post. When she stuck to her intention he shut himself up for three days, then offered to marry her.

The next day the colonel received a note from the major's wife asking him to call. On his arrival Mrs. Major introduced a middle-aged spinster of attractive mien, a lifelong chum of hers, Florence Wood. The colonel stared at Miss Wood with astonishment. She appeared to be a revised edition of Mrs. Yorgang. The goggles were gone, the furrows were gone, everything was gone that was ugly. She stood regarding the colonel with a smile on her lips and her eyes dancing with mischief.

Colonel, said Mrs. Major, I had a bet with my husband that I could induce you to marry a freight within three months. The time is up today, and I have won. I knew my friend Florence Wood, possessed the tact and good sense to bring down just such a man as you within the allotted time. I brought her out here, giving her as disagreeable an appearance and name as possible to capture you. She has swallowed the bait, hook and all.

"But—but—Miss Wood is young. The glamor of youth is still there, blurring the astonished Colonel. I am past middle life, laughed Miss Wood. I am 35. And she had no glamor of youth when she caught you, added Mrs. Major. The colonel was much cast down when Miss Wood avowed that she did it all to please her friend, and that it was but a joke. She took her departure the next day, but the colonel, turning over the command to the major, followed her and never gave up until he brought her back as his wife.—Woman's National Daily.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plan, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by All Dealers.

Springs at Bottom of Sea

Bahrein Island, in the Persian Gulf, is said to be the hottest place on earth. It is usual there to find the thermometer at 140 degrees Fahrenheit. On the coast of this island, there practically all the people live, there is no fresh water, which is needed above all things in so scorching a temperature, says the Chicago "Tribune."

And it is to be had from the bottom of the sea. Here and there, scattered over the floor of the harbor of Bahrein, are springs of pure fresh water. These waters well up through the sand and mingle with the salt water of the sea. It would seem a difficult task to find these threads of fresh water amid the ocean's volume, but the thirsty islanders are thought to have found them ages ago and to have passed on their location from generation to generation.

A diver equips himself with a water bag made of skins, the mouth of which is closed, and descends to the bottom of the harbor at a point where one of the springs issues. The bag is carefully inverted over the current of fresh water which flows up from the sand, the mouth is opened, the skin is filled, then the mouth is shut fast and the diver returns to the boat awaiting him on the surface.

One scientist gives it as his belief that at some period in the shadowy past that which is now the harbor's bottom was not touched by the sea. The springs were then on the shore and ready for the islander's needs. Little by little the sea encroached on the island, but the location of the wonderful springs was not forgotten.

One in Seven Called by Consumption

A dreadful plague indeed when you consider that in incipient stages it can be cured. Take care of the little cold before it becomes a big one. When the throat is sore and it hurts to expand your chest, rub in Nerviline and immediately apply one of Polson's Nerviline Porous Plasters. Pain and tightness are at once relieved, inflammation and soreness gradually disappear and fatal illness is thus averted. Nerviline Plasters act as a counter irritant over the seat of pain, and as an exterior application in curing colds in the muscles, in pleurisy and headaches they have no equal. Keep these remedies right in your home.

EVERYTHING IS GOOD

The world is good and is getting better. Man in the main is good and is getting better. Everything, however the sting that it may have temporarily, is good, in that it is part of the splendid scheme of things which in a process of soul evolution is bringing man nearer the God ideal.

We take our blessings as a matter of course and cry out against our tribulations. It is the common manner of mankind, but if our joys and our sorrows were placed upon the scales, the former would far outweigh the latter and we would realize that it is good to live, for life itself is good and in it there is surcease of sorrow for all of us.

Most of us are blessed with comparative plenty. We earn our bread by the sweat of our brows, but the so-called "curse of Adam" has proved the greatest of blessings, as it has meant progress and achievement and the ability on the part of man to aid his fellow man, realizing at the time that he is giving of himself for a noble purpose.

All of us have our duties to perform in this world, and these duties comprise a broader scheme than the exaltation of self, whether this be through the acquisition of pelf or power, distinction or comfort, ascetic joy or sensual content. We are our brothers' keepers and it devolves upon each of us to promote the welfare of all of the rest.

We are not perfect and we shall never be perfect save by approximation, but we are growing in our comprehension as to the constituents of perfection, and this means that we are nearer perfection itself. Race antipathy and antagonisms, religious differences, bigotry and hatred, these things grow less each year, and in the past they have been the most fruitful causes of world sorrow. That they will ever disappear entirely from this earth is unlikely, but that they will dwindle until they are ineffective is the probability, the hope held out by the glowing future.

EARTHQUAKE CONTRIBUTIONS

The appropriations by the Government and the contributions by the societies and private individuals in behalf of the unfortunate people of Southern Italy are more generous than those inspired by any previous catastrophe. Less than three years ago at the time of the San Francisco earthquake, the people of this country contributed so generously that the President discouraged foreign gifts and relief committee of San Francisco had a considerable surplus left on its hands and this has been applied to the relief of the unhappy people in the earthquake area of Italy. The loss of life in San Francisco was small but in Southern Italy it has been enormous as counted by the hundred thousands. The whole world is responding liberally to the call of need.

The selling of brandy chocolates to children is about as unmanly a trade as can well be imagined. And those actually proven to have been making profit in this way should be severely punished. The results from thus intoxicating a young girl and leaving her on the streets far from home, might be most serious; and it is a bad business to insidiously implant the taste for alcohol in children who hardly know what they are acquiring. If we will not sell children "goes" of brandy over the bar, we certainly should not sell them enough of the liquor to intoxicate in a half-pound of innocent-looking candy.—Montreal Star.

Four steamships rushing to the aid of a disabled steamer, loaded with passengers, is another great triumph for wireless telegraphy. The interception of wireless messages by these steamers prevented an awful loss of life.

Mr. Todd's speech at the opening of the house met with general approval. He was complimented by the leaders of both parties on his effort.

A winter that makes Number One Hard Wheat and Number One Hard Men and Women, is not the sort of thing Canadians should be ashamed of. It is worth advertising, says the Ottawa Journal.

The Boston Transcript says: The treaty to which Secretary Root and Ambassador Bryce affixed their signatures last night wipes out all old scores between the United States and Canada and leaves a clean slate.

Every community ought to have its Local Improvement Society, to meet frequently during the season and discuss ways and means for making the neighborhood more attractive and up to date in all respects.

Judge Mulqueen of New York contends that a drunkard is more of a menace to the community than a burglar. "With all his faults," says the Judge, "a burglar has to keep his wits about him, and, as a rule, he is easier to handle. But the drunkard allows his brain to become inactive: he is a real problem."

 Hon. J. Kirkpatrick Kerr, who is to be the Speaker of the Senate, is a resident of Toronto, a barrister of eminence, and he is a member of the Senate since 1903. He will perform the routine and official duties satisfactorily and with the assistance of an accomplished wife, the important social duties of the position will be well discharged. A better choice could not have been made.

 The teacher of a geography class had just finished explaining how the English sparrow came to be imported into this country.

"The sparrows ate up the worm all right but now we have the sparrows on our hands. Which would you rather have, Max, the sparrows or the worms?" "I don't know; I ain't never had sparrows!"

An Irish waiter named Kenny was noted for his wit and ready answers. A party of gentlemen, who were staying at the hotel, heard of Kenny's wit, and one of them made a bet that he would say something that Kenny couldn't answer at once.

A bottle of champagne was ordered. The one who had made the bet took hold of the bottle and commenced to open it. The cork came out with a "bang" and flew in Kenny's mouth.

"Ah," he said, "that is not the way to cork!"

Kenny took the cork out of his mouth and replied: "No, Ma! It's the way to Kill Kenny."

The Canadian Courier, published in Toronto, has been getting its readers to vote upon the question, "Who are Canada's Ten Biggest Men?" And in the last number it announces the result of the voting which has been going on since early in November, as follows:
 Sir Wilfrid Laurier.
 Lord Strathcona.
 Sir William Van Horne.
 Goldwin Smith.
 William Mackenzie.
 Sir Charles Tupper.
 Hon. W. S. Fielding.
 Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.
 Sir Sandford Fleming.
 R. L. Borden, M.P.

While the list is open to criticism, notably in the omission of Hon. Edward Blake, one of the greatest men Canada ever produced, it may be gratifying to Provincial pride to note that of the five in the Courier's list who are native born Canadians, three—Tupper, Fielding and Borden—are Nova Scotians.—Chronicle.

A Real Lung Tonic

There are many preparations that will relieve a cough—few that will cure it. The first class, containing such drugs as Opium and Morphine, simply deaden the irritation and stop the cough, but do little or no permanent good.

Rev. Father Morrissey

"Father Morrissey's No. 10"

does not contain a trace of these dangerous drugs, but is an absolutely safe and scientific preparation of Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams. It entirely removes the irritation that caused the cough, by loosening out the mucus, stopping the inflammation and healing the delicate membrane of throat and lungs. Moreover, it tones up and strengthens the whole system, particularly the lungs, and protects against future coughs and colds.

Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c. At your dealer's.

THE PHOTOGRAPH

(Sophie Sweet in the New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

"Has father gone off to Pinkerton again?"

"There was no answer from Mrs. Plumb, who stood with her back to her daughter, apparently examining a half worn coat.

"What has father gone for?" repeated Lucetta. "Why, Mother Plumb, what is the matter?"

For Lucetta had discovered that the small, upright figure was trembling slightly, and the hand which hung over the back of a chair shook like a leaf in the wind.

"I don't exactly know, Lucetta," Mrs. Plumb gathered herself together by a mighty effort. "I took up your father's coat to mend, and I felt kind of dizzy! I guess I only feel springy; and not very strong.

The coat dropped to the floor. Mrs. Plumb's hand stole under her white apron and secreted something in the bosom of her dress.

"Is father coming home tonight?" persisted Lucetta.

"He said that business might possibly detain him for several days," answered Mrs. Plumb.

Miss Esther Maltby, their neighbor, called that afternoon; she was an unoccupied woman, and sometimes known as the Brimblefield Journal.

"Did you hear that Lola Pritchard had got divorced from her husband out West, somewhere, wherever they went, and had come to Pinkerton to live?" she inquired breathlessly.

Mrs. Plumb gazed at her visitor, narrowing her nearsighted eyes, and the color went out of her face, as a candle is blown out by the wind.

"At Pinkerton?" she faltered.

"I don't suppose Josiah would like to have her come home here to the old place—he is so strict about such things as divorce. Lola always was kind of light. I shouldn't wonder if she would have been just as well off if she hadn't been so handsome."

"I don't know as I ever thought she was so very handsome," said Mrs. Plumb, in one of her ice-dropping voices. (Lucetta listened.)

"Well, she had a white skin and a yellow head and that goes a good ways with most people," said the visitor. "And you can't say she hadn't a taking way with her. I remember they used to say she and Reuben Plumb thought a good deal of each other, before you came along and cut her out? But I'm sure you never were the jealous kind?"

"I wish she wouldn't talk about horrid things," exclaimed Lucetta, as the door closed upon the visitor.

"Lola Pritchard was Capt. Josiah's sister, was she?—and lived in that pretty old place with locust trees along the wall?"

"Locust trees along the wall?" echoed Mrs. Plumb. "I've heard that locust trees were short-lived. I wish those would die." The tone was so bitter that her daughter looked at her in amazement.

Lucetta, for her part, was feeling youth's exasperation at mysteries. It seemed to her as if her light hearted, sensible little mother—sensible except for that deluded ambition to have Roy Duncan for a son-in-law—had suddenly lost her reason.

"Mother, I'll mend father's coat," she said, as she lighted the sitting-room lamp after supper. "You look all tired out, and he will want it when he comes home tomorrow."

"Don't you touch it," said her mother, sharply. "If I feel too tired to mend it, he has another coat that he can wear."

Lucetta took a book; but it was not long before she slipped out of the sitting-room—mother was lying on the lounge with her eyes closed—and went to the hall closet, where her mother had hung the coat.

Here was the piece of pasteboard that she had felt hidden in the bosom of her mother's dress! She had thought she saw her thrust it back into the pocket.

It was the photograph of a girl sitting on a stone wall, and the wall was bordered by locust trees—the wall at the old Pritchard place on the north road.

She was right—the poor little mother—when she said that she was capable of being very jealous! Lucetta slipped the photograph back into the pocket.

Lucetta laughed—it was so perfectly ridiculous to be jealous of father! But the laugh ended in a strangling sob—things were so strange!

Mother and she were both very silent the next day. It was Saturday, and it wore slowly away.

A cheery "Whoa!" sounded at the gate. It was Neighbor Doane, who had brought father up from the station.

"Been worried? I couldn't get a minute to write! Father erect, ruddy and youthful at 45, dropped into a chair as soon as he had bestowed a hearty smack upon the cheeks of his wife and daughter. And if I haven't had harder work than trying to mow the northeast pasture—Lucy! you haven't been so worried as all that—and Lucetta looks as if she hadn't slept for a week. I've been wondering all the way home whether 'twas worth the while, seeing I can't help feeling as if I had been stealing sheep!—nothing more or less. Glad I declined to serve when they put me up for deacon.

Father dead, what are you talking about? begged Lucetta as father paused and mopped his brow.

Copper! Jim Armstrong back from New York, got me into it. He has set up in the broker business down at Pinkerton. I risked a thousand! Now, Lucy, don't look at me as if you were going to faint away. I made $450 and then I got scared and cheated out. I was getting so carried away that what scared me—dream-wish those would die." The tone was so bitter that her daughter looked at her, and the church turned into a hall of mirrors, and Lucetta a little bit of a girl again, was playing with them. When I woke up I calculated I had better come home. But I've got the $450. It will buy Lucetta a new piano, and, maybe, put that new bay window that you've been hankering for on to the dining room besides.

Lucetta gave him a joyful hug, but his wife's face had not altogether lost its strange, strained look.

What broke me up the worst was that I missed getting something done that I meant to have for a kind of a wedding anniversary surprise for you. But here, I got you that, Lucy.

He opened his grip and took out a case. It was Lucetta who took it from her mother's passive, trembling hand and opened it. It was a pretty gold watch with the monogram, L. P., upon it and a long, fine chain.

Lucetta gave her father another hug, but her mother only stared at the case in her hand, like one in a dream.

Don't you care anything about it, Lucy? asked her husband in a disappointed tone. It's just like you not to think much of gewgaws; but I thought you would like a watch! I believe you would have thought more of the photograph I was going to get enlarged if I hadn't been so worked up about copper that I went off and forgot it. I came across it when I went up to the attic to look after my old grip. It is a snapshot that Heber Lawton took the summer that we were engaged. I meant to get it enlarged and surprise you, so I never showed it to you. Heber had a knack with that camera of his, and I never saw a better likeness! Lucetta, you go to my old coat pocket and get a photograph and see if you know whose likeness it is.

It looks as if it might be mother, said Lucetta doubtfully as she returned, gazing at the photograph in her hand. But the face is very indistinct.

Why, of course, it's your mother! said father. She was sitting on the stone wall up at the old Pritchard place, when Heber and I went by fishing. She didn't see us at all. There's you to the life, Lucy, as you looked then, and I'm going to get it enlarged, for I never shall get a picture that'll suit me so well!

I—I can't see that it looks a bit like me, said mother, tremulously. She hung her head, under Lucetta's compelling gaze.

Makes me think of poor Lola Pritchard, said father, sadly. She is down at Pinkerton, at her cousins, Jim Armstrong says she is pretty much of a wreck, mind and body; he wanted me to go to see her. I told him maybe you and I would go down, some time.

Lucy, with the wisdom of a serpent, went softly out of the room.

Catarrh Cured or Money Back
The cause of Catarrh is a germ. It multiplies in the lining of the nose and throat, spreads to the bronchial tubes and finally reaches the lungs. Cough syrup can't follow to the lungs—it goes to the stomach—and fails to cure. Catarrh is inhaled. It goes everywhere—gets right after the germs, kills them, heals the soreness, stops discharge and hacking, cures every trace of Catarrh. You're absolutely certain of cure for Catarrh, throat irritation, colds or bronchitis, if you use Catarrh-cure. 25c. and $1.00 sizes sold everywhere.

Who Kissed the First Kiss
Who were the first "kisser" and "kissed"? The query is very difficult of solution, for the origin of kissing is shrouded in mystery, although kissing has been practised by civilized nations in every era of the world.

Biblical records do not enlighten us as to whether our first parents indulged in the habit. The first kiss on record was the one given by Jacob to Rachel, when he met her at the well. In the New Testament St. Paul admonishes his followers to greet one another with a holy kiss. And in the time of the Romans kissing the hand to a god was a sign of adoration. From all accounts extant, English speaking people unemotional and prosaic as they are characterized appear to have been among the first to exploit the joys of kissing and to render it a universal habit.

Marrying Wives Unseen and Unknown

It really seems like a visit to China to be received by her diplomatic representative at Washington, and no one appreciates a good story more than Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister. His recital of the details of his engagement and marriage is a very entertaining tid-bit.

"I had never spoken a word to my wife until after we were married; I was engaged when a child, and was prohibited by my parents to see the girl whom I was to marry. As I grew older, every young lady I chanced to meet me to wondering if she were my prospective bride. I am not unhappy in my marriage, although I had no acquaintance whatever with my wife until the wedding day."

This curious Eastern custom eliminates much of the poetry of the marriage ceremony, according to Western ideas, and yet one wonders if custom makes such a great deal of difference. One's ideas of romance are formed by his surroundings to a great extent—would the youth know how to tenderly salute his lady if he had never been kissed by a fond mother, or at least had witnessed the custom elsewhere? Many ideas of life are taken from books or from the stage, and have gradually come to be considered correct customs—"Airs at Washington," in December National Magazine.

The Young Wife's Great Fault

It is curious how some young wives resent bitterly if their husbands are courteous to other women. Travelling, staying in hotels, on the golf links, everywhere one goes, one cannot help noticing the fact that many wives frown and look annoyed if hubby even so much as opens a door for a feminine stranger, finds a chair for her, or performs any of these little courtesies which so largely help to make life pleasant.

One would think a woman would be proud when her husband proves himself to be a chivalrous gentleman, and that, instead of frowning because he is polite, she would blush and feel ashamed if his manner to women of all classes were not courteous and kind.

BEAVER HARBOR

Men with teams are kept very busy hauling wood. Richard Parker slipped on the ice one day last week. Being an old gentleman he got badly shaken, but luckily no bones were broken. John Thompson of the Beaver Harbor Trading Co. sustained a heavy loss, by the death of his valuable horse "Skidoo." Hilbert Paul is recovering very slowly from a severe illness. Work up on the Government wharf is fairly under way. The lumber is being hauled from Pennfield. John McDougall was called to Black's Harbor, by the sudden illness of his uncle Roderick McDougall. Mrs. Charles Wadlin is on the sick list. G. W. McKay, attended the County Council this week. Several of the children of this place have whooping cough. Miss Alberta Wadlin has gone to St. John where she will assume her studies at Kerr's Business College. Miss Sadie Mitchell, of Campobello, visited friends here last week.

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventives. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as a magic. A few hours—and your threatening cold is broken. Candylike in taste, Preventives please the children—and they break the feverishness, always. And least of all is the economy. A large box—48 Preventives—25 cents. Ask your druggist. He knows! Sold by All Dealers.

DEER ISLAND

A number of our young folks attended the ball at Chocolate Cove Saturday last. Walter Stuart and Miss Eva Cammie were guests of Mr. James Cammie of Eastport Me. Alver Stuart is chopping cordwood on Mink Island. Miss Mattie Lambert spent Sunday in Miss Minna Stuart. Kenneth Stuart has started a new mine on fish island. I have just received the NEW EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS and combination attachments for playing either the old 2 minute records or the new Amberol record which runs 4 1-2 minutes or over twice as long as the old record. The new record is a marvel, it is no larger than the old one. If you have a Phonograph, bring it in and have the new attachments put on so that you can play either Record.
