NOTORIOUS BRIGAND CAPTURED. Rome, Oct. 17.-The notorious brigand, Mussolino, has been captured, after a fierce resistance, at Urbino, the earl obtained a divorce from his first wife. It is said the earl will drop first wife. It is said the earl will drop shown him by the peasantry, he had shown him by the peasantry, he had some described capture. He had long terrorized Calabria and always escaped capture, despite the immense reward the government of-fered for his arrest. His career as an outlaw began two years ago, when he was liberated from what he considered an unjust imprisonment. He vowed to kill the fifteen witnesses who were responsible for his conviction, and he is said to have actually dispatched twelve

MISS STONE STILL A CAPTIVE. Constantinople, Oct. 17 .- As no news has been received here from Messrs Baird and Haskell, the missionaries, who have been attempting to get into touch with the two brigands, who abducted Miss Ellen M. Stone, a third missionary has been dispatched in quest of them and the brigands.

The headquarters of Miss Stone's captors is a thickly-wooded mountaintop, near the boundary line of Turkey and Bulgaria. Miss Stone has only light summer clothing. The brigands refused to allow her to keep her baggage, but let her have a Bible. The eader of the band is the notorious Boucho, from the Bulgarian town of Dubnitza.

THE RANSOM TOO LARGE. New York, Oct. 17 .- Rev. R. Wardlow Thompson, director of the Colle-giate and Theological Institute at Sofia, cables the following from Samarov, Bulgaria, to the Journal and Adver-tiser, concerning Miss Stone: "We sent word to Constantinople pointing out that being private individuals we cannot prevent the government from pressing the brigands, also that the ransom too princely. No such sum was ever before demanded. No rejoinder has yet been received. Usually brigands ask about a thousand pounds, and then agree for half. Twenty-five thousand Turkish pounds means two horse-loads of gold, and that is more gold than ere now is in Bulgaria. Besides, the brigands demand payment in Turkish gold, for which it would be necessary to send to Constantinople. I should not give the brigands the ransom until Miss Stone is safely delivered to us, as they might murder after the ransom in crder to seal the lips forever. We have three theological institute pupils who were captured in the Stone party. One tells pathetically how he was robbed of money intended to pay for his tui-

CONGREGATIONAL FEDERATION. RECESSION OF MANCHURIA. Twice within a week Li Hung Chang has visited M. Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China at Pekin. Chinese officials assert that Earl Li has press ed for the recession of Manchuria, M. essar proposing that China should send a special envoy to St. Petersburg to arrange terms, and Earl Li suggesting for the mission his greatest enemy Chang Chih Tung. The story must be accepted with some reserve. The same powerful opposition that was employed before is again endeavoring to prevent the signature of the convention, but Russia's promise to restore the railway from Shan Hai Kwan to Niu Chwang is a powerful lever in the hands of M. Lessar.

THE ALDERSHOT FIGHT.

In the absence of further advices from England, it is altogether likely that the feud arose, as so many of these regimental feuds do, out of a little private squabble. Soldiers from different regiments meet in drinking places, where they are under no military control, a sneering remark is smashing.

all the soldiers of that regiment be lieve they are in honor bound to wipe out the affront. Next minute there is a free fight in progress, the soldiers generally using their belts and strik-ing with the buckles. If they are not interfered with, they generally settle the dispute then and there, with a little blood-letting, otherwise the insult is remembered, it may be for years, and sometimes the feud is fought out by men who were not in the service when the original quarrel took place. There have been many such encounters in the British army, but few of them have gone to such lengths. The historians of the two regiments engaged do not make any reference to this feud, so it is probably a very re-

NOT FIT TO PRINT. When the hearing of the charges against Theodore and Laura Jackson (Ann O'Delia Diss Debar) was resum-ed in the police court Wednesday, the woman entered the dock dressed in spotless white. She placed her hands together before her face and closed her eyes in the attitude of prayer. The crowded court room was silent. The hearing was devoted to revolting testimony of the behavior of the male defendant toward a young woman who was one of the victims of the pair. The alleged deceptions were seemingy accompanied by hypnotic influence As the prisoners left the dock they were hissed by the spectators. Jackson cried, "Keep quiet, you reptiles." The testimony was of such a character that the London papers, which usually print verbetimes. usually print verbatim reports of sensational criminal trials, say that in this instance they are unable to do so. INSPECTING BOER CAMPS

SOLE AGENTS.

Six English Ladies Are Doing It Thoroughly.

Their Report Will Make an Important Blue Book-British Liberal Policy.

INSPECTING BOER CAMPS. London, Oct. 17 .- Advices from South Africa state that the commission of six English ladies is traveling about the country in two saloon carriages, and inspecting Boer refugee camps with exceptional thoroughness. There are 39 camps, and the commission is not likely to finish its labors before the end of December, although the chairwoman, Miss Fawcett, is most energetic and capable, and is pushing on the work at the risk of wearing out her colleagues. The government is rigid in its requirement for secrecy, and the judgment of the commission on all points relating to the humane treatment of Boer women and children will be reserved for a parliamentary blue contribution made by women to the history of the war. BRITISH LIBERAL POLICY. Mr. Asquith, in his speech at Edinburgh last night, outlined the new Liberal policy, of which the two essential points are free trade and British naval The situation on the Isthmus of supremacy. He had a good deal to say Panama is unchanged. News has been about the difference in the Liberal party and the necessity for healing them, but he has not done much to improve the situation, and the Daily News takes him to task for ignoring the situation in Cape Colony. Liberal unity is as far off as ever, and however political parties may shape themselves in the near future, it is certain that the country is not prepared to exchange a coherent government for a mixture compounded of equal elements of pro-

The verdict in the Cobra case, although it was generally anticipated, has created an uneasy feeling of condemnation of the admiralty authorities for the buckling of the destroyer, which will probably lead to a sentiment of distrust in the navy towards the whole class of destroyers, and it will not be diminished by the recollection that two other disturbing facts about admiralty administration are before the country. The first is the misconstruction of the royal yacht, and the second is the discrediting of Belleville boilers, as a re-sult of the admiralty's disregard of Athens, Ont., Oct. 17 .- Mrs. George Campbell, of Athens, while in a fit of despondency, drowned herself last evening. Mrs. Campbell was about 85 years of age. Her maiden name was Burrett, and she came from Augusta township. She had resided in Athens over 40 years. A husband, a son and three daughters are left. SECOND ATTEMPT SUCCESSFUL.

New York, Oct. 17 -- Frederick Euggelin, who made an susuccessful at-tempt to kill himself and his three children on Monday night, succeeded in ending his own life today. On Monday he cut a gas pipe in the room where his children were asleep and laid down to die with them, but was discovered and dragged from the apartment before he or any children was overcome. Today drank carbolic acid, and was dead before the ambulance surgeon reached his house . Euggelin was time-keeper on one of the rapid transit contracts, and his friends said that he killed himself because his foreman won the affections of his wife and induced has to leave her home.

GOOD-BYE TO MONTREAL. Montreal, Oct. 17.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall bade farewell to Montreal at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, continuing their journey on the Lake St. John Railway to the Mari-time Provinces. It was decided that the royal train should stop in the center of the new Victoria bridge, and that there, as near as possible to the spot where the present King had driven the last rivet of the then world's famous Victoria tubular bridge, the future King of England should be presented with a souvenir worthy of the to the new Victoria bridge. Accordingly the management of the Grand to a head yesterday. The authorities Trunk Railway made appropriate preparations for the event. The whole center span of the new bridge was bander-in-chief. A few minutes later a train steamed into the bridge, consisting of the Violet, the special car of the pre-sident of the Grand Trunk Railway. From it descended G. B. Reeve, gen-eral manager, and several other G. T. R. officials.

AT VICTORIA BRIDGE.

Sharp at one o'clock the royal/train entered the bridge and a few minutes later drew up at the provided platform. A second or two, and then Col. Sherwood, chief of the Dominion police, jumped from the moving train, closely followed by two Dominion policemen, who placed themselves on each side of the train. At the close of the address the general manager handed to the duke a handsome case, containing a souvenir, historic of the two visits to the bridge, printed on satin, which his royal highness was pleased to accept.

THANKS.

In reply the Duke of Cornwall and York expressed his thanks to the management to the Grand Trunk Railway for the care they had taken of the royal train since it had been upon their pleasure to identify himself with such a great enterprise as the Victoria bridge with which his dear father's name was so intimately connected. The offering for the evening was Victor Herbert's "The Serenade," an opera new to London, although first produced several years ago. The book is by Harry B. Smith, and is written in his characteristic style, abounding in his characteristic style, abounding in laughable puns and quips, which are not confined to one character, but are generously distributed. The music is distinctively catchy and tuneful, and it afforded abundant scope for the wood complision of the principals. pox is reported from the township of vocal capabilities of the principals.

The work of the company was in the main satisfactory to the audience. W. H. McDonald, in the leading tenor role, sustained his reputation and took full advantage of the opportunities afforded him by the score. Allan C. Hinckley, a young baritone, possesses a pleasing voice, which was heard to excellent effect in a couple of solo numbers. Vernon Stiles is another young member of the company who did effective work in his solo in the third act. Miss Adele Rafter and Miss Eunice Drake, who filled the important female roles of Dolores and Yvonne, are beautiful women and tal-ented vocalists. The former's "Angelus Song," with hummed accompaniment by the male chorus, and the latter's solo with flute obligato, were probably the most enjoyable numbers of the evening. Two of the leading members of the organization-Albert Parr and Miss Frances Miller-did not aptaken to prevent the spread of the disease. Miss Tilden recently came from the United States, where she had pear at all in last night's production, while Miss Josephine Bartlett had only the minor role of the mother superior been working for some time, and it is believed was infected before she

The bulk of the comedy work was in the hands of H. C. Barnabee, Geo. B. Frothingham and W. H. Fitzgerald. The former, as the Duke of Santa Cruz, was disappointing. He did not seem to care whether his words were heard beyond the footlights, and in several ways he showed his disregard of the opinions of the audience. Geo. Frothingham, as the grotesque tailor with artistic aspirations, carried off the comedy honors of the evening, and his humor was especially enjoyed in the topical song. "Only W. H. Miller, as the Abbott, and Bertha when 11 years old. A caughter was born, and this daughter in turn was Lovejoy, as the duke's cook. A notable feature was the physical attrac-tiveness of the chorus girls, which proved an agreeable adjunct to their well-trained singing. In this respect the organization is greatly superior to "Dolly Varden," the members of whose per cent of the total population of the United States attend public schools, chorus would individually or collectiveand about 2 per cent of the rest attend ly stand only a very frosty chance in a well-conducted beauty show. nual report of the commissioner of

SATURDAY AT THE LONDON. "The American Girl," which is Saturday's offering at the London Opera House, has elements that are reminiscent of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," its plot being cast on something of the same lines, while its comedy is just as wholesome and refreshing, its heart interest of equal force, and its depresent as harpily satisfactory. The nouement as happily satisfactory. The greatest amount of interest is in the character of Ross Bolter, the American hustler, which is played by Geo. F. Hall. He brings to the part a de-gree of humor that establishes him a favorite at his first appearance on the stage. Miss Frankie St. John as Saratoga, the dashing American soubrette and favorite of the London music halls, is fully up to the requirements of the part, and introduces some clever specialty work. The two children, Gracie Russell and Daisy Stampe, appear at every performance, playing important parts and doing specialties as well The production will undoubtedly duplicate the success of its appearance at the same house last year.

THE SPAN OF LIFE" TONIGHT.

Sutton Vane's powerful meiodrama, 'The Span of Life," which comes to the new Grand this evening, is spoken of as a veritable panorama of realistic scenes. In the course of four acts some twelve different settings are shown, some of which-notable those of the human bridge, the lighthouse and the mines of South Africa-are described as gems of stage setting. The costumes and properties generally are said to be in keeping with the elaborate staging of the piece. Popular prices prevail, 50c, 35c and 25c.

"THE DEEMSTER." In "The Deemster," which will be produced with a powerful cast at the new Grand on Tuesday evening next, Hall Caine is said to have written a play of most absorbing interest. Nearly all of Mr. Caine's plays and novels have for their scene the Isle of Man, of which he is a native. At first, "society" on the island objected to his disregard of the conventions, but now he is as popular at Government House, or at the Deemster's, as he is in Black Tom's cottage. His warmest friends are among the peasants and fishermen, from one end of the island to the other. "They are such good fellows," he says, "and such excellent subjects for study for my books and plays. They are current coin for me.' So he asks them to supper and visits them in their houses, and has taught himself their language and their strange intonations.

Degenerates.

[Montreal Witness.] A wide field of sociological investigation having been suddenly opened to the press of all countries by the crime Czolgosz, the question has been aised whether there is not some better way of dealing with the criminally inclined than that hitherto pursued. In answer to this it is urged that science, as well as law, should be invoked for the protection of society against degenerates. At the congress of criminal anthropologists held recently in Amsterdam, it was maintained that, inasmuch as some men are born criminal, penal law should provide educative and preventive measures in place of epression and penalties. These should e graduated not as in existing penal odes, according to the hypothetic gree, of personal culpability, but by a cassification based on the degree of social danger presented by the criminal. Judicial procedure and organization should be so modified that the physician would be an aid to the judge and the judge himself would be a criminologist. By the expression 'born criminal' it was explained that it was not meant that certain unfortunates were condemned by fate to the commission of crime, but are born with a hereditary and organic disposition to it. The criminal placed under observation would be subject 'a long, mental, close, careful inquiry into ion. If moral and physical consti reclamation, his sentence should depend on that fact, not on the degree of culpability involved in the particular offence charged against him. With regard to juvenile offenders, the proposed law of justice tempered by science, advocated a complete change in the mode of dealing with juvenile offenders. He proposed, and his pro-position was adopted, that children who are guilty of legal offence, previous to any judicial process, be amined by a competent physician, and those who are recognized as degenerates placed in educational establish-ments created especially for their intellectual and moral improvement.

FALL FAIR AT LAMBETH

Rain Poured All Day, But the Show Went On.

As Was To Be Expected the Attendance Was Slim-A Baby Show-Concert in the Evening-The Prize-Winners.

The fall fair of the Westminster Agricultural Society was held at Lambeth yesterday under most unfavorable conditions, for the rain fell steadily and prevented the usual big crowd of visitors from attending. But despite he disagreeable weather Westminster farmers demonstrated loyalty to their annual gathering by taking along entries sufficiently numerous to make a good display; but it was impossible for a large number of intending exhibitors, whose entries were made before show day, to reach the grounds. Had they not been prevented an advance on last year would have been recorded. The energetic officers promise to select a day next fall that will atone for the misfortune of yesterday, though they are satisfied with the result, considering the circumstances. All departments were fairly well filled with an exceptionally good class of entries, for the farmers of Westminster township are known to thoroughly understand their business in its various

The main hall was formerly the old frame Methodist Church which had become too small for the congregation's use some time since, and was used for exhibition purposes the first time yesterday, having been moved to the grounds, a change which makes the fair more complete. Another year will find the building greatly improved. Music by the 26th Battalion band was an agreeable feature of the afternoon, A special attraction was the baby show. There is generally trouble in procuring judges for a contest of this kind. Some men are easily influenced in their judgment by a sweet smile from the fond mother, who holds up her child for inspection, and it was because of the improbability of their being moved one way or the other that Eli Griffith, ex-Ald. Robert Carrothers and J. B. Cox were selected to fill the important position. But they failed to appear. The directors do not think they lacked bravery, but blame it on the weather. Mrs. Archer took first prize, Mrs. Blackie second and Mrs. Piper third. John Hunter and W. K. Talbot, claimed by disinterested parties to be splendid judges in this class, made the awards and escaped injury. In the evening a concert was held in the Union Hall, under the auspices of the society. Dr. Routledge made a model chairman, and introduced an

THEY NEVER KNEW FAILURE.—Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately upon the diseased organs of the system, and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in these cases these pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities. THEY NEVER KNEW FAILURE.

CAVE-IN OF A COAL MINE!

Four Miners Instantly Crushed to Death.

Two Men at Richmond, Va., Shot With a Noiseless Gun-Fatal Gasoline Explosion—Other Casualties.

FOUR MINERS KILLED. Scranton, Pa., Oct. 16.-A fail of roof coal caused the death of four men in the Klondike mine of the Delaware and Hudson Company at Archbald this afternoon. They are Patrick Nealon, assistant mine foreman: John Healy, miner; John Kearney, miner, and Matthew Drugher, driver. A car had been run down a plane in the mine, jumped the track and knocked out a number of props. The three men, in charge of Foreman Nealon, were replacing the props when a great slab of rock fell, killing the four instantly. A FATAL EXPLOSION.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 16 .- A terrible explosion, probably of gasoline, in the floor kitchen of Nathaniel Ladd's restaurant, on Harlow street, this afternoon, brought almost immediate death to Miss Haney, whose apartments adjoined, and Mrs. Mary F. Carrigan, the second cook, and fatal burns to John Barry, a waiter. The explosion wrecked two floors, and falling debris caused minor injuries to a number of people. SHOT DEAD.

Fort Erie, Ont., Oct. 16.-Young Simmons, son of the proprietor of the restaurant at Erie Beach, went out shooting on Monday last. As he did not return at night his friends went in search of him, when his body was found in the woods, with his face shot to pieces. It is supposed Simons' gun was in some way discharged while he was loading it. He was 17 or 18 years

St. Lawrence Route Improvements

The little tiff that has taken place between the Minister of Public Works and the mayor of Montreal is being used by some ardent politicians as a means to injure the Dominion authorities. One interpretation of Mayor Prefontaine's attitude in desiring to hurry along the contract for the elevator which the experts called in by the Minister to examine the plans say is virtually defective, is that while the Montreal people are anxious to move, the Dominion Government does nothing to promote improvement of trade

The statement is wholly unfounded, as anyone who takes the trouble to ascertain the facts well knows. Prior 1896 the St. Lawrence route had very much neglected, and the harbor improvements at Montreal were really not further ahead than they were ten years before.

Today, as the Herald points out, one and a third is about to be begun. Five years ago there was much complaint rence canals changes. In the past, while the people of Buffalo by their enterprise have been carrying pretty much all the lake traffic by their port, through New York State to the Atlantic Ocean, the Montrealers, like the heathen of old, have been contented to sit still, and cry aloud, "Come over and help us, or we perish." Their attitude will have to change, or they cannot expect Parliament to continue to lend a sympathetic ear to the request that it should aid in making Montreal the great port of the Canadian Atlantic seaboard.

A Model Factory.

A noteworthy illustration of the benefits derivable from hearty co-operation between employers and employes comes from Boston. In a large boot and shoe manufacturing establishment the proprietors some time ago reduced the hours of work of its 2,000 employes to eight a day. The workpeople have been so well pleased with the new conditions that they have worked sufficiently hard concern was working ten hours a day. What this means can be gathered when it is stated that the pay roll is $1,000,-000 a year, and the daily output 8,000 pairs of finished shoes. The change from ten hours to nine, and from nine to eight, has been effected without rendering it necessary to reduce the daily wage of the week hands, who, however, comprise but one-fifth of the total working force. But the piecehands also earn as much money weekly as under the ten-hour schedule. Of course, in some businesses it might not be possible to show as good results from a short workday, but a good deal is possible where the workers are encouraged, by liberal treatment, to do their best for those who have organized the industry at which they toil, and the employes in turn are absolutely faithful in their service. The employers and employes in the model factory have entered into another wise compact. They have arranged that every grievance which cannot be adjusted by friendly conference between the contracting parties shall be submitted to the State arger measure and with fuller Board of Arbitration. This agreement, is to be added the it is expected, will result in the avoid-

Selling the Thousand Islands.

Canada has been disposing of her islands in the River St. Lawrence be-tween Kingston and Brockville, and many of them have been purchased by citizens of the United States. Some time ago the Canadian Department of the Interior gave notice that they would place upon the market a number of the Thousand Island group that were still the property of the Dominion. The number approximated five hundred, and the upset price ranged from $5 to $1,-So far about a hundred applications have been made by purchasers, and some fifty offers have been accepted. The Thousand Islands have always been one of the beauty spots of America, and it is to be hoped that the Canadian officials have had the wisdom to sell only under such restrictions as will guarantee that the natural beauties of the group will be undisturbed. This they should do for their own protection, for the travelers who are tracted to the St. Lawrence by the beauties of the Thousand Islands must, or indirectly, bring a large financial return to our northern neighbor.-Boston Herald.

We cordially agree with the Herald. It would be not only a national but it would be a continental blunder, to do anything that would in the slightest degree mar the beauty of the Thougreat new high level wharf has been sand Islands. The Effect of Holidays.

[Hamilton Spectator.] A merchant who has been studying the effects of holidays has arrived at the conclusion that people spend just so much a year for goods, and if they them at one time they will buy them at another. He speaks the mother tongue in its purity.

Chamberlain vs. Prohibition.

[Hamilton Times.] Mr. Chamberlain's statement that there are three million total abstainers in Great Britain refers, we must assume, to adult males, for surely the women and children who do not indulge in intoxicants, are more numerous than that. The colonial secretary, though a social reformer, is no prohibitionist. He declares that drunkenness cannot be put down by coercive improvement of the physical and moral condition of the people. If he is right, as we believe he is, it is werse than a waste of time for the opponents of the liquor traffic to Never Too Old to Learn.

(Roston Herald.) President Eliot's remark that he does not believe there is any period of human life between birth and death which should not be characterized by a pro-cess of drill, and that an adult is infinitely more capable of advantageous drill than a child, recalls the late William Morris Hunt's answer to an inquiry from one of his pupils as to the age at which a person ought to undertake the study of art. "Not under four or five, nor over eighty or ninety," said he.

Noise and Health.

[Health.]

When will our legislators recognize the fact that the health of the community is its most valuable asset, and take the necessary steps to assist in preserving it? Doubtless there are many noises incidental to city life which it is impossible to suppress, but a very large proportion of them are easily preventable—for instance the incessant discordant clanging of car gongs, the screeching and tooting of switch engines in railroad yards, the rattle of heavily loaded wagons over badly paved streets and the deafening yells of fruit venders and newsboys. In London the city government has recently taken steps to suppress the last-named nuisance—a proceeding which might be followed with advantage in our own cities.

The Duke's English.

[Hamilton Spectator.] The coming of the Duke of Cornwall has given certain Canadians a severe jolt. The average Canadian speaks good English. But there are many Canadians who have been cultivating a style of speech which they imagine to be the style of the upper classes in England. The irreverent have called it the "blawsted" style, and have made victim of the fad bravely stuck to it until the arrival of the duke. the duke replied to the first address the Canadians of the "blawsted" style were amazed to discover that he spoke dinary. plain, every-day English, without frills, without accent, without We do not know what the result in the dropping of the nonsensical imitation of the Lord Dundrear variety of Englishman-a variety that exists principally on the American

THE BAPTIST MISSIONS

Now in Session at Brantford-Vacancies on the Board Filled-Reasons for Gratitude-More Funds Needed.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 16 .- At the Tuesday afternoon session of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, the first business was the moving and seconding of the annual report by Rev. T. S. Johnson, of London. In doing so, he expressed gratification that Rev. J. G. Brown, secretary of the board, had the advantage of practical knowledge and experience of mission work, and also expressed a deep sense of gratitude for the fact that the missions had been privileged to carry on their work among people who so readily responded to the work done by the missionaries.

Rev. Prof. Farmer seconded the adoption of the report. Referring to the statement that there was a lack of volunteers, he pointed out that there were plenty of volunteers, but it was the policy of the board to send only the choicest spirits, men with broad views, who would train up strong, vigorous and able native members, who would themselves be able to carry on the work and ultimately save the necessity of sending out more men.

A QUESTION OF POLICY. After the report was adopted. Rev. J. G. Brown stated that the estimates from India would have to be cut down cussion on English "accent," but it is not generally known that it was the which limited the appropriations to the amount of the income last year.

Rev. J. Bostow, of Peterboro, urged World's spelling will be watched with the abolition of the rule in order that the estimates should not be cut down. Rev. Thomas Bone advocated immediate action to wipe out the deficiency, and offered a subscription to that end, a proposition which was indorsed by Rev. D. B. Harkness, of Barrie.

Mr. John Firstbrook, of Toronto, contended that the rule was a sensible proposition. The banks would only furnish money upon the security of individual gentlemen representing the board, and they must have some substantial basis upon which to proceed. There having been a deficiency of $7,000 this year, if appropriations are made on the basis of last year's revenue, even if that deficit is made up next year, and the same amount raised as was contributed last year, there would again be a deficit as large as this year. On the other hand, if the revenue for the current year does not exceed that of last year, there would be a deficit of some $14,000. pointed out that twenty years ago not a single missionary was in the north-western part of Canada. Mr. Fox, treasurer of the Northwest and British Columbia fund, gave the report of the year from Oct. 15, 1900, to Oct. 14, 1901. Receipts, $6,507 05; expenditures, $6,506 77. After a brief address from C. L. Brown the report was adopted. The following committee was appointed for Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia missions; Rev. B. G. Davis and Messrs. Vining, R. R. McKay and Cooke. Geo. Cross and R. Ryerie were elected moderators of the edifice board. HOME MISSIONS.

Secretary W. E. Norton, of the home mission board, gave his report, which spoke in feeling terms of the death of the late Superintendent McEwen. The report continued: During the year 123 pastors and 40 students, serving $50 churches, were employed; three church buildings erected; about 60 converts baptized and four churches— Plattsville, Sault Ste. Marie, Arnprior and Buckingham—declared self-sup-porting. Following are the officers for the year: President, Rev. A. McNee, Windsor, Ont.; first vice-president, Rev. W. J. McKay, Stratford; second vice-president, John Dryden, Toronto; secretary and treasurer, J. P. Dayfost, Port Hope.

THE TREASURER'S REPORT. The treasurer in his report stated that the receipts for foreign missions for the year amounted to $30,712 94, of which the churches contributed $11,-326; Women's Societies, $11,198; Sunday schools, $1,578; Young People's Societies, $250; legacies, $280; individuals, $5,509; sundries, $229. The disbursements were $36,194 93, leaving a deficit of $1,000 owing to the Miss Davies and Bolivia funds respectively. The treasurer in his report stated

DR. THOMAS' APPEAL FOR OLDER MINISTERS

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 17 .- Oil opened At the Baptist Convention-Too Many Congregations Prefer the "Dapper Young Man."

> Brantford, Oct. 17.—Wednesday even-ing session of the Baptists' convention opened with a song service. The address by Rev. Elmore Harris on "Equipment for Service" was a valuable contribution to the discussion upon the matter of home missions. He declared himself sufficiently a Calvinist to believe in the doctrine of election, but it was a mistake to regard election as merely applying to salvation. The election of the church of God, and of believers, was to the responsibility of giving the Gospel to the nations and the people round about. For the great work of salvation of souls, it is neces-sary that there be equipment, first of all, along the lines of a proper atti-tude toward the Word of the Lord. The upbuilding of character and of spiritual life is the work of God within the man, and not the work of the man himself. He regretted that, in the revised version, the old translation had been departed from, and insisted that the original rendering which declared the Scriptures to be the word breathed of God was correct. Lastly, a right attitude towards the spirit of the Lord was necessary for a proper equip-ment, fulness of spirit being essential

Rev. Dr. Thomas made an eloquent and forceful presentation of the claims of the superannuation fund, which, he thought, had not had the place in the thought, consideration and interest of the people it was entitled to receive. If the brethren had expended their energy in the service of their Master, he prayed that in their declining years the pathway of life be made smooth and comfortable. He deprecated the narrowness, meanness and selfishness of some men in the church pews, who are so small that a thousand of their souls could dance upon the point of a needle without infringing upon each other's elbow-room. He deprecated the tendency to throw over a man when he be old to establish a dead line in regard to the ministry. If a man needed medication for his physical nature he went to the oldest and most experienced physician, but if he needed medication for his immortal soul he would prefer to go to the sappiest young man in the ministry. (Laughter.) There could be no real deadline in the ministry, except when the minister is dead. The greater number of the churches in Ontario would, unfortunately, take the dapper young man who parts his hair in the middle and has a sonorous voice, in pre-ference to the man of ripe experience and knowledge. He appealed to the congregations not to throw aside the old men for the dapper young men who know nothing. Rev. J. G. Brown brought the meeting to a close in a ten minutes' address, in which he showed that the amount required for general foreign mission work this year is $31,196, the estimated revenue available is $26,407, which will necessitate a reduction of $4,789 in the estimates. reduction will have to come off the native work, and such a cut, he said, will

THE ABUSE OF ENGLISH.

Accent Frills of Which Some Clergymen Are Guilty.

They Mumble and Drawl and the Poor Sinner on the Bench Suffers the Consequence.

[Toronto World.] The World continues the discussion of the way our people talk the King's English. The interest grows; every one is reading what we say; the divinity students are taking stock of themselves; a professor of elecution writes us a letter in this issue; and all the community is laughing at the apostles of the "blawsted" aristocratic accent that we have in our midstwho put it on in the drawing-room, in the pulpit, in the professor's chair, in the store, in the bank, on the lawn, at the afternoon tea.

The question has become rather intricate; we appear at one time to hold up the English voice, at another to condemn it; the same with the Canadian voice. Let us make ourselves What we wish to say is that the English people as a people have the best voices, because they use low tones and speak from the chest and not from the throat and nose; while Canadians, as a rule, pronounce most of their words more correctly and distinctly, but make the sounds in the wrong way. And that the men or women who speak good English use the voice properly, speak distinctly and with the right value imparted to each sound, and speak very much all alike, whether of one continent or the other. Willard, the actor, is one of many models of this class. Most of his talk, even on the stage, is of everyday English style, without affectation, frill or distortion. Everyone must know one or many instances in his circle of friends. This is the voice and the manner of English that all should have. You hear it all, and all is distinct, there is nothing to "jar" you. Having thus cleared our position, let us come to the pulpit, and to the men in the Anglican Church. They have, as we know, helped to preserve and form the English tongue as it is today. Some of them are models in every respect as to voice, language and But some of plainness of speech. But some of them belong to a school which imagines that the last thing required of a rector or curate is distinctness speech in the ordinary voice and delivery of everyday people. They mumble, they drawl, they put accent frills all over their utterance, the poor sinner in the bench cannot make out half what is said or read. Is it not a trav-

FOR OLD AGE

To the old, as to babies, the even balance of health is more important than anything else in the world. The possible health, in age, is not high and strong; it is only even.

There is no end, but death, to the trouble that comes of its loss. It ought to be watched like a baby's.

If the Duke of York can make speech in plain everyday words, so that all who hear understand him, a speech without the frills of accent already referred to, so can a priest at the altar. It is for the minister to spiritualize his mind, to sanctify his he has to the people; and a measure of his effort should be devoted to so perfecting and cultivating his voice, which is the only medium open to him to convey that message, that when he does deliver it all the people hear him of life come on. gladly. People went miles to hear the late Mr. Gladstone read the service in the Hawarden Church; and he read so that it was understanded of the people. The more attention a clergyman gives to his language and voice, and to plainness of delivery, the better does he fill his mission. And it is in connection with the plainest of speech that the finest effects in modulation, inflection and moving force are

THE GIRL'S PART IN MATRIMONY.

Important Guides to a Girl in the Choice of a Husband.

The Man Need Not Be Handsome, But Should Be Good-Looking Morally-Mrs. Carlyle Sage's Advice-Shakespeare's Contribution. Choice of matrimony does not as a rule come from the female side. A refined girl will not take the initiative, but she has the responsibility of refusing thos who are illegible. On what principle should this be done? First of all we would say, that however handsome and agreeabale a man may be he should not be thought of as a husband if his character does not comof the girl. An Irish magistrate asked a prisoner if he were married. "No, the highest measure of feeling in his replied the man. "O, then," said his worship, "it is a good thing for your wife." It is indeed a good thing for a woman not to have to live with a liar, with a thief, with a drunkard, for twenty, or forty, or even sixty years. A lazy man will make but a weak band or support for a woman's house; so will one deficient in fortitude—that life and to deliver the message which is, the power to bear pain and trouble without whining. Beware of the selfish man, for though he may draw out of his selfishness in the early weeks of courtship, he will settle back into it again when the wear and worry

To be happy in marriage, it is necessary to marry a gentleman in the proper sense of the word-that is to say, one who is generous and unselfish. who considers another's happiness and welfare and not merely his own. A man who is a bear to his sisters, discourteous to his mother and careless of the feeling of servants and poor relations is just the man to avoid when you come to the great question to be answered, yes or no.

A "duck of a man" generally makes a goose of a husband, so it is wise to choose for a husband one with lasting qualities of heart and character. We would not state a truth so obvious were it not that some women say that they like a man to be a little bit of a rake, just a little garden one. If he is not all he ought to be before marriage he is sure to reform after it, and so they marry in a sort of missionary spirit, hoping to turn him from the error of his ways. This is not awise thing to do, for some people's characters do not as arule alter much after 30 years of age, and if a man has a bad character it is far more likely that he will improve his wife off the earth by bad treatment rather than that she will much alter him. The poorhouses are full of women who thought that they could reform their husbands A husband need not be handsome,

"with a sour, rivled face, I cannot forbear pitying his wife; and when I meet with an open ingenuous countenance, I think of the happiness of his friends, his family, and his relations. We need hardly say, however, that we do not recommend a professional beauty, who thinks that he is a lady-killer. Why should you have the trouble of keeping a husband for the exclusive benefit of other women? "When I marry," said a budding schoolgirl, "I'll want a fine, tall, broad, handsome man that verybody will admire." "There's where you are wrong," said her elder and more experienced "You have much less trouble in watching a less good-looking man, and would enjoy a great deal more of his

A reason is generally offered in accounting for these grown-up children, that they were spoiled in early years, but the fact is—there is generally an inherent selfishness that demands all, and gives nothing, in the one who must be constantly amused. And then there are weak natures never growing beyond the pleasure of the small things. There are mothers who never, in a sense, lead the children from the nursery, and who shut them away from the development of self-reliance providing successive interests and ready-made pleasures.

"What shall I do next that I may have a good time?" asked a languid, spiritless girl of ten of a careworn mother.

"Go and ask Jane to leave her sewing for awhile and amuse you," was the reply. And the sewing-woman was called from her work, and spent an hour in doing her best to brighten the spirits and awaken the interest of a mere child, whose faculties seemed already jaded.

What could be expected of the after years of a girl who must be amused constantly, and yet is so lacking in personal resources that even the clue must be furnished her! Something is wrong at center with an age that must call in the caterer to make up courses for entertainment for the senses.

Better belong to the childlike class that is "pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw," than to the numbers who are dull towards the appreciation and recognition of chance for pleasure

There are children among the grown ups, who never in all their lives, had their ability to find amusement notwho find their pleasure through make-believes, making an old cast-away pan serve as a drum, to the music of which CONSCIOUSNESS discover the glint of God's sunshine in enough to create a joy with close-athand material.

They push themselves doings and their manners, as they in-sistently declare their purpose to be amused, furnish the subjects for the humorous columns of the periodicals, and so the amusement is passed on.

There is a class which amuses itself directly at the expense of others. It is composed of those who pride themselves upon their wit. Rapartee, and sharp little turns that have reference to another, are a sort of revel to them. Bringing into notice the foibles and peculiarities of even a friend is not beneath their purpose to pose as wits. But retribution in the form of the loss of friends, and the shunning of them by acquaintances is sure to overtake them, and the faculty for perceiving the ludicrous, becoming at last weakened through over-work. degenerates into caricature, or positive silliness. It does not need a long experience to show us that those who surrender themselves to the desire for amuse-ment miss its realization. The everyday duties, the close-at-hand service, the longing to be worthy of the gift of life, while driving from the mind the unworthy aim towards getting a good time out of the world, will instead supply that peculiar, broad, varied interest, which furnishes happiness, including that lower or der of satisfaction named amusement.

peal in their helplessness to caretakers, Dr. John K. Mitchel Condemns the Practic of Talking About One's Ailments.

If no better reason can be found, a decent consideration for the comfort of others should prevent one's talking of ailments. Besides being bad manners, the subject is wholly without interest for any but the speaker; the hearer only listens more or less perfunctorily in hopes presently to seize the chance of telling her own melancholy condition. Besides, to talk of ills, mental or bodily, helps to fix them in the mind, to intensify them-and it is all too apt to suggest the exaggeration of them in order to make a good round atale. Moreover, if you talk about them too much or too often even the long-suffering physician may grow tired of being battered with symptoms whose catalogue he has heard recited a hunmeans taken to impress them will bring about its own defeat. Still more determined, if you are nervous yourself, should be your stand against letting others talk to you of their ills. Even the healthy are liable to imaginary infection therefrom. A professor in a medical school can always tell you what stage of study the undergraduates have reached by the stories of the lads who come to consult him, quite convinced that they have heart disease, appendicitis or consumption, the malady depending upon the subjects of the most recent lectures.

The same effect is constantly seen where the common meeting rooms of a hospital or, sanitarium give opportunity for this interchange; no rules or regulations will stop it, because rules will not lessen the amount of "human nater" in man, or in woman either.

The inevitable result is that one presently finds symptoms have been quite successfully swapped, the most needs to watch not only the little ones | nervous and apprehensive patients securing the largest share, but each acquiring a few from the other invalids, according to the individual capacthey march as heroes of a hundred ity for the absorption and reproductattles, but those brave men and wotion of the disorders described. men, simple souls, perhaps, in the eyes of some, but strong enough to stand you should never speak to any one

It is certainly true that to tell one's troubles is often a help and a relief; but tell them once, not repeatedly, whether to friend or physician, secure the advice you need, take it if you are able to take advice, which few are not strong enough for, and then hold your tongue, remembering that the most exciting story grows dull by repetition, and that the effect of

By all means get if you can the honest opinion of a disinterested person rudely against the personality and the peace of unselfish sojurners, and their pay to your symptoms and which of pay to your symptoms and which of them should be better for a little wholesome neglect, but if you ask the same question of each newly-hatched, unfledged acquaintance, the consequence can only be confusion of mind and possibly disaster.

Treat your doctor as a doctor; it is not necessary, it is even undesirable, that he should be your friend. Professional understanding and a reasonable amount of imagination will suffice to put him in your place enough, at any rate, for comprehension of "the case." Distrust him if he seems to sympathize too much. Remember that he is seeing perhaps 30 cases or so daily-and think what rags and tatters his feelings would be in if he had to shed tears, even metaphorically, along with all of them. So, if his sympathy is pretended, that should morally disqualify him; if he really feels it in the way in which patients demand it of him, then he will be unfitted for calm judgment. sympathy is that which translates itself in helpful action. There are plenty of cases which need treatment that may be painful, distressing or dangerous. How can a man balance coolly questions of life and death where his affections are involved with the answer? You may recall that no sensible physician will attend his own family, a matter which seems to afford a good deal of amusement to the laity; the reason lies precisely in the fact that where his feelings are concerned, his judgment is very likely to be obscured by them. One might even go farther and say that a physician personally strange to the patient is often all the better judge of what is needed, for this very lack of biasing knowledge.

English Pronunciation.

[Hamilton Herald.] With the laudable object of showing those foolish Canadians who ape what they consider to be the fashionable English pronunciation of their mother his English as it is pronounced by an educated Canadian. The statement is Chicago? hardly correct. If you were to converse with the duke casually without knowing who he was, you would at once know from his accent that he was not a native Canadian. It is true he has not the disagreeable lisp and drawl which one notices in the talk of some English exquisites. Perhaps the years he spent in the navy saved him from that misfortune. But his accent is sufficiently English to betray his nationality.

There is, however, much good sense in The World's satire on Canadians who strive to acquire an English ac-cent. The fun of it is that they hardly ever succeed, and in the course of a five minutes' conversation make so many slips that it is easy to detect the sham. Such people should deter-mine which particular English accent they wish to acquire before going to work to acquire it, for there are a good many English accents, and the Canadian aspirant after the best Eng-lish style is always in danger of get-authentic."

It was altogether an eventful ball that charity ball at the County Family Hotel—eventful, that is, in its results. Lord Hammond said very little indeed to the beautiful Miss Westerfield. He found that, once fairly launched in conversation, she had opinions of her own. She seemed to prefer Italy to England; she had spent most of her life there, she said; but now she was to return to the family seat in Yorkshire, with her mother and her uncle, for two years. It was necessary, she said, that the estate should be looked after—landowners had enormous responsibilities.

Lord Hammond had never troubled himself about his responsibilities at all. The young lady did not say what the name of the family estate was, nor if it belonged to her uncle, nor if she were the heiress to it. Lord Hammond could have put a question to her for the

The consequences may be imagind; the young lady thought him a rry stupid young man indeed; handome, good-natured, most amiable—thus o we misjudge one another—but stupid, h, so very uninteresting and stupid, not single word to say for himself.

And so the ball and the supper that ollowed it came to an end, as all pleasures must. The Charterts carriages came for the guests. Lord Hammond saw his new divinity bow and retire within the precincts of the hotel with her mother and her uncle; then he had to go and sook after his mother. He was thorougher humbled by his new love-dream; he lelt stupid, a clown, so to speak—a foxmunting, titled clown, unworthy of the boale, grand young princess, whose magale, grand young princess, whose mag-ificent eyes haunted him. Finding that she was, and was break-fasting in her room, Miss Amelia Littlewood found her way there, and was welcomed by Pauline, who sat up in bed wrapped in a rose-colored dressingwrapped in a rose-colored dressing-gown, but its bright tint gave no color to her face; she was ghastly pale, and seemed unable to eat the dainty break-

In reality Pauline was in norrible lear that she had estranged Lord Hammond by her foolish flirtation with his cousin. He had been brutally uncivil; he had walked away and had left her to return to the ballroom as best she could; he had looked furlous, and the other one, Owen—he had left, too, not meaning disrespect to her, but still showing that he was not in love with her After all it was that in love with her. After all, it was that detestable young Elsie that he was thinking of. "How shall I win him again?" thought

Pauline. "How shall I pacify him? I will not lose him after playing such high stakes to win him." And then there entered Amelia Little-wood, rosy, joyous, healthy, having slept well, and bathed well, and breakfasted well, and practised well on the piano— Amelia full of news. Pauline could see that at once.

"Such news!" said Miss Littlewood, turning her beaming face towards Pau-line. "Lord Hammond fell over head and ears last night with the belle of the What!" screamed Pauline. "The belle?

There was—there was no belle."
"Ah, but there was though after you said Pauline, a little scornfully, 'Indeed there was," responded Amelia "Indeed there was," responded Amelia Littlewood, warmly; "one of the very handsomest girls you ever saw in your life—a darkey you know. I always think the dark pale ones have such advantage, more especially if they have fine eyes."

"Bah!" said Pauline, in a scoffing tone. "This girl's eyes are like sapphires," said Amelia, "only they dazzle; she has long black lashes; she is as pale as—as—not as a lily, some other flower that I can't quite think of now. She is tall and like a Grecian statute; she has a grand classical face. Somebody said she was like Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata embodied. Somebody else said she was embodied: Somebody else said she was like the Queen of Night."

"The moment Arthur Hammond saw the belle of the ball he was moonstruck," continued Amelia Littlewood; "he followed her about like her shadow; nobody ever saw him anything like it before." "Oh, yes, yes," said Pauline, with an hysterical laugh, "he was exactly like that with that Carew girl-that stupid schoolgirl."

"No, he was not," replied Miss Little-wood; "this was something quite different, and everybody was talking of it."
"Oh, it will pass," said Pauline, "like all the others; he will not marry any chance creature like that; when he marries he will marry that Lady Mary Montague, that his dear mather is so anyitague, that his dear mother is so anxi-Ous to see him married to."

she would overwhelm her father and his friends in ruin.

Elsie had distrusted Cap ain Bracegirdle at the very first sight of his handsome face, but somehow she trusted Mrs. Bracegirdle—she did not think that she meant her ill; at the same time, she felt almost convinced that her father was not in France. It was so unnatural that she should neither write to her nor come to see her if he were in reality so near. If by the remotest possibility of a chance it were the actual truth that for political reasons he was living under an alias in France, and if by her impatience or her unbelief she should overwhelm him in ruin, she felt that she would wreck the whole happiness of her future life, and suffer the pangs of a continual remorse. suffer the pangs of a continual remorse. In her heart she saw through the facts of the case as they really existed, as she had seen them in a flash revealed to her as if by magic the moment she looked into the blonde, midddle-aged face of Captain Bracegirdle. Since then, however, a ladylike and gentle woman, with a sad face, a low voice, a shabby gown, had made Elsie's warm heart thrill with pity, and afterwards she had come to half believe the tales this lady told her—this pelieve the tales this lady told her-this lady who, in fact, half believed them herself.

Mrs. Bracegirdle only suspected, she did not know, that her stepdaughter designed to make herself one day Countess of Chase. She did not even guess, until Elsie suggested the idea to her, that of Chase. She did not even guess, until Elsie suggested the idea to her, that Pauline had cleverly managed to get this shoolgirl out of the country, because Lord Hammond would try to firt with her instead of Miss Bracegirdle herself. At the same time, poor Mrs. Bracegirdle was not at all astounded at hearing anything about Pauline. thing about Pauline.

It was in the game between Miss Marler, of Montreal, and Miss Thomson, of St. John, N. B. The match was all square at the end of the eighteenth hole. The first hole was played over again to decide. Miss Thomson, in driving, pulled her ball, and got on the edge of the boundary; her ball was lying, some branches and got on the edge of the boundary, her ball was lying, some branches having hindered her from taking a full swing with her brassie. She called her caddie to hold back the obstructing branches. A spectator, who saw her difficulty, also assisted. Thus Miss Thomson was able to use her brassie to such advantage that her second lay well up to the green. As a result the hole was halved. There is no doubt that Miss Thomson erred is no doubt that Miss Thomson erred is no doubt that Miss Thomson erred in not probably come under protest. The matches resulted as follows:

SARNIA'S SENSATION!

Miss Middleton's Breach of Promise Suit for $15,000

Sarnia, Oct. 16. - The court room was crowded yesterday with spectators at the commencement of taking of evidence in the suit of Miss Victoria Middleton, of Sarnia, against Dr. F. B. Wilkinson, of Sarnia, for $15,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage.

Miss Middleton, the plaintiff, is a woman slightly under middle age. She stated that Dr. Wilkinson, who had engaged himself to marry her, had advised two critical operations, and had abused his privileges as a family physician, and later repudiated his engagement to her. Finally, under pressure from her brother, George I. Middleton, of Winnipeg, he had acknowledged his engagement, and promised to marry plaintiff in six months. In the meantime she had changed physicians, and gone to London for treatment, and practically saw nothing of defendant for six months, when according to her testimony, her brother had again called on defendant and the latter had denied an engagement in Plaintiff told an extraordinary story of a note that had been sent her by the late Mrs. Wilkinson ten days before the latter's death, and produced the note in court. It expressed the wish that on the demise of the writer, Mrs. Wilkinson, the plaintiff would become the wife of Dr. Wilkinson.

The defense alleges that the plaintiff's whole case is a conspiracy, and the evidence of an engagement any wrong-doing on the defendant's part, is pure fabrication, and that the documentary evidence is forgery, and can be proved so. The case is under systems of wireless telegraphy were used by rival newsgathering associations. A story now comes from Lon-don which tells of a new invention in regard to wireless telegraphy intended to prevent this trouble. According to the description of the inventor, the transmitter and receiver are tuned to exactly the same pitch, and messages can then be sent successfully. If the two are not in pitch, nothing is received. By this system it is expected that only those knowing the pitch of the receiver would be able to success fully transmit messages to it. This would make the plan to an extent like a telephone exchange, where the number, or pitch of a receiver would have to be known in order to get a connec tion. The British admiralty have in-spected this invention, and have decided to equip three warships with the Exchange will vote in a few days on a proposition to raise the membership instruments for the purpose of making a careful investigation of their value Certainly, if this invention proves all that its introducers claim, it will go a long way toward making wireless telegraphy practical.

Westervelt, secretary of the Canadian Live Stock Asociation, is busy getting the Ontario exhibit for Pan-American poultry and pet stock show, which begins on Oct. 21, and lasts until the end of the month. Mr. Westervelt says that there will be fuly 1,200 entries in poultry and pet stock.

CARELESS VACCINATION. Ottawa, Oct. 17 .- A surprising feature of the compulsory vaccination was brought to light when Dr. Vallide, a French-Canadian tioner, said he had issued 1,100 certificates of successful vaccination without waiting to see whether the vaccine took.

NATURAL INQUIRY. Tired of the long-winded oratory of the attorney for the defense the judge interrupted him.

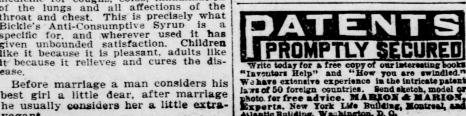

"Mr. Sharke," he said, "may I as you a question?" "Certainly, your honor. What is it?"
"Language," said the judge, "we are told, is given to conceal thought, or words to that effect. Inasmuch as you don't seem to have thought to concea!, would like to know why you are talking.'

Last Year Was Introduced to the public the British Army Foot Powder, and we have heard nothing but praise of its healing and soothing quali-ties. Dusted into the stockings in the morning it allays all inflammation and prevents chafing. Sold in 25 cent boxes by Cairneross & Lawrence.

A SILENCE EXPLAINED. "What makes you keep so silent?" asked the young woman.
"I always think before I speak," anfrom Lake Onawa, in Piscataquis county. A big moose has been seen several times around the fence where swered the young man, "and in that way I realize that I haven't anything the cow was. Late Thursday night a
