GERMANS BROKEN IN EAST AFRICAN WAR BY BRITISH FORCES

Kaiser's Forces in Dark Continent Divided and Scattered by British-Hundreds of Prisoners and Many Machine Gu ns Taken.

London, Dec. 1-12:10 p.m .- Conspicuous success has been gained by the British in their campaign against the Germans in German East Africa, the war office announced today.

"On October 19, a strong German force commanded by Major-Gen. Wahle dislodged from Tabora (in the central part of the colony) came in contact with the British south of Iringa. Simultaneously, the enemy n Mahenge area took the offensive against the British on the Ruhudje River, with the evident intention of ssisting the western German force form a junction with the main German force. The attempt to break through was repulsed near Acuiringa and the British gained a conspicuous success on the Ruhudje River, driving the enemy over the river with the loss of 200 killed, 82 prisoners,

Forced To Surrender, "The main body of the Western German force divided into two parts. One investing the British post at Lupembe was driven off. The remaining force was isolated in the Hembule mission station, and forced to surrender, about 500 strong, on November 26. A howitzer, ammunition and three machine guns were included in the booty. The remnants of Major-General Wahle's force, having lost the bulk of its artillery and machine guns and suffering probably over fifty per cent of casualties, is making eastwards for Mahenge."

Our Consumers' League

"Regarding the high cost of living, it was decided to bring the matter before the Federal Government again, as it was felt it was not a matter that could be dealt with and remedied by municipalities."

The foregoing is a sentence from a report of the meeting of the executive of the National Council of Women last week in Kingston, which has reached the editor of Our Consumers' League.

Doubtless the question is one with which the Federal Government must deal in a national way, just as the Government of Great Britain has undertaken to deal in the United Kingdom.

When the house catches fire, the same thing to do is to send in a call as quickly as possible to the fire department. But until the hose wagon comes dashing up to the door, no harm is done by dragging out of the way of the tongues of flame, as far as possible, all inflammable material and carrying some buckets of water to quench the fire. A patent extinguisher has saved many a household. Prompt action and the application of first-aid has frequently been responsible for the fact that when the fire department reaches the scene of the call, a first glance suggests the alarm has been a false one.

Problems so big and of such national application are involved in the question of the high cost of living that the Federal Government, and none other, is the court to which appeal must be made as a last resort. But governments can't be set to go off like alarm clocks at the will of the public. Governments must move with a dignity and leisureliness which befits a position of eminence. Moreover, so many points must be taken into consideration, so much investigaion instituted and reported upon, and so many "whereases" involved before any legislation can be enacted that if the prices continue to aviate before there is any relief from federal quarters, the average family will have squandered its substance on living that doesn't bear the remotest resemblance to rhotous, and consumed the hoardings laid by for a rainy day into the bergain.

One reader of Our Consumers' League declares she thinks the rainy day has arrived when she receives the weekly deluge of bills, which every seven days of late have regularly grown more formidable. In a democratic country, people are supposed to do some thinking and actng for themselves, and it is a popular tradition that the government reflects the nind and will of the people. It isn't any use sitting down and folding one's hands and waiting for the fire department, otherwise the Federal Covernment, while the high cost of living eats up income and peace of mind. The only sensible thing to do is to follow the example of the wise woman, whose house

ing the foe under control

Here is one modest correspondent who prefers that the world should simply know him as "Zero." His ideas, however, stand for something much more definite. He brings up reinforcements for the editor of Our Consumers' League in the form of an array of fresh arguments for the selling of eggs by the pound in the form of an array of fresh arguments for the setting of eggs by the pound instead of by number. This is what he says:

"Practically all food products, excepting eggs, are now sold by the pound. There is no justice in paying as much for eggs weighing 18 to 21 ounces to the dozen as those weighing 24 to 32 ounces per dozen. Eggs differing as widely as that in weight are sold side by side on the same market, with little or no rotest from purchasers.

"A local or provincial law calling for sale of eggs by weight would encourage woultry breeder to raise a class of fowl that would produce the 24 to 32-ounce eggs, for which he would be adequately paid, and the purchaser would be assured of food value for the money expend "May Our Consumers' League of The Advertiser help to bring this into

A FINE BREAKFAST "EAT.

"Mere Man" is taking a most flattering interest in Our Consumers' League partment. One of them says he is heartily in accord with the idea that usekeeping is a business, as well as a science, art, profession, and several ther important things, and should be treated as such. Everywoman agrees who has had any business experience at all, or who has a mind attuned to thinking in terms of her daily life, if that life happens to be spent largely in management of the affairs of a household.

In any case, the cost of living is Everyman's bosom foe at the present time if he happens to be head of the home, he seriously realizes the big hole paying he bills makes in the family income. Of course, if he is letting his wife do a worrying without increasing the allowance or helpng her to a solution the problem of adjustment, he isn't to be considered rancing apace. Haven't his board bills shot up after them? Under the cirsumstances it isn't at all surprising that Everyman, as well as Everywoman is taking a most helpful and encouraging interest in Our Consumers' League.
What do you eat for breakfast? (Oh, yes, it is an exceedingly personal what do you eat for breaklast? (On, yes, it is an exceedingly personal question). "A Mere Man" sends the following suggestion for a nourishing, inexpensive and palatable breakfast. He can recommend it because he accompanies the suggestion by the explanation, "I usta get my own breakfast, and this is a really fine scheme and a fine 'eat' also: "Dear Miss A.,-Recently in an address, Professor Zavitz spoke of the extremely high food values in oatmeal porridge, and he is undoubtedly right about it, as there are few breakfast foods better for growing children or indoor-workers than well-cooked cereal porridge. There are many people who cannot elish and 'handle' just oatmeal. Equal portions of rolled oats and rolled wheat soaked over night in cold water will cook thoroughly in half the usual time, with half the gas—a consideration nowadays—and this combination makes the finest kind of a breakfast porridge, more tasty, nourishing and sustaining than a single cereal, being what one might call a better-balanced ration.

"With chicken-feed at $2.50 a hundredweight, and the chickens on their sual fall strike, breakfast fresh-eggs will soon be as extinct as the famous Dodo .- A MERE MAN."

"WHY EAT BUTTER?"

The world surely "do move," and medical science along with it. Not so nany aeons ago the doctor men prescribed milk and raw eggs for practically every ill to which flesh was heir. Then they underwent a change of heart, or at least a change of law, and ordained that bread and butter was the one infallible life saver. Pages might be filled with the pictures of "cases" right in London who owe their present sound condition of health and vigor to the fact that their days and hours were punctuated by slices of bread and butter. Along comes a medical man and upsets the traditions that were just beginning comes a medical man and upsets the traditions that were just beginning to get firmly established. "Don't talk to me about the danger of tuberculous chicken," is what he said to the editor of Our Consumers' League. "That is pure sentiment. I'm talking cold facts. We are too much swayed by sentiment. A tuberculous fowl won't hurt anybody after it is cooked. But I wish u could see some of the butter you eat, literally alive with germs of disease. The editor was never more inclined than at the minute to straightway become

The doctor man in the case didn't take any chances on the editor passing long the information to readers, but sent in the communication herewith diven. Now for the buttermakers to take up the cudgels in their own defence. The editor's part is simply to sit in the centre of the teeter and see that each side gets enough board.

Dear Miss Armstrong,—Did you ever ask yourself the question, Why do we eat butter? That is a vital question in these days, when the high cost of living has about touched the sky limit. We eat butter for two reasons—because everybody else does, and because it is a food.

The human diet requires protein, carbohydrate, fat and mineral substances, butter supplying a large percentage of the fat. But why must it be butter? Butter is costly. Is there notining that will take the place of this dairy product and have the same food value, cost less and be as efficient? There is rustom has made us swear by butter, even though it is inferior from the tandpoint of public health and economical efficiency.

There is a dairy product called oleomargarine, which has a great many dvantages over butter, but unfortunately it has met with a great deal of criti-sism because it has been sold for butter. When people found they had paid butter price for eleomargarine, they expressed their feelings in having legisation brought about to prohibit its sale, despite the fact of its nutritive value, t is purely, then, a matter of personal feeling that eleomargarine is not on the Oleomargarine is made from beef fat and cream. The fat is heated, and oleo oil expressed. This oil is mixed with pasteurized cream, and the product of the churning resembles butter in every way, even in color and taste. In fact, it is difficult to distinguish the one from the other.

Now, there are three outstanding reasons why oleomagazine is better than outter. First, it is cheaper. Lest summer, while butter was selling for 35 cents a pound in London, oleomargarine retailed for 19 cents in the United States. Secondly, oleomargarine is easier to digest than butter. Butter readily changes from a fat to fatty acids. Even in melting it will liberate fatty acids. You all know how difficult it is to keep butter from becoming rancid. The rancidity is caused by the presence of fatty acids. Olive oil is not easily this manner of these fatty.

rancidity is caused by the presence of fatty acids. Onve on is not easily broken down in this manner, nor is oleomargarine. The presence of these fatty acids in the stomach have a marked interference upon the normal secretion of the digestive juices. This is a serious matter.

Lastly, oleomargarine is more sanitary. No matter how clean the dairy, it has been found by bacteriologists that germs are present in unpasteurized milk and cream, and it is plain to see that these will be carried over into the milk and cream, and it is plain to see that these will be carried over into the butter. Tuberculosis, sore throat and tonsilitis have been traced directly to the dairy. Outbreaks of tonsilitis, which is often the cause of rheumatism, have been found on investigation to be due to butter. This difficulty is discovered with in electrorization. ensed with in oleomargarine, because the cream used is pasteurized before pensed with in decomargarine, because the cream used is pasternated by the hand. This process makes it practically impossible for the germs to survive.

Legislation makes eleomargarine illegal, despite the obvious reasons that it is a better food than butter, even if only from a public health standpoint. omething should be done, and done right away, to remove the parliamentary

Drink Hot Water

When food lies like lead in the stom-tch and you have that uncomfortable, listended feeling, it is because of in-ufficient blood supply to the stomach, suinteent blood supply to the stomach, combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many nospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.—Advt.

How To Get Rid of Catarrh. Catarrhal Deafness or Head Noises.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms can be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Breathing becomes easy, while the distressing head noises, headache, duliness, cloudy thinking, etc., gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which are often overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly 90 per cent of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.—Advt.
