The above diagram shows the interior of the Melbourne branch of the Home Bank as it appeared on the day of the robbery, Monday, April 10, 1921. Three bandits, Sid and William Murrell and "Pat" Norton, entered by the front door, turned to right and ran back behind the counter and railing. Pat and one of the Murrells rushed into the manager's office and beat him with revolver butts until he finally, with death as an alternative, dragged himself to the safe to unlock it. Previously, Agnes Campbell had locked the safe near the side door and hurried out past one of the bandits to give the alarm. Finally, when the Campbell brothers arrived, the bandits fied by the side door. Pat made his getaway. William Murrell ran to a barn at the rear of the bank and Sid Murrell scuffied in the alley with Russell

Under the Australian scheme, as sub-mitted, a national purchasing corporation would be established yould buy only such foreign wheat as would be necessary to make up the difference between what the British and dominion producer would he able to supply and the needs of the British market.

the British market.

The committee has not yet reached the stage for the passing of formal resolutions, but the committee discussion has emphasized the difficulties in the way of the adoption of such a plan. One objection raised is that to make it effective private trading would have to be eliminated and this is not thought feasible.

Among the overs as delegates there is an impression that more is to be heard yet from the British government with regard to customs tariffs. The primary object of the govern-nary object of the government, it is thought, will be to have some form of protection for British industries which are now suffering sult of the depreciated currencies. Any action taken, it is thought, likely will be under provisions of the safe-guarding of industries act.

CRIME IS REVIEWED

Williams Appears Nervous, But Murrell Unmoved by Ordeal.

Little time was lost in getting the case of the King vs. Sidney Ernest (Curly) Murrell and Henry Jack (Slim) Williams, alias William Henry Baughan, under way at the fall assizes at the court house yesterday. At 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon they entered the courtroom; ten minutes later they had pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering Russell Campbell during the Mei-bourne bank robbery of April, 1921; 40 minutes later the jury had been withded despite 44 challenges and picked despite 44 challenges, and when court adjourned at 6:21 o'clock the case had been reviewed for the jury's benefit by the crown and five witnesses heard.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, Oct. 15.—Twenty-four hours after the fire started firemen were still at work at the plant of P. W. Gardiner & Sons, Harris street, trying to extinguish the burning piles of lumber. The fire is the most disastrous in the history of Galt and the loss is estimated between $250,000 and $300,000.

The fire, starting in a garage owned doing odd jobs about the district for some time, turned gunman today, and the gunman made for the street, where, it is stated, he held up Dr. Mitchell entered the Ontario House, which is run by a foreigner named Bosheff, today and at the point of a revolver, it is alleged, demanded $30, claiming he was robbed of that amount in the hotel some time ago. Bosheff denied having any knowledge of the robbery, but Mitchell persisted. Pointing the loaded revolver at Bosheff, it is claimed, he told him he would blow his brains out if he did not pay up. Bosheff said he had no money and Mitchell pulled the trigger. The hammer fell, but the gun Mitchell was still at large.

As a health builder. Royal Yeast is gaining in popularity every day. It is a food - not a medicine. It supplies the vitamine which the diet may lack. Royal Yeast is highly beneficial in cases where the system seems "run down". Royal Yeast is the richest known source of vitamines, and when taken into the system acts as a corrective agent. Royal Yeast Cakes are recommended for their purity and wholesomeness. It is the purest, the most convenient and economical yeast on the market.

Two to four Royal Yeast Cakes a day will work wonders. A full day's supply can easily be prepared at one time by using one glass luke warm water and teaspoon sugar to each yeast cake. Allow to stand over night in moderately warm room. In the morning stir well and pour off liquid. Place in refrigerator or other cool place and drink at intervals as desired throughout the day.

COOPER'S REVUE

Company of Stars Delights Large Audience At Grand.

CHORUS IS GOOD

Beauty and talent captured London's first nighters by storm last night when Jimmle Cooper's Revue, one of the best attractions on the Columbia Wheel, played to a crowded house at the Grand Opera House.

From the time the premier curtain was raised until the finale three hours later the house seemed to be one later the house seemed to be one continual burst of applause or laugh-ter. Stars such as are seldom seen out of the topnotch offerings in mu-sical comedy have cast their lot with

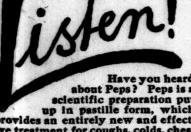

Mr. Cooper, and from start to finish

What the feature is it is hard to say, so many of them being com-bined into the whole that one must divide the honors. But there is this to say that Jimmie Cooper is to be congratulated on getting together such a collection of both white and colored stars, and Manager Minhin-nick for securing it for London. Jimmie Cooper himself, minus all attempt at make-up, but just him-self, dashes on and off, injecting pep into performers and audience alike. He is just a likeable sort of man who endeavors to please the theatrical public, and he did it last night. Unique Comedian.

Where to start in mentioning the stars that he has with him is no easy matter. They are all good, but probably the biggest laughgetter and the most unique comedian who has been most unique comedian who has been seen here for some time is Fred Harper. He is a comedian of the English type, and does not depend on English type, and for his humor. This captured the house by storm with jazz, the applause being both hearty and sustained. During the second act all the music was rendered by this orchestra and it made one wish that one could get on a well waxed floor one could get on a well waxed floor

Dancing of all sorts was offered by the colored people, particularly Bessie Desota, dancer premiere, from the Plantation Revue Company, and Reuben Brown, the original "strut-Reuben Brown, the original "strut-ter" from "Liza." These two well deserved the encores which were their portion, their dancing being altogether different from anything previ-

The singing of Ida Rolley, formerly of "Shuffle Along," in two plantation melodies, "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home," caused much comment, her enunciation and notes be-ing particularly clear. Octavia Sum-ler, a blues singer from "How Come," also well deserved the applause which came her way.

ottawa, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Ellen Margaret Campbell. widow of Alexander Campbell. Ottawa, was instantly killed, and seventeen members of the Fourth Ottawa Troop of the Girl Guides had narrow escapes when the party was caught on the White bridge, a C. P. R. bridge over the Rideau River, late Saturday afternoon. That all the members of the Girl Guides troop escaped injury is due to the presence of mind of the troop captain, Miss Eunice Parker, and to the splendid obedience to orders of the troop members.

The girls, while on their usual Saturday hike, decided to take a short cut over the bridge, which has neither walks nor upright sides. The party had advanced to within a short cut over the bridge, which has neither walks nor upright sides. The party had advanced to within a short distance of the west shore when a locomotive was seen in the gathering dusk coming from the west. The Right Age for a Girl to Marry. Earrings and Woman's Freedom. Should "Wild-and-Twenty" Settle Down?

Dear Miss Dix-Will you please tell me what, in your opinion, is the right age for a girl to marry? JUST ENGAGED.

There is no one particular moment in a girl's life when the stars are more propitious for matrimony, as the fortune-tellers say, than another. So at the annual meeting held yesterday the girl, upon the man, upon the circumstances by which she is surround-ed. Some girls bloom earlier than would be foolish not to grab at any age. Sometimes a girl has an un-happy home that she does wisely is second vice-president and Mrs. to get out of as soon as she can.

Generally speaking, however, I think that the best age for a girl to marry is between 22 and 30, for by that time she is mature enough to know her own mind and have her taste in men formed, and she is still young enough to be able to adapt herself to the vagaries of a husband.

I am opposed to girls marrying while they are very young for many reasons. One is that they lack the experience and judgment to pick out a life partner, and they are much more concerned over whether a man dances well and how he combs his hair than they are over his morals and his ability to make a living. Another reason is that they don't even know the kind of a man they really want, for the youth who ravishes their fancy one day bores them stiff the next. At 18 and 20 a girl's fancy for men changes as often as it does for Another reason why a girl should not marry very young is because she has not had her play time. She is not ready to settle down. She is not yet surfeited with admiration. Her feet still ache for the dance, and she still wants to run around with the other boys and girls of her age. If she marries while this perfectly natural urge for pleasure is in her veins, we get the flirtatious wife who dishonors herself and her husband with little affairs that end in the divorce court, and we have the mother who neglects her babies while she gads about. The untidy home, the delicatessen dinner, the unwanted children, the querulous, discontented wife are, nine times out of ten, just the outward expression of the woman who married too young.

A girl should not marry too young because she is not old enough to know how to make allowances for the faults and weaknesses of others. It takes age to teach us that. Also all girls are self-centered, and think the universe revolves around them. That is no way in which to approach the matrimonial problem. For most men entertain a similar idea regarding themselves, and the dove of peace is not likely to perch on the roof pole of the house in which the wife considers herself IT.

On the other hand, domestic felicity depends on a woman's adaptability, and you have to catch 'em young to teach 'em that trick. After a woman once acquires ways and forms set opinions she is adamant. She can't adjust herself to a husband's peculiarities. He must either take her or leave her as she is. She can't change.

Therefore, a girl should marry when she has cut her wisdom teeth, but before she is convinced that she is a Solomon in petticoats; when she is settled enough to have some backbone of her own, yet plastic enough to mold; and when she is tired of playing and wants to be about the business of life. And this psych hour comes somewhere between 22 and 30. DOROTHY DIX.

My Dear Dorothy Dix-Sometimes I begin to take women seriously in their efforts toward economic freedom, until my eyes fall on their beads their earrings, their bracelets—and then the land of the Zulus rises before me and I wonder why they don't add a few graceful noserings and complete the picture of the Cannibal Bride. When I hear men sniff at the possibility of a woman ever doing any real thinking, it offends me, too, but then I remember the earrings-and like a little stray dog that tucks its tail out of sight and creeps under the back stens-I have to keep silent.

We should give all the more credit to the women who have been lea ers in the woman movement when we remember that they have had to buck up against the brainlessness of earrings in the women they are trying to help.

Answer:

Cheer up, H. P. S. Things are never as bad with women as they seem to be, nor is any woman ever as big a fool as she looks to be. Undoubtedly, women's mania for adorning themselves in glittering beads, and dangling ornaments in their ears, and on their hands is a hang-over from their savage ancestors-and just now we do seem to be reverting back to dear grandmama's cave costume pretty strongly.

But even the mighty masculine intellect has not entirely outgrown this weak love of gauds. Observe the tinsel, the gold and silver embroidery, the shrieking colors, the flowing plumes in which the members of the various fraternal orders deck themselves when they go forth to parade! Consider the splendor of the silken, and embroidered, and jeweled regalia in which the dignitaries of the church clothe themselves! Behold the eye-filling glory of the offi-cers of the army and navy! Remember that even the judges clothe themselves in sweeping silk robes when they want to impress us with the majesty of the law.

Also recall that people do some mighty big things in mighty queer costume, as, for instance, the warriors of old who fought in rattling coats of mail that made them sound like an iron stove falling downstairs as they walked, and probably every gentleman who signed the Declaration of Independence had to tuck up his lace ruffles in his sleeves to get his pen hand free. But it's no effeminate document, at that.

But take it from me, H. P. S., the reason why women wear earrings is not because they are semi-civilized, but because men like earrings. Women may be short on logic, but they are long on guessing what captures the masculine fancy, and the wisdom of the ages has taught them that the more feminine they made themselves, and the more they adorned their persons, the more attractive they are

Furthermore, since the beginning of time men have loved to hang their women with jewels. It's common to all people. In India the women are the family savings bank, and clink as they walk with their anklets and bracelets. The American buys his wife a string of pearls with his first big money. It's the same instinct.

Perhaps bead necklaces and earrings do not help a woman to clear thinking, and mental freedom, or even economic independence, but nature made marriage the business of woman, and earrings are a first aid to that. It's mighty seldom that an unadorned lady gets a chance at a husband.

And aren't you too hard on earrings anyway? So great a man as Oliver Wendell Holmes set his approval on them. He called them the golden lamps that light up the dusky cheeks of beauty. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix-I am twenty years old, and people tell me that I am too wild and should settle down. Do you think that any girl of twenty should settle down?

WILD AND TWENTY.

Every young girl is entitled to plenty of clean fun, to laughter and music, and dancing, and the sort of good times that she can remember

But there is no place in the scheme of things for the drinking parties, for the petting parties, for the all-night automobile rides, for the companionship of disreputable men and women for a woman at any age. Every man who sows a wild oats crop harvests sorrow and repentance, but for a woman the harvest is death and destruc-Wild and Twenty becomes Broken Forty. Don't forget that the woman who does not settle down always has to settle up DOROTHY DIX.

I have therefore trained my children to observe as sacred mother's daily "hour off." I take one hour every afternoon from my many lousehold duties for myself, to read books that rest my mind, or chalbooks that rest my mind, or challenge ideas, or to read books on "the business of being a mother," just as any business man reads his journals. The children understand that I am to be disturbed only for something extremely important, and they actually take pride in "standing guard" when I am in my room. Yankees Wrest World's Championship From Two-Time Giant Victors

AFTER 7 HEROIC FRAMES NEHF BLOWS UP IN 8TH; YANK BATS CLINCH TITLE

Turning Point in Master Struggle Was Sudden, Decisive and Entirely Unexpected—Giants Left Field a Beaten Band, That Critics Think May Not, For Years, Again Attain Championship Form.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 15.—Beaten, crushed after one of the most spectacular world's series fights in history, the New York Giants today surrendered to the Yankees the world's champlonship banner they have flown for the past two years. And tonight, with this record-shattering million dollar title battle at an end, the emblem of supremacy flutters atop the Yankee Stadium, the greatest and costliest monument of the diamond.

The Yanks won the sixth and final game this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, lair of the Glants, by coming from behind and scoring five runs in a dramatic, pulse gripping eighth anning just when it seemed that the McGraw men, fighting desperately with their backs to the wall, would tie the series and force a seventh contest to decide the struggle. The final score was 6 to 4.

Thus the American League champions swept to their third successive triumph, completed the rout of the once proud and mighty Giant machine and by the decisive margin of four games to two gained their first world's title in more than two decades of embattled history.

Thus, too, was written into the annals of the national game a struggle for the highest stakes it has ever known a gigantic spectacle, eclipsing all previous records, that was witnessed by more than 300,000 fans, who paid more than $1.063,000 in gate receipts.

Whitey Witt, he failed. Bush walked on four successive balls, and Nehf, a slight, tragic figure, walked from the box, his head down and tears in his eyes.

Ryan, Too, Was Wild.

That pass forced in Schang, and Ryan went into the box with the bases still full and the Yankees still two runs behind. Ryan, unsteadied by the tenseness of the fight, also was wild and Scott was forced in with the second run, when he walked Dugan on four pitched balls, thus making the twelfth successive ball that the Giant moundsmen had issued.

There was a mighty roar as into this dramatic spotlight stepped Ruth, swinging his all-powerful biudgeon. But, instead of further unnerving Ryan, the sight of the mast mauler seemed to steady him, for the Babe let the first pitch curve squarely over the plate and pitch curve squarely over the plate and first wow with two. Special to The Advertiser.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 15.—
The Yankees' win in the last and hardest game was just typical of the whole series. We came from behind a heartbreaking lead and by sheer nerve and great baseball pounded out a thrilling victory.

The world's championship belongs to everybody, because no particular pitcher or batter did any more than his teammates, and to John McGraw goes the credit of being as game a loser as he is a winner. Fifteen minutes after Jack Bentley was tossed out in the ninth inning John McGraw was shaking hands with Miller Huggins in the Yankee dressing-rooms. He met me first because I was nearest to the Yankees' dressing-rooms door. He joshed Joe Bush a little and then made his way to the man who had taken away his championship.

The rivalry on a terrific series had diamond ring.

Give Credit to Huggins.

Representing every player who has labored these long hard months and taken away his championship.

The rivalry on a terrific series had disappeared almost immediately and there stood baseball's two great managers shaking hands, smilling and exchanging good wishes. It was a lesson in character to every ballplayer in the room. As they parted, some one yelled, "Three cheers for McGraw," and Mac went through the door and left a lot of new friends behind in the Yankee club-thouse.

Tried and Failed.

Bob Meusel, who was the doc, slugged that to victory, after I had tried and failed just before him. In fact, it seemed failed just before him. In fact, it seemed the boys wanted me to say or what I was trying to say, he climbed on a chair, and, smiling as he accepted the spirit of comradeship that it representing every player who has above these long hard months and years with Hug, was our way of show-ing this wonderful little leader, that to many member of the team, goes the glory of victory, just as he had to carry the worry and disappointment in the days of defeat.

Early this season the baseball writers discovered a spirit of the Yankee ball club in days gone by. That was the spirit that won the American League pennant and then carried us through to the championship of the world, even when we were running behind the Giants, and according to many early experts, ready to repeat our performance of 1922. It was the spirit that prompted us to get that diamond ring for Miller Huggins, even before we won the final game.

When I got through saying a few words, that didn't near tell him' what the boys wanted me to say or what I was trying to say, he climbed on a chair, and, smiling as he accepted the spirit of comradeship that it represented.

Hug. Praises Teamwork.

LAST GAME PRODUCES PITCHED BALL RECORD

Lowest Mark of Series Reached When Only 232 Deliveries

Made. Associated Press Despatch. New York, Oct. 15.-The low mark in pitched balls for the 1923 world's series was recorded in the sixth and last same today, when but 232 deliveries was recorded in the sixth and last game today, when but 232 deliveries were made by the opposing pitchers. Of that number, 81 were called balls, 60 called strikes, 28 foul strikes, 6 fouls, 36 resulted in infield outs, 6 in outfield outs, and 15 were hit safely.

As in all other games of the series. Giants' pitchers registered a higher total than the Yankee boxmen, 117 pitched bails being the combined total of Nehf and Ryan, and 115 for Pennock and Jones.

The batting figures of the last game of the world's series are remarkable.

The Giants got ten hits, yet they could only bring in four runs; the Yankees got only five hits, out of which they made six runs. Of course, they had other ingredients.

Nehf allowed only four hits in the seven and one-third innings he worked. He kept the Yanke hitting the ball down. Only once did the pellet go into the air to a Giant outfielder, and only two other balls went beyond the sighth inning single that won the game. It went past Bancroft to Cunningham.

There were only three extra base group. It was announced today that the schedule would be drawn up in a few days, and it is believed that St. Thomas will be grouped with London. An exhibition game is being arranged for the near future with Aylmer or a local aggregation. The team is itching to get on the field in mortal combat. The team has a great number of spares, and the regular line-up will be announced in a few days.

The C. I. field day held over a week ago has not been forgotten, and instead of marking the close of the outdoor training season, it has stimulated interest in track activities. The students are busy every day with high jumping, pole vaulting, discus and javelin throwing. There promises to be a much larger entry list when the next sports day is pulled off.

incentive this week to get down to the hardest grinding they've done since they mediates achieved confidence in the plays they've been working on since the Petrolia game.

Elks and the intermediates will face each other on Wednesday afternoon. As both are using the same signals, their workouts will not show as much, but it will give the juniors confidence for their effort against the heavy St. Thomas crew, if they take a fling at the intermediates, and fling hard enough.

The C. R. F. U. Rugby sub-committee of the L. A. A. has some problems on its hands, which will be settled tonight. The intermediates need some junior players, but whether it will be decided to pare down the junior strength any more than it is at present, or not, remains to be seen.

It is believed the intermediates think Haylock would strengthen them for their big test against Sarnia on Saturday. As it is there will be some switches. Boyd Fisher will probably be pulled into the game to take Gillies place as alert-ante with Worthington, the Parkdale man. Fisher would be a real addition to the strength at any time, as he's a beautiful tackler and speedy, and has a good pair of hands.

Western should do better against St. Mikes. Varsity intermediates usually depend on weight, and Western isn't a bit afraid of tonnage. Against St. Mikes they were always on the lookout for something unexpected, and were off balance a good deal of the time. St. Mikes' game has not taken Varsity's confidence. St. Mikes, for all their drilling, fumbled worse than Western.

Their decision in Mr. Millyard's case was influenced by the fact that du ing his pastorate in Sarnia he had succeeded in doubling his congrega-tion and practically freeing the church from debt.

At the conclusion of his four-year, period, the congregation of Askin Street made a special effort to re-tain Mr. Morris for a fifth year, and again for a sixth. His pastorate has been the most successful in the history of the church, and the Askin Street Sunday School is at present the most flourishing one in the city. The reports at the board meeting last night indicated the church to excellent financial condition.

GRAIN STOCKS IN STORE TOTAL 20,000,000 BUSHELS

Canadian Press Despatch. Fort William, Oct. 15.—The increase of grain stocks at the head of the lakes during the week just past fell considerably short of that of last fall. Total stocks in store Saturday were a little over twenty million bushels, little greater than was the stock of wheat alone on this date in

Receipts of all grains were a million bushels less than last week, and shipments were half a million less, one of the features being the shipment of nearly a million bushels of barley, due to strong export demand. This reduced the amount of barley in store, while slight increases are recorded in the stocks of other coarse

REPORTS ONTARIO WHEAT LOOKING MORE, PROMISING

Special to The Advertiser. Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Oct, 15.—Fall wheat is looking most promising, but varies in length throughout the province, says the weekly summary of reports to the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Fall plowing is well advanced, but has been halted in many localities by the hardness of the ground, there having been a unusual scarcity of main for the fall season. There is a keen demand for farm labor in all parts of the province, but, according to the report, the rate of wages for winter work does not appear to be very attractive. to be very attractive

HEAVIER TRADE MAKES MINE EXCHANGE FIRMER

St. Louis Gathering Likely To Produce Far-Reaching Effects.

Canadian Press Despatch. St. Thomas, Oct. 15.-Great importance is attached by local railroad officials to the conference of the Wabash Railway officials now in progress in St. Louis, which the head officials of the Canadian division are attending. One prominent official stated that something exceptionally big is breaking in respect to the Canadian end of the road, but he Canadian end of the road, but he was not in a position to give out anything official for a few days.

Other officials were quite as secretive, although they admitted that the conference is a very important one. The belief prevails here that a definite decision will be reached on the new Wabash shops for St. Thomas, and that the 1923 program of the joint Wabash-C. N. R. roads will include the double-track of the entire system, from Glencoe to Niagara Falls. gara Falls. Business on the division has been increasing rapidly during the past three or four years, and has about reached the stage where development of this kind is necessary in order to handle the traffic.

New York, Oct. 15.—Although the market for raw sugar was quiet early today, offerings were light at the 5% clevel for Cubas, cost and freight. An expected improvement in demand for refined strengthened holders. The duty-paid price remained unchanged at $7.66.

Raw sugar futures developed strength owing to firmness in the English market and prospects for a better demand for refined. Opening 6 to 9 points higher, local and commission-house buying carried December to $5.20, or 10 points above Thursday's close. The market at noon was firm, 6 to 8 points net higher.

Refined sugar was quiet. Stocks are light, however, and a better buying movement is anticipated. Fine granulated continued at $9.15 to $9.60. For the first time since the war, Colorado best/refined has been offered as far east as the Pittsburg-Buffalo district. Refined sugar futures nominal. Associated Press Desratch.

Mrs. Murrell Comes Through Ordeal At Prison Without Shedding Tear.

PRESENT AT TRIAL

Fate, like a mighty tide, has cast Sid Murrell and Slim Williams, Mclbourne bank bandits on the same shore, although for two years they have been drifting oceans apart.

Yesterday for the first time they faced other after two years, and together they faced the test that only the strong can endure, the battle which the strong can endure, the battle for life itself. Shackled together, and placed in the same legal category by the law, they were brought into the courtroom at the old Middlesser Courty Grand of which the other had had a taste.

August, 1921, they were sparring with each other in their cell at the county jail. Anyone with a knowledge of boxing could see Williams was adal land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was adal land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was adal land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was adal land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was a land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was land of the free where a man's land, Newport of the same ledge of boxing could see Williams was ledge on the same legal category by land the strong can endure. Finally British justice claimed him for her own. She held a mortgage on him, which he had not discharged.

Mrs. Murrell speaks with an English accent, and thoroughly lived up to the English tradition of hiding her him, which he had not discharged.

And so he came to London, still the defiant Sidney Murrell of Melbourne fame.

Yesterday in court, although at times he bit his line and squirmed in large to the English tradition of hiding her feelings. There was not so much as a tremor as she clasped her boy for an instant through the prison bars. In fact it was Sidney himself who fame.

Yesterday in court, although at times he bit his lips and squirmed in his seat, his was an attitude of quiet defiance.

In court for the first time he spoke with his former pal.

Dressed well, almost immaculately so, he sat in court and listened with keen interest to the proceedings.

The frail, battered hulk and the sturdy ship were fast on the rockbound coast. Fate had driven them thence.

What will fate do with them row?

Testerday in court, although at the misstant through the prison bars. In fact it was Sidney himself who almost broke down, if eyewitnesses of the meeting are to be believed. The young desperado, who broke jail here and eluded capture for almost two years, "filled up and choked back the tears," prison guards state, while the brave little mother smiled trustfully at her stalwart, good-looking son and said, "I am glad to see you looking so well."

What will fate do with them now?
They wonder, and as they wonder they think of the last few eventful years.
Williams shudders as he thinks of his of the harsh voices of guards, of the clank, clank of doors and chains, of the monotony of the lock-step. Murrell is wistful. He longs for the exhilarating breezes of the Sierras, of the care-free life of the American.

"I got down they told him the place was full and he couldn't get in." Murrell was at work, and when my boy went down they told him the place was full and he couldn't get in."
"I got down to the court house good and early," continued Mrs. Murrell. "I wanted to be there in lots of time.
I saw Detective Nickle there as I stood inside the court house door, and he told me to go upstairs where I could sit down.

"I sat there for a while and then Mr. Nickle came and told me that I was going to get a chance to see Sidney soon. I could hardly believe it, and my head was in a whirl when a man told me that if I would step down to the jail I could see my boy. I think it was the sheriff. I followed him downstairs, along the corridor and into the jail. I was taken right down stairs to the cells, along a little passageway and into a big cell. Sidney was at one end of it in another cell. It looked like a big cage, and I rushed up to it and took way, here is a selection of the control of up to it and took my boy in my arms as well as I could. "Don't break down, mother," he whispered. "I couldn't bear it if you "As I walked along the passage-way to the jail I made up my mind that come what may I would not break down and I didn't.

laughed a little and that seemed to break the tension a little bit. I sat on a chair a few feet from the door and chatted to him.

"We didn't discuss the case at all." continued Mrs. Murrell. I told him all about the family and how every person was. He asked after all the folks and a lot of his friends and I answered all his questions the best way I could. We had a nice half hour together and I certainly appreciated every minute of it and so did ciated every minute of it and so did Sidney. Sarnia; Oct. 15.—A shock was received in marine circles here today with the news of the death this morn. Ing at Fergus, Ontario, of Captain Robert D. Foote, master of ships with the Northern Navigation Company of this city since 1884, and one of the best known captains in marine circles in Canada. He was aged 72 and resided here until four months ago, when he left to live at his birthplace after suffering a stroke.

Capt. Foote sailed the lakes for 55 years, his first vessel being the schooner Mountaineer, which he joined at age of 17. He joined Northern Navigation Company in 1884, and successively captained the Atlantic, Germanic, Majestic, City of Collingwood, Huronic, Hamonic and Noronic, retiring from active service in 1918.

One of his feats was the bringing of the Hamonic to safety through the great storm of 1913, when dozens of ships foundered in high seas. He is survived by his wife and two brothers, George of Port Arthur and Andrew of Fergus.

Will Your Boy Be Educated?

Of course he will, because you want to see him grow up to be a "real" man. When he gets out into the world and makes his mark, what pleasure and satisfaction it will bring to you!

But there is just one consideration—suppose you do not live until he is fitted for his life's work. This thought has escaped many a man. It is the chief reason ninety per cent. of children never complete their High School course.

The matter can easily be arranged—an education guaranteed to your children—through life insurance.

It is one of the great pleasures of life insurance representatives to be able to advise fathers and mothers how to provide for the education of their children, who will afterwards pay honor to their parents, holding them in high regard for this chance in life.

LIFE INSURANCE IS "THE LOVE THAT NEVER DIES," AND WHEN EXTENDED TO YOUR CHILDREN REACHES ONE OF ITS HIGHEST FORMS OF EXPRESSION.

Will Arrange Details.

H. C. Priest of Toronto, secretary of the World Missionary Congress, will arrange later details in connection with the London meeting some time this week. The program will be a four-day affair and will arrange for the participation of every element of London churches, including the boys and girls. The congress is interdenominational and every church member will be asked to take active part in its activities. The danger of being compelled to recall missionaries will be stressed by visiting clergymen and a provincial-wide attempt commenced to make up the deficit at present existing in the Canadian funds for the establishment and maintenance of missions. tenance of missions.

A meeting of clergymen, representing all denominations, was held this afternoon to complete plans for holding the World Missionary Congress in this city on Nov. 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The congress will bring hundreds of laymen and ministers interested in missionary work to London. The best authorities on mission work in Canada will gather here for the purpose of outliming their activities of the past year and primarily to urge church organizations to make strenuous attempts to collect money so that work commenced in foreign countries by missionaries may be continued.

The

Admiral Percy Scott, who has no confidence in the utility of battleships and who is hotly antagonistic to the Singapore plan, told a meeting of the Australasian Association of London last evening that the proposed base was "utter foolishness." The only key to safety and defense, he said, was in the use of airplanes, mines and submarines.

If these were properly provided and could never reach Australia, nor could a United States fleet reach Japan in the eyent of hostilities, while if Singapore were similarly while if Singapore were similarly equipped no hostile ships could ever

Keen on the British Markets.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Oct. 16.—A review of overseas trade in Canadian cattle since British ports were opened to Canadian stockers and feeders, as issued in a publication of the British ministry of agriculture and fisheries, is made the subject of a bulletin by the Canadian department of agriculture Canadian department of agriculture

Canadian department of agriculture It is in part as follows:
Since the beginning of April, when the ports of Great Britain were opened to store cattle from Canada, some 23,221 head, consigned as stores, have been landed. Of this number, 9,446 have been slaughtered at the landing place, so that only 13,755 have been licensed out as stores. The early shipments were largely of cattle wintered in Ontario, and only 2,572 were landed previous to May 26. With the opening of the St. Lawrence, cattle was shipped off Alberta ranches. Arrivals were heavi-Lawrence, cattle was snipped off Alberta ranches. Arrivals were heaviest in June, the average number being 2,350 per week. Imports then fell away to less than 1,000 weekly, with some increase after the middle of August, but last week there were no landings.

Most of the cattle have been Shorthorn crosses, although the cargoes have usually included some Angus and Hereford crosses. The animals have varied as to condition, and the have varied as to condition, and the age has varied from two to four years. SCHOOLBOY IS HUR WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Lloyd Taylor Has Both Hips Fractured On Leaving School.

Special to The Advertiser.

Owen Sound, Oct. 15.—Lloyd Taylor, 11-year-old son of Mrs. Richard Taylor, 400 Seventeenth street east, had both his thighs fractured this afternoon when he ran out in front of a car driven by William Doyle of Annan. The lad had just been dismissed from school at 12 o'clock, and the accident occurred almost in front

The boy was running across the street in front of the school, and ran in behind a car going north and out in front of Mr. Doyle's car going south. Neither had much opportunity to see the other before the accident occurred. The boy was knocked down and run over. Witwas traveling at a very moderate rate of speed. The lad was carried into the home of J. T. Reeve, where Dr. Gaviller was called and the boy removed to the hospital in the ambulance. Both his legs were fractured above the knee.

Teeth Beauty Adds a premier charm It comes by combating film

You who love beauty should learn this way to prettier teeth, if you don't know it now. That is one great beauty item.

Millions now use this method. You see the results today wherever you look. Now see them on your own teeth. Make this delightful test.

Film mars beauty

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Teeth thus lose their beauty and luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Under old methods, those film-caused troubles became almost universal.

Then dental science found two ways to fight film. One disinte-

Betty and Her French Maid Take Possession of the Yacht

CHAPTER LXXXII.

A Display of Temper.

Betty had wired and written in answer to Nazlo's letter sent from Monaco to New York, and they had exchanged several cables before she landed in Algiers. In a telegram sent her at/Marsellles, Nazlo suggested a meeting in Algiers, but Betty was all prudence now—in small things, where she felt no great temptation to be reckless—and it seemed wisest not to see any man, with the exception of Salvano, until she had met her husband. She had to see Salvano (of whose presence in Algiers she learned definitely from Nazlo) because upon the result of a talk with Paul, the next step- with Miles depended.

She was determined, however, to presence in Algiers she learned definitely from Nazlo) because upon the result of a talk with Paul, the next step- with Miles might be in a venomous mood, and she wouldn't like him to hear that the shoe king had met her when the ship from Marseilles docked. Neither did she want Nazlo to call, on board "Silverwood," but when she had taken up her quarters there (to the silent distress of Captain Yale) and learned of Miles' absence from Algiers, she sent a note to Nazlo's hote.

He was staying at the St. George, and the suggested that, if Mrs. Sheridan thought it would be "conspleuous" to lunch with him she might come and have tea on the terrace alone. Then he could stroll past; and not the most censorious gossip could make mischief out of a chance meeting. Nazlo added, "Speaking of gossip, Prince Paul di Salvano and the Callahans are at the St. George, and quite the center of attraction. Rose poses as 'Miss Callahan,' but everyone thinks she's married to Salvano, and that the old man is keeping the prince on probation for a while.' Rose poses as 'Miss Callahan,' but everyone thinks she's married to Salvano, and that the old man is keeping the prince on probation for a while.' Unless there'd been a marriage, old Callahan would be pretty sure to send Salvano packing after all the talk. I had better tell you that there's talk also about your husband, who has friends here, not counting those who are yours as well. Some think you're certain to divorce bim; others think the opposite. But none of them know who the girl in the case really is, or that, if you play your cards well, you hold him in the hollow of your hand. Not only was he infatuated with the Desmond girl, but Yale was aware of the fact. If Betty had not been in a black mood she must have felt some mallelous amusement when Yale urged the superior conforts of an Algiers hotel. The yacht was being cleaned, he pointed out, while Mr. Sheridan was away, and the understanding was that no one should be allowed on board. Of course, in the case of Mrs. Sheridan, it was different. It she chose to put up with the inconvenience of "housecleaning." he had not been in a black mood she truth when Yale urged the superior conforts of an Algiers.

Black Pussy the Cat Causes Mrs. Bob White a Big Worry

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS

All day the wounded young Bob White crouched in a clump of weeds on the Green Meadows. It was a clear, on the Green Meadows. It was a clear, bright day, but the weeds shaded him from the sun. All day Mrs. Bob White remained with him. Her mother heart ached for him. He himself felt too ill to think at all, and so he did not worry. But his mother knew what the dangers were, and she grew more and more anxious. She looked forward with dread to the coming of the Black Shadows and night. She knew that during the day there was little to fear down there on the Green Meadows from Reddy Fox or Granny Fox or Old Man Coyote. Hidden as they were under the weeds she was not afraid of being found by any of the Hawk family. But with the coming of the Black Shadows all would be changed. Then Reddy Fox and Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote and Jimmy Skunk might come prowling be changed. Then Reddy Fox and Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote and Jimmy Skunk might come prowling around at any time. Then, too, Hooty the Owl would be out hunting.

"If only I could get him over to the dear Old Briar patch," Mrs. Bob White kept thinking. Every once in a while she would coax young Bob White to try to walk. But he felt too badly. He felt so badly that he wouldn't even eat. She stole away from him two or three time to get him some food, but he refused the most tempting tid-bits.

Gnee in the afternoon she discovered Black Pussy should discover young Bob it would be the end of him. There would be no escape. So Mrs. Bob White was playing. It wouldn't have fooled Reddy Fox. No, sir, it wouldn't have fooled Reddy Fox. No, will be no escape. So Mrs. Bob White led-that fooligh cat, At last she felt that it was safe to leave here badly and softly as only Black Pussy sat all little way at all. At once Black Pussy bat to reep slowly and softly as only Black Pussy became excited. Yes, all the grass in the grass. Mrs. Bob White began to flutter along the ground as if she were badly hurt and couldn't fly. Black Pussy became excited. Yes, all respectively the proposed of the first place.

"That bird is hurt," said Black Pusst "The Hollow Fence Post."

It Isn't Too Early Now To Begin Your Christmas Sewing

Gifts which express your individuality are far dearer to your family and friends than the more expensive but less personal things which you may find in the shops. The most distinctive and individual of gifts are those which have been made with your own needle. And if you start in time, you will enjoy making pretty towels and lampshades, colorful wee dresses and novel luncheon sets. Now is the time to make your Christmas lists and start your sewing. Our counters offer you many suggestions for Christmas presents that are new and lovely. But best of all, they will bear the imprint of your own personality.

Beautiful Materials For Handmade Lingerie

LONSJAY, 75c

It's truly described as "the new Falry Weave" in cotton fabrics. Everybody asks if it's silk; it resembles a soft-wash satin, but more easily washed and much more durable. A self stripe and the lovely sheen and dainty shades makes a charming fabric, exactly suitable for dainty garments, though we have sold it for men's pyjamas frequently, as well as ladies' wear. Then you will have time to add the dainty touch of your own handiwork which will make them doubly valuable to the fortunate recipient.

To-day I saw

These mild October days may lull you into a feeling of false security in which you pracefully think that Christmas is months and months away. It may be atmospherically, but it isn't on the calendar. And if you want to avoid the feverish activity of the last shopping days, begin now to follow the example of the proverbial busy bee, and improve each shining hour. On this page you will find the delightful gift suggestions which I saw today.

It gives you such a thrifty, provident feeling to have a little treasure trove of gifts concealed in your bottom bureau drawer. You will enjoy many a refreshing glimpse of them before you put on their holiday wrappings of tissue paper and scals and gay holly ribbons. Already the coming event of Christmas is casting its shadows before. Here is a whole pageful of alluring and colorful "shadows." The approaching winter season means parties and new dresses and theatre tickets, and coal and shoes and warm underwear for the children. All these things, combined with Christmas gifts and festivities, are a severe strain on the long-suffering budget.

You can restore it to "normalcy" and still have beautiful and valuable gifts if you start your Christmas sewing now. Wouldn't you like to come and see the pretty things which are described on this page? Then, as a well-known publication urges you, "Obey that impulse!"
