We have just received another shipment of that popular line that has had such a big sale at 20 cents per yard. It's melting away rapidly, too. Those of our customers who have been waiting the arrival of this line, should get it at once.

India Linens...

Are scarce goods this season, but we are showing a full assortement of the best makes at popular prices-15c, 25c, 35c,

Persian Lawns...

Are hard to get, so many of them being used for shirt waists. We have them in all the wanted prices.

Dress Muslins...

In Plain White Organdy and the large Floral Designs, so fash-ionable this season, as well as the small neat White and Black effects. They range in price from 15c. to 50c. per yard, and the assortment at each price is very complete.

White Embroidered Wash Belts...

You know how good our values are in this line. The prices are very low. The qualities are the best-15c, 25c, 35c. and 45c. We can fit the stout ladies, too. Every size is here.

AN ECHO.

How to Measure the Distance From

There is scarcely anything in nature that exerts the fascination over every one alike than does an echo, and common as it may become there is always a feeling of mystery about it that holds us as with a charm. Of course we all know that it is merely the reflection of a sound from some object, as the side of a house or a rock or a hill, but often we cannot tell how far away the object is that causes it. Here is a way to tell every time:

Holding a watch in your hand, shout
a single syllable, as "Ho!" or "Ha!"
and count the number of seconds from the time you shout till the sound comes back to you. Now, sound travels at the rate of 1,125 feet a second, so the number of seconds that elapse multi-plied by 1,125 will give the distance in feet traveled by the voice in going to the object and back to you again, and one-half of that number will be the number of feet away that object is. Of course the object may be only few hundred feet away, in which case the sound will come back in less than

DUMONT AND RIEL

Remarkable Double Death That Recalls the Northwest Pebellion That Cost Canada Many Valuable Lives.

Gabriel Dumont's untimely death at the age of 75, and the death of Riel's mother on the same day, is a coincidence that time recalls when the names Dumont and Riel thrilled all names Dumont and the time of the rebel-lon Dumont was credited with supply-ing the brains of the insurrection, Riel contributing the necessary fanaticism that drew to his side the Indians and half-breeds of the Northwest. Dumont half-breeds of the Northwest. Dumont was a more dangerous man than Riel, for he brought to the camp of the conspirators a cold-blooded cunning that cost Canadian lives. He was not carried away by his chief's wild imaginings, but fought desperately like a man with a rope around his neck. It was his boast that he would never be taken alive, and it is altogether likely that he would have killed himself rather than trust himself in the hands of the Canadian Government.

Dumont, the Buffalo Hunter,

Dumont, the Buffalo Hunter,
History will reveal none of the promoters of the Northwest rebellion as a hero. They hardly lend themselves to picturesque treatment, those who could not be considered fools being squalld knaves, or both. Dumont was not a fool, though he assisted in organizing and was director of one of the madand which will be belong as well to the wife of title belongs as well to the wife of the and was director of one of the mad-dest enterprises in all history. He was born at Edmonton, of an Indian mother and a French-Canadian father, one of a numerous family. As a youth he was a buffalo hunter, and became an adept between the whites and the Indians.

The Tempter of Riel. In 1880 the Dumont family moved to South Branch and there founded a set-

South Branch and there founded a set-tlement, where Gabriel was chief. By this time he was reputed to be wealthy for a half-breed, a circumstance that gave him additional weight with the Indians. Personally, then, it is plain that Dumont had little reason to com-plain of the conditions that induced many of the Metis to rise in rebellion. Nevertheless he was chiefly responsible for inducing Riel to return to Canada in for inducing Riel to return to Canada in for inducing Riel to return to Canada in 1884, after his sentence of banishment had ended. To Riel he represented the whole Northwest as awaiting but his appearance to take up arms. The white gettlers, he said, would join them, and the rising would be so general that the Canadian Government would not dare resist the demands made upon it. Whether Dumont believed all he told Riel is open to doubt, but it is plain that he believed there would be little fighting, and a quick acceptance of the rebels' terms. He pictured himself and Riel as the half-breed governors of the The Half-Breeds' Demands.

Though Riel and Dumont were vis-ionary and adventurers, and entitled to fight under no nobler flag than the skull and crossbones, they drew up a docu-ment setting forth the Indians' griev-ances, and dignified it with the name of Bill of Rights. In this ultimatum, which was delivered to the Dominion Government, the following demands manifesto was to the effect that a commission had been appointed to enquire into the general subject of half-breed claims; and that any half-breed legally entitled to it could get a patent for his land. The Government promised that the ordinary method of surveying, i.e., Inying the land out in squares, would not be followed, if the breeds were desirous of retaining their riveries lots, after the fashion in Quebec. Although this matter was not mentioned in the Bill of Rights, it was considered wery important by the rebels, and the Government's concession on the point was well calculated to allay ill-feeling. The reply also exposed the limpudent mature of the claims for treatment according to the practice adopted in Manitoba, for it asserted that the same individuals who had already been settled with when they lived in Manitoba. They had been given their land there, sold it and moved west, and now insisted that they should be re-established.

Dumont, the Lieutenant.

Before the serious nature of the situation was realized Riel had struck at Duck Lake and the fight was on. Dumont was his lieutenant from the beginning, and it was he who planned the actual fighting and forced upon that rebels such ideas of formation and discipline as they could understand. It was Dumont who, the night before the course of the claims of the particular of the particular of the public, and satisfied that the fundamental fight in the part of the public, and satisfied that the fullest publicity can only add to the well-earned reputation of his medicine. Recognizing this growing disposition on the benefit had the representation of that which here for swallow, whether it be food, drained on the state of the public, and satisfied that the fullest publicity can only sati SENSATIONAL ADVICE I nature of the claims for freatment according to the practice adopted in Manitoba, for it asserted that the men making the demands were the same individuals who had already she the theoretical productions and the same individuals who had already been settled with when they lived in sand paper when walked upon. ham Architectural Scheme. "The whole city will be remodeled," declared Mayor Eugene F. Schmitz of San Francisco a few days after its destruction by fire and earthquake, when san Francisco a lew days after its destruction by fire and earthquake, when discussing the problem of its reconstruction. He added that the work of rebuilding would begin right at the water front, where millions of dollars would be spent, and that in the creation of a new city the so called Burnham plan would be taken as a guide. When Daniel Hudson Burnham designed the court of honor at the Columbian exposition and superintended the building of the famous "white city" he little dreamed that he would one day be called upon to plan a city greater even than a world's fair and that the calamities of earthquake and fire combined would give him this opportunity. It is now believed that the rebuilding of San Francisco as a "model city" will be one of the blessings in disguise brought by fire and earthquake to the metropolis of the Pacific.

Pacific.

Mr. Burnham has been preparing himself for the execution of such a task as now lies before him for years. Born in Henderson, N. Y., in 1846, he early showed a bent for the profession of an architect. He studied at Yale and Harvard and Northwestern universities and when the Columbian exposition of 1893 came along was chosen chief architect and director of works of that great enterprise. Since works of that great enterprise. Since then he has been in demand when civic improvement was in hand, has acted as chairman of the national commission for beautifying Washington and is also for beautifying Washington and is also head of the commission which is crating a model civic centre in the city of Cleveland. It was natural that he should be called to San Francisco when that city set about putting in effect ideas of civic beautification. He built a bungalow on the Twin peaks, which gave him a view of the city from a height of 700 feet, and, with his assistants, spent months in developing the plans. The report was submitted only a short time before the visitation of the city by earthquake and flames. It was at first thought that it would require too many years and too much money to carry out the Burnham scheme, but now it is deemed possible that in its main features the project may be realized, for the old city has been destroyed, and why should not the new San Francisco be a "city beautiful". the new San Francisco be a "city beautiful?"

The Burnham plan provides for a civic centre, with the principal public buildings located upon it and the union station upon the city's chief radial line. It provides for a series of parkways uleyard encircling the shore line of a boulevard encircling the shore line of the peninsula, an extension of the ave-nue leading to Golden Gate park and the building of a Greek amphitheatre on the Twin peaks, with a statue of San Francisco extending a greeting to the countries of the orient. In the rethe countries of the orient. In the re-building of the city as a whole there is now to be considered the very practical problem of construction that shall be as nearly as possible both earthquake proof and fireproof. Wider streets and proof and fireproof. Wider streets and plenty of open squares will lessen the danger from spread of fires. Earthquake dangers will be met by building steel structures of the kind best adapted to resist shocks. It is predicted also that monolithic concrete construction will be largely used. In the steel structures the material forming the outer shell will be bound as firmly as possible to the skeleton. By re-enforcing the walls at the intersection of the girders with steel ties and by using masonry work of re-enforced concrete it is bewith steel ties and by using masonly work of re-enforced concrete it is be-lieved to be possible to make a build-ing so strong that a derrick, if one large enough existed, could take it by a corner and lift it out of its bed without changing its shape.

The Pastoral Navalos.

The Navajos are a pastoral, patriarchal, seminomadic people. Their whole culture and development centres in their flocks, says Scribners. Their reservation of 12,000 square miles is desert, broken with mountains and mesa, On the mesa and low mountains there are considerable areas of piper. mesa, On the mesa and low mountains there are considerable areas of pinon and cedar, and on the higher mountains a limited area of beautiful pine forests. Over this region the Navajos drive their flocks. At the season when the slight rainfall gives even a scant pasturage on the desert plains, the focks are postured there as the paspasturage on the desert planns, the flocks are pastured there. As the pasturage on the lower levels is both burned with the hot, scorching sun and exhausted with pasturing, the flook are taken up into the higher mountains, where there is more moismountains, where there is more mois-ture. Again as the deep winter snows come on the sheep must be taken down out of the mountains to escape them. During this time they are kept, on the wooded mesa, where there is less snow, and a plentiful supply of wood, of which there is none on the plains be low. Year in and year out the Navajo flocks are driven back and forth from plain to mountain top, mesa and foothills. "Most of his poetry is pathetic, isn't

SIGNIFICANT PROTEST.

12,000 Lancashiremen, In 33 Special Trains, Go to London to Object to the Educational Bill.

London, June 9 .- Thirty-three special trains brought to London yesterday morning 12,000 Lancashire churchmen to protest against the education bill. The protestors proceeded to Regent's Park, where they massed and accom-panied by bands of music, and carrying banners, marched through the principal thoroughtares to Albert Hall. The procession was headed by the Bishops of London and Manchester, and included many clergymen.

The chief resolution submitted to

The enter resolution submitted to the meeting recorded an emphatic protest against the bill on the ground that it is destructive of all forms of religious instruction in the elementary schools, and contained the assertion that the only true safeguard of re-ligious education in the schools is a continuation of the denominational

The wiltors for the most part were factory employes, forming a typically Lancashire crowd, but all classes were represented, and they all came at their own expense. Consequently the protest was more significant than most of such

ALLEN DIED FROM POISON.

Proceedings Against Man and Woman Dropped, Murder Not Proved.

Brockville, June 9.—"That the said Henry Allen came to his death at Lansdowne, Dec. 13, 1905, through poison, but whether as food or administered by parties with malice aforethought, we are unable to determine, but from evidence presented to us thus far believing it points more strongly to the latter."

The above verdict was rendered by the coroner's jury empanelled at Lans-downe, to hear the evidence relating to the death of Allen, who was a farmer in that locality.

A phase of the case was thought to implicate Mrs. Allen, the testimony of William O'Connor, a farm hand, em-ployed by Allen, forming the basis of this suspicion on account of her alleged relations with him before and after he relations with him before and after her husband's death, O'Connor went so far as to swear that Mrs. Allen asked him to marry her if she disposed of Allen.

The question of the purchase of arsenic by O'Connor resulted in him being taken into custody with Mrs. Allen a month age, when the inquest was first opened and adjourned to get an analysis of the contents of Allen's stomach. Traces of arsenic were found, but Prof. Ellis thought that as the embalming fluid contained much of that potson he could not say how the arsenic had been used.

Mr. Monk asked if Mr. Jury could tell why Mr. Preston took so much interest in Leopoid's labor bureau.

Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Ethier, and Mr. Carvell all contended that this answer could not be genuine evidence. Mr. Jury's opinion as to a man he disliked should not be taken.

Mr. Jury read a letter which he thought was a threat by Mr. Preston that he would establish more labor bureaus.

Mr. Carvell would not let the selection.

Doan's Kidney Pills CURED HIM

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, Hazeldean, Ont., writes us as follows: "I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble for eight months. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. I would have to stay in bed for three days at a time and could not do any work. I tried several remedies but of no avail, and also plasters but they were of no use.

One day a neighbor of mine advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so much discouraged I told him I was tired of trying remedies, but he urged me to try one box so I purchased one, and before I was through using it, I found a change for the better so I got five boxes more, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They quickly relieve the conjected, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health.

Some Juggling With the Accounts to Deceive Government Inspectors-Making Things "Seem"-"A Gener ous Act" of Which the Like Was Never Before Done In Canada-Dummy Shareholders.

Toronto, June 9.—The Imperial Life Insurance Co., which Hon. George A. Insurance Co., which Hon. George A. Cox said he brought into existence 30 that his son, Frederick W. Cox, might be general manager of an insurance corporation, is now under investigation by the Dominion Insurance Commission.

Mr. Thomas Bradshaw, the actuary of ompany was on the stand through-yesterday. A large number embers of the staff of the different of members of the staff of the different Cox financial corporations were set down as shareholders in the Imperial despite the fact that all of the dividends were paid the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., which owned a large percentage of these shares.

The complaints of policyholders of the Canada Life were confined to certian subjects, and Mr. Shepley selected saveral as being generally representaeveral as being generally representative of all the rest. He said that the grievances of policyholders were set forth in hundreds of letters which had reached the commissioners. These com-plaints could not be investigated in-GURE SICK HEADACHE.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

General Secretary.

The only conceivable way in which the human intelligence can ever succeed in averting the "procession of the great year" is not by postponing the sue, but by reversing the process. The question is this: While energy is being dissipated in accordance with the natural law, can we so manipulate things as to accumulate energy, making the unavailable available-notwithstanding the fact that cosmic process seem to be essentially irreversible? Now there is assuredly no inherent reason why we should not accomplish this. It is true that hitherto all the atomic evolution that has been ob-served is atomic disintegration. We may speak now, indeed, of the analysis of the elements. But so it was, we may remember, that the older chemistry began, and yet analytic chemis try was the precursor of synthetic chemistry. We began by breaking up compounds, but now we can make them-can, indeed, make compounds hitherto unknown in nature. Similarly, it is more than probable that we shall ere long learn to achieve the synthesis of the elements as well as their analysis. No energy is ever lost. Even when the radium atom, itself the child of the uranium atom, breaks down and dissipates its energy, ending, it is supposed, as the dull atom of lead, the original energies are not destroyed Why should they not be gathered up

Balk Concellors Vester and Chinnick. The former thought that "there was something behind this very strange business" and said he couldn't understand Mr. Ross' action in repeatedly bringing up this matter. Mr. Chinnick said that Mr. Vester's remarks cast a slur upon Mr. Ross, who was only doing his duty in bringing the report of the committee of which he was the chairman. He thought Mr. Vester should apologise.

Mr. Vester said he had been mis-Mr. Vester said he had been mis-understood. He never meant to in-sinuate anything about Mr. Ross. Mr. Ross closed the incident by accepting Mr. Vester's statement that he had meant no insinuation against him, although he thought the Mr. Vester had been unfair to him.

that Mr. Vester had been unfair to him.

The reports of the Petitions and Legislation, and the Agricultural committees, were read and adopted. The committee appointed to deal with the matter of establishing a bridge over the Thames at Prairie Siding presented their report, which was read and adopted.

Mr. Chinnick presented a further report of the Harrison Hall committee.—Adopted.

A committee, consisting of the chairman of the several standing committees, was appointed to deal with the matter of purchasing coal for county uses.

The by-law authorizing the transferring of Wallaceburg and Dresden from the school inspector of West Kent to the East Kent inspector, was read a second and third time. Mr. Vester moved, seconded by Mr. Firench, that the by-law be finally passed.

In amendment, Mr. Somers moved, seconded by Mr. Chinnick, that the by-law be not passed, but that it be referred back to the committee to have the town of Wallaceburg struck out of the clause containing the names of the towns to be transferred. transferred.

A long discussion took place over this by-law, Mr. Ross expressing his opinion that the passing of the by-law would be an injustice to Mr. Park, as Wallaceburg was one of his best subsolid est schools.

Mr. Grant thought with Mr. Ros that only the town of Dresden should be transferred to Mr. Colles, the inspector of East Kent. Mr. Walker was consulted regard-
