In " Homes without Hands," an elegant volume in the department of Natural History, by the Rev. J. G. Wood, recently published by the Harpers, the following facts are stated as showing that the bee-hive is the most accurate of mathe

Many years ago Miraldi, being struck with the fact that the lozenge-shaped plates-of the honeycomb-always had the same angles, took the trouble to measure them, and found that in each lozenge the large angle measured 109 degrees 28 minutes, and the smaller 70 degrees 32 seconds-the two together making 180 degreesthe equivalent of two right angles. He also noted the fact that the apex of the three-sided cup was formed by the union of three of the great

Some time after, Reaumur, thinking that this emarkable uniformity of angle might have some connection with the wonderful economy of space which is observable in the bee-comb, hit upon a very ingenious plan. Without mentioning his reasons for the question, he asked Kanig, the mathematicion, to make the following calculation : Given a hexagonal vessel, terminated by three lozenge-shaped plates, what are the angles with the least amount of material ?

Kænig made his calculations, almost agreeing with Miraldi, and Resumur concluded that the bee had very nearly solved the difficult mathematical problem.

Mathematicians were delighted with the result. and for a long time the calculations were not questioned. However, Maclurin, the well-known Scotch mathematician, was not satisfied with even so slight a difference between the two mathematicians. He wanted precision, tried the whole question himself, and found Miraldi's meaurement correct.

The Brook and the Sparrow. " O whither so fast, my Lady Brook. O whither so fast to-day ? Tarry awhile from your onward dance, And peep out here with your merry glance, To chat with a friend I pray." And the Brook made snswer, " I cannot stay Sweet Sparrow, to prate with you,

For the morning hours are flitting away, And I have my task to do." " And what may your work be, Lady Brook, That you cannot stop to-day ? Babbling over the stones you go, And a noisy tongue you have, I trow, But what are your tasks, I pray ? Nothing. I ween, but an idle song To sing as you wander by ; Nothing, I ween, but to catch the gleam Of the sun in the deep blue sky ; Nothing, but dimple, and flirt with the bee, Or the yellow butterfly."

" Friend Sparrow," replied the little Brook, " Mine are but humble tasks ; Yet a willing step and a cheerful look My great Employer asks : And gladly I fulfil them all, Simple although they be, And I sing, for the very joy of my heart, To the butterfly and the bee.'

And what are these wondrous tasks. I pray ? Quoth the Sparrow indisdain And she laughed outright, while the little Brook Made answer yet again :

" I bathe the roots of the willow trees, Beneath whose boughs I pass, And the hazel bush, and the alder low, And freshen . the meadows through which flow.

And strengthen the tender grass. The sweet wild flowers would droop and If not for my nursing care : And on my verge is the greenest mass That groweth anywhere.

Which renders them very convenient, and well adapted for children, and persons who have a dislike to take medicine, and especially pills. Another great suportion of Radway's Fills over all other pills in general use, is the fact of their wonderful mediciant strength, being highly concentrated. One bo six of these pills will set more thoroughly, and cleanse the alimentary anal, which us piles, tenes, spassa, piles, tenes, use, etc., than any other Fills or Purp. Medicine

THE GREAT WANT SUPPLIED.

It is a well known fact that Physicians have long sought to discover a vegetable purgative as a substitute for Calomel, and that would cleanse the Alimentary Canal of all diseased and retained humors, as thoroughly as Lobelia will the stomach, without producing sickness at stomach, weakness, or irritation of the mucous membrane. In Dr. Radway's Pills, this very important and essential principle is secured. A dose of two to six (according to the condition of the system) of Dr. Radway's Pills will produce all the positive alterative change-from a sluggish or torpid, to a healthy action of the Liver-as the phycian, hopes to obtain by a dose of Blue Pills, or Calomel: and will as thoroughly cleanse the Stomach, and purge from the bowels the diseased and retained humors the most approvement, metic, or cathartic
