FRENCH OFFICIAL NOTICE

All Attacks of the Germans Have Been Repulsed by the Allies.

Situation Remains About Same With Few Changes.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The French official statement given out in Paris this afternoon says that yesterday saw numerous artillery duels and some isolated infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed.

The text of the communication follows:

"The day of yesterday, November 17, passed much as did the day before. There were numerous artillery exchanges and some isolated attacks on the part of the enemy's infantry, all of which were repulsed.

"From the North Sea to the Lys, the front was subject to a fairly active bombardment, particularly at Neuport, and to the east and to the south of Ypres.

"Near Bixchoote, the Zouaves, charging with the bayonet, brilliantly took possession of a fort which had been disputed between the enemy and ourselves for three days.

"To the south of Ypres an offensive movement on the part of enemy's infantry was repulsed by our troops. The English army also maintained its front.

"From Arras to the Oise there is nothing new to report.

"In the region of Craonne, our artillery on several occasions secured the advantage over the batteries of the enemy.

"The bombardment of Rheims has continued. From Rheims to the Argonne there is nothing new to report. In the region of St. Mihiel, in spite of counter attacks by the Germans, we have retained in our possession the western part of the village of Chauvaucourt.

"In Alsace, the landwehr battalions sent into the region of Sainte Marie-aux-Mines, have had to be taken out for the reason that they lost one half their effective strength."

Heavy Loss Was Inflicted at Neuport

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company at Amsterdam, sends the following:

"According to the Telegraaf, Sluis, Netherlands, correspondent, the Germans occupying Dixmude have suffered heavy losses. In fresh fighting which has taken place there they lost 200,000 men.

"The town of Neuport is badly damaged. Heavy cannonading was heard Tuesday in the direction of Ypres, indicating a renewal of the heavy fighting there.

"Fugitives say that additional submarines are being constructed at Zebrugge."

German Losses Terrific, Admits the Berlin Staff

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 18.—The official list of German casualties, as announced here, give a total of 549,247 killed, wounded and missing.

This list does not include the Bavarian, Saxon and Wuertemberg armies, the losses of which are estimated at more than 400,000 men.

The last list given out included the losses up to the beginning of October, so it is safe to assume that the above does not take in any after October 15. This list does not take into account the sick, of whom there are great numbers, so that it is easily possible that the fighting line of the Kaiser has since the opening of the war been close to 1,500,000 Hillaire Belloc two weeks ago placed the loss at 1,750,000.

KAISER'S FIGHTING BAVARIANS AND PLUCKY BELGIANS FIGHTING FOR COUNTRY'S HONOR.

BAVARIAN MACHINE-GUN DETACHMENT OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

These Bavarians shown above are not Austrian soldiers. The shako is used extensively by the Bavarians. The headress of this particular detachment is a leather shako. Their tunic is of gray-green cloth, with round scarlet collar, cuffs and shoulder cords and brown leather knee boots. Range finders and telescopes are carried by each detachment. Machine gun batteries are independent units in each army corps of the German army. Each machine gun company consists of six guns, which are either worked together in battery when they are attached to regiments, or they can be sent to battalions in pairs. In the latter case they are used with the utmost boldness and skill.

BELGIAN OUTPOST USING A PILE OF LUMBER FOR COVER.

In the lower picture is shown a Belgian outpost in action. A correspondent at the front, writing of Belgian fighters, says:—"The Belgian soldier is small; he is not exceptionally equipped; he makes but a sorry appearance, and in peace times he is but a grumbler. But under fire at the front he is superbly calm, composed. He makes war as he did formerly the great manoeuvres. He laughs and plays." Another correspondent writes:—"Belgium is a plucky country. I know no braver. What we all owe to Belgium we can only guess. The price Belgium has had to pay is tremendous. She is buying her freedom with the lives of her own sons—men who know no fear, who face death daily with a smiling face and a cheery heart who suffer in silence and who, though crippled and maimed for life, are proud in the knowledge of the service they have rendered."

'DON'T SHOOT' YELLED LONDON CABBY WHEN HE BROUGHT IN A NUMBER OF GERMANS

Prisoners Voluntarily Gave Themselves Up Because They Were Starving—Features of the Situation Given To-day.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The battle in Flanders is becoming more and more restricted in the area between Ypres and the Lys. The flooded area has further extended until it now reaches well south of the Yperlee. In addition, the rainy season, so long in these flat countries has now set in, swamps, as the admirible drainage systems have not been working for three months.

The region is almost impassable and the conditions evidence the hardship of the armies in a country, the soil of which is nothing but liquid mud and where the villages, which might afford the only shelter have long been destroyed.

Fighting almost as intense as in Flanders, continues on the French right flank in the region of Verdun, which fortress the Germans are persistently trying to invest. On the heights to the east of the Meuse, says a semi-official statement, the French light infantry is especially distinguishing itself and the artillery gave it useful support by destroying a German block house.

"We have at various points of the front," continues the statement, stormed several trenches, thanks to the dash of our infantry. In the Marne district one of our shells having blown up a German ammunition convoy, their artillery immediately opened fire on the city and cathedral of Rheims."

As a heavy London motor omnibus dashed towards the British camp in the second line yesterday a sentry fired and the guard turned out with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets, for in the vehicle were twelve Prussian soldiers with packs and rifles. As the bus approached, the driver, a typical London busman, cried out: "Don't shoot; they're feeding out of my hand; they're hungry."

The Prussians had been on outpost duty. When they saw the omnibus returning from the advanced British trenches, where it had delivered a load of ammunition, they stood in the middle of the road, threw up their hands and surrendered, declaring that they were starving.

The Emden Lost One Funnel After Another

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—10.15 a.m.—A despatch from Melbourne, Australia, to the Reuter's Telegram Company, contains part of the report that Captain John Glossop, of the Australian Cruiser Sydney, made regarding the fight in which the German Cruiser Emden was destroyed. It says:

"The Emden's firing soon failed when the Sydney began to hit the mark. The Emden's rudder was destroyed early in the fight, her speed suffering greatly in consequence.

"Her next loss was the number one funnel, then the foremost and this was followed by the number two funnel. Finally the number three funnel fell."

River Yser Is Abandoned by the Enemy

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The correspondent of the Times in Flanders telegraphs that the Germans have completed evacuated the left bank of the Yser canal, and that the floods are seriously jeopardizing the German position at Dixmude. The French are nominally holding the south end of the town of Dixmude and the Germans the north side. There is much hand-to-hand fighting.

"Recent days have been entirely favorable to the allies," the correspondent says, "and it may be taken as certain that the retreat of the enemy is simply a question of time. Between our forces and the enemy, the whole way from Neuport to Dixmude, there is a protective sheet of water, and all hopes of a German advance have been frustrated."

HAS AUDACIOUS BEEN SUNK OR WAS STORY FAKE?

The following is from the Liverpool Post, November 21: "Mr. and Mrs. J. W. P. Laird, of Birkenhead, have made a gift of half a ton of apples to the crew of the Birkenhead-built Dreadnought H.M.S. Audacious. One cwt. of apples has also been sent to each of the warships Garland and Liffy."

It would appear from the above, an item which occurred a week after the Olympic was reported as having had a narrow escape, that the story of the Audacious having been sunk may be imaginary after all.

The British Admiralty has not yet confirmed it.

CIVIC RECEPTION.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—His Eminence Cardinal Beign of Quebec will be tendered a civic reception at the city hall on the occasion of his visit to this city on December 8, the first since his elevation to the cardinalate. Funds for the entertainment of his eminence were set aside by the Board of Control this morning.

Naval Casualties Are Announced in Commons To-day by First Lord

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, stated in the House of Commons to-day, in reply to a question, that the total British naval casualties to date were:

Officers killed 222, wounded 37, missing 5. Men killed 3,453, wounded 428, missing 1. This list, the First Lord said, did not include the missing officers and men in the Royal Naval Division at Antwerp and on the British cruiser Good Hope, sunk off the Chilean coast, which totalled 1,000 and 855 respectively.

LATE DESPATCHES TO-DAY

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—George A. Galloway, lately bookkeeper for the Western Canada Flour Company, was sentenced to two and a half years in the penitentiary on a charge of stealing $2,027 from the company. He was arrested last March, and pleaded guilty to the theft of $1,150, and has since made restitution to the amount of eight thousand dollars. He has been remanded several times, but a final sentence was passed, the judge remarking that it could have been 14 years. Galloway was receiving a salary of $3,000 a year.

A COLD WAVE

QUEBEC, Nov. 18.—A cold wave that kept the mercury hovering below the zero mark last night, covered Lake St. Francis, on the River St. Lawrence, with a coat of ice, three inches thick. The report was given to-day by members of the crew of the Canada Line Steamer Murray Bay, arriving from Montreal.

WAS CENSURED.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—For lack of ordinary judgment, Captain Philome Blouin, master of the Steamer Canada—a coasting steamship trading between Montreal and Gulf ports—was severely censured in the decision which Captain L. A. Demers, Dominion Wreck Commissioner, rendered here this morning, as a result of the investigation, which he conducted into the collision of the Canada and the Cape Breton, a freighter, in the harbor on October 7 last. In addition he was ordered to pay the costs of the case, amounting to $175.00, the cash to be paid into the Marine and Fisheries Department before December 15.

BRITISH FLEET GAVE A GOOD ACCOUNT OF ITSELF

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—7.53 a.m.—A Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Mail says:—"The British fleet received information Monday, which led them to carry out a vigorous bombardment at Knocke and Zebrugge on the Belgian coast. The Solvay Company's works on the Bruges ship canal, which are being used as a base for German military trains was wrecked. A train of five cars filled with soldiers was struck by a shell, took fire and was destroyed. Much damage was done to the German stores and supplies."

GERMANS AGAIN ON OFFENSIVE

Swift Change Has Taken Place in Russian Poland To-day.

In Eastern Prussia However Czar's Army is Advancing Steadily.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—11.52 a.m. No change in the kaleidoscopic operations in Russian Poland has been more startling than the sudden resumption of the offensive on the part of the Germans, a movement by which the heart of the Russian line has been attacked and Warsaw again is threatened.

As usual conflicting reports arrive from the neighborhood of these operations. Petrograd does not deny that the Germans have resumed the offensive, but denies that the Russian capital declares that such a movement will not cause the slightest diversion from the Russian invasion of East Prussia, which is proceeding slowly but steadily. In the meanwhile Berlin claims a victory near Lipo impelling the Russian forces which, according to German reports, must make a stand before crossing the Vistula River as a retirement behind that stream would be too difficult. Berlin reports that the Russians are near Kutna, but Vienna claims a victory for her ally at this place.

From this welter of conflicting reports, emerges clearly the fact that a great battle is under way in western Poland on the line between the River Vistula and the River Warta. It is clear that the Russian advance has been brought to a halt. In the meantime Russian progress continues through the Carpathians, before Cracow and in East Prussia, before Lodz.

Bad weather conditions are still having their effect on the operations in the western arena. The artillery duels continue, but it is hardly likely that either side is attempting to make much use of its infantry.

Paris claims in an official communication that the invaders renewed their attacks to the south and east of Ypres without modifying the situation. At the same time the allies, according to this announcement have made marked progress at every point attacked—on the Yser, in the Valley of the Meuse. Special despatches announce heavy German losses in fresh fighting at Dixmude and the existence of a protective sheet of water which renders any further danger of a German advance in that region negligible. The Germans are reported also as having completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser, the flooding of which endangers their possession of Dixmude.

The giving out by the admiralty of the official report of the capture of the British cruiser Glasgow on the naval engagement November 1, off the coast of Chile settled beyond question the fate of the Cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth, but offers no solution to the mystery of the Battleship Canopus. According to the Glasgow reports, Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, commander of the British squadron, signaled the Canopus that he was about to engage the enemy. This is the only mention, in connection with this naval engagement, of the one battleship present in the British fleet.

The only other reference to naval activity is a report of the bombardment of Knocke and Zebrugge on the Belgian coast by a British fleet.

Mr. J. G. Sing, engineer for the Dominion Government in Toronto, has resigned.

Scotland Yet

Extracts from a letter received by a member of the Courier staff from Scotland tell of the awful price she is paying, and paying as she always has done in Britain's wars. It says: "From the Island of Lewis alone has gone in all branches of the service 6,000 men from Mull, Tiree, Colonsay and Skye. I can safely say nearly every able-bodied man. The crops were gathered by the old men, the women and children and a few rejected from service. The German factory which was built to overlook Forth Bridge has been refitted and is now a temporary hospital. The streets are filled with soldiers in the winter, and some still bandaged. Our territorial regiments are down in England training.

"By the by, you ought to have been here when the news came that 22 ships were in Plymouth with the Canadians aboard. Why, it was the subject of conversation for days. everybody seemed to feel a sort of thrill at the thought and Canada's land now we seem to feel is much nearer than before. By all accounts they are splendid fellows, and I heard the Highlanders for physique can match some of our Guards' regiments. Canadians must be a fine people; you don't know how we feel about it.

"The news from the front is better, but it is heartbreaking, nearly every home is in mourning in some districts, but we must win or go down."

ALECK HAZELL OF BRANTFORD IS PRISONER OF WAR AND IS NOW HELD BY THE GERMAN SOLDIERS

The following letter tells of Aleck Hazell of Brantford, having been taken as a prisoner of war by Germans. Editor of The Courier

Sir—I have just received word from my husband, who is now a prisoner of war in Hanover Germany. He was a Canadian reservist of the Royal Army Medical Corps, and left here on August 18th. A copy of his letter follows.

"My Dear Wife: No doubt you have been wondering what has become of me, but everything has been so much rushed that we have not had a chance to look around. As you will see by the above address I am a prisoner of war, a bunch of us being captured, whilst looking for wounded one night. Do not worry, I am in good health, and being treated all right; so just think of the day when it is all over."

REV. DR. CHAMPION

Former Brantford Pastor is Highly Honored in United States.

Says a Philadelphia paper: "The Rev. John B. Champion will leave Roxborough church, Lyceum and Ridge Aves., where he has been pastor four years, to fill the pulpit in the Baptist church at McMinville, Ore."

Mr. Champion presented his resignation to the trustees of the church last night, and it was accepted with regret. As a farewell gift to Dr. Champion, the trustees and congregation presented him with $500 in gold. The resignation will take effect December 15, and Mr. Champion will go immediately to his new post.

The McMinville church is in the beautiful Willamette valley, thirty-eight miles from Portland. The church is closely associated with McMinville College, which is one of the largest Baptist institutions in the northwest.

Mr. Champion stands high in ecclesiastical circles, and is noted as a biblical student. He was graduated from Colgate University in 1903. Before coming here he was pastor of the Galvary Baptist Church, Brantford, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Champion lives at 561 E. Leverington Ave., Roxborough.

Military Notes

The Buffin Rifles Signallers will commence a class of instructional nights will be Monday, Friday and Friday for the next few weeks. As the signallers annual inspection will take place on Dec. 7th, it is necessary for every man to turn out and get all the practice possible so that the corps will be able to keep up its good record of the past few years, even though it has lost several of its best men in the active service contingents.

Capt. Dunlop, Sergt. McKie and Sergt. Hocking will be in charge, and they promise to do all in their power to make it a grand success from start to finish.

Every man not holding a Grade A certificate is expected to attend, and any young fellows who would like to learn signalling are also invited to attend.

BRASS BEDS. Brass and Iron Beds at special prices—all this week at Crompton's.

COLD AT OTTAWA. OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—Ottawa was last night in the grip of the coldest November weather in many years.

The thermometer touched 2.2 degrees below zero. Previous November records show that in 1903 it went to .01 below and then went to zero.

THE SYDNEY'S CASUALTIES LONDON, Nov. 18.—The casualties on the Australian cruiser Sydney, which destroyed the German cruiser Emden in the Indian Ocean, were four men killed and one officer and fourteen men wounded.

REMAINS OF LORD ROBERTS ARE BROUGHT BACK HOME

An Unprecedented Event—British and French Troops Take Part in the Ceremony.

Brier Draped With Large British Flag as It is Transferred From Ambulance Car to the Steamer at Boulogne—Remains Reach Folkestone. BOULOGNE, Nov. 18.—With appropriate funeral flags lowered, drums beating and troops presenting arms, France yesterday bade farewell to the mortal remains of Lord Roberts. Far to the right and far to the left, almost as far as the eye could reach along the quays, British soldiers and French infantry, sailors and marines stood presenting arms, whilst the band struck up the gay call, "Aux Champs," which many times stirred the warrior into heroic deeds. An Impressive Scene. Probably never before were honors rendered to a British Field Marshal's remains abroad under similar dramatic conditions. Silence was the order up to the last minute before the arrival of the Red Cross motor car, which brought the bodies from the Hotel De Ville in France. The British respectful crowd lined the pavements, and the troops began to march into the square opposite the bridge. A battalion of the Welsh Regiment took up position in front of the motor. A few minutes after one large Red Cross motor car, which showed marks of the rough campaign, draw in front of the bridge and came to a halt. It contained the cherished remains. Immediately the hand of a French regiment struck up "Aux Champs." Eight officers, with bare heads, representing the British native Indian troops, lifted the bier from the motor. The British officers stood immovable with the bier on their shoulders at the front of the bier, whilst the bugle again rang out and sounded the last call for the honored dead on the soil of France. Bier Draped With Flag. The bier was draped with a large British flag, and on the coffin lay the Field Marshal's cap, baton, sword and insignia of rank. A procession of flower-bearers led the way, carrying a wreath of white and purple chrysanthemms and evergreens, with appropriate inscriptions. Slowly they marched down to the boat, preceded by a band playing the plaintive funeral dirge, whilst British and French soldiers and French marines on either side presented arms. Arrival in Britain. FOYKSTON, Nov. 18.—The body of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, on its arrival here last night from Boulogne, was received by a large contingent of officers from the Shorncliffe camp, the Mayor of Folkestone and other officials. The waiting room of the railway station had been converted into a mortuary chamber and the coffin was borne there by non-commissioned army officers. It was laden with a number of wreaths. In the procession from the boat to the railway station marched a delegation of British, French and Indian officers. A guard of honor was posted about the coffin last night. Funeral at St. Pauls. LONDON, Nov. 18.—The funeral of Lord Roberts will be public and will be held at St. Pauls on Thursday, it was announced yesterday. It has been decided that interment will also be at St. Pauls. Lady Roberts declined the offer to have the remains interred in Westminster Abbey.

Lord Kitchener, Secretary for War; Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and other Cabinet Ministers, as well as members of both Houses of Parliament, will attend the funeral services. Lord Roberts will be given a public funeral of an elaborate military character. The body of Lord Roberts will be carried from his home at Ascot on Thursday morning on the gun carriage, for which his son gave up his life during the South African war. The son was killed trying to save the British guns at Colenso. At Waterloo station the body will be placed upon a special train.

A military procession will then move to St. Pauls, where the body of the nation's hero will lie in state for an hour and a half before the funeral service and interment. Premier Asquith formally moved before the House of Commons yesterday the adoption of the resolution for the creation of a national monument to Lord Roberts. His tribute was offered to the late Field Marshal as the "most illustrious British soldier."

Peers Pay Tributes. Lord Curzon and Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and the Earl of Crewe in the House of Lords yesterday paid tributes to Lord Roberts. His achievements as a man, said Lord Kitchener, will be an abiding memory, not only in Parliament, but in the whole nation. His fame will forever be associated with the memorable march to Kandahar.

Lord Curzon said the last letter he received from Lord Roberts contained a strong plea for the defence of the family. The prayer which he wrote had brought the family together in a way that nothing else could.

GLASGOW CREW DEFEATED BUT NOT DISMAYED

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The admiralty issued last night the report of Captain John Luce, of the British light cruiser Glasgow, of the battle with the German sloop on November 1, of the Chilean coast. The Glasgow, which left Coronel on the morning of that day, was advised by Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock, commander of the British squadron, that the enemy's ships were to the northward. Towards evening, the Glasgow sighted smoke and reported to Rear Admiral Craddock, and the British fleet followed in line ahead in the Good Hope leading to the Monmouth, Glasgow and Otranto following. The enemy had turned south and were also in single line ahead, the Scharnhorst and Guesneau leading. Goes to Attack. Admiral Craddock signaled the Canopus: "I am going to attack the enemy." The enemy was at that time 15,000 yards away, says the report, "and maintained this range, at the same time jamming the wireless signals. The sun was setting—immediately behind the British ships, and while it remained above the horizon the British had the advantage in light, but the range was too great. "When the sun had set and visibility was altered, the British ships were shot against the aft-ships, and the falling light made the enemy difficult to see. "The Germans opened fire at 7 o'clock at 12,000 yards, followed in quick succession by the British. The growing darkness and heavy spray of the head sea made firing difficult, particularly for the main deck guns of the Good Hope and Monmouth. "The enemy's firing salvos, got the range quickly, and their third salvo caused an outbreak of fire on the fore-part of the ships, which were constantly on fire until 7:45 in the evening. At 7:50 a tremendous explosion occurred on the Good Hope amidships, the flames reaching 200 feet high. Total destruction must have followed. It was now quite dark. Both sides continued firing at the flashes of the opposing guns. The Monmouth was badly down by the bow and turned away to get her stern to the sea, signalling the Glasgow to that effect. At 8:30 the Glasgow signaled to the Monmouth: "The enemy is following us," but received no reply. "Under the rising moon the enemy's ships could be seen approaching, and as the Glasgow could receive the Monmouth no assistance, she proceeded at full speed to avoid destruction. At 9:30 we observed flashes of fire, which were doubtless the final attack on the Monmouth. "Nothing could have been more admirable than the conduct of the officers and men throughout, although it was most trying to receive great volume of fire without a chance of adequately returning it. All kept perfectly cool; there was no wild firing and discipline was the same as at sea practice. When the firing ceased to be visible the gun layers spontaneously ceased fire. "The reverse sustained has entirely failed to impair the spirit of the officers and the ship's company, and it is our unanimous wish to meet the enemy again as soon as possible.

Conduct Admirable. "Nothing could have been more admirable than the conduct of the officers and men throughout, although it was most trying to receive great volume of fire without a chance of adequately returning it. All kept perfectly cool; there was no wild firing and discipline was the same as at sea practice. When the firing ceased to be visible the gun layers spontaneously ceased fire. "The reverse sustained has entirely failed to impair the spirit of the officers and the ship's company, and it is our unanimous wish to meet the enemy again as soon as possible.

The cruiser Canopus was not reported in the battle and probably was not. It is known that she was on her way to join the squadron of Sir Christopher Craddock, via the Straits of Magellan, but it did not reach the scene of action in time. The fact that Sir Christopher sent a wireless message to the Canopus indicates that she was not a great distance away. Since the engagement nothing regarding her has been given out by the admiralty other than a statement by Hon. Winston Churchill in which he said that she was wrecked that she had no fears as to her safety. The Glasgow is now in Rio Janeiro harbor.

MISSING FROM RANKS KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 18.—A military cap found on the wharf between Clarence and Brock streets, led to the discovery that Frederick W. Harrison, volunteer for overseas service, attached to F company, 21st battalion, was missing from the ranks. It is believed that he fell into the water and was drowned. He was born in London, England, was 33 years of age, and enlisted in Kingston.

THE SITUATION.

That a great battle is on between the Vistula and Warthe rivers, between Russian and German forces is indicated to-day in the meagre 'despatches' from the front. On the result of this battle depends the fate of East Prussia, where the Kaiser gets his crown. It is the Kaiser's kingdom, and no greater blow could be struck at Germany than Russian seizure of the capital city Königsberg.

Moreover the country is rich in resources, and the Russians could winter their army in East Prussia without difficulty. Military experts report that the plans of the Kaiser are entirely set against any Prussian invasion by the enemy and from news coming through, it can be easily seen that every effort is being made to carry out this objective. In another week the situation in the eastern zone of operations may be entirely changed.

In Belgium, the field of battle is still further narrowed, because of flooded land. Despite reported German attacks, it is almost certain that the allies will be able to prevent any occupation of the channel ports. Since Antwerp was taken, the great effort of the invaders has been spent to reach Calais, which might be used as a nistol pointed towards England.

In connection with submarine activities, on the part of the enemy, the following from the Liverpool Post is rather interesting: "The loss of another cruiser, victim of a German submarine, will create a feeling of irritation rather than alarm, and the public will begin to ask fretfully what are our eighty-five submarines about that the remainder of Germany's thirty-seven can accomplish such feats. To which the answer is: We know what the German submarines have done; we do not know what the British have accomplished. It is necessary to wait with patience. Meanwhile, the presence of a submarine in the English Channel will neither surprise nor frighten the Admiralty, who probably would be more disquieted if they heard that that boat was safely back at Heligoland. There have been several long-distance cruisers by German submarines, which have not been, and never will be, reported back at home."

HITS THE UNITED STATES

A week from to-morrow is the day set aside by President Wilson for Thanksgiving in the United States. It is very true that our big neighbor to the south has peace to be thankful for, but, nevertheless, the effects of the war are being felt economically just as severely as they are in Canada. In the United States, many cities have the bread line, and municipal authorities are faced with problems similar to those in Canada as regards unemployment. In Erie, for instance, a manufacturing centre about the size of Hamilton, the Erie Dispatch urges the council to take action to provide work for those thrown out of employment. The Dispatch says: "The council of this city, instead of shutting down work, will have to be looking about for the purpose of doing perhaps more work than was intended and than is immediately necessary. There is no intention in these remarks to find fault with the ending of work which the inclement or cold weather will necessarily end. But the thought is that Erie will have to get in line with many another city of the land and through its city government do something to provide opportunities to earn a living and shelter for those who otherwise will be utterly unable to help themselves. The charitable inclined people of this city will have to do a little more than usual this winter. They will have to subscribe more than usual to our Associated Charities and other relief associations. They will, no doubt, be willing to do so, or if they are not, some who have not given in the past will have to contribute. But with the best efforts of our organizations their work will fall short of the requirements. That is why other industrial centres of the country are taking steps to minimize this winter's evil. State and city governments are co-operating everywhere, and even the federal government's assistance will be had. Erie cannot afford to neglect this problem. It must awaken to its gravity at once. Something in the way of public work that would have been undertaken anyway, even if not at once, should be considered for the immediate future. The men who will thus find employment, and there are hundreds who ought thus to be aided, will be able to maintain themselves and their families and also save their self-respect."

Truly the war is far reaching in its consequence, even to those who have had no hand in its making.

ARE WE TRUE TO THE STOCK?

It has been said that the sixty men of the Brantford Battery who left this week for active training for the front, were very largely "old" countermen. That is, they have not been in Canada very long. The pointing out of this fact is not intended to be a reflection on Canadians, but at the same time it is quite in order to say that the native-born can do more than has been hitherto shown. In this connection, one thing should be borne in mind. Those Canadians within the age who do not desire to go to the front themselves, and who by their demeanor actually discourage others who are eligible, should be reminded that were they residents of Germany, Austria, France or Belgium, they would be obliged to go, willing or unwilling. It has been asked, what are we fighting for? We are fighting for a maintenance of our present conditions, the liberty to speak and to act with freedom.

The British Empire at present knows no conscription. The very word is hateful to a large majority. Conscription in the present crisis may be necessary, both in the British Isles and in Canada in order that, in the long run, we are to have no conscription. It will only be necessary in the latter event, because it will be an absolute necessity for the future liberty and freedom of the subject. The average Canadian little realizes what a loss it would be commercially in this country, if every able-bodied young man had to spend three years in the non-productive pursuit of a military training. This has been the German precept for years past. We don't want it in Canada, and if we, united with the Empire as we are, help to smash this Prussian militarism, the kind which slashes a lame cobbler with a sword, we, as Canadians, will be rendering a duty to the entire world. In the present war, fighting for the British Empire is no mere high sounding phrase to any colonial. We are fighting for ourselves. We are fighting for the day when a huge tax bill on armaments and Dreadnoughts will be no more; when the taxes of the people will be applied to their economic improvement.

The British nation wants peace. As a colonizing nation, it has dispensed freedom and justice to all peoples under its sovereign power. It asks the same for the entire world. No great colonial power was ever built on a firm foundation as Britain, as four instance witness South Africa, India, Canada, Australia and scores of other minor possessions. It is not the vastness of the Empire but the spirit of the Empire which the world admires.

Then why should we, as Canadians, who have enjoyed immense prosperity, a prosperity largely helped by British interests, why should Canadians, even in Brantford, allow those, who have only recently come over to our shores, to go forth and accept the burden of warfare for us? Canada, this splendid Dominion protected for a century by British arms and by the British navy, and yet returning nothing to the Mother Land! Now is the time, in men, in arms, and if not in money, in Canada to return some tithe, some quota of all that is owed to the British Isles, whence came our freedom in politics, in religion and in personal liberty and all that makes life worth living.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It will soon be time to do your shopping early. The Crown Prince hasn't been killed this week, nor Von Kluck surrounded. Even the Literary Digest admits that Germany hasn't mobilized public opinion in the United States.

The sinking of the Dreadnought Audacious must be a reminder to the Liberal Senators of Canada that there was no emergency. "No Emergency." Chorus by Grit Senators at Ottawa, Toronto Globe and Brantford Expositor. Strange that you don't hear this refrain nowadays.

Poultry associations are now preparing for their annual shows but it would help some if hens were trained to lay eggs instead of looking pretty at this time of the year.

The British Government has declared the entire North Sea to be in the military area. This action might have been taken some time ago with good effect.

As long as his name is Tommy Atkins, there will be kicking about the ration, etc. If a British soldier did not know how to kick, well, he wouldn't be British, that's all. It's the stock.

There is a bye-election on in West Hamilton, but as there is a regular candidate out for the Hearst Government, the event lacks interest. The seat was formerly held by Hon. J. S. Hendrie, now Lieutenant-Governor.

Word comes from Berlin that the Krupp concern paid 14 per cent. dividends last year, but this year will reduce to 12 per cent. It would be interesting to know what this firm will pay next year or the year after.

Tenders for the construction of the Canadian battleships were pigeon holed by the Laurier Cabinet for six months, and then Borden stepped in with a real Dreadnought policy. Is it any wonder the Grits don't want an election at the present time.

The local Austrian who lost an action before Judge Hardy because he was an alien should not be allowed to starve, even if he has no legal status in this country. We must remember we are a Christian community and have obligations as such.

The Canadian Parliament may meet and vote a huge war loan, but the only place that money can be secured is from Great Britain. Will the foreigner, the German, in particular ever realize what the British Empire is?

As the Toronto Telegram trenchantly puts it, Canada's Dreadnoughts were sunk fathoms deep in the Hangard speeches wherein for weeks upon weary weeks, apostles of Laurierism jeered in foolhardy scorn at the unequivocal advice of the British Admiralty.

In four weeks, one British paper sent as gifts from subscribers 440,000 cigarettes to the troops at the front. Most Canadians will agree that chocolate would serve the soldiers better, but the English view is to send the soldiers what they ask for.

Laurier has never been able to get away from the imputation that he once openly advocated separation from the British Empire. At present, party politics prevent him from adhering to his first sworn vows. It is a good sign, too, because Canada henceforth is indissolubly linked with the future of the British Empire.

After all is said and done, even from the standpoint of uncompleted work, the Lake Erie and Northern is making a respectable looking job of the changes at Jubilee Terrace, and Lorne Bridge seems to be a stronger structure than some engineers were wont to predict.

If Canada is to send two hundred thousand men, the difficulty is the recruits to be secured will need a lengthy period of training. Many regiments at present have their ranks depleted and it is through regimental channels that the difficulty can more easily be overcome. Young men, join now!

The thrilling tale told by Colonel Swinton, who is with the staff of General French at the front, must inspire all Britons with the gigantic task to be performed in the future. The Germans, Colonel Swinton says, are brave to a fault, cunning and equipped and organized to a degree which no other army in the world has ever attained.

Having announced that beer would be taxed about one cent per glass, Lloyd George, in his speech yesterday said: "The only chance of getting at the elusive teetotaler is by taxing beer." Because one abstained from beer, the Chancellor surely didn't mean that he was a deliberate tax dodger.

A United States paper gives a warning to its readers who are engaged in making things for the distressed Belgians, pointing out that certain articles of clothing are likely to be on the firing line within ten days after arrival and used by the Germans. The paper suggests that winter hoods or mufflers should have broad white stripes, so that any soldier using the same would become an easy target. It is not very comforting news to local ladies who have been working energetically for the Belgians, to reflect that the results of their labor will be for the vandals of the enemy.

Chastened. The British Government has declared the entire North Sea to be in the military area. This action might have been taken some time ago with good effect.

Champion Mercenaries. Philadelphia Evening Ledger: If Germany really gave Turkey $40,000,000 for coming into the war, the Turks have the Swiss backed into a corner as mercenaries.

Bombs of German Culture. St. Paul Dispatch:—Germany now proposes to loose a fleet of German professors on America during the Christmas holidays to drop bombs of German culture on our unsophisticated heads.

Austria Needed This Victory. Springfield Republican—When Austria wants a victory to report, it can always send a force to invade Serbia. Yesterday the capture of a town four miles beyond the frontier was announced.

T. R. Still a Force. Rochester Union and Advertiser:—The public career of Col. Roosevelt stands without a parallel in all history. It is not yet ended, and it may become more strange, more spectacular, more many-sided and more assertive of the indomitable personality of the Colonel than it now appears. Such a man as Theodore Roosevelt cannot cease to be a force of some kind in the concerns of his fellow men so long as the vital spark remains in him.

A Sober Man's Job. London Express:—To-day is the time for abstinence and supreme effort. Russia has shown its realization of this fact by the Carr's stroke on the governmental sale of vodka. France has prohibited the sale of absinthe. Great Britain has limited the hours during which licenses 'houses may be open. If the German militarism which is threatening the life and soul of Europe is to be destroyed, Europe must arm itself with sternness and sobriety.

Germany's Submarine Transports. London Times:—Time alone can show the new devices to be adopted by a nation which grows desperate as it sees itself baffled at every point. Meanwhile, we are inclined to wonder when Germany will discover that the English are not so credulous as her own people. Her latest story of submarine transports for the troops designated for the invasion of England, suggests that her customary ingenuity is failing her. It is the poorest fable she has yet put into circulation.

Lot of the Prisoners of War. London Daily Chronicle:—Very pathetic is the lot of the prisoner of war. All that is possible to mitigate its almost intolerable tedium should be done. Brave men, whether they are English prisoners in Germany or German prisoners in England, deserve to be treated with chivalrous consideration. Machiavelli knew it was good policy to treat war prisoners well. He counselled it as one of his precepts for princes. We, however, base our appeal for the prisoners of war not on the dictates of expediency but on those of our common humanity.

Discounted. Philadelphia Public Ledger:—As for the larger diplomatic aspects, with the war now reaching into the eastern Mediterranean, it must be plain that whether Turkey's action is a question of a quick suicide or a slow suicide, all depends upon what the realignment of the Balkan States and Italy may be in the near future, when events will compel them to act according to the bent of their national inclination and their destined developments. In the general field the Turkish action can only be viewed as a drag that will change neither the general plan of campaign nor the ultimate outcome. It was expected and has been allowed for.

A Significant Departure. Westminster Gazette: On Saturday M. Poincare was chosen Rector of Glasgow University. Lord Kitchener acknowledged on the same day the unanimous election of himself to the Lord Rectorship of Edinburgh University. There are precedents ample enough for the selection of a distinguished soldier for such a position, but M. Poincare is the first foreigner to be the titular head of a British University, and the departure is significant in many ways at this moment. One of the functions of Lord Rector is to deliver an address during his three years of office, and we shall all hope that events will so work out that the French President will be able to fulfil that part of his duties under happy circumstances.

True Object of Advance on Calais. London Times:—The Germans cannot now hope to beat the Russians. Warsaw and the constant failure of the Austrians have shown us that. Unless something extremely unexpected happens in France, it is not at all likely that they can now reach Paris. Their hopes were based upon swift successes, but they did not obtain them, and they are confronted by enemies who steadily grow stronger. They cannot achieve their original purpose, but they can still strive for a draw, and aim at concluding a perhaps not wholly unprofitable peace! To accomplish that end, it is above all things necessary for them to weaken the moral resolution of Great Britain. This is the true object of their advance toward Calais, a secondary object being to revive the drooping spirits of their own people. They know very well why they want Calais. They hope, in vulgar parlance, to "establish a funk" in this country.

EMPEROR'S CASH. LONDON, Nov. 18, 1.45 p.m.—A despatch from Vienna, transmitted to London by the Amsterdam correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Co., announces that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, has subscribed 5,000,000 crowns ($1,000,000) to the Austrian war loan. The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger authoritatively denies reports that the Duke of Brunswick has been wounded, is a prisoner or is missing.

PLACE OF MEETING.

The Board of Trade Buildings, Hamilton, will be the scene of the conference between Brantford representatives and those of Hamilton and Toronto upon the matter of a government paved road from Toronto to Brantford.

PARK DRIVE.

A new portion of the Park Drive work will be commenced to-morrow morning when a bunch of men begin operations upon the grounds of the Ontario Institute for the Blind. The ground has been surveyed and staked and Foreman Ungar will superintend the work which is to be carried on from the grounds to West Mill St.

ARMENIANS DRILL.

The Armenian Rifle Club continues to grow, and the attendance at the drill last night eclipsed all previous ones. There was a muster of 62. They were formed into two squads and drilled by Capt. officers Sweet, Wood, Vaughan and Ryerson. A surprising feature is the manner in which they have learnt the orders given in English. They are never confounded, and comprehend all commands. Major Ostaby was to have put the Armenians through their paces, but he was unavoidably absent.

CONFERENCE IS CALLED OFF—AWAITING REPORT

The meeting between Brantford citizens, interested in the Hamilton-Brantford paved road, scheme, and the highways commission in Hamilton, has been postponed indefinitely. The highways commission engineer has not got his report ready and would have not been able to present it to the conference, and therefore the meeting was called off. This is unfortunate, for elaborate preparations had been made by the Brantford representatives to put the city's cause in a favorable light. The Mayor was prepared to go, and many members of the council, being delegates, were in readiness for the trip to-night. Arrangements had been made for a special train, and the notice of suspension came totally unexpected.

Among those who were to have pleaded the extension of the paved road to Brantford were the following: Mayor Spence, Reg. Scarfe, George Hately, J. Sanderson, J. H. Ham, G. S. Matthews, A. K. Bunnell, Harvey Cocksutt, A. B. Muir, F. Schulz, Warren Milburn, H. Powell, G. H. Waterous, W. E. Cocksutt, Jno. Muir, W. C. Boddy, A. P. VanSomeren, D. T. Williamson, A. G. Olive, A. E. Watts, Reeve Jennings, Township Clerk Jas. Smith, and others from the County and Township Councils. The completion of the highways commissioners report must be awaited, and then, when it is ready, another meeting will be summoned.

LETTER COMES FROM OLD LAND

Pte. Richards Writes to Major Leonard—Soon Leaves for Front.

Major Leonard of the 25th Brant Dragoons has received the following interesting letter from one of his subordinates, Pte. R. Richards, who is now with the troops at present stationed in Old England. It is as follows: "Dear Major,—Just a few lines as promised. Well, as you will see, I am still in England, but we are only seven miles from the coast, and we expect to be among them in a few days. I will gladly welcome the news, for the more we see here the more anxious we all are to do what is expected of us. I might say that we have Belgian refugees here and if people out of the country with conditions as they are here, or who are doubtful of the stories being published about the way these people have been used in their own land, could only hear them tell their story, and by their gestures explain it—well, if there is any fellow-feeling in them for human treatment, they would be ashamed to think they ever doubted it, for really it is past my pen to fully detail it to you. Well, Major, we have airships around here (not Germans, though) and also searchlights sweeping the sky all night, for I suppose we must have a certain amount of protection from the promised German invasion. I might say that there are seven regiments here besides us. We are having route marches two or three times a week, 10 to 14 miles. Well, Major, I cannot tell you much more, only that we had the Royal Scots here two weeks ago, and now they have been in the fighting line, and lots of fine fellows have gone down. Dear Major, I was surprised to know you had my letter published, but of course if it did any good in helping the call to arms I am glad. I am writing this to you personally, and would like to hear from you. My mother tells me that you have been very good to her, and I thank you very much for it and hope some day to repay you in some shape or form. At any rate, I will do my best to be a credit to the 25th while I am on active service, and I know that is all you expect of me. Please remember me to Sergt.-Major Dawson (good old Bill). Yours sincerely, R. RICHARDS. 10th Batt. Lan. Fus. Regt., B Coy. SMYRNA FORTS FIRE UPON U. S. LAUNCH. LONDON, Nov. 17.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Athens says: "A launch from the United States cruiser Tennessee, which was entering the Gulf of Smyrna to arrange for the cruiser to come into the harbor was fired upon by the forts and compelled to return to the Tennessee. "The commander of the Tennessee informed the Vahli that he had orders from his government to enter the harbor of Smyrna, and had decided to do so." PARIS, Nov. 17.—An Athens despatch to the Havas Agency says: "The American warship Tennessee has arrived at the port of Vurla, Asia Minor, and has put a stop to ill-treatment of British, French and Russian residents. The authorities of Smyrna, fearing a bombardment, have left the interior." "The garrison at Smyrna at present consists of 35,000 Turkish soldiers." CHEAP AT CROMPTON'S. #### Cromptons'—The Linen Store Special Display and Offering Thursday and After Linen is the fibre of the flax plant. It is grown most largely in Russia and Belgium—but manufactures at its best in good old Ireland.

When you are buying Linen see that you get it. Beware of the dull, dead look in the material, which means jute or cotton; look for the bright silvery fibre, which shines—good linen always does.

Advice received yesterday from makers tell us that flax is soaring—they're doing other things than raising flax just now in Russia and Belgium—more's the pity...

We have just opened the season's stock of Linens, ordered by us last April—$2,000.00 worth of new linens, supplemented by great stocks on hand. Such values we shall not look upon again soon—the prices are lower than they will be again for years—it should interest you. The goods are from the best houses in Ireland, and comprise as detailed below:

Washington Is Shocked Over Affairs

[By Special Wire to The Courier.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Captain Decker, of the cruiser Tennessee reported to Secretary Daniels of the navy department to-day that while proceeding from Voullah to Smyrna to make an official call, the vessel was fired upon.

Captain Decker's report confirming last night's news despatches which officials heard and believed were inaccurate, left them to-day in a state of amazed wonder. Every effort is being made to get more complete reports of the incident from the Tennessee's commander. His report does not say whether the Tennessee or her launch, as was reported in news despatches, had been fired upon.

Aside from being considered as a hostile act, the firing may be explained in various ways. The first report said the cruiser's launch had been turned by three shots from the shore as it was entering the harbor of Smyrna. Officials say the launch may have taken that method of warning the ship against mine fields in the harbor.

There has been considerable uneasiness about the Tennessee and also the North Carolina, her sister ship, since they went to Turkish waters to look after the interests of Americans at the end of their voyage to the European continent with gold for stranded tourists. Reports of mishaps to both ships have been frequent, but always have been disproved by official despatches.

LEFT BIG ESTATE.

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—The will of J. W. Lamoreaux, who during his lifetime was prominently identified with the Tuckett Tobacco Company, was filed for probate to-day. It disposes of an estate of $39,540, made up chiefly of stock in the Tuckett Company and real estate.

MACK IS RIGHT IN BREAKING UP HIS BALL CLUB, SAYS FULLERTON

(By Hugh S. Fullerton) Connie Mack either is proving himself the wisest man in baseball, or he is making the greatest blunder any man ever made. He is ripping his team, which, for four years has been declared one of the four greatest of all time, to pieces, and next year the Athletics will present a strange team, broken front. If Mack, in the next two years, develops another team, he will be the best we ever have known. If not—the argument still is kept open.

I believe Mack is making the wisest and best course open to the manager of a team. The conditions are unusual. Philadelphia is a cheap ball town. Even when the team is drawing well, the crowds do not pay as much as smaller crowds do in other cities. They have been trained that way.

Second: The Athletics never have been a magnetic team. Their personality has not been known. Few of them had personal following. Thirdly: Philadelphia grew weary of watching them; lost interest because they won so steadily. Last year with a world's championship team winning another American League pennant, the team did not draw at home.

Fourthly: The players are growing old in point of service and are prospecting in the face of a losing year. As a businessman, half owner of the team, Mack could not see the way to pay more; as a baseball manager he realized that the team is past its best, and going back in some departments. There will, of course, be a loud and long howl from the public over the passing from the Athletics of Bender, Plank, Coombs, Oldring, and perhaps Barry, Baker and even Collins. But in any other business any businessman would see that the best thing to do is to clean house entirely.

"SHAG" DRIVING M'GILL FOR GAME WITH U. OF T.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—McGill yesterday began to make serious preparations for its game for the Intercollegiate championship with University of Toronto next Saturday.

Coach Shaughnessy had the bunch out for a light workout, the greater part of the time being spent in tackling the dummy and in running on Saturday, so the men are ready for a great week's work in preparation for the final effort.

The footing on the campus was heavy and holding from recent snow and rain, which made it dangerous to work on. The interference play used by McGill against Queen's was thought worthy of re-mention. Shaughnessy has developed a play which he believes will stop an opposing side's line plunges. This play worked well Saturday, and it is thought will prove beneficial against the heavier line of the University of Toronto team on Saturday.

It is hardly likely that there will be any changes made in the team for Saturday against University of Toronto from that against Queen's last week.

CANADIAN LEAGUE IS GOING BACK TO CLASS C

President Fitzgerald of the Canadian League upon his return from the Omaha convention denied that the league had made an application to close its parks next season. The President looks forward to at least a fair year. The only probable change in the league will have to do with the Erie club.

Next year the Canadian League will be a Class C league, with a reduced salary and player limit. The new rule of 30 per cent. reductions in salaries paid to the players in the Canadian League will be even greater because last season the salaries ran riot in the league.

ANOTHER $30,000 FIGHT FOR JACK JOHNSON

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Articles were signed yesterday for a boxing contest of from 20 to 45 rounds between Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion and Jesse Willard, an American "white" hope. The fight will take place during the last two weeks of March at some place to be chosen February 15. It is said that the battleground probably will be Mexico. Each of the boxers deposited $10,000 to guarantee his appearance at the ring-side. Johnson is to receive $30,000 for fighting.

MISSING BY THE CABLES

Graphic Incidents of the War, Told in Soldiers' Letters and by Wounded Men From the Front.

(Letter from — P. Mullane, Irish Guards, now in King's College Hospital, London).

We dug some trenches. Without warning the enemy's shells came flying around us. We lay close to the ground listening to the merry whistle of them dropping in front and in rear. It made you sweat waiting for the shock of getting hit.

A good job some of the shells were defective and went into the ground without bursting, or should be here to tell the truth, it was proper agony. We could not see the guns or their men, so we were helpless; it seemed like dying in a hole. I wouldn't have minded it if we had seen someone to have a pot at.

The sky turned pure black and we knew we were going to have a heavy shower. But we had a double event—a shower of bullets also. I could see we were attacked in the rear, and all was confusion for a few minutes, but our men soon woke up, and we got the order to fix bayonets.

Down came the rain and lightning and thunder crashing. I stood for a moment to survey the whole scene. It was like something you read about, even a shower of bullets also. I could see we were attacked in the rear, and all was confusion for a few minutes, but our men soon woke up, and we got the order to fix bayonets.

Back from those guns," roared some officer to the Germans, "or I'll have every one of you slaughtered." They didn't want telling twice.

We proceeded to line up the prisoners and collect the spoils, which amounted to about 150 prisoners, 6 Maxim guns and 38,000 rounds of ammunition, which we had the pleasure of using on them later; not counting the dead and wounded.

A colonel of the Royal Field Artillery has sent the following letter to his wife: "The twelfth day of our battle; still plugging away from our same, well-selected position. It has been a dog's life, but of course, they are dug deeply into the ground, and have to keep on the sharp look-out, as well as concealed from the enemy, from daylight to sunset, when we retire for the night into our dug-outs and caves. All the hillsides in this part are riddled with caves carved out of the soft sandstone, and a large proportion of the native population always hid in them. They come in very useful for us for shelters both for man and horse.

"Of course, the country is practically empty of natives. The people are still in their farmhouses; they are absolutely nothing to eat, so we feed them out of our rations. We have eaten all their stock of winter keep, vegetables, oats, both threshed and unthreshed; but of course, they are given a payment requisition, and they get paid daily in cash by the Division cashier, so they will not be quite destitute.

"There are three small children, and they all sit up every night until our dinner time, when we stuff them with bread and jam and sago or rice pudding, and send them off to bed. The people are so starving, and take their losses awfully well.

"We are getting very cunning at removing bushes and planting them where we want them as screens and unthreshed; but of course, they are given a payment requisition, and they get paid daily in cash by the Division cashier, so they will not be quite destitute.

Every time we passed a clothes line the fellows took the clothes off it. They had lassies' night dresses and chemises, and anything, so long as it made a snort. What a game it was. Beef and Bullets.

Sapper Evan Davies, of B Signal Company Royal Engineers, who prior to the war was employed at the general post office Cardiff, writing to his brother, describes the battle of Le Cateau. He says: "The British soldiers have won much praise for the way in which they checked the German advance. The British soldier does not easily get excited. I have seen them eating their bully beef and smoking their pipes with bullets whizzing around them. After a few weeks of this sort of thing a soldier does not put much value on human life. I sincerely hope that another month will see us on the German frontier."

oner told us about a Lancashire Fusilier who had been cut off and refused to surrender to two hundred Germans. He lay on the ground and kept firing away until he hadn't a cartridge left, and as his bayonet was gone, he stood up with folded arms while they shot him down.

There was a sacrifice of bullets in him at least, but he killed twelve and wounded over thirty of his foes before the end came.—Pte. S. Hanna, Coldstream Guards at Birmingham. Checksmate.

When we captured the German trenches over the Aisne, one of the strangest things we found was in the middle of a game, and the two players lying dead beside it.

They had been hit by fragments of shell, but the strange thing was that the board should not have been disturbed by the explosion. Near by were the bodies of men who had probably been watching the game.—A Private of the Royal Fusiliers at Nottingham.

Hit Cigarette Case From a hospital in France, Dr. H. W. Goodden, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, writes to a friend in Clifton, his letter appearing in the Bristol Times and Mirror. On Tuesday (i.e., Sept. 22) I got hit in the chest by shrapnel at the battle of the Aisne. Fortunately it hit my cigarette case and deflected it down, knocking off a trouser button en route. Other pieces perforated my clothing, and one bent a key in my trouser pocket. I got my hat shot off the night before. I shall be up in a day or two, for a few days to convalesce and then back to the... Regiment, to which I am medical officer. I am glad to have been through the hottest part of the battle of the Aisne, and at the hottest corner, and only hope to get back in time to see the aftermath. Of our brigade I am the only medical officer living.

Private W. Aberly, Royal Army Medical Corps, who was at the battle of the Aisne and has returned to his home at Reading wounded, shot through both cheeks, related a story of great bravery on the part of Capt. Worthington. He said the first few days' fighting was terrible, and the losses of the Germans was terrible. The British also lost heavily. The Camerons lost badly on the second day, and one section of the R.A.M.C. was ordered to 'muther up their dead.' The Black Watch behaved heroically under very trying circumstances.

"For special acts of bravery," remarked Captain Aberly, "I think Capt. Worthington stands out conspicuously. He certainly was one of the most gallant men in the field. He seemed to be fearless and dashed to the front regardless of everything, and his lead had the effect of rallying the men magnificently. Once I saw him take up a position right in front of the firing line, and how he returned into safety is just one of the many mystifying things of the war. It seemed impossible that he could pass through such a hail of bullets as he did and come back unscathed."

An Interrupted Tea Driver G. Clark, of the Royal Field Artillery, in a letter to his mother in Bristol, says:— "At one place we had a surprise attack. We were just getting ready for some food, when all of a sudden shells starting bursting around us. I can tell you it was a case of being up and down, and tea cans were slung on one side, our tea spilt, fires put out, and the order given to stand to our guns and horses; everyone to prepare for action. Still we were not to be caught napping. Our boys only close one eye when we get a chance of a sleep, so you can tell we were wide awake to the fact that it was a case of do or die. Our gallant boys, the Guards, held them at bay until our death-dealing pea shooters put them to flight; nevertheless, the Germans made a strong resistance during the night, and it was only after a hard struggle that we managed to be victorious. We lost few killed, and the wounded were not seriously hurt. I myself was rather fortunate, managing to escape with a very slight mark on the cheek, and a small wound in the leg; am very glad to say it was not serious, and am now quite well and fit.

Even Had Chances. A wounded soldier of the 5th Lancs, who was wounded at the battle of the Aisne, writing to friends in England gives an account of the appearance of the troops: "What a dirty looking lot we were—holes in our clothes, and beards.

PRINCESS PATRICIAS GOING TO THE FRONT

BUSTARD CAMP, Salisbury, Eng., Nov. 17.—The Princess Patricia's regiment left yesterday for Winchester to join a British division leaving shortly for the front.
The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry is the corps raised through the munificence of Mr. A. Hamilton Gault, a well-known Montreal business man. A requisite to enrollment in this corps was previous military service, and the result is a body of picked men, many of whom British reservists, said to compare well with any corps in the world. Mr. Hamilton Gault has gone to the front with the regiment, with the rank of major, and will be associated with them in the campaign on which they now embark. In the following list of officers will be recognized the names of several prominent business and professional men of Toronto and other Canadian cities:
Lieut.-Col. (commanding), Lieut.-Col. F. D. Farquhar, D.S.O., late of the Duke of Connaught's Household; Major, A. H. Gault; Adjutant, Capt. H. C. Buller; Quartermaster, Hon.

Lieut. C. A. Wake; Paymaster, Hon. Capt. D. H. MacDougall; Medical Officer, Major C. B. Keenan.
Company officers—Majors: J. W. H. McKinney, C. Q. Court, J. D. H. Shaw, R. T. Pelly; Captains: J. S. Ward, C. F. Smith, A. S. A. M. Adamson, D. O. C. Newton; Lieutenants, F. Fitzgerald, J. L. Carr, D. E. Cameron, E. L. Christie, P. V. Cornish, D. E. G. Colquhoun, C. H. Price, J. P. French, F. F. Minchin, B. F. Bain-smith, H. M. Niven, M. S. DeBay, C. E. T. Stewart, H. E. Sullivan, T. M. Papeaneau, S. H. Bennett, F. L. Eardley-Wilmut.
MORE STEAMERS TAKEN
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 18.—Furness Line agents here have been notified that three more steamships of that line have been taken over by the Imperial Government, the Rappahannock, the Kanawha and the Shenandoah. The Rappahannock is loaded here ready to sail for England. Their places have been filled for company's regular business.

Sir Nigel

By A. Conan Doyle
Copyright, 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

And now the long ride drew to an end. In front of them was the blue sea, flecked with the white sails of ships. Once inore the road passed upward from the heavy-wooded plain to the straggling turf of the chalk downs. Far to the right rose the grim fortalice of Pevensey, squat and powerful, like one great block of rugged stone, the parapet twinkling with the battle of masts rising on the banner of England. A flat expanse of reeded marshland lay before them, out of which rose a single wooded hill, crowned with towers, with a bristle of masts rising on the green plain some distance to the south of it. Nigel looked at it with his hand shading his eyes, and then urged Pommer to a trot. The town was Chelsea, and there amid that cluster of houses on the hill the gallant Chandos must be awaiting him.

CHAPTER XIV.
They passed a ferry, wound upward by a curving path, and then, having satisfied a guard of men-at-arms, were admitted through the frowning arch of the Pipewell Gate. There waiting for them, in the middle of the east street, the sun gleaming upon his lemon-colored beard, and peering his single eye, stood Chandos himself, his legs apart, his hands behind his back, and a welcoming smile upon his quaint high-nosed face. Behind him a crowd of little boys were gazing with reverent eyes at the famous soldier.
"Welcome, Nigel!" said he, "and you also, good archer! I chanced to be walking on the city wall, and I thought from the coloring of your coat that it was indeed you upon the Udmore Road. How have you fared, young squire errant? Have you held bridges or rescued damsels or slain oppressors on your way from Tilford?"
"Nay, my fair lord, I have accomplished nothing; but I once had hopes—" Nigel flushed at the remembrance.
"I will give you more than hopes, Nigel. I will put you where you can dip both arms to the elbow into danger and honor, where peril will sleep with you at night, and rise with you in the morning, and the very air you breathe be laden with it. Are you ready for that, young sir?"
"I can but pray, fair lord, that my spirit will rise to the occasion. But Chandos smiled his approval and laid his thin brown hand on the youth's shoulder. "Good!" said he. "It is the mute hound which bites the hardest. The babbling ever has hands. Bide with me here, Nigel, and walk upon the ramparts. Archer, do you lead the horses to the 'Sign of the Broom Pod' in the high street, and tell my valet to bring them aboard the cog Thomas before night-fall. We sail at the second hour after curfew. Come hither, Nigel, to the crest of the corner turret, for here I will show you what you have never seen."

It was but a dim and distant whiff cloud upon the blue water far off over the Dungeness Point, and the sight of it flushed the young Squire's cheeks and sent the blood hot through his veins. It was the fringe of France, that land of chivalry and glory, the stage where name and fame were to be won. With burning eyes he gazed across at it, his heart rejoicing to think that the hour was at hand when he might tread that sacred soil. Then he gazed at the immense stretch of the blue sea, dotted over with the sails of fishing-boats, until it rested upon the double harbor beneath packed with vessels of every size and shape, from the galleys and crows which plied up and down the coast to the great cogs and galleys which were used either as war-ships or merchantmen as the occasion served. One of these was that instant passing out to sea, a huge galleass, with trumpets blowing and nakers banging, the flag of Saint George flaunting over the broad purple sail, and the decks sparkling from the memory of that slow walk with the blue sea on one side and the fair town on the other, when the wise soldier and noble-hearted knight poured forth his precept and advice as the master-workman to the apprentice.
"Perhaps, fair son," said he, "you are like so many other lads who ride to the wars, and know so much already that it is waste of breath to advise them."

"Nay, my fair lord, I know nothing, but I have accomplished nothing; but I once had hopes—" Nigel flushed at the remembrance.
"Welcome, Nigel!" said he, "and you also, good archer! I chanced to be walking on the city wall, and I thought from the coloring of your coat that it was indeed you upon the Udmore Road. How have you fared, young squire errant? Have you held bridges or rescued damsels or slain oppressors on your way from Tilford?"

"To him who can mix his horse and foot, using each to strengthen the other, that they may wear together they are strong. The archer who can weaken the enemy's line, the horseman who can break it when it is weakened, as was done at Falkirk and Bannockburn, are the secrets of our strength. Now touching this same battle of Falkirk, I pray you for one instant to give it your attention. With his whip he began to trace a plan of the Scottish battle upon the dust, and Nigel with knitted brows was trying hard to muster his small stock of brains and to profit by the lecture, when their conversation was interrupted by a strange new arrival. It was a very stout little man, wheezy and purple with haste, who sudded down the rampart as if he were blown by the wind, his grizzled hair flying and his long black gown floating behind him. He was clad in the dress of a respectable citizen, a black velvet trimmed with sable, a black-velvet beaver hat, and a white feather. At the sight of Chandos he gave a cry of joy and quickened his pace so that when he did at last reach him he could only stand gasping and waving his hands.

Child Gets Sick
Cross, Feverish
If Constipated
'California Syrup of Figs'
Can't Harm Tender
Stomach or Bowels.

A laxative to-day saves a sick child the time from play to empty to-morrow. Children simply will not their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.
Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment give a teaspoonful of 'California Syrup of Figs,' then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough 'inside cleansing' is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of 'California Syrup of Figs,' which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the 'California Fig Syrup Company.'

85 members have already enrolled for the Party Band home guard and the list is growing.
Information has come from the Militia Department that the Berlin city regiment will be the 108th.

High Praise

For the Japs From Enemy

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The East and West News Bureau today made public the following cablegram from Tokyo: "Captain Meyer Waldeck, formerly governor of Tsing-Tau, was brought yesterday, to Fukuoka, where there is a station for keeping prisoners. Fukuoka is a port in Kiushu, the southern-most island of Japan. After expressing his deep gratitude for the honor conferred upon him by the Japanese emperor in allowing him to wear his sword, Captain Waldeck said: "What led Germany to fortify Tsing-Tau was, aside from providing itself against the attack of China, the presumption that some day Tsing-Tau might face an enemy England, France or Russia. We never dreamed that we should ever fight with Japan. There is nothing but praise for the marksmanship of Japanese gunners of heavy artillery, the shrewdness of the scouts and the skill shown in the entrenchment of the Japanese. Though there is much room for improvement in the marksmanship of the Japanese infantry, their hurricane-buss assault is unequalled by the infantry of other nations."

THE TENNESSEE WAS SCOTTED BY THE TURKS

An American Battleship Was Not Allowed to Make Call at Chios.

CHIOS, Aegean Sea, Nov. 17.—The American armored cruiser Tennessee, arrived in this port today. It is stated that yesterday while the captain of the Tennessee was in the ship's launch, which was flying the United States flag on his way to pay the customary visits on the Turkish officials at Smyrna, three solid shots were fired on the boat by the Turks.

The American ambassador, Henry Morgenthau, without investigating the incident, it is said, immediately ordered the Tennessee from Turkish waters at the request of the Turkish officials.

Chios, at which port the cruiser Tennessee has arrived, is the capital of the Island of the same name located about four miles off the coast of Asia Minor and near the Gulf of Smyrna. The island formerly belonged to Turkey, but as a result of the Balkan war, was turned over to Greece. A great portion of the population of 60,000 are Greeks.

Despatches from Athens yesterday reported that the Tennessee had arrived at the Port of Vurina in the Gulf of Smyrna, and that her appearance had put a stop to the ill-treatment of the British, Russian and French residents. The authorities of Smyrna, the despatch added, fearing a bombardment, had left for the interior.

Captain Benton Clark Becker is in command of the Tennessee. He was left New York on August 6 with nearly $6,000,000 in gold on board for the relief of the American tourists stranded in Europe. The warship first went to England, then to France and finally entered the Mediterranean, where she visited ports in pursuance of her relief work.

Germany Is Taking Steps Over Aliens

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—via London, 12.30 p.m.—The expulsion of all subjects of countries hostile to Germany from the vicinity of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, reference to which was made recently in this column, is being issued by the chief of the general staff of the army. This order was made public to-day and according to it the subjects of hostile countries, without distinction of age, are to be expelled from the places enumerated in the following list: Potsdam, the Baltic, including the island of Ruegen; Stettin, Schneidemuhl, Thorn, Koeben in East Prussia; the fortifications around the Masurian lakes, Allenstein, Elbing, Marienburg, Leinsic, Posen, Glogau, the coast of the North Sea and all German Islands along the North Sea, Rhine, Lake Baden, Naumburg, Kiel, Emden and Wilhelmshaven; the county along the Kiel canal and around the mouth of the Elba and the mouth of the Waser up to Hamburg; Bremen, including the islands; Luenitz, Breslau, Glatz, Essen, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Humberg, Gotha, Dresden, Friedrichshafen, the vicinity of the fortifications on the Rhine, Landenau, Naumburg, Strassburg, Neu Breisach, Metz, Diedenhof, Danzig, Graudenz, Kuhl, Darmstadt and Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

In this connection The Tagessche Ruschak says: "We hear from a well-informed source that further and sharper measures along this same line will be taken in the immediate future. "From Russia we hear that resident Germans" this paper continues, "are obliged to live in concentration camps. If this information is found to be correct, Germany will retaliate by placing all Russian subjects in Germany in concentration camps, on a '...oon omd mohadt mohadt

With the City Police

Tekla Klisch, a Russian boarding house mistress was charged with theft by John Grinter. It appears that he deposited with her $50, six months ago, for his board and upon being asked for the remainder of his cash, his board being deducted from his first pay, she was $24 due to him. She did not refund the money and Grinter took action. She declared her husband had taken the money and she was willing to allow complainant to stay with her for another six months in payment of her obligations. The magistrate then dismissed the case, saying that the charge had been wrongly laid.

Ca Gregory, while cycling, knocked down a four year old boy named Bruce Dockray and wounded him. To-day he faced a charge of wounding by the boy's mother, and he elected to be tried by a jury, the case going beyond Magistrate Livingston's jurisdiction. The accident happened near St. Joseph's cemetery.

KRUPPS DECIDE ON REDUCTION OF DIVIDENDS

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 18.—German casualty lists just issued record the death of two generals and the wounding of another. General Alfred Von Vrielen was killed on November 12, and General Von Lepel, the other commanding officer reported killed on the field of battle. General Von Lepel was in command of the reserve infantry division. General Steyer, commander of the 3rd German infantry brigade is listed as having been severely wounded.

The Tageblatt's Poland correspondent relates the details of the capture of Governor Von Korff of Warsaw, Monday morning. It appears from this account that the governor, with his adjutant approached Kutno in an automobile, not knowing that the city had already been taken by the Germans after bloody street fighting. Suddenly the vanguard of German cavalry and tried to escape but was overtaken by the Maz dragoons and surrendered. He was taken to the province of Posen Monday night, and confined there.

The capital of the Krupp company, which manufactures Germany's big guns and other war material, is to be increased from 70,000,000 to 250,000,000 marks, according to the proposals of the directors, which were submitted to a general meeting of the company at Essen on November 12. The increase is justified, it was stated by the director, by the work, purchases of coal fields and so forth, which locked considerable capital. The new stock issued will, as usual, be taken by the Krupp family. A part of the new capital will be paid in on December 31.

The directors also proposed a dividend of 12 per cent as against 14 declared in the year previous. The directors also signed 3,000,000 marks towards the relief of families of soldier employees, 2,500,000 and 1,000,000 to the pension fund.
