TURKISH ADVANCE ON SUEZ CANAL CAME TO UTTER GRIEF; BRITISH FORCES ROUTED INVADERS, AND CAPTURED 3000 PRISONERS

Already 1600 Prisoners Have Been Led Into Cairo--British Defending Force by Aid of the Cavalry, Led the Turks Into a Trap

By Special Wire to the Courier. 3,145 Taken London, Aug. 7.—The number of un wounded Turks captured by the British at the battle of Romani was 3,145, according to an official statement issued by the war office today. The statement says that the Turks were pursued for 18 miles. The pursuit continued beyond Katia, which is 23 miles east of the Suez Canal.

Cairo, Egypt, via London, Aug. 7.—Sixteen hundred Turkish prisoners have arrived here. They are part of the army which attacked the British positions at Romani, and which was defeated with heavy losses, a total of 2,500 prisoners being taken.

London, Aug. 7.—The most recent attempt of the Turks to reach the Suez Canal has proved an even greater failure than the earlier reports indicated. Lieut-General Sir Archibald Murray, commander of the British troops in Egypt, reports today that besides taking more than 3,000 prisoners in the battle with the Turks at Romani, his forces inflicted heavy losses on the invaders and had continued the pursuit of the retreating troops for 18 miles, clearing the Turks from the Katia basin.

Attack a Mystery. Military writers are unable to fathom the reason why the Turks ventured upon their attack. The only conclusion reached is that the Turkish Military authorities were misled as to British preparations for the defense of the Canal, and hoped to make an impression on the rebellious Arabs, who are extending their hold on important places in Arabia.

Put Guns on Planks. The Turkish advance as far as Romani was made in the face of the greatest difficulties, their 6-inch guns being dragged across the desert by oxen after relays of planks had been placed to prevent the wheels sinking into the sand.

The Official Statement. The British Official statement follows: In reference to the fighting in the Katia district, the general officer commanding in chief in Egypt reports that our artillery, rifle and machine gun was most effective, and that the Turkish losses in killed and wounded appear from all accounts to have been very heavy. Late on the evening of the fifth of August, territorial infantry gallantly carried a strong rear guard position. Our continued fighting for a distance of eighteen miles, and they are now well clear of the Katia-Umaisha basin.

How It Happened. A description of how the Turks were drawn into a trap at the battle of Romani is given in a Cairo despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. The despatch says that the cavalry was sent out to entice the enemy, who had shown a disposition to assume the offensive. The British horsemen fought an admirable rearguard action, says the despatch.

215TH BATTALION BADE CITY FAREWELL THIS MORNING AND SET OUT FOR NIAGARA CAMP

Mayor Bowlby on Behalf of the City Wished it Good Luck and Safe Return--Entrained at 8 a.m.--Women of the City Provided Lunches For the Soldiers

Arrived at 10.45. All well, was the good word received this afternoon from Lt.-Col. Harry Cockshutt, of the 215th.

For the second time within a period but slightly over a month, Brantford has bidden farewell to a home-raised battalion leaving for the summer camp. On July 4th last, the 125th, now on its way overseas, left the city for Borden camp, while today the 215th Battalion, approximately 600 strong, took its departure for Niagara, there to spend the summer months in training, which could not be obtained at home.

Best Wishes from the Mayor. In accordance with the request of Mayor Bowlby, the majority of the city council assembled also near the square, and at 7.45 the Mayor addressed the battalion, extending his best wishes for Godspeed to Niagara camp. "A noble body of men," he declared, "voluntarily enlisted in the service of their King in honor to uphold the honor and liberty of their country, and to suppress the unspeakable brutalities, barbarism and blasphemies of the Hohenzollerns and their satellites. To say nothing of the unspeakable Turk, who appears to be getting all he deserves at the hands of that great warrior, the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia. All of you will uphold the honor of Canada in this struggle for righteousness, the greatest that the world has ever seen."

Elsewhere I saw men using the most modern machinery for sorting and heating any kind of old boots that would stand the labor; and such footwear as was useless was not wasted, for by an ingenious contrivance invented on the spot by a young Dublin bootmaker the upper parts of such boots were being converted into boot leathers by thousands.

Mysterious Submarine is Seen Off Portland. Portland, Aug. 7.—Capt. Small of the Cross Island Coast Guard station reported this morning that his station had sighted a large submarine bound west. Its nationality could not be determined, but the captain said he had no doubt that it was an undeser craft. The submarine was coming to the surface when it was sighted, and after running awash fifteen minutes, again submerged. It was thought that the vessel might be the German submarine Bremen. So far as could be learned, there are no United States submarines of the Maine coast.

Signalled From Light House. Machiasport, Me., Aug. 7.—The lookout who sighted the submarine later said that he picked the vessel up in clear weather five miles to the southeast. As the vessel came to the surface the lookout said he heard several blasts from the signal horn at the light house on Seal Island, a British possession. It is believed that the keeper of the light house was signalling to the keeper at Grand Manan Light, also British owned, that a submarine had been sighted.

ANZACS DEFY GERMAN HORDES TO RECAPTURE LOST GROUND

Australians Stand Firm Against Merciless Concentration of Shell Fire - In One Counter-attack Teutons Came Forward Holding Up Their Hands and are Annihilated

(By Frederick Palmer.)

With the British Army in the Field, Saturday evening, Aug. 5, the Australians are holding on to their gains to-day after their advance last night on a two-mile front. The Germans already have delivered three powerful counter-attacks in efforts to retake the lost ground and all failed. In one counter-attack the Germans came forward holding up their hands.

Behind them the British guns had placed curtains of shell fire through which it was impossible for them to retreat, while the Australian machine gun and rifle fire mowed them down and made it hopeless to continue their charge. It was death whichever way they moved; death if they stood still in the bullet-swept space, and they surrendered rather than continue their vain effort.

Another Australian Triumph.

Their last powerful attack having been by the right flank, the British renewed the offensive by the left flank after a week of bombing and sapping. Here the task fell to the Australians, who added another victory to the brilliant record of the taking of Pozieres. In a grilling heat, under a blazing sun, they had been working under continual shell fire, digging their new trenches on the left of the break the British had already made by their previous attacks.

This was one of the remaining important positions of high ground which had been so bitterly contested by all the gun power and cunning and stubbornness both sides were able to bring to bear. Upon this

BAYONETS SUBDUED RIOTERS IN FORD

Militiamen to aid Police From Ford, Windsor and Walkerville.

Windsor, Aug. 8.—At 7 o'clock Saturday evening an incipient riot broke out in the village of Ford and before it was checked practically the entire police strength of Ford, Walkerville and Windsor, as well as a detachment of militiamen numbering some forty men, had been called out. The trouble started when License Inspector Morand with a squad of police officers entered the house of William Nocko, an Austrian, in Ford where a "blind pig" was believed to be in operation.

When the door was opened the officers were faced by a crowd of perhaps 70 foreigners, some of them women, and many of them in an intoxicated condition. With open knives and bottles the foreigners attacked the little squad of police officers and blood began to flow. County Constable J. L. Smith was hit in the mouth with a bottle and had several teeth knocked out, while Provincial Officer Jas. P. Smith, of Windsor, emerged from the fracas with his right arm broken in two places. Half a score of the attackers were badly knocked about, but as the officers used only their fists no serious damage was done. Meanwhile a call for help had been sent to Windsor, and following a despatching of a number of patrolmen in the auto patrol, a detachment of the Windsor guards and 241st Scottish Borderers were hurriedly transported to Ford, and arrived in the nick of time.

By this time the force of Inspector Morand had succeeded in taking prisoners fourteen men and one woman, and were surrounded by a hundred infuriated foreigners who, with knives and revolvers, were threatening violence if the prisoners were not at once released.

Realizing the situation was most critical, Capt. Paddon formed up his men in close order and ordered "Fix bayonets!" Next came the command to advance, and slowly the "little group of militiamen pressed forward. The disturbers were forced back literally at the bayonet's point and held there while Inspector Morand completed a search of Nocko's house.

Nine kegs of beer, eight gallons of whiskey, with a quantity of bottled goods, were confiscated.

Sunday night the fifteen prisoners are locked up, including Nocko, who the police believe is the ringleader in the attempt to resist the authorities.

Under the enflaming fire of the British guns. "Whenever I look at that new German salient," said an officer who suffered in the "Ypres salient," "I feel avenged. We have never had a worse one in a war for positions."

The general opinion is that the value of this latest gain cannot be overestimated, and the heavy bombardment proceeding in that neighborhood indicates that the Australians will have a stiff job holding this new position.

Universal satisfaction is felt among the British staff over their success in holding their gains, though the German artillery concentrates in increasing force, and arrivals of reinforcements for the German infantry continue to be reported.

Never have the operations been more a battle of guns than in this week. Throughout the days of the recent period when the British were not attacking with infantry the shell-fire has been increasing. German prisoners report heavy casualties from the prodigious fire of the British long-range guns in villages and camps anywhere from the front line to from five to ten miles in the rear.

HINDENBURG'S NEW COMMAND IS CONFIRMED

Official Statement from Berlin Gives Particulars of Latest Appointment.

Berlin, Aug. 7, by wireless to Sayville.—The text of the official announcement from army headquarters recently issued, telling of the appointment of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg to the chief command on the eastern front, is as follows:

"During the recent visit of the German emperor to the eastern front, and with the agreement of Emperor Francis Joseph, (of Austria-Hungary) a new arrangement for the command has been established according with the new situation created by the Russian offensive. Several allied army groups have been put under the chief command of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg for uniform employment."

ILLUMINATING ORDER FOUND ON A GERMAN

"Strip Enemy Corpses of Clothes and Socks." It reads.

Paris, Aug. 7.—The following regimental order has been found on a captive German officer:

"Regimental order (7-6-16) of 11th Regiment (24th XIII. c.).

"The greatest importance must be attached to everything left on the battle field; for example, shoes of every kind, arms or parts of arms, trench tools, steel helmets, leather equipments, cartridge carriers, arms for hand-to-hand fighting, belts, tents and articles of equipment of all kinds such as sacks, tunics, trousers and canvas bags for earth. These articles are of almost decisive importance in our great cause. Enemy corpses should be stripped of their woolen clothes and socks."

WAR SEVERE ON ONLY SONS

British Lists Also Show Many Only Heirs Are Killed

London, Aug. 7.—The only son is one of the tragedies of the war. The obituary columns of the newspapers record the deaths of many only sons. The Times' announcements on one day alone record the deaths of eleven officers who died of wounds, six of whom were only sons, and on the same day the provincial papers mentioned fifteen only sons killed and wounded. Not merely only sons, but many only heirs have fallen early in the war.

In certain cases, such as those of the Marquis of Lincolnshire and the Baroness of Kinnaburgh, Playfair, Riddell, Rosemead and Sturford, the royal prerogative is exercised.

About American Women Compared with the Women of Europe

Mrs. HUGHES LE ROUX, the talented wife of the editor of the "Woman Who Talks," from the terribly enlightening point of view of a woman whose heart and home is in the great war country, gives a fresh view of the American woman as she is contrasted with her French professor of economics and sociology and German sisters. In connection with the preparation of her book former President Roosevelt wrote a letter in which the now famous term, "race suicide," was given an immediate currency.

To obtain the data for the book she went into a number of the great mills and factories of the United States and learned, by personal investigation, the conditions under which thousands of women and children were forced to labor.

And now she returns to the issue with three big truths affecting the nations concerned:

"German women are sacrificed to their husbands.

"French women are sacrificed to militarism, but the American woman, married or single—and especially the unmarried—has done a greater work for her country in the last 20 years than merely having children. She has given birth to ideas which will help the world for all time.

"The urge of the modern American spirit shows itself in many and strange places, and no doubt can be raised of its authenticity as a higher and better spirit than that which animated former generations, when it is seen how much better human beings it makes of women, whether they work in the shops or whether they come from the most aristocratic of homes.

"The American woman is a wise and well-balanced woman. She takes enough interest in the social activities of life to make herself a well-rounded being—not over-talented, not over-serious, one who knows how to laugh and how to work, and is altogether the most companionable woman in the world."

"The constant influx of emigrants has momentarily replaced a more fa-steered by Mr. Adee. All of the diplomatic affairs are managed by him. The complex unwritten code called international law is to him familiar in its every paragraph, and he has all precedents at his fingers' ends.

But it goes without saying that such business involves an immense amount of detail. Which is where the peculiar and exceptional talent of Miss Hanna comes into play. She takes all that part of the work off Mr. Adee's hands. To him she is like a card catalogue to a librarian—and quite a bit more in addition.

Not until the present generation, strange to say, was it discovered that women are the great systematizers of detail. Even the cleverest men are not in the same class with them at that sort of thing. Hence the fact that nowadays many captains of industry prefer to employ as their confidential secretaries women who, with special capability in this line, know how to relieve them of all bother about the petty machinery of their office business. Thus they are at liberty to devote their entire attention to affairs of major importance.

Such is the function which Miss Hanna performs for the second assistant secretary of state. Incidentally to her duties she helps to prepare many state papers that are in the last degree confidential in character. She is the custodian of many an important secret affecting the welfare of the country; but, from her

THE "SMALL BOY" IN ITALY

Rome, August 8.—The small boy is rapidly becoming one of the most prized labor assets in Italy. There is a small boy famine in all business offices, and the wages of the boy from 12 to 15 years have increased from board and lodging and two to three dollars a month to fifteen to twenty dollars.

A Busy Woman Who Can Keep Secrets

THERE is only one woman in the United States who has knowledge of international events before they happen. Her name is Margaret M. Hanna; she is young and pretty, and she is employed in the department of state at Washington.

Generally speaking, the department of state—its employees prefer to call it the foreign office—does not care to utilize the services of persons of the gentler sex in executive or confidential capacities. Barely half a dozen women are on its payroll in Washington; and though quite a number are employed in U. S. legations and embassies at foreign capitals their duties are purely clerical.

It is different with Miss Hanna. She is the confidential secretary and assistant of the second assistant secretary of state, Alvey A. Adee, who is the only permanent official of high rank in the department. He is permanent simply for the reason that the government could not afford to dispense with his services as adviser and guide in all matters bearing upon our relations with foreign powers.

No matter who may be the executive head of the department, and regardless of whether the administration is Democratic or Republican, the course of the foreign office is point of view, this is merely a part of the day's work. She forgets the secret automatically when she leaves the office and goes home.

It has often been said that a woman cannot keep a secret. Perhaps most women cannot. Holding that belief, wrongly or rightly, the department of state prefers not to employ them—as already stated—in confidential capacities. Too much is often at stake to make the taking of any risks advisable. But the rule is broken in Miss Hanna's case. She knows how to keep a secret, and the government of the United States is willing to bank on her reliability in this regard.
