The genuine Yankee spirit has been awakened. Keen desires for presenting views have been kindled and many staid old men who vowed in '96 to never again manifest interest in a political campaign, have broken their re-solves and have not only stood and argued themselves hoarse, but also broken into print with effusions endorsing their party principles and condemn-ing the opposition, with words of praise for their favorites and disparagement for the other candidates.

One feature was noticeable in the campaign of '96 that is now apparent even in the Klondike, and that is the fact that old line party men, Republi-cans and Democrats, entertain for each other a much more respectful feeling than they did before there was such a thing as fusion. / That politics make strange bed-fellows was never more fully verified than in '96, when men who had opposed each other politically all their lives got in side by side and whooped up the same "scrambled egg" combination. That was when old line Republicans and rock-ribbed Democrats who took no stock in fusion began to entertain profound respect the one for porter who came in response to the cries of Susie Vernon. Yet such may the case.

A number of saloonkeeepers were in court charged with supplying whisky to a man who was interdicted a few weeks ago for a period of one year, but who has since been drunk on various occasions. As the man to whom the oil of joy had been supplid was not "fitten" to appear in court, hearing of the cases the cases of the period of the perio ran screaming to the back porch and summoned the porter. It; therefore, becomes apparent that if there had been a fourth party present when the shooting occurred he would have had little difficulty in leaving the house by the usual front entrance mither than the house by the usual front entrance mither than the house by the usual front entrance mither than the house by the house of the house by the house usual front entrance without exciting remark, especially if that person hap-pened to be one accustomed to frequent-warrant such an assumption, that the fourth party was well enough known to all the parties present to warrant his not only being there, but that the reason for his being there might be explained by his possible intimacy with one or more of the other three persons.

Another step in this theory is taken when it is assumed, and the facts of the case already known are ample to side after dark, such merchants have only themselves to blame when their property thus left out is stolen.

It was stated by Constable Piper when the prediminary hearing.

he produced at the preliminary hearing of Slorah the packet of letters taken from the effects of the dead woman, that ten of them were addresed to her by James Slorah and the eleventh one came from a Dawson man. It was not, and has not yet been stated who the Dawson man was who was sufficiently interested in Pearl Mitchell to write to her, but it is a fact beyond dispute that the letter writer is of sufficient prominence here to make his connec-tion with the parties concerned, a matter which must of necessity res more or less of a sensation. This fact is not alone due to his having written the letter but also to the fact that he has since visited the room where the shooting occurred, and was there in company with the witness who is now in custody at the barracks.

there was no one else in the room at the time of the shooting, then she at Hammell's, Grand Forks.

must have had some powerful motive in withholding the name of the fourth person. That motive, supposing that the theory advanced is a correct one, would be easily supplied by the student of human nature. She may have told the truth, and the foregoing theory may also be wrong, but if it is there are other matters connected with the affair for which it is hard to give a satisfactory solution.

affair for which it is hard to give a satisfactory solution.

If, according to the theory advanced of a fourth party, it is admitted that that party was a man, and that he took a hand in the affair when the shooting began, the marks upon Slorah's head might be accounted for, otherwise than by supposing that he put them there himself in his desperate attempts to take his own life, which, according to that line of argument were so desperate that he missed his own head when he fired at it so widly that he did not even burn himself with the powder, and then beat himself upon the head so severely with a revolver of light calibre as to produce unconsciousness; the waiter from the restaurant downstairs even testifying that when he entered the room he believed Slorah to be dead.

The whole affair is so much more crowded with unexplained incidents than at first seemed possible, and some of the facts not yet published are of such a nature that they promise to create much more of a sensation, than AND WHY HAS HE VISITED did the tragedy in the first instance

The Yukon council is also waiting. councilmen to take their seats and an active part in steering the ship of state, but rather tarrying in behalf of the dissatisfied ones who have said nay to the proposition of taxation under the present system of assessment.

"I am willing," said the commissioner this morning, "to take all the blame of the matter if the 'turn over' system is wrong, or works any hardship on any one, because the scheme is wholly mine.

"Mr. Wilson, of the A. C. Co., has told us that while he did not doubt that we had the brains necessary, but that we were not business men. He did not think the 'turn over' scheme was a fair one, and I told him to get his adherents in that belief together and devise something better. He thought Donald objects to this on one hand that an assessment based upon the capital invested would be a fair proposition, but anyone can see, if he is unprejudiced, that such a basis of assessment would be unfair, as, for instance, a company like the A. C., if assessed in the fall of the year, at the close of navigation would be paying taxes on, should.

"That would make the assessment unjust in either case.

"Mr. Wade has suggested that assesspay a great deal more under the scheme proposed by Mr. Wade? Look at the areas occupied by their stores and warehouses, and see if you don't think their taxes would come considerably higher if they were assessed under that kind of a scheme.

If it is to be changed for some other system then we will have to decide upon what it is to be. In the meantime we are doing nothing but "One thing is sure, that the taxpayers are better off under the present system than they would be under other forms of government imaginable, and if they are disposed to complain at fair measures adopted by the council, there is always open to them the remedy. Let them incorporate and relieve the council from the duties which are not performed to their liking."

Mr. Girouard also said that the council was busy waiting.

draped. The alarm was turned in by a patrolman from the Fairview hotel at 10:45, and the message he sent over the telephone wire was that there was a fire right back of the Fairview. The department responded and of course went to the corner of First street and Second avenue, where the patrolinan who turned in the alarm should have been to show the fire fighters their work. Instead of this there was no one there who seemed capable of giving any information excepting to say, "It's out."

Naturally the fire department wanted some further particulars, and by dint of much questioning finally learned that the blaze had been on a vacant lot over on Third avenue nearly opposite the Chicago hotel, where a small tent had been burned. H nce the profanity and the agitation now on in the fire department for a fire alarm system.

It is said that about ten boxes would cover the needs of the city, and that Creeks Are to be Given Immedithey could be placed in position at a cost of about $2000. The boys in the fire halls argue that the present system is apt at any time to result in the loss of time which will cost some one many times the price of the proper appliances for a good fire alarm system.

About Maps.

"Did you ever notice," asked a gentleman in a down-town office yesterday, 'the difference betweeen maps?'' "As to how?" asked the one addressed. "Well, now here is a map which is perfectly flat. That is, it does not represent in any way the earth's rotundity, and here is another which shows the hemispheres and represents them as being round. Do you see any particular difference between them?" The class in geography thus questioned replied that there seemed to be a difference in the size of the maps; the coloring was different, and they bore the names of different makers. Also one of them had a stick at the top and bottom to prevent rolling.

"I don't mean that," said the man who had given out the conundrum in the first place. "Now, I'll show you what I see you have not noticed. On the flat map you will notice that Greenland is drawn about three times the ize of all of South America, and British Columiba is larger than its neighbor, which in reality we know to be just the reverse. I've puzzled over that thing till I thought I was going to have the smallpox by the way my head ached, and now see how simple it is. The flat map does not represent the convergence of the lines of longitude, and as these smaller countries have to be placed in their proper relationship to those lines, of course they are out of proportion. In other words the longitudinal lines are as far apart at the northern extremity of Greenland as they are at the equator.

"I'm a very busy man; still I can't A communication was submitted from help noting these things, and they bother me."

The Yukon has been promised repre entation in parliament as soon as the next census is completed. It is anticinated that this will be done in the early spring and the election will take place sometime between March and fune. When two members, or more if we are entitled to them, are chosen to go down to Ottawa from the Yukon, we shall have attained the most important concession yet asked from the federal government.

Further likelihood of unjust legislation for this country will then be removed, for it is not to be expected that parliament will pass any measure respecting the Yukon in the face of united opposition from a regularly consituted Yukon delegation. With the continued growth and expansion of our material interests, the necessity of establishing a jealous guardianhsip over our affairs becomes more and more apparent. The idea that the Yukon is a country for a day only has long since canished. It has been demonstrated beyond the peradventure of a doubt and in the fact of the most trying circomstances that ever confronted and disheartened a new country, that the pinal elements requisite to stability and permanence are present in the Yuton in abundance. We have the natural esources and we have the right kind men to develop them. What we reuire is legislation of such a broad and iberal nature that the work of opening up this country in the manner which its extent and richness warrants may be accomplished, without the handicap of unwise and restrictive laws.

There are other interests aside from our mines which will require attention. The matter of shipping is most important. We want navigation on the river relieved of its present difficulties and dangers. We want the matter of freight rates examined into. We vant better and more equitable arrangemen at Ottawa charged with the reour people, we may say that the "new

WHERE THE DOUBT LIES.

There are probably more American oters in a quandry as to their political tatus at the present time than ever was the case before in the history of the great republic.

The lines on which the present campaign is being fought have brought up such a conflict of issues as to leave hany men who swear by old party traditions, almost entirely at sea.

Old line Republicans who have been "the thick of the fight for that party erer since its organization at the time wood is being of the civil war have revolted from h C. D. Co.'s President McKinley's expansion policy and are supporting Bryan, though in almost every instance they protect themselves behind the saving clause that they are choosing the less of two evils. On the other hand, staunch old Democrats who stuck by that party for years in its times of adversity are withdrawing their support from Bryan on account of that gentleman's well-known convictions on the financial question and are swallowing McKinley, protectwe tariff and all, frightened out of their wits from fear that the 16 to 1 pparition may after all become a stern

THE THROUGH WIRE.

The prediction made by the Nugget some weeks ago that the through telegraph line to Vancouver would not be placed in practical operation during the present winter has proven true. Superintendent Charleson has announced, as was published in our telegraph reports of yesterday that work should not be kept at home. has been stopped with sixty-five miles of line uncompleted and nothing farther will be done in the matter of extending the line until spring. There is, however, no fault to be attached to Mr. Charleson or the manner in which he has performed his work. The task allotted to him was one of herculean proportions and the length of time he had within which to complete it was extremely short. A considerable portion of the country traversed by the fine is extremely rugged and difficult to travel through, more particularly in Editor Daily Nugget: the winter season. It is, therefore, a

Why He Is for McKinley.

I have thus far watched in silence and for me it has a large amount of interest; but I have yet to see the first and the Republican party that is even ism in the Republican ranks, while "For Light and Truth" in your issue of yesterday is so eminently Populistic stalking hand in hand with starvation and pestilence all over the United States, when the writer, "For Light and Truth," knows very well, if he held such high sway all over the land o'er which waves the Stars and Stripes as during the past four years; and when

As for McKinley he will get my vote, not because he is McKinley, but for flicted upon me, not by friends of the government, consequently not by Reernment, consequently by Democrats. This is only one of many just as good and just as strong reasons why I am for McKinley first, last and all the time. "Say!" said an old time Dawson theater-goer to the Stroller one day this week. "Do you believe in growth and advancement?"

On being assured that "Onward and upward" had been a motto which he had admired all his life but had never followed, the other man said:

"Well, then, with your idea of progression, don't you think Prof. Parke's pigs should grow more rapidly than they do? I have been meeting these same pigs off and on for two years and they have not grown an ounce in that time. Prof. Parke's feature is always the best of all the entertainments, but in my opinion he ought to change his brand of pigs. We have had Poland Chinas long enough! Give us some Berkshires or Jersey reds.''

President McKinley should not vaunt himself on the incense which Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, of Kansas, is now offering up at his shrine. All the eulogies which Mary Ellen may bestow on him cannot surpass the panegyrics which she lavished on Mr. Bryan four she then said about him. Mary Ellen is dreadfully and deplorably fickle.

There is a man in Kansas named Mr. actly as the story books say the Indians sympathy from the American people as were the Chinese legations when they were in hourly danger of being "hot potted," as Rider Haggard denominates

A mean, low and contemptible suggestion came to the Stroller yesterday concerning the matter of votes in the Nugget's presidential contest. The suggestion was this: "If you want to up a boom for Bryan, arrange to vote the employes of the regal wood-pile." It is a good thing for the man who made the above suggestion that he is in the Klondike instead of Coffee county, Georgia. He said the men on the woodpile would support Bryan for the reason that they do not believe in imperialism.

Dark Brown Men With Mottled Hair and Huge Spears Who Never Spare Victims.

Schooners and ships have disappeared in late years after leaving Sandy point, in the strait, and after having been at anchor farther along under the hills, and partly burned hulks have been reported to indicate how they have met their fate. Even big steamships have narrowly escaped similar fortune, for burning brands have been thrown into portholes while the crews were asleep and when the men have rushed to fight the flames on another part of the ship wild men of the woods have appeared and attacked them from behind and, besides loss of property, left death and wounds as a remembrance.

It is the Fuegan Indians who are redoorway to the east pending the con-struction of a Nicaragua canal. In the bleak mountains and valleys of Tierra del Fuego and on the islands that stretch along the west, cut up by scores of channels, they have lived as far back as the memory of the mariner extends.

It was not so many years ago that they were still unacquainted with the white men and that the white men were inacquainted with them. In the olden times mariners would now and then see a canoe hurrying across some channel or catch a glimpse of a moving light on the waters at night, or an arrow would come aboard a small craft as a States officers in detaining him until sign of hostility.

It is in the crudest of crafts that these pirates of the end of the nineteenth century ply their trade. Logs burned out in the fashion known to the Indian, ether he lives in Alaska or holds the last of land on the point of Cape Horn, bear the Fuegans through the water. They are ugly craft, but their crews can shoot them through the water and turn and twist with them as though they were made of lightest bark. In them can be borne five and ten warriors at a time, men clad in the scantiest of clothing, bare to the waist and showing muscular strength won from the struggle with nature for generation after generation in the forbidding hills of their native land.

Letter Was Too Late.

If a letter which arrived at the Nome postoffice a few days ago from Nulato had reached P. R. McGuire and A. Pennycuick, the Canadian Mounted Police detectives, who left for Seattle by the Kimball last week, one of the Clayson murderers would probably have been landed ere this.

When the Seattle No. 2 from St. Michael arrived at Nulato on Auugst 20 contents were made known to Mr. Bush, who arrived in Nome a day or two ago, and read the account of the an injunction to be served on the water week's Gold Digger.

Knowing that the injunction had been served, Mr. McConnell waxed very wroth on seeing his bed in flames, proved to be owing to the fact of an employee of the water company not being informed of the existence of the order. Since that time the stove in the house has been as cold as a Demo-crat's enthusiasm at a Prohibition meeting.

The injunction was argued yesterday afternoon before Judge Craig, Attorneys Wade & Aikman for McConnell, and labor & Hulme for the water company. The judge had not announced his decision this afternoon.

Wrecked Scows.

Where is the Emma Nott. Has she gone upon a lee shore somewhere between here and Ogilvie and cast her crew upon the uncertain mercies of their wheels? That would be a fate terrible to contemplate. A more cheerful way of looking at the matter would be to suppose that she is engaged in helping derelict scows off bars and out of ice locked blind sloughs. At all events, she passed Ogilvie long enough since to have been here before this, if not delayed.

A story comes from the vicinity of Five Fingers to the effect that a scow, navigated by a sour dough, and loaded with a job lot of automobiles, is hopelessly standed upon a bar there.

Impure Water.

It is reported that a number of purveyors of water in Dawson procure their supply from the eddy immediately in front of the city and that they are disposing of the same to private individuals for domestic purposes and claiming to procure it from the Klon-dike river. If this report is true, and a gentleman who came to the Nugget office this morning says he can prove that it is, the guilty parties should be brought up with a round turn, for the water in the eddy can be nothing else than the essence of filth, and its use will assuredly result in sickness and possibly death.

The party who registered the com-plaint at the Nugget office named a number of restaurants, mostly on Second avenue, which he said are using water from the eddy. This is a field for the operation of the health officer, and in the meantime each water consumer will do well to interrogate his carrier

SISTER'S SCHOOL A SUCCESS

Many Children Forced to Remain in Kindergarten Department Who Should Be Advanced.

Although the public school has been open but a short time and has twice been enlarged since its opening day, it is again over-crowded. The present attendance is too great for the rooms and the teachers employed, and besides this there are many children not in school who would be if there were room for them. Principal Miss McCrae has had much to contend with since she became principal of the school, because, to apply an apt phrase, the pupils, coming as they do from widely lifferent parts, and representing the different systems of schools from pretty much all over the world, form a con-glomerate mass, from which it naturally takes time to bring order and intelligent classification This has been done, however, and today the shed room presents a most orderly and business-like appearance.

Miss McCrae is proud of her school, and it can easily be seen that her heart is in the work. She has, she savs, no difficulty in keeping order, and has reason to be proud of the advancement made by the school under her direction

In the room under her immediate supervision there are 45 pupils, and the daily rolls show an average attendance of 38. The principal explains this high average by saying that owing to the very crowded condition of the school all the names of pupils to actually attending have been stricken from the roll.

There are four grades, from fom to eight, in this room, and one high school pupil. The youngest child in the room is II years of age, and the oldest 19. No two pupils in the school ply content myself with replying that have ever attended the same school I have nice eggs."—Ex. previous to coming here, but from the opened, and the orderly and quiet con duct of the children seen in the school room this morning it seems that the council made no mistake when it appointed Miss McCrae principal Down stairs in the primary department, Miss Keys also proves hersell a very efficient and able teacher. attendance there is also high, and the room equally crowded. There are pupils enrolled, and the average attend ance for the month is 43. The ages of the children range from 7 to 11. Miss Keys has only been teaching the room about two weeks, but is wel established and has the work thorough ly in hand. She, like her principal i well pleased with the behavior of her charges, and proud of the advancement they are making.

In the kindergarten school which is kept in a room at the rear of the Methodist church, there are 30 younger children, some of whom, however, old enough and far coough advanced to he out of that department and in the primary, but unfortunately there is " room for them there, and for the pres ent at least they must remain where

This must continue to be the case the such time as the council can see it way to employing another teacher and furnishing another schoolroom.

The kindergarten presents a pleasal picture. The 30 bright young face all showing interest and pleasure the work; the teacher, Miss Edwards equally enthusiastic, and the gerea neat appearance of the well-lighted and cosy room, go to make a pictus very agreeable.

The little schoolroom at the Policy

From Thursday and Friday's Daily.

"She'll be hard to tether, Kitty will. mult be like lassoing a butterfly, an I low as the man as can do it ain't appeared in camp yit," said Joe Bartlett meditatively. "As for me, I ain't got the show of a chance. How in thunder can I expect a dainty little girl like Kitty to care for a rough, ignorant feller like me?'

He took the pipe from his mouth and, knocking the ashes from it, filled it carefully, but it was evident that his mind was not upon his task.

"Can't even speak grammar as I'd ort to," he, muttered with disgust." But they ain't nothing I wouldn't do for Kitty-Lord love her-even to studying a grammar book."

Joe was modest. He had no self es teem whatever and undervalued his merits. That so remarkable a creature as Kitty should ever love him was to be considered only in the light of an impossibility. If his love became hopein, he revited himself and blushed at his temerity.

Yet Joe was foreman of the new mine at Clear Creek camp and the most important man in the place.

"No, the man ain't arrived yit," ontinued Joe, "an , when he does"he turned a little pale-"when he does God help Joe Bartlett!"

That evening, as was his habit, Joe was at Amos Carter's cabin. There were two reasons why he liked to spend an evening with Carter-he enjoyed swapping yarns with him over their pipes and Kitty happened to be Carter's daughter. Kitty never suspected his love. Joe knew that she did not return it, and he was not a man to wear his heart on his sleeve. If any one had asked her about her opinion of Joe, she would have confessed frankly that she was almost as fond of him as of her

In the midst of a story of the plains which he was telling for the twentieth time there was a loud rap on the door. Carter went to open it. A stranger stood on the threshold, a tall, slender, well made young fellow, wearing the garb of the city bred man.

"Is this Mr. Carter's place?" he

"That's my name, young feller.

Will you come in?" "I was told," said the newcomer as complied with the invitation, "that

Joe came forward and offered his toil hardened hand to the stranger.

I should find Mr. Bartlett here."

"You are Mr. Ames, the superintendents' son, I guess. He wrote me you were coming up for a spell, but I didn't low we'd see you till the next stage. I am glad to see you, sir," he said heartily.

A certain indifference or indolence which seemed habitual vanished from the young man's face and manner. He held out his hand frankly.

"Thank you. I have come to rusti cate. I have a bad reputation at home. It arises from a slight difference beween the governor and myself. I am onscentiously opposed to work." He wared his shoulders and laughed. "I im supposed to take father's place here, but I have perfect confidence in you, Bartlett, and I shall take it as a favor if you will forget to remind me of the responsibilities of the situation." Again his boyish laugh rang out, and the others laughed in sympathy.

He was unmistakably a good deal of a dandy. His linen was as immaculate as it would have been in the city, and the hand from which a diamond flashed was as white and shapely as a woman's.

"We must be good friends, Bartlett," he continued, "for I want you to let me down easy on the labor problem. Dad wants to make life a treadmill for them from the first night of his arrival. Kitty's ways were maddening. If her willful heart favored any one, even her handsome city lover, she discreetly kept the knowledge to herself.

Joe Bartlett had just left the office and was on his way to the mine. Looking up, he saw Kitty's flying figure speeding toward him. He knew at once that something was wrong. She was breathless, her lips were blanched and her eyes wild with terror.

"Kitty, what is it? Anything wrong at the mines?" he asked anxiously. She caught his arm to steady herself. 'There's been a slide!" she gasped, 'and Clay"-

A sob choked her voice, and the agony in her face went to Joe's heart like a knife stab. His face whitened. "Is Clay anything to you, Kitty?" he asked huskily.

"Everything-all the world to me," moaned Kitty. "My heart will break if he dies!"

Joe unclasped her trembling fingers from his arm.

"Please heaven we won't let him die, dear," he said gently, and a moment later he was gone.

When he gets those postals there need throat. The officer not having a weapon be no further difficulty about the mat-avordupois back and forth between Daw | lowed. avordupois back and forth between Daw son and No. 43, but his faith in the people of the Yukon territory to give Wm. McKinley the Klondike souvenir as a result of the Nugget election is also stong, and thereby hangs a tale, other than the one worn by the mule. Connected prominently with the facts of the story are two well known citizeus, Tom Kirkpatrick and Jack Emerson.

Mr. Kirkpatrick is just as sanguine of success for the Bryan cause as is of from Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Thompson for that of McKinley.

Besides it is whispered that Mr. Kirkpatrick is jealous of his friend's possesreached Dawson. Inquired for by J.

patrick is jealous of his friend's possession of an animal which is warranted to go to sleep and remain wrapped in peaceful slumber so long as he is left tied to an electric light pole.

However that may be, a wager has been made between them, the conditions of which are as follows: Mr. Kirkpatrick puts up $1000 in good money against Mr. Thompson's sleeping mule, and if Wm. Jennings Bryan is elected he gets the mule, together with its lately acquired name. If Wm. McKinley gets the most votes, Mr. Thompson gets the $1000.

The part that Jack Emerson plays, or may play in the coming transfer, and for which Frank Clayton is authority for the statement that he is daily retearsing, is this: If Thompson wins he gets nothing aside from the pleasure which that gentleman may reflect upon him, and it he loses the mule, the agreement is that he is to haut the sleigh back to No 43 Bonanza.

Mr. Thompson, of course, feels confident that he will get the Kirkpatrick wealth, but he is a man of foresight and prudent methods, and would not consent to the wager till Jack Emerson was induced to agree to his part of the possible program in case the mule instead of the money changes hands.
