Uncontrollable" cried Messerschill.

"It is the number of the fierce train increase."

"How are the men clothed?" pursued Messerschill.

"Not all. The men are clothed in rag."

"Why do not their gallant countrymen help to?" asked the prince.

"They do not know, Regent is absent."

"Good heavens, what a pity! What is the state of their health, for I have heard that many are dying?"

"From since to one hundred per cent among the British, and among the Turks over one hundred."

"Had not they been together. They are too obstinate to yield. English obstinacy is proverbial."

"They let their countrymen believe that to be controllable, and enjoying all the necessities of life, it is not to be feared."

"It is the British who are to be feared. They will not even leave their summer clothing and come to the front."

Messerschill turned triumphantly to the prince.

THE 18TH OF JULY.

This Orange Holiday was celebrated by the brethren of the County of Huron, on Friday last, with considerable eclat.

The Orange men assembled in town, together with friends in the shape of pretty girls, lads, and 'old folks,' was the largest we have ever seen on any similar occasion.

The following list of names were fully represented on the occasion:

- No. 24 Wm W Connor, W. M. 143 Richd Touchbourne, " 153 John Cox, " 182 John Fowler, " 189 James Russell, " 304 David Cook, " 308 Wm Wilson, " 317 Wm Black, " 324 John Wilson, " 241 Wm Darwin, " 323 Robt Johnston, " 499 Joseph Alton, " 513 George Armstrong, " 526 Robt Bracon, " 710 Arnold B King, " 813 Francis Campbell, " 822 Wm Elliott, " 1025 Thos Simpson, " 1052 John Pentland, " 932 Thos Lintner, " Total—20 Lodges.

County Officers present W W Connor, County Master; Chas Ryan, Deputy do; Thos Cooper, Secretary; John Joslin, Treasurer; Wm Sheppard, Director of Ceremonies.

There was some little marching and counter-marching during the forenoon, but the principal gathering was after dinner, when the procession was formed by the mounted marshals in the usual order.

When the word was given to march, the fluttering banners, scarlet jackets, and the music furnished by the B. F. Band and fifty-two drums and twenty-one fifes, made up an aggregate of sights and sounds not to be forgotten.

After parading the principal streets, the processionists and spectators entered Horse's grounds to listen to the speeches.

W. W. Connor, Esq., County Master, being called upon said he was happy to see such a great crowd of Orangemen—men whose hearts were in the right place.

They had met to celebrate the battle of the Boyne, and he hoped it would be done in the proper spirit.

The memory of the great and good King William was fresh in their hearts, and he trusted it would continue so long as time should last.

After that day they could say that the Orangemen were not merely a majority of the County of Huron, and he hoped that, when called upon, they would always be prepared to do their duty—namely to uphold the 12th of July, but whenever loyalty called them. (Hear, hear.) He wished to tell them that a Protestant who was not an Orangeman was no Protestant at all. They should not be taken back by snakes who tried to sow discord among them, or be led astray. Let them rather keep in view the object which, on their naked knees, they had sworn to maintain. If they stood loyal, true and united they might defy any one who opposed them. There were loyal men in the country who were not Orangemen, but let no one come forward and say they were as good as Orangemen.

[Cheers.] Why did they not come forward and speak in the chain. In the name of having 1800 Orangemen in Huron, they would have two so many Orangemen present; if it were not for them they would not have so many Orangemen, and he would advise the young men to select sides who would not be against their going out to their lodges. [Cheers.]

Rev Mr. Walker, of Lucknow, then delivered a moral address, which he reviewed the moral aspect of Orangeism, alluding to the great victory gained by King William and his followers over tyranny and oppression. The system was perpetuated in order to keep alive in the minds of their children the heroic deeds of their forefathers in the cause of religion and truth, and if the Roman Catholics objected to it as stirring up the smoldering ashes of past bitterness, they would object all the same to anything that was Protestant. They should, however, rather say "To hell with the Pope," pray that the Lord might save him and all Catholics. (Laughter.) He closed by giving the Orangemen and their adherents some strong advice against the sins of drunkenness and swearing, and retired amidst loud cheering.

A Lefroy Esq, was the next speaker. He said it was not the first time he had addressed the Orangemen of Huron and he hoped it would not be the last. He understood they were going to have some of the great guns to address them—among them some of the candidates for Parliamentary honors. (Mr. Hays) had his speech out and dry, but thought better of it, but he was left alone. He might be told he was not to say anything of politics, but in the qualifications for Orangemen he found they should be zealous in promoting the prosperity of their Queen and country. They stood before him in a two-fold capacity—as Orangemen and as British subjects. He did not want to send for their special loyalty, others should have credit for their loyalty to God. He had been gratified in which an old friend of his—Judge Keough—a Roman Catholic referred to the election of the P. C. of the Boyne, saying it should be as dear to the Catholics of Ireland as to the Orangemen on account of the liberties and privileges it secured to all classes of the people. He then went on to speak of Confederation, picking into Gore Down as a dangerous man, and advising the Orangemen, and Catholics to do so, and made matters right to vote for—Well, he did not say Ritchie and Carling, but he gave as broad hints. They, however, he could not see, Mr. Lefroy left glory and immortal memory to the other speaker, and did the political part of the business in a quiet style.

A few humorous remarks from Mr. Joseph Williamson closed the speaking.

Chairs were given for the Queen, the Grand Master, County Master, &c., after which the brethren reformed and marched back to the square, where after receiving cheering, they dispersed quietly, each lodge taking its departure in good order.

Considering the large crowd, it is only fair to say that the Orangemen, on this occasion, behaved themselves with the utmost propriety and decorum. There was hardly a drunken man to be seen on the street during the day or evening.

In another column will be found the address of Mr. Edward Blake, candidate for the House of Assembly for Ontario, in South Bruce.

It will be observed that Mr. B. comes out pointedly on leading questions of the day, and there will, no doubt, be a wonderful shaking of the dry bones of that section, in consequence. His opponents are Mr. James Broodbank and Mr. Wm Hall.

From private sources we learn that Mr. Blake's canvass is being prosecuted with a vigor and success which is astonishing the non-party folk to the last degree. Having no immediate opposition in the field, they considered everything settled, but the acceptance by Mr. Blake of the nomination of the Reform Convention, within the past few days, has fallen like a bomb-shell in their camp, and they have taken up just in time to see that he is being taken hold of by some of the best and most influential names in the Riding. To our opinion Mr. Blake's chances of success are not rated, and from the manner in which the contest has begun we feel warranted in predicting for him a triumphant return.

Mr. Ritchie's Taxes.

Some time ago we asserted that Mr. Ritchie, although such a wealthy man, did not pay his proper proportion of taxes, whereupon his organ denied that such was the case, and indignantly demanded proof. Knowing that a case was to be tried out of the last municipal election in Stanley, which would set the matter at rest, we waited patiently until it should be decided.

That case has been decided, and the result is that what we asserted has been proven to the letter. After hearing the evidence on the point, in the Court House, on Friday last, His Honor the County Judge decided that the Assessment Roll of Stanley should be amended by raising Mr. Ritchie's assessment on Income for 1867, from $400 to $925.00. We will leave the intelligent reader to judge what the discrepancy may have been when his income was the Clerk's Court was much greater than at present. And this is the man who has no monetary wants.

The editor of the Signal flatters himself that he is at present, the best abused man in the County of Huron. A newspaper has been started for the purpose of attacking and dragging him into notoriety. Irresponsible literary tyros and hacks, from the editor of said paper up to the most stupid of his correspondents, (we think the Scorcher follows best) have taken the signal, and the editor of the Signal flatters himself that he is at present, the best abused man in the County of Huron. We have the best reason to believe, what we know to be a fact, that "Citadel," who recently wrote a first rate article for the Signal, was never connected with the Goodrich Post Office, and is entirely independent of the Co. paper.

The gentleman so venuously attacked wields a pen which could easily probe the bottom of the puny editor of the "machine," and his whole tribe of correspondents, but he has not written a single line for this paper since the present content began.

It is not true that Mr. Cameron asked his Scotch friends to drink with him at Kintail. The invitation was to his friends generally. The writer sat within a yard of where he was standing at the time, and is just as positive on the point as any person can possibly be.

The precise period when the elections will come off is not known, it appears, "even to the immediate friends of the government."

SWORN LOYALTY.

Although this day for many years, and people have sought to express themselves freely on almost any subject, many of our readers will be considerably surprised at the statements made by Mr. Connor, the head of the Orangemen of Huron, on Friday last. The assertion that a man must be an Orangeman before he can be a good Protestant, or truly loyal, is a direct insult to a great majority of the people, and we believe that intelligent Orangemen will use such language. It is too late in the day for Mr. W. W. Connor to attempt to monopolize the good feelings of his Country, and he will find that what he intended for good to a certain case will rebound against it.

We have an outlook the toadyism of Mr. Anthony Lefroy, but we cannot quietly brook the implied charge of disloyalty uttered against so many of our fellow-eleotors. If what Mr. Connor states is true, the only candidate in the field in Huron who is really loyal is Dr. Sloan, who is an Orangeman, and who is running prudently on the reform ticket. It is a fact that a man must be sworn to it, before he can be looked upon as an upholder of the principles of Protestantism and as a loyalist? We think not, our Government does not think so, and we verily believe that a large number of Orangemen are of the same opinion. If trouble threatened our country to-morrow all classes would be called out in its defence, and there can be no doubt that the spirit of loyalty would be general.

The wheat crop of Illinois is expected to foot up to 112,000,000 bushels.

A very successful temperance meeting was held in the Victoria Hall (Monday) evening.

The hall was crowded with intelligent people. Rev. Chas. Fletcher, being called to the chair, introduced the Rev. Mr. Pool, who delivered one of the ablest and most vigorous lectures we have ever listened to.

We are sorry that the crowded state of our columns will not admit of an abbreviated report of his remarks at present. Several pieces of good music were given under the direction of Mr. James Thomson.

The Atlantic Telegraph brings us the news that a note has been addressed to the representatives of Russia at Washington, London and Paris, pressing the opinion that the affairs of Ireland demand the joint consideration of the four governments. The rumour is contradicted, as it well may be, for the traditional oppressor of Poland should be the last nation in the world to complain about the affairs of Ireland.

Mr. Editor.—Having attended 107 of three political meetings held by the members of the representatives of Russia in the coming election. I was particularly struck with the style of addresses used by the candidates for the local Legislature. I put off writing thinking some one of practice would give some light on the subject. But seeing none to suit my ideas, I must come out on my own rough way, you must excuse all blunders as I do not pretend to be a writer or a critic.

SHOWN IN BY MR HAYS UNDER THE WRECKED SHIP.

Mr Hays, in his speech on Friday last, was very strong in his denunciations of the Orangemen, and his attacks on the Orangemen were very severe. He said that a man must be an Orangeman before he can be a good Protestant, or truly loyal. This is a direct insult to a great majority of the people, and we believe that intelligent Orangemen will use such language.

What a wonder Mr. Hays got credit for even one piece of sagacity! In his speech on Friday last, he was very strong in his denunciations of the Orangemen, and his attacks on the Orangemen were very severe.

What a wonder Mr. Hays got credit for even one piece of sagacity! In his speech on Friday last, he was very strong in his denunciations of the Orangemen, and his attacks on the Orangemen were very severe.

He said that a man must be an Orangeman before he can be a good Protestant, or truly loyal. This is a direct insult to a great majority of the people, and we believe that intelligent Orangemen will use such language.
