THE PANAMA CANAL
This wonderful waterway cost $50,000,000 and involved a nine-mile cut through a mountain, the erection of six pairs of gigantic locks, and a dam 150 feet high and a mile long. The distance it saves—4,500 miles—will revolutionize commerce and place the United States first among the leading nations of the world. The Anheuser-Busch plant cost about one-seventh as much as this canal—one was built by a nation, the other by an institution.

TWO GREATEST IN HISTORY

Panama Canal and Budweiser

The supremacy of Budweiser has been built up by the natural and continued choice of the people. Its sales exceed those of any other beer by millions of bottles—proving its ever-increasing popularity.

Budweiser is brewed, aged and bottled in the largest and most perfect plant in the world, occupying 142 acres covered by no separate buildings. More than 7500 people are required to help Budweiser keep pace with the public demand.

The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER XIV.

Her hands shook, her eyes closed for a moment. When they opened she saw that Ralph had seen her. His hand had fallen to his side; he stood looking at her as if he had forgotten his men, the work in which, only a moment before, he had been engrossed, as if he could not take his eyes from her.

His hand went slowly up to his cap and he raised it. The blood surged in Veronica's heart, but would not come to her face, in which the terror of the peril still expressed itself. She did not return the salutation, but drove on, her eyes fixed before her.

As if he were recovering from a kind of spell, Ralph raised his brow again and returned to his work. Talbot had seen him, and he looked swiftly, keenly, from the stalwart, heroic figure to the white face.

"Well, Veronica?" he murmured. She started slightly, almost as if she had forgotten his presence.

"I am sorry," she said in a low voice, but a perfectly clear one. "I was thinking, trying— But I can't, I am sorry!"

His face darkened, and he looked at her with a mixture of surprise and malignant disappointment.

"You mean—surely you cannot mean that you refuse me?" he said trying to speak gently, but knowing that his voice rang cold and hard.

"Yes," she said, biting her lip. "I am very proud, very grateful. I wish— But it is impossible!"

"Impossible! Do you mean that you do not care for me? I can quite understand that you should not—presently, but—"

"No, no!" she broke in. "It is of no use. I should never— Oh, it is impossible—impossible! Please do not speak of it, or—think of it again!"

His face went as white as its sallowness would permit, and his thin lips came together as they did when he was hard pressed at the House—losing heavily at the silver hell in Soho.

"Perhaps I have been forestalled—perhaps there is someone else—" he said, with the suggestion of a sneer in his tone and on his lips.

She swung round on him, with an angry spot on each cheek, and her violet eyes flashing with maidenly wrath.

"How dare you—" then she checked herself and, with throbbing heart, forced herself to outward calmness.

"You have no right to ask me the question; but since you have, I will answer you. There—is not!"

"Forgive me!" he said in a low voice. "Make some allowance for my disappointment. I had no right— But I am glad to hear—"

He was silent for a moment or two, his eyes half hidden beneath the white lids, his thin lips writhing; then he said, coldly:

"I hope this will make no difference between us, Veronica? I mean that it is scarcely worth while to tell the earl, to alter our friendly relations."

She shrugged her shoulders. Her heart was beating with a sense of relief, of thanksgiving. Has not one the right to be thankful when one has been saved at the very brink of the precipice?

"I shall not tell the earl—or anyone," she said. "It need not break our—friendship. I will try to forget it; as you doubtless will do."

"No, I shall not forget," he said, in a low voice and with a forced sigh.

"Oh, I think you will," she retorted, forcing a smile. "How beautiful these dahlias are!"

They had entered the avenue by this time, and presently the ponies drew up at the steps. He helped her out, but Veronica took her hand from his arm and transferred it to Goodwin's.

"Thanks very much for the drive," she said; but her eyes were averted from him.

Talbot went up to the terrace and lit a cigarette; his face was set, his thin lips drawn. No man likes to be refused, even when his heart is not staked on his suit; but Talbot was playing for higher stakes than hearts. It had never occurred to him that Veronica would reject him.

Why, it seemed only the other day she had come, a penniless orphan, to take up the position of a dependant at the Court. It was true that her position was altered, but still—to refuse a coronet!

But wounded pride was not the emotion that predominated in his breast. Mr. Talbot Denby, the "coming man," the man to whom the eyes of the public were riveted, and of the public were turning with a certain expectancy, was in terrible straits, and stood on the brink of ruin.

Of late luck had gone against him, everything he had touched had gone wrong; he had gambled in stocks and shares as secretly as he had gambled in the silver hell of Soho, and his speculations on the Stock Exchange had turned out as badly as his plunging at the roulette table. He had gone to the Jews and raised money on his life interest in the Lynne estates. A large portion of the two thousand pounds the earl had given him on his last visit had been swallowed up in paying the usual exorbitant interest. A speedy marriage with Veronica would have tided him over, renewed his credit with the Jews, saved him. And now—she had refused him!

His hand trembled so that the cigarette fell from the limp fingers. He set his foot upon it—it might have been Veronica, so malignant was the expression of his face, so bitter the oath that escaped him—and, as if he could not remain in one place, he aimlessly walked down the steps and along the path through the shrubbery.

He reached the lodge, as mechanically passed through the massive

WOMAN WANTS TO HELP OTHERS

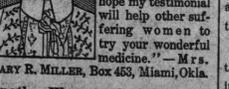

By Telling How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Miami, Okla.—"I had a female trouble and weakness that annoyed me continually. I tried doctors and all kinds of medicine for several years but was not cured, until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I hope my testimonial will help other suffering women to try your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. MARY R. MILLER, Box 463, Miami, Okla.

Another Woman who has Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lindsborg, Kansas.—"Some years ago I suffered with terrible pains in my side which I thought were inflammation, also with a bearing down pain, backache, and I was at times awfully nervous. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now enjoying good health. I will be glad to recommend your medicine to any woman suffering with female trouble and you may publish this letter."—Mrs. A. L. SHUTT, R. No. 3, Box 50, Lindsborg, Kansas.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

iron gates into the road, and was walking on, his head bent, his brows heavy with thought, when he was conscious of footsteps behind him. Instinctively he smoothed the lines from his face, raised his head and assumed a more cheerful air. Suddenly the steps behind him quickened, and he felt a touch on his shoulder.

He swung round, with difficulty repressing an exclamation, for his nerves were strained to the highest tension, and saw himself confronted by an evil-looking man, who regarded him with a leer, half defiant, half ingratiating.

The man had the appearance of a tramp, and Talbot Denby's hand went instinctively to his pocket, and he was surprised when the man said: "Mr. Talbot Denby, I believe?"

Talbot looked at the man with amazement. "I am Mr. Talbot Denby," he said, haughtily. "What do you want with me?"

"Ah! it's evident that you don't remember me, guv'nor," said the man, with a short laugh, that was not far removed from a snarl. "I've got better cause to remember you!"

He held up a bandaged hand as he spoke and almost shook it in Talbot's face. There had been something about the man which had struck Talbot, when he had turned on him, as familiar, but only vaguely so; for in the excitement of his vice your gambler has little room for any impression beyond that caused by the game. But now he remembered. It was the man whom he had detected in the attempt to rob him, the man with whom he had struggled in Isaac's den. Talbot's face grew a shade paler, but his eyes met the man's leering ones steadily enough.

"You are making a mistake, my man," he said, coldly. "I have never seen you before. Let me pass, please. I never give money to tramps and beggars."

Mr. James Oatway's face went an ugly red and his swollen lips rose from his yellow fangs.

"Oh, that's your game, is it?" he said, threateningly. "I'm making a mistake, my man, am I? It's likely, ain't it, seeing the good reason I have not to forget you?" He waved the bandaged hand again. "Oh, you're mighty clever, you are; and you play it very well! You forget that your hat fell off, that I saw you face to face, as you may say, that night as you dealt me that cruel blow as maimed me!"

Talbot smiled sardonically. "Oh, you are the man, are you?" he said, with a sneer. "Yes, you have cause to remember me, I admit. But the fact that you possess a good memory does not interest me. Stand aside and allow me to pass."

"One moment!" said Oatway, in a kind of mockery of Talbot's contemptuous drawl. "I want a few words with you, Mr. Talbot Denby."

"I am afraid your wish will not be gratified," said Talbot. "I have nothing whatever to say to you."

"Oh, but I have to you!" retorted the man, with an air of confidence that surprised Talbot.

"Thanks; but I don't care to hear you. Now, my good fellow, cease annoying me, or I shall be compelled to call the policeman I see approaching us, and give you in charge for begging."

Oatway stared and thrust his face close to Talbot, who shrunk away.

"Do it—do it!" he said. "Call him. Give me in charge. And I'll charge you before the magistrates with an assault on Isaac's place in Soho. See this hand!"

Talbot kept the sneer on his face though his soul was burning with the impatience which is born of impotence; for if the man carried out his threat—"Charge against Mr. Talbot Denby, the well-known member of Parliament. Great scandal!" In imagination he saw the score-lines in the newspapers.

"See here, my good fellow," he said, slowly, impassively. "Your ridiculous threat would do you no good, and would only cause me a few hours' annoyance. No one would take your word against mine; and—I have never seen you before to-day. You understand? Quick! Make up your mind; the policeman is nearly here!"

Oatway regarded him with suppressed fury, and swore a hideous oath.

Highlanders' "At Home."

The annual "At Home" of the Newfoundland Highlanders took place in the British Hall, last night, and was an unqualified success. Upwards of two hundred and fifty persons attended. Dancing commenced at nine o'clock in the ball room which presented a pretty scene. The handsome decorations and vari-colored brilliant illuminations that were in evidence at the Grand Ball on Wednesday night being left up for the occasion of last night. At midnight sumptuous teas were served to the gathering by the lady friends of the brigade. After ample justice had been done to the viands dancing was resumed and continued until 2.30 this morning when the gathering dispersed. The music discoursed by the C. L. B. Band was, as usual, exceptional and many of the selections were encored.

Itchy Nose And Running Eyes Cured In Five Minutes By "Catarrhazone"

Bronchial Distress and Bad Throat Relieved at Once.

Every day comes news of wonderful cures made by Catarrhazone. Cases are reported and personal testimony is given that proves beyond question the marvelous merit of Catarrhazone.

Bad colds and running eyes it stops in a few minutes.

Irritable throat and dry bronchial coughs are helped in a jiffy—always cured—if Catarrhazone is used as directed.

Chronic Catarrh in the nose and throat, the sort that keeps the breath rank and maintains a vile, sickening discharge—even that type of catarrh yields completely to the power of Catarrhazone.

Just think of it!

Not a drug to take, not an hour to wait for relief—you just simply inhale the pleasant, piney vapor of Catarrhazone and get well quickly.

"What Catarrhazone did for me in one week was simply a miracle," writes Malcolm R. McIntosh from Sydney. "I had a frightful attack of Catarrh. My ears buzzed and my head was full of noises. The end of my nose was red and itchy—on the inside it was sore and encrusted. I had vile dripping from my throat and was very sick. Relief came quick—so I kept up the treatment and was absolutely cured by 'Catarrhazone.'"

Nothing else will so effectively and quickly cure you as Catarrhazone. Get the $1.00 outfit; it always does the trick. Small size 50c; sample trial size at all dealers.

That Hateful Word "Must."

By RUTH CAMERON.

What passionate lovers of freedom in all its phases we queer creatures known as human beings are.

A little neighbor of mine is just of an age to take an interest in everything her mother does, and wants to "do it too."

The other day when she saw her mother dusting she begged for a duster of her own. Her mother, who is a practical Montessorist, at once supplied her with the duster, and the baby spent a happy half hour wiping off whatever came within her reach. The mother saw a great opportunity to kill three birds with one stone, that is to train the baby to be useful, to keep her amused, and to relieve herself of the burden of stooping to dust the lower part of the furniture. So she made up her mind that the baby should repeat that half hour every day or two.

"Yesterday" I asked her how her scheme was working out. "It isn't working at all," she answered. "It was all right as long as the baby thought she was playing, but when she realized it was something she had to do, she didn't want to do it any more." How instinctive that is with all human children, young and old. We resent compulsion! We long to be absolutely free. Trick us into thinking we are doing a thing for fun, that it is a privilege to do it, and we will delight in the hardest kind of work. Witness, for example, how Tom Sawyer, that clever character student, persuaded his boy friends to paint his fence for him, by making them think it was a privilege. Nay more, as you probably remember, he not only got his fence painted without an effort on his part, but he charged the boys for the privilege and they were glad to pay.

On the other hand, apparently easy and fascinating work becomes a hated task when one has to do it.

"Arizona is a beautiful place to live in," I read in a magazine. A doctor whom I met on his rounds near Flagstaff, writes Dr. Cabot in his new book. "Oh, yes," he answered, "if you don't have to live there."

A man will toil with tremendous energy at his avocation and think nothing would make him so happy as to go just that kind of work all the time. But let some "must" of opportunity's wheel make it his avocation, and lo, he finds that half the flavor is gone.

Perhaps I have explained this feeling wrongly in attributing it to our love of freedom. Perhaps it's simply one more phase of the eternal "a man doesn't run for a car after he gets it" attitude. What we can't have all we want, or be it work, love, pleasure, or anything else in the wide world, is always gilded with a wonderful lustre and this lustre invariably vanishes with full attainment.

"Must" this always be so? you ask. Well, perhaps it may change when the sun starts to revolve about the earth, or to be more poetic—

"When the years grow old
And the stars grow cold
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold."

VIENNA, To-day.

The funeral services of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife were held in the Chapel of the Hofburg. The aged Emperor and the new heir apparent occupied seats in the Oratorium, on the right side of the high altar, while the Ambassadors had places on the left. Twenty members of the corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms in gorgeous uniforms, stood at attention at the sides of the catafalque. The Archbishop of Vienna, assisted by two Bishops, officiated at the service which was very brief. Later in the evening the children of the Archduke and the Duchess accompanied by Countess Chotek, proceeded to the Chapel, and prayed by the side of the coffins of their parents. Their grief was heartrending.

PEKING, To-day.

Manchuria and eleven of the eighteen Provinces, forming the Chinese Empire, are declared to be free of opium. The British Government is satisfied this declaration is correct and has agreed according to previous arrangement that no Indian opium hereafter shall be permitted to enter these provinces. The Chinese Government sent instructions to the Governors of the remaining Provinces of the Republic to cut down the use of opium and prohibited the cultivation of the poppy before the end of the year.

The Genius of Parnell

(By H. W. Massingham, in the 'Nation,' London.)

Mrs. Parnell's memories of her husband do not add to the stature of the man. As Mr. Barry O'Brien drew him so he was. His relations with the lady who became his wife show indeed that his mind and soul were divided between two passions. He loved his country without allowing the world to look behind the mask of calculation which he habitually wore; it is now made clear that he loved a woman without wearing for himself and for her any mask at all. The relationship was hidden from the world by a thin deceit of code words, sham letters, and concealed arrangements. It had some humiliating incidents and some shameful ones. But it seemed to yield him unalloyed happiness up to and beyond the time when it drew him to his fall. Morality will condemn the tie itself and fine feeling revolt at this unflattering publication of its secrets; but it is fair to the dead man and the living woman to say that it partook of the character of a marriage. Parnell entered into a kind of open deception of his contemporaries, but he was no libertine. He was a solitary and morbid man of delicate health, and it is the suggestion of this book that but for Mrs. O'Shea's care of him he must have died in early life. He embarked on a strange domesticity, recorded on his side with a simple and commonplace tenderness. His love letters are the record of his almost complete inexpressiveness in matters of emotion. Not one man or woman in a thousand, reading them in ignorance of Parnell's name and career, would guess that they were other than the trivial record of a middle-class Englishman's devotion to his wife, companion, and housekeeper. This was the character he took over for himself without an intellectual doubt or an accusing pang of conscience. When the truth was revealed, he claimed the right to defy the 'hypocrites' of politicians who had long been aware of it, and to set at naught the judgment of a 'law-worshipping' people, whom it in no way concerned. His mind took a still bolder flight, and he ranged himself unhesitatingly with the race of Titans who defy the laws of the Gods because they have chosen to be a law to themselves.

I have given (he said to his wife on the eve of the divorce), and will give Ireland what is in me to give. That I have vowed to her, but my private life shall never belong to any country, but to one woman. There will be a howl, but it will be the howling of hypocrites; not altogether, for some of these Irish fools are genuine in their belief that forms and creeds can govern life and men; perhaps they are right so far as they can experience life. But I am not as they, for they are among the world's children. I am a man, and I have told these children what they want, and they clamor for it. If they will let me, I will get it for them. But if they turn from me, my queen, it matters not at all in the end. What the ultimate government of Ireland will be is settled, and it will be so, and what my share in the work has been and is to be, also. I do wish you would stop fretting about me. We know nothing of how or why, but only that we love one another, and that through all the ages is the one fact that cannot be forgotten nor put aside by us.

If these words are written as they were spoken, they reveal the excessive pride which, if it seemed to be Parnell's strength, was in the end his downfall. By that sin fell the angels; and when Parnell could bring himself to say that there are no men in politics, 'only weapons,' he spoke one of those half-truths which sap the spiritual ascendancy of leaders. His greater successes were reaped when, with all his extraordinary gifts of chieftanship, he chose, with the younger Napoleon, to be the comrade of his fellow-soldiers rather than their half-veiled Prophet, withdrawn within the jealous circle of a woman's devotion. Mrs. Parnell says with truth that no man either flattered or humiliated him, and that to the end he despised the crowds of eager British admirers who beset his shy and solitary path, and found his only joy in a public reception 'in the midst of a peasant crowd in Ireland.' This nobler sympathy he retained, and the wild experiences of his last year of life enhanced it. But it is open to a political critic to say that his later way of living drew him increasingly underground and away from his party, accentuated his intolerance, and gave a bright internal coloring to his natural exclusiveness.

If ever a man's career illustrated the difference between his talent and genius, it was Parnell's. By his side, the ablest of his contemporaries—at moments, even Gladstone, whom Parnell considered to be greatly his superior in statecraft—looked merely talented. His value, to use a cant term of economics, was largely unimproved value. He read nothing but a little practical science, not even history. He had an unequalled power of interesting the House of Commons, and yet he never troubled to acquire the superficial polish of the speaker's art. Indeed, he hardly spoke often enough to be tolerably good at his business; relying on the native power of his character, and on the deference which weakness or doubt pays to strength and firmness of mind. In this self-sufficiency, Parnell was encouraged by the fact that, if we take the purely Irish view of politics, he was usually right. He was right in his resolve to reverse Butt's tactics, and, ceasing to woo England, to awaken, harass, and confuse her. He was right in his choice of instruments and his use of them; his reliance on the Clan-na-Gael, and on Fenianism—and on Davitt, Egan, Ford, their several leaders—coupled with his resolve to subordinate them to the service of an independent Irish Parliamentary party. He was right in his grand strategy of massing the Irish race, at home and abroad, against the British Empire and its cherished Parliamentary system. He was right in his refusal to permit an alliance between Liberalism and Nationalism. Even in his hour of failure and desperate tactics he hit upon the blot on the second form of Gladstone's Home Rule Bill, the reduction of Irish membership of the Imperial Parliament, coupled with an incomplete grant of powers to the Irish Assembly. Above all, he was right in maintaining a single appeal to Irish opinion, and treating England's mixed moral and political judgment on the incidents of the Land War as if at best it were the judgment of one wrong-doer on another. This attitude involved him in moral difficulties, of which he was not conscious. But time has sanctioned his refusal to defend himself from Foster's grand attack, even while it condemns the indifference with which he read the forged letters in the Times, 'meditatively' butting and eating his toast the while, and proposed to pass them by on the ground that 'the English Times was a paper of no particular importance,' and that he never noticed anything which appeared in the journals. It would be untrue to say that he was callous about crime. The Phoenix Park murders broke him down, and almost secured his willing retirement from the Irish leadership. But he was a man of one purpose; and to his direct, somewhat insensitive, intelligence what forwarded that purpose seemed good and what retarded it bad. His politics were thus those of instinct; like a magnificent animal, he was finally fitted to his task, and was scornful, and half-human, to whomsoever and whatsoever stood in the way of its accomplishment.

But the true moral of Parnell's career, as of that of every man of genius in affairs, was that its strength lay in the power of will, turned with immense concentration on a single and attainable object. There was will but there was also passion, concealed under a cold exteriority, but visible to all careful students of the man. Parnell was, indeed, Nietzsche's best modern instance; he was in form and type a Superman. Obeying the imperative call of his mind, and obeying nothing else, he swooped down on the centre-point of the Anglo-Irish quarrel. Other Irishmen had felt the humiliation of Ireland before, and given it emotional but no true political expression. Parnell was the first great modern Irishman to strike remorselessly at England's weak point in her dealings with Ireland. This was the Parliamentary position. England had decreed the Union, and the Union bound her to maintain over a hundred Irish members in Parliament. Once win over the bulk of these representatives to the cause of political independence, and the battle was won. England must either compromise, or stamp out rebellion in blood. Parnell knew that, thanks both to the sanity and the fears of Liberalism, she would take the first course not the second. His strategy pushed her rapidly to the end he desired. His land campaign forced on the eviction of the landlord garrison. That capital event achieved, Home Rule became inevitable. Making his final choice of tactics, Parnell again turned wisely to the genius of Gladstone, the only British statesman whom he feared. That his association with Mrs. O'Shea enabled him to in-press his views regularly on the Liberal leader was an advantage to which his private affections did not, it may be presumed, altogether blind him. Reasonable men will hardly blame Gladstone for accepting the means of communication thus tendered without demanding 'to know' the motives which might have underlain it. As the effective head of the State, he had no right to reject it. The genesis of Home Rule lay in the so-called 'Kilmathum Treaty.' The Irish and the British leader struck a prudent arrangement, and from that moment their dealings were on the lines of mutual accommodation for the good of the two countries they served. It was a disaster—which Gladstone bewailed to Mr. O'Brien in a deeply felt tribute to his dead rival—when these two men separated for ever. But essentially their work was done. Irish wit and British good sense had met together, and struck a treaty of which the next few years will see the consummation. Parnell's letters to Mrs. O'Shea veil the dominating force which was his secret, and are pathetic because they are a prophecy of the inevitable end. They show that he felt deeply and suffered much, and they will quicken few men's hands to throw a stone at him.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DAUGHTER OF PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Speediest Cure is NERVINE.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs! Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy. Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant. Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with NERVINE. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. John's, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry NERVINE in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. NERVINE I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of cold can be quickly broken up with NERVINE which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Newfoundlander Making Good.

We are pleased to hear of the success of another Newfoundlander in the person of Mr. John A. Lawrence who left here for the United States some years ago.

After holding important positions of trust in the land of Uncle Sam, he applied to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, of Akron, Ohio, about three years ago for the position of travelling salesman for the firm. The manager of the firm felt a little doubtful in giving him the position as he had had no previous experience in that particular line. However, he was given a trial which proved a very satisfactory one to the company and to Mr. Lawrence as well. Last week he was called in "off the road" and promoted to the position of local manager for Albany, N.Y.

Mr. Lawrence is a son of Mr. James M. Lawrence, of the firm of Lawrence Brothers, this city, and we congratulate him on his appointment, and wish him a continuance of success.

Will House the Guard.

The attitude of the Methodist Guards in allowing the use of the popular race boat Guard to be placed on Cuddi Vidi Lake and participate in our aquatic event this year, is an act greatly appreciated by the Regatta committee and the public generally. It will not soon be forgotten and certain ought not to be unrecognized. The genuine and commendable courtesy, as noted in the Regatta meeting, exhibited by them towards the success of the Regatta is spoken of on all sides and meeting with well merited approbation. Just after last night's meeting the C. C. C. Boat Club wrote the Committee, intimating their willingness to make provision in their boat house for the Guard. This is a recognition of the courtesy extended by the Methodist Guards last season and is indeed a true and deserved recognition.

SATURDAY, July 4th, 1914.

A Splendid Failure.

The passing of a great statesman whose influence was felt throughout the dominions of the Empire is of more than common interest. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain did much to stimulate a common loyalty throughout the Empire, and it should be remembered that his last failure was indeed a glorious failure and that the effort which failed was made in the interests of the Empire. He left a Ministry where his influence was large in order to start a propaganda of Tariff Reform in the British Isles with a view of promoting and consolidating commerce within the Empire. The powerful manufacturing interests of the north of England and Scotland could not see eye to eye with him in the policy. Mr. Balfour the leader gave a very qualified and indifferent support to the propaganda, but even that qualified support cost Mr. Balfour his seat in an important Manchester constituency. Eventually Mr. Balfour resigned his leadership and his successor, Mr. Bonar Law, offered a more pronounced support, and yet this policy has made little headway in Great Britain. It should, however, be remembered that Mr. Chamberlain was stricken down with paralysis, and the great pioneer and stimulator of the movement was unable to take much part in it. His son, Austin Chamberlain, has not proved himself yet of the same calibre and the movement has so waned and languished that it is to-day not seriously reckoned with in English politics. Its effect in Canada led to the policy of preference within the Empire. In other words, the Tariff wall was lowered a little to give easier entrance to British manufacturers than was enjoyed by foreigners. Mr. Chamberlain's Preference Policy has not caught on at home, but the failure was splendid, as it was conceived impartially, and with a view to the solidarity of the trade interests and the Empire.

Fishery Reports.

The following messages were received by the Marine and Fisheries Department to-day:—
La Sele—Calm and fine, nothing doing with traps, hook or trawls; plenty caplin.
Griguet—Wind west, no ice, weather fine and warm; sign of codfish.
Lamaline—Wind S. E., fresh, some traps fair catches, majority very little.
Bonavista—Light south wind, dull; yesterday traps averaged 2 quintals, this morning about the same, but no fish with the hook and line.
Harbor Grace—Caplin plentiful, boats, hook and line, from 1/4 to 1/2 quintal; traps from 1 to 6 quintals.
Twillingate—S. W., light and fine, clear and warm, no ice under shore; caplin plentiful; traps from 1/2 to 2 barrels; hook and line fishermen 4 barrel.
Nipper's Harbour—Calm weather, traps averaging half barrel, few salmon, plenty caplin.
Titl Cove—Calm and fine, better sign of fish, some traps doing fairly well.
Fogo—Wind west and clear, traps from 1 to 4 barrels; hook and line from 1/4 to 1 1/4 barrels; caplin plentiful.

Special to Evening Telegram.
 NEW YORK, To-day.
 Roosevelt resigned from the Editorial staff of the Outlook. Lawrence Abbott one of the proprietors, said there had been no break in the pleasant relations between the Colonel and the Magazine management.

VANCOUVER, To-day.
 From a semi-official source it is learned that a second steamer with three hundred and fifty Hindos aboard, left Hong Kong yesterday. The second steamer is bringing all the passengers from Calcutta so that they may fulfil the requirements that the immigrants must come from the land of their origin.

VERA CRUZ, To-day.
 Twenty children, fourteen women and two men composed the entire party of British subjects which arrived here to-day from Mexico, in obedience to the advice given Englishmen by Sir Lionel Gordon, the British Minister in Mexico that they take their families out of the country temporarily. It is expected the majority of the members of the British Colony in the capital, which number 8,000 registered at the British Legation, will remain in Mexico City.

VANCOUVER, To-day.
 Hon. James Dunsuir, former Governor of British Columbia, the richest citizen of this Province, loses a million and a half dollars in adverse judgment, delivered to-day by the Privy Council in London. Four years ago Dunsuir sold his coal mines at Vancouver Island to Sir Wm. MacKenzie and Sir Donald Mann for $11,000,000. The new owners claimed they bought the current account in the banks as well as a couple of steamers used in the coal carrying trade between the Union and San Francisco. Dunsuir thought so little of this theory that a few days before the transfer occurred, he declared a dividend to himself which wiped out the balance in the bank of several thousand dollars. He also claimed that the coal mines alone were sold and not the steamers. The Privy Council has decided in favor of the owners with costs.

LONDON, To-day.
 All prominent public men pay eloquent tribute to the late Joseph Chamberlain's John Redmond's being particularly generous. He said "Ireland has long forgotten all bitter memories in a feeling of sympathy at the pathetic spectacle of Chamberlain's long illness. He was a great man." The Pall Mall Gazette states that although the burial in Westminster Abbey will be offered. It is certain the funeral will be at Birmingham, with a Memorial service in the Abbey. Sir Gilbert Parker said Chamberlain was the first Colonial Secretary who ever understood the colonies and realized the greatness of their position." Chamberlain's funeral, which according to his own wish will be a most simple one, will be held in Messiah Unitarian Church, Birmingham, on Monday. The interment will be in Hogkety Cemetery. Chamberlain throughout the day received numerous messages of condolence, including telegrams from the King, Queen Mary, Queen Mother Alexandra and other members of the Royal family. All the London Dailies contain whole pages of appreciation with telegraphic sketches.

New Model Collapsible Lounges.

With the approach of really warm, summer days all one's plans for the summer cottage come into action, and the first thought of the housekeeper is generally that of comfortable sleeping accommodation, combined with economy of space.

Here is where our New Model Collapsible Lounges come to the front; of light, strong manufacture, full sized spring mattress when extended, and easily manipulated by means of an adjustable foot brake, these Lounges are particularly suitable for summer residences. They can be folded during the day, and by means of rugs and cushions made into luxuriously comfortable seats, while a couple of minutes transforms them into perfect beds for perfect rest at night. These Lounges are very reasonable in price. Come and see one demonstrated in our store, you'll be charmed with the result.

SLIGHT FIRE TO-DAY

At 1 o'clock to-day an alarm of fire was sent in bringing the Central and East End companies to No. 15 Mullock Street, where a slight fire was in progress. The house was occupied by Mr. John O'Reilly, a sanitary man. The services of the firemen were not needed as the application of a few buckets of water quenched the blaze, which only lasted five minutes. The origin of the fire was sparks from the chimney igniting the mantle piece in the kitchen.

Sad Spectacle

AT LAST EVENING'S FIRE ON THE KING'S ROAD.

A fire of an unknown origin broke out on the east side of King's Road at 6.20 last evening in the house owned by Mr. William Cook, victualler, and occupied in the top and larger portion of the building by a family named Sheppard, and in the ground flat by Mr. W. F. Kenny, who keeps a barber shop. In response to an alarm sent in, the Central and East End companies were quickly on the scene. The fire looked threatening at the outset and if there had been any wind in such a thickly populated neighborhood, the results would have been disastrous. A blaze which came from the barber shop was eating its way through the ceilings and was hard to get at. The firemen were hampered in many respects. The door of the shop kept by Kenny, was barred, the owner having left for home ten minutes previously, and had to be broken in. Next the place was filled with smoke which was so dense as to almost suffocate not a few of the firemen. The next difficult and tedious task was the removal from a room in the top flat, Mrs. Sheppard, who was very ill in bed, being only four days sick. The woman and her babe were tenderly placed on a stretcher by two fire-fighters and removed to the house of Mr. P. J. Hanley, on the opposite side of the street. The scene was a sad one and elicited the sympathy of the hundreds of people who witnessed it. After some strenuous labor the firemen got at the blaze. Two streams of water and the use of the chemical succeeded in extinguishing the fire a few minutes afterwards, but not before Mr. Sheppard's furniture was broken and badly damaged by smoke and water. Hudson's dry goods store at the rear also sustained slight damage, while Kenny's barber shop was completely wrecked. The fire, though its origin is unknown, is believed to have started in the barber shop. When the occupier left to go to tea, there was no sign of fire and besides Kenny did not have one cent of insurance on his stock.

Another Change of Abode

Long before the end of the week for which she had in advance for her cubby hole in the rooming house in New York's theatrical district Marian made up her mind to change her abode. The dismal court into which her single window gave would have driven her mad in another fortnight. New York makes transients of nearly all its newcomers, at least as long as they are strangers within its gates. Her quest for a place to live took her uptown, toward Morningside Heights and the Columbia campus. There was a wholesome, respectable cleanliness, an orderly attractiveness about this region. As she prowled on and on, scrutinizing everything from luxurious apartments on Riverside Drive to kitchenettes housed in big dives of apartment houses, she felt woman's world-old yearnings for domesticity, and turned with regret to the more serious business of finding a mere room in a boarding house. In most cases the prices charged for room and board took her breath away. At length her hunt led her to Mrs. Kerns on West One Hundred and Seventeenth Street. An attractive little card in the window made her pause and ring the bell. Mrs. Kerns received her grandly, making haste to inform the room hunter that she had not been long a landlady and referring frequently to the fact that for years, before the death of her husband, she had been a guest at the Prince Henry, one of the city's aristocratic hotels.

"I have a third floor front that you'll love," declared Mrs. Kerns, starting up the carpeted stairs of the airy, well-lighted, well-kept house. "I'm particular about the guests I accept. I hope you'll like the room I'm going to show you. You'd be surprised at the number of impossible applicants that the card in the window attracts. I simply have to give most of them one look and shut the door. We're all just like one family here, so you see I've got to be careful about whom I let my rooms to." Marian saw the room, liked its view of the street, its fresh cleanliness, its gray, restful walls, its simple but comfortable furnishings, its big closet; and upon being informed that the weekly cost of this room and meals would be only nine dollars, she accepted on the spot.

"I'll have my things sent up this afternoon," she said, and her soul bounded with relief that her sentence to the musty hole of a place where sheer weariness of her former room hunt had induced her to stop had come to an end. She had dwelt there only a week, but already the week seemed like the stretched-out hours of a drab and heart-rending century.

Late that afternoon, as she raised the lid of her trunk in the cheerful little room at Mrs. Kerns', Marian wondered how much longer her nomad life was to drag on. Little had she dreamed that her divorce would hurl her like a storm-driven cloud into the rushing elements of the real world of which she knew so little. Again her money, renewed by her two telegrams to Ann Stewart and her brother, was all but exhausted. She was no nearer an earning power to-day than on the fateful day of her divorce.

"Something has got to turn up," she mused grimly, as she bent over the belongings in her trunk.

"Something has got to turn up," she mused grimly, as she bent over the belongings in her trunk. She felt like a Bedouin. She dared not project her thoughts into the future. She had the feeling of an atom of life, suspended in the midst of a black chaos. She seemed to be looking at herself from vast distances, wondering vaguely what the chaotic forces were going to do to her.

"If I were only a man," she mused hopelessly. Such is the world-old longing of a woman who no longer has a husband to lean upon. To her the difference of sex is supreme. It is the determining factor between failure and success.

Try Again.

You have, it may be, used ointments, pastes, lotions for Eczema till you begin to get tired of trying things. Well, but you should remember that science is advancing all the time, and that what was not possible yesterday can be accomplished to-day. If you neglect to try Zylax—the newest and best thing that science has yet to offer for the relief and cure of Eczema and other annoying and disfiguring skin diseases—you are missing a great opportunity. It may be that it will cure you. It has cured some very bad cases. Price 50c. a box. Zylax Soap, 25c. a cake.

Casuals Defeat St. Bon's.

EXCITING TOWARDS THE FINISH.
The Casuals defeated St. Bon's in last night's football match by a score of 5 goals to 3. The exhibition was a fairly good one, though a lack of combination was quite evident on both sides. The Casuals, who defended the Eastern goal during the first half, were the first to score, No. 1 being landed by Smith. After a few minutes of brisk play, Gear, of St. Bon's, equalized, but before half time sounded, Squires scored No. 2 for the Casuals. When the whistle sounded the score stood 2 to 1 in favor of the Casuals.

SECOND HALF.
On resuming play, St. Bon's put on an extra spurt and after about five minutes of exciting play, Callahan landed No. 2 for his team making the score even again. At this point excitement was intense, and the fans cheered to the echo when Callahan again scored, thus turning the tables in St. Bon's favor. Some exciting play was then witnessed in St. Bon's territory, which resulted in Squires, of the Casuals, sending in the equalizer. No. 4 for the Casuals, was sent in shortly afterwards by Garland, and was quickly followed by No. 5, which was sent in by Smith, of St. Bon's. In an effort to defend a shot from the corner, Mr. W. J. Higgins refereed the game, and the players were—

CASUALS — Noseworthy, goal; Bradbury, Hartley, backs; Goddard, Stevenson, Marshall, halves; O. Chaney, Garland, Smith, Squires, Watt, forwards.
ST. BON'S — Lundrigan, goal; Power, Cleary, backs; Crawford, Dunn, McGrath, halves; R. Callahan, Gear, Ryan, Smith, W. Callahan, forwards.
NOTES ON THE GAME.
Higgins, of St. Bon's, who was incapacitated in a recent match, was sorely missed from his team last night.
Power is a stone wall in the full back line.
St. Bon's showed some good combination in the second half.
The Casuals used good judgment in passing, and deserved to win.

St. Bon's Sports.

The annual sports of St. Bonaventure's College were run off on the College Campus yesterday afternoon under the most favorable weather conditions. The attendance was large considering that the day was not a holiday. The grounds were attractively decorated, bunting being displayed from every point of vantage. The various events were closely contested and proved very interesting, and the usual exhibition of figure marching was very rhythmically performed. The C.C.C. band furnished excellent music during the evening, and the Ladies' Association served teas in the Aula Maxima whilst general refreshment stalls were arranged on the grounds. The following is a list of the events and the winners:—

July Fourth.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old St. John's."
This is the Fourth day of July and the birthday of our great and vociferous republic.
Not all nations are fortunate enough to have birthdays. Most of the older ones have existed so long that their age is more uncertain than that of an actress who is a grandmother. But we are a young country and can remember back distinctly 138 years to the day when we stopped being a bunch of colonies and became at one stroke of the pen a brand new nation with hundreds of years of magnificent future before us and $1.34 in the treasury.
The American patriots were busy people. They declared themselves free first and proved it afterwards. They celebrated the first Independence day by bombarding the British for about five years before they could make them see the point. This is probably why the Fourth of July has been celebrated by bombardments ever since.
In 1863 General Grant celebrated the nation's birthday by taking Vicksburg and General Meade by winning the battle of Gettysburg. In 1898 Admiral Schley sank the Spanish fleet in honor of the great day. Just what will happen to the Mexicans is very uncertain, but they ought to worry. The Fourth of July has been squally weather for enemies of the Republic.
On odd years Americans celebrate the Glorious Fourth by blowing each other up. One large dynamite crater if skillfully used, will blow up two patriots and one cap pistol has been known to exterminate as many as three small boys. Of late years it has been felt that burnt offerings on the Fourth of July are a little too uncivilized and the great day is gradually becoming less fast.
Americans ought to celebrate their nation's birthday by reading of those who gave their lives in order to establish this nation. A short course of such reading ought to make almost any citizen willing to sacrifice a few dollars now and then if necessary, in order to keep this country clean and honest and worth dying for when the necessity arises.

Empress of Ireland Disaster.

Amcstg News lost in the above mentioned Disaster was Mr. H. R. O'Hara, of Toronto. Mr. O'Hara was insured with the Railway Passengers Assurance Company for $5,000.00. The total amount which has been paid under this policy was $13,500.00, made up as follows:—
Original principal sum $5,000.00, plus accumulations $1,750.00 making in all $6,750.00. This doubled for travel accidents amounts to $13,500.00.
Another point in connection with this case is that Mr. O'Hara carried $2,000.00 in the Canada Life, $2,000.00 in the Continental Life, $4,000.00 in the National Life, and $5,000.00 in the Sun Life totalling in all $13,000.00, the annual cost of which was $174.06. His policy with the Railway Passengers Assurance, which was a Combination Accident and Disease Policy, cost him $25.00 and for which his beneficiaries received in final settlement $13,500.00 as against $13,000.00 from the total of his Life policies and which as above stated cost him $174.06. These figures show the importance of not delaying in taking advantage of the benefits granted by the RAILWAY PASSENGERS ASSURANCE CO. OF LONDON, ENG.

Salt Steamer Here.

CREW HAD SMALLPOX.
The sea steamer reached port yesterday afternoon with a heavy cargo of salt for Bowring Bros. She came from Cadiz via St. Michaels. The former port was left three weeks ago and when a couple of days out to sea two members of the crew were taken ill, suffering from malaria fever, of which disease their faces showed symptoms. The captain isolated the sick seamen to prevent contagion and a day or so later landed them at St. Michaels. No further illness occurred on board.

Coveleskie.

Red McGhee says: Left handers as a rule are wild, and a game of an' mighty easy riled in any sort of game. An' when they're pitchers an' they're catchers they're usually like doppin' bats an' buzzin' round a if a m. e. For shocin' round 'twen low an' they let's lamp this Coveleskie guy — a spetmon that's rare. He's played the up-down game strong an' kept 'em guessin' right along. At see-saw he's king beer.
Some years ago the long-geared Pole had Muggsy's Giants in the hole an' robbed 'em of a flag. He set the baseball world ablaze an' then blew up a million ways just like a paper bag. He in-an'-outed sev'ral years an' now this year again appears in big league company. A slant at Jennings' box payroll shows Coveleskie of southpaw Pole who brought the Phil fans glee.
They claim his comeback's really real, his arm'll last as long as steel an' he ain't wild no more. If all those windy touts are true the things the string had ought to do won't make Detroit fans sore. I'm pullin' for the lanky boy—the more he wins the more he ins the more my joy. I've praised him in the past. But he can pitch his ol' head off an' still some almost fans'll scoff: "How long dya think he'll last?"

Personally Guaranteed

McShane's Obituary is O.K. But it is Not Needed Yet.
Occasionally the premature announcement of the death of a prominent man gives the subject the rare opportunity of reading his own obituary. A recent case was the telegraphic despatch to the London Times stating that Sir James Whitney was dead, which has embroiled two Toronto dailies in counter libel suits. It has, however, fallen to the lot of but few men to not only peruse but to revise the biography which recites their virtues and their achievements for the information of their surviving fellow-mortals, but this was the unique privilege of Hon. James McShane, affectionately known as "the people's Jimmy," and whose public career has included terms as alderman and Mayor of Montreal, minister in the Quebec Cabinet, and member of the House of Commons. Some half dozen years ago, Mr. McShane was dangerously ill, and his advanced years and critical condition made it seem probable that death was imminent. Mr. Austin Mosher, a veteran journalist, who knows everybody who is anybody in the Eastern half of Canada, was instructed to prepare for his newspaper, the Montreal Gazette, a voluminous sketch of Mr. McShane's life.
Mr. Mosher did so, but Mr. McShane made an unexpected and rapid recovery, and some two or three weeks later Mr. Mosher met the convalescent on the street. After greetings appropriate to the occasion had been exchanged, Mr. Mosher exclaimed:
"By the way, Jimmie, I have your obituary in my pocket."
"Have you now?" said Mr. McShane in an interested tone. "Well, come in here and I'll take a look at it."
They entered the place designated, and Mr. McShane, resting one foot on the brass rail, scanned the manuscript closely, changing a word here and there, and eliminating an occasional phrase and inserting a sentence or two. Handing it back, he remarked:
"Hang if all men, you hadn't done me justice at all. But it's correct now, and when I do die, see that it gets in the way I've given it to you."
The obituary, as marked O.K. by the subject thereof, is still in the "Gazette" archives awaiting its ultimate purpose. There seems, however, no immediate prospect of it being called into use; for Mr. McShane is still hale and hearty at eighty, and in the municipal campaign last April he took an energetic part on behalf of Major Stephens' candidature for the mayoralty, delivering one to three speeches every night for two weeks.—Toronto Saturday Night.

The Bulldog.

The bulldog is an ugly bird; his bumpy legs are most absurd, his tail declines to grow; his insolent and wrinkled face would be accounted a disgrace to a n y beauty show. The bulldog's not a playful pup; he doesn't stand on end and chirp, and chirp, nor gumber foolishly; he seems to take a somber view of mundane things — including you; that's why you climb a tree. He guards his masters household gods, and would, against the greatest odds that might be marshaled there; and when he casts his bloodshot lamp upon an agent or a tramp, that tourist says a prayer. He's not a pet for bloodless chaps; he has no place on ladies' laps, no ornamental use; he seems to say, with lip uprolled, "Don't bother me—if I take hold, you'll never let me loose!" Because we know that deadly grip, and fear the jaws that never slip, we give him right of way; when he comes forth and says, "Bow wow," we lift our hats and humbly bow, and sweat three quarts of whey. Oh, when the bulldog growls or barks, we don't dispute his chaste remarks, or try to set him right; we hit the pike and think of death, and do not draw a normal breath until he's out of sight.

Two More Victims Of Empress Disaster

Both Were Women and One of Them Identified.

Rimouski, Que., June 29.—The result of the search by the steamer Strathcona for victims of the Empress of Ireland wreck yesterday was the recovery of two bodies. One of these is Maud E. Smith, identified by a money order found in a pocket in her underclothing. Nothing is known about her here. The other body is that of an older woman apparently about forty with light hair. She was partly clad and wore a raincoat, but there was nothing to show whence she came, nor her name. Both bodies were found between the funnels that of Miss Smith by Diver Whitehead of the cruiser Essex. Her head and shoulders were stuck in one of the ventilators and her foot between what appeared to be two pipes. The other body was not far away with one foot caught in the bight of a rope.

Robinson Crusoe

Next Week at the Crescent.

Next Monday and Tuesday at the Crescent Picture Palace afternoon and evening, popular prices, the remarkable three reel production: "Robinson Crusoe" will be shown for the first time in this city. The great picture is voted the most successful production of the Bison Company and a big treat is in store for all those who will witness it. The entire story from beginning to end as told in the book is illustrated and acted to perfection. To make this picture the success it is no expense was spared and it has been one of the most costly subjects we have ever seen here contrary to the opinion of many. The prices in vogue on all occasions at the Crescent will be the same. An additional comedy picture and a splendidly illustrated song will make up a most enjoyable performance.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. — ap17.13

Wedding Bells.

SAMWAYS—CHOWN.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, July 1st, at the residence of the bride's parents, when Muriel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Samways, was united in matrimony by the Rev. J. W. Bartlett, to Mr. Albert E. Chown, son of F. Chown, Esq., of this city. The bride was handsomely attired in silk crepe-de-chene with veil, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern, and was attended by her little niece, Miss Jean Pippy, who did the honors of flower girl. After the ceremony, a reception was held when the young couple received the congratulations of their friends. They left for Placentia by the evening's express, the bridal party accompanying them as far as Waterford Bridge.

An enterprising young florist, in order to increase his trade, displayed this sign in his window:

"We give a packet of flower seeds with every plant."

His competitor across the street promptly sought to meet the competition by placing in his window the following announcement:

"We give the earth with every plant."

NEWS BY CABLE.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, July 3.

The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain died last night. His death, which came as an entire surprise, removes one of the most striking figures from British politics of a past generation. His health was not publicly known to be any worse than at any time for the past two or three years. Mrs. Chamberlain, who never left her husband's side since he was stricken with paralysis seven years ago, and his son, Rt. Hon. Austin Chamberlain, were with him when death occurred at his London residence. The event cast a gloom to-day over the London season, which was at its height. Mr. Chamberlain's last public appearance was at a garden party in the grounds of his Birmingham home on May 6th last, when with his wife and son, he received several hundred of his constituents. The aged statesman was wheeled around out on the lawn, and appeared very emaciated and feeble when he lifted his hat to his friends and neighbors in acknowledgment of their salutes.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, July 3.

All doubts as to the destination of the grand challenge cup this year were dispelled to-day, when the Union Boat Club of Boston defeated the Mayence Rowing Club, and Harvard secured the second eight-heat against Winnipeg in the semi-finals. The prediction of Robert F. Herrick, the American coach, has thus come true, and two American crews will row up the course here to-morrow in the final, for the edification of English oarsmen. Both American combinations did the distance of 1 mile 550 yards in fast time, 7 minutes flat, which had been beaten only on three previous occasions. Their performance, therefore, gave promise of a great race to-morrow. Although Englishmen prefer the Harvard style and conditions to that of Boston, after to-day's race, Obetes, coxswain of the Boston crew, said: "We got all the best we ever attained in the first fifty strokes. We could not get away from them." Harvard and Boston row off to-morrow afternoon. Lady Hambleton will present the prizes.

LONDON, July 3.

While on their way to Henley Regatta early to-day, Sir Denys Anson was accidentally pushed off a crowded pleasure launch into the Thames, and drowned, together with J. C. Mitchell, who plunged into the water in an effort to save his friend's life. Constantine Beckendorff, the Russian Ambassador, tried to rescue the other two men, and narrowly escaped death himself. He was picked up in a state of collapse.

MONTREAL, July 3.

That thousands of unemployed in Montreal are in imminent danger of being deported to Europe, as the solution of the out-of-work problem, is frankly admitted by the immigration authorities here to-day. All foreigners of less than three years' residence in Canada, who are out of work, who are charges, or have been charges upon the community in Montreal and other large cities will be thus removed.

BELFAST, July 3.

The "Carson squad" of militant suffragettes to-day set fire to and burned to the ground Ballymenoch, near Holywood, a great residential mansion containing many priceless art treasures, all of which were destroyed. The mansion was the residence of the late Sir Daniel Dixon, ex-M.P., who was Lord Mayor of Belfast.

Household Notes

Always use ointments in tubes instead of jars where possible. Dipping the finger into the jar may mean infection to the next user.

To preserve the flavor of the olives when a large bottle has been opened, pour a little olive oil on the top and keep well corked.

A remedy for grass stains is cream of tartar dissolved in boiling water. Apply when the spot is fresh, and then wash as usual.

Boston asparagus ferns are said to thrive on a dose of coffee. Twice a week use the left-over coffee, with plenty of warm water added.

Barley water for children should be made with 1 teaspoonful of prepared barley flour and 1½ cups of water. Boil twenty minutes.

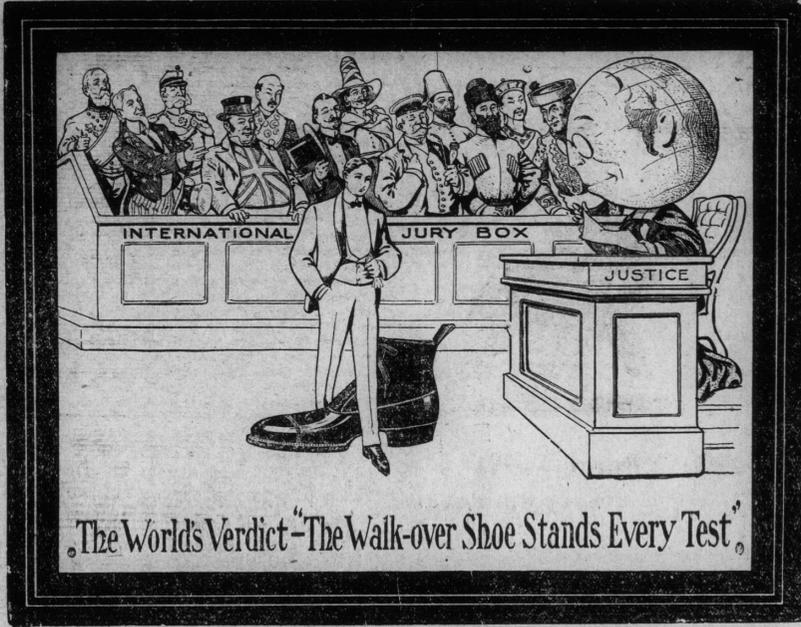

To have hot foods perfectly served, the dishes should be hot and a pewter dish cover set over the food as soon as it is placed on them.

Worn-out brooms can have their straws cut down half way and covered with felt or carpet to serve as a polish after wax has been applied.

To save time on wash day, drop all the little things like handkerchiefs into a pillowcase-shaped bag of mosquito netting, and pin this to the line.

Fish, when prepared for frying, should be laid on a board and dredged with flour or meal mixed with salt; when one side is dry, dredge the other.

POEMS

HED NOTHING BUT HIS VIOLIN.

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my song,
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long;
And when we parted by the hedge,
The violins came and told
How they had dared to wed and win
When early spring was cold.

We sometimes supped on dewberries,
Or slept among the hay;
But off the farmers' wives at eve
Came out to hear us play
The rare old tunes, the dear old tunes—
We could not starve for long
While my man had his violin
And I my sweet old song.

The world has aye gone well with us,
Old man, since we were one;
Our homesteads wandering down the lanes,
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold or gear,
For houses and for kilns,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and serene.

And love and beauty play
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear,
When you had but your violin,
And I my song, my dear,
—Mary Kyle Dallas.

THE GARDEN.

In The Atlantic Monthly Gretchen Warren gives expression to the religious faith of many whose faith is best stimulated by work:—
A man there was, of simple mind
Who to the Lord gave all his mind;

For naught he cared, naught craved he
But his Lord's servant to be.
And 'en his garden plot kept fair,
Because, he said, the Lord walked there.

Of this his friends made many a jest,
Yet he tolled on with a heart at rest.
The years went by—with head grown grey,
Still he believed Christ passed that way.

Then came a time when he was left
Of loving wife and child bereft.
"He will doubt how," the scorners said,
"When wife and child and love are dead."

But all their words he heeded not,
And tended still the garden plot.
At last himself lay at death's door,
To love, believe, and work no more.

His pitying friends stood by his bed,
And this is what to them he said:
"Oh, bury me hot in a churchyard mound,
But lay me in my garden ground;

From loving dust, it needs must be
That flowers will spring more fair to see,
And Christ will know, in my last sleep,
For Him I still the garden keep."

GROWING OLD.

A little more tired at the close of day,
A little more anxious to pave our way,
A little less ready to scold and blame;
A little more careful for a brother's name,
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend,
A little less care for the bonds and gold;

A little more zest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind;
And thus we are faring a-down the way,
That leads to the gates of a better day.

A little more love for the friends of youth;
A little less zeal for established truth;
A little more charity in our views;
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more rest the change unseen;
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead,
And so we are going to where all must go—
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead,
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say:
"I live because He has passed my way."

THE CHAPLET.

When I came home at evening
With flowers in my hand,
And on my head a chaplet
From an enchanted land,
Not one of those that passed me
Appear'd to understand.

They thought that like the others
I wore a hat, and went
As prosy on the sidewalk
As one collecting rent—
They knew not who had kissed me
Nor all the matter meant.
—Walter Byrner.

THE SEASONS OF THE HEART.

When meads are fair with green of spring,
When April's moon is bright,
Then hope is like a bluebird's wing—
It wakes the heart's delight!

When hills are crowned with rosy bloom,
When fragrant odors cloy,
Then love, like angel from the tomb,
Awakes the heart to joy!

When fields are ripe with tawny grain,
When songs of summer cease,
Then gratitude like golden gain
Awakes the heart to peace!

When winter silvers every pond,
When frost is on the streams,
Tis then that memory's magic wand
Awakes the heart to dreams!
—Edward Wilbur Mason.

A CONTENTED MIND.

Why, friend, you have but a sordid life,
Humble, unknown and poor.
"Nay, I've a kindly and loving wife,
And what could man want more?"

No music is yours that magicians weave,
No visions that lift and soar,
"My little daughter sings at eve,
And what could man want more?"

"Faith lightens me over the weary ways,
Love waits me at the door;
My handiwork silks me a song of praise,
And what could man want more?"
—George W. Priest.

The Summer Complexion.

Every person acquires a good complexion, and every woman covets one, or, if she doesn't, she should. The price to be paid is close attention to health matters. Regular habits are a first essential to health—regular hours of sleep, regular meals, regular exercise and regular recreation.

Diet is important, and while, as is so often said, one person's meat is another's poison, there are certain edibles that are chemically bound to help the health and complexion. Sour milk is splendid taken internally, or, applied with discretion, externally, it whitens the skin and enlivens it. Raw onions are good for the complexion, but unfortunately they are not easily digested, while apples, especially baked or stewed, are efficacious without disagreeable effects. Cooked fruits are to be preferred to raw ones, but green vegetables in the form of salad should be taken at least once a day.

A glass of cold water with a spoonful of lemon juice and a half spoonful of salt stirred in, sipped every morning before breakfast, will work wonders. Try it. Drink water freely, if you crave it, with your meals. The old idea that this is injurious has been disproved. Salt should be used freely in the bath and rubbed well into the skin.

Avoid the too frequent use of cold cream because it has a tendency to make the skin flabby. Water, with diluted meal instead of soap, is preferable, except perhaps for once a day when cream may be applied, and wiped off after about ten minutes, and the face bathed first in warm water, and then cold.

Hot water causes the muscles to sag unless immediately followed by cold water applications.

Peroxide of hydrogen is frequently advised for whitening the skin, but a caution is necessary regarding it, as its frequent use yellows, and makes wrinkles and a parchment-like appearance. A ripe tomato or a cucumber sliced and rubbed into the skin daily has a whitening effect with no bad results. Most of the prepared face lotions are to be avoided. Some of them contain corrosive sublimate, which renders the skin very sensitive; mercury, which tends to redden the skin, or glycerine which, though harmless in many cases, in others causes an eruption.

So with skin-foods, many of them are of the cheapest ingredients, such as mutton tallow, crude vaseline, lard, beeswax, etc., each of which causes a growth of hair if it has no other harmful effect.

A Bedroom Promenade

If you are tired of walking upright you may now walk on all fours, and console yourself for any loss of dignity by reflecting that this is the way to have clear eyes, rosy cheeks and a graceful figure. This is the latest dictum from scientific Germany.

Doctors and physical culturists tell us to retire to our room after each meal, and having made sure that no one shall invade our privacy, we are to crawl round the room on our hands and feet, hastily, though perhaps awkwardly, and thus achieve a good digestion. Twice round after each meal is said to be enough for a beginner, then we can lengthen our promenade as we become more expert.

A physical culturist tells us to do it thus:—"The first position is to stretch out, resting the body on hands and feet, then gradually lower the head and elevate the spine till the head at the lowest point. At first it is difficult to achieve, especially if you are stout, but you'll be surprised how soon it becomes quite a simple affair and you rise with all sense of that heaviness, which comes after eating if you are not in the best of condition, quite gone, the mysterious gastric juices have had a better chance to permeate the food and the process of digestion is proceeding smoothly and without difficulty."

Dr. MacNamara's School-Boy Howlers.

Dr. MacNamara, M.P., under secretary of the British Admiralty, is a schoolmaster by profession and has always furnished with amusing stories. His latest "howlers" include the following:

Teacher: What is a mediator?
Pupil: Please, sir, a mediator is a chap who says, "Hit me instead."

Teacher (to a London class): What is grass?
Boy: Grass is what you have to keep off.

Why would David rather be a door-keeper in the house of the Lord? Because he could walk outside while the sermon was being preached.

How do you know the earth is round?—Because it says in the Bible, "World without end."

Once when Dr. Macnamara asked a London class of girls what they would say if he told them he saw the sun rise in the west, he got the reply that he was impossible. "But still," he persevered, "supposing I still declared I had seen the sun rise in the west?" "Well," one of the little girls at length replied, "I should think you must have got up rather late."

Compulsory Education.

Below are some figures showing the dates when other countries adopted the compulsory principle in education. In this matter is Newfoundland ahead of these countries, or behind these countries, or is she supremely indifferent?

Nova Scotia, 1864. Compulsory period, 7 to 12 years.

Prince Edward Island, in 1887. Compulsory period, 7 to 13 years.

British Columbia, in 1885. Compulsory period, 7 to 12 years.

England, 1880. Compulsory period, 6 to 13 years.

Scotland, 1872. Compulsory period, 6 to 13 years.

Australia, 1880. Compulsory period, 6 to 14 years.

New Zealand, 1877. Compulsory period, 7 to 14 years.

France, 1882. Compulsory period, 6 to 13 years.

Norway, 1860. Compulsory period, 7 to 14 years.

Austria, 1869. Compulsory period, 6 to 14 years.

Sweden, 1862. Compulsory period, 7 to 14 years.

Switzerland, 1870. Compulsory period, 6 to 15 years.

Italy, 1877. Compulsory period, 6 to 9 years.

Japan, 1909. Compulsory period, 6 to 10 years.

United States, 1870. Compulsory period, 7 to 14 years.

Municipal Government of Jerusalem.

The Jerusalem municipality is composed of ten members, half of whom are chosen every two years, the term of office being four years. From these ten the Governor of the Province of Jerusalem chooses one to be the President or Mayor. The President is the only member receiving a salary, which is about $44 a month.

The members of the municipal council or commission are chosen by the whole city, but are apportioned in accordance with the different races and religions. Their duties are largely advisory, the President exercising most of the power. All property owners who are Ottoman subjects have a right to vote for the commissioners.

The municipality does not concern itself with schools, courts, police, etc. (these are provided by the government of the Province of Jerusalem); its principal functions are the care, repair, lighting and cleaning of the street; sanitary and quarantine inspection and oversight, including the public slaughter-house; the maintenance of a petroleum storage warehouse and a municipal hospital and other charitable institutions; market regulations, etc.

As the total budget is under $50,000 for a city of about 30,000, it will be seen that the provincial government handles most of the more important departments.

Wellington's Idea of Himself.

"I hope to God," he said one day, "that I have fought my last battle. It is a bad thing to be always fighting. While in the thick of it, I am too much occupied to feel anything; but it is wretched just after. It is quite impossible to think of glory. Both mind and feelings are exhausted. I am wretched even at the moment of victory, and I always say that next to a battle lost, the greatest misery is a battle gained."

The expression of his face, which was lit up by an intensity of feeling, gave those simple words an eloquence which went straight to the listener's heart. I was that listener.

"It is experience," he said, another time, "that gives me the advantage over every other officer. Nothing new can happen to me, and I always feel confident that I shall succeed. The troops feel the same confidence in me. For that reason, I firmly believe that if anything had happened to me at Waterloo, the battle would have been lost. I told Lord Uxbridge so. Soon after a ball hit him. It must have passed over me, or my horse! But the finger of God was upon me!"
—Diary of Francis Lady Shelley.

In My Father's Footsteps.

A FINE FIRST SPEECH BY THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales performed his first public ceremony on Saturday, afternoon, when he visited South London in his capacity as Duke of Cornwall and laid the foundation stone of the new church of St. Austen at Kennington Cross, on the estate of the Duchess of Cornwall. On his drive from Buckingham Palace the Prince was cordially welcomed by thousands of people who had assembled on the line of route. At Kennington school children welcomed him by singing "God bless the Prince of Wales."

At the site of the new church he was received by the Archbishop of Canterbury and other Church dignitaries, the Mayor of Lambeth, and Sir Stephen Collins, M.P., and Major Gastrell, M.P.

The Bishop of Southwark read an address, in which the Prince of Wales read a reply in the following terms:—"I have to thank you very heartily for the kind welcome that you have given me in the name of your diocese. It has long been my wish to visit South London, and it is a real pleasure to me that my first public duty should be on behalf of the Church. It was here that the first Duke of Cornwall (Edward the Black Prince) had his palace, and according to one of the old writers it was almost on this very spot that he died. The site therefore is of no ordinary interest, and it is of happy significance that a great church should rise where five and a half centuries ago dwelt a Prince who was noted for his piety. It was to God that he first gave the praise for his victory, and even his coins were inscribed with the words, taken from his favourite song, "Auxilium meum a Domino" (My help cometh even from the Lord).

"I have listened with great pleasure to your graceful reference to the visits to this neighbourhood of my father and grandfather, who always took a deep interest in the Duchy. To my dear father, who in the midst of innumerable other duties has given much time and anxious thought to the problems and difficulties which must always attend the rebuilding of an estate, I can never be sufficiently grateful. But I shall hope to show my gratitude by endeavouring to walk worthily in his footsteps.

"At present I cannot pretend to much knowledge of the difficulties which beset the housing reformer, but by studying the comfort and happiness of my tenants I hope to gain experience. I pray that it may please God to pour His blessing on all who shall worship in this place, and prosper the work of all who now or hereafter may be called upon to minister in this parish."

The Archbishop handed to the Prince a list of contributions towards the building fund, including £1,000 from the King, £1,000 from His Royal Highness himself, and £500 from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The Prince left amid loud cheers and drove to Buckingham Palace by way of Kennington Park Road and Vauxhall Bridge.—Graphic.

Beauty 500 Years Ago.

They have dug up an old beauty book in Italy, published 500 years ago, which laid down the following rules:—"To be beautiful," says the work, "the women must have the following three white things: Skin, hands and teeth. Three black things: Eyes, eyelashes and eyebrows. Three pink things: Lips, gums and nails. Three long things: Life, hands and hair. Three short things: Teeth, ears and tongue. Three wide things: Forehead, shoulders and intelligence. Three narrow things: Waist, mouth and ankles. Three delicate things: Fingers, lips and mind. Three round things: Arm, leg and dowry."

An Advertising Story.

A speaker at a Sphinx Club dinner told an advertising story the other evening.

"A man," he said, "entered a shop one bitter cold day and bought a woolen muffler. He found inside it the photograph of a beautiful girl, together with a note saying:

"If you are single, please write to me."
"A name and address followed, and he put the photograph on his sitting room mantle. There, every evening, looking up from his book, he beheld it. It was very beautiful and in a week he had fallen head over heels in love."

So he wrote to the girl. Another week passed, a week of anxious, nerve-racking suspense. Then the loveliest man received this crushing letter:—"Sir:—The Mary Smith to whom you wrote was my grandmother. She died nine years ago, aged 96. Yours truly," "Our broken-hearted bachelor, on looking into this strange matter, found that he had foolishly bought the muffler from a dealer who didn't advertise."

A Wholesome Dish.

Cut a pound of rhubarb into short pieces and boil it in three pints of water for half an hour. Strain the liquor and rub the rhind of a lemon with loaf sugar; add this to the liquor together with sufficient sugar to make it palatable. When cold, it is ready for use, and is a most healthful drink at this time of year.

A List of Nevers.

At the City Hall.

Mr. Gosling presided at yesterday's meeting of the Civic Commission, the other Commissioners present being: Hon. John Harris, C. P. Ayre, I. C. Morris, E. M. Jackman, J. W. Withers, J. McGrath, Hon. J. Anderson and F. W. Bradshaw.

After adopting the minutes of the previous meeting the following business was discussed:

Mr. Bradshaw considered that better results would be attained if larger bodies of workmen were employed repairing the roads than heretofore, as many are now employed in small sections, and often without a foreman. The matter will receive consideration.

Hon. J. Harris asked the Engineer for information regarding the system of oiling the streets. While he realized the value of the work done, he thought the Board should have more definite information regarding the same. The Engineer outlined the nature of last year's system which was merely experimental, but resulted satisfactorily. The oil was received in the crude state and much time was consumed in preparing the solution for the streets. He was unable to give an estimate of the cost per square yard of hand, but was convinced that a continuance of the work would result beneficially.

The Secretary stated that the cost was heavy, but a preparation ready for use has been ordered for this year's work, and the Road Inspectors have been instructed to prepare the principal streets for the application. Hon. Jno. Harris favored the continuance of the work, as he had noted the satisfactory results, and intimated that his only intention in asking for the information was to assist the Board in formulating plans for the future.

The Chairman considered that the streets should be prepared for the oil at the beginning, and thought that the streets should be built wet section by section instead of repairing large sections every year.

Mr. Bradshaw asked if refuse seal and coal oil were of any use for the purpose of oiling streets.

Mr. Harris did not know the merits of these oils, but thought the odor would be objectionable.

The Engineer reported on the general condition of the roads in the West End, and in relation thereto the M.H.A.'s will be written.

A letter from Sgt. Morris, of the Electrical Department, was read, which stated that the cost of decorations, as outlined by the late Council for the Duke's reception would be $425. After a considerable discussion it was moved by Mr. Jackman that a committee be appointed to interview Mr. Morris with a view to a modification of the plans submitted, so as to reduce the cost, in consideration of the city's financial condition. It was ordered accordingly, and Messrs. Ayre and Bradshaw were deputed to attend to the matter.

Mr. Bradshaw referred to the opening of the streets for laying gas and water pipes, and suggested that in future orders should be issued to put back the top dressing properly, and leave the streets in good condition after the work is done.

The suggestion was favorably received, and will be acted upon.

The Engineer submitted plans of property at the margin of Round Pond, which has been granted to the city, so as to increase the water supply from Windsor Lake.

Mr. Harris referred to the condition of the sidewalks, which he said needed repairs all over the city. He offered to get on a committee to enquire into the matter, which committee was appointed.

Mr. Jackman intimated that at an early date he would submit a plan to deal with the Absentee Landlordism, which he said, was one of the principal obstacles to Civic improvements, particularly the question of housing the poor.

The Secretary asked if the Council's permanent employees be paid for the regular holiday, as heretofore. An objection was raised by Mr. Withers, who thought the city could not afford to pay for the holiday.

Mr. Jackman held that the custom should not be departed from, as the regular employees were entitled to their holidays just the same as the clerks in the stores.

It was ordered that they be paid for the day, as heretofore.

William Clance applied for position of Swimming Instructor at Quidi Vidi, as he had held the appointment for the three preceding years.

Mr. Ayre asked if he had reported regularly to the Council.

The Secretary stated that he had not, whereupon Mr. McGrath thought that an Inspector should be appointed to look after the instructor.

The Chairman and Mr. Harris approved of the necessity of the applicant's services, and he was accordingly engaged.

Martin Barron applied for position of assistant to the engineer of the steam roller. Referred to Engineer.

Dr. John R. Mott.

Last night at the Seamen's Institute, the Protestant clergymen of this country who were present, were treated to an address, the weight and soul and comprehensiveness of which left nothing to be desired. The meeting was presided over by the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland. We have frequently heard that the vision of John R. Mott was the vision of a great missionary statesman and seer, and our testimony is, "The hair has not yet been told."

In perfect diction, in majestic thought, in burning sentence he threw the glamour of the modern missionary movement upon us, until we reached the mount of vision. The following sentences give in briefest outline some idea of the most inspiring address on missions to which it has been our privilege to listen:

The forces of Christianity are at present facing an unprecedented situation, a moment critical and alarming both at the home base and abroad. This situation is unprecedented.

(1) In danger; and (2) in urgency. The situation is unprecedented in danger because of the possible loss which will come if we fail to seize this moment, and unprecedented in urgency because so many nations are in a plastic condition, but will soon become fixed. Great changes—political, ethical, economic, social and religious—are taking place in the non-Christian world. This is an interesting day in which to live. If Christianity identifies herself with these great national hopes her mission will go on; if not it must utterly fail.

The disintegrating forces of a so-called Christian civilization are working in these lands, and we who have carried there the poison must now convey the antidote. The present situation is urgent, moreover, because of the cancerous growths of the non-Christian civilization, and we cannot play with cancers. Again, it is urgent because of a dangerous process of syncretism that is going on—the combining of the good in Christianity with the good in heathenism. We are now confronting a harvest dead ripe, and we must follow our knocking, by entering in. It is urgent, moreover, in order that we may enter into the heritage of the true working of God's laws. Some of these laws are:—

(1) The law of Christ-like living.

(2) The law of sacrifice—and our religion does not mean much if it does not mean this.

The rising tide of spiritual success upon us in these lands—even in the most benighted sections, and the most helpless among the tribes of Africa, the "untouchables" of India, the aborigines of China.

Dr. Mott then described the situation in Turkey and China as he saw it 19 years ago, and now, and the contrast was startling. The stories told us of scenes in Constantinople and Shanghai, of students crowding to hear the message, and of similar scenes in Shanghai and Mukden were indelible in their dramatic force and power, and in the thrilling effect they produced upon the audience. His interview with Sun Yat Sen of China was a wonderful narrative wonderfully told. He closed by reminding his audience that the situation demands:

(1) That we enlarge our plans and make them world plans.

(2) A large and truer unity, and a more earnest expression of it on the field.

(3) A larger reality in our faith and vision in the West, for we are to pass our Christ or we shall lose him.

(4) A larger dynamic in the ministry of intercession, and a stronger, more general leadership among those now in training for Christian service.

It was altogether worth while that the Christian leaders of this country came to this mount of opportunity, and we believe they will go back to their fields with the larger vision and the larger yearning that filled the heart of their missionary Lord.

Frank is doing well and is connected with one of the leading Map Companies in Canada.

The Board, the Solicitor suggested that seven members of the Commission will be a quorum for the transaction of business. It was voted accordingly.

Mr. McGrath called attention to the sidewalk and gully on Casey Street. Referred to Engineer.

Hon. J. Anderson asked that statements of receipts and disbursements to June 30th, be tabled at the next meeting.

After the usual routine work, the meeting adjourned at 6 p.m.

The Commission will meet again on Wednesday evening next.

Regatta Meeting.

Courtesy Extended by Methodist Guards—Racer Guard will be in Commission but Blue Peter will not Compete.

The Regatta Committee met again at Wood's West End Restaurant last evening. Those present were:—

President Hiscock, who presided, Vice-President Higgins, Treasurer C. Ellis, Secretary Noonan, F. J. Morris, C. W. Ryan, J. L. Slattery, N. Andrews, R. W. Jeans, J. P. Crotty, W. J. Martin, P. Hanley, P. F. Moore, R. Dowden, T. D. Carew, L. G. Chafe, T. J. Foran and W. J. Crotty.

A communication was read by the President from Mr. John E. Roche, of Alameda, California, wherein Mr. Roche offered to donate silk flags to winning boats in the amateur and fishermen's races. He also asked to suggest any design liked.

The offer was accepted. The donor resided in Newfoundland and was a reputable oarsman in the 70's. He was also, it was said, a member of the committee who revived the Regatta in 1871.

Mr. Levi Chafe, who, with two others had been appointed to try and secure the race boat Blue Peter for Regatta Day, reported that he had interviewed Lieut.-Col. Rendell, of the C. L. B., and that it was an utter impossibility to get the use of the boat.

Feelings of regret were expressed by the Committee, but soon after, amid the greatest enthusiasm, Mr. W. J. Higgins, on behalf of Mr. C. W. Ryan and himself, announced that the race-boat Guard would compete on Regatta Day, the arrangement having been effected through the esteemed courtesy of the Methodist Guards. To say that this announcement was received with encouragement and gratification would be expressing it mildly. Vice-President Higgins further intimated and assured the Committee that he and Mr. C. W. Ryan were treated most cordially by the Methodist Guards people right at the very outset and as an evidence of that offered the use of their boat most willingly; also emphasizing that they would do everything possible to assist the Regatta Committee if desired. The Committee are deeply indebted to the Guards and the public generally also ought to warmly appreciate the courtesy extended so liberally by that organization in endeavouring to make this year's event the success it deserves.

The programme of races were then drawn and on motion of Mr. Slattery were allowed to stand the same as last year.

It was the opinion of the meeting that the collectors begin work on Tuesday next.

It was made known by Treasurer Ellis that the King Edward Brigade, Harbor Grace, would compete in the Brigade Race this year, represented by a strong aggregation of oarsmen.

The interest and enthusiasm displayed throughout the meeting is sufficient testimony that this year's Regatta will be a unique success.

Mr. Rossley has had such good patronage in the past, that now times are dull he makes his prices suit the pocket until further notice. The great Lubin feature, one of the finest dramatic pictures ever seen, entitled "Retribution," a gripping visualizing the old maxim: The mills of the gods grind slowly but they grind exceedingly small, a great play, "The Bonnie Scotland," a beautiful travelogue, "Mr. Hobbs' Necktie," a comedy by the Vitagraph Co. What a laugh maker: "Put Yourself in Their Place," Vitagraph. Latest British Journal, "Nobody's Darling," Vitagraph. "The Quarryman's Child," Gaumont, one of the most thrilling and exciting features ever filmed, action in every scene of big show.
