Cure the Skin Through the Skin

It is now thoroughly established among skin specialists that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ beneath the skin and curable only through the skin. Thousands of people suffer with skin disease who are perfectly healthy otherwise, which shows that their blood is not diseased. Ugly-looking "atouch" remedies are therefore as worthless for skin diseases as they are for a toothache.

Eczema germs must be WASHED AWAY. Smearly salves do no good for they cannot penetrate the skin.

They merely close the pores and aid the rapid increase of germs. The only way to reach the germs is by a penetrating liquid.

The D. D. D. Prescription, a wonderful new discovery for skin diseases, is a simple, scientific wash—a reliable home remedy that brings about marvelous cures in all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Pimples, Ulcers, Barber's Itch and all other skin ailments. D. D. D. relieves distress instantly, kills and washes away disease germs and leaves the skin wholesome and healthy.

Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold everywhere.

CHAPTER V.
A VILLAGE FETE.

"Is it for me?" she asks, with the childish delight of possession. "How kind of you!" and her eyes rest upon his face for a moment, and makes Cyril's heart throb. "Are you sure it is for me? Won't you keep it for some one else—your sister?"

This rather doubtfully, remembering suddenly that she has not heard of the existence of such a relative. "Haven't got one," says Cyril, smilingly; "I wish I had. One like you!" he adds, wistfully regarding the childish figure, clad this evening in some dark, soft, clinging material, that drapes the graceful outline to simple perfection. "Perhaps if I had I should have been a better man."

"Would you?" she asks, with that old intent gaze. "Would you like to have a sister? I am sorry you have not," abstractedly.

"Indeed?" he asks, with a smile. "Why are you?" She opens her eyes.

"Oh! didn't you say you would have been better, suddenly the heavens are lit up as if by magic, there comes a loud explosion, and a rocket soars skyward.

"Hello!" exclaims Cyril, "what's the matter?"

Edna laughs. "Oh, fireworks—and there need not be much the matter. Don't you know how fond the Germans and the Swiss are of pyrotechny? English mobs are given to bands and banners, aren't they?"

"Yes, and processions," no's Cyril. "They had such a big one in Trafalgar Square last year, that Nelson, on the monument, you know, turned quite pale with alarm."

Edna laughs—she is always ready with her soft, musical laugh, with or at this new friend of hers—and they stand for a few minutes watching the fireworks.

"That's not a bad one," says Cyril—some particularly bright and savage specimen of the pyrotechnic art bursts in the sky with a whiz, and showers down a myriad of colored balls—"not at all bad."

"Oh, look at the lake!" exclaims Edna, enthusiastically, as the whole scene is encircled by a blaze of red fire. "It is beautiful, is it not?—though one is always inclined to look upon fireworks with contempt. I wonder where it is?" she adds, slowly and wistfully.

"Not far," suggests Cyril.

"No; and there's the hand. It's at the National—the Yankee's Paradise, as they call it. I dare say the whole of the quay is illuminated."

"Pity we can't see it from here," remarks Cyril. "If we were a little lower down—"

Edna looks wistfully down the road and into the dim distance. "Just at the bend we should see everything," says Cyril. "Hadin't we better go?"

Edna looks back at the house eagerly, hesitatingly.

"Do you think about mind?" she asks with the wistfulness of a child and the gravity of a woman combined.

"I should think not. There are some of the others going. I should think. Hark! They're scrunching down that beasty path now! Come along—just to the corner!"

"But this antimacassar—" exclaims Edna.

"Tuck the fringe in," says Cyril, with all a man's indifference. "That's it—there's a bit out; may I—"

And he turns in half an inch that has escaped her with almost unnecessary nicety; but though his fingers tremble and thrill as they come in contact with her soft, warm neck and silky hair, she stands quite serene and unconscious, her glorious eyes turned with wistful eagerness toward the fireworks, her whole thoughts upon them.

"Come along," says Cyril, having made the antimacassar look as commonplace and proper as possible; and, without further parley, they run—yes, Sir Cyril, the bliss, finds himself running like a schoolboy!—down the hill.

"Here we are," he says, as they gain a point of view.

"Isn't it beautiful? Isn't it really grand?" exclaims Edna, as she stands on tiptoe, unconsciously clinging to Cyril's arm to do so with ease. "They've surpassed themselves."

"Nobody more surprised than the striker, as we say at billiards," says Cyril. "Who'd think stепен'orth of red fire would so alter a scene?"

"Sixpennyworth!" exclaims Edna, indignantly. "This will cost the town pounds—oh, ever so many pounds! Look at that fountain! And—yes, I declare! I thought so! They are dancing on the terrace!"

"So they are," says Cyril, with exasperating coolness. "It's a regular carnival."

Edna watches and listens breathless. The band is as good as the fireworks, and the strains of Strauss' last and best waltz float up with the red fire.

Her little foot beats time unconsciously.

"How I should like to be down there—to see them!" she murmurs, almost inaudibly.

"Nothing easier," says Cyril, moving.

"Oh, no!" she says, drawing back.

"Why not?" asks Cyril. "No one will see us—all the rest of the people have gone down. I expect. And look there!" he goes on, pointing below, "there's a dark corner there, where the light doesn't get. An elephant might stand there and not be noticed. Come along! Surely you can trust yourself in the crowd with me?"

Edna laughs as she looks up at him towering above her.

"If I had only told aunt."

"Tell her when you come back," suggests Cyril.

"Yes, I'll do that," returns Edna, quite simply, and then, having hesitated, she is lost, and in another minute they are running down the hill again.

Past the cathedral, glowing crimson, as if it were blushing at the unwonted gayety—down the steps, worn by how many thousands of ascending and descending worshippers, they go; and now Edna clings rather more closely to her companion, for here is the crowd, and in another moment they are in it.

Like all holiday crowds, it is a good-tempered one, and though there is much pushing, there is a great deal of laughter, and Cyril is able to pilot his way to the dark corner, and by the time they have reached it all Edna's compunction and hesitation had flown, and she stands watching the brilliant scene with flushed cheeks and brightly beaming eyes.

Every now and then when there is a larger explosion or a greater crush than usual—for the crowd ways to and fro like a pendulum—her little hand clings tighter on Cyril's arm, and she creeps closer to his protecting side. She is perfectly happy, and Cyril? The brilliant display of colored fires, set pieces and rockets, yes, even the efforts of the band itself, are lost on him. He has eyes only for the sweet, unconscious child beside him, feels only the gentle pressure of her small, warm hand. And now there is a sudden increase of the excitement—the great fountain which has been turned down, throws its contents fifty feet in the air, under a stream of limelight, the band breaks out into a gallop, the crowd cheers and sways back for a moment to allow a band of dancers to break into the center, and the dance commences.

It is a wild, Parisian galop, such as one may have seen in full swing at the Mouth Rouge, or on the Corso at carnival time, danced to a time that is simply maddening, and under a great sky of crimson fire.

Edna utters a low cry of delight. "Isn't it beautiful—really beautiful? It is Lucerne gone mad! Look at that lady—hesitating a moment—how she dances! It is just like a theater. See, here she comes!" and she leans a little forward to get a nearer view.

Cyril turns his eyes in the direction of hers, and sees a magnificently dressed woman whirling toward them in the arms of a tall Englishman. The light is so strange, the pace so fast, that for the moment he does not recognize them; but as they come nearer, he sees more clearly; and as he recognizes Lord Jerry and Miss Glitters, he draws—almost jerks—Edna back into the shadow.

Quick as the involuntary movement has been, it is only half in time, for the sharp eye of the actress has caught a glimpse of the sweet face on the edge of the crowd, and she has directed her companion's attention to it.

But Lord Jerry is not quick, mentally or physically, and whiffs he is starting in every direction but the right one, he and his partner have whirled on, and have gone.

"Did you see them?" asked Edna. "Was I too much in the light?—I hope no one saw me."

"No, I think not. I hope I didn't pull you back too sharply," says Cyril, and he laughs, but rather constrainedly.

"Oh, no," says Edna. "But did you see the two I meant?—a very tall man, an Englishman, I'm sure, and a lady I have seen somewhere—why, yes!"

See If the Child's Tongue is Coated.

Mother! Don't hesitate! If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue. Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Tell How to Stop a Bad Cough

Surprising results from this famous old home-made syrup. Is depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold, accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, in your child, wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means for relieving severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

But Lord Jerry is not quick, mentally or physically, and whiffs he is starting in every direction but the right one, he and his partner have whirled on, and have gone.

"Did you see them?" asked Edna. "Was I too much in the light?—I hope no one saw me."

"No, I think not. I hope I didn't pull you back too sharply," says Cyril, and he laughs, but rather constrainedly.

"Oh, no," says Edna. "But did you see the two I meant?—a very tall man, an Englishman, I'm sure, and a lady I have seen somewhere—why, yes!"

Look at the tongue. Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Dominions Ask Admission to National League.

DOMINIONS' CLAIMS.

PARIS, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—New claims which characterized in official circles the most momentous that came before the Peace Conference before the Peace Conference will be raised by the self-governing dominions of the British Empire in connection with the formation of a League of Nations. The dominions will ask to be admitted to the League on the same basis as the self-governing states, whose sovereignty as international affairs are concerned, has been recognized clearly by the League of Nations. The dominions of the British Empire, including Canada, Australia, New Zealand and to a lesser degree South Africa will claim the same status as the self-governing states. In some quarters this is held to mean that should the League be formed, the dominions would be on an equal footing with the self-governing states in all matters of international law. The dominions have for several years claimed the same absolute independence as the self-governing states, but this has never been formally admitted by England. The dominions will now ask for it.

DANGER OF BOLSHEVISM.

LONDON, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—The Ottawa Agency—learns that, according to the most reliable news from Russia, the Bolsheviks for a long time past have been organizing elaborate propaganda for Russia in China, India and Persia, and are now ready as soon as the opportunity offers to send agents to stir up trouble throughout Asia. The great danger with which the Bolsheviks are faced in their revolutionary plans is the existence of the Omsk army at present effectively bars the way to Asia, via the Ural front. It is reported that the army has been weakened, and owing to lack of support and encouragement were unable to integrate the Bolshevik plans very seriously threaten the safety of Asia. Dangers of Bolshevik expansion on the east are gradually becoming realized, and the danger of their activities in the east is also very real. The most recent information received from British sources shows that Bolshevism is spreading in the Ukraine. The Ukraine directorate with headquarters in Kiev is a weak body without any decided policy. Its attitude towards Bolshevism is most vacillating and there is a current opinion that it favors an agreement with the Bolsheviks. Although General Denikin's troops are nominally fighting the Bolsheviks in the east-Ukraine, there are many Bolsheviks in his army upon whom he can rely. At the same time in Kiev the surrounding districts the Bolsheviks are showing great activity. It is known that Bolsheviks have returned there.

RELIEVES IN INTERVENTION.

PARIS, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—The Russian question was again taken up by the Supreme Council of the League of Nations at its session at 10.30 o'clock. There was a full attendance of the members of the Council for this session, being present for the first time since his recent trip to Rome. Lord Scarswell, the Danish Minister to Russia, who had been asked to give his views on the Russian situation to the Council to-day, arrived at the Foreign Office as the members assembled and immediately went into the conference chamber. The minister related his experiences in Petrograd where he took charge of the

Our American Letter.

Charleston, South Carolina, Jan. 15. I have referred in a previous letter to the marked resemblance which the mountaineers of North Carolina bear to the people of the Newfoundland outports. It is somewhat startling to hear expressions which one believed were confined to parts of Conception Bay like Harbor Main and Ca'onear. It is pure Anglo-Saxon that is spoken, unadorned by the many strange idioms which have crept into the language since Shakespeare's day and it seems like going back to the golden age of English letters to listen to the speech of these illiterate farmers. The customs and manners of the people also suggest the simple, God-fearing lives of our outport residents, if we except the family feuds which have sometimes lasted more than a century. At Christmas time they have their "mummers," dressed in outlandish costumes and acting in the same manner as in Newfoundland. One must go beyond the fashionable hotels at Asheville and other resorts in order to see these people at their best. Hendersonville, a beautiful mountain town, is but a short carriage ride from the homes of these sturdy people.

Their hospitality is most marked and they do not stand on ceremony in making the acquaintance of the stranger. One must be prepared after a few days sojourn to be familiarly called by his first name and invited to scores of their simple functions. To refuse without an excuse that seems to them good and sufficient, would be to commit the greatest social faux pas that the mountain region knows. And to the person who is tired of the stiff formality and the artificial decorum of so-called civilized society their entertainments are a never ending delight. One becomes a boy again and seems to see in retrospect the golden, carefree days when life is made of the wild, and what these children of the wild, and what they cannot tell about woodcraft is not worth the knowing. Tales of ghosts, of bears of were-wolves and the strange happenings in the brooding silent mountains form the theme of their stories. And these stories are told with a strength of expression that a master of word wizardry would might envy. The novelist would here find an almost untapped source of virgin material if he took the trouble to study the ways and habits of these people.

THE GERMAN ELECTION.

BERLIN, Jan. 20. (By the A.P.)—Returns from all sections of Germany are coming into Berlin slowly. Based on incomplete election returns available at 8 o'clock to-night, the Majority Socialists had from 43 to 45 of the total vote. With the Independent Socialists and the German Democrats the Majority Socialists will constitute the left of the Nationalist Assembly, with 65 per cent. of the seats. The Democratic Party has made an excellent showing and may outstrip the Centrists in the final count. The Independent Socialists made a strong eleventh hour rally in Berlin and probably will get four out of fourteen seats from Greater Berlin. The Majority Socialists will get five seats from Greater Berlin, the Democrats two and the three parties on the right one each. The official final count of the national vote probably will not be available before Wednesday. Numerous votes in Berlin are being contested by Independent Socialists, who charge the Majority Socialists with having used an illegal caption on their party ballot.

PRINCE JOHN'S BURIAL.

LONDON, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—The body of Prince John, the youngest son of King George, who died on Saturday night last, was buried with simple ceremonies in the Sandringham churchyard at noon to-day. King George, Queen Mary and all the members of the Royal Family were present at the services. At the conclusion of the ceremony King George cast a number of bouquets of flowers into the young Prince's grave.

SHOT FROM BEHIND.

BERLIN, Jan. 20. (By the A.P.)—The autopsy on the body of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Spartacan leader, who was shot and killed last week as he was trying to escape from the party of soldiers which had arrested him in suppressing the Spartacan revolt, showed that he was shot from behind and that the bullets which struck him were from some distance. Rosa Luxemburg's body has not been found despite a continuous search.

BOLSHEVIK DEFEAT.

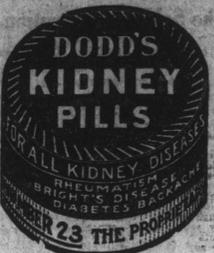

LONDON, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—A notable success has been won against the Bolsheviks by Estonian troops operating in the northeast of Lake Peipus, according to an Estonian official statement received by wireless in Stockholm to-day and transmitted here. They have taken the town of Narva, on the Reval-Petrograd railway line, together with a large number of prisoners. Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik War Minister, it is said, was present in Narva during the fighting and fled after the Bolshevik defeat.

LANDED AT PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, Jan. 21. (A.P.)—Capt. Jos. F. Porter and crew of the British barque John, abandoned one hundred miles southwest of Cape Race, Nfld., on Sunday, were brought here to-day by the British steamer Bayano. The John sailed from Oporto with a cargo of salt for St. John's Nfld., her home port, on Dec. 12. On the night of Jan. 12, she ran into a southwest gale that stripped her of her axis and left her helpless in heavy seas. The barque drifted for two hundred miles while the crew suffered from the biting cold, with a short supply of biscuits and fresh water.

ENGLAND HAS FURNISHED TWO QUEENS

TRUCK IN THE SERVICE OF YOUR ARMY.

The name of the late husband who died in France with decorations by order of the army, of his daughter and by his wife family, considering the correct attitude and considering the painful position of the military auto-driver, under the strict laws of military discipline, I have the honor to plead in his favor for your indulgence.

After the pain and suffering resulting from the accident which I hope is only temporary, it will be profoundly painful to us to think that a brave soldier who came to defend us may be punished severely for an act for which he is not to blame.

Trusting in your kindness, Commander, will you receive kindly the assurance of our high regard.

The present plight of Europe is pitiable. While diplomats of the old school are wrangling over economical and geographical boundary lines, the Red Terror is spreading over a large section of the war-torn continent. In Germany the various groups of agitators have complicated the situation to such an extent that heroic measures must be taken if we are to wrest from our erst-while enemy the indemnities we demand. From Russia comes the tide of Bolshevism sweeping before it the few conservatives who stand for a sane government and rallying to its standard the murderous elements who for four years made peaceful France and Belgium a veritable hell. Even in France, Italy and England the poison of this dreadful menace has spread to an alarming extent.

It is quickly checked the possibility of further political and social upheavals will be ever present. By the irony of fate Germany has been called upon to bear the brunt of the fight against the hideous new enemy. But as Germany is deficient to a great degree in high moral perception it is doubtful if she can do much to stem the tide.

If Bolshevism, as it exists in Russia, succeeds in gaining the upper hand in Germany the danger of the rest of Europe will be no more argument of the imagination. Here is where General Pershing's advice to his soldiers on the eve of battle will be needed. "Look to the Cross," said the brave commander on that dark day preceding the taking of Chateau-Thierry. And "look to the Cross" must be the watch-word of the nations in the present crisis. The Cross saved the French Army at the first battle of the Marne and it is all powerful still. Athelism and irreligion must vanish from the councils of the nations or our armies with all their prowess and clan will go down like chaff before the merciless fall of the outraged One who has waited patiently for many years the return of the old belief in the omnipotence of God. The nation which fears God cannot expect anything but disaster.

If the war has restored the old faith and trust in the Heavenly Father we may rest assured that it has not been fought in vain and that Bolshevism or a similar enemy to peace and happiness cannot long prevail.

W. M. DOOLEY.

poor. It does not begin to compare with the herring received in the New York market a year ago. There is a predominance of mauls and smaller fish, and the selection and grading of the several sizes has not been carefully made, if, in all cases it has been attempted at all. St. John's received here last week were of an ordinary quality. In some of the barrels there were spent herring or large size and in others the middle of the barrels were packed with small fish. These packages are not suitable for New York market, and it is doubtful if the trade will be able to market them without first repacking and grading the fish at a considerable expense. According to New York representatives just returned from Newfoundland there is a great percentage of herring packed this way this year. The proportion of fancy herring is small, they state, and it is difficult to find lots that run consistently good. Those who paid the top prices have not fared much better than those who purchased at low figures. It is reported as an evidence of this that some packages of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring have actually been sold here as low as $24 per barrel. So far as the trade is concerned there will be little Newfoundland herring handled here this year unless there is further decline in prices. Importers do not appear to be willing to "take chances" on uncertain quality at the unreasonable prices that have been asked. Although some have purchased, it is estimated that the entire purchases do not aggregate more than 7,500 barrels, and this, as one puts it, is "only a drop in the bucket." The fishery in Newfoundland has not been large, and it is indeed unfortunate that the quality of the fish was not better. The trade, however, is making plans to purchase elsewhere, and in all probability there will be a great demand for Scotch herring during the summer of 1919. Many importers who have withdrawn from the Newfoundland market, are preparing to send representatives or to purchase direct from exporters in Scotland. Some are making inquiries in Holland and other herring producing countries.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Jan. 11th.

Newfoundland Scotch cured herring at $19, f. o. b. St. John's for immediate shipment, is vastly more interesting to the trade here than the same herring at $23 @25, f. o. b. Newfoundland outports. But the lower price comes at a time when herring importers are fully acquainted with the fact that the quality of the fish this year is inferior to that of a year ago and that grading has been undertaken only in a haphazard sort of way. Some of the packages received here in the first shipment have contained an assortment of large fish, empty herring of large size and a percentage of small fish. Newfoundland packers who have sold to the New York market in years past know that packing of this kind is not desirable here. If the fish were costly, and it seemed expedient in such circumstances to use all sizes in a single barrel when packing, the experiment doubtless was temporarily profitable; but this kind of deception does not work for good, and the trade of New York cannot let the matter pass unnoticed. In another year there may be a keener desire on the part of Newfoundland packers to sell their products to this market, and then the New York importer will have the opportunity to express his dissatisfaction perhaps in a more-to-be-felt-manner. With Scotch and Yarmouth and Holland herring available, the Newfoundland packers of herring will have to make their goods competitive, both as to quality and price, and they must understand that no such herring will sell here then. The belief prevails in New York that the Newfoundland herring, because of his overzealousness and greed this year, will be the loser when the New York importer is more favorably situated and the Newfoundland herring is not in so advantageous a position.—Editorial, N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Fish--The Factor.

If there was one thing, more than another, developed by the four years of almost universal warfare, it was the knowledge that fish is one of the greatest factors to be reckoned with in the future well being of the world. During the period of conflict it was shown that fish was in greater demand than ever before, and that its value as a food is equal to, if not greater than, any that we eat. Nor since the conclusion of the fighting has the demand for fish foods lessened. On the contrary it has increased, the countries best able to afford it continuing to pay prices, which in the piping days of peace were undreamed of. While it is true that the European markets, to which we have, for centuries, been sending large quantities of our dry fish products, particularly those of Spain, Portugal, Italy and Greece, have declined considerably, because of the strain upon their finances, consequent upon their participation in the great struggle it is equally true that they must have the article as supplied by Newfoundland in greater quantities than ever. There is evidence in this that we will not have to seek new outlets for our dry staple, because of any shortage in consumption in these established markets. So long as our fishermen continue to cure codfish, by drying, go long will our European customers buy of us. Once conditions across get straightened out, the consumption of Newfoundland stocks will be on the rise.

In addition to the continental transatlantic market for dry fish, the United Kingdom offers a promising future to the export of fresh frozen fish of every edible variety swimming in our waters. The experiment of shipping a part cargo under refrigeration, by the S.S. Bayano, had a most successful ending. With regard to this the opinion of Sir Thomas Robinson, a leading fish-merchant and steam trawler owner of Grimsby, England, will be worth quoting. He said he had inspected the fish on arrival and found the condition excellent. The fish had been carefully dealt with before freezing at St. John's, and that he had never seen finer fish, than the variety, consisting of cod, haddock, wolffish, turbot, herring and caplin, brought from Newfoundland by the Bayano. No words could be more encouraging than these, and though the frozen fish industry in Newfoundland is only in its infancy, there is nothing to prevent it growing into lusty manhood and becoming one of the chief of our wealth producers. There are wonderful possibilities in this new phase, ahead of us. All we need is increased cold storage facilities both afloat and ashore, with large recycling depots at the important fishing centres, and the necessary ships equipped with refrigerating plants for the transportation of cargoes as they are ready. Without these there is no future for a big trade in frozen fish. With them, the consummation is assured.

Another vast market nearer our shores is also always open to receive all the fish we can supply--that of the United States. Notwithstanding the fleets of fishermen sent out from the ports of the New England States into the Atlantic and from the harbors of the Western States washed by the Pacific, the supply brought to land is not large enough to satisfy the ever increasing demand for more fish. No further testimony of the inability of the United States fishermen to supply sufficient fish food to the millions in the Union, need be given than to point to the number of salt cod cargoes which are being constantly shipped from Newfoundland to American ports, and instead of shortening, the quantities are annually advancing. We need not refer to the run which is made by United States buyers on our herring, year after year as the fishery opens. Enough has been said to show that our opportunities and prospects were never greater than now, and we shall be foolish indeed if we neglect to take advantage of them. Fish is the coming factor in more countries than this. But with our inexhaustible supplies and the introduction of more modern methods of catch and cure, Newfoundland will continue to hold her own, as she has ever done, and be easily first, the chief fish producing country in the world.

The Evangelists.

The mildness of the weather favoured the work of the Evangelists yesterday, and as a result they had a large congregation present at each of the meetings.

In the afternoon the meeting for women only, was held, and it proved very interesting and also profitable. The subject was that of "Family Religion," and it centred around the quiet home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus, at Bethany. Perhaps no other abode, of the many into which the Master entered, was as dear to Him as was that of Bethany. The love of the devoted sisters was, no doubt, one of the attractive features of that home, and the companionship of Lazarus, the brother whom they loved, was another; but it was all sanctified by the presence of their Divine Lord who, though maker of all things, had not where to lay His head, and who so often rested in its quiet circle. From this home, and from the strict religious devotion which was there observed, Mrs. Demarest drew the lessons of her discourse, and for the space of some thirty-five minutes she spoke of these elements which go to make up the truly Christian home. There were many things to combine in this, but one of the most important was that of family prayer, known as the family altar. This altar was, as it were, the heaven of the home, and next to love itself, it was the safeguard of the family. All the lessons which the speaker drew from the story of the home at Bethany were well received and they were delivered in that gentle spirit which is specially a woman's province. Mrs. Demarest did well, and though she had to sit down to finish her address, she was none the less at home in her good work.

The subject of the evening address was that of "The Samaritan Woman" and not "Fishers of Men," as announced. The Evangelist read the story of this woman as it is recorded in the fourth chapter of St. John's Gospel, and if she had closed the Book without making one comment upon the chapter, her manner of reading it was of itself a lesson worth learning. In her comments she referred to the Jewish people and of the prominent place they have held in history and in prophecy, and also in salvation. She then dealt with the woman and her standing and character, and how she was despised by those who knew her; even the disciples wondered at their Master talking to her. Like lots of people to-day the disciples were small and failed to see that God is no respecter of persons.

The conversation at the well led to the stay of the Master among the people of the place for two days, and in that time they found out that which greater and more highly favoured people had failed to do; they found out that He who spoke to them was the Messiah, and that He was the Saviour of the world.

The address was fifty minutes in delivery, and was amply illustrated by stories which had come under the speaker's personal attention. One story in particular was very applicable, it was that of a good minister and his wife who had in their home some valuable chinaware, but who did not know it, but in a time of stress and penury they realized its worth. They had suffered, but had they known the value of the old china they would not have had to do so, and so with the woman at the well. Had she known who it was that spoke to her she would have asked of Him for water greater than she could draw--even from Jacob's well.

All the lessons drawn from this Bible story by Mrs. Demarest last night were just such as the people fully understand; and whether one would call the discourse a sermon, or a Bible reading, or a Gospel talk, it does not matter much, for, as of old, "the common people heard gladly." Thus the crowd continues to attend, not because the Evangelist has any new Gospel, but because she tells of the Old Gospel in such a manner as suits the toiling masses of the day. She seems to have something that some of the churches have missed--the power to attract the people.--I. C. M.

Dr. Bond's Suggestion.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:--I am in hearty support with Dr. Blackall's suggested monument to Ricketts, V.C., and herewith enclose my dollar for the list. But surely something worthy should be done for the gallant fellow himself, and the wisest thing, it seems to me, would be to provide him with the means of obtaining the very best education of which he is capable for the business or profession, for which, after adequate educational preparations he proves himself to be most adapted and inclined. An amount sufficient for that purpose could easily be raised by public subscription and placed in the hands of trustees--say the Council of Higher Education--who would direct and provide for his educational future, and equip him to make the most of himself in the battle of life with the same signal honour and success that he has achieved in the fight for his King and Country. We ought to do something more for this brave lad than give him the glad hand and a passing hurrah. Among our many heroes known and unknown, rewarded and unrewarded, he stands out as the winner of the highest distinction for valor, the Victoria Cross. He deserves a reward that he cannot lose, that he cannot be robbed of, that will last him and do him good all the days of his life. I will give $25 dollars gladly, and feel it an honour to give it for such an object, if the proposal be taken up by the press & of public, as I hope it will be, forthwith. I enclose cheque.

Yours truly,
GEO. J. BOND.

Supreme Court.

Richard Power vs. James Crossin, Joseph Coombs, et al. Judgment was handed down yesterday by Mr. Justice Johnson in the above matter for the plaintiff. The case which was one of public interest, originated in the claim by the plaintiff as one of the public to use a cove known as Second Cove near Trepassay. The defendants claimed the ownership of the claim in the part of the shore. The Court held that the cove in question was public and granted the injunction claimed by the plaintiff with costs. The case which excited considerable local interest occupied the attention of the Court two days and a considerable number of witnesses were examined. Mr. J. A. Barron appeared for the plaintiff and Hon. W. J. Higgins, K. C. for the defendant.

The Soldiers' Reception.

The Ladies' Reception Committee is desirous that every soldier returning on the Corsican receive at least one package of cigarettes on their arrival. This can only be done through the generosity of the friends of the soldiers, and the Committee is therefore asking all who would like to contribute smokes to send either the money or the cigarettes to Mrs. John Browning or to Mrs. Paterson. However, this appears to be a very clumsy method of acquiring cigarettes to distribute to the soldiers, and in reality amounts to nothing less than charity, be the action veiled as it may. The Government should devote a certain amount of money each time for this gift to the returning soldiers, and instead of handing each one a package, let him take it himself from a box containing them. This box could have a sign attached to it, as--"Help Yourself, Heroes," or something of the kind, and we are confident that the cigarettes would be much more appreciated by the boys.

Experiences of the Crew

Of the Schooner Arkona.

The United States coast guard cutter Tallapoosa reached port yesterday afternoon with the crew of the Gloucester schooner Arkona on board. The Tallapoosa left Halifax on January 7th for Forteau Bay, Labrador, to rescue the Argona's crew, who were reported as being in want at the place mentioned, after the schooner had become a total wreck on the Labrador coast. The cutter also took supplies for the inhabitants of Forteau Bay. The Tallapoosa had a trying experience since leaving Halifax on January 7. She anchored at Port Saunders, Newfoundland, at 2 p.m. A gale sprang up and they had to remain a day longer. On January 11th they got away. Heavy ice fields were struck in the Straits, but after several attempts they made Forteau Bay in the afternoon. The Arkona's crew were taken on board. Then the cutter started to return, encountering an increasing gale, which lasted throughout January 13th. One of the Tallapoosa's boats were wrecked and other damage sustained. Captain S. T. Stone and crew of eight men of the Arkona arrived on the Tallapoosa. The Arkona sailed from Gloucester on October 31st, for Halifax, and arrived here a few days later. She loaded salt at Smith's wharf for Newfoundland, and sailed November 10. Heavy weather was encountered and she arrived at Cape Broyle about Nov. 25. On arrival there she was ordered to another harbor on the coast, thence to Springdale, and from there to Bay Islands, for which she was bound when wrecked.

The crew knew that the schooner would not float long, so one of the seamen set out with two large boards and a rope tied around his waist, for the shore. All around the vessel was slob ice which would upset a dory easily. The man managed to reach land, by using the boards as rafts. He hauled a three-quarter inch rope from the vessel, and made it fast to a large boulder on the cliff. The small rope, which he had tied around his waist was then fastened to the painter of a dory, in which was placed some provisions and three men were placed in it. By him hauled on this rope, and those in the dory hauling on the fastened line, the three men were safely brought ashore. The remaining members of the crew came ashore in another dory, in the same way.

The schooner broke up that night. The men in an exhausted condition reached Forteau Bay. The wrecked crew have been forwarded to Boston.--Halifax Recorder, Jan. 16.

PATIENTS ADMITTED--Five patients suffering from influenza were admitted to the new wing of the Fever Hospital yesterday. Already the wing is nearly filled with "flu" patients who have been removed into this part so that the diphtheria sufferers may be treated in the main building as heretofore.

Awful Accident.

A burning accident, which may yet end in a fatality occurred this morning in the house of a family named Uke living near the foot of Buchanan Street. The husband who is ill, was being attended to by his wife, who had placed her infant daughter aged 1 1/2 yrs. in a rocking chair quite near the stove, in the kitchen. While the woman was ministering to the needs of the invalid she heard the child scream and at once left everything and rushed to the kitchen, when she was horrified to behold the little one in flames. The mother immediately took the child in her arms, in an attempt to extinguish her blazing garments, and eventually succeeded in doing so, at the cost of being severely burnt about the face and the loss of her hair. The child was badly scorched about the abdomen and suffered from severe burns in the nether limbs. Mr. Charles Jardine who was passing by at the time, heard the cries and went to the assistance of mother and child, subsequently telephoning for Dr. McDonald, who on arrival rendered first aid and had the suffering infant conveyed to the hospital, where her injuries, which are serious, are being looked after. Those who saw the little one after the accident say that her salvation from burning to death was a miracle, due only to the heroism of the mother.

Fighting in the Fog.

Some Exploits of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment in the Final Phases of the War.

Have you ever looked over your paparet across that expanse of disputed territory known as "No Man's Land" and saw rolling toward you a solid wave of dark gray vapour that is characteristic of October weather in Northern France? If not, you will want to picture the thickest fog from the Banks enveloping you in your vessel, and you will picture to some extent the surroundings of our Battalion on the morning of October 14th, 1918.

Just before "zero" hour the vapour settled down, and when the Regiment jumped "over the top" the artillery support and smoke barrage produced such a dense curtain that visibility was impossible and the advancing line of figures melted into the mist. The attacking waves swept on, gradually breaking into little groups, until Capt. C. S. Frost, commanding "B" Co., and at the time the Senior Officer in the advance, found himself past Ledingham with Pte. Geo. Miflet and A. Langdon as his only colleagues. Suddenly a corrugated view shelter was discernible in the mist, and on hearing guttural voices within, our trio promptly challenged and nine sheep-like Huns crawled out. On being questioned, one Bosche--who was negotiating for his life with a large bag of sugar which he tendered as a peace offering--undertook to guide our soldiers to a post across the road where six more Huns willingly surrendered. These made up a bag of fifteen prisoners, when Serg. J. Greens emerged from the fog and joined the Newfoundland quartette. No men were available for escort duty, so perforce the Huns were brought along with the attacking party. A further sortie brought more prisoners, and within one half hour, labouring in vapour that eclipsed London's thickest fog, wandering through villages that had been held by the enemy for over three years, practically surrounded by hostile sections and not knowing how the flanks were faring--Capt. Frost and his three faithful followers had captured seventy Germans. To collect such a number and continue to bring them forward would be foolishly hazardous, so the senior prisoner was directed to lead his comrades to the rear with one stolid Newfoundlandier as a guard, and seventy captives were sent towards the British lines.

And then, as suddenly, as the fog fell and enveloped the front trenches the vapour cleared away. Imagine the position of the trio on finding themselves right in the heart of the enemy lines, with a battery firing point blank and machine guns threatening the right flank.

To re-organise, however, did not take long, as the gallant little band were soon seen by the attacking line, and joined by Serg. F. Somerton and forty other men while the flanks were connected with the companies in the first waves.

From this stage of the proceedings some very gallant work was done--about which there will be more to write later, particularly in the case of Capt. H. Williamson, Lieut. A. S. Newman and W. McHenry and Pte. Ricketts--but no more hazardous exploit can be recorded in the stunt than that of the little isolated groups, pushing steadily onward through the blinding smoke and fog, and capturing prisoners that outnumbered them eighteen to one.

WOMEN'S PETITION.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—French women have addressed a petition to the members of the Conference, asking justice for thousands of women, children, who, it is said, were systematically torn from their families and subjected to the forms of ill-treatment at the hands of the Germans.

NEW C. G. R. STEAMER.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—A new Government steamer, Canada, which was completed recently, has sailed from Quebec for Halifax. She will be under the control of the Canadian Pacific Railways at Halifax.

TO SWISS PRESIDENT.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The President of the Swiss Confederation, arrived in Paris yesterday. He was met at the station by the Mayor of Paris, and accorded the honors usual in the case of a Government head. The President was warmly received by a crowd that had gathered, and gave him an ovation as he left.

BOLESHIEV PROPOSAL.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 21.—The former Bolshevik leader in London, who is in Sweden, forwarded on Saturday to the United States State Department, a letter in which he proposed that the original reasons for intervention in Russia, as set forth in the United States Declaration of War, should be abandoned. He stated that the time had come to come to an understanding with the American Government, and that the time had come to place before the Soviet representatives to the United States, a proposal that the United States officers should no longer underwrite their activities in Russia.

PARLIAMENTARY DEMANDS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—The Dáil Éireann met at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. The speaker, while a declaration of independence was read, announcing the establishment of an Irish Republic, and demanding the withdrawal of British troops from Ireland by the British Government.

BOLESHIEV PROPOSAL.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The House of Commons today passed a resolution that the Government should make every effort to secure the withdrawal of British troops from Ireland by the British Government.

WILL THEY GO BACK.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Are the German Trans-Atlantic cables to be given back to Germany? The issue is discussed in today's Matin. It points out that the two cables were cut four hours after the British declaration of war, by a British cruiser, close to Fayal in the Azores. The cables thus became prizes of war, Great Britain taking one and France the other. Great Britain used hers in connection with her own cable lines to Canada, while France made no use of the line which she was allotted.

COURT IN MOURNING.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The British Court will go into mourning for a month from January 20, for the death of Prince John, and into half mourning for a fortnight thereafter.

DOMINIONS TO TAKE PART.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter's learns from an authoritative source, that in order to assist the League of Nations section, the British Cabinet, at a very early stage in the proceedings, appointed a committee of representatives of all Dominions, to consult with the section. Several meetings of this committee have been held and among other things, full consideration has been given to the part which the Dominions will play in the League of Nations Committee.

NOT UNANIMOUS.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The attitude of the various powers towards Russia, is summed up to-day in a statement which states that the situation stands as follows:—The Allies were unanimously for intervention, on conditions that the Allies were unanimously for Great Britain, through Premier Lloyd George, has expressed a desire for intervention limited to the coasts of the Caspian Sea, leaving to Russia the adjustment of her own affairs in the interior. President Wilson seems to agree with the latter conception, and to be still hoping to see the Bolsheviks, in the process of evolution, establish a regime less resembling an anarchical one. Japan has not yet agreed to consider the possibility of prolonging the action she has undertaken in Siberia.

CONSIDERING RUSSIA.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The Supreme Council's afternoon session lasted from 3 o'clock to five o'clock. The statement of the President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of the Allied Powers, assisted by the Japanese representatives, met today at the Quai d'Orsay, from 10.30 to 12.45 in the morning, and in the afternoon from 3 to 5. In the morning, M. Scavenius, Danish Minister to Russia, gave all the information at his disposal on the various parties in Russia. In the afternoon the discussion of those questions was continued. Very great progress toward an agreement was made, and it is hoped to formulate a concrete proposal on this subject to-morrow. The question of the procedure of the conference was discussed. The next meeting will take place at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. The Supreme Council of the Great Powers hope to formulate a concrete proposal on Russia at to-morrow's meeting. This was the definite official announcement of the communique issued to-night, after the Council had been considering the Russian situation continuously for the past two days.

FIGHTING IN BUDAPEST.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21.—It is reported that there have been counter revolutionary demonstrations, led by officers at Budapest, and that there has been conflicts with the police in which bloodshed resulted.

LICHNOWSKI'S VIEWS.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Prince Lichnowski, former German Ambassador to Great Britain, today said, in the course of a statement to the Associated Press, "A peace of right and justice, provided it is not merely to be a peace behind which a peace of violence conceals itself, as a Pax Britannica, can only be such a Peace as neither enslaves nor mutilates the conquered, and which leaves him the possibility of recuperating, of paying his debts and of entering with complete confidence into the peaceful competition of a society of nations. A League of Nations which has its roots in 'is' status, and is not in the hearts of peoples, is worthless."

LABOR CONGRESS.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—An adjourned conference of the League of British Labor with Samuel Gompers and other American Labor delegates, now in England, has reported an agreement to form a committee for an International Trades Union congress. A committee of five will be appointed to represent British Labor at the new congress, and to aid in organizing it. Mr. Gompers will confer with the British committee in the next few days, to formulate plans for the congress, and to select an early date for the meeting, in order that the congress may meet simultaneously with the Peace Conference.

Court Mourning.

22nd January, 1919. Sir, His Excellency the Governor is in receipt of a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, intimating that Court Mourning for His Royal Highness Prince John shall be twenty-eight days from Tuesday 21st January, followed by fourteen days Half Mourning.

WILL GET OUR SHARE.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(Via Reuter's)—The Times' Paris correspondent says that in order to insure direct representation at the Peace Conference in all discussions where five big powers participate, the British Government has decided to allocate a fifth seat to a Dominion representation by two delegates, when their special interests are concerned, at the sittings of full conference. It is evident through this allocation of the fifth seat to Newfoundland, who failed to secure the status of the big Dominions, that she will get her share of direct representation.

HUGHES DISCUSSES CLAIMS.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Premier Hughes of Australia, discussing the claims of the Dominions with the Associated Press, said, "We have earned the right by our sacrifices and efforts in this great war to a place in the family of nations. We expect to come in with the same status as any other nation. So far as I understand it, President Wilson's conception of the League of Nations is that all nations shall come in on a basis of equality, the nations to come in as entities and retain their sovereign rights as nations." That being so, of course once the status of nationhood is established, the Dominions would come in as the other nations and would be accorded whatever right they have.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Sunday's snow storm spoiled the skating in the different outdoor places where skating was indulged in. A number of young men volunteered yesterday to clear away the snow, which they did. A large number of fair ones and their gentlemen friends enjoyed the beautiful sheet of ice and the fine weather last night.

The town was shocked yesterday at noon to hear that our well known citizen, Sub-Inspector W. B. Bailey, had passed away quite suddenly. The funeral takes place this afternoon. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Bailey and family in their sudden and terrible bereavement.

Two old people, Mr. and Mrs. John Filler, died last week at the home of Mr. Charles George, Bannerman St.

There are still a large number of people confined to their homes with the prevailing illness. Dr. Cron is kept continually on the move relieving the sufferers.

The three-masted schooner Inspiration was towed to port this forenoon with a load of salt for Munn & Co.

Mr. R. S. Munn, who is now at Montreal visiting his mother, expects to leave for home in a few days.

Owing to the storm on Sunday very few people were about and the churches were poorly attended.

Mr. Frank Ward of the Bay Roberts Cable Staff, left by this morning's train, in company with several other cable men, whose names we were unable to ascertain, for Sydney where they will be stationed for a few months.

SYMONDS-PYNN.

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, Jan. 14th, at St. Stephen's Church, Sandy Point, Bay St. George, when Mr. Arthur Symonds, of St. John's, was united in wedlock to Miss Florence Pynn, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Selby Pynn, St. George's. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Symonds entrained for St. John's, and are at present residing at their home 102 Barnes' Road. Mr. Symonds, familiarly known as "Artie," is one of our most popular and obliging cabbies and his many friends in the city and elsewhere will wish him and his bride a pleasant journey over the sea of matrimony.

For the Apostles of "No Humiliation."

(Certain people have proclaimed their opinion that the German nation ought not to be humiliated.)

By Sir Owen Seaman.

Rumors arrive as thick as swarming bees.
Our evening rags announced with raucous clamor
The latest wire, the semitonal whines
Transmitted by the fertile Hotten-dammer,
Giving a local version
Of William Two's spontaneous dispersion.

They leave me cold. I care not now who pays
The heavy debt his deeds of wanton fury owe—
Whether he puts his orb to bed or stays
On exhibition like an antique curio;
The reckoning we charge
Has to be settled by the Hun at large.

Here and elsewhere his advocates impute
Innocence to the Boche—a gentle creature,
Too prone perhaps to lick the tyrant's boot.
But otherwise without a vicious feature;
They'd have our wrath abated;
Poor child, "he must not be humiliated."

Why not. Against his army's bestial crimes
He never lifted one protecting finger;
The wrongs of Belgium drew his jocund rhymes;
Over the Hymn of Hate he loved to linger,
Pressing the forte pedal,
And wore—for luck—the Lusitania medal.

He took a holiday for children slain,
And butchered women set his flags aflutter.
Our drowning anguish served for light refrain
To heavy patriots going down the gutter;
On prisoners he spat,
The helpless ones, and thanked his Gott for that.

Had he fought as decent nations fight,
Clean-handed then we must have spared his honor;
But now, if Germany goes down in night,
Shame not of more defeat,
But such that never our hands again can meet.

Why should his pride of race be spared a fall?
Let him go humble all his days for sentence,
Why pity him as just a Kaiser's thrall,
This beast at heart!—the fear may take repentance?
For me, when all is said,
I save my pity for our murdered dead.

WAR MEMORIALS.—It was suggested at a recent meeting of the Kent Education Committee that war memorials should, in some cases, take the form of school buildings. Some public schools in England are already following out this idea.

Dr. Howlett Lectures.

Dr. Howlett faced a representative audience at St. Joseph's last night, to whom he discussed on "Oral Health" and the proper care of the teeth.

After being introduced by President Clooney the lecturer said that he had hesitated for a while to inflict himself on the public, but in view of the need of dental knowledge he had waived his personal feelings in the matter.

There would be, he added, a certain eccentricity about his remarks, but clearness required his speaking throughout in the first person. There was really no need for the apology; the epigram of the lecture was hardly perceptible, and it was an excellent piece of work from start to finish—expert and professional training and observation couched in the simplest language.

Only those who have tried, can really know how difficult it is for the specialist to make his learning comprehensible to the uninitiated.

Dr. Howlett explained the formation of the teeth and their place in nature's economy. He then went on to show how they become diseased, and thus a fruitful source of infection to the entire system.

Digestive disorders are the commonest results of bad teeth, but many other and more pernicious maladies may be traced to the same cause.

He explained how the great corporations and municipalities of the Over World are devoting daily more attention to the dental health of their employees and citizens.

He concluded with a few words to the mothers as to how they should care for their children's teeth. The lecture was listened to with breathless attention, and the audience showed they appreciated the interest Dr. Howlett had taken in their welfare.

After Dr. Kitchen had thanked the lecturer for his kindness in coming to St. Joseph's, the National Anthem was sung. Next Tuesday, January 28, P. J. Summers, K.C., will lecture on "Legal and Other Anecdotes."

Painful Injury.

Just after the train from Trepassay arrived on Monday evening, the mailman named Fowler, met with a very painful accident. Fowler was crossing from the mail coach into the second class car, not noticing that the cars were uncoupled.

Consequently the man fell, lacerating his abdomen somewhat badly. Dr. Fraser was called, and put several stitches in the wound. It will be some time ere the mailman can resume his duties.

AT THE BALSAM—The following are guests at Balsam Place:
F. W. Martin, Hickman's Hr.; A. J. Stundell, Hickman's Hr.; Geo. Brocklehurst, Carbonear.

To the Teachers of Newfoundland.

Ladies and Gentlemen—
May I suggest to you the advisability of entering upon the new year now opening out before us by uniting in closer and more solid formation to advance with the times in all the essential necessities of education.

Since the formation of the Newfoundland Teachers' Association, much has been accomplished for the benefit of the teaching profession, but there is still much room for improvement in many directions.

Our thanks are due especially to the gentlemen who have inaugurated the Summer School for the better training of teachers, and to the Government for its liberality in the splendid increase of 20 per cent. on the Educational Grants. In the latter I understand the Government was influenced somewhat by the representative of the Executive of the N.T.A.

To still further advance the interests of the Teachers and the cause of education it is necessary to have a convention as soon as possible. If you agree with this suggestion, send in your name with the yearly fee to the Secretary of the N. T. A. at once, and by so doing decide the question of a Convention in the summer of 1919.

The advances and improvements won must be protected, and plans formulated for still greater advancement. Let us then make a fresh start and lay our plans for more united action on all questions affecting the cause of education. In doing this for the general benefit of our country, and by pressing forward the better and more efficient training of all our teachers we shall have the support and assistance of all right-thinking people.

Yours sincerely,
R. H. RICHARDS,
President N.T.A.

Carbonear, Jan. 14th, 1919.

Empire Lodge S. O. E. Installation.

The largest gathering of members in the History of the Lodge was present last evening when the District Deputy, Bro. T. F. Thompson installed into office the newly-elected President, Bro. William H. Strong and the officers elected in December last. After the ceremony a banquet was held and thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The following was the toast list:

The King—Prop. by the President Supreme Lodge—Prop. by Bro. Jas. Chaffey; resp. Bro. T. F. Thompson, District Deputy.

Sister Lodges—Prop. Bro. A. G. Williams; resp. Bro. Robert Pike (Dudley); Bro. B. B. Harris (Diamond Jubilee).

Our Brethren on Active Service—Prop. Bro. C. E. Hunt; resp. Bro. Lieut. Joseph Snow; Bro. B. B. Harris.

Our Empire's Allies—Prop. Bro. G. T. Phillips; resp. Bro. C. K. Miller.

The Chairman—Prop. Bro. J. C. Phillips; resp. Bro. Wm. H. Strong.

The speeches were very interesting and abounded in humour and good fellowship. During the evening musical selections and songs were rendered by Bros. H. B. Chafe, C. Wiseman, Maxse Colton, C. Noonan, T. Hallett, and others.

Interesting Overseas Banquet.

An interesting overseas banquet took place at the Grosvenor Hotel, on Tuesday, Dec. 17th, 1918, when the senior officers of the home-grown timber branch of the Timber Control, with Sir James Ball in the chair, were hosts of the Canadian and Newfoundland Forestry Corps, who have been in this country for some years, and in France, in charge of the operations of their respective companies cutting down timber.

Mr. Walter Long, Secretary of State for the Colonies; Lord Morris; Dr. Lloyd, Prime Minister of Newfoundland; Colonel MacDougall, head of the Canadian Forestry Corps; Mr. M. M. Beston, organizer of the Newfoundland Forestry Battalion; Sir Edgar Bowring and others were present. Reciprocity of good fellowship and good feeling was exchanged, the great desire being to render more permanent the good relationship produced by the war and existing between the two companies.—The Financier.

Monday Night's Entertainment.

The comedy entitled: "A Tangled Skein, or Dott's Deception," will be reproduced at Canon Wood Hall, on Monday night, January 27th inst. The Llewellyn Dramatic Co. will be the performers. The comedy is in three acts, full of humour and is sure to be a source of enjoyment to all in attendance. Mr. T. F. Halley has been conducting the rehearsals for some time, with exceedingly good results. The characters have already been given in the pages of the Telegram. All who want to lose their worries and cares in mirth, and happiness cannot do less than attend this entertainment.

Haig's Reception.

Haig's tumultuous reception Women and soldiers formed the majority of the uproarious acclamers of Sir Douglas Haig lining the route. Trumpeters and cannon of old announced the coming of conquerors; to-day the aeroplane is their herald. When the crowds who waited outside Buckingham Palace heard droning music aloft and saw two glittering flights of aeroplanes they knew that the Field Marshal and his generals had arrived at Charing Cross. A cheer went up that travelled like a wave up Constitution Hill, swept with a roar round Hyde Park Corner, and travelled eastwards up Piccadilly to meet the wave of cheers that swept westwards in front of the victor and his paladins.

Instead of silently lining the route the soldiers were able to join the crowd and to cheer their leader to their heart's content. But, cheer their utmost, they could not outvie London's women. The shouts of the women made a chorus that gave a new note to the London cheer. People who waited on Constitution Hill and heard, across the park, the great wave of greeting roll down Piccadilly might have thought, by the treble key of that wind of human voices that an army of Amazons were gathered to greet their country's victor.

Flags hung from nearly every building. A balcony in Cockspur-street had the word "Tanks" blazoned on its drapery in 2 ft. letters. Twenty-seven bare-kneed boys and bonny-limbed little girls sat in a row on the garden wall of the Ritz Hotel and gave Sir Douglas Haig the cheer of the day. Wounded soldiers occupied the terraces at specially chosen points of vantage, or ramparts of bath-chairs in the front rows of the crowds.

The memorable thing yesterday was the enthusiasm and gratitude of London's women. Sir Douglas Haig drove by to a constant calling of "God bless you" from the mothers, wives and sweethearts of the men he has brought to victory and will soon bring home to that greater pageant of peace. There was another cry of the women, it was, "How handsome he is!"

The crush at the Hyde Park corner end of Constitution Hill was so great that five minutes before the arrival of the procession the road gates were closed, and people were directed to edge in along the sidewalk. Generals, colonels, captains, and their women-folk were in turn politely turned back. Then there came a pathetic little group—a slight, a Highlander, led by a nurse and a "pal" in khaki. The handsome special constable who held the gateway needed no further password, and amid approving murmurs of the crowd and the sighs of women the three passed in. The nurse held the Highlander's arm to indicate the direction of the procession, and he turned to face the great leader he could not see.

A soldier spectator who arrived late outside Buckingham Palace took his collapsible trench periscope from his pack and obtained an excellent view over the heads of the crowd.—London Daily Mail.

British Have Submarines 350 Feet Long.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The Admiralty to-day permitted to be made public the real story of the submarine cruisers the British successfully constructed at the time the Germans were boasting of their super-submarines.

The British craft have two funnels, and make twenty-four knots an hour on the surface under steam power. They carry from eight to ten torpedo tubes, two or three four-inch guns and also are equipped with internal combustion motors for surface cruising. The batteries for the undersea power can be charged from both the steam and combustion engines, and an ingenious scheme has been devised for quickly dismantling the funnels for the purpose of submerging.

The vessels displace 2,000 tons on the surface and 2,700 tons submerged. They are 30 feet long, have a beam of 25 feet, and a cruising radius of three thousand miles. They are designed to be even a match for torpedo boat destroyers in surface fighting.

It is also known that the British have successfully built a submarine carrying a twelve-inch gun, although the details of this craft have not been made public. The craft was built with the idea of making it possible to fire this gun, the new idea embraced in the construction including the "cushioning" of the boat to withstand the terrible concussion of the gun. This idea is represented unofficially as having been successful. So far as is known, the new craft was never employed against any enemy vessel.

Gov't-Owned Ships.

Early this year Canada will probably have Government owned and operated freight vessels on the Atlantic. Two ships, to be named the Canadian Pioneer and the Canadian Voyager, of 3,100 and 4,350 tons respectively, will shortly be completed. About a twenty-two ships are under construction or contract for the Government at a cost of about five millions sterling, and next year the number will be even larger. Canadian steel shipyards are now engaged chiefly on Government ships. The third Coughlan steel steamer, the 8,800-ton "War Charger" has completed her test run on the Pacific. The vessel was ready for launching when fire swept the shipyard and her whole port side had to be practically rebuilt. A four-masted full-rigged wooden schooner has been built at Quebec. It was commenced in the latter part of August and is built of British Columbia fir and Canadian spruce, oak and birch.—The Empire Review.

Y. M. C. A. Workers.

Arrested in Paris.

Paris, January 14.—It became known to-day that three Young Men's Christian Association workers are under arrest in Paris, charged with defalcation of funds of the Association. The men are George Schoeffer, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, of Rochester, N. Y., the Rev. R. Atkins, of Eagle Pass, Texas, and Mansfield, said to have been a former secretary of the Sailors' Union, of New York city.

The total amount alleged to have been misappropriated approximates $38,940, most of which has been recovered. The Y. M. C. A. has asked the army to prosecute these cases to the limit and to impose the full penalty. The military court martial will begin during the present week.

Britain's Future.

London, Jan. 2.—"Britain's future as a nation depends on the question of the commercial use of aircraft," declares J. A. Whitehead, leader in aeronautics.

"Our task in the near future must be to control the altitudes of the world, which must be planned and laid out by our workmen."

America is coming into the shipping game and bids fair to outdo Great Britain. But the Air Age is a step in advance of the steam age and the British would through leadership in air traffic retain her hold on the commerce of the world.

B. I. S. Concert.

An interesting concert will be given in the B.I.S. rooms to-night, having been arranged by some lady friends of the Society. Some of the city's best talent will be the performers, and an up-to-date orchestra will be in attendance. The concert begins at 8.15, and an enjoyable time is expected.

Some 1918 Reflections.

A large number of men famed in National and Imperial affairs are the contributors of the articles in "Some 1918 Reflections," compiled by Guy Glendower Croft, of the Royal Club for Officers Beyond the Seas, London, England. Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, on general matters; Miss Marie Corelli, on God and the War; the Prime Minister of New Zealand, on Sons and Daughters of the Empire; the Australian Premier, on Where the Dominions Stand; Lord Morris, on Newfoundland in the War; Mr. George Robey, on the Stags and the War; a message from Admiral Sims, of the U. S. Navy; Mr. Havelock Wilson, M.P., on German Brutality at Sea; all these and many more make up what is a very interesting book, one well worth the price charged, and a valuable addition to the bookshelf of the careful student of matters of the day. In literary and typographical make-up the book is a credit to Mr. Croft, being all the more so as it is his first attempt at book-writing. Messrs. Ayre & Sons are the local book agents.

Catching a Spy.

The curtain is now lifted in regard to at least one of the dozen spies shot at the Tower of London during the war. He was tracked by the alertness of a woman postal censor.

"One letter," she says, "made me suspicious from the first time I saw it. The writing was in lines half an inch apart. I could discover nothing wrong, however, until I noticed a peculiar little mark, almost indistinguishable, at the bottom of a page. I could not explain it. Experiment proved that it had been made by invisible ink. The visible writing was innocuous itself, but the invisible writing told of movements of ships and soldiers, of fortifications and docks. The letter wound up with, "To-morrow Dublin."

"To Dublin the Hun went, and his letter from Ireland was further evidence of his guilt. He was caught on arrival in London and execution followed."
