BUICK

I HAVE BEEN DRIVING
BUICKS FOR THE
LAST 15 YEARS.

Bethlehem,
Washington.

I have been driving a Buick for the last twelve years. I buy a new car every four years, and I have just bought my fourth Buick, a 1925 seven-passenger Sedan.

I have always felt that the Buick is a most dependable car in every respect, and that I received great value for the money
I paid for them, and I am especially well pleased with this latest model.

Buick four-wheel brakes give one such a feeling of safety and security that I shall never drive a two-wheel brake car again. I am very much pleased with the Fisher VV windshield and this particular feature has been the admiration of all who have seen it.

CHAPTER XIII.

Clarence put his hand to his head and turned aside with a groan. What had he lost? What cruel fate had kept this cup of bliss from his sight and led him, blindfolded, through the mazes of blunderland?

"Oh, well, well!" he cried; "you bring me joy and cut me to the heart at the same moment. Miss Lillian loved me! Sir Ralph—"

"In course. Don't I tell you so, sir?" retorted the man, naturally exasperated at the incredulity of his listener. "By taken, didn't she give Squire Besant the go-by and lay then at death's door for weeks, crying on your name day and night—"

"No more, for mercy's sake! man, no more, you will kill me!" interrupted the agitated man. "I have been at the gates of Paradise and turned away! Oh, Heaven, to know that it is too late!"

"Too late! What for, sir?" said Will. "Get you to England and the Hall, if you haven't been there since then, and see if they don't jump at you—squire and all—like a ripe plum."

"Ah!" breathed Clifford, daring to hope; but the next moment dashed to the depths of despair. "No, no, it cannot be; she is married, long, long ago."

"Married? Who to?" asked Will Stamblers, clutching the ropes and holding Clarence Clifford by the arm to save him from rolling against the bulwarks, to which danger he seemed perfectly indifferent and unconscious.

"Mr. Besant," groaned Clarence.

"Not she, sir. Begging the squire's pardon, she hated him. No, sir, mark my word, as sure as you're standing there—which you won't be directly if you don't keep tight hold, sir—Miss Lillian—bless her heart!—is waiting and sighing for you. Get you to Rivershall as fast as horses' legs will carry you—and—Ay, ay, sir, come!"

And obeying a summons from the captain, he lurched off, leaving Clarence Clifford hot with joy and hope.

one moment, the next cold with doubt and despair.

Between these conditions he vacillated for the rest of the passage, thinking every moment an hour, groaning at the idea of the distance between Dover and Rivershall, longing for wings to fly like an eagle to the place where his heart rested.

With this excitement burning in his bosom, he dragged Will Stamblers ashore, almost forced a bottle of rum down his throat, quite forced a handful of gold upon him—and then engaged post horses with relays at all the stages to take him to Rivershall and, as he prayed momentarily, to free Lillian.

Journeying thus, his blood at fever heat, his eyes sparkling and restless as diamonds, his hands never still a second, and the prayer always on his lips that he might not be too late, he neared Cheriton.

As the panting horses—four white and good ones—climbed up the hill, smoking and steaming, the sun burst through the clouds and shone right royally for the first time for three days.

Clarence Clifford uttered a cry of joy and took it as a good omen.

"Oh, my darling, my darling!" he cried, aloud; "I shall see you, hold you in my arms, call you mine yet."

Now came the first straggling, little cottages. A man, a laborer, passed and stopped to gaze at the flying post chaise, then another, then a man and a woman, and—how singular—all that had passed were in mourning, a hand of crepe round the men's caps, the women in black dresses and shawls. Then, at the entrance of the village, three cottages were closed.

A shutter was up at the inn, and a funeral was passing down the street with a half dozen laboring men following sadly.

The postillon dashed by the inn. He had received his instructions to drive to the Hall, and two or three groups collected to look after the chaise. But there was no shouting, no boys running after it, no excitement, and but very little curiosity.

Clarence Clifford, with his restless hands drumming at his side, was struck by it; but the Hall was in sight and his eyes were glued on its huge chimneys.

At the moment the leaders swept round the corner of the avenue the church bell commenced to toll, something dark and black moved from out the gates, and Clarence Clifford, started by a warning cry, leaped out as the leaders pulled up within a few yards of a collision with a hearse.

He fixed his eyes upon the long cortege of hearse, mourning carriages and line of walking mourners, as if he were made or dreaming; then, amidst the buzz of hushed confusion, his voice clove the air as if it had been a knife: "Who—who is dead?"

The door of one of the mourning coaches opened and a thin figure got out and hurried to the traveller's side. It was Mr. Packer.

"Mr. Clifford," he exclaimed. "You have arrived most opportunely. Another hour and it would have been too late. When did you hear—"

But a something in the young man's face startled, then terrified him.

The eyes never moved from the hearse, the lips were growing blue.

"Who is dead?" came huskily from them. "Will no one tell me?"

"Great Heaven!" exclaimed Mr. Packer, turning to a small group that had collected from the mourning coaches. "Gentlemen, this poor, young gentleman is Mr. Clifford. Dr. Morecroft, he has not heard?"

The doctor pushed past and caught the hand clinched at the side. It was cold as ice.

"My poor, young friend," he said, "it is a terrible blow; it has been for all of us; but bear up like a man. Be calm. They have come to a better land where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

"Who lies there?" the blue lips formed.

"Tell him, tell him," whispered Dr. Morecroft; "the strain will be too great."

"Mr. Clifford—bear up—we are taking to their last resting places the bodies of our dear friends, Sir Ralph and Lillian Melville!"

One cry went up to heaven and rang in the hearts of all who heard it, never to be forgotten, and Clarence Clifford fell at the very feet of the pawing, impatient horses.

CHAPTER XV.

The reader will be spared an extended description of Clarence Clifford's soul's anguish. Such emotion as that which tore his heart in twain and drove him to the verge of insanity is indescribable, and he who would attempt to pen it must fail lamentably.

Time, tide and death wait for no man.

The funeral cortege passed on and left Clarence Clifford in the hands of the postillions and a small gathering of villagers, who, halting betwixt two opinions as to whether more interest could be got out of the agony of one living person than the burial of two dead ones, had decided in favor of the former, and stood gaping round him.

At last some one, the only Solomon in the crowd, suggested that it might be well to convey him to the inn, and in silence the post chaise was turned and the hire of it conveyed to the Rivershall Arms.

Here they prepared a room for him and literally looked him up in it, for it was evident that he could not be trusted to his own devices, and every soul in the village having arranged to be at the funeral, there was no one left to take charge of him.

So there he remained in a darkened room, alone, with that indescribable agony at his heart, and the tolling of the bell in his ears.

Presently the bell ceased, the suppressed hum came back to the village, and the Arms inhabited again.

The room in which they had put was directly over the common or public room. They had not chosen the best room for him, because it offered more advantages for self-destruction in the shape of bell pulls, fatirons and a constable's staff.

This second-best apartment was a very poor affair, with great slits in the floor, through which came the heat and smoke of the room below, and occasionally the conversation of the occupants.

RICHARD ROE.

Off I had heard of Richard Roe, and when I crossed the vale, I said, "I'll spend an hour or so with Richard in the jail. I'll try to find the reason why he's off behind the bars, while out of doors his neighbors fly in shining motor cars." I found this Richard in his cell, all free from griefs and fears, and he was fat and looking well, and shed no idle tears. He had no feeling of disgrace, and he remarked to me, "The hoosegow is a pleasant place. I care not to be free. In summer 'tis cold, in winter 'tis hot, while out of doors I leave sweat behind them in a pool, as they pursue their chores. In winter this old jail is warm and cozy as can be, and there's no howling arctic storm can get its hooks in me. They bring me food three times a day, good, honest, smoking hash, and for this grub I do not pay in labor or in cash. What more can any man desire than I receive in jail? Why should I labor and perspire for paitry rolls of kale?" "There's such a thing as self respect," I muttered, through my veil; "it's born in men, but soon is wrecked by sojourn in a jail. I hoped to find you in a mood to harken to my rede, but since you take that attitude, I'll not advise or plead. Far better shiver in the snow, or shrivel in the heat, than bask in comfort, Richard Roe, with prison grub to eat."

A Master Crook Story

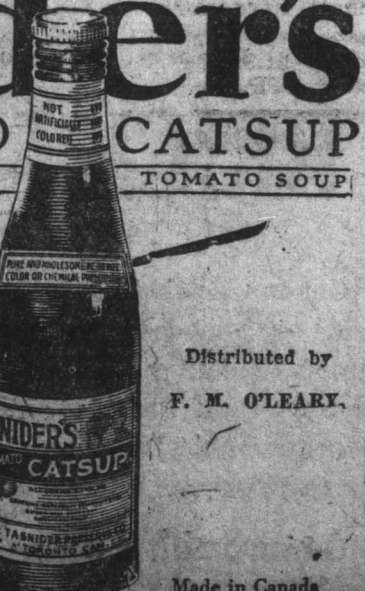

"On Thin Ice," the attraction at the Majestic Theatre to-night, is a fast-moving, thrilling expose of San Francisco's underworld, and offers clean diversion for movie-goers who appreciate a well-told mystery story with a kick for the finish.

Edith Roberts and Tom Moore acquire new laurels in this newest Warner picture, which starts off with a rush and finishes with a bang. Miss Roberts' charming youth and unaffectedness makes the heroine of the picture a lovable little maid who becomes involved in a nefarious plot through no fault of her own.

The photoplay is a novel combination of fun, thrills and mystery, as Rose Lore, a poor, friendless girl, suddenly finds herself in possession of a satchel full of bank bonds. She returns the bag to the bank, but is arrested and charged with the theft. A band of gangsters soon ingratiate themselves in her favor, and with unscrupulous chicanery, one of the criminals declares himself her long-lost brother. Every day makes the situation more and more complicated. One gangster begins to love Rose, the other wants her for himself, and the girl discovers she has lost her heart to a third, while mystery still shrouds the whereabouts of the loot.

The balance of the cast, which includes William Russell, Theodore Von Eltz, Wilfred North and Gertrude Robinson, does splendid work, while the direction, lighting and mounting of "On Thin Ice," is a credit to Director Mal St. Clair.

"On Thin Ice" will also be shown to-morrow afternoon and night. Admission twenty cents.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Best Previous Week in History

Dodge Brothers have been setting new high records for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years. The record of the week ending July 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,800 each production day, best previous week was surpassed several hundred cars. New records exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 19.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, number of deliveries for the week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is a spur, but a steady, healthy production."

C.N.R. Have Disastrous Fire in Shops at Bridgewater

Premier Rhodes Meets Besco Officials—Hastings Hands Over Historic Shield to Canadian High Commissioner—Argentine Girl Forced to Abandon Channel Swim.

SERIOUS FIRE IN C. N. R. PLANT, BRIDGEWATER, N.S., July 16.
Damage roughly estimated at half million dollars was caused by a fire that broke out in the Canadian National Railway shops here at 12.50 o'clock this afternoon, and before being brought under control at 1.20 o'clock had destroyed all the buildings on the east side of the tracks, eight locomotives, seven or eight freight cars, a large quantity of stores. The buildings consumed included the round house, machine shop, car shop, boiler house, master mechanics' office, fuel foreman's office, and a number of smaller structures. The snow blower was badly damaged and the railway station and station restaurant on the west side of the track were on fire several times but not seriously damaged. The cause of the fire, while not definitely known, was thought to have been caused by an explosion in the round house.

PREMIER RHODES MEETS WOLVIN, HALIFAX, N.S., July 16.
One of the first acts of Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier of Nova Scotia, today was to enter into conference with Roy M. Wolvin and J. E. McLure, President and Vice-President, respectively, of the British Empire Steel Corporation on the subject of the strike of Nova Scotia coal miners. The nature of the deliberations was not disclosed but Mr. Rhodes said later this evening that he had been glad of the early opportunity of meeting the Corporation heads and he at once communicated to John W. McLeod, President of the U.M.W. of America, the fact that he had met Mr. Wolvin and Mr. McLure and expressed the hope that the United Mine Workers would join him in a whole-hearted endeavour to see if conditions could be bettered. Neither Mr. Wolvin nor Mr. McLure would give out any information regarding the present status of the coal miners' strike. Mr. Wolvin will probably visit Cape Breton, but was undecided to-night, he said.

HISTORIC SHIELD RETURNED TO QUEBEC.

HASTINGS, Eng., July 16.
Several thousand people to-day witnessed the ceremony of presenting the Escutcheon of the Kings of France to Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, who will return it to the City of Quebec on his visit to Canada in August. The shield was originally the property of Quebec but was taken from there by soldiers under General Wolfe, after the conquest of Canada, and was given to the municipality of Hastings. The French Ambassador was present at to-day's ceremony.

FORD'S BID FOR SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, July 16.
Henry Ford to-day offered $1,700,000 for the 200 Shipping Board vessels set aside for scrapping; his bid compares with the $1,370,000 offered by the Boston Iron and Metal Company of Baltimore, when the previous set of bids was opened and rejected on June 30.

OBJECT TO EXPERT TESTIMONY.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 16.
The State of Tennessee made formal motion at the trial of John T. Scopes here this morning to exclude the testimony of scientists. The defence was prepared to put up a determined fight to get testimony into the record from qualified experts on the subject of evolution and its relation to the Bible.

DIES FROM BURNS.

MONCTON, N.B., July 16.
Mrs. Greta Phillips, of Moncton, is dead, and Jack Colpitts, Provincial constable, is in a critical condition in hospital as the result of a gas explosion which wrecked Mrs. Phillips' home shortly before noon yesterday. Mrs. Phillips, whose clothing was almost completely burned from her body by the blast of flame which accompanied the explosion, was conscious for nearly thirteen hours after the accident. Child Hit by Taxi

At 3.30 p.m. yesterday, the 9 year old daughter of Capt. Henry Winsor, whilst crossing Water Street, near Moore's Bakery store, was hit and knocked to the ground by a motor car owned by the Royal Garage, but fortunately sustained no injury. The child had partly crossed the street from the south sidewalk and noticing a motorist approaching from the west became confused. The driver, Vincent Burton, endeavored to avoid the accident by applying his brakes. The child, who was accompanied by her father, was driven home and examined by Dr. Donahue, who said that no injuries had been sustained.

Joyce, left the church at 11 a.m., and were conveyed to the grounds by motor cars. A committee in charge had arranged a programme of sports, etc., for the enjoyment of the children, and all entered whole-heartedly into the spirit of the day. The ladies were most energetic in catering for the needs of the little ones, who were treated to bounteous teas and refreshments. At 8 p.m. the children returned to town feeling happy though tired.

The Chinese Uprising Explained

AN EXPERT VIEW ON THE PRESENT SERIOUS SITUATION.

The Rev. Nelson Bitton, the well-known secretary of the London Missionary Society, knows China as well as any man in England, and for that reason a few evenings ago he was asked to broadcast his views by the B.B.C., a tribute to his knowledge on this question. Our readers will be glad, in view of the stirring events in China, which seem to get more serious as the days go by, to read this well-reasoned statement. Mr. Bitton said:—
"Many of you who have followed the recent course of events in China have probably been amazed at the news of a violent outburst of anti-foreign feeling in China. These things, you have thought, surely belong to past days. "China has been reported as keenly desirous of securing and adopting the best of our Western civilization, she has reformed largely her educational system on Western models, her bright students have been coming to the Universities of Britain and America, and many of her sons and daughters have responded eagerly to the work of Christian missionaries.

OUR POLICY HITHERTO.

"Moreover, we know that in this country, as in the United States, successive governments have adopted a policy of goodwill towards China, and the return of the Boxer indemnity for purposes mutually beneficial to China and Britain has added practical proof to kindly expressions. Since the days when the laborers of China gleaned for themselves such high approval in the fields of war from 1916 to 1918, old enmities seemed to have been forgotten.
"Why, then, do we hear to-day from Shanghai and other Chinese centres this news of inflamed anti-foreign feeling, with demonstrations and riots aimed at foreigners in general, and Japan and Britain in particular?
"In order to discover some of the causes of this unfortunate development, it is needful to consider several factors in Chinese history and in Chinese life and character.
"First of all, in order to realize the underlying seriousness of the present situation, it will be well to state the position which Shanghai occupies in the relationships between East and West in China. This port, with its great international settlement (in which British interests largely prevail), its adjacent French concession and Chinese city, is the largest commercial centre in the Far East.
"The bulk of its population, possibly some two and a half millions in all, is Chinese; not segregated, but living side by side with some two thousand five hundred European, American and Japanese residents. The great wharves with their shipping, the imposing centres of business life, banking, exchange, export, import and manufacture, and the roads branching out in all directions to the residential quarters of Shanghai, have all been built up from nothing by foreign (non-Chinese) capital and energy directing Chinese industry, and are the outstanding expression of what the co-operation of East and West can accomplish under good government and wise policy.
"A walk along the Bund or through the great Nanking road of Shanghai is a revelation of what three generations of Western and Chinese skill and labour can accomplish together. It is a mutual accomplishment. Often called the 'model settlement' because of the example in progress and local government which it gives to China, Shanghai has rightly prided itself upon the good relationship between China and the West exhibited in its many-sided life of commerce, education, and social pleasure. More than once in the history of China (notably at the time of the Boxer uprising), Shanghai has been a place of refuge for the Chinese reformer and the persecuted politician.
"Any outbreak of anti-foreign insurrection in Shanghai is therefore an ill omen for other centres of European life in China, and the success of mob law in that place would inevitably be attended by even worse scenes of violence in other and less well-protected places. This is the reason why such serious import attaches to the recent uprising.
"The nominal cause of the student rioting was a strike of no great importance occurring at a Japanese mill in Shanghai. This, as has transpired, was but a pawn in the game to which it became the opening move. Behind it were forces which have been for some time awaiting their opportunity for anti-foreign expression. Ever since 1919, when Japan made her exacting demands on China, many Chinese have been led to believe that Britain, as the partner in the old Anglo-Japanese alliance, had knowledge of, and was even responsible for, those inimical proposals.

THE REPUBLIC'S FAILURE.

"Britain was the enemy, so the word went forth. The enemies of Britain in China were not slow to exploit this feeling, and a smouldering sense of resentment was allowed to grow in ultra patriotic or half-informed minds. Added to this was the disgust felt by thousands of Chinese at the growing misgovernment of China by her own leaders. The Republic, as a governing force, was a manifest failure, and self-seeking and undisciplined leaders of armies carried civil war and all its horrors over the wide countryside. This indiscipline, manifest in leading military and political circles, invaded college and school life.

"Students were in revolt in all great centres, and missionary schools were steadily maintained. For the time being the morale went out of that side of Chinese life in which law and order in times past had been most significant.
"To provide themselves with some kind of excuse for their own gross failures, many of the Chinese politicians have been striving to make it appear that foreign intervention in China, and the existence of treaties harmful to Chinese independence were at the bottom of the internal troubles which afflicted China. By dragging this red herring across the trail, they hoped at least to palliate their own appalling errors. This is not the first time in the history of China that the presence of the foreigner in that land has been made the stalking horse for the adroit Chinese politician.
"All these things have found lodgment in the sub-conscious mind of many of China's most patriotic students, and together with another influence now to be mentioned, have inflamed the student mind to the point of exasperation made so desperately evident in the recent outbreak.
"Communist influence in China has been making steady headway in the past two or three years. Partly foiled in its endeavour to carry its propaganda westward, the Russian Soviet has been giving particular attention to China and the Far East. It has established diplomatic relations with Peking.
THE SITUATION AT THE MOMENT.
"It has also, for the time being, captured the government of Mongolia, and its emissaries have been closely in league with some of the leaders of the insurrectionary life of China. It has been in touch with the Canton party, also inflammatory literature aimed at Western governments, at accepted codes of morality, and at modern commerce and at religion has been distributed by the million to young students and others in China, and its pernicious influence has helped to swell the volume of passion which is behind the present insurrection. It is for this reason that the outbreak in Shanghai, Peking, Canton, and elsewhere has been directed against Christian missions as well as against foreign influence generally.

MARSHALL'S GARAGE, Distributors.

"The combination then of a strike against Japanese employers, made possible because of the deplorable labour conditions which press upon the Chinese worker generally in the large parts of China, and which are deplored by all right-thinking people, together with what is practically British rule in the government of Shanghai, has given occasion for an anti-foreign campaign in nearly all the treaty ports of China as well as Peking.
"If all this represented the attitude of the Chinese as a whole the outlook would be tragically deplorable. It most certainly does not. Desperately bad leadership, short-sighted diplomacy, venality in public office, civil conflict in the army, indiscipline in education, these leave the mass of China's life more or less untouched.
"The average Chinese is still a person given to peace and goodwill, normally void of antagonisms, anxious to live in quiet, and to go about his business. It is well to remember that though one or two million people may make a great noise, there are some 400 millions in China. And within that noisy minority there are many led away by zeal without reason, whose hot patriotism and natural exasperation are being exploited by sectional workers of mischief.
"The whole episode is an illustration of a good cause gone astray, and good intention turned to ill effect. The strong and good government of China, for which her youth is clamouring, is the desire of all enlightened people, East and West. All that is worthy in the programme for which the students are now rioting could be secured by steady government in China.
"Whilst misdirected patriotism runs in the channels of unrestrained passion, nothing helpful can be done by China or for China. Her friends are estranged and her enemies encouraged. Riots are the sign of bad government and can never help. If the laudable aspiration that emphatically lies behind it all can be controlled and rightly guided, and if our own and other governments will stand steadily with the forces that make for prosperity and well-being in China, the future of that land may yet be worthy of her wondrous past."—Public Opinion.

Standardization of Food Products

We are indebted to Mr. H. B. Thomson, formerly Food Controller of Canada, for the article in this issue dealing with the standardization and grading of food products. The writer has not been content to confine his remarks to generalities, but has embodied in the article a wealth of statistics which show conclusively that standardization and grading are the sine qua non to the success of the export trade of any country.

The article, following as it does upon those which we have published during the past week on our Fishery Industry is most timely, and will, we trust, help to convince those who are interested in the matter that similar measures must be adopted here.

Put Hall's Bay on the Map

There are certain portions of this country which are in particular the resorts of sportsmen, because of the great reputation which they have already gained. There are others, somewhat more remote perhaps but not by any means difficult to reach, which only require to be better known in order to become equally as popular.

There are two such localities that occur to us at the moment; one on the South Coast, which includes the rivers in the Fortune Bay district, and the other is in the vicinity of Hall's Bay. We shall deal with the former in a later article and refer to the latter now for the reason that we have just had an opportunity to discuss its claims for recognition with Mr. Thomas Wells of Springdale, who is so well and favourably known by everyone.

To local sportsmen, Indian Brook, South Brook, and West Brook are familiar names, and they deserve to be better known than they are to visitors. By means of the Badger Road it is possible to reach South Brook in a short time from the railway line, and when this highway has been extended along the western side of Hall's Bay for a few miles, all three of these salmon rivers will easily be accessible. Whether or not the Highroads Commission contemplate such an extension we are unable to say, but we trust that it will receive their consideration for various reasons, the chief of which is the great benefit it would confer upon the people, who are at present deprived of all the benefits of the railway by a short eight miles of roadless country.

Three bridges are required to make communication between Springdale and South River possible, but the only one necessitating any considerable outlay would be that over Indian Brook. This addition to the Badger Road would serve practically all the purposes of a railway line both for the settler and the tourist, and as the country is agricultural and well timbered, it would be the means of encouraging industrial development.

Of particular interest to the visitor in search of sport, adventure, and travel through untrac-quented trails in Indian Brook. Here the voyager can embark in his canoe, and without any serious difficulty, paddle across the interior to the mouth of the Humber. The route carries him through a game country which is probably the finest in the Island; the scenery, which varies with every mile of the route, is magnificent, and the fact that the traveller is following a trail formerly frequented by the Beothics adds romance and historic interest to the other pleasures.

Hall's Bay has many claims to fuller recognition, and we trust that it will soon come into its own both as a tourist resort and as a great industrial centre.

Fishery Statistics

Yesterday for the first time was published a statement of the catch of fish around the coast. These statistics have been collected by the Department of Marine and Fisheries as a result of the recommendations of the Board of Trade, which the press strongly endorsed. It is a move in the right direction and the information obtained will be of material assistance in the future in dealing with many matters in connection with the industry.

The First Vaccination in Newfoundland

In his address before the Medical Association on Monday last, Dr. Smith Walker remarked that probably the first application of vaccination against Smallpox in Canada occurred in 1802, when Dr. Norman Bond of Yarmouth Nova Scotia used the vaccine on his infant son.

It will be of interest, we feel certain, both to Dr. Walker and the public to learn of its first application in Newfoundland as told in "Trinity Notes" in the Telegraph by the late Rev Canon Lockyer.

In 1798, that is, almost as soon as Dr. Jenner had made his first experiments, he sent a sample of vaccine to a former fellow student, Rev. John Clinch, M.D., who was at that time stationed in Trinity. Although Smallpox was prevalent, Dr. Clinch could not persuade anyone to try the new method, and eventually he applied the vaccine to his nephew, a boy of about seventeen years of age, who submitted to treatment by no means willingly. The application having proved effective, such was Dr. Clinch's confidence in Jenner, that he placed the boy in bed with one of the worst cases of Smallpox at that time under his attention. To the surprise of everyone he did not contract the disease and immediately there were insistent demands from everyone for the treatment.

A man charged with driving a motor car without having first obtained a driver's license, thus committing a breach of section 16, sub-section 4 of the Highways Traffic Act, pleaded guilty. A fine of $10 and costs of 30 days' imprisonment was imposed. Section 16, sub-section 4 of the Highways Traffic Act reads as follows: "No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless licensed to do so; except persons learning to qualify for a driver's license under the direction of an instructor approved by the commission on highways, licensed by the commission for such purpose".

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 16th.—The weather takes a turn for the better, so I up about 9 of the clock and take a walk about Water Street. Meeting Squibbs, he in high ill humour and tells me how being up betimes this morning and to the Red Cross pier to meet his wife, needs must be kept waiting for more than a half hour after the steamer had tied up before the passengers are permitted to come ashore.

Do learn how among other things done at the Council meeting this day, an application from the Labour Committee for permission to have a public meeting in Baseman Park next week is considered, but if this be the demonstration that has been reported as like to take place, I know not.

Being out over the Topical Road in my motor coach, do seem how those that make the roads are in league with the makers of fires, being that such sharp stones is left on the surface for motor coaches to grind down. Indeed, mechanics that motorists would be but too happy to contribute towards a steam roller that would save their tires.

Orphans' Big Day Committee Meets

The men's committee meeting of the C. of E. Orphanage Garden Party, which took place at the C.L.B. Armory last evening, was largely attended and most enthusiastic. The keenest interest prevailed and with fine weather on Wednesday next the day promises to be the most successful in the history of the Garden Party. In the absence of the Chairman, Mr. R. B. Job, the chair was occupied by Councillor Reg. Dowden. Following the reading of the minutes by the Hon. Secretary, Councillor P. E. Outerbridge, the Chairman, extended a very hearty welcome to the well known horsemen Mr. M. Butler, Mr. T. Stevenson, Dr. Bishop and Dr. Furneaux. The latter, who is convener of the Committee, announced that they have their work already well in hand. Up to the present there are forty-eight entries, including ten ponies, and there is a likelihood of several more. Beautiful cups and medals have been offered as prizes, and the show promises to be a particularly good one. The greatest interest is being manifested and the public is sure to be pleased. This committee reported that horse-owners are only too delighted to assist in making this event one worthy of the occasion. Dr. Furneaux is also arranging to have pony rides for the boys and girls and four or five ponies will be at their disposal.

Mr. E. D. Spurrell, convener of the transportation committee also reported satisfactorily. A few autos are still needed, however, and car owners who are willing to help are requested to get in touch with Mr. Spurrell.

A three-mile road race is being arranged and the competitors are asked to enter with Mr. George Davey, phone 1930. Medals for this event have been promised. Football contests will also be held.

Mr. Roberts will look after the lighting of the grounds, so that every facility will be afforded the helpers at the close of the day. For several evenings past the Ground Committee, under the direction of that indefatigable worker, Mr. John Coaker, have been busy with their arrangements. They asked for volunteers on the grounds after tea this evening, and also Monday and Tuesday next. Here is an opportunity for all who can use a hammer and saw to help, and it is hoped this appeal will be responded to.

Mr. J. F. Wiseman, who is in charge of the sideshows, is arranging a programme that will appeal to all. There will not be a dull moment and there will be many opportunities to swell the proceeds. At night there will be a gala dance in one of our city halls. Mr. Maurice Job Taylor is making the arrangements and it promises to be equally as successful as last year's.

The Fishermen's Prayer

There's a glint on the waves like the sparkle Of greed in the miser's pale eye, Whom the poor would approach for a trifle, But whose hand would that trifling give. Our nets are let down as we call upon Thee To favour us, Mary, the Star of the sea.

Hail Mary whose loving protection The sea-tollers prayerfully claim, Petition thy Son that His bounty Be given to us as it came! To Peter, who let down his nets in the sea When bid by the Master on Lake Galilee.

Come bright o'er the haze in the office When dawnlight illumines the sea, Come Mary, we pray thee and bring us The need of the fisher with thee, For we're in the plight of His comrades Who toiled upon Lake Galilee! D. C. Bay Bulls, July 15th, 1925.

Appreciation of Firemen's Services

(Copy) Inspector General Hutchings, City. Dear Sir—I wish to express my thanks for the valuable services of yourself and firemen, during the conflagration of last Saturday which destroyed our freight shed. I am enclosing a cheque for two hundred dollars ($200.00) as a token of my appreciation. I remain, Yours truly, (Sgd.) A. E. HICKMAN, St. John's Nfld., July 15th, 1925.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Dear Sir—On behalf of the Members of the Fire Department under my command, I wish to thank you very sincerely for your very generous recognition of the services performed by them at the fire which destroyed your freight shed last Saturday week. This amount will be distributed in the usual manner. I am, Yours sincerely, (Sgd.) CHAS. H. HUTCHINGS, Inspector General Constabulary.

Quidi Vidi Lake Improvements

From present indications, it would appear that the Lakeside will be ideal by the date of the Regatta. Piling and filling are going on apace and the contour of the lake has been changed to great advantage. In many places a width of twenty-five feet has been reclaimed, and this extends practically from the head of the Lake down to the C.C.C. Boat Club, forming the basis of a splendid walkway for the public. All that soft, marshy land is being filled in and the whole, when completed, will add materially to the many beauty spots of the East End. Later when the Regatta Committee put into effect their ideal plans for tree planting at the road side this award will surely have earned its new title of Quidi Vidi Park. Two splendid wells located about midway will soon have pumps installed, furnishing a plentiful supply of clear cool water. All the grading will be completed and the walkway in perfect order by the end of the month, ensuring the greater comfort and convenience of citizens. All this has required considerable funds, not to mention the great time and effort expended, and we are pleased to thank the collectors who have been out to date report very splendid response from the public. It is to be hoped, however, that those who have not yet contributed will avail of the opportunity without delay so that every citizen, particularly of the East End, will be able to truthfully term himself a real part owner of this delightful acquisition to the city's recreation places.

Medical Convention

YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

The morning was as usual given up to clinics. At 1 o'clock the outpatient doctors were entertained by the Rotary Club, at which Dr. Smith-Walker, of Halifax, was the speaker. The afternoon session, at which the members of the Dental profession were present, was carried out according to programme, and included papers on "Oral Infection from a Dentist's Viewpoint," by Dr. Howlett; "Infection of Accessory Sinuses," by Dr. G. N. Murphy; and "Throat Infection," by Dr. J. B. O'Reilly. The paper on "Contagious Diseases" by Dr. Arthur Anderson, of Heart's Content, held over from the previous session was also read. All the papers were listened to with the keenest interest, and the experience of these gentlemen thus passed on to their professional brethren were greatly valued, as was evidenced by the number of pertinent questions asked by the various members and answered.

During the session a letter from Mr. A. V. Ross was read inviting the members to visit Grove Farm, there to see the arrangement and care taken for the supply of clean milk from a herd free of disease. Many of the members visited the farm during the afternoon and were greatly pleased with what they saw there. At the close of the afternoon session, the members and their ladies, and the Nursing Superintendents of the various hospitals, were taken for a drive to various points of interest, all meeting at the Bungalow, Bowring Park, at 7.30, where a delicious supper was served by the wives of the city doctors. After a pleasant social hour had been spent, a delightful programme of music and dancing, arranged by Mrs. Keegan, was greatly enjoyed. With Mr. Hutton at the piano, the following ladies and gentlemen took part:—Mrs. C. J. Cahill; Misses Hutton, Kavanagh and Withers; Messrs. Fred Emerson, Dobbin, Lawrence and J. F. Canning.

At the close of the programme, Dr. Keegan, on behalf of the Association, presented the veteran Dr. Fitzgerald, of St. Jacques, whose 78 birthday it was, with a clock. A birthday cake, alight with candles, was brought in, and many good wishes for many happy returns of the day were tendered him. Dr. Fitzgerald replied with his usual modesty and geniality. The evening closed with a small informal dance. The Bungalow was beautifully decorated by Mr. Canning, and there was a profusion of gorgeous flowers. The service also was excellent, and Mrs. Bendall's willing assistance was greatly appreciated.

To The Patrons & Friends of the Nickel

DEAR FRIENDS:— We have announced the coming of "He Who Gets Slapped" to the Nickel Theatre on Monday, for a run of three days. Again we call your attention to this production, which we regard as one of the outstanding screen events of many seasons.

Here, against the background of a French circus, Leonid Andreyev, the great Russian, has painted one of the most unusual and colorful stories of modern times. It's a tale woven about the lovely Consuelo and the handsome reckless Bezano, the daredevil bareback riders of the circus troupe; the disolute Count Mancini, the fat and spidery Baron Regnard, and especially about "He," the tragic scientist, who becomes a circus clown—"He Who Gets Slapped."

The producers have provided a cast that includes Norma Shearer, John Gilbert, Lon Chaney, Tully Marshall, Clyde Cook and Ford Sterling. Here's a picture that's GOT to be seen.

We sincerely recommend it, as one of the finest pictures ever shown at The Nickel.

War Veteran's Funeral

The funeral of the late John Barnabe took place from Martin's Mortuary Rooms to the Railway Station at eleven o'clock this morning. The coffin was placed on board the Trepassey train and conveyed to Ferryland the home of deceased for interment. The obsequies were largely attended, and a Guard of Honour was present from the G.W.V.A. The casket was draped in the Union Jack, and adorned with flowers and a splendid wreath from the G.W.V.A. The remains were accompanied by a brother of the deceased. A number of War Veterans will join the train en route to attend the funeral.

Disgraceful Handling of Food

A most disgraceful method of handling food was witnessed at Steer's Cove this morning, when the fishermen coming in to dispose of their catch were compelled to put the fish on sticks laid in the side drains. Although some of the men had their fish in wheel-barrow, there was no place to put the offal except in the drain. This some of them did and in consequence the place presented a spectacle which would be a disgrace in the most primitive settlement in the world.

Preparing for Broad Cove Regatta

The fishermen of St. Philips are now endeavouring to get some assistance in the city for the purpose of running the annual Broad Cove Regatta. Last year the event did not take place until September, and in consequence of the short evenings the full programme of events could not be carried out. The Committee now propose to hold the event on the last Wednesday of this month.

The Supreme Court

hearing of the action of the Trust Corporation against the Reid Newfoundland Company, Ltd. and others was held yesterday afternoon. The case was heard before Hon. Mr. Justice Macdonald and had the attendance of the Court every day since the hearing, with the exception of the usual holidays.

On the amount in dispute the amount in dispute is by far the most important that has come before the Supreme Court, and the hearing takes more time than any other case that has come before the Court, and the fact that there are no adjournments throughout the course of the trial.

The Plaintiff Company was incorporated in London in October 1919 by Messrs. Thomson, Greenwood and Donald, and from its incorporation the Plaintiff Company which that it was ready to dispose of. It is claimed that, while at first they prepared to take options on the assets and make a profit on them, eventually they were appointed to sell them on commission, and the Plaintiff Company under three agreements alleged to have been made between them and the Reid Company. The first of these was an oral agreement which was made in Montreal in December 1919 between Messrs. Thomson, Greenwood and Messrs. H. D. Reid and Messrs. H. D. Reid on behalf of the Plaintiff Company. There was much evidence as to this agreement, and the witnesses for the Plaintiff Company alleged that the Reid Company would be their agents in Europe and receive ten per cent commission, the defendants' witnesses said that no such agreement was made.

The second agreement was made on July 10, 1920, and the terms are set forth in a minute of the Reid Company's meeting of directors of that date, and the third is set forth in a minute of the Reid Company's meeting of July 10, 1921. These agreements were made by both sides but the introduction of each has led to much argument by the counsel appearing for the Reid Company.

The largest claim under these agreements is in connection with the Reid Company's purchase of the Humber project. It was originally negotiated by the Reid Company and the Plaintiff Company, but these did not result in a sale. During these negotiations the Messrs. Armstrong, Greenwood and Reid were introduced, and the Reid Company entered into negotiations with the latter and eventually there was an agreement made that resulted in the Reid Company's purchase of the Humber project at Corner Brook. The Reid Company claims that under the agreements and as the parties who introduced the Messrs. Armstrong, Greenwood and Reid were introduced to the Reid Company on purchase price, royalties and shares. The Reid Company claims that the Trust Company introduced Messrs. Armstrong, Greenwood and Reid as contractors and not as principals and that they were not instrumental in any way in bringing about the sale of the Humber project. Alternatively the Reid Company claims a "quantum meruit" for services rendered in connection with this project.

The ROYAL STORES, Ltd.

rendered in connection with the raising of bonds of the St. John's Light and Power Company, Limited. The Trust claims that they rendered services in this connection and that they were prevented from completing the flotation by the fact that the Reid Company took the negotiations out of their hands and dealt direct with the firm with whom they had been negotiating. The defence to this claim is that by the November 1921 agreement made after the Reids were negotiating direct the Trust agreed to accept commission if the negotiations resulted in the bonds being issued. No amount was raised by bonds or otherwise and the defendants claim that the Trust is not entitled to commission or a "quantum meruit".

A claim for commission on the sale of Little Bay Mine is admitted by the defendants but they state that, as the property was owned by private parties and not by the company or any of its subsidiaries, the company is not under any liability.

There are further claims for amounts payable to the Trust for expenditures necessarily incurred by them as representatives and agents of the Reid Company and under agreements for payments towards office expenses. The defendants deny that the expenditures pleaded were made on their behalf or in connection with their business and that they have paid the amount for which they are liable under the agreement as to office expenses. They also plead that they have paid the Trust certain monies with which they should have been credited, to which the plaintiffs reply that these payments were made expressly to Messrs. Greenwood and MacDonald for their personal services as managers of the Trust.

As a further defence to the plaintiffs' claim the defendants allege that in the course of their agency the Trust was guilty of misconduct as agents which would disentitle them to any remuneration. These allegations were denied in each instance by the plaintiffs.

During the course of the hearing of the action there were very many matters arising out of the general main claims upon which evidence was given.

Owing to the fact that it would have been impossible to give each day a full report of the evidence and it might have been misleading to report portions only of the evidence, we have made arrangements to publish the closing addresses on behalf of each of the parties, which set forth in detail the positions taken by each side on the claims made against the defendants and contain a summary of material evidence and correspondence as well as the arguments on points of law.

The work that confronts Hon. Mr. Justice Kent in giving his judgment is a stupendous one, as he has to consider in addition to the evidence and the arguments a large mass of correspondence and other exhibits which have been put in evidence, as well as many interesting law points.

At the conclusion of the hearing His Lordship paid a very high tribute to the ability and thoroughness of the counsel engaged and said that his labour would be decreased very materially because of their assistance.

Boat 124 Years Old Still in Use

BEE HAS CROSSED THE SOLENT 88,000 TIMES—HAD ONE CAPTAIN 48 YEARS.

Southampton, England.—The little ketch Bee, built 124 years ago and still in service between Southampton and Newport on the Isle of Wight, completed recently her 88,000 crossing of the Solent Channel.

The Bee began her sea duty in 1801 and is one of the very few ships remaining from whose decks men witnessed a British naval victory at sea with Nelson on board.

During one period of her career she was commended for 48 years by the same captain.

The Bee has been on the Isle of Wight run virtually all of her existence up to the present time and, according to members of her loyal crew, she is good for many years yet to come.

The little craft has carried more than 600,000 tons of cargo between the mainland and the Isle of Wight, covering something like 500,000 miles, although the distance between Newport and Southampton is but 18 miles.

Three younger sister ships of the Bee have been plying the same route for approximately 60 years.

NFLD. BANKING & TRUST CORP.
VS. REID-NFLD. CO, ET AL.

WEDNESDAY, July 8.
MR. HOWLEY, K.C. (Continued)—
Now, my point is that here, at least, we have reached that stage which is referred to in the letter of January 5th, as the time when

The Scheme is Further Advanced and in accordance with Reid's promise in that letter that he will be prepared to give an option at prices and terms to be arranged when the scheme is further advanced, we have now, on the 18th June, a request from the Trust, in which they ask us to "quote a price cash remainder shares that you will accept for all interests there."

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—That is for the Trust? Quote price for the Trust For their own option?

MR. HOWLEY—Yes.
HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—And what is the reply to that?

MR. HOWLEY—The reply to it is found in No. 72 J. A. M.C.D. 243, sent on the 22nd June by St. John's, to Camerget, London.

In reply to last telegram J. A. M.C.D. 243 is "lands 541,000 acres. Must have further information concerning what is the plan of development. Answer as soon as possible probable backers' share consideration must depend upon this. Time will be necessary in order to make estimates."

Here, my Lord, is the reply to the Trust's request to quote a price part cash part shares; and the first question that would present itself to a vendor under these circumstances would be, "what is the nature of the share consideration" apart from the question of the amount or face value or anything like that. The real substantial point is, "who are the probable backers of the share consideration." Who is behind it? Is it merely a scrap of paper with a certificate that we shall hold so many shares, or so many bonds?

Then on the 24th June the Trust came back with No. 43, which is J. A. M.C.D. 244, from Camerget, to Reid, St. John's.

J. A. M.C.D. 244
"Bay Islands believe option will be accepted on payment one thousand pounds signing and ten thousand pounds 29th November cash balance purchase money to be paid on March 21st stop . . ."

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—That is Blakstad's action, is it not?

Supreme Court

MR. HOWLEY—Yes. And the message continues:

"Will undertake also commence operations before March 30th, 1921 stop Syndicate will be formed immediately consisting ten financially powerful stop Power and Pulp to be developed first electrical smelting chrome and nitrate after they investigate stop Buying price would likely be half cash the remainder in shares of parent Company stop In quoting price cost moving railroad must be remembered in water power development stop price to be given for Humber including pulp water power minerals and townships stop Price to be given also for Hamilton River and power separately stop Essential to success of negotiations authority must be given us give option within seven days as interested parties would like to send engineers and experts immediately stop Unless are sent immediately they will not entertain scheme this year stop Trust consider this most satisfactory arrangement that can be made handle proposal and have no doubt of the ability parties furnish the money will be needed for Humber and Labrador but must be satisfied price full terms stop Unless Trust given full information immediately and discretion his stated limits fear negotiations will be defeated by loss time stop Offer will be made Rothermere participate in scheme according to promise stop Parties believe they can commence production pulp within two years from starting developments."

That is the message sent on the 24th June and on the 25th June we apparently reply:

"We are preparing estimates price Humber area and Labrador stop will telegraph as soon as possible after having consulted Bob due here 25th June stop Nova Scotia will not complete sale without instructions." Reid Then on the 29th June, we wire No. 76:

"Camerget, London. What is the capital of the Company to be? Humber area conservative valuation pulp wood three and half million cords four and quarter million two hundred and seventy million sawn logs eight hundred and ten thousand dollars one hundred and sixty thousand horsepower one million three hundred thousand dollars minerals townships agricultural land one million three hundred and fifty thousand dollars changing railroad one million two hundred and ninety thousand dollars stop Total nine million dollars stop Can you arrange half cash the remainder in part bond shares on

"In order to overcome the difficulty negotiations not successful by telegram but on account of progressive organization regarded as financially safe for this undertaking will consider valuation based upon their experts reports arrival to be in October stop Proposition must state what percentage will they allow as capital stock of the company is stop property are as valuable as represented Properties expected increase in value will come very fair basis after the examination."

To which the Trust replied on the following day, J. A. M.C.D. 250:

J. A. M.C.D. 250
"Humber Group want definite terms if possible stop Have been informed they have been offered similar proposition Canada stop Blakstad leaving England to-day but Tarbutt empowered to negotiate stop Hope to get him make offer Monday."

And on the 6th July, they sent us No. 251 J.A.M.C.D.:

J. A. M.C.D. 251
"Humber Group will enter into an agreement option price £250 thousand. Absolutely refuse to entertain first offer but believe that we can induce them to accept one million pounds stop If agreeable would suggest option should provide your agreement share and bond capitalization which can be arranged with Blakstad St. John's by 31st October stop Group alternative proposition purchase timber and water power working agreement all also royalty basis stop Do not consider this proposal satisfactory stop Colonel Temple offering other power and wood proposal Canada stop Group refuse inspect unless price agreed stop Offered Rothermere participation he is interested but desires further information which will be supplied."

And on the next day, July 7th, MacDonald wrote to Reid No. J.A. M.C.D. 252.

J. A. M.C.D. 252
"Dear Mr. Reid:—
Humber Area.
"As stated in our cable of yesterday the 6th inst., we again interviewed the Blakstad-Tarbutt group and discussed the question of price at some length. The definite statement was made by Mr. Tarbutt with whom the conference was held by Mr. Greenwood and myself that our first price of $3,000,000 less cost of moving the Railway was out of the question so far as they were concerned. The cost of moving the Railway would of course be taken into consideration in cost of power development.
"Before we had discussed the price with them they considered £750,000 as fair. From the manner in which the basis of proposal suggested stop Humber pulp wood of great value as no royalties will be assumed by buyers and logging costs here are lower than elsewhere, minerals carry valuable slate quarry and unusually good limestone also best deposit oil shales situated this area stop Hamilton Power belongs Newfoundland Products Corporation according to Conroy's letter to Greenwood dated 29th November would propose accepting quarter shares company formed separately to develop it stop Believe much good can be accomplished by investigation of experts."

To which the Trust replied on the 30th June:

"Humber group consider price excessive stop Water powers not of great value until they have been developed and land and pulp higher than can be purchased Scandinavia stop Minerals townships and agricultural land problematical value until they have been developed with the exception of lime deposit stop Group make a valuation total assets Humber between 750,000 pounds and 1,000,000 pounds payable half cash remainder in bonds or shares in accordance with your wishes stop If you are to ensure deal can be completed request you to authorize our closing for four million dollars but we will do all that is possible to get five million dollars stop Engineers and experts being engaged inspect and report at once in anticipation of price being agreed but if you cannot authorize Trust as we suggest little hope business being done stop Must have immediate reply as final answer must be given before Saturday stop Cost removing railway will be part of power construction costs."

Now, my Lord, the general tenor of this message is capable of a construction that this poor, unfortunate group of capitalists were almost broken backed from carrying round their loose gold on their shoulders, waiting a chance to dump it into this Humber scheme. What are the facts? That Blakstad and his associates did not interest the capital necessary for this work, did not interest the capital required for even these modified offers; and that in the following year when an agreement was made with Blakstad, it was made conditional upon his being able to obtain the Government guarantee, and when it was found that he could not get the Government guarantee, he had to depart from the original proposition, and suggest an amended proposition, which after all was a proposal, not that he was able to put through, but that it was hoped that he might be able to put through.

Then, my Lord, we come down to No. 79 J. A. M.C.D. 249, dated July 1st, 1920, when Reid telegraphed Camerget:

J. A. M.C.D. 249
"In order to overcome the difficulty negotiations not successful by telegram but on account of progressive organization regarded as financially safe for this undertaking will consider valuation based upon their experts reports arrival to be in October stop Proposition must state what percentage will they allow as capital stock of the company is stop property are as valuable as represented Properties expected increase in value will come very fair basis after the examination."

To which the Trust replied on the following day, J. A. M.C.D. 250:

J. A. M.C.D. 250
"Humber Group want definite terms if possible stop Have been informed they have been offered similar proposition Canada stop Blakstad leaving England to-day but Tarbutt empowered to negotiate stop Hope to get him make offer Monday."

And on the 6th July, they sent us No. 251 J.A.M.C.D.:

"Humber Group will enter into an agreement option price £250 thousand. Now my Lord, apparently letters and telegrams with regarding a price which Reid will need to take for the Humber have not assumed any final date up to the time that Major Mac gets to Newfoundland; but the correspondence to which Reid referred there are a few messages in which a tentative price arrived at; and I think it can be med up by referring to No. J.A.M.C.D. 264, and a reference to J.A.M.C.D. 266. On the 10th August Reid wired to the Trust as follows:

ject to draft form of agreement being sent from here."
And then in 107 which is from the Trust to H. D. Reid, on the 12th August, Major MacDonald is now here on his way here. I think as a matter of fact he was here:
"Humber Blakstad has telegraphed to Storm to-day make report timber stop Expects Major see Storm stop Must have reports before conclusion can be arrived at stop Will be ready to go Newfoundland next September discuss matters referred to in your telegram of 10th August with you stop Trip delayed on account contract with Norwegian Government stop Price 1,000,000 pounds does not disturb but until has been for himself cannot decide price or details of development stop Tentative scheme comprises parent holding with subsidiaries for power et cetera but dependent financial advice and conditions stop Blakstad keen and will do business but only if facts as he finds them."
Then there is a long letter of the same date from Greenwood to H. D. Reid, which is No. 108, W. H. G. 27, and then, my Lord, we come down to the minute of August, 1920. I submit that now, for the first time, do we find anything definite with regard to the mode and rate of remuneration of the Humber in respect of remuneration by way of Commission.
The minute, which has been referred to very frequently during these proceedings, tells us that:
"Meeting reconvened on Saturday, August 14th, 1920, at 11 a.m. the full Board being present.
Messrs Thomson and MacDonald were also present, and I would like to draw attention to paragraph 2 of that minute. I presume from what appears here that it is fair to decide that when the meeting opened, Mr. Thomson was present in his capacity as a director of the Reid Newfoundland Company, because shortly after the first item of business was settled, an item at which apparently the selection of the Messrs. Reid as directors was settled upon, and a resolution upon which apparently neither the Messrs. Reid nor Mr. Thomson voted was passed, and then we come down to paragraph 2:
"Mr. H. B. Thomson drew the attention of the Board to the difficulty of his position in taking any part in discussions affecting the Newfoundland Banking and Trust Corporation, Ltd. (hereinafter referred to for brevity as "the Trust") on account of his being financially interested in that Company; and expressed his willingness to resign from the Board of this Company in order to simplify the position. After consideration of the matter, and in view of the valuable assistance rendered by Mr. Thomson in matters in which the Trust is not in any way involved, it was VOTED that Mr. Thomson be requested to remain on the Board of this Company, and that he be understood that he would not take part in or vote on any discussion or questions in which the interests of the Newfoundland Banking and Trust Corporation might be concerned."
Mr. Thomson expressed his willingness "to remain on the Board on those terms."
Now, I would like to refer to that section of the minutes for the purpose of drawing your Lordship's attention to this position. Mr. Thomson came here in April, 1920, and remained here until the end of that year, with the exception of a short visit or two to Montreal or Halifax, and during that period he officiated as a director of the Reid Newfoundland Company, and apparently at this time, August 14th, 1920, his conscience smote him on the question of the dual responsibility, as announced in this minute. This minute expresses a very worthy determination on Mr. Thomson's part to set himself right; but, my Lord, I cannot help drawing your Lordship's attention to the different attitude which Mr. Thomson took in April, 1920, when the question of the commission to be paid to the Trust in connection with the Gander negotiations came up for discussion. Here we are in August, 1920, proceeding apparently to get from Mr. MacDonald, who had just arrived in Newfoundland, a report of the progress that is being made by the Trust with regard to the disposal or negotiations of the various properties of the Reid Newfoundland Company with which the Trust has to do; and proceeding apparently, after that report had been received, to deal with the method and manner and rate of remuneration which is to be payable to the Trust for my work or services of theirs and Mr. Thomson being financially interested in the Trust, realizes the delicacy of his position, and draws attention to it in the most approved manner.

But, my Lord, what was the position in April of 1920, when Mr. Thomson was still here as a director of the Reid Newfoundland Company. We have been told that in April, 1920, the question of the remuneration of the Trust in connection with the Gander Rothermere negotiations came up. The first recorded reference to it is in a telegram sent by the Reid people to the Trust on the 22nd April, suggesting a commission of five per cent. The only evidence that we have with regard to that message, and to what caused it to be sent, is Mr. Thomson's own words in that he thinks there was a message from the Trust about it. MR. EMERSON—Mr. Conroy says that it was as a result of a discussion between himself and Forbes and Thomson.
MR. HOWLEY—Yes, Mr. Conroy tells us that it was as a result of a discussion with Forbes and Thomson, but the discussion was the result, Mr. Thomson tells us, he thinks of a telegram that was received from the Trust. Mr. Conroy told us what he knew about it, and Mr. Thomson told us what he knew, and in that respect, at any rate, there is not any divergence or contradiction, so that whether Mr. Conroy's word, or Mr. Thomson's word is worthless does not enter into our consideration here, because there is no contradiction; but I am talking about what Mr. Thomson told us and that that the discussion which resulted in this telegram being sent was, he thinks, the result of a telegram from the Trust; and the two per cent. telegram was sent. Two days afterwards a telegram from the Trust to Reid came for ten per cent, and informing him that they were cabling Thomson on the matter; and on the 27th April we find that the minutes of the Trust repeat in exact language, the message sent to Reid, and state that they have cabled Mr. Thomson to the same effect; and we now know and have before us the fact that on the 25th April, 1920, MacDonald cabled Thomson to this effect:
"Cannot understand cables re commissions."
And I say first, as I said yesterday, that that language indicates that the Trust has received more than one cable with regard to this matter up to this date, and so far as the record shown, there was only one cable sent by Reid; and that was the suggestion of the five per cent. commission. This cable goes on:
"Trust composed important business men who know ten per cent. can be asked by any one on such transaction. Cabling Reid this sense

"arguing protection Trust in view of future business reducing commission to Trust without giving substantial reason will prove bad policy. So far as Greenwood you and myself are concerned, we of course share three equal parts monies received from Newfoundland business either through Trust or other channels."
Now then, my Lord, what is the position. Here we have reached a period when the Reid people are asked, or when there comes up for consideration by the Reid people a decision with regard to the rate of remuneration that they are to pay to this Trust, and the Reid people suggest five per cent, and the Trust comes back and says—we want ten per cent; and Mr. Thomson founds on the Board of the Reid Newfoundland Company, in St. John's and participates in a discussion, as to whether or not the Reid Company will pay the Trust 10 per cent, or whether they will stick to the 5 per cent, and then this message from MacDonald to Thomson, said:
"So far as Greenwood you and myself are concerned we of course share in three equal parts all monies received from Newfoundland business either through the Trust or other channels."
That is the message that was sent by MacDonald to Thomson at a time when Thomson sits on the board and participates in a discussion of a then unsettled question as to whether they would pay the Trust five per cent; and I do not think that it needs any comment from me to satisfy your Lordship as to the nature of the transaction or as to what was meant by the man who sent that message, or what was conveyed to the man that received it.
MR. EMERSON—It was disclosed to you?
MR. HOWLEY—No.
MR. EMERSON—Where did you get it?
MR. HOWLEY—We found it.
MR. EMERSON—Yes—on your own files. We told you in my message that we were writing to Thomson about it, and you saw it when it arrived. What more did you want to know about it?
MR. HOWLEY—However, my Lord, that brings it down to this 14th day of August, and after the delicate conscience of Mr. Thomson is assuaged by this agreement that he should continue on the Board and not participate in any matter concerning the Trust, the business of the meeting goes on, and Mr. Thomson and Major MacDonald were present by invitation to answer any questions that might be put by the Board; and finally we find that: "It was VOTED to proceed with the proposed sale of the Humber

"Valley property through the Trust, on the lines already communicated to the Trust in London by cable, which are subject to such modifications as may be arranged by conference with Mr. R. Blakstad on his proposed visit to Newfoundland next month."
And it was also voted:
That a similar commission. . . . That is similar to the Gander commission, which had just been voted: "of ten per cent be paid to the Trust out of the purchase price of the Humber Valley Property."
Now, a reference back to the resolution as to the vote with regard to the Gander property is necessary to determine what was meant by these words "similar commission." With regard to the Gander, it was voted:
"That the Trust be paid out of the purchase price of the Gander Valley property by instalments proportioned to the instalments received, and payable at the same time, a commission of 10 p.c. on the entire purchase price."
And, my Lord, there can be no doubt in anyone's mind that, at the time that minute of August 14th, 1920 was passed, the authority to deal with the sale and the resolution with regard to the commission had reference to a specific sale to Blakstad, and not alone a sale to Blakstad, but a sale to Blakstad on the terms of the cables that had passed between them, subject to such modifications as should afterwards take place.
Now here, I submit, and here only we must get our starting point as to what was the agreement for remuneration with regard to the Humber property under which the Trust worked from the 14th August, 1920 down to the date of the termination of the relations with the Reids; and whatsoever preceded the 14th August, 1920, whether it be an oral agreement made in December, 1919, or whether it be an option or an agreement for an option, or I will go further and say—and suggest something that has not been pleaded—whether it be an implied agreement that the Trust should receive a remuneration either by way of commission or by way of payment for services rendered; all such agreements express or implied, which may have existed up to the morning of August 14th, 1920 have been thrown aside, and are supplanted by the agreement contained in that minute of August 14th, 1920; and here I say we must take our starting point.

Now then, without wishing to lengthen out this already lengthy matter, I think my Lord, it is sufficient for me to say that the Blakstad negotiations continued to February, 1921, and then reached the stage of a form of agreement to which both sides were more or less satisfied being drafted and sent out here for the approval of the Board of Directors of the Reid Newfoundland Co., and of Mr. Conroy.
That agreement was not adopted. I shall deal with it a little later in another way; but the negotiations finally resulted in the agreement of April 5th, 1921, which was signed by Mr. H. D. Reid and by Mr. Blakstad; and that agreement of April 5th was made expressly conditional upon the obtaining of a guarantee from the Government of Newfoundland of the amount required to carry out the development, and provide working capital. After that agreement was signed—the day after it was signed, Blakstad, Reid and Greenwood left for St. John's, and arrived here on April 19th; and here my Lord, I would like to draw your Lordship's attention to a most extraordinary position in the claim of the Plaintiffs. It is asserted that Mr. Reid of the Reid Newfoundland Company refused to carry out the agreements.
If your Lordship will turn to page 18, paragraph 16 of the pleadings:
"The Reid Company and the Power and Paper Company refused to carry out the several agreements in part stated in the three last preceding paragraphs," that is, the agreements with Blakstad. The evidence in support of that allegation consists firstly of the evidence of Mr. Blakstad, and Mr. Blakstad tells us that the cause of the trouble was not that he could not get the Government guarantee, not that Reid refused to carry out his agreements, but that the whole trouble arose from the fact that there was not available two million acres of land, which was the amount alleged to be contracted for in the agreement. That is Blakstad's side of the story.

Then we come down to the evidence as it has actually been produced here; evidence, my Lord, which does not depend upon the reliability of the witnesses which we have put in the box, if it was necessary, or if it became necessary to consider how far these witnesses' version of the story could be relied upon as exact; but we have in evidence a document produced by Mr. Conroy and identified as a document that was brought into R. G. Reid's office on the evening of April 28th, or the morning of April 29th, and handed to Mr. R. G. Reid, who in turn handed it to Mr. Conroy, who asked Mr. Greenwood what it meant, or what it had reference to, and was told in reply that he would have to see Mr. Blakstad about it; this document is C.O.P. C.8. It is unsigned. It is dated April 28th, 1921, and it is headed "Memorandum re Necessity of Amending contract between H. D. Reid and R. Blakstad," and it begins:
"The conditions upon which the contract was made in London are now changed owing to the attitude of the Government relative to the guarantee of the bonds," and then it goes on to state various suggestions for alterations to the original contract.
HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—What is the date of that, Mr. Howley?
MR. HOWLEY—April 28th, 1921, and your Lordship perhaps may remember that Mr. Conroy put it in and stated that on the evening of the 28th or the morning of the 29th April, he is not quite sure which, Mr. Greenwood came into R. G. Reid's office, while Mr. Conroy was there and handed this document to R. G. Reid, who in turn handed it to Mr. Conroy, and that Mr. Conroy asked Mr. Greenwood what it was, and what it meant, and Greenwood told him that he would have to see Blakstad. Mr. R. G. Reid was unable to recognize this document when it was put to him, but he had already told us of the day when

Mr. Greenwood came into the office and handed him the paper, which he handed to Mr. Conroy without looking at it, and that Mr. Conroy asked Mr. Greenwood about and Greenwood referred him to Blakstad.

This, I submit, is the best evidence, and the most incontrovertible evidence that we can get of the fact that the agreement made with Blakstad on the 5th April, failed because Blakstad failed to get the Government guarantee. But in addition to this document we have the evidence given us by Mr. Conroy as to what happened when Mr. Blakstad found himself unable to get the Government guarantee, but further we have the Blakstad agreements themselves which are expressly conditional upon the getting of a guarantee from the Government.

Now then, I submit that insofar as the Plaintiff's allegation in the Statement of Claim with regard to this matter is material, or insofar as it may be in any way material that the allegation contained in paragraph 16 that "the Reid Co. and the Power and Paper Co. refused to carry out the several agreements in part stated in the three last preceding paragraphs thereof" that the Plaintiff's have utterly failed to sustain that position, or to establish that position. That is evident, I submit, from the evidence before your lordship—overwhelming evidence that the cause of the failure of the Blakstad agreement on April, 1921 was the failure of Blakstad to get the Government guarantee; and further than that, if by any chance or if for any reason, your lordship might be led to look to the evidence for any other cause of the failure of the Blakstad agreements, the only evidence that you will find is, not that the Reids refused to carry them out, but you will find in Blakstad's own story that the reason was that there was a dispute as to the quantity of land that was to be delivered under the agreement.

Now, what is the story following the Blakstad failure to get the Government guarantee. Blakstad and Greenwood left Newfoundland on the 5th May. The story from the Reid side is that they were prepared to carry out the Blakstad agreements—not alone were they prepared to carry out the Blakstad agreements, but that when Blakstad failed to get the Government guarantee and was unable to carry out the agreements himself that they, on the 3rd May, 1921, addressed to him another offer, and gave in thirty days within which to decide whether to accept it or not. He did not accept it, but during the course of the month of May, and whilst he was in Montreal, he telegraphed another offer through the Bank of Montreal, to which I shall refer later. I am merely referring to it now for the purpose of preserving the continuity of the story; and after that date, after Blakstad's thirty days within which to accept the offer had elapsed, we find a series of attempts by Blakstad through Greenwood and through the Trust to re-open negotiations with the Reid Newfoundland Company. I will deal with these at a later stage, in connection with another phase of the situation.

Then, following the departure of Blakstad and Greenwood in May, 1921, the next point in the story that seems to be of any importance is the coming into town of Mr. Waite, the engineer who had been sent out to Newfoundland to look over the Humber project on behalf of the Armstrong Whitworth Company; and Mr. Waite comes into town and finds that Blakstad had left. There is evidence that during his stay here he expressed himself rather hopefully approvingly of the possibility of the Humber scheme; and there is the evidence of Mr. Conroy that he, at any rate, conceived the idea that the Armstrong Whitworth people might be prepared to take up the scheme where Blakstad had laid it down. Then we come to the telegram which Greenwood sent to the Trust on the 4th July, 1921, N. 333 W.H.G. 52.

W.H.G. 52.

"Reids declare if they negotiate Humber with Armstrong Whitworth and Co. and finalize deals Trust get 10 p.c. commission stop No other commission will be paid stop Reids declare no definite figure arranged commission Light bonds what commission you willing to accept."

And on the same date in No. 334 W. H.G. 52 he writes the Reid Newfoundland Company:

"Dear Mr. Conroy—I enclose you copy of a cablegram I sent to-day to the Trust in London, following our conversation of this morning. If there is any matter touched on in this cablegram or any other subject that you think it advisable to discuss with me, I will be glad to call over and see you."

"The first point that I wish to draw attention to with regard to that matter is this: that although the telegram begins 'Reids declare,' and although the letter from Greenwood is addressed to the Reid Newfoundland Company, Limited, in the first instance; it is evident that in addressing that letter in which he addresses Mr. Conroy, and in referring to what 'Reids declare' in that telegram, he is referring to what Mr. Conroy told him; and we have Mr. Conroy's evidence explaining to what the cable referred.

and how it came to be so. Conroy's evidence on the matter at this time he had in mind the idea that the Armstrong people might be able to take Blakstad deal, and Mr. Conroy that what is meant by this and what is meant in his opinion with Greenwood was that Armstrong take up the Blakstad then we will pay you the money that was agreed to be paid by the Trust, but we distinctly recognize the other commissions are provided for. That was the intention then; and then we came to November, 1921.

Various incidents occurred meantime that are not of material to the main point of leading up to, but it is apparent in the early Fall of 1921, Mr. Conroy and Mr. H. D. Reid, and I think Powell, went over to London, not only in the hope that they would do this business with the Armstrong Whitworth Company. They had discussions with the Armstrong Whitworth Company—and, my Lord, I would like to come to the position of the Armstrong Whitworth Company at the time the Blakstad agreements were made in April, 1921.

I do not think that there is any doubt from the evidence of the exhibits of the letters, telegrams, memoranda that are here, that at the time the Armstrong Whitworth Company were interested in this matter as contractors. So the Blakstad proposition was one that they took an interest in it as a contracting firm who saw before them the possibility of a big contract interest was conditioned upon things. First, they wanted to investigate for themselves, or have investigated for them by someone whom they had confidence in, the ability of the proposed contractor as an engineering standpoint; and, secondly, they wanted to see if they entered into this contract money was going to come from them; and it is apparent that the period from when they were approached on the matter, to the time that Blakstad came to Newfoundland that Armstrong Whitworth Company had taken this interest in the matter, in fact the actual getting of the contract they sent Mr. Waite out here to examine the matter from an engineering standpoint; and it was apparent that in order to help Blakstad to raise the money after they had got the Government guarantee, they were prepared to introduce them to such houses as they knew, or were acquainted with, and to bring discussions with those financial houses as to what would be required in nature of a guarantee, and the terms would be; but to that only had the Armstrong Whitworth people interested themselves in proportion up to the time that the deal came to Newfoundland.

Now then, when Mr. Conroy this discussion with Greenwood resulted in Greenwood's meeting the Trust on July 4th, 1921, had transpired with the Armstrong Whitworth Company except that having learned that the Armstrong Whitworth representative, Mr. Conroy was favorably impressed with the possibility of the Humber project, Conroy had in his mind that the Armstrong might take up the deal where Blakstad had laid it down, had in his mind the possibility that that happened, if they could that about that the Trust was entitled to get the ten per cent commission that was provided for in the minute of August 14th, 1920.

Then, my Lord, we get on to the 4th July, 1921, and we enter into negotiations with the Armstrongs, and these negotiations, as we can see from the evidence before us, showed that the Armstrongs, Whitworth Company were interested in that contract; they were prepared to help by negotiation with financial houses if they could, in the raising of the money, after the Government guarantee had been obtained; but the evidence showed that beyond that Armstrong, Whitworth Company had no interest in the proposition, and had no intention of becoming interested in it; and that brings us to the interview between Conroy and the directors of the Trust on the 3rd November, 1921, and the outstanding feature of that interview of Nov. 3rd, 1921, is this—that the Plaintiff's case had closed after MacDonald and Thomson had given their evidence, and Mr. Conroy had heard Mr. Conroy's evidence, what took place on the 3rd November, and his version of the matter, and in his letter of November 3rd, 1921, that Major MacDonald and Thomson came into the picture, of them tell us in practically the same words that at the interview of Nov. 3rd, Mr. Conroy distinctly and expressly told them that in their making any deal with the Armstrong, Whitworth Company they would get a commission—ten per cent, on the proceeds of the deal as received.

Now, my Lord, if we had the story told by Messrs. MacDonald and MacDonald on their respective sides, that story and nothing else.

"The Diagnosis of Tuberculosis"

ADDRESS DELIVERED TO N.F.L.D. MEDICAL ASSOCIATION BY DR. E. E. MILLER.

To-day I am to talk to you on the "Diagnosis of Tuberculosis." The subject is a broad one and with the time at my disposal I can only touch upon some of the essential points that may be of value to you.

No one can deny the need of perfecting our skill in the early recognition of tuberculosis. One has but to notice the number of deaths from phthisis in Newfoundland and to reckon on, as recent statistics and health surveys have shown, that for every death from Tuberculosis reported in a community, five to nine active cases of the disease are to be found requiring treatment, to conclude that in your province there are probably some 3,000 or 4,000 cases of tuberculosis which should be under observation, whereas there are actually under treatment in your sanatorium at St. John's less than 125.

This is proven to be well within a correct estimate, when we find that in other places where a thorough health survey has been made 1 per cent. of the population had active tuberculosis disease, requiring treatment, and another 1 per cent. had the disease in a latent or arrested form. The population of Newfoundland and Labrador, if I remember correctly, is about 252,000, which would give us, at the rate of one in a hundred, about 2,500 patients who should be under observation and probably 2,500 more who, though not requiring treatment, should be warned regarding the necessary measures to prevent the development of their tuberculous infection.

What can we do to cope with this problem? The best practical test ever made, so far as I know, is the world-famous Framingham Public Health demonstration. I may explain, as many of you probably know, that the National Tuberculosis Association of the United States, with a grant of $100,000 from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, as an experiment and demonstration of what can be accomplished by the best means, made an effort to reduce the tuberculosis morbidity and mortality rate in a chosen town, Framingham, Massachusetts. In 1916 in that city the death rate from tuberculosis was 121 per 100,000 of the population. In 1921 the rate had been reduced to 40 per 100,000, that is, a reduction in 5 years of 67 per cent.

Dr. D. B. Armstrong, leader of the Framingham Public Health demonstration in the United States, in one of his published monographs states: "The expert medical consultation service, developed subsequent to the first 'drive', and carried on in connection with the routine medical examination work of the Community Health Station, has constituted, next to the drives themselves, the greatest source of information regarding tuberculosis cases in Framingham, and has been chiefly responsible for the bringing under control of the active tuberculosis patients. This consultation service is at the disposal of physicians or private citizens on all doubtful pulmonary conditions, and has proved to be so valuable an instrument in the discovery of the disease in Framingham that there is a strong likelihood at present of its extension, on a permanent and statewide basis, under the auspices of the State organizations. In other words, Framingham found that the services of expert, specially trained chest examiners, did more than any other factor in the whole campaign to bring under control the cases of tuberculosis in that city."

Services such as this is certainly one of the things required in Newfoundland; that is to say, you need to provide in each district a chest clinic which will be visited at regular intervals by a physician specially trained in respiratory diseases, including tuberculosis, whose services shall be at the disposal of physicians who desire to bring to him for examination and advice any case of respiratory disease, especially those in which tuberculosis is suspected. My experience both at Kentville, and at the various public health clinics I have attended throughout the province of Nova Scotia, leads me to believe that the medical training we have received in the past has not been as thorough and carefully worked out as it should have been, with the result that many a physician to-day is uncertain in his diagnosis of tuberculosis disease even when it is manifest in the lungs. I have great sympathy for the general practitioner in the many problems he is up against in private practice. We at the sanatorium, with all our facilities, realize as well as any one how difficult at times it is to make a satisfactory diagnosis. A single examination so often does not settle the question, and unless one can secure further information such as may be given by careful roentgenological and laboratory reports, it is practically impossible to state with certainty the ailment from which the patient is suffering. There is excuse, I may say, for not recognizing suspicious and early tuberculosis conditions where the symptomatology is not clear; but in cases in which the physical signs are clearly defined in the lungs, no physician should fall down in his diagnosis.

During the past two years we have made an exhaustive study, clinical and X-ray, of some 1200 cases admitted to the Nova Scotia Sanatorium since 1914; and our findings, presented before the American Climatological Association, have been published in various journals. I hope to-day some of the points we have learned from our study will prove of interest and help to you.

The standard of our examinations includes a careful history of the illness of the patient; a complete physical examination; nose, throat and dental examinations; laboratory examinations, including sputum analysis and blood examinations; X-ray examinations (fluoroscopic and stereoscopic), and finally the correlation of all these findings at our medical meetings so that a diagnosis may be established.

The patients that present themselves for examination may usually be divided into 4 groups: (1) Not Tuberculous. (2) Suspected Tuberculous. (3) The Tuberculous. (4) Non Pulmonary Tuberculosis.

As I am not going into any discussion of forms of tuberculosis other than pulmonary, I will dismiss this fourth group now. It includes patients suffering from tuberculous adenitis, epididymitis, peritonitis, tuberculation of the bones, joints, etc.

1. The Not Tuberculous: These often give us a great deal of trouble in diagnosis and take some time to decide, because the symptoms, in many cases, so very closely resemble those of tuberculosis. They may roughly be divided into three general classes:—(a) patients with symptoms resembling those of tuberculosis. Those, for example, suffering from focal infections such as diseased nasal and sinus condition, infected tonsils, teeth, etc. These patients complain of cough, expectoration, blood-streaked sputum, or even some clear blood; they may have slight hoarseness and shortness of breath. A careful examination of the upper respiratory tract and the fact that the patient is losing little or no weight or strength, should make us feel that we are dealing with some condition other than tuberculosis.

(b) We have also in this group patients suffering from chronic pulmonary diseases such as chronic bronchitis, asthma, bronchiectasis, pneumoconiosis, unresolved bronchopneumonia. The history of these patients points to a disease extending over a long period of time. Usually they complain of cough, expectoration, shortness of breath, loss of strength, slight fever, little or no loss of appetite, nor loss of weight. The physical signs, rales and rhonchi, however, are generally basal and not in the upper third of the lung, where we usually find tuberculous disease. Sputum is persistently negative for tubercle bacilli. The X-ray examination corroborates the physical findings and indicates that we are dealing with a non-tuberculous respiratory affection.

(c) Then there are patients suffering from anemia, chlorosis, ataxia, or affections localized in the intestines, gall bladder, appendix, kidney, etc., who run a slight fever and complain of loss of strength and appetite. The misleading symptoms here are usually obscure fever and loss of strength. A careful history and physical examination are usually sufficient to establish a diagnosis in these cases.

In the second of our main group, Suspected Tuberculosis, we place those whose symptoms are still more suspicious. In this group the physical and X-ray findings are often most suspicious but not clear-cut. Tubercle bacilli are not to be found in the sputum. The history of the onset of the disease, however, is usually suggestive, particularly when the patient gives a history of an hemoptysis or pleurisy with effusion. Anyone who gives a history either of hemoptysis or wet pleurisy should be considered tuberculous until the contrary is proved.

2. The Tuberculous: This group we divide into two sections (a) Clinical tuberculosis (non-bacillary) and (b) Positive tuberculosis (bacillary).

In (a) we place those cases in which our diagnosis is based upon clinical evidence alone, that is, upon a positive history and physical findings in the lungs, where tubercle bacilli have not been found in the secretion.

In (b) are those who, in addition to the clinical findings, have tubercle bacilli in their sputum. This division is really between bacillary and non-bacillary cases of tuberculosis. This entire Third Group, the Tuberculous, is divided, for diagnostic purposes, into the familiar classification, (1) Incipient, or as the more approved term is used, Minimal; (2) Moderately Advanced; (3) Far Advanced.

CLASSIFICATION OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Incipient: Slight infiltration in the apex of one or both lungs or a small part of one lobe. No tuberculous complications.

Moderately Advanced: Marked infiltration more extensive than under incipient with little or no evidence of cavity formation. No serious tuberculous complications.

Far Advanced: Extensive localized infiltration or consolidation in one or more lobes. Or disseminated areas or cavity formation. Or serious tuberculous complications.

Symptoms.

A.—(Slight or None). Slight or no constitutional symptoms, including particularly gastric or intestinal disturbance, or rapid loss of weight, slight or no elevation of temperature or acceleration of pulse at any time during the twenty-four hours. Expectoration usually small in amount or absent. Tubercle bacilli may be present or absent.

B. (Moderate). No marked impairment of function, either local or constitutional.

C. (Severe). Marked impairment of function, local and constitutional.

X-RAY.

(1) Minimal: X-ray findings to show a total area involved (parenchymatous) not greater than the area to the upper level of the 2nd chondro-sternal junction on one side (both sides may be involved) in the form of scattered mottling, or an intense shadow interpreted as pleuritic.

(2) Moderately Advanced: The X-ray to show an intense shadow, not interpreted as pleuritic, of no greater extent than the area above the upper level of the 4th chondro-sternal junction on one side; or areas of rarefaction interpreted as cavities limited to one interspace; or scattered mottling over a greater area than that under "minimal" but not greater than the area of one entire lung and to the level of the 2nd chondro-sternal junction on the opposite side.

(3) Far Advanced: The X-ray to show an intense shadow, not interpreted as pleuritic, of greater extent than the area above the upper level of the fourth chondro-sternal junction on one side, or areas of rarefaction interpreted as cavities, greater than one interspace, or scattered mottling greater in extent than under "moderately advanced". When I come to my X-ray films I shall show you typical pictures of these three different stages.

Now let me speak of some of the means which in general practice one may use to arrive at a diagnosis.

First as to the "history findings". I fear that sufficient importance is not given to an accurate and complete history of the patient. On going over our records I see that a diagnosis of tuberculosis might have been made from the history findings alone in at least 75 per cent. of the cases. Dr. D. A. Stewart, a well-known Canadian tuberculosis specialist, states: "If a choice had to be made from one element only in the diagnosis the choice would not be physical examination, not X-ray plates, nor laboratory tests, but history. Perhaps the pen is mightier even than the stethoscope."

The ordinary symptoms are well-known—Loss of strength, weight and appetite; cough and expectoration, slight fever, hoarseness, and in some cases, night sweats—two or more of these, existing for more than six weeks, should be considered suggestive of tuberculosis, and should prompt a careful examination and enquiry into their cause. As for hemoptysis and pleurisy with effusion, these are cardinal or deciding symptoms of tuberculosis and I speak of them in some detail.

This child (aged 10) opens at the popular Star on Monday, and from what can be gathered, she is a little wonder. She comes here from Boston where she has made a name for herself, and no doubt she will do the same in this city. With this engagement is a picture which the management of this theatre assures us is even greater than Fleming Youth, and this in itself is a big statement, as the thousands who witnessed the latter production were most loud in their praise of it. "The White Moth" is the dancing idol of Paris—a figure of beauty and charm. Men loved her only to regret it, whilst every woman in that city hated her. Featured in the picture are Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle, with over 2 hundred dancing girls from Paris. The story is one that cannot be very well pub-

It is generally recognised to-day that any patient who gives a history of having spat up a dram or more of blood should be considered tuberculous until the contrary is proved. This is well brought out in our study of the 1200 cases in which 238 gave a history of hemoptysis, and in 80 per cent. of these a definite parenchymatous X-ray lesion was found in the lungs. A glance at this chart will serve to impress upon your mind the comparative value of these history findings. You will notice this is in accord with the findings of Brown and Heise of Saranac Lake who made a similar study years ago. I recognize that there are other respiratory affections from which bleeding may occur. For example, bad nasal and sinus conditions may cause bleeding, but it is usually a great mistake to allow the patient to believe that bleeding comes "from the throat." In the many cases that I have seen, only twice have I found the bleeding to come "from the throat." The amount of blood brought up, however, is small in such cases and a careful examination of the upper respiratory tract will usually discover or rule out these conditions. Then, of course, we have cardiac and chronic lung conditions, such as bronchiectasis, abscess, etc., from which bleeding may occur. A careful history and examination and a negative sputum usually determine the diagnosis among these patients. In those cases in which there has been a history of an hemoptysis and in which rales cannot be found in the upper third of the lungs, and the X-ray plate is negative, that is, no parenchymatous lesion can be discovered in the same area, we are usually dealing with some condition other than tuberculosis. And here I wish to emphasize the need of placing a patient down to rest treatment at once when you think that any blood has come from the lungs. An hemoptysis indicates pathologic activity and as such should be promptly treated on general rest lines. The neglect of this is inexcusable and has been the cause of allowing many a patient to drift into incurable tuberculosis. If there is the slightest doubt as to the origin of the bleeding, make it a point to send your patient where he can be further examined and X-rayed so that a diagnosis may be established.

Pleurisy with effusion is a most dependable symptom. In our series of 1200 cases, 78 gave a history of pleurisy with effusion and in 78 per cent. of these a definite parenchymatous X-ray lesion was found in the lungs—that is to say, a demonstrable intrapulmonary tuberculosis lesion. It may be generally accepted that serofibrinous pleurisy coming on insidiously and with few symptoms, is almost certain to be tuberculous in origin. Neglect to realize this fact is dangerous and many a pleurisy patient, had he been warned at the right time and given appropriate care, might have been saved prolonged and costly institutional treatment. This point will be illustrated by one or two of the X-ray films I shall show you.

Loss of strength and weight, you will see from this chart, occur in about 85 per cent. of tuberculous patients, and when these symptoms cannot be satisfactorily accounted for by other causes, tuberculosis should be suspected. Cough and expectoration occur in the history of 80 per cent. of patients. Expectoration, as a symptom, I will refer to when I come to laboratory examination conclusions.

A second point I wish to make is regarding physical examination findings. In our series of cases, inspection of the chest has proved to be of more value than percussion, and it comes next in worth to auscultation. Percussion appears to be of little aid in detecting early tuberculous changes in the lungs. Alteration in the lung note, especially when heard in the upper third of one or both lungs, which we once considered of value in eliciting a diagnosis, is no longer to be depended upon, as we find the same changes in notes in respiratory diseases other than tuberculosis. Auscultation continues to be our surest procedure in the physical examination of the chest. I have this to say regarding breath sounds: Feeble or diminished breathing, granular breathing, increased or exaggerated breathing, interrupted or cog-wheel breathing, cannot be depended upon, in the absence of rales, to establish a diagnosis of tuberculous disease. Even moderate broncho-vesicular breathing in the upper third of the lungs, in the absence of rales, is not to be relied upon in more than 50 per cent. of cases, and unless the breathing is more of the bronchial type, it is of no great worth in clinching a diagnosis. The only sure auscultatory sign is rales, and when they are heard in the upper third of the chest, that is, above the 2nd or 3rd rib and 4th vertebral spine, they are almost invariably an indication that tuberculous disease is present.

The elicitation of rales is of so much importance that I shall go into the method with some care. For this purpose I have brought this diagram, which shows, in a very simple way, the reasons why the respiratory cough must be insisted upon when listening for rales in a patient's lungs. The expiratory cough I explain to the patient by getting him to breathe out quietly through the open mouth, and with the little breath that is left, give a slight cough, immediately inhaling again through the mouth. The time to listen for rales is immediately following the cough, at the beginning of the inspiration. The reason why this method is so necessary to the elicitation of rales is shown very simply in the diagram. Here are represented a group of air vesicles or cells, as they are prior to inspiration, that is, at the end of a natural expiration. Here is the same group of cells after deep inspiration. Figure 3 shows a single air cell after ordinary expiration. You will notice the walls are not in contact because of the residual air in the cell. These dots represent secretion on the cell wall. Figure 4 shows the cell expanding during inspiration but you can understand that, as the walls have not been in contact, this separation will cause no clicking sounds or rales. But notice in Figure 5 what happens when you ask your patient to cough after expiration. The cough has driven out the residual air and the walls are in contact. Now your inspiration will cause, as in Figure 6, a separation of the cell wall and if these walls are sticky with secretion this is the moment you are likely to hear rales, consequently, this is the moment to listen especially for them.

The third lesson we have learned is regarding laboratory findings. We see the need of greater care in the microscopic examination of sputum. By care, I mean, in apparently negative cases, not only the examination of specimens taken on several consecutive days, but the spending of a much longer time in the study of each smear, sometimes 15 minutes or more. (Bring up these points: any patient who gives a history of bringing up sputum from the lungs, make it an invariable habit to ask for a specimen for microscopic examination. Neglect to do this is inexcusable. Facilities of Department of Health. Method to be followed by physicians.)

To sum up a few lessons we have learned in the diagnosis of tuberculosis. Before a patient can be pronounced tuberculous he must have one or more of the following findings:

- (1) The presence of tubercle bacilli in the sputum.
- (2) A parenchymatous X-ray lesion in the upper third of the chest, i.e., above 3R and 4 v.s.
- (3) Fine or m.c. rales in the same area.
- (4) A history of hemoptysis.
- (5) A history of pleurisy with effusion.

Suspected Tuberculosis.

- (1) Absence of tubercle bacilli.
- (2) Doubtful or negative physical or X-ray findings in the upper third of the chest.
- (3) History of either an hemoptysis or pleurisy with effusion.

Not Tuberculosis.

All of the findings under suspected tuberculosis to be absent. In concluding his address, Dr. Miller said the best means yet devised to carry on such an examination campaign and to make its results permanent is a system of county or district clinics. For this work the services of one or two full-time expert chest examiners would be required, who would visit at regular intervals, the various districts throughout Newfoundland. Physicians in the district would be notified in advance so that they might bring to the visiting examiner any case of respiratory disease requiring expert examination and advice. There is no doubt, a number of the districts could afford the services of a public health nurse, who would follow up the cases discovered at the clinic, and supervise their home treatment. This, I think I may say, is the most valuable preventive agency we can have; and certainly the work of the clinic examiner must be largely wasted unless it is supported by an efficient public nursing service. It is also a necessary supplement to the hospital, and the sanatorium, making possible the treatment of discharged patients and their families, so preventing relapse and aiding in re-establishment when necessary.

In other words, the clinic and the public health nurse, must be a part of the special campaign, and they must be made permanent after the campaign, to occupy the territory gained.

Good as have been your efforts in the past to reduce the spread of tuberculosis throughout your island, further measures will be required to lower the morbidity and mortality rate which still continue alarmingly high. I think I can safely say, that, if tuberculosis is treated at the right time, there are few diseases more amenable to treatment. It is the neglected case, allowed to drift into the incurable stage, and it is the long years of hopeless illness in some of these cases, which present the real tragedy of the picture. It is amazing how little even our educated and well-to-do classes, not to speak of the poor, seem to know about the simple measures that would prevent the development and spread of the disease, or how to handle it when it has come into the family or the community. It is both a personal problem, and a community problem, and to handle it effectively, we must have, not only education of the people, but a live organization to carry on such a campaign as I have outlined to-day.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

AT THE FIRST TEE.

The first tee is a gladsome spot,
The sun of hope is shining high,
Before the golfer makes his shot
He knows his record score is nigh;
Though yesterday his game was bad
Another round now lies before,
His eye is bright, his heart is glad,
To-day he'll get an eighty-four.

Away they go, four happy men,
One clanders at the very start
And loses hope right there and then,
To follow with a heavy heart;
Hope lingers with the other three,
But two of them, betrayed by fate
See once again the promise flee,
The long hole costs them both an eight.

One solitary dub remains
Who proudly counts his score card
O'er,
And finds, by taking care and pains
He'll tie the nine in forty-four;
His drive is bunkered and he takes Four strokes to reach the course again.

All hope is lost. The score he makes
Is ruined by a shameful ten.
The tenth tee rouses hope once more,
For there the second nine begins,
There they can start anew to score,
Forgetting all their previous sins
But once they've left that tee behind,
The clouds of grief and travail burst,
For nowhere can the golfers find
The hope that warms them at the first.

Mrs. Adams Escapes Operation

The following statement contained in a letter from Mrs. A. A. Adams of Provost, Alberta, should bring hope to other women who are in the same condition she was. She says, "I was in a very bad condition and my doctor said I could not have children without an operation. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: I have taken three bottles and now have a bonny baby girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends who have female troubles."

Great Double Programme at the Nickel

Viola Dana and Bryant Washburn Are Featured.

The Nickel offers a big double programme this week end. The features are "The Heart Bandit," starring Viola Dana and "Try And Get It," with Bryant Washburn.

An entertainment of rare quality is promised in Viola Dana's newest picture for Metro, "The Heart Bandit."

The situations arising from the unusual association form the basis for many scenes of thrills and comedy, the girl getting into several scrapes that seem impossible of solution until a new element—love—enters in. Milton Sills, the popular leading man of a host of big productions, appears opposite Miss Dana. Others in the cast include Wallace MacDonald, Gertrude Claire, Bertram Grassby, and DeWitt Jennings. "The Heart Bandit" was directed by Oscar Apfel and photographed by John Arnold. Fred Kennedy Mylon wrote the story, which was adapted for the screen by Tom J. Hopkins.

 WASHINGTON, July 17.
 A bid of $1,760,000 from Henry Ford for the 200 Shipping Board vessels to be sold for scrapping was opened with 27 others by the fleet corporation. Except for an offer from A. G. Wilson of Bar Harbor representing the Ocean Towing Company of $2,445,000 for the lot, which was unaccompanied by the required certified cheque for one-tenth of the amount and so could not be considered, the Ford tender was several hundred thousand dollars higher than any other cash offer. All will be tabulated without delay, for the sale is expected to go forward this week from President Palmer of the Fleet Corporation of the Shipping Board.

Tourist Possibilities in Newfoundland

COL. MONTGOMERIE, M.P., DELIVERS INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS TO BOARD OF TRADE.

At a largely attended meeting of the Board of Trade, held this afternoon, Colonel Montgomery delivered an interesting and instructive address on the tourist possibilities in Newfoundland. The speaker was introduced by Mr. J. Meenan, Chairman of the Tourist and Publicity Bureau. Colonel Montgomery, who is directly connected with the tourist movement in Nova Scotia, instanced how Switzerland, California, Florida and Maine had commercialized their natural attractions by continent-wide propaganda. The motor car, with the improved roads has been adopted everywhere, had made possible the tremendous increase in recent years in the number of people who travel. They seek a cool climate in summer and a warm one in winter, and in this respect we, with our ideal summer weather may expect to draw the most of our tourists from the Middle New England States, the speaker said.

Attacked Mission

THREE PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARIES WERE WOUNDED WITH KNIVES.
 PEKING, July 12.—Cantonese soldiers on July 9 forced their way into the English Presbyterian Mission at Wukingfu, fifty miles in the interior of Kwangtung, where they beat one missionary and injured him with knives. They also beat two of the woman missionaries, cutting them slightly with knives.

A Noteworthy Example

One of the most interesting of their Majesty's forthcoming engagements is the opening of the new headquarters of the British Medical Association, a fine contribution to London's architecture, designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens. A gratifying feature of this ceremony is the fact that one relative of each of the two hundred members who lost their lives in the war will be accommodated in a special stand close to the gate which the King is to open. Here the B.M.A. sets a very good example to other organizations concerned with war memorials. Too often the best places at such ceremonies are taken by civic functionaries and their over-dressed friends, while those whose relatives the memorial commemorates are pushed away into the background. After opening the gates with a golden key, the King will inspect the "Book of Honor," which is full of names of doctors who fell in battle. The noble sacrifice of the doctors, who, after all, were unarmed missionaries of mercy, is assuredly a fitting theme for the King's homage and eloquence.

Fire at Laureceton

Word has been received in the city of a destructive fire at Laureceton, Notre Dame Bay, on Friday last when the home of George Hutchings was burnt to the ground. The fire broke out after the family had retired for the night, and they barely escaped with their lives. Mr. C. S. LeDrew, who was one of the first to arrive on the scene, made temporary provision for the family who lost all their belongings.

Wedding Bells

WARD—CURRAN
 Portugal Cove was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Sunday, July 12th, at the Church of the Holy Rosary, when Mr. Laurence Ward of this city was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Miss Bridget Curran of Fermeuse. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Gough, P.P. of Portugal Cove. The bride was very prettily attired in white macerated with bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a beautiful bouquet of delphiniums. She was assisted by Miss A. Walsh, teacher of Portugal Cove, while the groom was supported by Frank Kenny of this city. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. John Murphy of Portugal Cove Road, where a large number of friends were in attendance. The groom's present to the bride was a cheque, to the maid of honour a silver bar pin, and to the best man a silver stick pin. The bride and groom received very many valuable presents, including a large cheque, which proves their popularity. Their many friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Ward many happy years of wedded bliss.

The Success of the NEW CHEVROLET

There were more New 1925 Chevrolet motor cars sold in Newfoundland this year than any other make—Why? Because in the New Chevrolet the public and experienced motorists recognised quality and strength not to be found in any car selling near the Chevrolet price.

The New Chevrolet has larger and stronger frame—new semi-elliptic chrome vanadium steel springs—stronger axles, rear axle of the finest construction, banjo type with greatly strengthened gears; improved, fully enclosed dry plate disc clutch requiring no lubrication and very smooth in action; extra heavy brake bands and many improvements on the powerful Chevrolet motor.

All models now finished in Duo—the new finish that retains its color and lustre almost indefinitely and withstands very hard usage. In the Chevrolet you will find many quality features that you would expect to find only on cars of much higher price.

Chevrolet cars have demonstrated their ability to perform most satisfactorily on almost impassable roads and especially in the Outports where roads are rough.

Chevrolets are equipped with 3-speeds forward. We will gladly send you a catalog upon request.

A Sad Drowning

Yesterday afternoon between five and six o'clock, a sad drowning occurred at a small brook near the burn Turnpike, Road, when Gerald Comerford, aged 14 years, was the victim. As far as we can understand the boy was standing near the brook, when he was seized with an epileptic fit, fell into the water and smothered before help could reach him. Dr. Comerford's father, who lives near the brook, was notified quickly to the scene, but life was extinct when he arrived. Death was pronounced to be due to drowning. There will be much sympathy felt for the bereaved family.

WHEN THE LIGHTS WENT OUT.

The electric lights, after making one or two unfulfilled threats, suddenly went out.

We waited a minute for them to come on and then groped our way to those decorative under-studies for the part of light givers in our household drama—the candles—and lit them.

The summer storm that had snatched away our electric light must have been unusually destructive for it was several hours before the lights came on again. And during those hours, while candles were our only light, my heart was in my throat a dozen times lest some of the draperies that seemed so faithfully drawn to the candle flame as any moth, should succeed in catching themselves afire. "I should think there would have been fires all the time in the old days when there was nothing but candles," I said, as I tucked an ambitious window drape into place.

More Candles But Fewer Draperies. And then I bethought me. They had a great many more candles than we do, to be sure, in the old days, but they probably had a great many less draperies.

In the ordinary houses I mentioned the great ones. The houses that you and I would have been living in if we had been born a hundred years ago.

and balances that can be drawn. At one end of the scale is Thoreau who said: "I had three pieces of limestone on my desk, but I was terrified to find that they required to be dusted daily. How, then, could I have a furnished house? I would rather sit in the open air for no dust gathers on the grass unless where man has broken the ground."

A Slave To Her House. At the other end is the woman who is slave to a house full of pretty things which she conceives to be the sole end and aim of existence to keep immaculate, the woman who takes down her window draperies at night lest the night air soil them, and will not get a glass of water in the evening because the sink has been dried out. We have each a right to strike what balance we choose (always keeping in mind that our lives are closely interlocked with others and their wishes must be taken into account) but let us not do it wholly thoughtlessly and blindly. Let's have some idea of what we want, and whether we are getting it, or whether we can do better.

Personal

Mrs. J. C. Bryden, of Scranton, Pa., arrived by S.S. Rosalind yesterday on a visit to her brother, Alex Marshall. Mr. Wilbert Taylor, Commission Merchant of Barbados, B.W.I. accompanied by his wife and daughter are staying at the Balsam.

Now, how did we end yesterday's story? Was the baby elephant enjoying the lollipop? Yes, indeed. And although that good little fellow hadn't finished his supper, as soon as the lollipop was gone, he ate the rest of the cereal and fiddled his bib.

"At a boy!" cried the Circus Elephant, tickled to death to see how well he had trained the baby. "I'll send him a rattle," cried generous Uncle John Hare. "Little Jack Rabbit and I will stop at the Three-in-One Cent Store on the way home," and hopping out to the Bunnymobile, the old gentleman rabbit lifted his brown derby hat. "Good-by," he shouted, as his bunny nephew sat down beside him. "Good-by, Mr. Ragged Rabbit Giant. Glad you brought us here. Good-by, Mr. Circus Elephant. Ta-ta, baby elephant," and off drove kind Uncle John Hare.

"Now, we'll surprise Mrs. Daisy Duck," he laughed, turning to Little Jack Rabbit. "We should have been home long ago. That careful housekeeper of mine will be wondering where I am," and with a hoak of the horn to warn a little squirrel to get out of the way, he sped up the Bunnymobile. Pretty soon, not so very far, they left the Fairy Forest and rolled along Turnip Avenue, and without a mishap nor a skipperty slap they reached the little bungalow. There in the doorway, shading her eyes with her wing, stood Mrs. Daisy Duck.

"Oh, here you are!" she exclaimed. And then, on seeing the little rabbit, she gave a joyful quack and waddled off the front porch.

"He's going to make us a visit," laughed happy Uncle John Hare, as he parked the Bunnymobile in the garage in the rear of his comfortable bungalow. "I met him at the station quite by accident. Never dreamed he was on board the Lettucemere Express. But here he is, safe and sound. Supper 'most ready!"

"The Carrot Cakes are sizzling hot. The Turnip Tea is in the pot. The Lettuce Sandwiches are made. And spread with lovely marmalade," answered Mrs. Daisy Duck, bustling into the kitchen.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon, Mayor Cook presiding and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden in attendance. Communications were tabled from the Deputy Colonial Secretary as follows:—

(1) That the Council's request for the appointment of a Conciliation Board in respect to the relation between Landlord and Tenant, would be brought to the notice of the Executive Government.

(2) In reply to the protest made by the Council against permission being given the Marine Agencies, Ltd., to occupy that portion of the waterside known as Gill's Cove, the Deputy Colonial Secretary stated permission had been granted this Company to build an extension to the end of the King's wharf, such use and extension to last for a period of 30 years, reservation, however, being made that whenever the wharf is required for public purposes, it may be acquired by the Government at 48 hours' notice. He agreed with the Council's attitude that neither the Government nor the Council had authority to grant the Company the right to obstruct any public cove or interfere with its use by the public, and that same could only be done by Act of Legislature. The Council, as representing the city, intends to protect the rights of citizens, and hopes that the foregoing will be borne in mind if and when this matter comes up for discussion in the Legislature.

Instructions have already been given the City Solicitor to take proceedings against the Company, and a writ has been served on them for violation of the Municipal Act regarding obstruction of Public Cove. It was decided that the Council visit the site to-morrow morning.

Re application for loan of $10,000.00 for water and sewerage extensions, the Manager of the Royal Band of Canada informed the Council that on receipt of the usual Government guarantee the Bank was prepared to advance this amount. The guarantee has already been requested.

The Deputy Minister of Public Works intimated that the matter of erecting a fence between the Colonial Building grounds and Bannerman Park was now being given consideration by the Minister. The fence in question has been the subject of correspondence between the Department and the Council for some twelve months, and it is to be hoped it will now be settled without further delay.

The Superintendent of the General Hospital during the past week forwarded a communication in which he asked that a Tarriva surface be placed over the Hospital roadway to keep down the dust and improve conditions generally. He stated the dust was the cause of great annoyance, and that it would be impossible for them to carry on the work of the Institution but for the generous action of the Council in placing the sprinkling machines at their disposal. On receipt of this request, the City Clerk immediately wrote the Deputy Minister of Public Works who replied to the effect that the matter had never been brought before his Department for consideration. The Council is always ready to assist in the work of any public institution such as that referred to, and if the Public Works Department is prepared to pay expenses which would be incurred, the necessary machinery, etc., will be gladly placed at its disposal.

Mr. J. C. Hepburn stated that the Council's communication on the matter of the Parade Rink would be given consideration by the Council of Newfoundland Highlanders at an early date, and the decision arrived at would be immediately forwarded.

The Secretary of the Newfoundland Tourist and Publicity Association solicited the co-operation of the Council in the work undertaken of encouraging tourist traffic in St. John's and the country generally. He also asked that if possible repairs be made to the main thoroughfare leading to the Cabot Tower, which is a point of interest for visitors to our city. The Council is most anxious to attend to all work of this kind, but it must be remembered that many business and traffic thoroughfares are in need of particular attention at the present time, and that a large amount of money has to be expended thereon, which makes it difficult to undertake work other than that absolutely necessary. However, if the outcome of the recent conference, as to increased road grants, between the Government and Council is satisfactory, the work requested by the Association will be immediately looked after.

The following matters were referred to the City Engineer:—

Application of E. J. Johnson, for placing of drains in Fleming Street, and of R. Morgan and W. Way for improvements to surface drainages on Quiddi Vidi Road and Pleasant Street respectively.

The request of F. Bursell, for attention to gully, Hamilton Street, and complaints of C. Fitzgerald, F. Foley, and F. O'Neill, re hoppers on Carter's and Barter's Hills and Central Street, were referred to the Road Committee and Engineer.

The East End Taxi Company applied for permission to instal telephone booth at their stand, which was granted, subject to the approval of the City Engineer.

The Secretary of the Labour Committee asked permission to hold a Labour Meeting in Bannerman Park within the next few days. This matter was left in the hands of the Park Committee, who, if satisfied, may grant permission.

The City Solicitor reported on repairs to Water Street sidewalks, and gave as his opinion that the owners of premises along this thoroughfare were responsible for the upkeep of same.

Following the application made by the Playground Association at the last regular meeting for a portion of Bannerman Road to be used for the holding of a circus entertainment, the Solicitor was of opinion the Council could not close any road for such a purpose. Some of the Councillors thought apart from the legal aspect that the fact of the Company sharing a portion of their receipts with the Association would justify the Council in granting permission. Before making a definite decision it was agreed to visit the site.

Plans.

The following plans were passed on the recommendation of the City Engineer, at whose office the necessary permits may be obtained on application:—

Garages.—W. F. Horwood, Sudbury Street; George Cooper, Charlton St.; and Charles Picco, Carter's Hill, provided that ventilators are installed in each of the said buildings.

Dwellings and Annexes.—J. Hamlyn, Holloway Street; John Brine, Quiddi Vidi Road; James Ellis, Charlton Street; I. S. Kennedy, Bell St.

The City Engineer's Report for the week was tabled. He dealt principally with the work of the Roads, Water and Sewerage Departments, and stated that arrangements had been made for the removal of several corroded valves, etc., and the placing of new hatch-boxes along the line of water works. He also mentioned that during the past few days several of the more important traffic thoroughfares have been treated with "Tarriva."

The Sanitary Supervisor reported that during the week all catch-basins had been given particular attention, and that as a result of the heavy rain-storm of Monday night last a large number of gullies were choked and had to be immediately cleared of sand, etc. In all, some 420 gullies had been dipped and their contents carried to the various dumps with all possible despatch.

The Medical Officer of Health reported on a new case of Scarlet Fever, one of Diphtheria and one of Typhoid in the city for the past week.

The City Clerk informed the Board that the time allowed in notification given all City Tax delinquents had now expired, and writs and summonses were being served by the Solicitor in accordance with instructions.

After the reading of several departmental reports and disposal of routine business, the meeting adjourned.

Standardization and Grading of Export Food Products

The Advantages Which Have Been Gained in Other Parts of the World by Actively Progressing Along These Lines.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Complying with your request for an article for your paper on the above subject, which is a question continually and increasingly coming into prominence as a leading factor in the economic and rapid development of the exports of any country; I beg to append the following notes, which may be of interest or use to your readers.

First of all to give some idea of the growth of Imports of Food Products into Great Britain the following figures are significant.

Imports of Bacon and Hog Products.
1900 £17,000,000
1910 17,500,000
1913 22,000,000
1921 55,000,000

Imports of Frozen and Chilled Meats.
The following table shows an increase of over 113 per cent in the importation of Frozen and Chilled Meat into Great Britain in 7 years:—

Year	Tons
1917	433,139
1918	489,336
1919	528,354
1920	810,415
1921	917,414
1922	822,666
1923	925,139

EGGS.
The total Imports of Eggs into Great Britain now averages about £15,000,000 per year. The following countries show rapid increase between the years 1920 and 1922.

Egypt	125 per cent.
Denmark	72 " "
China	44 " "
Canada	38 " "

Canadian Exports.

Year	1923	1924
Butter	13,648,968 lbs.	24,501,981 lbs.
Cheese	1,167,770 cwts.	1,269,623 cwts.
Cream	2,783,806 gals.	3,384,186 gals.
Fresh Milk	2,191,375 gals.	3,088,212 gals.
Milk Powder	4,826,603 lbs.	7,205,677 lbs.
Caseln	30,476 lbs.	120,505 lbs.

Denmark.
Denmark as is well known through the industry of her people and the application of practical, scientific and systematic methods, has raised themselves from a comparatively poor country to a rich and prosperous one.

This is well demonstrated by their cow testing policy which has resulted so favorably as the following tables will show.

Average Annual Milk Production Per Cow.

Year	Denmark	England
1908	550 gals.	1900 . . . 682 gals.
1914	475 " "	1905 . . . 724 " "
1917	495 " "	1912 . . . 766 " "
1919	470 " "	1916 . . . 794 " "

In other words the average production of milk of cows in England went down 15 per cent from 1908 to 1919, whereas the increase average production of the cows of Denmark has risen from 1900 to 1916 over 16 per cent, and the highest years average production of the Danish Cows is over 35 per cent more than the British Cows which means an enormous aggregate increase of wealth to the people of Denmark.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

The standardization grading and inspection of Export Dairy Products show most remarkable figures which should absolutely prove the benefit of a careful and aggressive policy along these lines in all Food Products for Export.

Exports for New Zealand.

Year	Butter Cwts.	Cheese Cwts.
1902	170,207	50,324
1911	283,505	435,615
1919	336,608	1,517,102
1921	878,737	1,368,051

Last year the New Zealand dairy farmers were so convinced of the advantages they gained that they passed by an overwhelming vote a resolution asking the Government to raise the export standard of quality higher and to enforce the regulations most stringently.

A striking instance is shown, of the advantages New Zealand gains by grading, packing and export regulations, is the fact that Newfoundland imported last year through Liverpool 126,000 lbs. of New Zealand standard graded butter, a distance of 14,000 miles against 2,240 lbs. of ungraded butter from the Irish Free State, a distance of 1,700 miles or over 50 times the quantity in favor of New Zealand's up-to-date and practical methods.

Canadian Dairy Exports.

Canada has been devoting much energy and thought to improving the grade, standard and inspection regulations of her export food products and the following results show the benefits to the people of the country in a striking way.

Canadian Exports.

Year	1923	1924
Butter	13,648,968 lbs.	24,501,981 lbs.
Cheese	1,167,770 cwts.	1,269,623 cwts.
Cream	2,783,806 gals.	3,384,186 gals.
Fresh Milk	2,191,375 gals.	3,088,212 gals.
Milk Powder	4,826,603 lbs.	7,205,677 lbs.
Caseln	30,476 lbs.	120,505 lbs.

APPLES.

The benefits of grading and improved packing is again well shown by the British Columbia apple production.

Year	Boxes
1910	789,739
1915	953,700
1920	2,243,724
1922	3,175,376

Or an increase of over 300 per cent in 12 years.

Newfoundland Fish Products.

Every country has its own particular problems to face and the solution of them must rest with the people of the country in question as they are the only ones who are familiar with the various conditions and difficulties. It is abundantly apparent that great good has resulted and is resulting from intelligent and practical effort along these lines and it is daily becoming more and more important to supply the consuming public in all parts of the world with goods of a standard grade, well and attractively put up under some system whereby an export certificate would be an unquestionable guarantee of quality.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

LEAGUE FOOTBALL.
B. I. and Saints Play To Draw.
Last night's football game between the B.I.S. and Saints was full of thrills and surprises for the spectators. In the early stages of the game the Irishmen had it all over the Saints like the proverbial tent and inside of fifteen minutes from the opening they had scored three goals in rapid succession, which looked like certain defeat to the Scotch team and their supporters. That a game is not won until the final whistle blows was clearly demonstrated to the fans, when in the last half of the play the tide turned in favor of the Saints, and after a hard uphill fight they were successful in turning what looked like a bad defeat into a tie.

First Half
The B.I.S. winning the toss, decided to play from the western area, leaving the Saints at a disadvantage owing to the strong sun. As soon as the ball was put into play the B.I.S. confined the ball to Saints territory and inside of two minutes Ryan beat Noseworthy with a stinging shot. The B.I.S. immediately renewed the attack, and were again successful a moment after when H. Phalen scored No. 2 on a pass from Nolan. Play was continued and saw the Saints crumbling under the onslaughts of their opponents, and before they realized their position, E. Phalen, after some smart individual work, crossed the ball to the right wing where Manning and Brown were in waiting, and without losing time they carried the ball right through for a third counter. During this time the Saints teams had been completely baffled, and only once did they manage to get the ball past centre. However, after fifteen minutes from the opening, the Saints rallied, and the game became more evenly divided, with lots of excitement for the fans. The Irishmen, encouraged by their success, played as hard as ever, and another goal was notched up against the Scotchmen. The game at this stage looked as though the Saints would go down to a nasty defeat, but there was encouragement for that team some minutes later when McKinlay beat Phalen, the Irish goalie. The game was being hotly contested when the half-time whistle blew. The teams crossed over B.I.S. 4 goals; Saints 1.

Second Half
This half was undoubtedly all in the Saints favor and only three times in the half was the Saints goalie called on to save shots, and of these only one was dangerous. Fifteen minutes passed without any result and hope was dwindling, when Young sent in a hot one that beat Phalen and raised the spirits of the Saints supporters. As soon as the ball was centred the Saints again pressed hard and in the anxiety to ward off the attack one of the B.I.S. players handled the ball, for which a penalty kick was awarded which was taken by Young and suc-

OLYMPIC DELEGATES ARE BACK.
P. J. Mulqueen of Toronto, and Dr. A. S. Lamb, of the Athletic Department of McGill University, who is also Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, have returned from their mission as Canadian delegates to the Olympic Congress at Prague. They have made a preliminary report to President W. E. Findlay of the A. A. U., and it shows that their visit has not been in vain. It will result, they expect, in better representation of Canada and a better understanding with the Central authority of the International Olympic Committee.

In their report these two gentlemen explain, what was not generally known, namely that up to the present hockey was not officially an Olympic sport apparently, and that it had only been adopted as such now, the adoption including the declaration that the Canadian team of 1924 are the first official Olympic Hockey champions. The delegates also made an excellent plea for Canada's national summer game, lacrosse, that it may soon be adopted as one of the official sports of the Olympic programme. Since many countries in universities and otherwise play it nowadays, it may be put unofficially upon the next Olympic programme. The Dutch Olympic Committee was authorized by the Congress to stage it as an optional event, if they desire. The Canadian delegates were honored by being respectively appointed on the Winter-sports and Educational Committees; Mr. Mulqueen on the former, and Dr. Lamb on the latter.

Harbor Grace Notes

A very pretty wedding took place at Cochrane Street Church, St. John's, on Tuesday afternoon last, when Miss Gladys Irene Parsons, daughter of Mrs. Robert S. Parsons, of this town, was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Rev. Leslie W. Blundon, who is stationed at Enosburg, Vermont, Rev. Dr. Curtis performing the ceremony. Miss Rita F. Parsons, sister of the bride, was in attendance, and Claude Watts performed the duties of best man. The bride was attired in a navy costume with saxe blue hat and scarf, while the bridesmaid wore a navy costume. After the ceremony the party repaired to the home of Mrs. W. H. Parsons, Springdale St., where luncheon was served. The happy couple left by the 6 o'clock train for Holyrood, and came here by train on Wednesday to spend a few days at the bride's home. The groom's present to the bride was a cheque, and to the groomsmen a gold piece. Mrs. Blundon was Principal of the Methodist Superior School here the past few years, and was closely connected with the organizations of the Methodist Church. She was Captain of the Brownies and is highly thought of by our community. Rev. L. W. and Mrs. Blundon left here by Saturday afternoon's train for Enosburg, Vermont, where they will in future reside. Despite the unfavourable weather a number of the bride's friends were at the station to wish the happy couple "bon voyage" over the matrimonial sea.

A meeting of the Regatta Committee was held in the Fireman's Room, Bannerman Building on Tuesday evening last, and was presided over by E. B. Parsons. At that meeting it was decided to hold our annual Regatta on Wednesday, August 12th, and four boats view some people who are interested in sport, and to endeavour to have crews from these places to enter for the Scouts, Amateur and Cricket Races. The following collectors were appointed:—Messrs. W. Carson, E. Rogers, G. Harris, and A. Thomey. The Committee consists of:—E. B. Parsons, Chairman; L. Sheppard, Secretary; W. H. Kennedy, E. Simmons, F. C. Archibald, E. L. Oke, E. D. Freeman, W. Carson, E. Rogers, G. Harris, A. Thomey, J. Downing and R. Noseworthy.

The annual Picnic of St. Paul's Sunday School is being held at Connel's Farm on Wednesday. We trust that the day will prove fine so that all attending may have a very pleasant day in open.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Whitman arrived here on Monday last on a short visit to Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Whitman. They have made their home in Hilliard, Florida, and went through from there to Annapolis Royal, N.S., by motor car. Their many friends are pleased to see them, and we trust that their stay will be a most pleasant one.

Miss Muriel Munn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Munn, arrived home by to-day's train from Toronto, Ont., where she had been attending College.

Mr. Ronald Jones, who is a student at Holy Heart Seminary at Halifax, is in town spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Jones.

Dr. W. S. Goodwin, who has been visiting his relatives at Bai Verte, N.B., returned home by train on Friday week. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Florence, who had been attending Mount Allison Ladies College.

Lady Bowring arrived from St. John's by train on Monday last, and will spend a month or so here at the Gracian House.

Mrs. Holt and Miss Allan returned from Montreal recently, and will spend the summer months at their home on Harvey street. Their many friends are pleased to have them back this way again.

Mr. Gordon Simmons, who has been attending Pictou Academy, arrived home on Saturday week, to spend the vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Simmons.

Mr. Robert Cron, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cron, who has been attending Pictou Academy, arrived in Town on Monday last, to spend his vacation at home.

Miss Cherrington, Principal of Bishop Spencer College, also came here on Monday last, and is staying at the Gracian House.

Mrs. Sidney Jones and child arrived in Town recently and will remain a while visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pike, and other relatives.

Harbor Grace, July 13th, 1925.

Obituary

MRS. CATHERINE GRAHAM KELLY.
(H. F. SHORTIS)
On last evening death removed from the family circle Mrs. Catherine Kelly, wife of Mr. Patrick E. Kelly of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., after an illness of some months, fortified by all the rites of the Catholic Church. The deceased lady was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. Robert and Catherine Graham of this city, and was a woman of exceptional personality, combining remarkable capability and energy with every quality of the good wife and mother. She was kind-hearted in the extreme, and no case of need came to her door without receiving freely and fully of her aid. She was a home-maker in the true sense of the word, and her family found her always a ready fountain of service, comfort and guidance. She was the type of a true Christian lady. To a cheerful and deeply religious disposition, she added the practice of thrift, and instilled these qualities into the minds of her children. She has left to mourn her husband, two sons, Robert E. at T. and M. Winter's, Gordon, who has just returned after completing his 2nd year in Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax, N.S.; two daughters, Pauline at home, and Estelle, stenographer at the law office of R. A. Parsons; also 1 sister, Mrs. Thomas Melville, two brothers, William of Anderson & Co., Ltd., and Thomas at M. Connors' West End Drug Store. (Requiescat in pace.)
