SOME municipal clerks are in the habit of inserting in part two of the voters' lists the names of married women, who, they believe, because they own property, have the right to vote at municipal elections. No woman, whose husband is living, can vote at any election.

It has been suggested that the directors of the East Lambton Fair secure an airship as one of the attractions at the Watford fair. There are many people in this district who have never seen one of any description and it would be a drawing number on the program.

THE burning of a number of the Watford Fair buildings last Friday will not interfere with the holding of the fair, as temporary structures are now well under way, and tents will be used where buildings cannot be put in shape in time. The fire will not in any way affect the exhibits.

ORDER your suits now for fall. We have the stock. All new styles are here.—SWIFTS' TAILORING DEPT.

SMILE, and save your appendix, is the advice of Johns Hopkins University specialists. Appendicitis and other intestinal troubles are due to grouches, they declare. This declaration should have the effect of cheering up this old world considerably if people will only accept the advice.

INFANT hygiene rules as follows are given out in Philadelphia:—"Don't kiss the baby on the mouth. Keep the baby cool and dress him in as few clothes as possible, allowing the garments to fall from the shoulder. Avoid flies. Sterilize the milk. Don't allow the use of painted toys."

THERE is nothing more delightful at this time of the year than a walk into the country in the early morning. There is much in the rural parts hereabouts that is lovely to look upon just now, and the fresh air and exercise do a man or woman more good than any doctor's tonic.

BOOKS can carry typhoid germs if handled by the patient or nurse during illness. The tuberculosis bacillus can live in books for months. Books that have been in a sick room, if the disease of the patient is contagious, should be carefully fumigated before being sent elsewhere.

SCREEN your refuse piles and destroy your garbage for the sake of the little children if nothing else. There is nothing else so precious in our town as the lives of the tots. Are you guilty of harboring breeding places for flies on your premises? If so you cannot be held guiltless when disease shows its ugly presence in the town.

OUR store is like a wholesale house. Drop in and see how it looks.—SWIFTS'.

WHILE the steamer Tashmo, bound from Port Huron to Detroit, raced across Lake St. Clair at top speed Saturday night, a baby boy was born to Mrs. Theodore Brasimos, Detroit. There was no physician aboard the boat, the only person with Mrs. Brasimos being a woman friend and the women's maid, who is always retained on the boat.

WE have frequently drawn attention to the necessity of cutting weeds in town, both on the streets and on private property, but notwithstanding many good crops are ripening and spreading their seed. People should be sufficiently interested in the town and their own property to give proper attention to this matter without so much urging. If they are not, the law should be put in force to make them.

THE new fall shapes in the "Arrow" collars are here quarter sizes.—A. BROWN & CO.

IT always does one good to shake hands with a man who has a heart under his coat. It cheers, it encourages, and has a vitalizing effect. This is the genuine, the pure article which occasionally we come in contact with people whose hand shake is as cold and clammy as a pickled tongue, whose sticky grasp conveys to you the uncanny suggestion of a grave yard. You are not quite sure when you drop his hand whether he is dead or alive, yet you are pleased when the solemn ordeal is ended. This is the counterfeit, the spurious and the easily detected.

GOOD time to buy fall goods. Styles all here. Fine choice.—SWIFTS'.

THE lecture given in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening by Mr. Watson, Field Secretary of the National Sanatorium Association, on the subject of "Tuberculosis," proved very interesting and instructive, despite the fact that he had great difficulties with his lantern. A fairly sized audience was present, but not as large as the lecture deserved.

AN assemblage of several hundred men and women waited in vain on Stag Island last Monday night for Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discredited as discoverer of the North Pole, who was scheduled to make a speech. The crowd was encouraged to wait by a telephone message from Port Huron at 8 o'clock, which read that Dr. Cook was delayed, but would be on hand at 10 o'clock. Nothing was heard from the explorer after that, and the assemblage dispersed.

THE next event of importance to this community is the annual fall fair, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7 and 8. Taking last year's successful fair as a basis, the directors are busy rounding up plans to make the coming fair the best yet. The prize list has been carefully revised and brought up to date; liberal prizes are offered and likely a splendid list of specials will be given, and there should be a large list of varied exhibits from the municipalities served by this exhibition. Remember the dates—Oct. 7 and 8.

A QUIET wedding took place at high noon Saturday in the Strathroy Baptist church, when Miss Mary Emile Fraser Campbell was married to Ewart Duane Evans, editor of the Strathroy Age. Rev. J. D. McLaughlin, pastor of the church, officiated. They were unattended. The bride was given away by her uncle, Finlay Fraser Campbell, of Chicago. After dejeuner Mr. and Mrs. Evans left for the Thousand Islands, the bride traveling in a blue whipcord serge suit, with hat to match. They will be at home to their friends at Terra Cotta after October 1st.

AT the regular meeting of the Watford Public Library Board held last Friday evening a resolution of condolence was passed respecting J. W. Hamilton, late of Sarnia, who died here last week. Mr. Hamilton has been an active member of the Sarnia Public Library Board for some years and also was a member of executive of the Chatham Public Library Institute comprising Essex, Kent, Lambton and West Elgin, and he was the president of this Public Library Institute this year. A copy of the resolution referred to was sent to Mrs. Hamilton and family.

Another old resident of the township passed away on Thursday last week, in the person of Mrs. Charlotte Taylor, relict of the late Robert Taylor, in her 76th year. Mrs. Taylor had been in feeble health for about two years, consequently her death was not unexpected. Deceased was a native of Quebec, being born there December 29th, 1838. She was a daughter of the late Samuel Ferguson. Her husband predeceased her several years ago. She leaves three sons and two daughters, viz.—William S. Taylor, with whom she lived; George T. Taylor, Chicago; Robert F. Taylor, Port Arthur; Mrs. Richard Edgar, Brooke; and Mrs. William Wilson, Glenora. The funeral took place from the son's residence, lot 10, con. 10, on Monday afternoon to St. James' church cemetery, service being held in the church by Rev. S. P. Irwin, rector. The pall bearers were John Edgar, James Coke, Edgar Peaslee, Henry Swan, Edward McMahon and William Johnston.

The weather was a little too cold for a garden party on Friday evening last but a fair-sized crowd gathered on the lawn at P. D. McGregor's for Chalmers' Church social. An excellent supper was served from 4 to 8 o'clock, after which a choice and varied program was presented that seemed to give good satisfaction to all present. The Rev. Mr. Esson, pastor of the church, presided. Will J. White, the popular entertainer, gave a number of selections and kept the audience in good humor. Mr. Cameron Corstine, as usual, was warmly received. He is always a favorite with a Brooke audience. The Alvinston Quartette gave several excellent selections, and the Alvinston Band played a number of pieces. Mr. Bury Binks accompanied the singers in his usual talented manner. Rev. Mr. McKay and Mr. H. J. Pettipiece supplied the oratorical part of the program and were attentively listened to. Receipts $118.75.

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good. One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got well, and my periods became natural again. Since then I have had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. Young, Tambling's Corner, London, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Wilson's cabinet, the members of which, with one exception, all began life in the country or small towns. In Canada, conditions are much the same, for of the present provincial premiers in Canada, not one was city born. It would seem that a childhood spent next to nature inculcates more of the attributes that lead to greatness than do childhood days spent in the rush and roar of the city.

Mr. W. J. Gage, the founder of the National Sanitarium Association, has received official notice that his Majesty the King has approved of his appointment as a Knight of Grace of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

The season's work of the Ontario Immigration Department in placing farm laborers on the farms in various parts of Ontario is practically done. So far this season upwards of 3,500 immigrants have been placed. At the beginning of the season the department had about 1,000 applications from farmers for laborers. About 3,500 applications were received by the department during the season, and of these all have been filled except about 300.

Persons who are inclined to regard themselves as old people at the age of 75 or 80 would do well to regard Lord Strathcona, who has just entered his 94th year. Letters from Sarnia people now in England mention attending a reception given by Lord Strathcona a fortnight ago, at which he spent three hours in the arduous duties of making his guests welcome. Two days later the aged commissioner was on his way to Canada, where he will spend two days on business before returning. Strathcona was born in 1819.

have been given to us, but we have not brought to these privileges and opportunities the spirit and the capacity of democracy. We want men.—St. Mary's Argus.

A Consoling Thought

When you see the autos scooting past the door of your abode you may wish you had a motor and could tear along the road in a nifty-looking cruiser and a liveried chauffeur, it would be a pleasant feeling thus to make a little stir; but there's many a jay joy-rider, if behind the scenes we saw, who is dodging the collectors and the servants of the law, and who isn't half as happy as the man whose bosom fills with a thrill of exultation that he owes no butcher bills. It is doubtless very pleasant to rise at break of day and to seek the sunny uplands and the meadows far away, whizzing through the lovely landscape where old nature ever smiles in a car which in an hour covers ninety statute miles; but the fellow who is walking feels a keener, deeper joy, free from hidden, secret sorrow and from harking care's annoy, if he sees the flying auto in the far-off distance fade with the heartening reflection. "Well, my grocer bills are paid." 'Tis a noble aspiration to possess a chug-chug car but to pay our bills up promptly is a nobler one by far; it is good to be the owner of a thumping big machine, but to walk and dodge the mortgage is a better thing, I ween.

Value of Underdrainage

Wm. Channon, President of the Farmers' Institute for West Victoria, is a great believer in underdrainage. A few years ago his farm was wet and unprofitable. The sum of $1500 was spent in underdrainage, and today it is one of the best producing farms in his neighborhood. This year he has as fine a piece of barley as he ever sowed. The land was ready to work early in the spring, and the seed was put in early. It germinated quickly, received a good start, the roots went down deeply, and the crop held right through cold weather and dry weather. "That $1500 was the best investment I ever made," said Mr. Channon.

Air is as necessary to the life of plants as to human beings. When water percolates down through the soil and is carried out by the drains, air rushes in to fill the spaces occupied by water. Thus at every rain-storm, the soil is thoroughly ventilated, foul air being forced out through the tile. A drained soil is much warmer in spring than an undrained soil. In an undrained soil the sun's rays, instead of warming up the soil, spends its energy in evaporating the moisture from the surface, thus keeping the soil beneath cold. A drained soil actually retains more water for the use of the growing plant throughout the growing season than does an undrained soil. Undrained soils become sour and soggy, and the refreshing rains, instead of percolating through, are lost in the surface run off. The tiny bacteria which are working to liberate food for the plants, thrive best in drained soils. The depth to which plant roots penetrate is limited by the water table in the soil. In drained land the water table is held at a lower level than in undrained land, thus giving greater feeding surface for the roots of the crop. Add to these advantages the fact that seeds germinate more quickly in drained land and that it is more easily worked, and no wonder experience has proven underdrainage a profitable venture.

Nebuchadnezzar

The children saw him eating grass. "What brought him down to such a pass?" they asked and gazed in wonder. A near-by sage replied: "I ween, he read the Health Hints magazine, and so he's scared, and man that poison lurks in every can sold by the village grocer; and every time he eats a pie, or on a doughnut casts his eye to the grave is closer. The milk we drink, the steak we chew, will raise a grievous howdydo inside our anguished bodies; there's poison in our scrambled prunes, there's verdigris upon our spoons, and death is in our toddies. The modern Borgias ply their trade in shops where oatmeal are made, there's poison in our leaves and fishes; there's poison in the purple ink that poets, when they're thirsty, drink,

Good Harvests

The fact that the United States Government is advancing fifty million dollars to banks of the Western and Southern States to help move the crops is based on the fact that a bumper harvest is expected. The crops in the United States are stated to be likely to prove a record. So are the crops of the Canadian West, nor does much seem to be wrong with those of the East.

Business and prosperity are based on harvests. Thus their seems to be good business time ahead—some little distance ahead. Money will be harder to get than usual for some time yet. But with the Balkan embargo settling down, some reason exists to think that the worst of the financial stringency is passed.

To the married man the bachelor is a man of singular ideas. There are many noted fishermen who have a reputation for veracity in their every day business life.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

According to a county of Huron man now travelling in the Northwest, it is said that at the present time, in the prairie provinces, there are $78,000,000 of uncollected accounts for farm implements. The volume of the vast business of the implement agencies of the West may thus be guessed.

With 20 per cent. of all hogs slaughtered in Ontario affected with tuberculosis, a large percentage of the beef affected with the same disease, it inclines one to believe that the safest thing on the menu is an egg with the shell on, and even then it may turn out to be chicken. Mutton is about the most free from disease of any, but of late years there has been but little call for it. Looks as if the sheep was coming into its own, and that it would once more become the most popular with the meat consuming public.

The Tallest Building

The new Woolworth building of New York is 55 stories high. It is the tallest structure in the world save the Eiffel Tower in Paris. By its combination of Italian, French and Renaissance architecture with Gothic steeple, in creamy white stone and terra cotta, the result is a building unique and one of the most beautiful in the world. It cost $13,500,000 and is 792 feet high. The foundation was begun Nov. 4, 1910. The structure contains over 17,000 bricks, 24,000 tons of steel girders, twenty-eight elevators and 13,200,000 cubic feet of space. It has 55 stories, is the largest building ever erected by an individual and is free of debt. It is 80 feet higher than the Metropolitan Tower and 200 higher than the Great Pyramid. It has four self-contained fireproof and smokeproof stairways. There are stairs enough to climb a mountain 4,000 feet high. It has been built as an income producing property, and by position and character will be a great advertisement.

Steel sufficient to build the Third Avenue Elevated Railway structure from the City Hall to the Harlem river at 129th street was placed on a lot 152x197 feet in ten months. There are 87 miles of electric wiring, and its lamps would light the forty miles of water front around Manhattan. Its six 2,500 horsepower boilers could lift 100 Statues of Liberty. It weighs 206,000,000 pounds at the caissons. Occasionally, wind pressure increases this by 40,000,000 pounds. It can withstand a wind pressure of 250 miles an hour.

The Man Who Laughs

The man whose ha! ha! reaches from one end of the street to the other may be the same fellow who scolded his wife and spanked the baby before he got his breakfast, but his laughter is only the cradle of thorns under the pot. The man who spends his laughter through his life—before a late breakfast; when he misses the train, when his wife goes visiting and he has to eat a cold supper; the man who can laugh when he finds a button off his shirt, when the furnace goes out at night, and the twins come down with measles at the same time—he's the fellow that's needed. He never tells his neighbors to have faith; somehow he puts faith into them. He delivers no homilies; somehow the sight of his face, the sound of his happy voice and the light of his blessed daily life, carry conviction that words have not power to give. The blues flee before him as the fog before the west wind. He comes into his own home like a flood of sunshine over a meadow of blooming buttercups, and his wife and children bloom like June roses. His home is redolent with sympathy and love. The neighborhood is better for his life, and somebody will learn from his that laughter is better than tears. The world needs this man. Why are there so few of them? Can he be created? Can he be evolved? Why is he not in every house, turning rain into sunshine and winter into summer all the year around until life is a perpetual season of joy?

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

ASTHMA CANNOT LAST when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has countless cures to its credit which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

A Man's Mother

Your mother's life has not been easy. Your father was a poor man, and from the day she married him she stood by his side, fighting as a woman must fight. She worked, not the eight or ten hour day of the union, but the twenty-four hour day of the poor wife and mother. She cooked and cleaned and scrubbed and patched and nursed from dawn until bed time, and in the night was up and down getting drinks for thirsty lips, covering restless little sleepers, listening for croupy coughs. She had time to listen to your stories of boyish fun and frolic and triumph. She had time to say the little things that spurred your ambition on. She never forgot to cook the little dishes you liked. She did without the dress she needed that you might not be ashamed of your clothes before your fellows. Remember this now while there is yet time, while she is yet living, to pay back to her, in love and tenderness some of the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all.

A Boon to Travellers

(From the Quebec Telegraph)

If it be true, as announced, that a Prince Edward Island man has invented a contrivance which automatically indicates railway stations and which has been pronounced "just the thing" by railway men, one of the greatest boons imaginable will be conferred on all railway travellers. The device is affixed to one or both ends of the car in full view of the passengers, and as each station is passed the next is indicated in large, plain, legible letters. That the device will fill a long-felt want will be recognized by everyone who has travelled on the railways and who has endeavored in vain to translate into geographical significance the unpronounceable and unspellable name of the next station as announced by the brakeman.

As a vermifuge there is nothing so potent as Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear of injury to the constitution.

Artificial floorings are now being made out of sawdust concrete. The cement used consists of a solution of magnesium chloride to which pulverized magnesia is added. The sawdust is then used in any desired quantity. Floors manufactured in this way are more resilient than concrete, and are not good conductors of heat. They wear well and do not burn, charring under the fire test.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to little ones. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Toronto, Sept. 2nd.—Receipts at the Union stockyards to-day were 156 loads, with 3,105 cattle, 478 calves, 495 hogs and 1,316 sheep and lambs.

There was fairly active trade at the Union stockyards to-day. There was a heavy run of cattle, but a light run of hogs and moderately light offering of sheep and lambs, as demand was good for all classes of cattle but the commonest.

Anything of fair quality sold at prices good and steady with last week's prices, though not quite so high.

An extra choice load of exhibition cattle sold at $7.20 and one at $6.90, but they were exceptional, the general run of butcher cattle going at $6 to $6.25, and anything choice at $6.40 to $6.50. Butcher cows steady at $4.50 to $4.55.

There was little change in hog quotations over last week, but the very high run of hogs offering, the close of the market was stronger at the close. Lambs were weak at $6.50 to $7, and sheep easier at $4.25 to $4.75.

Calves steady. Moderate demand for choice stockers and feeders.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

My Grief Girl
A Vacation Experience
By F. A. MITCHEL

I invariably choose the seashore for my summer vacation—that is, I did so until two summers ago, when I met with something so saddening that I have never since gone there.
On this occasion of which I speak the hotel at which I stopped was full of young fellows and girls—young men are not usually found in abundance at such places—and, although they were constantly coming and going, they formed little groups for boating, fishing, bathing and such salt water pleasures.
There was one girl who never joined any of these groups. Whether she was not invited to do so or kept aloof from choice did not appear. The moment I saw her I was struck with her appearance. Never have I seen a young face so tinged with sadness. It was not a temporary expression, but one stamped indelibly. I sat watching her one day on the hotel piazza to see if there would not come some momentary change. I scarcely took my eyes off her a moment for a whole hour and during this time could not detect the slightest relaxation of her features into anything approaching a smile.
I met several attractive young ladies, but somehow could not get interested in them. The fact is I had become preoccupied with the girl with a grief.
The first night after seeing her

"What have I done?"
When I lay my head on my pillow and tried to sleep I could not. I found it impossible to shut out those death in life features. I began to fear that she would cast a shadow over my outing period and I would return to the city unrefreshed. It was long past midnight before I lost myself in slumber.
When I awoke I resolved to call away from the "grief girl," as I called her, not knowing her name, but during the day chance kept throwing her in my way. Not only did my heart go out to her in sympathy, but she exercised a strange influence over me. While I was speaking with the clerk of the hotel she passed through the apartment where we stood, and I asked him who she was. He replied that he did not know. I inquired by what name she had registered, and he said that she had not registered. Upon my asking who was with her he replied that she was alone. She had asked if she might be accommodated at his hotel without entering her name or otherwise becoming known. He had told her she might do so, and that was all the information he had to offer concerning her.
So far as I noticed, the guests of the hotel were too much occupied with their own affairs to pay any attention to a girl who was alone, unknown and by this time—I was satisfied—kept on keeping aloof from others. She had not only become a mystery to me, but had thrown over me (unconsciously, of course) a spell. I could not banish her from my mind. I boated, I fished, I bathed, but everywhere, like the reflection of a cloud in the waters, was the face of my "grief girl."
At last I gave up the struggle and resigned myself to the unraveling of the mystery. When I saw her sitting on the beach watching some bathers I sat down near her. Then suddenly I said to her:

"You are alone here, and I am not especially interested in anyone. Would you mind my making your acquaintance in this unconventional manner? I have no wish to obtrude myself upon you or your affairs. I merely wish for your companionship for my brief vacation or as much longer as you may care to know me."
I watched her while I said this, and when she replied to my overture I saw both a frightened and a hungry look in her face—frightened at something I knew not what, hungry for companionship and sympathy. I saw that a struggle was going on within her; that now she was about to give vent to a sudden burst of confidence, now to painful tears. I gave her time, and at last she controlled herself, refraining from an expression of emotion, and said quietly:
"You are certainly very kind—you who may have all the companionship you wish—to seek me out. I accept your offer, but merely for the time we remain here and on condition that you do not seek to discover who I am. You may call me Miss Deane."
I could only acquiesce in these conditions, hoping that before we separated I might get something of her confidence. I intended not to be with her so much as to attract attention, but I found her attractive despite the pall that hung over her. Though young, her grief, whatever it was, seemed to have brought out a philosophic vein that was latent in her and rarely, if ever, found in youth, especially in girls. She spoke feelingly of the injustice in the world, wondering why an all powerful Creator had introduced it when he could as well have made all things just. But she did not complain of people being unjust. She seemed to consider that they acted out the natures which had been implanted in them. When I said that mankind were improving and a time would come when perfect justice would prevail she shook her head mournfully and said: "No. There can never be justice in the world. From the nature of things it is impossible. Fate rules in all things. We are its slaves, not its masters, as we are taught in childhood."
When man and woman become mutually attractive, intentions, resolutions, limits and the like are broken like ropes of sand. I had agreed to be companionable with Miss Deane for a matter of ten days and to make no effort to learn her identity. None of these conditions was kept. I ignored them, yielding more and more to the spell in which I was held. Then suddenly I became aware that it was an absorbing passion.
We were sitting on the rocks when the crisis came.
A declaration of love that meets with a favorable response is usually remembered with pleasurable emotions. Not so my declaration to Miss Deane. I recall it with horror. It seems that she had been drifting, like myself, not fully conscious of where we were going. When I somewhat abruptly told her that she must be happy, for my happiness depended upon hers, the look of terror that came on her face was appalling.
"Oh, my God!" she cried. "What have I done?"
Then for the first time it occurred to me that this grief under which she suffered was something that would be an impossible bar to marriage.
"What is it?" I exclaimed. "For heaven's sake, tell me!"
"I cannot; I will not."
Her eyes were wild, and she was trembling from head to foot. Nervous spasms were coming over her like the waves rolling in upon the rocks.
"You must tell me. The hardest thing in the world to bear is uncertainty—suspense."
"Not now. It would kill me, and if you love me it would kill you too."
She arose and fled, I knew that it would be better to leave her to herself for awhile, so I did not follow her. I remained where I was and suffered from emotions that I cannot describe. Later I went to my room and still suffered. When it was growing dark I went downstairs and out on to the piazza. Miss Deane was sitting on the rock where I had made my declaration. I hurried down to her and found her perfectly calm.
"Do you wish to know this terrible secret?" she asked.
"I do. What you suffer I shall suffer."
"But you will not link your fate with mine."
"I will."
"I will not permit it."
"The secret?"
"I am Jessie Sharpe."
I felt my blood freezing in my veins, the marrow hardening in my bones.
"Jessie Sharpe, the—"
"I am Jessie Sharpe, the murderer."
It seemed that the dome of the heavens was falling down upon us. Jessie Sharpe had been the central figure of a murder case, and nearly every one believed her guilty. She had not been convicted for lack of such evidence as the judge deemed requisite under the law.
I did not offer to make good my proposal. I knew such a marriage would wreck my life as hers was wrecked and be a stain on our children. One thing, however, I resolved on.

"Is there a hope of the mystery of the murder being cleared?" I asked.
"It can only be cleared by the confession of the murderer."
"If that confession ever comes will you send for me?"
"No. If it comes you will hear of it."
"And I will seek you to the uttermost bounds of the earth."
Meanwhile the darkness had enveloped us. We sat together till late, mutually agreeing that we would not meet again. "When we bid each other farewell we were seen only by the stars."
Eight years passed, and I was still a bachelor. One morning in taking up my newspaper I saw a heading: "Burglar shot, confesses to a murder. Jessie Sharpe vindicated."
The words were to me as a message from heaven. For years I had suffered all this girl suffered. And now the cloud that hung over us both was lifted and the sun shone as through receding rain. Not for a moment had I doubted her innocence. This vindication had been a faint hope.
I sought her and found her receiving an ovation from the citizens of the place in which she lived. There was a second ovation the day after my arrival—the celebration of our wedding.

The Lion's Story.
When lions were still numerous and easily observed in southern Africa they were sometimes seen instructing one another in voluntary gymnastics and practicing their leaps, making a bush play the part of the absent game.
A hunter tells the story of a lion which had missed a zebra by miscalculating the distance repeating the jump several times for his own instruction. Two of his comrades appearing while he was engaged in this exercise, he led them around a rock to show them how matters stood and then, returning to the starting point, completed the lesson by making a final leap. The animals kept roaring during the whole of the curious scene—"talking together" as the hunter who watched their said.
When "A-m" Spells
One of the supposed niceties of speech which to many ears seem overnice is the pronunciation of the word program when the French termination "me" is left off. These careful folk try to shorten the sound of the "a" with the shortening of the word. But "gram" spells "gram" in English and may safely be so pronounced wherever it is found. Nobody says telegram. Why, then, say program?—Christian Science Monitor.

Both Worried.
"What's the matter, dear?" asked a woman of her troubled looking husband.
"Oh, I'm worried about the money market," he testily responded.
"And I'm bothered about the market money," quietly remarked the woman as she counted the contents of her purse.—London Tit-Bits.

Judging From Results.
"Has Edly got her music lesson mixed up with her gymnasium hour?"
"Of course not. Why do you ask?"
"I thought from the way she was playing she might have thoughtlessly taken the piano for a punching bag."—London Stray Stories.

WATFORD'S SHOE PARLOR

Why a Child Needs Glasses

(Parents should realize this)
Many children are born with a defect of vision. Unless it is very great the child does not particularly suffer until the school period. Then the young mind becomes intent upon study and any defect of vision becomes a direct strain upon the brain. To relieve this the child will squint, or turn the head, in many cases using only one eye. This habit grows until we almost have a deformity of the eye.

Parents; do not let this be the experience of your child. We will gladly and thoroughly examine your child's eyes, and tell you truthfully how best to remedy it. See to it now.

Uses for Baking Soda

One can find many uses for bicarbonate soda, which, under its kitchen name is just baking soda.

A pinch of soda will prevent milk from curdling.

A very small quantity of soda put in the water when cooking tough, meat or vegetables will make them tender.

A pinch of soda added to molasses candy just as it is removed from the fire will make it brittle.

A baking-dish which has been scorched or burned can be easily cleaned by filling it with cold water, to which a teaspoonful of soda has been added, and allowing it to come to a boil.

It will sweeten milk vessels, clean and whiten piano-keys, clean brass and flingre work, and is good for dishwashing.

A half-teaspoonful in a glass of hot water will cure heartburn.

The Endless Chain Nuisance

Well-intentioned but misguided and far too sensitive persons are once again anonymously circulating the prayer asking a blessing on mankind, which is very admirable in its desire, but the senders are guilty of a serious mischief in seeking to instill the fear of misfortune in the minds of the recipients if they break the "chain" by neglecting to copy the prayer and send it to nine friends in nine days, with a request that each and every friend shall continue the chain. It is a pity that so many people should for so long a time cause unhappiness to many people of super-sensitive natures by creating groundless terror in their minds. Such natures suffer more from the apprehension of evils that never happen, than they would suffer if some ill did really befall them. Every attempt to put this "endless chain" over one may be ignored cheerfully and fearlessly.

Time works quick changes in the growing girl. Pig-tails and short skirts are soon forgotten in the maturer charms of the debutante.

Sometimes, though, you will ache for a picture of her just as she romped in from school or play.

Think how she would like one, too, in the after years—to show her friends and possibly her children. Make the appointment while the thought is fresh in your mind.
