ADDENDA

The writer has probably fallen into an error in naming the head of the main branch of the family (p. 10), having been misled by a newspaper paragraph, which he did not take the trouble of verifying, the point being one of but remote interest. The head of that branch of the family was about 1880, John de Heley Mavesyn Chadwick, J.P. and D.L., of Healey Hall, Lancashire, Mavesyn, Co. Stafford and New Hall, Co. Warwick. He had three sons, Hugo Mavesyn, Charles, and John de Heley Mavesyn, and two daughters.

Page 16—The maple leaf described as Vert should be Gules.

Page 42—Captain Frederick James Chadwick was killed in action, in the Mesopotamian Campaign.

Lieutenant Richard Markham Chadwick was killed in action in Flanders.

Josephine Chadwick was married to Lewis Garibaldi Langstaff of Thornhill Springs, Thornhill, Ontario, and has issue: Ellen Elizabeth b. May, 1916.

The name of the 3rd daughter of Major James Chadwick should be Isabella and not as printed.

Page 58—William Francis Chadwick is a Lieutenant in 60th Rifles, Canadian Expeditionary Force: and has been wounded in action in France.

The name of the daughter of Francis Henry Chadwick should be Vinnie Rose and not as printed.

Page 60—William Gustavus Chadwick is a cadet in the 9th Mississauga Horse.

Stewart Herbert Pepler is a Lieutenant in 124th Overseas Batt.

Page 60—The Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick has a daughter, Elizabeth Agnes, b. 17th August, 1915.

Page 63—Lieutenant.-Col. William Craven Vaux Chadwick, after raising the 4th Mounted Rifles, was transferred to a staff appointment at Valcartier, where he trained three newly raised regiments for Overseas Service, after which he was offered the choice of either one of two Staff positions in Canada or the Command of a regiment for Overseas Service and choosing the latter, he was commissioned to raise the 124th Batt. C.E.F., which he accomplished with such success that within a fortnight from the day he was authorized to call for recruits, the Regiment was fully completed to strength in excess of establishment, with full complement of officers and staff, and bands.

Page 65—William Joseph Davis was the son of Thomas Handforth Davis (of a family of Devizes, Wiltshire) and Anne Pearce, his wife.

Sidney Davis is the daughter of John Ivester Potter, of Berwyn near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, (where that family had been resident for over two hundred years) and his wife, Rebecca Wilkinson, of a family resident originally in Virginia but since the 17th century in or near Philadelphia.

Richard E. C. Chadwick has a son, Richard Vaux, b. 20th May, 1916.

Page 65—Bryan D. S. Chadwick, although unable to serve in a more active capacity, obtained an appointment for clerical work in Brigade Staff, entering the 9th Mississauga Horse in which he was given the rank of Sergeant. Perhaps the only man who has entered the King's Military Service wearing an artificial leg.

Page 65—Louisa Mary Caroline Chadwick is engaged in special Red Cross Service in France.

The section of the book headed "Wales and Michigan," page 37, was written upon information which has been ascertained to be erroneous in an important point; and there were some difficulties as to dates, which have been explained; and this section has now been rewritten upon reliable information, as follows:

WALES AND CORNWALL—DEVON BRANCH

MICHAEL CHADWICK, son of Richard Chadwick, of Ballinard, and his wife Jane Sadleir, born 1769, d. 5 December, 1839, married Margaret (Amelia Margaret), daughter of Jeremiah Dwyer, of Tipperary, Attorney-at-law, and his wife Alice Potter. The marriage was secret without the consent of parents or guardians, both Michael and Margaret being about fifteen years of age when married, and a bill in Chancery, afterwards filed by Michael against his guardian for an account, tells a pitiful tale of the straightened circumstances of himself and wife and children for some years, although his father had left him well provided for and Margaret was "an heiress" entitled to an estate of her own. On their coming of age, however, in 1790, Margaret had, besides her own property, a settlement secured on Gortnekilleen, which came to Michael under the will of his father; it was sold in Michael's lifetime, lost through extravagance and mismanagement and the reckless style of living so prevalent among the Irish gentry at this period, to the ruin of many families. Margaret (if Amelia Margaret) died April, 1800. Michael lived some time in Jersey, and was living at Coom Cottage near Bangor in Northeast Wales, in 1802. He was a Captain in the Royal Irish Dragoons and served in the Rebellion of 1798, being present at Vinegar Hill where he is said to have saved the life of Col. Sir Watkin Wynne, who settled Coom Cottage upon him for life as a grateful recognition of that service. In Wales, he was called "Michael Richard." He had issue, Richard, baptised August, 1786; Jeremiah, died young; and Nicholas, died young, being killed by a kick from a horse. [He married secondly as set out infra.]

Richard, the eldest son, was a Captain in the Regiment of Shropshire Militia; he is stated by his descendants to have been employed with much success in raising recruits for the army (at this time constantly engaged in the Napoleonic and other wars of the period) and particularly for the Welsh Fusiliers. Married Cecilia Frances, younger daughter of John Moore Knighton, of Greenofen House, Devonshire, and Treleigh Manor, Redruth, Cornwall, who seems to have died s.p.m., leaving daughters co-heiresses, (one of whom, Maria Saltern Knighton, was married 13th February, 1810, to Capt. George Drake) and had issue,

John Moore Knighton, (d. 1879), who had a somewhat adventurous career; he served as an ensign in the Portuguese War of Succession between Queen Dona Maria and her uncle Don Miguel and afterwards in the Spanish War between Queen Isabella and Don Carlos. In the latter war he served as Lieutenant and Captain in the 3rd Westminster Grenadiers of the British Auxiliary Legion under Sir De Lacy Evans; was severely wounded in the battle of the 5th May, 1836; and was decorated with the Cross of St. Ferdinand. He was taken prisoner, but escaped from his captors while being taken to the Carlist camp, where he would have undoubtedly been shot, as the Carlists shot all prisoners of the Legion whenever they fell into their hands. After his return to England he was a Captain in the Royal Cornish and Devon Regiment of Militia. He subsequently settled in Natal, South Africa. He married, in 1840 at Heavitree, Devonshire, Anna Maria, eldest daughter of Commander John Fisher, R.N., and had issue,

The motto of the Mavesyn Chadwicks, Stans cum Rege, and the words Juxta Salopiam which have been sometimes used as a motto, are taken from the tomb of Sir Robert Mavesyn slain in 1403 in battle near Shrewsbury, anciently called Salopia, which states that he fell "Juxta Salopiam Stans cum Rege," i.e. near Shrewsbury, "standing with," meaning supporting the cause of the King.
