OF MAN'S BODY,

As governed by the twelve CONSTELLATIONS, according to ancient astronomy, viz :—

$\gamma$  governs the head and face.

TO THE PUBLIC,

In putting forth the NOVA-SCOTIA CALENDAR and Almanack for 1822, it is a pleasing duty to express our gratitude to the public for the extensive circulation with which this annual work has always been favoured, through the influence of a kind partiality.—The Almanack which we published for 1821 commanded an unprecedented sale throughout the province; and it will easily be supposed that we are this year ambitious of the same distinction. We have selected and arranged with that view a great variety of matter, which will be found useful and amusing. There are included lists of the army and navy, of his majesty's Council and the house of Assembly, of the various courts of justice from the Judges to the commissioners for summary trials, of the justices of peace throughout the province, of the Central Board, and the subordinate societies for each county, of the different town-officers appointed for Halifax Proper, and of the various public institutions—to which are added recipes, anecdotes and other articles of interest.

A good Almanack is an instructive companion—whose presence cannot easily be dispensed with in any household; as it communicates information very frequently wanted and which can nowhere else be obtained. The sitting of courts, the names of public officers, the days of the month, the date on which some future day will fall, are particulars often of prime necessity, and for which more especially in the country, we must resort to the Almanack. "A friend in need," says the proverb, "is a friend indeed" and is a jewel above all price. This praise, we maintain, belongs in a peculiar degree to the Almanack—for what friend is so often needed or would stick to his accustomed station by the fireside with such unshaken fidelity. Whether capricious fortune smile or frown upon us—whether the cold rains and the chilling wind have spared our wheat, oats and potatoes, or have blasted the rising hopes of the farmer—whether the last trip to P. Masquoddy with plaister supplied us with flour and dollars, or only forced upon the unlucky adventurer a deeper conviction that he must betake himself to steady industry and to the plough—whether the accumulated interest upon some mortgage has been at length discharged, or we are threatened with all the legal horrors of a foreclosure—whether we are plunged in debt by our luxurious habits and hold the sheriff in deep reverence, or can walk the street with an erect air and a "receipt in full" in our possession—in short whether we fail or prosper—"that steadiest and most unmoved of friends"—Holland's Almanack—will haug quietly on its allotted nail, ready at all times to dispel doubt and preside with undisputed sway over domestic arrangements. The services of this valuable and important personage may be secured on easy terms. The Fasti of the Romans have been found engraved on antique stones, and private copies were accessible only to the great: the rude almanacks of our ancestors, again, were cut in wood—sometimes on the scabbards of swords—or on a portable steelyard—on brass or horn, or on the skins of cels drawn over a stick. But in the present day the necessity of all this extraordinary labour is superceded by putting our hand into our breeches pocket and drawing hence—if contented with one copy—the moderate sum of 9d.—and if ambitious to supply the wants of others we demand for a dozen—only 6s. It will therefore be allowed that we are consulting the interest of our good friends quite as much as our own, when we recommend it to them universally to lose no time in possessing themselves of a treasure so valuable and convenient as . . .

Eclipses for the year 1822.

There will be four Eclipses in the year 1822—two of the Sun and two of the Moon, in the following order:

1st. The first will be of the MOON, on the morning of February 6th, visible as follows:—Beginning at 0 hours 7 minutes; ecliptic ☌ at 1 hour 6 minutes; middle, 1 hour 14 minutes; end of the eclipse, 2 hours 23 minutes—digits eclipsed from D's southern limb 4½.

2d. The second will be of the SUN on the afternoon of February 21st, partial and visible as follows:—Beginning of the general eclipse 1 hour 17 minutes; begins to be visible at Halifax, 3 hours 57 minutes; ☌ of Sun and Moon 3 hours 21 minutes. Sun sets 5 hours 16 minutes; end of the eclipse 35 minutes after 5 o'clock—digits eclipsed at the time of the greatest obscuration 4½ from the Sun's north limb. The northern part of the Sun's disk will be eclipsed 3 digits at the time of her setting.

3d. The third will be of the Moon, August 2d, in the evening, partial and visible—beginning at 6 hours 33 minutes; moon rises 7 hours 26 minutes; ecliptic ☌ 8 hours 3 minutes; end, 9 hours 12 minutes—digits eclipsed 9 from the moon's north limb.

The last will be of the Sun, August 16th, in the afternoon; ☌ at 7 hours 3 minutes invisible.

There will be also a transit of Mercury over the sun's disk, on the 4th of December, the ☌ will take place at 10 hours 4 minutes in the evening, consequently it will be visible here; at the beginning of the transit Mercury will be 15½ degrees of egres. 12½ minutes south of the Sun's centre. Beginning of the transit 9 hours 2 minutes; end, 11 hours 10 minutes—duration 9 hours 18 minutes.

JANUARY hath 31 Days.

Stern Winter still retains its sway
 O'er nature's once enamell'd mead;
 The fields their fleecy robes display,
 And flow'rs and landscapes all are fled.

" Bless my heart, mother, here comes Tim Twilight the pedlar again to wish us a happy new year. Well uncle Tim, it is just a year to a day since you were here before and sold me " the life and adventures of Betty Buttermilk, dairy woman to the Duchess of Dumdielikes. Come, let's see, who have you now, old daddy?" " Why, my pretty damsel, here's the works of Sir John Sinclair, the great Scotch farmer. Here's another book called The Guide to Health. Shewing how a diligent hand maketh rich Here's another, called the Great Quiltrey at farmer Cleverley's. Hah! what say ye to reading the life of My Lady Lummucks? But here's the best of all, The Non-Scottish Advertiser. Mind ye I sell no spurious wares. Look at the title page and you'll easily see. Be particular; none genuine but what has this title page. So my good friends, I must bid you good bye. If Providence give me leave, I'll call again in '23—you may read over what is here in haste pen'd down; it will serve to pass a winter evening or so.— Good bye t'ye.

Yet Winter's ravages are seen,
 Encircling nature far and wide ;
 The fields that once appear'd in green,
 Beneath the snow their verdure hide.

" He that would live at peace and rest, Must hear, and see, and say the best."

Expose not the imperfections and failings of your neighbours. Let detraction alone, unless you would bring trouble upon yourself. " I knew it would be so," said old Tittletattle, " and it is good enough for him. Mr. Peakabo and I have seen and heard more than every one thinks of!" Shoh! shoh! old busybody! you had better mind your own concerns, and take heed to your own ways, than thus to squint and belie your neighbours. No character is more to be detested than that of an eaves dropper.—Come, let us attend to our own windows, and if they are stuffed with old rags, out with them, and nail them for glass, which is now cheap enough. Is your barn tight and snug? Cattle should be kept warm and comfortable; and you have heard that " a merciful man is merciful to his beast." Do not then forget gallant and gilding, bughorn and lieback, switchtail and shortdock. Never mind the storm, Ben, it will be all over in dog days. Fine sledding, when you have a good team.

"Need makes the old wife trot."
Yes, yes, necessity makes us all scamper. Not only the young and lusty, but the old, decrepid and crippled are obliged to bestir their stumps and budge off at her call. Snow, rain, hail, wind and tempest, what are they to a poor starving! Hark! who knocks at the door? I hear the voice of old Jeremy! 'Friends of humanity, 'tis an old soldier who seeks a shelter from the tempest and begs a morsel from your plenteous board to stay an hungry stowey. I bled at Talavera and Waterloo when ye were younkers. Yes, while ye were scowring for robbins and bobbylinkorns. I and your grand daddies were contending amidst bayonets, bullets, and bombshells. The door is opened, and the soldier partakes of that generous hospitality well known and practised in Nova-Scotia.—Farmers attend! The spring begins to brighten upon us. Let us look around us and see how matters and things are situated. Tools, tools, I say must be in readiness.

Once more sweet Spring salutes our eyes,
 And nature smiles a thousand ways ;
 Athwart the plain the swallow flies,
 And lips her great Creator's praise.

"Money makes the mare go."

That's very true indeed. Money feeds the hungry, clothes the naked, and makes the lame leap like the hart. In fact money is the grand agent in every affair of the world, and almost works miracles. "And how shall we get money?" says Ichabod. Why, dig it out of the ground man, and now is the time to begin. Awake, O Ichabod, awake! Where is the glory of being a moppish, greenish humdrum, while all around you is life, vigour and enterprise? See Farmer Simkins up to his elbows in business. His mind is as bright as his ploughshare, and his spirits are lively as the larks that carol over him. Industry and frugality are his inmates; and although he sees so well to his own affairs he is always ready to give his neighbour a lift—he is none of your close-fisted old grudgers. If there is a scarcity of corn, he takes no advantage of it by locking up his granary; looking dark and dismal, and shaking his head at the importunage of his poor, hungry neighbour, until getting up the price to 20s. he then grabs the cash.

Hark! how Aurora's gentle morn,
Is hail'd with joy from ev'ry bough;
Among the trees beside the lawn,
Are heard the feather'd songsters now.

"Reckon not your chickens before they are hatched"—that is to say, be not too hasty about the enjoyment of those things which are still afar off. Wait patiently until your water-melon is ripe before you eat it. But stop! we have not planted it yet perhaps—spur up, spur up boys! the garden must not be neglected. Three hundred and twelve years ago, the art of gardening was introduced into England; prior to which, garden produce was imported from the Netherlands. Beets, carrots, turnips, &c. common table vegetables, were imported into a country, which industry has since made one of the most fertile soils in the world.

Plough in your dung as soon as you have spread it—recollect that manure pays great interest—lime is a very excellent material for compost manure. It destroys worms as well as gives strength and body. Your early peas and beans are planted, and you must stir the ground about them. Now turn out your early calves to grass. Do not forget to give your cattle salt when they first go to grass. It is a fine month for business, and we must be as busy as a hen and her chickens.

From yonder lawn sweet odious rise,
 And new mown hay perfumes the plain;
 Hear distant thunder rend the skies!
 See lightning—see drenching rain.

 "How we perspire!" said the beef-steak to the gridiron. Yes, captain Blowzy, it's rather warm; but don't let us jump out of the frying-pan into the fire, by pouring down too much hot rum into our throats. I went up to squire Snozle's store the other day for a half bushel of salt. It was just at night after I had cocked up what little hay I had out. "By my troth," said I, as I entered the shop door, "this is rather ag-ainst the parish." For there sat Tom Toozle and Beu Buozle; Bob Raikens and Jo Jakins, with 6 or 8 more, turning the double corner, as they call it; or to use a military term, firing off aim and punch from right to left; and, could you believe it, 'tis true as life, I there saw two of my good, honest and most reputable fellow townsmen snug among them; old captain Cleverly and Mr. David Easyman! I was touched to the very soul; and looking inciguantly at them, I cried, come out from among them.
 Hill Indian corn--reap early sown grain. Let no weeds be allowed to go to seed in your fields or gardens; and let no root of bitterness spring up between you and your neighbours.

Soon as the morn illumes the east,
 The reapers in the field are seen ;
 The golden sheaves are soon increas'd,
 And joy attends the splendid mein.

"A shoemaker must not go beyond his last."

This is an excellent proverb for farmers, and means that every one must mind his own business. Neither meddle nor make with things out of your own sphere. Now there is my fellow-townsmen Mr. Quidnunc, might be a very good farmer, if he would leave off dabbling in every other matter. But he imagines that nothing can go on right without his interference, and so you will see him meddling and advising in every affair of the village. No divine or physician and especially no lawyer knows so much as Mr. Quidnunc. But let the old goose go, and let us see to our farms and gardens. Plumbs, peaches, pears, nectarines you might have in plenty, and who could not have them by taking a little pains? Gather your seeds. Every one must endeavour to raise his own seeds. Sometimes, however, a change becomes necessary. Cattle may be allowed to graze on meadows; but, mind ye, you cannot "eat your cake and have it too;" you may mow it and feed to death. Prepare new land for sowing. Cut ditches. Cart muck. Throw your weeds into the bog pen.

Autumn the time of rural glee,
 With loaded bounties greets our sight;
 The bending corn, the fruitful tree,
 Present a scene of vast delight.

"Every man thinks his own geese swans."

That is very true, self-love completely blindfolds us. My neighbour Ego's swans are all geese and his fowls are all pheasants—his sheep are all deer and his cattle are all Bakewell's or the Hereford or any other kind. To be sure, he is a pretty good farmer; but how hard it is to put up with so much self conceit? Even his very vices seem to him virtues, and his deformities beauties.

How are your cider-mills? They must be put in order. Gather your peas, and beans. Take care of your corn-stalks. Collect your apples for cider. They should be kept under cover until mellow, and then your cider will be well flavoured and have a good body to it. There are some who seem to care very little how or when their cider is made; but a farmer should be as neat and particular about his cider, as his wife is about her butter. "Take care, Nabby, my dear," said farmer Neatly, "don't let the pinch of snuff drop into your cheese tub." Musty cider and snuffy cheese I abominate.

The pride of summer has decay'd,
 And yellow leaves incessant move ;
 No more is the leafy shade
 Which once so fair adorn'd the grove.

"Kissing goes by favour."

Well, who cares if it does? There was Dorothy Dump, she, to be sure, was invited to Tabitha Twist's quilting, and my girls were left out of the list. The girls were pouty about it, but I told them to keep still; for certain whims and humours will govern certain persons. "Mind me, girls, keep to the main chance. Industry is better than frolicking—and you will find that the world will think a lark to be better than a kite.

There never was a busier time than now. Potatoes to dig—corn to gather and husk—flax to be seen to—apples to pick—garden roots to be gathered, and a thousand other matters and things. This is no time to be dull, when you have the brightest prospects before you. In fact, if any is to be cheerful it is the farmer, when he sees the ripe fruits of his labour laughing all around him, and his lowing herds and bleating flocks gamboling and sporting over his fields, or bending their way to their several folds to receive their portion of bounty from their owner.—Throw up your gardens into ridges.

'Tis gone! The fancied scene has fled,
The lawns and forests cease to reign;
Their short-liv'd verdure now is dead,
And nought but leafless boughs remain.

"Hungry dogs will eat dirty puddings."
This is a true proverb. When a man, is hungry almost any bread and butter answers the purpose; but generally at any other time we prefer the butter and cheese of Mrs. Trim to that of Mrs. Slush. It will not do, however, to be over nice and particular about the taste of our food, and unnecessary varieties and delicacies. This proverb gives a hint at our morals also. Take heed to your ways, and let not passion and lust govern you, for dirty water, you know, will quench fire, and a bad drunk will cool a burning lust. "A man is known by the company he keeps." But, gentlemen, there is no fear of your losing reputation or health by dealing largely in the mud line. If it is dirty business, it will bring clean money; and money, you know, as I before told you, will do wonders. Old Jathro Gripe was counting over £125 just received for the tent of some of his farm, widow Worthy, poor, lame, and with a sick daughter to take care of, came up and solicited charity, and to my astonishment, as he had a little money on hand, he gave her a coat.

Dread Winter's come—rude Boreas blows ;
A death-like gloom is spread around ;
Now swift descend condensing snows,
And spread their mantles o'er the ground.

"It is a good horse that never stumbles."

Yes, my friends; and it is a good almanack maker that has no errors in his calculations, and no blunders nor mistakes nor slips in any of his work. There is no one without his weak side. I hope you will extend your charity to me for all my imperfections; for certainly my errors are of the head and not the heart.

This is a time to forgive injuries, if we have any. Let us look back upon the past year with thankfulness for the abundant favours of Providence—and let us also love our neighbours as ourselves. Open the account book—foot up the column—call in your neighbour—settle the old score and prick anew.

Remember that charity is the greatest ornament of a christian and of a man. Forgive your enemies—be obliging and complaisant to all men. To those who are truly hearty be kind, compassionate, merciful and friendly; and grudge not a portion of what you have in abundance.

I have frequently mentioned the subject of schools. Remember this is the safeguard of our country. Do not neglect this important duty.

A. M. denotes the morning, and P. M. the afternoon.

The above Table is calculated only for the first days of each month—but it is easy to proportion the same to any day of the month throughout the year. For example, suppose I should wish to know at what time the star Capella is on the meridian the 15th of February, the numbers corresponding to this star by the table on the 1st of February are 6 hours 3 min. and the numbers corresponding with the 1st day of March following are 6 hours 15 min. the difference of which is 1 hour 48 min. which the star comes on the meridian earlier on the 1st of March than the 1st of February—then say, by the rule of proportion, as 28 days are to 1 hour 48 min. so are 15 days to 58 min. nearly—and which subtracted from 8 hours 3 min. leaves 7 hours 5 min. for the true time of the star culminating as proposed.

Having found for any assigned day the time of the *'s passage on the meridian—the time of its rising may be known by subtracting therefrom its semi-diurnal arch : if the number to be subtracted is the largest add 12 hours to the numbers you take from, and the remainder will be the time of the star's rising—in like manner by adding the semi-diurnal arch to the passage in the meridian you will have the time of the star's setting, if the sum does not exceed 12 hours ; but if it exceed 12 hours the excess of 12 hours will denote the time.

How to find a true Meridian Line.

Calculate from the foregoing table, the time of the pole star's coming on the meridian, and you may also have the time of its being below the pole, by adding 11 hours 58 m. to the above—at any time as above calculated when the star is exactly above or below the pole—having a couple of plummetts suspended by two threads of silk or hair, at some distance from each other, and at sufficient height to view the star in the direction of these threads—let them be brought in alignment with the pole star. A line or the movement in the same direction will be a true meridian line—You may find when the pole star is on the meridian nearly without calculation, by the following method :—observe when the first star in the tail of the Great Bear, or that which is nearest the square, is in a vertical line with the pole star, by a plummet hanging at liberty—the thread of which will cut the two stars at the same instant. 11 min. and 1 quarter of a min. after this measured on a common true piece will denote the true time of the pole star's being on the meridian.

Table of Apollo from Fenelon's Telemaque, book 2d.

Apollo provoked at Jupiter's disturbing the heavens with his thunder, determined to revenge himself on the Cyclops who were forging the bolts, and slew them with his arrows. Mount Etna immediately ceased to discharge its stores of curling flames ; no longer were heard the strokes of the terrible hammer, which striking the anvil excited the groans of the deep caverns of the earth, and of the abysses of the sea. Iron and brass, being no longer polished, began to rust. Vulcan quits his forge in a rage, mounts, though lame, with speed, towards Olympus, and makes bitter complaints. Jupiter is provoked at Apollo, drives him out of heaven, and hurls him headlong to the earth—His empty chariot performs of itself its usual course, to give the day and night to men, with a regular change of seasons. Apollo stripped of his rays, was forced to turn shepherd, and tend the flocks of king Admetus. He played on the flute, and all the other swains came to shady glens on the border of a limpid fountain to hear his songs. Till then they had led a savage and brutish life, they knew but to tend flocks, and milk sheep, and make their cheeses ; the whole country was like a frightful desert.

Apollo taught all the shepherds the arts which can render life agreeable ; he sang the flowers with which the spring is crowned, the perfumes, the shades, and the verdure which rises under her steps. He afterwards sang the delightful night of summer, when the zephyrs revive mankind, and the dew quenches the thirst of the earth. He likewise mingled in his songs the golden fruits, with which autumn rewards the husbandman's toils, and the repose of winter, when the sportful youth dances before the fire ; at last he represented the gloomy woods which cover the mountains, and the hollow valleys where rivers by a thousand windings seem to shoot amidst laughing meadows ; thus he taught the swains what are the charms of a country life. When they know how to taste the bounties of simple nature, the shepherds with their pipes soon saw themselves happier than kings, and their cottages attracted in a word the uncorrupted joys which fly the gilded palaces—the smiles, the graces, everywhere attended the innocent shepherdeses. Every day was a festival—nothing was now heard but the warbling of birds, or the soft breath of the zephyrs sporting in the branches of the trees, or the murmurs of the rill falling from the rocks, or the songs with which the muses inspired the swains who attended Apollo. This God taught them to obtain the prize in the race, and to pierce with arrows the birds and the stags. The Gods themselves grew jealous of the shepherds, and thinking their life sweeter than all their own glory, recalled Apollo to Heaven.

SAMBRO Island and Light House is in latitude 44 deg. 30 min. N. and longitude 63 deg. 32 min. W.

From the westward, bring the light to bear N. E.; if it bears more easterly stretch to the southward till it bears N. E. and as much more northerly as you please, there bring to shoal or ledge to the southward; then keep it open on your larboard bow; give it more than a mile and a half birth, as much more as you please.

Note—The western ledges lie from the light S. W. distant two miles, the other W. S. W. about a league; the eastern ledges lie in a range nearly some above water; the outermost one mile and a half from the light, bearing from it E. N. E.

When the light bears north, distant about 2 miles, run N. E. 4 miles, then north will carry you to Chebucto Head, at a proper distance clear of all danger.

When a vessel of Chebucto Head, run N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  W. for the south point of George's Island.

When within half a mile of George's Island, you may enter the harbour west of it in 12 fathoms, or east of it in 15.

In passing between Sandwich point and Meagher's beach, run nearest the point, to shun a shoal which runs off S. W. from the beach.

There is also a shoal lying one mile south of Sandwich point. Coming from the eastward, run for the light, and you cannot fail seeing Chebucto Head as you open Halifax harbour; the light being 4 miles distant from the Head to the S. W.

Signals made at Fort George when Vessels are coming into Harbour.

TO TRAVELLERS ;

For the information of Travellers between Windsor and Parrsborough, &c. THE Parrsborough Packet sails regularly between Windsor and Parrsborough every week, from the 1st April to Christmas, viz. it leaves Parrsborough on Monday, wind and weather permitting so as to be at Windsor on Tuesday; and will sail from thence the first high water that happens at or after eight o'clock in the morning of that day: the Packet frequently goes twice or three times a week when business requires it.

Time of going through the Falls.

THE Falls are level (or still water) about three hours and an half on the Flood, and about two hours and an half on the ebb, which makes it passable four times in 24 hours, about 10 or 15 minutes each time. — No other rule can be given, as much depends on the floods in the river St. John, and the time of high water or full sea, which is often hastened by winds, and in proportion to the height of them.

Anecdotes of the Robbers to the South of France, during the years 1799—1800.

At the period these banditti were so numerous, and daring, that scarcely a week elapsed without the occurrence of some scene of violence. In vain were the diligences escorted by gens d'armes, and even soldiers placed on the roof and in the inside; the robbers appeared in large bodies, and never failed to accomplish their object. It was only in consequence of a regular negotiation being entered into with them, or rather perhaps by ordering large detachments of cavalry incessantly to patrol the roads, that the government were enabled to put a stop to their depredations.

At first the robbers contented themselves with what ready money the passengers chanced to have about them, taking nothing else; but, on the contrary, invariably behaving with the greatest politeness towards them, being pardon for being under the necessity of delaying their journey for a few minutes, and handing the ladies back again into the coach with the greatest alacrity. Only a few passengers, either suspected persons, or those who offered resistance, were in some very rare instances murdered or ill-used.

But when at length no person travelling in the diligence dared to carry money about him, the robbers began to extend their system of pilfer, and demanded of the passengers, in addition to their passes, their watches, rings, &c. They always refunded sufficient to defray the expenses of such travellers, according to the distance which he might have to proceed in the French territory; a generosity and consideration not often met with among this class of people, and therefore the more deserving of notice.

A band of these robbers once detained a courier de mail, with whom another person was travelling. The courier, without hesitation or resistance, gave up his purse containing 15 louis d'ors. The traveller his wealth consisted in a few crowns. "Well, sir, in that case ble you to part with your boots also," replied the plunderer off without further ceremony, and found in them 100 louis.

During this operation, one of the band perceived a strong in the clothes of the unfortunate Gentleman, "Holla, we have got cried their leader; "leave him have his money; poor devil, he c without it." In fact, they returned him fifty louis, and rode off temptuous laugh at the scented traveller.

At another time they stopped a diligence, in which were three and a lady; the former were plundered as usual, but when they the latter to search her, "What, gentlemen!" said she, with extra presence of mind, and in a tone of the greatest confidence, "is it that Frenchmen can insult a woman?" "Certainly not, madame," reply: "we only request the favour of a salute." They kept then w the lady came off at the expense of about half a dozen kisses.

On a similar occurrence, a Swede happened to be in the diligence, came to his turn, he appeared surprised and said, in a cool expostulat ner, "I am a foreigner, gentlemen, and I travel in this country under fection of the honour of the French." Upon this, they demanded port, and finding it correct, they returned it, saying, with the utmost ness, "Go in, sir: you have not coufided to French honour in vain."

In another diligence thus attacked was a merchant of Toulouse, w 4000 livres in gold about him; when he got out he threw the robbers containing three or four livres in copper money, adding, in his Gascon
"if you had but come a quarter of an hour sooner you would have fou hundred louis d'ors in my possession. His bedi garde d'ure (pet d'heure, together with his apparent gasconade, made the robbers laught ter cracking some jokes upon him, they suffered the poor devil to take purse again unmolested.

A LETTER

From a Sailor to his Sweet-heart.

DEAR KITT.—What's the use of your backing and filling, if you mean to join convoy and sail over life's ocean with me to the port of ness. You well know the trim of my ship, and seldom see her head draw more water than she can steer with; and I will give you my word, providing we let go love's anchor before the priest, that I will back my main-top-sail, or raise tack or sheet for the fairest girl now a

The stores I have on board will be sufficient to carry us through age, allowing we should ship one or two during the passage, and nev come upon short allowance while we steer by the compass of econom

But you must remember, dear Kitt, to keep a bright look out unde
Should the shoals of poverty make their appearance, you must sing e I may tack ship in season. I hope 'twill never be said that I was w on the shoals of misfortune by the misconduct of my mate; but I'll you, Kitt, if you obey my orders, I will pilot you to the port of Conte

You are welcome to overhaul my old logbook, and see if I ha'n't ste honest course to get thus far distant in life, and never but once was in the bay of Misfortune; and that was owing to the sun of intelligen ad long been beclouded, which caused me to stand in for a stack at stood high on an ill-tempered hill, which I took to be a light-h the Comfort. The wind was then blowing a hard gale from the po geful, and squally, and a head beat sea of envy running; 'twas t ge us to ride at anchor; and especially under the guns of Fort Malic keep a constant fire on me; however, Kitt, I boxed off by double liop windlass, and heaving the anchor of sincerity to the bow of shee home at the same time the three top-sails of prudence, whic soon led by the breadth of resolution, and I happily cleared off, a the gratification to take the latitude and longitude of the place, an others of the dangers, who might stand in for that hay stack, which l above the port of Bliss.

I have you see not which shot that y
I shall steer, and probably, this will be the last affe ay get from
