PLOWMEN POETS. Farm Lads Who Have Won Success fived was Robert Burns. His birth-day was celebrated recently by Scotsmen in every part of the world.

Another poet who, file Robert Burns, found poetical inspiration in farming and field work, and who was recently awarded by the Academic Committee of the Royal Society of Literature the Polignac Prize, which consists of one hundred pounds and is a coveted literatry distinction, is Mr. John Masefield. This clever poet began his career by going to sea. consists of one hundred pounds and is a coveted literary distinction, is Mr. John Masefield. This clever poet began his career by going to seabut ultimately drifted to a farm, where he worked for some time. Then he tried his luck in a city office; but the literary germ began to develop and he soon became known as a writer of real brilliance.

One of the contributors to "New Songs." an anthology of contemporary verse published in London four years ago, was Alfred Owen Williams, a hammerman employed on the Great Western Railway; and his career furnishes a striking example of the old-time saying that genius will out. The son of a carpentar, living in the little village of South Marston, Williams at eight years of age started work on a farm and finally left school at eleven. Then he deserted farm life for the engineering shop, and from fourteen he has been successively rivet lad, steam-hammer driver, furnaceman, and hammerman at the Great Western Railway works, Swindon. Incited by the Ruskin Hall Correspondence Glass, Williams devoted his leisure hours to study, doing much before five in the morning and often continuing until midnight. In this way he taught himself shorthand, Latin, Greek and French, acquired an extensive acquaintance with English literature, and became a poet of no little merit.

Then there was Joseph Skipsey, the pitman poet, who, at seven years of age, went to work in a mine absolutely without education of any kind, but lived to be the first editor of the "Canterbury Poets" and to have his own poetic faculty recognized by all the leading poets of the day.

Tribute to Glasgow. Glasgow, Scotland, according to a writer in The National Magazine, is the "most progressively governed city in the United Kingdom." The city, public services, makes them suder a figurate service to the people at leverage and makes them yeld each syearly profit, part of which goes to take up bonded debt and part into a common good tund, out of which the city is gradually substituting comfortable, healthful, municipally owned tenements for the villainous and disease-breeding slum tenements which grew up in Glasgow, as they have done in most other large cities, under the pressure of the demand for private profit.

Glasgow supplies its citizens with cheaper gas and electric light, cheaper street car service and better than are enjoyed by the residents of any American city, Glasgow's municipal slaughterhouse, in which all animals intended for food for Glasgow's 1,000,000 people are killed and dressed for market, is a huge institution, set right in the heart of the city, yet so clean that one could pass within a hundred yards of it and never suspect its existence by reason of any odor in the air. ts existence by reason of any odor in the air. The municipal abattoir and market insure the healthfulness of all meats eaten in Glasgow, and help mightily to hold down prices by eliminating a lot of middlemen who take tolls on this business in other cities

Old London's Water Thieves. London's original water supply was the river Thames, and every apprentice was supplied with a water tankard for transporting liquid to the house. As early as 1479 there were "water thieves," "for in this yere a wex chandler in Fleet street had bi craft perced a pipe of the condit withynne the ground, and so conveied the water into his selar; wherefore he was jugid to ride thrugh the citee with a condit upon his hedde." The first official water supply for London was made in Germany. In 1582 Peter Maurice, a German, mad an engine at London bridge by which water was conveyed in lead pipes to the citizens' houses, and he became rich on the proceeds.

A Curt Repty.

A story is told of Prof. Masson-when editor of Macmillan's Magazine. It refers to the days when Kingsley and Newman were engaged in their famous pamphlet war. Conscious of the excellence of an article on the subject of the controversy which he had written in the magazine. Masson ventured to bring it under the notice of Newman, but he was not prepared for the reply he received, although he afterward spoke of it with philosophic humor. Newman's laconic message was in words such as these: "I have not heard of Your magazine, and your name conveys no impression to my mind."—Westminster Gazette.

To Study Fish. To Study Fish.

The British Government has just embarked upon an interesting scientific inquiry relating to the question of fishery research. A phase of the work is the liberation of marked fishes and crabs for the purpose of studying their migratory movements. Dr. Williamson, of the Marine Laboratory at Aberdeen, marked more than 1,500 crabs, and others were liberated in different districts. Many of these were subsequently recovered by means were subsequently recovered by means of international rewards, and it was found that one crab had traveled 155 miles in 689 days, and another 108 miles in 144 days.

Hounded Fox Played Sweep. A fox entered a blacksmith's shop at Farlesthorpe, Lincolnshire, Eng. Fursued by the Southwold hounds, he jumped on the forge, climbed up the chimney, came out at the top covered with soot, jumped from the roof, and was killed in the churchyard.

"Mever mind, Ibily: Your games aren't promise town." She did not hear him. She was searching for hee book.

"Is this what yes are looking for?" he asked, drawing the missing article from his pocket.

"Off!" cried Polly, with a flush of embarrassment. "Mainly told you."

"You've been working a long time on that."

"It thought I might help you if I learned everything you told me," she answered timidly, "But I don't suppose I could."

"I can never tell you how much you help me, Polly."

"Do I?" she cried eagerly. "I can help more if you will only let me. I can teach a bigger class in Sunday school now. I got to the book of Buth today."

Polly stood motionless where Mandy had left her. She hardly knew which way to turn. She was happy, yet afraid. She felt like ninking upon her knees and begging God to be good to knees and begging God to be good to her, to help her. She who had once been so independent, so self reliant, now felt the need of direction from above. She was no longer master of her own soul. Something had gone from her, something that would never, never come again. While sever, never come again. While she hesitated Hasty came through the gate, looking anxiously over his shoulder. "Well, Hasty?" she said, for it was apparent that Hasty had semething important on his mind.

"It's de big one from de circus," he whispered excitedly.

"The big one?"

"You know—de one what brung you."

"You don't mean"— Polity's question was answered by Jim himself, who had followed Hasty quickly through the gate. Their arms were instantly about each other. Jim forgot Hasty and every one in the world except Polly, and neither of them noticed the and every one in the world except Polly, and neither of them noticed the horrified Miss Perkins and the Widow Willoughby, who had been crossing the yard on their way from the Sunday school room with Julia.

"Tou're just to big as ever," said
Pelly when she could let 50 of Jim

Fight the gag.

newspapers are now finding something good to say about the great leaders, past and present, of English Liberalism—Gladstore, Harcourt, Asquith, Churchill, and in some cases even Lloyd George; this being caince Churchill sent his memorandum and his letters in answer to Mr. Borden's Macdonian cry. The mighty Gladstore are now finding something at the sent travelling constantly fornia, has been travelling co dum and his letters in answer to Mr. Borden's Maccdonian cry. The mighty Glad stone has been all along apoken of by that press as merely a tremendous agitator, a ruthless iconoclast, and a would be dismemberer of the United Kingdom. Now presease merely a treatment of the presence of the United Kingdom. Now he is lauded to the skies as the introducer of the Closure in the House of Commons. Asquith, Churchill and Lloyd-George have always been denounced by the same press as demolishers of the Lords and as supporters of the Irish cause, Home Rulers, etc., stc. Now, Mr. Churchill's letters, throwing discredit on Canadian spirit throwing discredit on Canadian spirit and intelligence in regard to shipbuilding and intelligence in regard to shipbuilding for igenerating in yiew of the action of the porters of the Irish cause, Home Ruiers, etc. Now, Mr. Churchill's letters, throwing discredit on Canadian spirit and phtelligence in regard to shipbuilding, have potheosized him for the time being in the eyes of Canadian Toryism, while poor Mr. Bonar Law, their hero of yesterday, is now never mentioned.

The fact is, that the Government are trying to force a Naval Act upon the people under the pretext that the British Admiralty asks for it, and that this alleged request must be looked upon as a command. Then they go farther than this, and say that if the command of the British Admiralty is not immediately obeyed, British precedent demands that the "gag", be employed to enforce obedience. In all this we would like to know where Canadian'deas and opinions come in I is this proponderately a Canadian or an English constitute. It is to Canadians or English constituted in the command of the British admiralty is not immediately obeyed, British proponderately a Canadian or an English constitute.

It is clear as day that the "Star" is clam crously supporting the Borden Bill because "sees in it a permanent policy—and the "Star" is in a position to have "inside" knowledge and knows whereof it

The Opposition have fought nobly and well so far and they must fight it out to the bitter end. The Bill should not pass, the gag must not be applied. No greater question touching the freedom of speech and parliamentary satonomy has arisen in half a century than this.

Once agair the Conservative press, by dispatches from Ottawa, is seeking to revive the silly story that Hon. W. S. Fielding is plotting to discredit the Bordens Government in the Mother Country. At the same time it declares, for Canadian consumption, that the ex-Minister of Finance was himself finally and forever discredited by the defeat of the reciprocity agreement two years goo. If one "discredited" Canadian ex-Minister, can so easily underning the reputation of Mr. Borden and his advisers with the British public, it shows, either that Mr. Fielding is a modern Machiavelli, or that a large body of public opinion in Great Britain is not recently enthusiastic over the Borden regime.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Preston Brown, the colored lad of this city, met six men for one round each in the final bout to-night at the Brown, and the six men for one round each in the final bout to-night at the Broadway A. C. and came out winner in each scrap.

His first opponent was Harry Law, whom he beat easily. The second man was Jack Beardon, This was little harder proposition, but Freston managed to come out with flying colors. The third man was Sammy Willis, the Italian, whom Brown beat rather easily. The 4th man was Koung Sam Langford. Langford did fairly good for the first mieute, then he blew up. Preston soon Lound where his blows were hurting the most and had Sam all but out at the finish. The fifth man was Kid Looke, an old-timer. Brown weighs only 124 pounds, while Looks weighs 160 pounds. Looks estempted to wrestle at the start, but was warned by Referce Balley. Looke tried his beat to tire him out, but Brown beat the Italian to the punch,

The last one was Willis Sleuth. This was a rather tame one as Sleuth did the waiting. Brown was tired from the fast pace he had set, and did not eare much shout mixing it.

OTTAWA, March 24.—The Government will introduce the Closure Bill this week, but the Liberals will strenguesty oppose this, as they believe that the Naval issue can only properly be solved by an appeal to the country after the passing of a Redistribution Bill.

After March 31st the Government will have no funds available to carry on the public services and proceed with public works, etc. The, Eberals, however, have no intention of unrecessarily holding uppable business ether than the Naval fillifit sunderstood that an interim Supply Bill sufficient to carry on all the ordinary business of Government, pay salaries of civil servants, etc., will be passed without objection, which will be quite a contrast to the action of the Tories when the Liberals were in power, when they held up the salaries of civil servants throughout the country.

This will enable the Government to day, 38 to 31.

H. C. MacLEOD SUMMONED

The building's interior was gay with bunking and a carpeted gangway led from the train to the saioon deck of the steamship. Among those in the company to greet the Royal party were Governor Macgresor, Colonel Rutherford, the new commanding officer of the Maritime Provinces, and D. Pottinger, of the Government Bailways Management Board. There were, however, no official ceremonics of way kind. On board the ship's company lined the passageway. Awaiting the party in their cabins were beautiful foral gifts from Mrs. Borden and the wives of the Cabinet Ministers, and a magnificent The Empress took on board 5,000 farrels of apples, and as had 600 passess gars. Exceptional?

Yes, the past winter certainly was, but March is not over yet, so look out for the sting which this month usually carries in its tail and don't be beguiled into neglecting your house heating. It is very much better to keep the house comfortable and avoid colds than to get ill and pay Doctors' bills; besides, it's pleasanter. To be around and about at work and enjoying life is more to be desired than to be confined to the house because of a little false economy in a fuel bill. We can supply you with practically every kind of Coal handled by other Dealers, and some which we handle exclusively, such as CANNEL, BOULETS, etc.

To Invest Safely

—you should eschew any proposition that places its principal emphasis on a high interest return, because thereby security of principal must be sacrificed. The chief requisite of a perfect investment is a maximum of security for the invested principal. Look for this first. Income, while important, should be of secondary consideration. Absolute security is easily obtainable by purchasing Government Bonds. But the income is too low to satisfy the average investor.

To Invest Profitably

—you should consult a reliable investment house for the neces-sary information on which to base your selection. There are Bonds and Preferred Stocks of ound commercial enterprises and public utilities which offer the desired security, and in addition assure a satisfactory income ranging from 5 p. c. to 7 p. c. We are always pleased to submit a selection from these to suit the individual needs of any prospective investor. A any prospective investor. MEN ARE HELPLESS AS

When taken suddenly ill—Here is common-sense safeguard. Big, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill. The sturdlest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst. His trouble was acute indigestion, brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

A couple of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal, and ward off indigestion.

Rexall Dyspepsis Tablets relieve stomach troubles by adding nature to supply those elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They tend to aid the stomach todigest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood.

Wa know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarance them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fall, we will refund your money.

J. A. Farquhar & Company yesterday received a wireless message from Captain Farquhar, of the sealing stessmer Seal, to the effect that the Gulf freet had made very slow progress. They were only able to steam through 30 miles of ice, which is this year exceptionally heavy. The seals at the present time are from miles from the steamer. On last Friday men were sent out and walked to where the pack was located. This was done under extreme difficulty, owing to the condition of the loc fields. They killed one thousand, but were compelled to leave them on the ice, as the weather prevented the carrying of them to the ship. The prospects will not be any more encouraging unless there is a heavy north east, wind.

TO-DAY is the anniversary of the celebra-tion of the first marriage in Canada, nearly 300 years ago.

History does not tell us the wedding gown of the bride, but we presume it was ivory-satin, or cloth, or what you will, but white or ivory, since white is essentially symbolic of a wedding.

Has the April bride of 1913 decided on her wedding garment? Supreme among the suiting materials for brides-elect are the

A recent issue of an English illustrated paper states that if Mr. Bonat Law should retire from the leadership of the Unionist party in Great Bri-tain, Lancashire might put forward its champion, Lord Derby. This peer seems to be very strong in the Lan-

Lord Derby is not considered a great man among the great men of Great Britain, but he is, nevertheless, a man of much influence and power. Like Lord Dudley, who is mentioned as a possible successor to the Governor-Generalship of Canada, he has devoted his life to public affairs. They represent a class of rich and stillvoted his life to public affairs. They represent a class of rich and ditted men who have helped to make Great Britain's name among the nations. They have eschewed a life of idle luxury and have worked hard in the world of politics, diplomacy and administrations.

Ducked For Sixpence

An extraordinary practical joke was recalled at Peterborough by the recovery from the River Nene, near the Town Bridge, of the body of a man named William Burrows, aged 30, who had been missing since Christmas. The body was found by a lighterman, known by the nickname of "Banker," who recognized it as that of a man. known by the nickname of "Banker," who recognized it as that of a man whom he rescued from drowning at the same spot under startling circumstances two years ago. On that occasion Burrows was going home at "closing time," when he expressed a wish' to die, as he had no money. One of his mates said, 'I will give anybody sixpence who will drop him over the bridge." "Give me the sixpence," said "Banker," and having got it, he forthwith picked Burrows up and held him over the parapet. "I can't swim," gasped the victim. "Then you'll be him over the parapet. "I can't swim," gasped the victim. "Then you'll be able to learn," said his tormentor, and dropped him in the middle of the stream. He had sunk twice and was drowning when "Banker" swam to him and rescued him in the nick of time. The lighterman was taken in his wet clothes to the police station, where he gravely said he thought Burrows wanted him to drop him in the river, and he was released, no charge being preferred against him. Burrows continued to drag out a precarious existence, and it is a strange coincidence that the man who dropped him into the stream two years ago and then rescued him should be the man to recover his body.

Most Perfect Pun In Existence.

Opinions will continue to differ as to the most perfect pun in existence, It will be hard, however, to find one to beat "Peccavi—I have Sind," attributed to the fine old soldier who conquered the Indus province in 1843. Of course, it is ridiculous to suppose that Sir Charles Napier could ever have made the joke or, having made it, could have made it to do duty as a dispatch after a victory, but so the story goes, and it is certainly good enough to be true.

Low-Priced Heroes, Playing here in the drama in England is a pretty poorly paid game on the average. The man taking the leading part in a kind of touring dra-matic company, of which there are a great many, gets from $9.50 to $12 a week, and the small part folk pull down $6 to $7. The salary of a hero-ine keeps around $8.50, and the "gris-tooratic lady" finds about $6.25 in her pay envelope. It isn't uncommon for that kind of player to play four or five parts in a drama in a week for $7. nd is a pretty poorly paid game on e average. The man taking the

An Ancient Rectory.

London, it is stated, is to lose another interesting relic of old days—the rectory-house situated at the back of St. Michael's, Cornhill, a church that itself stands upon a site worth a large fortun. The old rectory-house, it is believed, was erected soon after the Great Fire, and until about half a century ago it served its original purpose. Then it was let out in suites of offices. The great charm of the building is its quietude. From of the building is its quietude. the hum of the traffic in Corni the hum of the traffic in Cornhill one passes under an archway into a little oasis where all is serenely silent. Financiers and solicitors favor this quiet retreat. From their windows they overlook all that is left of St. Michael's Churchyard, a pleasant green spot, with but one tombstone left in unspeakable loneliness. It is understood that modern buildings will supersede the old rectory-house, and that the solitary tombstone will remain to indicate to City men that once people not only lived but died under the shadow of handsome St. Michael's.

Dr. Morrison, who was recently ap-pointed financial adviser to the Chi-nese Government, takes a pleasure in recalling an amusing episode connect-Oniversity.

"In the examination for the second year at medicine," he relates, "hoping the more to impress the professors, I entered my name for honors, and they rejected me in the preliminary pass, It seems that in the examination in Materia Medics I had prescribed a dose of Croton oil of one-and-a-half to two drachms, 'carefully increased.' I confess than I had never heard of the wretched stuff."

A deputation from Dr. Morrison's family interviewed the examiner to

Mr. Morrison eventually found journalism more interesting than medicine, and he is now one of the most influential men in China.

Libraries of Great Authors At the sale of Goldsmith's library here was not a single copy of his own there was not a single copy of his own works except a very imperfect one of the "History of the Earth and Animated Nature." From the catalogue of the sale of Fielding's library it appears that the only books of his own writing which he possessed at his death were two volumes of Miscellanies, two more of his unimportant dramatic works, the second edition of "Jonathan Wild," and a pamphlet. Johnson's library sold in some 650 löts and fetched little more than $1,250.

Fielding's library was about the same size and was valued $500 higher, so that neither could be described as valuable when one considers that the price of some of the lets would be enhanced by the desize of friends to obtain mementoes. As for Goldsmith's library we remember that he would tear half a dozen pages out of a volume to save the trouble of transcription and when the auctioneer described the collection as "scarce currous and valuable," the last spithet was little more than rhetorical flourish.

Make Cromarty Naval Harbor.

An important naval harbor is being prepared in the Cromarty Firth. Admiralty surveyors are engaged pegging out a large hill fort at the Firth mouth, which will command a large area of the Moray Firth, and render Gromarty impregnable. Permanent moorings have been laid down for torpedo boats and Dreadnoughts, as a strong naval force will be permanently based on the Firth, and commodious oil storage tanks are being constructed at Invergordon. Accommodation is being provided for two hundred workmen, and an Admiralty office is being established in the town of Cromarty. Make Cromarty Naval Harbor.

Old Postoffice Passes. London's old general postoffice is being torn down and within six months will be no more. It was built-between 1825 and 1829 on the site of the old church and sanctuary of St. Martins le Grand. Possessed of an imposing Ionic portico and supplied with a great clock, the general postoffice was a fine structure, but it was not large enough to accommodate the rast machinery of the central office.

H. A. RITHARDSON,

How the Railread Entered Yellowhead Pass.

In the first place, to show you're no tenderfoot, call it "T. Jaune." Next, learn that it is neither a new beverage nor a nichrame, but a location better known in its world than is Toronto or Porcupine, says T. Lacey Amy in The Globe. Out there in the Tellowhead Pass they will probably dismiss its origin with the explanation that it refers to a spot where a man named John found some tes when he was badly in need of it; and, knowing something of the trivial origins of important nomenclature in planation that it refers to a spot where a man named John found some test when he was badly in need of it; and, knowing something of the trivial origins of important nomenclature in that region, you may let it go at that. But Tete Jaune, or its translation (Yellowhead), is applied to a pass, a lake, a river, a mountain, a valley, an Indian village, a contractor's camp and an end-of-steel village. What adds still more to the fame of "Yellowhead," the Hudson Bay trader of the learly part of the nineteenth century, is the reappearance of his christened name in Jasper Park, the new national park, and Jasper Lake, the largest lake of the northern Rockies. Tete Jaune, in the French, is confined to the valley and villages that come to view the instant the Rockies are left. Through the middle of the valley rushes the Fraser River, that has been gradually growing to the importance of navigation since it started fifty miles back around the base of Mount Pelee and tumbled fearfully but scenically down until it broke from the grip of the crowding mountains.

Until only a year ago Tete Jaune knew none but Indians and old Jasper Dawes. Had not the Grand Trunk Pacific included it in its itinerary there is doubt if it would have gone any further towards fame. But Tete Jaune isolow on the map, firmly, irrevocably, permanently. And the day and houn and minute it came on the map was July 17, 1912, at 2.03 p.m., when selff came to town.

July 17 was recognized as the big day of the pass. Its importance lay in the fact thas fifth first day the railway would not only a pasch the only settlement in the plass, but it would also connect up transportation from the cast right three plass. Its importance lay in the fact thas fifth first day the railway would not only a pasch the only settlement in the plass, but it would also connect up transportation from the cast right three for the first plant to Fort George. At Tete Jaune the holiday started early. To be sure it was only a bent of the original to the original to the original that the northern Rockies was worth celebrating.

In Tete Jaune the holiday started early. To be sure it was only 'a bond tractor's camp, but it was the frain one of the pass, the headquarters of the big firm of Foley, Welch & Stewart, whose name at the banks is bake ter than that of most railways. Three hundred and fifty 'bohunks' were fed there. Every one of the thousands of laborers who came in to work had to report at the Tete Jaune office. Several of the sub-contractors had added their office to the motley village, and one of the main engineers' camps their office to the motley village, and one of the main engineers' camps worked from this centre. In all, there must have been more than a half-thousand men waiting that day for the steel to come to Tete Jaune. But that wasn't all. The wives and families of the sub-contractors added that touch of home and tenderness that made the gathering more than an event of wild life, and took some of the sombre dissociability from the surrounding mountains.

Asbestos mines are but rock quar

Asbestos mines are but rock quarries with veins of crude asbestos to a limited extent. A large percentage of the rock is permeated with the mineral. The crude asbestos is sold in its native state, after being cobbed, and the rock is put through crushers, mill machinery and screens, and is separated on the screens into different grades. When it is considered that only appreximately five per centuotisthe total rock mined yields salable asbestos, the wonder is that the industry pays, especially at the prevailing low prices. However, as the great value of the uses of asbestos become more generally known and appreciated, the industry should be a very important one for canada, which possesses creterially and appreciations of the control of the control

CRAZED WITH WEALTH

Gold at that time threatened to b come as common as silver in the days of Solomon. In one year $63,000,000, n eight years $475,000,000, were wor Some men at Golden Point made as much as $2,000 each a day. Another much as $2,000 each a day. Another exceptionally lucky party unearthed thirty-four pounds of gold in one day. No wonder that such "pockets" were termed "jewelers' shops!" Occasionally a nugget worth $50,000 was uncarthed. The result of this sudden influx of wealth, almost without labor and with risks which are infinitesimal as compared with the Klondike, was the temporary demoralization of the population. as compared with the Klondike, was the temporary demoralization of the population.

The lucky ones—and there were thousands of them—squandered their riches in the most reckless fashion. Some of their fantastic tricks would scarcely be credited were they not attested by witnesses still living.

The game of ninepins, we are told, was played with bottles of champagne, for which he who broke the least had to pay. Dozens of the same costly wine were emptied into tubs and drunk from tin pannikins, spirits and beer being added to give "body" to the beverage. One man, in imitation of Caligula, shod his horse with gold. Sandwiches made of bank notes were devoured. Silver wrapped up in bank notes was thrown to popular actresses instead of flowers.

In fact, money was so plentiful that the reckless diggers could not "knock it down" fast enough. They thought they had only to dig a few feet in the earth to get plenty more, and for a time it almost seemed as if this were so. Such were some of the characteristics of Victoria's hot youth.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Chasing Crown Jewels.

Chasing Crown Jewels.

The mystery of the crown jewels which disappeared from Dublin Castle a few years ago, has never been cleared up. There are many people who have decided views on the subject, and prominent among them is Mr. Laurence Ginnell, the Nationalist member for Westmeath.

Mr. Ginnell maintains that he possesses sufficient information to dissolve the mystery once and for all. On several occasions he made valiant attempts to induce the House of Commons to hear his views on the subject. Solemnly he arises, and members guess what is coming. Mr. Ginnell informs the House that he is in a position to make shocking revelations, and just as he is getting into his stride it is discovered that most of the members have disappeared, and the House is counted out. Tis very strange, and curious-minded people outside the House would like to see Mr. Ginnell given a free had to probe the mystery. The member for Westmeath declares that the jewels could be recovered at any time, and a great scandal is being hushed up to save persons in high places. In fact, Mr. Ginnell recently called on the Irish Secretary "to lay them on the table of the House." A roar went up at the possible prospect of English, Irish, Scotch, and Welsh, to any nothing of other nationalities, scrambling for the precious jewels.

In private life there is no suggestion of the sleuth-hound about Mr. Ginnell. He wears a beard, and a well-fitting frock cost. Though he is self-educated, he is a member of both the life of the house.
