Wood Pulp Report

A preliminary report of the consumption of pulp wood and the amount of pulp manufactured last year has just been issued by the Bureau of the Census. The advance statement is made from the statistics collected by the Census Bureau in co-operation with the United States Forest Service.

Many of the figures bring out interesting facts which show the rapid growth of the paper making and allied industries during the last decade. Nearly four million cords of wood, in exact numbers 3,962,660 cords, were used in the United States in the manufacture of paper pulp last year, just twice as much as was used in 1899, the first year for which detailed figures were available.

The amount of spruce used was 68 per cent. of the total consumption of pulp wood, or 2,700,000 cords. The increased price of spruce has turned the attention of paper manufacturers to a number of other woods, hemlock ranking next, with 576,000 cords, or 14 per cent. of the total consumption.

There was a marked increase last year in the importance of spruce, which has always been the most popular wood for pulp. For a number of years pulp importers of this country have been importing spruce from Canada, and the available supply of this wood in the north central and New England States, where most of the pulp mills are located, is not equal to the demand.

Large quantities of hemlock were used by the Wisconsin pulp mills, and the report shows that the Beaver State now ranks third in pulp production, New York and Maine ranking first and second respectively. Poplar has been used for a long time in the manufacture of high grade paper, but the supply of this wood is limited and the consumption of it has not increased rapidly.

Agricultural Commission

The Agricultural Commission, created by Act of the Legislature at the late Session, held a preliminary meeting in St. John recently, and organized for work. To W. W. Hubbard were delegated the duties of Secretary prescribed under the Act. The office of the Commission will be in the House of Assembly, Fredericton, and correspondence is invited from anyone interested in the Agricultural development of the Province. Letters should be addressed, "Agricultural Commission, House of Assembly, Fredericton," P. M. S., stating the subjects upon which the Commissioners desire to be informed, and will be sent out to prominent men in every School District.

It is expected that the travelling work of the Commission will begin during the fourth week in June, and continue until such time as haying operations prevent farmers from attending the various meetings. These meetings will be held at convenient centers in the various counties so that representatives of every School District may be within convenient driving distance, and will be open to the public and the press. All residents of the County wherein the meeting is held, shall have, as far as possible, an opportunity of expressing their opinions upon any matter connected with the work of the Commission; but the spokesmen representing the various school districts shall first be heard. All newspapers are invited to send representatives to the meetings.

As much of the Province as possible will be visited before the haying season begins, and the work will be resumed in September and continued until all parts of the Province shall have been visited. It is proposed to first visit Carleton County, following with Victoria, Madawaska, York, Sunbury, Charlotte and St. John in the order named. Should haying be early it may not be possible to include all these Counties. So soon as the various localities interested have been heard from, the places and dates of the meetings will be announced. In the meantime, officers and members of Agricultural Societies, and the public generally, are invited to make suggestions, and to call the attention of the Commission to any particular matters in any way affecting the Agricultural and Industrial Industries of the Province.

Confirms Transfer of Shore Line to C. P. R.

John S. Kennedy, of New York, a director of the Northern Pacific Railway, passed through the city yesterday in his private car, Plymouth Rock, on route to the Tobique and Cascapedia rivers on a fishing trip.

Mr. Kennedy said his visit to the province was purely for pleasure. He is a member of the Tobique fishing club. Speaking to a reporter, he said he was still a director of the New Brunswick Southern Railway, which has recently been acquired by the C. P. R., and the directors still control some lands which are the property of the company and collect stumpage therefrom.

Mr. Kennedy is accompanied by a party of friends. Last night when shown the above, Col. H. H. McLean, who is solicitor for the C. P. R. and also a director of the New Brunswick Southern Railway, said: "That man is not a director of the New Brunswick Southern and never was. What would a director of the Northern Pacific Railway know of the relations between the C. P. R. and the New Brunswick Southern?" When asked if he would make any statement concerning the acquisition of the N. B. S. R. by the Canadian Pacific, the colonel firmly declined.

Can Locate Lost Chest of Gold

Claiming that he knows the location at the bottom of the sea of a chest containing 1,800 English sovereigns, or about $9,000,000 in American money, Manuel J. Moura of New Bedford, Mass. has succeeded in interesting some Providence capitalists, and they are considering the plan of forming a company to go and find the chest. Moura is a diver, but he has not done any diving for some years, as he is now getting well along in life. Years ago he discovered gold and treasure from several vessels that were lost off the Cape Verde Islands. He claims that the treasure lies near a reef off the Island of Boa Vista, one of the Cape Verde Islands, as he offers to furnish a map showing just where the treasure lies. It was forty years ago that Moura spent two years as a diver at Cape Verde. In that time he brought up from the sea between $6000, and $7,000 in gold coin taken from a Spanish pirate ship. The truth of the story is questioned, as he had a long contest in the Rhode Island courts for the money, which he turned over to Moses Green, from whom he eventually recovered it. This expedition sailed from Providence in 1868 and located several wrecks on the Boa Vista reef, where three iron boxes of gold were found. After closing his connection with the expedition Moura and an assistant named John Nelson remained to hunt for an English vessel lost in 1848. She was a brig, loaded with railroad iron, and part of the money on board was to pay the workmen for labor on the first railroad built in Africa. The manifest with the location of the gold board, was seen by Moura. He located the brig and eventually found a chest partly covered with sand. Another dark cask could not be stirred. While Moura was at work he was seized with yellow fever and was forced to return home.

What we Are or Are Not

The longer we live the more we learn, and the more we learn, the less we think we know. Such is the inconsistency of man's ideas. The less one knows the greater his opinion of his abilities and wisdom. In the morning of life a conceited man prides himself on his greatness, and wonders to what grand channel he will confine his talents. He looks upon his school district as the world at large, and himself as the great genius in whose keeping the world's nature rests. He imagines that when he speaks, nations tremble, mountains totter and the sea becomes silent. He imagines that a gaping and wondering populace are gazing on him with open-mouthed wonder and iron-clad astonishment, and that he holds the world in the hollow of his hand with a grasp that is perpetual.

But as days, and months, and years pass in rapid succession, the young man finds out that he is possibly mistaken and if he would wander away some one or more of all the people on the earth would not miss him. By and by he begins to realize that he is only one of the many millions of people, and instead of standing forth as the center of attraction, he only fills a small niche of some obscure corner, and really attracts but little attention. The ignorant man who realizes his ignorance and who does not seek to pass himself off for more than he is worth, is pardonable, but the self-conceited man who tries to pass himself off at a premium is to be pitied. The best way is to hold one's self-esteem down and not rate himself too high. The man who climbs the highest has the farthest to fall.

It is more pleasant to be invited to take a higher seat than to be deprived of it. It is more pleasant to be king of a cottage than the servant of a palace. It is better to be a good five-cent piece than a bogus quarter; in other words, it is better to hold ourselves at what we honestly worth. The world is full of people who never learn anything because they think they know enough to begin with. Thousands are teaching when they ought to be taught; thousands believe themselves wise when their ignorance is lamentable; thousands believe themselves clothed in gold when they are only thinly plated and the copper shows through in many places. The wisest are comparatively ignorant and thousands of men who have grand ideas of their own abilities will someday wake up to the realization that they have been laboring under a large sized delusion. Many a young man's life is glided by bright dreams, that come in the early stage of the game, but later on he finds that these dreams are only empty, and O, how little is the change when it comes.

Battled For Life On Ice Drift With Hunger-Maddened Dogs

St. John's Nfld., June 5.—Battling for many hours against a pack of hunger-maddened dogs on a pan of ice off the coast of Labrador with the temperature below zero and only a knife to defend himself from being torn to pieces by savage brutes, is the terrible experience that Dr. Grenfell, superintendent of the Royal national deep sea mission in the northern regions has recently passed through.

The story of Dr. Grenfell's miraculous escape from death is told by Capt. W. Bartlett, of the steamer Strathcona, which has just arrived here from the north. Capt. Bartlett was with Peary on several of his expeditions to the Arctic. Dr. Grenfell had left Battle Harbor, at another settlement 10 miles distant, and he was travelling over the ice with a pack of dogs. Soon he found himself approaching when he got on a bad spot of ice. Before he realized it, he was in an area covered only with drift ice, and before he could stop the dogs the animals had carried him into the water. The dogs attempted to climb on Dr. Grenfell's back, and he was obliged to fight them before he was able to climb on to a solid piece of drift ice. The dogs also succeeded in saving themselves.

With the wind blowing a gale from the northwest and the temperature 10 below zero, the doctor would have been frozen to death, as his clothing was wet, but for the originality and ingenuity he displayed. Taking off his skin boots he cut them in halves and placed the pieces over his back and chest to shield those parts of his body from the blast. As the wind and cold increased when night came on, he determined to kill three of the team of dogs to afford him more warmth of body and to supply the other beasts with food, fearing that becoming hungry they would attack and devour him.

As it was they attacked him savagely, and he was bitten terribly about the hands and legs. The doctor spent a trying night. He wrapped himself up in the skins of the dead dogs, but still found it so cold that he repeatedly had to run about the ice to keep up the circulation of the blood. Hoping that next day he would be in sight of land, though the ice was fast receding from the shore, the doctor took the legs of the dead dogs and binding them together made a pole to the top of which he bent part of his shirt to serve as a signal and this eventually proved to be his salvation, as the flag was seen by George Reid and others of Locks Cove, Hare bay, and they effected a rescue. During the latter part of the night the doctor, worn out from his exertions from his struggle in the water and his fight to escape the dogs which were upon him while immersed and which nearly drowned him, was forced from sheer exhaustion to lie among the animals, and their bodies as they slept huddled together, afforded him grateful warmth, and for a few hours he slept. He also utilized parts of the skin of the dead dogs around his feet to serve for boots, and bound them tightly with pieces of the rope traces. He was fully 40 hours on the ice, suffering from frost bites, wounds, cold, hunger and thirst.

Used up though he was on landing Dr. Grenfell drove to St. Anthony, where every care and attention was bestowed on him, and he came safely through the ordeal.

ANOTHER CASE OF UNWRITTEN LAW

New York, June 15.—Sarah Koten, a young trained nurse, lured Dr. Martin W. Auspitz to a house in Harlem last night with a false sick call by telephone, and shot him to death after she had lain in wait for many hours. She declared today that she had no regret for her act. "I shot him, but I did not murder him, she said in a cell in the police station. I killed him because he had wronged me, and then refused to help me. I tried to punish him in the courts, but found myself powerless. My father and mother are dead, so I had to protect myself. There seems little doubt that when the case against the girl goes to trial, a jury once more will have an opportunity to pass upon the 'unwritten law' or the justification of murder under certain circumstances.

Washington, June 15.—After holding the police at bay for six hours, Joseph Pospisiel, an employee of the Pension office, shot himself through the brain while insane. Laboring under a delusion that an attempt was being made to murder him, he fired at pedestrians, into the homes of his neighbors and at the police. Altogether he fired about 50 shots, none of which however, took effect. Before arming himself, Pospisiel passed his three little children through the window to persons in the adjoining house. His wife became alarmed when he opened fire on the policemen and she joined her children in the neighbor's house. When he shot himself, Pospisiel was sitting in the second story window of his home. He first rolled up his sleeve and injected cocaine into his arm, and then fired the fatal shot. He plunged forward to the ground and died on the way to the hospital.

HYMENEAL GREARSON--JONES

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Clinton A. Kilam, at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Miss Mabel B. C. Jones was united in marriage to Frank Leslie Grearson, of the office staff of the Cornwall and York Cotton Mills. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. D. Marr, pastor of Queen Square Methodist Church, in the presence of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was handsomely attired in cream cloth with cream and gilt trimmings, and carried a bouquet of cream roses. The happy couple left by the Montreal express last evening for a wedding tour and on their return will reside in the city. The bride's traveling suit is of golden brown cloth with silk trimmings with hat of corresponding colors. The young couple, who were the recipients of many handsome gifts, have the good wish of a wide circle of relatives and friends.

WILLIAMS--HANSON

A pretty June wedding took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock when Edward Llewellyn Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Williams of 667 Grove Street, and Miss Ella Sophia Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Hanson of Penfield Centre, New Brunswick, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. A number of relatives and friends were present to witness the ceremony which took place at the home of the groom's parents, Rev. H. B. Drew, pastor of the Advent church, was the officiating clergyman, and performed the ring service. The best man was Frank Harding Knight. The bridesmaid was Miss Alice Mary Williams, a sister of the groom. The flower girl was Miss Carrie Williams, another sister of the groom, and strewed flowers along the pathway as the bridal party entered the parlor, where the ceremony was performed. The house was handsomely decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns and potted plants. The bride looked handsome in a brown traveling suit and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was becomingly attired in a dress of brown silk and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The groom was dressed in white and she carried a bouquet of wild flowers. After the ceremony a reception followed and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on the afternoon train for New Brunswick, where they will enjoy a three weeks' vacation at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Williams is employed as bookkeeper in the office of the Dunn Worsted mills. He is also superintendent of the Sunday School of the Advent church. He is well and favorably known as is also Mrs. Williams who is popular with scores of friends in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were the recipients of a number of valuable presents from friends, including silver and china. A sum of money was given by the associates of Mr. Williams at the Dunn Worsted mills and a cut glass set was presented by the parents of Mr. Williams. The gift of the bride to the bridesmaid was a gold locket and chain. The groom presented the best man with a stick pin.—Woonsocket Evening Call, June 2nd.

ADAMS--ARCHIBALD

Christopher Stephen Adams of Green street, North Smithfield, and Annie Conights Archibald, daughter of David and Mary Williamson Archibald of this city, were united in marriage this morning at 9 o'clock at the rectory of St. John's Catholic church in Slatersville, North Smithfield, by Rev. Father P. H. McLaughlin, pastor of the church. Miss Josephine Woods of this city was bridesmaid and Charles Deyveill acted as best man. Immediately following the marriage the couple repaired to the home of Mr. Adams' mother, Mrs. John Adams, where a reception followed and a wedding breakfast was served. The bride was attired in a green colored lace waist, and a blue traveling suit with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Adams left on the 11 o'clock train for Boston on their way to Penfield, N. B., where they will spend a three week vacation. Mr. Adams is employed as foreman in the calendar department of the Slatersville Finishing Co., and is a popular resident of Slatersville. Mr. and Mrs. Adams received many beautiful and costly presents in cut glass and silver.—Woonsocket Evening Call, June 2nd.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even-numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at any Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

DUTIES.—(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. He may also do so by living with father or mother, on certain conditions. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

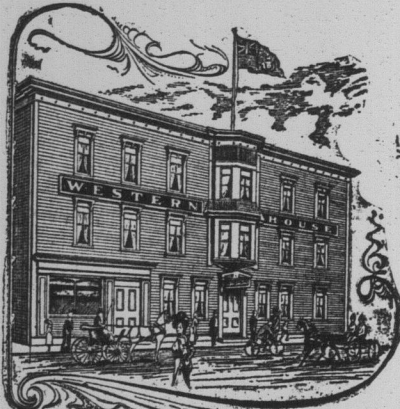

(3) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Our Interests

The interest that newspaper owners have in big business concerns, in a very large measure, determines the attitude of the newspaper toward these lines of industry.

For instance, the owner of the New York World holds a large amount of railroad stock. You cannot expect that paper to criticize very seriously railroad management, unless the railroad management be of a kind to interfere with the earning ability of his stock.

The owner of the New York World holds considerable banking stock. You cannot reasonably expect the World to do otherwise than to uphold that system of banking which adds to the earning ability of the money which the owner of the paper has invested in banks.

The owner of the New York Sun is interested in certain manufacturing enterprises. These enterprises are aided by the tariff. You cannot expect the New York Sun to do much heavy work favoring a reduction of the tariff while he or those who own it are interested in a corporation that makes its money because of the tariff.

What we are fixed by what we have and hope for.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—ever from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or secretions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Gorvius says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! However for thirty years, Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure, No. 4, has been on the market, and it is safe to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Consult carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! Casual Acquaintances

"Which of these rings would you have if you were going to buy one?" I was out for a shop-window spree, and standing at a jeweler's window, was examining its expensive and beautiful contents, with a view to purchase... "when money grows on the hob," as mother used to say when I asked for the impossible.

"There was an air of contented satisfaction about here which invited confidence. And, although I do not believe in making up to strangers on the off chance of entertaining angels, I accepted her at face value.

"She selected a chocolate, then held the bag in mute invitation. I took one. They were good chocolates. We shared them equally, chatting the while about the various rings and their beautiful settings.

"I don't believe in loading my fingers with rings," she said, exposing a well-kept hand devoid of ornament save for the plain gold band which circled the fourth finger; but I have always had a hankering after one or two real good ones. And Joe--my husband--has promised to buy me one or two to-day.

"When I'm at home, she sighed, I know exactly the kind I should like, but as soon as I get to the windows I see so many and they all look so beautiful I can't make up my mind which to have. This is the fifth window I've looked at and I'm so nearer now than I was at the beginning."

"Oh! I'm not in a hurry, she said with a happy laugh. "If I don't buy the rings Joe will give me the money. And £10 in the hand is better than two rings on the finger, she added shrewdly.

"We were going in the same direction, so we sauntered down the street together. "Joe's a sailor, she informed me, mate on a wind jammer. He took his discharge at Antwerp, but had his note sent to Manchester. We don't live in the city, but only came in for the money. He's gone for it now."

"It must be awfully lonely for you while he's away, I said. "Well, yes, it is she admitted, but you soon get used to it. And we are far happier than we should be if he was always at home. Every time he comes its like having a new honeymoon. And when he's away its just as if we were courting over again. The letters he writes me! And the presents he brings! Our house is full of curious things and pretty knicknacks from all parts of the world. The neighbors look forward to his coming as much as I do. He's so free-hearted and such good company. Everybody likes Joe.

"We paused at a window glittering with gems. While we examined them she continued her eulogy of Joe and his virtues. This voyage has been the best Joe ever made, she said, confidently. Him and the captain had a trade on their own and cleared £50 apiece. And on one of the South American ports, to oblige the agent, they took a Spanish Don on board as a passenger.

"He had been up country and had got the fever, and the doctor said his only chance of recovery lay in a long sea voyage. He didn't know much English and as Joe was the only one on board who knew Spanish they became quite friendly.

"At first the Don picked up wonderfully and they thought he would be all right before they got home but it wasn't to be. All through the worst of his sickness Joe nursed him as carefully as if he had been his own father, and the Don was very grateful.

"When he was dying he gave Joe a beautiful claw ring set with a diamond bigger than any of them"--pointing to the stones in the window. "I don't know much about diamonds, but judging from the prices of these and the size of that it must be worth 50 or 60 at the very least.

Joe didn't want to take it, but the Don made him. He said kindness such as Joe had shown him was ill paid by such a trifle.

"Joe doesn't care a bit about jewelry, so he is going to have the diamond set in a brooch for me. When I told him I should want some rings to go with it, he laughed and said, I could buy any I liked up to £10.

"There you are, Nance, he said heartily. I thought I should find you hanging round a jeweler's shop window. Chosen the rings yet?"

"This is Joe, Nance said proudly, laying a detaining hand on my arm. Then to Joe in explanation of her acquaintance with me. This young lady was standing at a store window and I spoke to her. We've had quite a long chat together. I've told her all about you and the Don, and the ring he gave you. Show it to her Joe.

"He's got it with him, she said in answer to my protest, and I know you would like to see it, now wouldn't you? I admitted that I would, and we walked into one of the arcades so that I might examine it in quiet and at leisure; Joe was a typical sailor; bluff and hearty with a pleasant face and open smile that was very engaging, I did not wonder that Nance was proud of him.

"The ring was not new, but it was a real beauty. To my inexperienced eyes it seemed worth far more than the £50 or £60 at which Nance appraised it. "Won't the stone look lovely in a brooch?" Nance said enthusiastically. Then as Joe put the ring back in his pocket, you got the money all right?"

"No not until to-morrow, Joe said casually. The advice note has not arrived. We shall have to stay here all night. "We can't, Nance said quickly. I've got no money. "Why, I gave you 2 yesterday."

"Yes I know, but I lent it to Mrs. Bradshaw this morning. She wanted it to make up a bill, and I was so sure you would get your money all right."

"Joe looked at her in blank astonishment then, seeing how nervous and uneasy she was, laughed heartily. If you ain't the easiest old shoe in the world! he said, admiringly. I believe you'd part with your own skin if you could get it off and anyone asked for it.

"The tears were brimming in Nance's eyes. Her distress moved me to sympathy. Could not you go home and return in the morning? I asked. "No, that's the worst of it, Nance replied. We were going on to my sister at Preston, so we didn't take return tickets. I don't know whatever we shall do, unless--she stopped and looked at me appealingly--unless you could lend me a sovereign and take the ring as security. I am sure we could trust you with it, and if you will give us your address we will bring you the money as soon as Joe draws it in the morning.

"If I had a sovereign I would gladly lend it to you, I said truthfully, "but--" "Ten shillings would see us over the night, Joe said tentatively. "Then I had to confess that I had purposely come out without money so that the shops might not tempt me to spend it. Suddenly a bright idea struck me. Why not pawn the ring?" I suggested.

Nance caught at the suggestion eagerly. Yes get a couple of pounds on it, Joe, and we'll have a good dinner somewhere and go to the theatre. Come on. "At the entrance to the Arcade we parted, they going one way, I the other. Suddenly, and without motive, I turned and followed them. They passed pawnshop and entered the nearest house. Curiosity mingled with suspicion led me to await their exit.

"When they came out Nance crossed the road, and Joe, on the opposite footway, sauntered slowly, keeping his eyes on her. At a jeweler's window Nance made an unsuccessful attempt to get into conversation with a lady. Then the whole business was clear to me. Nance was a clever trickster, Joe was a fraud, the Don was a figment of her imagination, the ring was a sham, and I--I was an unsophisticated country girl whose penny had saved her from falling a ready victim to the confidence trick--Manchester Chronicle.

THE CLOSURE

In view of the continued obstruction tactics of the Opposition in the Federal House, which has been so costly to the country, some are demanding that the rules of the house be so amended as to permit the government closing out the debate at such times as it may deem prudent.

This procedure is called The Closure, and up to this time has been unknown and possibly unnecessary, in Canada. In legislative bodies of Great Britain, United States and France it has long been known and practised. In Canada we have been inclined to boast that there was absolutely no limitation upon free speech, sometimes claiming that this was true with us in a much larger measure than with our neighbors across the border.

The Closure has justified itself in the countries named, would it not do so also in Canada?

Until now the business of the country has been carried on without its being delayed by the Opposition. Now it is being deliberately delayed. And why? Simply because of the government being unwilling to strike out a vital clause in the Election bill as introduced by Mr. Aylesworth—a clause which takes the electoral lists out of the hands of partisans of either side and places them in the hands of the Judges, who because of their independent position, would be expected to be unbiased, and so deal fairly with both sides.

Because of this, supplies are being withheld or grudgingly doled out by the Opposition wasting the hours of the house in talking against time on questions of little or no importance to the country.

While we boast of our liberty of speech, if ever the closure should be introduced, it is in connection with the disorganised exhibition during the last four weeks.

COUNTY CONVENTION

While there may be some uncertainty as to when the federal elections will be held, would it not be the part of wisdom to organize for the contest before us. Westmorland has set the example and an enthusiastic Convention held on Monday last, when Hon. H. R. Emmerson was elected as the Liberal standard-bearer. There can be no doubt whatever as to Westmorland being firm in its loyalty to Liberal principles, but an early preparation for the campaign will go far to insure an even more decisive victory than any hitherto gained. The one way to success in elections as in other branches of activity, is through energetic preparation and work.

How about a Liberal Convention in Charlotte? Some lessons may be learned from the recent Provincial contest though not run on strictly party lines.

Our Conservative friends are preparing for an especially vigorous campaign, and though no Convention has been publicly called, matters are being "cat and dried" by those who evidently though by self appointment, have the management of the affairs of the party.

While we do not approve of a little section of the party managing the whole, we do commend them for their getting ready, thus early in the campaign.

Charlotte will do well if she take necessary steps to have its Liberals in the firing line before the battle be far advanced.

In the last federal contest results proved that had the Liberal candidate been supported by a united party ready for the struggle, he would certainly have been elected. Let the party profit by past experience.

The Department of Mines at Ottawa has arranged for important experiment work in connection with the large peat deposits in Canada. A plant will be established probably in Ottawa where investigations will be carried on into the methods of obtaining gas from peat and into the latest methods of using peat for industrial and domestic purposes. Arrangements are being made for a further investigation of the extent and quality of the Canadian peat beds. An expert will be brought from Sweden to conduct experiments. A government commissioner was sent to Europe last summer to gather information as to the development of the peat industry there. In a report which will soon be presented to parliament he says that the peat areas in Canada cover an area of at least 37,000 square miles. In many cases the average depth of the bogs is more than six feet. About 25,000 square miles of the total area are in Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Territories. The conditions in Canada, at least in the southern parts of the interior provinces, are regarded as favorable for the manufacture of peat fuel as those in Europe. "The increasing population and industrial activity in Canada," says the commissioner, "demanding every year a larger amount of fuel, the growing scarcity of wood in the settled parts of the country, and the increasing prices of wood and coal are making the utilization of our great peat bogs a question of great importance."

It is said that at one time when the late Joe Howe and Charles Tupper were contesting Cumberland, excitement ran high. In Oxford they were addressing a large crowd and excitement ran high. Each had their ardent followers. These came to blows, and while they were settling matters in this way, Howe and Tupper passed through the crowd arm in arm on their way to dinner. What fools we mortals are,—some of us.

The Lemieux Act scored another triumph in Ottawa. The Board of Conciliation appointed under it to deal with the dispute between the Ottawa Electric Railway Company and its employees has made an award giving the men a substantial increase in wages. The Liberal party was ever the friend of "the man in overalls."

Australia's pension fund is to cost the Commonwealth £1,800,000 annually. It gives to persons over the age of sixty-five who have lived in the country for twenty years, 10s. a week.

The Martin - Senour 100 per cent PURE PAINT

Investigate Before You Buy In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope"), that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy.

We suggest to those about to paint to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than the other. Thus with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity; which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint, our agent will return the money you paid for the can of Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint used in the experiment, and we will credit the same to him.

Messrs. Havel & Wilson, R. A. Burr, Palmer Brothers and B. N. Andrews have within the past month added handsome new display cases, (silent salesman,) to their store furnishings.—Eastport Sentinel.

The body of Samuel McDonell an elderly man, working on Mr. G. D. Grimmer's farm, St. Andrews, was found last Sunday on the roof of the cottage, having evidently fallen dead from apoplexy.

An enjoyable picnic party was given last Wednesday by a number of the members of the Golf Club on their beautiful grounds at Mt. Vernon. Despite the fog which came in during the festivities, the occasion was made a merry one.

Rev. Wellington Camp is taking the S. T. D. correspondence course in theology with the Temple University, Philadelphia. Mr. Camp has successfully passed the examination for the first year of the course and received the degree of B. D.

A representative of the Algonquin Athletic Association called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Grierson, who were married Wednesday afternoon, and on behalf of a number of officers and members of the association, presented the young couple with a handsome piece of cut glass.—Globe.

A very large and handsome oak combination sofa, cooler, refrigerator, etc., including a huge mirror, has recently been installed in the periodical and cigar store of O. H. Brown on Washington St. The new installment is appropriately named the innovation, and adds no little to the appearance of the store.—Eastport Sentinel.

H. Price Webber closed his thirty-third consecutive year with the Boston Comedy Company in Oxford, Me., on June 1. Business has been above the average and Edwin Grey, the leading woman of the country, has received warm praise for her excellent work during the four of forty-one weeks. Mr. Webber will open his next season early in August.

The N. B. Southern Ry. has a large crew of men repairing the road bed and track. They are now working east from Beany River. Most of those employed are Italians, who are living in cars. Many sleepers are being distributed along the track and ballast placed where needed. As considerable repair work is being done all over the road it should be in good condition when the work is completed.

The new government having removed L. B. Knight, chief game commissioner, and Mr. Robinson, chief game warden, has appointed four other men in their stead as game wardens. The names have not yet been made public, but it is understood that John McGibbon of St. Stephen has been appointed as warden for the counties of Charlotte, York, Carleton and Victoria, with a salary of $800 and expenses. Mr. McGibbon's friends are congratulating him upon his appointment.

It is reported that the Canadian Pacific Railway has purchased Cadillac island, Lehigh Harbor, from the Frye estate and that it will be used in connection with the railway's winter port schemes at that place. The purchase price is said to be $200,000. Engineers have recently been on the island taking measurements.

Mrs. A. Belya, representative of the Frye estate, says this report is incorrect. He denies that any purchase has been made or even that there are any negotiations on foot.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

For best styles of printing—Greetings.

Schr. Mattie J. Alles is in port taking in a cargo of pulp.

Schr. John R. Fell sailed on Thursday with pulp for Norwalk, Con.

The fine warm weather has had its effect on the crops. Everything is growing rapidly and the grass never looked better at this time of year.

For fine job printing send your orders to this office.

The eel business is apparently flourishing, two more vessels of the fleet have arrived and the crews are kept busy handling the slimy wigglers.

Preparations are being made for the 12th of July celebration of Orangemen which will be here this year. A number of local lodges will take part in the parade.

Brown's speedy motor boat took a party of young people to St. Andrews Tuesday. Owing to the wind and darkness they remained all night, returning next morning.

Work on the new sewer has commenced on the upper street. As considerable rock has to be removed it is necessary to blast it, which is being done very carefully by Williams Bros.

Frank Murphy left for Boston Friday where he will enter the Mass. General Hospital for treatment. It is possible that he may undergo a critical operation, from which his hosts of friends wish him speedy recovery.

Greetings to any address $1.00 a year.

It is learned, says the Frederickton Gleaser, that in the special audit of the books of the late W. P. Flewelling, deputy surveyor general, the shortage so far discovered runs up to about $20,000 instead of $12,000, as previously stated.

It is stated that the steamers Camden and Governor Cobb of the Eastern Steamship Co. will perform the service on the international division during the coming summer, the Calvin Austin, now in commission, to be transferred to the Boston and St. John direct route.

The contract for the addition to the school building has been awarded Mr. E. N. Nesbitt at $2000. The building is to be completed and ready for occupancy Sept. 1st. The contract includes heating for which two, or possibly three furnaces will be installed. One of the rooms will be used for manual training.

The vane has been placed in position on the new church by Mr. E. Nesbitt, and is a source of great satisfaction to the townspeople, who, for years, have made it the point for weather predictions. Mr. Theo. Rogers of St. Stephen, did the painting, which is a peculiar undertaking, or looked so from the ground.

A Canadian government commissioner is at Campbellton obtaining data for the settlement of the boundary line adjacent to the middle grounds in the lower bay and other points along the shore of Quoddy. The American Commission will also take up the points in the case, when the two boards will meet and settle the question.

The Labor News, organ of the striking printers, says: "It has been suggested that the labor unions of this city put labor candidates in the field to contest this constituency in the next general election. The idea is a good one, and there is no doubt that with present conditions prevailing the labor men could win hands down. It is probable that a convention of workmen will be called in a short time to consider this very important question."—St. John Globe.

The Masonic craftsmen are planning on a big convention to be held in Saint Andrews on the 24th of June. About 200 members of the craft are expected to be in attendance, the lodges to be represented being St. Mark's, St. Andrews; Sarsnet, St. Stephen; Alley, Upper Mills; Victoria, Milltown; St. George, St. George; Ashlar, McAdam; Mammoth, Grand Manan.

The convention will be held in Andromedon hall. Two degrees will be worked in the afternoon. After supper, the brethren will attend a service in one of the churches. Then they will return to the hall and work the third degree, after which the visiting brethren will be banqueted at the Algonquin by the members of St. Mark's Lodge.—Beacon.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

An Empire Builder

The death of Sir Robert G. Reid removes a figure of the greatest importance in public life both in Canada and Newfoundland; a man imbued with much the same class of genius which has made great the names of Cecil Rhodes, Strathcona and Mount Stephen.

Like the two last named, he was born a poor boy in Scotland, found that country too small for the exercise of his ambitions and his genius and went forth into the world to try a fall with it. At his death, about fifty years later, he had left his name indelibly associated with that of the ancient colony of Newfoundland of which he was virtually the uncrowned king.

Born in Perthshire, he left that country for Australia at the time of the great gold rush in the late sixties, but found no fortune there. In 1870 he returned to Scotland and the following year came to Canada, without means. The next twenty years he spent here and in the United States engaging in contracting on railroads and bridges, his undertakings constantly growing more ambitious, his work here culminating in the construction of the largest bridge in Canada, the Lachine bridge over the St. Lawrence. His other contracts in Canada included some of the most important and difficult sections of the C. P. R. and the bridge over the Grand Narrows, Cape Breton.

In 1890 the Government of Newfoundland advertised for tenders for the extension of the railroad from St. John's to Hall Bay, 250 miles into the virgin wilderness. Robert C. Reid got the contract and then began his remarkable career on that island which ended with himself and the people at logger-heads, but with the work of his titanic hand on the greater part of the island. He had done for Newfoundland, much which that island could never have done for itself and that he benefited thereby incidentally is hardly a ground for criticism. It is true his contract was an extraordinary one. The completion of his first 250 mile contract left the island still without a satisfactory or profitable railway system. Its extension to the Western shore, 250 miles further, was an absolute necessity, in order to make the portion already constructed of practical value.

Newfoundland was in a bad way financially, and the disastrous fire at St. John's had left the Government in an embarrassing position. Reid offered to complete his contract at the same rate paid for the portion already built, and to operate the line for ten years in consideration of a large grant of land, equal to about one-tenth of her entire territory. In 1898 a further contract was made with Mr. Reid whereby he secured further large grants of land and control of practically all franchises of value for terms of from 30 to 50 years, and the reversion of the ownership of the entire railroad for an immediate payment of one million dollars. Then with a free hand, he began operations in earnest. He built and operated steamship, telegraph and tram lines, power and lighting plants; erected railway stations and paved the streets. Part of these privileges were afterward bought back for a sum between four and five million dollars. The net results of his eight years work in the colony were about $10,000,000, over four million acres of land, and a Knighthood; probably more than has ever been accomplished by any other one man working entirely "on his own," in the wide history of "Empire building."

There can be no doubt, after reading the story of these achievements, that Newfoundland did a good deal for Sir Robert Reid; but Sir Robert also did much for her. Cecil Rhodes made South Africa, but enormous personal profits accrued to him in the process; in fact they were a necessary consequence of the work he was doing. Whether Newfoundland's Colossus will make any such disposal of his gains as Rhodes did, remains to be seen; but he has certainly done all the hard work in the way of starting that island out on its career of development and it cannot be denied that his work was followed by the greatest period of prosperity Newfoundland has ever known.

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it. He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death. He needs Ferreroze!

Its first action is upon digestion. It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated. Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferreroze is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl B. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferreroze which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferreroze as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferreroze I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was strong enough to move around again. In three months I was completely cured. Ferreroze braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

Try Ferreroze—sold everywhere by druggists in 50c. boxes.

How to Read Character

The eye is the feature which denotes intellect, says Professor Annie Oppenheim in her recently published book, "The face and how to read it." The position of the eyes as regards the brain will enable you to average the individuals intellectual capacities, namely, by the manner in which they are set in their sockets.

There is more shrewdness and keenness of observation with deep-set eyes than with prominent ones. Whatever we perceive is conveyed to the brain by means of the optic nerve; thus the deeper the eyes are set in the head, the closer their proximity to the brain. The nerve being shorter, accounts for a quicker transmission of sensation and sight.

A projecting eye more readily receives impressions from surrounding objects; it indicates ready and universal observation, but a lack of close scrutiny and perception of individual things.

People with deep-set eyes receive more definite and accurate impressions, but they are less rapidly impressed and less discursive in their views. Round eyed persons see much and live much in the senses, but think less.

Narrow-eyed persons see less, but think more and feel more intensely.

The larger the pupil of the eye, the clearer the intellect, and the quicker the powers of comprehension.

People who show the whites above and below the pupil are generally very restless and half simple. You will never find this kind of eye in clever or sensible people; it is generally known as the stupid eye.

The magnitude of the Eucurl, the great Spanish palace, may be inferred from the fact that it would take four days to go through all the rooms and apartments, the length of the way being reckoned at twenty-three Spanish leagues, which is about one hundred and twenty English miles.

Saccharine obtained from tar is 220 times sweeter than cane sugar, and is used in sweetening and preserving jams, fruit preserves and jellies. Unlike ordinary cane sugar when so used it is not liable to mold or ferment.

On the other hand, it does not fatten or nourish the body, and in certain ailments is therefore recommended by doctors for sweetening coffee, tea and other beverages in place of ordinary cane sugar.

There are several trees and plants in the world whose berries, juice or bark are as good to wash with as real soap. In the West Indian Islands and in South America grows a tree whose fruit makes an excellent lather and is used for washing clothes. The bark of a tree which grows in Peru and of another which grows in the Malay Islands, yields a fine soap. The common soapwort, which is indigenous to England, is so full of saponine that simply rubbing the leaves together in water produces a soapy lather.

Thoughts

Each of us has his or her place in the world, and no one else can fill it. The condition of all progress is experience. We go wrong a thousand times before we find the right path.

We struggle, and grope, and hurt ourselves until we learn the use of things; and this is true of things spiritual as well as of material things.

Make sure that however good you may be you have faults; that however dull you may be you can find out what they are; and that however slight they may be you had better make an effort to get rid of them.

Only a few sweet, loving words—that is all; but, coming from the heart and going to the heart, they would brighten many a life and comfort many a soul, as the speaker of them little thinks. Let us not be so chary of them.—Mary H. Perkins.

do not run after happiness, but seek to do good, and you will find the happiness will run after you. The world will seem a very good place and the world to come a better place still.

Every day is a new chance given you by God. A new chance, a new leaf, a new life. This is the golden, the unspeakable gift which each new day offers you.—Farrar.

If you should fail, and commit some of your old faults when you are striving to do better, do not be disheartened, but rise up and go on again, as if you had not fallen.

St. Francis De Sales. To each of us is intrusted the building up of our own character. To fulfil that duty we must not only regard against moral faults—we must improve every talent we possess, we must widen our interests, we must sharpen our faculties by careful effort.—Soulsby.

The purpose of man's life is not happiness, but worthiness. Happiness may come as an accessory—we dare never make it the end.

The beautiful thing about life is that, no matter how lowly our place is, it is in the King's sight. There are a great many things we cannot do, but we must do what we can, especially the little duties.—Margaret Sangster.

There are plenty of things to fret about. It is simply astonishing how much annoyance may be found in the course of every day's living if one only keeps a sharp eye out on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are prone to trouble, as the sparks fly upward. But even to the sparks flying upward in the blackest of smoke there is a blue sky above; and the less time they waste on the road the sooner they will reach it. Fretting is all time wasted on the road.—Helen Hunt.

There is many a woman—and not a bad woman either—who deliberately sets her influence over her husband in opposition to his mother's influence over him. The mistake she makes is two-fold, and double certain to re-act upon herself. First, a time will come when a man's mother is beyond the reach of his regrets for any pain he may have given her, and then his unavailing remorse will vent itself in anger—deep, if silent—against the instigator of his rebellion.

And, secondly, a good man's mother to him the embodiment of ideal womanhood. Therefore the woman who lowers his opinion of his mother lowers his opinion of womanhood as a whole, herself included.—Ellen Thornycroft Fowler.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever." But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of your winter habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Sloop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tired spot." Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

Lion Puts Circus Crowd to Flight
 Greenwich, Conn. —Nero, a large lion with a record of having killed three men angered by repeated jabbing with a stick and the firing of blank cartridges, leaped at its keeper yesterday and escaped from its cage in a side show of Washburn's circus.
 The circus was exhibiting across the street from the high school, and in the circus crowd were hundreds of school children.
 The keeper first worked the lion into a rage by teasing it with a stick and firing off a pistol in its face. Then he stepped into the cage. The lion made a fierce lunge at him and he retreated. On the ground below stood the assistant, in his hands a rope attached to the door. He was too busy watching the trainer escape from the cage to pull the rope quickly, and with a roar the lion leaped into the crowd.
 A policeman pulled up the canvas and shouted "Bear it" as he pushed women and children out of it. For a time it was not known whether the animal had escaped from the tent or not, but circus men grabbed the gray ropes and held the canvas down to keep him close if he should be in the tent, while the alarm went through the other tents and into the main canvas where the show proper was about to start. Meanwhile the crowds fled under tents, over stone walls, into adjacent buildings and up trees and telegraph poles.
 Washburn told the police to shoot the lion, and they and everybody else who had a revolver got ready; but soon the beast was heard growling in the tent and overturning cages of jabbering monkeys, and the elephants were trumpeting.
 Washburn offered a reward of $100 for the capture of the lion and four circus men crawled under the tent, spread out the canvas top of a wagon and tried to form a semi-circle and corner the lion. One of the men succeeded in throwing a lasso around its neck. Others took the wheels of a wagon cage, laid the cage on the ground, and by using meat as bait got the lion into it.

A Way to Better Bread
 Good housekeepers, it is said, are known by the bread and pastry they provide for their homes. When we come to think of it, is there any one thing in which a housekeeper should excel—in which she should take more pride—than in her snowy, delicious, wholesome home-made bread?
 Any woman can make white, light, nourishing bread. One of the commonest causes of failure in the baking is the use of poor flour. Flour, made of Ontario fall wheat alone, though nutritious and faultless as to flavor, is not strength enough. Manitoba wheat on the other hand, is deficient in fine flavor and delicacy, although full of strength.
 A blend of the two has been found to give wonderful results. This does not mean that you can mix them at home—it is difficult to do that except with the finest and most delicate machinery. Many of the best millers are blending the rich Ontario fall wheat with the flinty Manitoba wheat, thus bringing out all the good qualities of both.
 With this Ontario Blended Flour, you will have no trouble in making light white bread—bread with that peculiarly sweet, wholesome taste which one naturally associates with home-made bread.

Lady Sleepwalker Was Struck Down
 Bellefontaine, Ohio.—Miss Jessie Weaver forgot to tell the other roomers at the Diner boarding house at West Liberty, when she took up her room there recently, that she was subject to somnambulism.
 At night when she was walking about the halls and entering various rooms, clad only in her night gown, she uttered a scream that awoke Nathaniel Reber with a start and the guests thought a murder was being perpetrated.
 Reber grabbed a chair and with a powerful blow, knocked Miss Weaver down and awakened her.
 The young woman is suffering from a deep gash in the head and a nervous shock while Mr. Reber has a consuming attack of mortification.

Church Influence in American Politics
 There have been smiles at the report that at the meeting of the Methodist General Conference on May 14 Bishop Neely charged the Roman Catholic Church with mingling in politics. Its influence, he said (as quoted), is felt in our State and municipal governments and at Washington. No doubt, no doubt; but it would not be hard to get testimonials that the influence of Bishop Neely's Church is also felt in our State and municipal governments and in Washington. Who fights the army canteen? Who makes Congressmen afraid to come home without having driven beer out of the Soldiers' Homes? Who took notice when Mr. Fairbanks drank the Cocktail? The Methodist Church is very influential in our politics. There are six and a half million Methodists in the country, over five million Baptists, and eleven or twelve million Roman Catholics. All three of these large churches are bound to be influential, and the Methodists certainly are. Just what distinction Bishop Neely would make between Methodist political activity and Catholic activity we don't know. It is conceivable that in some matters the two influences supplement one another to the profit of the community, and that in other matters they temper one another, also to the profit of the community.

D. BASSEN

Lower Street St. George

We are beating all records made in Ladies Clothing and Furnishings.

So far this month our sales of ladies clothing and millinery has so far exceeded past records as to make comparison useless.

This means Something

Something to the ladies of St. George and surroundings of Charlotte County.

Something to those who want good styles in clothing and millinery.

Do you imagine our business is growing through luck, or simply because we want it to gain? Not a bit of it.

It is gaining because we are giving a better value in all our lines.

Especially in our ladies shirt waists and millinery at the present time.

What About Footwear

A person is never dressy unless they have a fine pair of shoes on. You can get them here at far less cost than elsewhere.

D. BASSEN

SPRING HATS

for the Ladies, Misses and Children

We have a fine stock of Spring Hats and Millinery Trimmings. Our Milliner starts work April 1st. We would like to have you examine our stock before buying elsewhere. The prices are very reasonable.

We also have our Spring Suits and Overcoats in. The Piccadilly and Regent Brands. Two of the best.

Suits from $5.25 to $20.00
Overcoats from $5.00 to $15.75

A Hair Dressing

If you wish a high-class hair dressing, we are sure Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will greatly please you. It keeps the hair soft and smooth, makes it look rich and luxuriant, prevents splitting at the ends. And it keeps the scalp free from dandruff.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's

At the same time the new Ayer's Hair Vigor is a strong hair tonic, promoting the growth of the hair, keeping all the issues of the hair and scalp in a healthy condition. The hair stops falling, dandruff disappears. A splendid dressing.

Made by Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

FOR SALE

Some time ago the Fishermen's Union decided to hold their annual picnic here at a date to be fixed upon later. As this is an event of much importance to them, it is to be hoped that the citizens will interest themselves and not allow there to be a limit to a man's patience, for lack of interest. Let our enterprising citizens get together, arrange an attractive program, and have one day of amusement for everybody.

CORRESPONDENCE

MR. EDITOR:
The Pulp Co. may be all right, but I would suggest that they appoint foremen or bosses, in some of their departments, who have brains enough to realize that there is a limit to a man's patience, no matter how anxious he may be to work. We are leaving for Quebec, Why? Some of the officials of the Pulp Co. know the principal reason. Ignorance, arrogance and a little authority combined, are a pretty tough combination for a workman to go up against. The days of slavery are supposed to have passed—but the crop of worn out men and cripples continue to grow in St. George. This may, some day, become a serious question for the time, and opponents of shorter hours would do well to consider the fact that an increase of taxes for the care of the poor, may be brought about by the avarice and cupidity of a corporation who have already done incalculable injury to the interests of the town. We are assured that, in our new field of labor, we will be used like men, and no matter what reports are sent out, relative to the same conditions existing at Quebec, only half the amount of work is required and this with higher wages. We are willing to admit that conditions are, in a large measure, of our own creation. If men would be men, (all of them) there is no good reason why we should be compelled to work twelve and thirteen hours. As many of us have our homes here we leave with deep regret, but when conditions become intolerable we are compelled to make the change. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in publishing this brief letter in your interesting paper, we are Yours very truly

Had to Have Part Of Leg Amputated

Salvatore Dianne, an employe of the New Brunswick Southern Railway, fell under the wheels of a gravel train near St. George Wednesday afternoon and had one leg so badly mangled and torn that it was necessary to amputate the limb above the ankle at the hospital here.

Dianne had been ordered to shove gravel from one of the cars and while attempting to grasp the ladder and board the train, which was in motion, he slipped and fell across the rails. He managed to hold one leg out of danger, but the other was caught by the wheel and crushed to a pulp below the ankle. Suffering much pain, he was hurried to the station and put on board the train for St. John. Upon his arrival at the hospital it was found necessary to amputate the foot, but according to the latest reports from that institution the man is progressing favorably.

H. A. Collins has announced himself as a candidate for Supreme Chief Ranger of the L. O. F. He is opposed to the increase of rates, and as this question will be brought up, this session of the Supreme Court promises to be highly exciting.
